Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2013

http://archive.org/details/christianherald26unse

CHRISTIAN HERALD

COPYRIGHT 1903 BY LOUIS KLOPSCH

SUBSCRIPTION, $1.50 PER ANNUM
Published 52 Times a Year

NEW YORK, JANUARY 7, 1903

VOL. 26—NO. 1. PRICE 5 CENTS
Offices: Bible House, New York

SEE PAGE 5

GUGLIELMO MARCONI, WHO HAS ACHIEVED THE GREATEST SCIENTIFIC TRIUMPH OF THE NEW CENTURY

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

SPECIAL NOTICE

On and after this date, THE MAIL BAG will be devoted weekly to replying to letters received from readers in all parts of the world. This departure is rendered necessary by the increasing volume of correspondence of this character. Elsewhere in the paper, frequent opportunity will be afforded our readers to unite in a Symposium of opinions on a stated question, dealing with some one of the live topics of the day.

Reader, E. Downington, Pa. Would a daughter, legally of age, upon whom the care of a household rests, and whose father (though well able to do so) refuses her just compensation, be justified, from a Christian standpoint, in seeking remunerative employment elsewhere?

We do not see how anyone could find serious fault with her for choosing her own career. If, however, she is absolutely necessary to the well-being of those at home, and if they would suffer materially through her departure, she should consider well whether her duty, as a Christian, does not consist in remaining with them, even at a present sacrifice, until the way is opened for her to improve her position. She is, however, entitled to remuneration for such service, morally, if not legally. If to leave would involve the breaking up of the home, it would be a very serious step to take, however tempting the inducements might be.

Subscriber, Glenwood, Fla. 1. Have any considerable number of Jews returned to Jerusalem? 2. What is the condition of the Zionist Society?

There are several recently established Jewish colonies in the Holy Land, and the Hebrew population of Jerusalem has considerably increased in late years. 2. The Zionist movement is apparently gaining strength in both Europe and America.

A. M., Pittston, Pa. 1. Please state what a training school for girls teaches? 2. Are there such schools in New York or Philadelphia? Are there any under religious auspices? And what would it cost a girl to stay at one a year?

1. Training schools for girls teach different things, according to the purpose of their creation. Thus, the nature of instruction given in a Bible Training School, or a Nurses' Training School is obvious from the name. Most training schools teach trades, such as domestic science, millinery, dressmaking; also designing, drawing, modeling, wood-carving. 2. There are a large number in each city. Many large institutional churches have classes in manual training; and the Young Women's Christian Association has schools of instruction. It would be well to write to the latter organizations in each city for fuller information upon the points interesting you.

D. C. W., Montgomery, Ala. What heathen author wrote: "I must be happy if Christ is my friend"?

None that we know of. A passage in Ovid, who was a pagan poet (45 B.C., 17 A.D.), has been translated: "If God is my friend, I cannot be wretched," and it is possible that this is the expression to which you have reference.

Referring to the scarcity of work in the large cities in winter, Mrs. J. P. G., Allen's Falls, N. Y., writes:

Tell those men and boys who are without employment to get out into the country, where there is plenty of work and enough to eat for those who are willing to work and earn it. Men cannot find help enough to run their farms, help is so scarce and high-priced.

F. T., Farmville, Va. 1. Who was founder of "Moravians," and why so called? What are their distinctive doctrine and practice? 2. What is the origin of "Nestorians"? What is their doctrine and practice?

1. John Huss was the precursor of the Ancient Moravian Brethren, who were originally "The Bohemian Brethren," founded in the Sixteenth Century. The later body, known as the Renewed Moravian Brethren, or the United Brethren, arose in 1722 in Saxony, under the guidance of Christian David. They built the town of Herrnhut, and there organization was effected and growth began. The church holds all the essential doctrines of Christianity. For full account, see any good encyclopedia. 2. The Nestorians were a sect of early Christians, called after Nestorius, a celebrated Christian theologian of Syria, who became patriarch of Constantinople. They abhor images, confession and purgatory; accept the divinity of Jesus, recognize the authority of Scripture, and hold nothing as essential that is not contained therein. With the passing ages of persecution, their religion became spiritless and formal, but it has been greatly revived by Christian missionary effort in the last sixty years.

D. H. K., Port Townsend, Wash. Would it be well or otherwise for ministers of the Gospel to have offices and regular business hours, as professional men in other callings do, in which to transact the business of the King?

Many do have regular hours for receiving inquirers and others on spiritual and church matters. As the pastor's residence or "study," or a room connected with the church building, is usually devoted to this purpose, the use of an "office" would seem unnecessary.

Jno. S. Beck, Upper Troy, N. Y., writes:

I enclose you a clipping from the Troy Budget, telling you how our Profanity League is getting along. My boys saw Roland D. Sawyer's recent article in your paper; sent for buttons and cards, and got the League started, and it is doing a great deal of good already. They have sent offerings to the Danish Home in Chicago (for orphan children). The club now numbers thirty active (between ten and sixteen years), and twenty social.

Francis Ward, New York, writes:

In THE CHRISTIAN HERALD of December 3, you say that the Great Western and the Sirius were the first steamships to cross the Atlantic, and you gave the date as 1838. These were English ships. If you will kindly consult Appleton's American Cyclopedia, you will find that Daniel Dod, who died in 1823, built the engines for the Savannah, the first steamship which crossed the Atlantic, and she was an American ship. Daniel Dod was born at Mendham, N. J.

Countess Adeline Schimmelmann, founder of the Baltic Mission, and whose work in this country is known to many of our readers, writes to the Mail-Bag:

Please contradict the statement which some American papers printed, that I was bankrupt and about to marry a Mormon. I do not even know any of those people, and am long past the marrying age. I gave my Gospel yacht Dare to a Norwegian, because he promised to use her for the Lord's work, and made him only pay the worth of the inventory. I cannot use her myself because I suffer from rheumatism. My work seems more blessed than ever. It centres now in Germany, where I am going to make my abode on the estate of my adopted son Paul.

S. H. J., Metropolis, Ill. 1. What is honesty, in the fullest sense of the word? 2. Can any one be truly honest without being a true Christian?

1. The "Golden Rule" seems to be the most comprehensive definition—the rendering to each his due in the spirit of fraternal kindness. 2. Yes, though he would not be animated by the Christian spirit, but by the love of justice, honor and uprightness, which some rare souls have shown even in pre-Christian days.

C. R. S., Keyport, N. J. There was a certain queen who insisted on being called a king and not a queen. What was her country and her name?

Perhaps an incident in the life of Maria Theresa, Empress of Austria-Hungary, 1741. On the death of her father, who had no son, she claimed the succession to his throne. Because of her sex, her right was disputed by Prussia, Saxony, France and Bavaria, and Austria invaded. She fled to Hungary, appeared before the Diet, with her infant son in her arms, and asked the protection and support of the nobles there assembled. With enthusiastic chivalry and loyalty, they declared that they were ready to die for their "King, Maria Theresa."

H. L. S., Mitchell, Ont. What rational explanation is there of the star which drew the Magi to the stable at Bethlehem?

There was a remarkable conjunction of Jupiter and Saturn about that time, which must have been a very brilliant spectacle, and which would be very impressive to astrologers. It might lead them to the belief that some mighty potentate was born, and probably to make inquiry as to such birth. The fact, that would doubtless be known to all Orientals, that the Jews expected a Messiah, may have led the Magi to Palestine. Their inquiry for "the King of the Jews" seems to imply that it was there they expected to find such a being as the conjunction portended. The difficulty, however, is to explain the star going before them (Matt. 2:9). As they traveled westward, it might have had that appearance, but not so definitely as the account implies. The more probable explanation is that it was a meteor divinely directed.

W. H. D., Vonore, Tenn. Is it probable that at the last judgment it will be found that more souls are lost than are saved?

It is impossible to answer the question with any degree of authority. God alone knows who are lost or saved. One factor, however, that may tend to a solution of it is, that we are assured that there will come a time when the whole world will acknowledge Christ's sway. As the population of the world increases from year to year, we may assume that at that time, whenever it occurs, there will be more people on earth than at any preceding period in the world's history, which will materially add to the total number who are saved. The question is not one that is of profit. Christ did not encourage speculation on the subject. When the question was put to him he would not answer it, but gave the questioner practical advice. (See Luke 13:23.)

Mrs. J. L., West Chesterfield, N. H. Is it not profanity, if a person in common conversation, or in writing a story, says "Good Lord" or "Good God?" I have heard people who considered themselves refined ladies, use the former as glib as a common expression, and, in a journal, I have seen the latter used repeatedly. I wish to know if I am wrong in calling it profane swearing.

It is certainly profanity, in the sense that it is taking the name of God in vain; yet such expressions, we regret to say, are used by many who would be shocked if one accused them of profanity.

B. A., Phoenix, N. Y. Why do the Salvation Army have their services in public, and at street corners, when I think they could do as much good in a quiet little church, selected for the occasion? They would please our dear Saviour more, I think.

We have referred this letter to the Salvation Army officials for explanation, and we give their answer below:

The Gospel of Jesus Christ is a public Gospel for the "whosoever." Nothing proves our apostolic descent more than the faithful preaching of righteousness at the street corners. Practically all the public ministry of our Divine Master was performed in the open-air. The Apostles achieved some of their greatest victories in God's great cathedral under his blue sky. Christ also commands us in his word to go out into the highways and hedges. The Salvation Army is essentially an open-air organization. It was started in the open-air. From fifty to seventy-five per cent. of our population are churchless. What is to become of them? They are not in the quiet little church; they are in the open-air; the crowds are out-doors, not in. The only place that the masses can be made to listen to the Gospel, is where Jesus Christ found them, out-doors. The Salvation Army has rescued thousands from drunkenness and shame, found multitudes of wandering boys, persuaded a large number of prodigal girls to return home to mother's and father's arms, and who to-day are leading good lives, purely and simply through our open-air operations, many of whom are known to me personally. The Salvation Army will never give up its open-air work for the "little quiet church," which could not be quiet if the Salvation Army entered it. C. MILES, Lieut.-Colonel. Field Secretary.

Subscriber. Football, stripped of the rough "horse-play" which is too common on many fields, is not an objectionable game. There is no more excuse for sheer brutality in football than in any other athletic exercise. Rough play should be absolutely excluded.

Reader. In a recent issue of the Charlotte, N.C., Observer, it was stated that the term "lynch law" had its origin in an incident which took place many years ago at Lynch Creek, Nash County, in that State. There are, however, several accounts of the origin of the phrase.

H. E., Johnstown, Pa. There is no law against the marriage of those so closely related by ties of blood, but common custom, adopting the view of science, has decided it to be inadvisable. The children born of such unions are apt to be either physically or mentally degenerate.

R. C. Gill, Washington, D. C., writes:

In THE MAIL-BAG of Nov. 19th, it is stated that the typewriter was first invented by Thomas Hall, in 1866. The first disclosure of a complete and operative typewriter was in the American patent to Wm. A. Burt, of Detroit, Mich., dated July 23, 1829. The French patent to Progin, 3,748, dated Sept. 6, 1833, shows for the first time pivoted type-bars arranged in a circular basket, with the types arranged to strike at the central printing point. The next disclosure of a type-writing machine is in the American patent to Charles Thurber, of Worcester, Mass., dated Aug. 26, 1843. A number of other patents were issued for improvements in type-writing machines prior to 1866.

WAITING FOR THE SALVATION ARMY'S CHRISTMAS FEAST

According to annual custom, the Salvation Army feasted a multitude in this city on Christmas Day. Commander Booth-Tucker said that the Army's provision for the poor this season broke all previous records. About 5,000 baskets of food, each estimated to contain enough for a family of five, were distributed from the Grand Central Palace. Applicants began to form in line by daylight, and by ten, the hour of distribution, the line was a double one, extending all the way around the block. When the door was opened and the procession filed in, Commander Booth-Tucker began to sing "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow." Those who were insufficiently clad got presents of clothing in addition to food; and the ill-shod received nickels, with the advice to "ride home," specially acceptable assistance and advice in view of the snow-storm which visited this city Christmas Day. That night thousands of hungry, homeless men and women and children sat down to the bountiful feast of good things spread for them in the Palace by the Army.

The "Key of the Forest"

DEAR DR. KLOPSCH:—Your valuable premium duly received. It is far beyond my expectation, but it has always been my experience, as a subscriber to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, that your deeds always exceed your advertised promises. Please accept my thanks for this noble addition to my library, The Speaking Oak, the "King of the Forest."

St. Peter, Minn. ALEXANDER HARKIN.

NEW YORK, JANUARY 7, 1903

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD

AN ILLUSTRATED FAMILY MAGAZINE

A FINNISH FISHING-BOAT

WOMEN AND CHILDREN BURNING STRAW IN THE FIELDS

WINTER IN FINLAND

FINLAND SWEPT by FAMINE

WHILE other countries are rejoicing in a period of unusual prosperity, Finland, in the Baltic, is in the grasp of the severest famine it has ever known. Suffering is general in the northern provinces, and especially in Uleaborg, Knopic, Vasa, St. Michael and Viborg. It seems certain, according to the reports that reach us from Helsingfors, the capital, and from St. Petersburg (where the news has been officially communicated to the Russian Government), that unless substantial help comes speedily to the starving Finlanders, many thousands must perish before the snows of winter melt under the winds of spring.

Last year's crops were a total failure, owing to the unprecedented rains, which rotted the grain in the ground. Besides, the fisheries, which supply the means of existence to a very large proportion of the people, also failed through the same cause. Peas, beans and potatoes grew sodden and rotted in the soil, like the grain. The hay, too, then went through rot and flood. Spring was late; then came a long succession of chilly rains and early frost, killing off the last hopes of the farmers. In the provinces mentioned, there were not more than half a dozen dry days the whole summer. It was, altogether, the most utter crop failure in half a century, and has brought the people of one hundred and ninety-four parishes to a condition of destitution.

Finland's average grain crop is easily $12,000,000 short of the preceding year; and this, together with the loss in sea and lake fishing, means ruin to thousands of industrious peasant families. Hunger, with all its terrors, has invaded the northern provinces, and multitudes are to-day living upon bread made from unripe rye and barley, which even the horses reject. Loaves of barley husks and straw are all that stand between them and starvation, and there are thousands who have not even a morsel of that wretched compost to stay their hunger, and who are compelled to live upon the kindness of their neighbors. In the last great famine of 1867, when the crops failed, 100,000 were said to have died of starvation. This winter the situation is even more serious, and the authorities are alarmed for the fate of the sufferers. Four hundred thousand, or one-sixth of the entire population of the country, are reported a literally on the verge of starvation.

Reports received by the Agricultural Board from the famine provinces, show that 106 provinces had food sufficent to last until Christmas only, while nearly one hundred others were depending on charity. All the hoarded savings of the peasantry—the accumulation of years of painful toil—have gone for food. Even clothing has been neglected in the urgent craving for nutrition.

When Count Bobriokoff, the Russian Governor-General of Finland, realized the sufferings of the peasants, he appealed to the imperial government for help. But it was soon learned that Russia had to face the prospect this winter, of a famine of vast dimensions in her own central provinces. The appeal of Finland was not overlooked, however. Meanwhile, a relief work has been already begun by Finlanders in Russia. The Anglo-American Church in St. Petersburg is aiding the work. The Senate has appropriated $500,000, to purchase grain, to be sold to the Finnish peasants at cost, and extensive public works will be shortly commenced, which will give employment and relief to many of the sufferers in the cities and towns at least. Such relief, it is to be feared, can hardly penetrate to the districts in the interior, where the suffering and privation are felt the most.

Only a few weeks ago, the Rev. J. D. Kilburn, of St. Petersburg, returned from a long sledge journey through Kupulo Province in Finland. He gives a graphic and touching account of the famine situation, and writes:

Wherever possible, work is being found for those who are able to do it, such as cutting wood, making roads, draining marshes, etc. There are many, living in lonely and distant parts, who cannot leave their homes to go to this work. Then there are many widows left with three and four or even more children, who are utterly unable to find work of any kind. They and their children must die if they are not speedily helped.

The state of the children is in many cases particularly sad. Many have nothing more than a single shirt, and can only go outside the door when some older brother or sister puts off some scanty clothing to lend to them. Others may be seen day by day walking long distances, amid the cold and frost, with utterly insufficient clothing, to school. Most of them have had hardly anything to eat before leaving home, and will get little or nothing after returning. An effort is being made by the friends in some parishes to raise means to enable the teachers to give these children a piece of black bread daily, so as to still the cravings of hunger and enable them to continue to attend school.

Letters received by Finlanders in New York from friends at home, give a gloomy and ominous picture of the outlook. They declare that before spring, not less than 60,000 families in the northern provinces will be affected. In Uleaborg, there is already the keenest suffering from lack of food. The winter began in October, and suffering has steadily increased. Some of the letters refer to Pastor Kilburn's journey, and state that he personally found, besides adults, not less than 1,900 children destitute of food.

Mr. J. Jussila, a Finlander in business in New York, having relations with the immigration movement, expressed the opinion that it would require at least a million dollars to save the lives of the famine-stricken Finns, and keep them until next spring. Small sums have already been sent by the Finlanders in this country for that benevolent purpose.

In response to repeated urgent appeals to present the case of the suffering people of Finland to the benevolent American public, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD has investigated the matter fully, and finds that the reports received are no wise exaggerated. It is beyond question, that, unless relief be sent to these people quickly, large numbers will die of starvation. Already the suffering is such that it would be little short of a miracle were the peasants of the interior to exist until midwinter. Prompt action may be the means of saving thousands of lives. We, therefore, urge all who have the cause of this simple Christian people at heart, to aid with their prayers and contributions in stemming the tide of starvation. A fraction of what has been spent in New York alone, on Christmas presents, would save thousands of poor Finnish families from untold privations and bring joy and gratitude to a multitude of hearts. If every reader of this journal would contribute a single dollar to this worthy cause, and do it quickly, Finland would be saved and the famine stayed.

Send your contribution to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, 92 Bible House, New York, marking your letters, "Finland Famine Fund."

Every contribution will be acknowledged in these columns. All contributions will be forwarded to the Relief Committee, at Helsingfors, who will render an accounting of their work, which will be published hereafter in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD.

Following contributions to the fund are acknowledged:

Louis Klopsch, Proprietor of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD	$100.00
P. B Bromfield	25.00
Friends who sympathize	5.00

Finland is about the size of Great Britain, Holland and Belgium combined, or about the area of California,

CONTINUED ON PAGE 14

A VIEW IN ULEABORG, FINLAND, WHERE FAMINE PREVAILS

THE American Pulpit

...SERMON BY...

Rev. Frank De Witt Talmage, D.D.

of the Jefferson Park Presbyterian Church, Chicago

New Year's Expectations

TEXT — Prov. 9: 11: "The years of thy life shall be increased"

HAPPY New Year! I bring to you the Gospel salutation. I bring it to you with a smile upon the lip; with joy welling up in the heart. I bring it to you, because I hope it is to be the best and the most momentous year of all your life.

I am going to be a Gospel prophet this morning. I am not only going to tell you that this new year is to be the best year of your life, but it is also going to be a precursor of many other useful years. I am going to say to you, as Solomon said of old, that on account of this coming year consecrated to God, your earthly longevity shall be lengthened. "The years of thy life shall be increased."

Charles Dickens wrote a famous book entitled Great Expectations. But the English writer did not have as much right to use that caption for his novel as I have for this sermon. As Christ said to the blind men: "According to your faith, so be it unto you." My faith to-day is infinite. Never since I was born have I had greater faith in the power of Christ to save and bless than at the present time. Therefore, on account of my belief in the power of Jesus Christ that he can and will save your soul during the coming year, I know that this is to be the most important year of your life.

The Recruiting Band

My great expectations for your spiritual welfare and your consecration of the New Year are not only founded upon my own faith, but also upon the faith of an earnest band of scores and scores of praying men and women who are loyally seeking your good. This band is composed of your friends and your loved ones. It is an all-conquering band which shall soon, aye, I think to-day, capture your soul for Jesus Christ. We have read what Garibaldi did for Italian freedom. What had he to offer his followers? Nothing but hunger, and pain, and wounds, and exile. But above all these privations, Garibaldi lifted the standard of liberty, and the young men flocked to his side by the hundreds, and the thousands. It may not be an easy task to capture your sinful heart for Christ. But the Gospel prize is so great, that the earnest band of workers surrounding me, like the Italian patriots, are willing to go through any privations, if they can only bring you a repentant sinner to the foot of the Cross. We have read what Toussaint L'Ouverture did for Haytian freedom. Wendell Phillips in his famous oration, declared that this Southern leader was a greater man than Washington, Napoleon, Cæsar, than Alexander the Great. But all the conquests by which the South American leader and his little band of followers were able to throw off the European tyrannies, are as nothing in their eternal results when compared to some of the glorious spiritual victories which shall be won during this opening year for Christ—to be won by this band of earnest praying workers, who are surrounding me at the present time. So on this first Sunday, 1903, we give you fair warning that in the name of Jesus Christ we are about to move upon your sinful heart; we are about to capture your whole life for Jesus Christ.

Suggested Resolutions

Now, as a Gospel transformation is soon to take place in your life, I am going to tell to-day some of the new resolves by which this opening year is to inspire your life. I am about to tell you here and now how you are going "to forget those things that are behind, and reach forth unto those things that are before, and press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

To overcome your evil passions, and to live as your redeemed father and mother want you to live, is to be one of your chief desires for the ensuing year. There was a great change in your life when the old folks died. You may have long ago become a grown-up man, and been away from home five, ten, or even fifteen years, before you received the fatal telegram from your sister: "Come home at once, mother is dying." Yet, not until that time, did you wilfully let yourself go into the mælstrom of sin. Not until that time did you say, in a sinful sense: "Well, it does not matter much what becomes of me. Mother is now dead, and father is dead. Even if I do wrong, and become dissipated, they will not hear of it." For a few years after your mother's death, your oldest sister tried to take your mother's place. Every Sunday night, she would write to you, just as your mother did. But somehow, though her letters were newsy and bright, and told you how the old neighbors were getting on, their messages did not ring in your heart like mother's letters. They did not begin, as her's did, with the sacred words: "My dear boy." She always called you her boy, though you had long ago been able to stand in an election booth and declare your choice for the Presidency of the United States. But somehow, during the past few months, the teachings of the old homestead have been pressing down upon you with mighty power. Man, you are tired of sin. You are tired of yourself. You might feel a little better if you could only put your head in her lap and have a good cry. But you can't. Do you know what is the matter? I think your dead parents are pleading with you and for you now, just the same as they did of old.

Heavenly Messengers

The Psalmist tells us that God keeps the tears of his loved ones in a bottle. Last week God lifted one of the parental tears which were shed over your cradle. He placed the sparkling treasure upon the white wing of an Angel of Mercy, and cried: "Go, angel, and drop that tear upon that young man's head and anoint him with the Spirit's power." Last night, God sent another white-winged messenger with another tear out of his bottle, shed by your father on the day you joined the church. One white-winged angel after another did as they were told. They all dropped those parental tears upon your head and heart. Discouraged man, to-day wearied of the sinful world, as you sit there with the tears running down your cheeks, you think they are your tears. They are not. They are the tears of your dead and redeemed father and mother, which God has long been preserving in his sacred bottle. They are the tears of joy which your father and mother are now shedding in heaven, because the white-winged angels have already flown to the Celestial City to announce to them that their boy is awearied of sin; that their boy is now ready to cast himself upon the love of Jesus and be saved. Oh, to-day the sacred band of Christian worshipers about me can hardly keep from clapping their hands in joy. Truly this is not only for us, but also for your repenting soul, a happy, happy New Year's day.

This ought to be especially a Happy New Year for you, repenting, sinful man, because now the good works of your dead father and mother are about to be perpetuated through the coming centuries. When your mother died, you said, "I do not want for her any expensive funeral, or useless show? I do not want any trained choir to sing any classical music by her casket. I do not want for her a public funeral. I do not even want her body to be taken to the church. Let her sleep as long as possible in the bed where she died. Let her funeral be by her own fireside. Let a few friends gather here who loved her. Let some young girl who is a friend of my sister sing a simple song like

Safe in the arms of Jesus,
Safe on his gentle breast.

Mother was not fond of society. She was a home-body. She lived mostly for father and us children." Well, my brother, if your mother was a home-body and lived mostly for her children, do you not see that if you refused to repent, refused to consecrate your life to the Cross, refused to be a good man and live a pure life, that your sinful acts would be damming back a great part of her prayers and the good results of her life? When your mother died, you gathered up all the kind, sympathetic letters which were written to you about her past kindnesses. You also had the officiating minister write down his funeral address. Then you had those letters and that address all printed and bound together into a booklet, which you called

"My Mother's Memorial"

But, man, the mightiest and most triumphant memorial you could ever make of your mother's life is your own life consecrated to the service of Jesus. She put her blood and her life into your life. So, man, this ought to be a happy year for you. It ought to be happy, because by your own consecration to the service of the Lord Jesus you are here and now ready to let your mother's prayers echo and re-echo and resound in your prayers. Her good deeds will find a true continuance in your good deeds. Her Christ shall hereafter be worshiped with a sweeter look, because He is also now her boy's Christ.

The holy endeavor to fulfil the past pledges which you have made to God shall be another desire inspiring you during this ensuing Happy New Year. All your past days have not been bright and happy days. The meadow-larks do not sing when they hear the merciless growl of a destroying cyclone. The red roses of June do not like to rest their blushing cheeks against a January snowbank. You may have welcomed the many congratulations which your friends showered upon you in your younger days of triumphs. But you have also had your defeats and heartaches and disappointments. You have also had your days when you lay upon a bed of sickness. You have had days when your life was hanging by a slender thread, ready to be snapped by death at any moment. Your wife and mother nursing you at the time did not think that you fully realized how sick you were. You did. You knew it by the anxious way the doctor watched. You knew by the care the nurses took in giving the proper medicines at the exact time. Then—oh, then, in that dark hour you felt as did the poor fellow whom I buried some weeks ago. One Saturday he was at his work in seemingly full health. The next Monday he lay upon the operating table, as a last resort for his life. After the operation, they told him he had to die. He looked up in a pathetic way and said, "I do not want to die—I am afraid to die! Oh, do not let me die!" What did you do in that hour of your dangerous sickness? What did you do in that dark hour of trouble, when you knew that no human aid could rescue you? Did you not practically say at that time: "O God, if you will make me well and come to my rescue, I will give up all my life to thee and thy service?" Yes, sinful man, God made you well. God rescued you. Have you kept your pledges to Him? Have you given up your sinful heart to be purged from its past sins? These broken vows are to-day driving into your bleeding, repentant heart the sharp, keen dagger of remorse. As a man of honor and character, by the grace of God, you to-day are going to be true to those past pledges. I feel it. I know it. I can see a new and a holy purpose making your cheeks flush and your eyes flash with a consecrated enthusiasm. You would not break a pledge with any man to whom you gave your word. Your boast heretofore has always been that your word is as good as your bond. Neither will you to-day, O man, continue longer to break those old promises you made to God.

A Merchant's Dream

A noted preacher once told of a prosperous merchant who had a strange dream, and yet not a dream. For many years he had been a member of the church, but not living his religion as he ought to have lived. In his dream he seemed to be sitting in his study, reading the evening paper. There was a quick knock at the door, and a stranger entered and stood before him. He fixed a keen, and yet a loving eye upon the merchant. His look penetrated the innermost chambers of his temple of conscience. "One year ago, to-night," said the stranger, "your daughter was supposed to be dying. Whom did you call upon for help? Whom did you promise to serve at that time? God. Ten years ago you were supposed to be lying upon your deathbed. Had you died at that time, you would have left your family penniless. Whom did you promise to serve, if he made you well? God. Fifteen years ago, you joined the church during a time of religious awakening. Have you kept your pledges that you made to Jesus Christ at that time?" "Nay, nay," answered the merchant in his dream. "But I will. From henceforth I will, I will." And from that moment the sinful merchant lived a new life. This ensuing year, like the memorable dream of the sleeping merchant, is to open for you a new life. It is to be a year when you shall endeavor to fulfil the broken promises which you long ago made to Jesus Christ.

Happy New Year to you, sinful man. Why happy? Because during the coming twelve months, you shall for the first time enjoy the sweet blessings and exhilarations of Christian service. The joy of a self-sacrificing Christian life does not appeal to the average unconsecrated man. He says to himself, "What is the good of sacrificing for other people? They never appreciate it. My doctrine is to look after number one, and let number two look after himself. The world will always ride a willing horse to death. Then the only obsequies that willing horse will ever get is a scavenger's cart for a hearse, and a glue factory for a crematory. No, no, no. The beauties of self-sacrificing do not appeal to me. The more I have, the more people respect me. The less I have, the less they respect me. The more I am willing to serve others, the more my motives will be misjudged, and I will be misrepresented."

A Mistaken Deduction

Some time ago, I was riding through the country on a long trip. The team of horses was composed of a big, powerful animal, who was just as lazy as he was big and strong. The second was a little wiry animal, who tugged and pulled all day long. Yet, strange to say, every time we came to a hill, the driver would take out his whip and begin to beat the little horse. At last I protested. I said, "Why do you whip that little horse? Why do you not hit that big, lazy brute, who is always lagging behind and hardly keeping his traces taut?" "Oh," answered the driver, "I know you do not understand much about horses when you ask me such a question as that.

The reason I hit the little horse is because he is the willing horse. That big horse is the balky horse. If I hit him, he would immediately lie down and begin to kick this wagon all to pieces. Therefore I whip the little willing horse to keep the big balky horse agoing." Then I soliloquized to myself, for at that time I was not a truly converted man, "Ah how true is that of the world. If a man tries to do anything for humanity, he is the willing horse. He is kicked and cuffed and cursed and browbeaten. The balky horses, the useless horses, are always the kindly treated horses.

But though I made that deduction many years ago, I have now entirely changed my mind. The willing men of the churches are always the happy men. The self-sacrificing men are always the rich men spiritually. They are not the selfish men. They are not those who will grab and keep all that they can. The Dead Sea is bitter and acrid, and saline and repulsive, merely because it has no outlets and only inlets; while the waters of the mountain brook laugh and gurgle, and sing, merely because it lets all its waters run away towards the sea. Who do you think was happier? Herod, Bloody Herod, loathsome in mind and spirit, or Paul, who had given up his whole life to Jesus? Herod, with jewels on his fingers, or the Apostolic tentmaker, with his hands greasy with rope making? Do you think Napoleon was happy? Napoleon, on his way to coronation, who turned and bitterly said in reference to the cheering French populace, "Bah! They would curse me to the guillotine as gladly as they would cheer me to a throne." Or would you sooner have the happiness of a Doctor Duff pleading for India, or David Livingstone pleading for Africa, or Adoniram Judson pleading for Burmah, or John Paton pleading for the New Hebrides? Who do you think to-day is happier? The woman who is only living for social conquest, or the Salvation Army girl, going with a loaf of bread in one hand and a Bible in the other hand to carry the Gospel of Jesus Christ into the slums? Yes, my repentant friend, the ensuing year is to be a happy year for you. It is to be a year when you shall quaff a chalice filled with the sweetest nectar. You shall drink hereafter out of the golden goblet filled by those whose sorrows you have alleviated, and whose sobs you have tuned into songs of eternal rapture.

But all these deductions hinge upon one great condition. The ensuing year is to be a happy year for you, because from now on, you are to depend entirely upon divine strength to triumph over your besetting temptations. Last Wednesday night was not the first New Year's eve when you started forth with good resolutions. Again and again have you attended solemn and overwhelming watch-night services. While these meetings were progressing in interest, you began to feel how mean and contemptible your life had been. You then and there said to yourself, "I will quit my sins."

Each January we all make fresh resolutions. Some years ago I preached a sermon called "New Year's Resolutions." I made up that sermon from the answers I received from friends whom I met. Every one I would accost with this same sentence. "What is your New Year's resolution?" Some would say this, some that, and some the other thing. But many answered me thus: "I have not got any. I have made so many New Year's resolutions in the past, and have broken them all, that I do not intend to make any more." But I do not believe there is a man or woman or child, who now approaches New Year's day, who does not make some new resolution. But the trouble is after you have made your New Year's resolutions, you go out in your own strength, and try to battle your old temptations, and then you are flung again and again. But, my brother, this year is going to be a different year from all others. You know your weaknesses and failures. You know you cannot win a spiritual success in your own strength. Therefore you are ready to conscientiously ask God to help you in the struggle of life. He will do it. Yes, He will give you the Divine strength which will never, never fail. Cling to Him my brother. Cling to Him as he wrestled with the angel in prayer, and He will bless you and never let you fail.

But I hesitate myself to say that there is something for which to congratulate the praying band of Christian workers who surround me, and also for you, repentant man and repentant woman. You came into this church to-day, indifferent to the Lord Jesus Christ. You are now looking on the armor to join our Gospel ranks and to become one of our Christian comrades. We have read how the French king sent forth Marshal Ney with the royal troops to capture Napoleon, after his escape from the island of Elba. When the soldiers came in sight of the unarmed and dethroned ruler, Napoleon, instead of running, turned and threw back the lapel of his coat as he cried: "Men, will you shoot your Emperor?" With that, Marshal Ney threw down his sword at Napoleon's feet, and all the soldiers began to weep and cry, "Long live the Emperor!" And the soldiers who went forth to capture a pretender to the throne returned to Paris to drive Louis Philippe out of the Tuileries. That was dramatic! But to-day, a more dramatic scene is taking place within the walls of this church. You came here an enemy of Jesus Christ. You to-day are going to join with us and fight for the Divine Master. Oh, shall we not cheer? Shall we not look upon your reinforcement as a presage for us of a Happy New Year?

Brother and sister in Christ, the work before the church is stupendous. This Gospel battle is to be no child's play. We have welcomed you into our ranks in the name of Jesus. Now close up the ranks; now kneel and make one earnest, intense prayer before we start on our new Gospel campaign. Now, are you ready? Forward in the name of our Captain: Forward against the citadel of sin: Forward for the redemption of our loved ones: Forward to capture Chicago for Christ: Forward, march! Forward, march!

Talking Across the Ocean

....SIGNOR MARCONI SENDS AND RECEIVES MESSAGES TO EUROPE WITHOUT A CABLE

(See Portrait on First Page)

WITHOUT the aid of a cable, telegraphic messages have been sent across the Atlantic. The news, not unexpected by scientific electricians, strikes the ordinary man with wonder. As usual, there were predictions that the attempt must fail, and scientific reasons were given why it would prove impossible to communicate through eighteen hundred miles of space; but on December 22, the announcement was made by Signor Marconi, that he had sent to King Edward of England and King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, messages of congratulation, and had received answers. An achievement so momentous marks a new era in telegraphy. It opens a boundless field of further discovery and will probably be the precursor of unimagined triumphs.

The messages were sent from Table Head, Cape Breton, to Poldhu, Cornwall, the most westerly point of England. At the former place, Signor Marconi occupies a station built expressly for his use at a cost of $200,000. It consists of four wooden pillars 225 feet high, which have been erected on the bluff, itself seventy-five feet above the level of the sea. The pillars stand at the corners of a square in the centre of which is the operating-room. The towers are connected near the top by wires, from which hang a large number of copper wires, the ends of which enter the operating-room. In this room is a transmitter of tremendous power and a receiver of exceedingly delicate capacity. There is no other instrument nor any apparent connection between the operator and the person he is talking to eighteen hundred miles away. Yet there is no doubt as to the fact, for the message to the King of Italy was sent by an operator who did not know the Italian language and was received in England by a clerk also unacquainted with it; yet every letter was absolutely correct.

SIGNOR MARCONI IN HIS OPERATING ROOM AT TABLE HEAD, C. B.

The beginning of the experiments, which have now had so triumphant an outcome, was made in 1895, on a farm near Bologna, Italy. William Marconi, then a youth barely twenty years of age, set up two poles eighty inches high and 100 feet apart. On the top of each pole he placed a tin box, from which a wire ran to an ordinary telegraph instrument at the foot of the pole. There was no wire from one pole to the other, but signals made at one pole were received at the other. This was the key to the great discovery. It was obvious that the electric current could travel, at least for a short distance, without the wire we had deemed essential for its journey. The next step was to discover the conditions by which that distance could be increased. Marconi doubled the length of his poles and placed them farther apart. They were shifted as far as the signals were received, until he found that 340 feet was the distance that they would travel from poles thirteen feet four inches high. The principle was thus established, that, under ordinary conditions, the higher the pole the longer the distance electricity would travel without a wire for its conveyance.

With this discovery, Signor Marconi went to England to secure aid in its development. Experiments were made with balloons and kites, which, while not producing practical results, proved the soundness of his deductions, and established the principle of the distance being dependent on the height of the transmitting and receiving stations. They also showed that the distance in the higher altitudes was much greater in proportion than in the lower. The distance increased not according to the increase of the height of the pole, but according to the square of the height of the pole. Thus, doubling the height of the pole, increased the distance four times, and trebling its height increased the distance nine times. It was also found that hills or buildings intervening, proved no obstacles to the current. In one experiment there was a hill between the two masts 314 feet higher than they, yet the signals were as distinct as if nothing interposed.

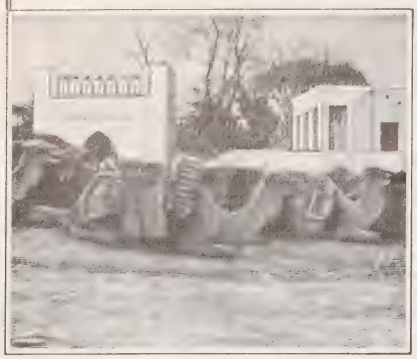
The work of experimenting went on and new discoveries were made. Various improvements in the instruments rendered it possible to increase the distance without increase in the height of the masts. Copper reflectors were found to be important aids in directing the course of the current for short distances, and finally the operation known as "tuning" was discovered, which is an important part of the Marconi system. This consists in adjusting the power of the receiver to that of the transmitter, which may be done to an unlimited extent as is done with the Yale lock and key. To such an extent has this system been perfected that, though when a current is started it may spread in circles to every point of the compass, no receiver is affected but the one attuned to the key of the transmitter. However numerous may be the receivers scattered over intervening space, there is only one that receives the message, unless others have been attuned to that particular key.

Since 1899, when the Marconi system received general recognition, the uses to which it has been put have multiplied. Its chief value has been found in its use on steamers. By a wire suspended from the mast of a ship and connected with an instrument on deck, messages are received from the shore for hundreds of miles. Passing ships communicate with one another. During the voyage of two vessels of the Cunard Line last week, the vessel proceeding to England was in communication for two days in mid-ocean with the vessel coming to New York. Messages were exchanged freely, though the vessels were never in sight of one another. It would thus be possible for a vessel in distress, if equipped with the Marconi apparatus, to call upon other vessels for help though none were visible. The approach of ships may also be announced long before they can be seen. This has been practically proved by the enterprise of the New York Herald, which has equipped a vessel stationed off Nantucket with the Marconi apparatus. It receives reports from incoming vessels and sends them by wire to New York.

The principle on which the Marconi system is based, is that communication proceeds from waves in that mysterious ether, which is believed to fill all space. Very little is known about this strange substance, which is so rarified, so imperceptible that it passes conception. Its waves, however, bring us light and sound, and may have other uses not yet discovered. As a stone cast into a pond produces ripples that reach its edge, so the electric force projected into the ether produces waves that, when regulated and controlled, produce signals. Signor Marconi does not attempt to explain these waves, but is content with learning what they will do and will not do.

The discoverer is an exceedingly modest, unassuming man, intensely interested in his study, patient in investigation, careful in experiment, and practical beyond the usual characteristics of discoverers. He is the son of an Italian father and a British mother, and speaks the language of each fluently. He is slightly above middle height, and has the blue eyes and light hair of his mother's race, though he is careful to preserve his Italian nationality. He is only twenty-seven years of age, and until he was twenty-one had made his home in Italy with his parents, who are both living, and to whom he sent a message of congratulation after those transmitted to the two monarchs.

MISSIONARIES STONED IN TANGIER



CAMELS AT REST NEAR GERMAN LEGATION

LIKE Paul, whose spirit was stirred when he saw the city of Athens given over to idolatry, so we missionaries in Morocco often find our spirits moved by the sights we witness here. Only a few weeks ago, our beloved co-worker, Mr. Cooper, was shot in the market-place of Fez. The Sultan has presented £1,000 to Mrs. Cooper, and promised to send her an escort at any time she may be disposed to travel in Morocco.

As we are found daily in the market-places witnessing for Christ, your CHRISTIAN HERALD readers may be pleased to know something about these places in Morocco. That of Tangier is a very ancient market-place. Many slaves have been sold here to the highest bidder, and here, also, criminals have been led out for public decapitation. It is the meeting place of many races—Arabs and Moors and wild tribes from the desert—and about the bare ground lie caravans of camels, beside the untidy bales they have carried. Small groups of half-naked blacks who have followed them here, squat on the ground among the beasts, huddled together and bewildered at the strangeness of the scenes. Here and there, wrapped in blankets and under yard-wide hats of matting, sit groups of venders selling little bundles of grass, wood, charcoal, fruits, and other goods, which lie spread out before them. In other parts are gathered small circles of idlers, who watch a knot of writhing snakes. The snake charmer takes a reptile in his hand, and while several men beat the tom-tom and play the flute, the charmer dances to the tune played, his weird cries bringing large crowds of people together. He dances until he has worked himself up to a frenzy, and then begins his repulsive work. He holds the snake's head upward, and the reptile shows its poisonous fangs, and coils itself about the man's arm. The dancer looks fiercely at it, and, to our utter amazement, he suddenly forces the snake's head into his mouth, and bites the head off. He then throws the head to the ground, and after pulling the skin off the snake, throws it also to the ground; the tom-tom and flute continuing to play meanwhile. Now the dancer begins to eat the snake. Many onlookers turn away horrified at the sight. Having finished the horrible repast, he takes up the skin, cuts it into small pieces, and sells them to the people, telling them that if they keep the piece of snake skin, they will never be without money, and that if any one be sick, they should throw the skin into the fire, and let the patient inhale the smoke, and he will get well immediately.

Across the market-place, on a sandy ridge, is a tired caravan. A rich Moorish trader, with perhaps forty camels and a guard of Arab horsemen, has reached his long journey's end from the far interior. As they settle down, a call floats from a distant minaret within the city, and as the daylight passes away, many in the moving throng fall to the ground in prayer.

THE "MARKET GATES" OF THE CAPITAL

Dusk steals quickly upon the city. Soon the market-place is peopled only by shadows, with here and there a circle of dark faces visible in the glow of small fires. Others gather in small, remote cafes, and there, seated upon the floor, amid wreaths of smoke from their drug-stained pipes, they wait while the keeper serves them with coffee.

Many are the beggars sitting by the roadside—blind, pitiful, helpless. Some have wandered here from the Sahara, scarred and mutilated. Those dreadful, reasonless faces, haunt one continually. But the Moors' tired faces always express a sorrow, a silent grieving. The religion of Mohammed has not brought them joy and peace.

Though we have been assailed with showers of stones for preaching the Gospel, pray with us that every town and village, and every wandering Arab of the desert may hear the Gospel of Christ, and that in the market-places hundreds may be awakened from their sleep of sin.

FRED. WEISS.

Tangier, Morocco, Nov. 24.

A BUSY DAY AT THE SHEEP MARKET IN TANGIER

CHINESE BREAK THEIR IDOLS

By REV. Z. CHAS. BEALS
Missionary in Wuhu

WE are living at that point on the Yang-tse River where the people suffered most from the great flood of last year. I was one of the Relief Committee which distributed THE CHRISTIAN HERALD and other funds to the famishing thousands. And when spring opened, we gave the farmers money to buy seed corn for this year's planting. They now report immense crops of wheat and rice all through the valley.

When the famine was on, I put large gangs of men to leveling our church lot, and, later, to do the plain work of building the church. On this lot was an idol temple, with large idols in it. These were smashed, and the temple given to me for a school. The accompanying photo shows part of the new church. The remodeled temple is in the rear.

When the flood-sufferers went back home, we felt we should follow them with the Gospel, so I opened up an out-station among them, in a city called Chao Hsien. The Gospel has been preached there ever since, and now we have twenty Christians and thirty scholars in our school there.

Another station, Han Shan, has been blessed in the same way. We have there twenty-five Christians and hundreds of inquirers. When the people there found their idols could not help them in the flood, and when they noted the kindness of the foreigners in their distress, they voluntarily began to seek out the truths of Christianity.

We reach these places by house-boats, which are very slow and not suited for the purpose. We are praying for a gasoline boat for this work, which will cost about $300. We are glad that we are remembered by friends in the home-land with prayer and financial help. I could open up a station or two more right in the great flooded district if I had about $100 for it, and I feel sure many hundreds of souls would be gathered in.

We have the cholera scourge with us this summer. Hundreds upon hundreds in every city have fallen victims to the terrible disease. If the cholera was raging in an an American city as it has been here, the daily papers would have their head-lines half a column deep. Here not a word is said, but, go where you will, you will meet the dead bodies being carried out. In some cities they cannot secure coffins enough, so the bodies are wrapped up in old matting and carried out on the hills and left unburied. In Nanking there is a temple where they put dead babies, and during the past three months (June, July and August), they have had over a thousand babies there. Z. C. BEALS.

A PREACHING STATION

PASTOR BEALS AND HIS NATIVE HELPERS

A MISSION HOUSEBOAT

THE HEAD OF THE FAMILY

A Story of Anthracite

By BURTON E. STEVENSON

Author of "The Heritage," "Tommy Remington's Battle," "A Soldier of Virginia," etc.

CHAPTER I.

The "Cracker Boss" Takes a Chance

THROUGH the bright freshness of the April dawn, long lines of men and boys were streaming toward the great black building which marked the entrance to the Carver mine. Ungainly and hideous it was, sharp and high at one end, broad and low at the other—a building which, once seen, could never be forgotten, and which was fitted for only one purpose in this world—a "breaker" for anthracite coal. There it stood, or rather squatted, above the mine-shaft, grim and many-windowed, a dusty, clamorous prison where a hundred boys grew to manhood—to a manhood of which the building itself was typical: unlovely, dust-covered, with only one possible field of usefulness and bread-winning, the mines.

The breaker stood above the shaft, so that all the coal mined might be hoisted directly to the top of it. To be sure, a law passed fifteen years before by the State legislature had forbidden the erection of any building above a mine-shaft, or within two hundred feet of it; but no law, so the jurists tell us, can be retroactive, and consequently all the buildings then in existence were allowed to remain where they were, and had remained there ever since, with such repairs and additions as increasing trade demanded. So, every day, thousands of miners went to their work in the bowels of the earth, with the consciousness that at any moment the great, flimsy building above them might burst into flames and cut off their return to "daylight"—as had, indeed, happened more than once.

But while the men crowded into the cages to be dropped down to the level of the measures, the boys clambered up a long, narrow, tortuous stair—up and up nearly a hundred feet—to the picking-room, where the coal, escaped from the ordeal of breaking and sifting, moved slowly and wearily along a dozen narrow troughs, lined with iron, groaning, shrieking, sobbing as it went. Across these troughs, rude seats were built, consisting of a single narrow board, worn to a shiny smoothness, and on these the boys took their places. The minutes passed, but there was little talk, beyond the greeting of the late arrivals, for many of them were as yet only half awake, their swollen and heavy lids proclaiming childhood's need of sleep.

Then the whistle screamed, and pandemonium broke loose. The great rolls, high up in the breaker, began their work of crushing the huge lumps of coal, lifted to them from the shaft-mouth; below them revolved the separating screens, and then the coal, divided into grades for the market, flowed slowly downward past the boys, whose duty it was to pick out and throw into the culm-trough all the pieces of slate and rock that were mixed with it. And no slight task this was, keeping them bent over the coal hour after hour. The sharp edges of the slate cut fingers wofully; the cramped posture meant crooked backs and narrow chests: the dense dust which filled the air irritated throat and lungs, and produced a racking cough, which ended often in "miners' consumption"; but there was no release, for the seventy-five cents, which was each boy's daily wage, too frequently was all that stood between his family and starvation.

The coal was a little slow in starting this morning, and for a few minutes the boys idled; but they all bent to their work with affected industry when the door opened, and Bill Jones, the "cracker-boss," appeared. He began at once checking them off in his time-book.

"Hello," he said, suddenly, pausing beside a diminutive youngster. "Who're you? You ain't thirty-two—Boyton?"

"Yes, sir," answered a quavering voice. "I'm Boyton."

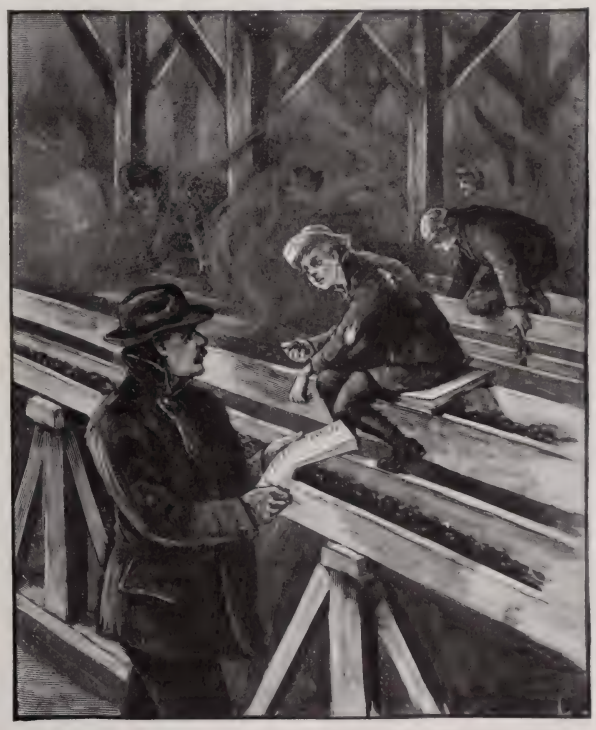
"Oh, come now!" protested the boss. "No lyin'. You ain't"—he paused an instant to refer to his book—"Tom Boyton."

The boy glanced up fearfully and decided that it was best to tell the truth.

"No, sir," he said. "I'm his brother Jim."

"Humph!" grunted the boss. "Where's Tom?"

"He—he's sick, sir," stammered the boy. "I thort maybe I c'd hold his job till he was able t' come back."



"Y' MUST BE TWINS, I RECKON," SAID THE CRACKER BOSS

Again the boss grunted; but his eyes were not altogether harsh as he looked down at the boy, who could not have been a year over nine. Doubtless for the boss this was no new experience—he suspected what was coming.

"Hev y' got a c'tificate?" he asked, at last, in a voice whose tone belied the expression of his eyes.

The child had evidently dreaded the question, for he shivered and instinctively bent lower over his work.

"No, sir."

"I thort so. How old are y'?"

"Twelve, sir."

The boss laughed, a short, hard laugh; but his eyes were very bright as they examined the pathetic little figure crouching above the stream of coal.

"O, come now," he said. "Your brother swore he was twelve years old last January—here 't is on my book—this is April—y' must be twins, I reckon."

"Yes, sir," answered the boy, inarticulately. "I'm small fer my age."

"No mistake about that," agreed the boss. "Mighty small, I sh'd say. Now, see here, Boyton, what ails y'r brother?"

"He's got a bad cold, with fever, sir—he'll be back in a few days—deed he will, sir."

The boss checked off a name on his book with a quick gesture bespeaking inward perturbation.

"All right," he said, shortly. "I'll give him a week—mind, not a day more," and he moved on along the line.

For the next five minutes, the child saw very little of the stream of anthracite which moved along beneath him, though he kept picking at it mechanically. Great tears of thankfulness gathered in his eyes and dropped down upon the coal and his shoulders shook with convulsive sobs. Luckily, the ever-thickening cloud of dust hid him partially from the other boys, or the dreaded cry of "baby!" would have been ringing in his ears. Gradually the tears stopped, and wiping his eyes with dirty hands which left great smudges on his face, he bent again in earnest to his work.

Outside the door, the cracker-boss had paused a moment to blow his nose. He could guess the story, for it was a common one enough. It was on the eve of Christmas day, five months before, that Bob Boyton, master-miner, had been caught in a sudden fall of coal and killed; and on New Year's day, his son Tom had applied for a certificate permitting him to work as a breaker-boy. The State has provided that no boy under fourteen should work in a mine, and no boy under twelve in a breaker. He was only ten, at the time, but he got his certificate by dint of skilful perjury, and a careless official who took the world easily and believed it useless trouble to attempt to pry beneath the surface of things.

Forthwith, he had entered into man's estate, for he had a family to provide for—a mother and younger brother. To be sure, seventy-five cents a day was not a great income, and that was all he could hope to make for two years, at least. But it would suffice to live on—it would keep actual, gnawing want away. If only his mother would get stronger!

A great burden for a child of ten. Yet Jim, aged eight, had tried to share it with him. He had marched boldly into the mine office one morning and applied for a certificate. But he was small for his age, and the men in the office had merely laughed at him, as they laughed every day at other youngsters like him. Whereat, he had marched out again, hidden himself behind the nearest pile of culm, and sobbed his heart out. Yet, there was work that he could do, too. He took Tom's place as provider of fuel for the family, and twice a day journeyed with his rude little cart to the culm-piles, where he dug out such pieces of coal as had been included in the waste. About the house, too, there was work for him, for on many days his mother was scarcely able to stand; so he learned to wash the dishes and make the beds and keep the house as clean as it could be kept—always with a livid fear at his heart that some of the other boys might happen in and catch him at this degrading task!

And then had come Tom's illness. An irritating, hacking cough, at first, the result of breathing for ten hours every day with lungs naturally weak, the dust-laden air of the breaker; finally, a fever which he had fought against for days, but which had conquered in the end and stretched him, weak and helpless, upon his bed. Then had his indomitable brother gone forth to work himself, glorying in the chance, praying only that the cracker-boss might not notice the change. He had noticed it, but, with unexpected kindness, had let him remain, and he bent to the work with a cheerful heart.

And the boss? He stood for a moment or two staring into space; then he went slowly down the stair.

"Now," he muttered, "if one o' them fool inspectors happened t' come along and find thet kid workin' there, I'd lose my job, and there'd be a big howl from a lot o' people who never saw a breaker an' who don't know what work means. An', if I fire him out, what's his family goin' t' live on, I'd like t' know? Well, I'll take the chance!"

CHAPTER II.

A New Obstacle

THE week slipped by, and still Tom Boyton lay on his bed and coughed. The hectic flush in his cheeks deepened; his face grew thin and pointed. More than once he struggled to his feet, in the effort to return to work, only to fall back helplessly upon the bed. So his brother, every morning, started valiantly for the great, dusty, breaker, whence, every evening, he returned exhausted utterly by the ten hours of ceaseless labor, but with heart undaunted.

Luckily, the opening of the spring had brought some semblance of returning health to his mother, and she was able to perform, after a fashion, the work of the home. It had not been at any time, exhausting work, for "home" consisted of a

CONTINUED ON PAGE 16

Copyright, 1903, by Louis Klopsch

OUR EDITORIAL FORUM

B. J. FERNIE, ASSOCIATE EDITOR — LOUIS KLOPSCH, Editor and Proprietor — G. H. SANDISON, ASSOCIATE EDITOR

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD is published weekly. $1.50 a year in advance.

Remittances should be made by check or express money order. Do not send cash remittances.

Foreign Postage.—For each copy to be mailed outside the U. S., Canada, and Mexico, add one dollar a year.

Change of Date.—It takes at least two weeks to change the date, after your subscription is received.

Expiration of Subscriptions.—The date on the wrapper indicates when your subscription ends.

Change of Address.—Give both your old and your new address when you ask us to change your address.

Subscriptions may commence with any issue.

Letters should be addressed, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, Bible House, New York.

Entered at the Post-office, New York, as Second-class Matter

The Famine in Finland

IT is a sad story—that of the Famine in Finland—which appears in another part of this issue of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. These honest, industrious, God-fearing people have fallen upon evil times, and unless the sympathy of the Christian world is extended to them, in a prompt and practical manner, thousands will undoubtedly perish before midwinter seals up their country in icy bands.

Russia, the vast empire of the Czar, which extends almost from the tropics to the pole, and half-way across the world, is, from the very extent of its territory and the varied character of its climate, peculiarly liable to changes that affect the prosperity of its people, especially of the agricultural class. Thus we find that the famine in Finland is simultaneously duplicated in Siberia, and in a number of the provinces of South Central Russia, where crop failures have brought vast populations to the verge of starvation. These larger claims on the benevolence of the country have not made it forgetful of the suffering Finns; but the latter are, to a large extent, an alien people, although their land is now an integral portion of the empire. They have therefore appealed, through their pastors and their fellow-countrymen here, for American sympathy, and THE CHRISTIAN HERALD has been urged to lay their case before all benevolent Americans, and especially to present it to those of Scandinavian birth or descent, who have made their home in the United States.

We commend to the benevolence of God's people the case of the perishing Finns. Let us help them all we can—and quickly. All gifts received for this purpose will be forwarded by THE CHRISTIAN HERALD to a representative Committee of Lutheran pastors and business men at Helsingfors, the chief city of Finland, who will give an account of all expenditures in the relief operations.

Send in your contributions for this worthy cause and help to save human life and avert suffering. To those who bore with us the brunt of the great benevolent campaigns in India, Cuba, Armenia and our own Western States, we need only say that this latest call to duty comes with an urgency and sincerity that admit of no delay.

Take it, then, to your heart, and by a prompt and generous response, add one more triumph to the long list of victories won in the cause of Christian benevolence.

The Venezuelan Arbitration

THAT the quarrel between Venezuela and the allied European powers is to be submitted to the international tribunal at the Hague, by consent of all the parties, is news that will be welcomed by all lovers of "peace and good-will among men." That tribunal was established with the united concurrence of over thirty governments, European, American and Asiatic. There was no reason why it should be ignored in the present discussion, and President Roosevelt acted wisely and with dignity in insisting that the whole question at issue should be submitted for its adjudication. Had our Chief Magistrate accepted without protest the onerous task which the contestants urged upon him, his acceptance would have dealt a severe blow to arbitration, as represented by the sole authorized court known to history for the peaceable adjustment of international quarrels.

We therefore congratulate President Roosevelt upon the success of his protest. As the United States was a party in interest to the dispute, his position as arbitrator would have been a most trying one. Had he rendered a decision substantially favorable to the Allies, they in turn would have looked to the United States for the means of enforcing that decision, and would thus practically have put our government in the position of guaranteeing Venezuela's good faith. There might have been other objectionable features; but it is useless now to speculate, since the change of venue obviates all difficulties.

For the third time in a year we have to record a signal triumph for the principle of arbitration. In all three cases, our government has been the demonstrator. Our dispute with Mexico over the disposition of the so called "Pious Fund," was the first case ever brought before the Hague Court, and it was satisfactorily settled. Next, the contestants in the great coal strike stacked arms, and took their quarrel before a national court of arbitration, and now this graver South American dispute goes to the Hague. Indeed the latter case is a double triumph, since the Monroe Doctrine, as well as the principle of arbitration, are recognized simultaneously, and without involving the United States to any appreciable extent. There need hardly be any apprehension that the Monroe Doctrine will be a ground of contention before the tribunal; indeed, we rather anticipate that it will receive tacit recognition from the assembled powers, as playing an important part in preserving the peace of the Western World.

To THE CHRISTIAN HERALD and its readers, each successive triumph of arbitration is like a heavenly signal of the better days to come. We remember, only a few years ago, when this journal stood practically alone in its advocacy of arbitration for the settlement of all differences between communities, States and nations. That was before the Hague Court was organized or conceived. Now, the ideas of the nations are changing; the world advances; the brutish love of war and conquest, which has ruled men so long, is yielding at last. May the time soon come when all nations East, West, North and South, shall resort to arbitration, instead of seeking to shed each other's blood. May that glorious day soon arrive when the armies of earth shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning-hooks; when all men shall be like brothers, dwelling in peace and amity together, throughout the world.

Willing to be Forgotten

HOW vain, and yet how pathetic, are the efforts which men make to keep themselves from being forgotten. Long ago, the Psalmist said: "Their inward thought is that their houses shall continue forever; they call their lands after their own names. But man abideth not in honor; this their way is their folly." And still the world has not learned the lesson. How many benefactions—great if the donors are rich, and even small ones, if not much is required, or there is not much out of which to give—are accompanied by the condition that the charity so fostered shall be called by the name of the benefactor. Even Christian agents of institutions, and representatives of the church in its efforts to establish the reign of Christ, make appeals for money to Christian people, on condition that their names shall be inscribed and live in connection with the object to be accomplished. Verily, the Psalmist was right—"this their way is their folly."

Not myself, but the truth that in life I have spoken,
Not myself, but the seed that in life I have sown,
Shall pass on to ages—all about me forgotten—
Save the truth I have spoken, the deeds I have done.

That is certain, and that ought to be enough for the Christian. For Christianity crystallizes around the principle that self goes out when Christ comes in. Not to please and honor self, but to do good, to serve our generation by the will of God—that alone is Christian living. As Christianity began in sacrifice, so the deep idea of Christianity is to be nothing for the sake of many; to be a little stone wrought in some lowly place, in some invisible place, perhaps into the structure of the wall in order that the building may be complete; not to be a shining name in some gorgeous memorial window. You are for the world, brother, not the world for you.

OUR INDIA ORPHAN WORK

THE following, which explains itself, will interest the many thousands of our readers and their friends, who are associated with us in the benevolent work among the India Famine orphans:

* * *

37 APOLLO ST., FORT, BOMBAY, 20TH AUG., 1902.

Rev. E. S. Hume, M. A., Chairman, Christian Herald Famine Orphan Support Committee, Bombay:

DEAR SIR:—We have pleasure in reporting, that we have carefully examined the books and Financial Statement from April, 1900, to 15th August, 1902, and have found all in order.

We feel it our duty to certify to the excellent way in which the books have been kept. We enclose our account, and remain, dear sir,

Yours faithfully,

(Signed) GORDON & CO.,
Public Accountants.

GEMS FROM TALMAGE

The Puritan Sunday

—I WOULD TO GOD that we could all come to a higher appreciation of the Sabbath heritage! We cannot count the treasures of one Christian Sabbath. It spreads out over us the two wings of the archangel of mercy. Oh, blessed Sabbath! They scoff a great deal about the old Puritanic Sabbaths, and there is a wonderful amount of wit expended upon that subject now—the Sabbaths they used to have in New England. I never lived in New England, but I would rather trust the old Puritanic Sabbath, with all its faults, than this modern Sabbath, which is fast becoming no Sabbath at all. If our modern Sabbatism shall produce as stalwart Christian character as the old New England Puritanic Sabbatism, I shall be satisfied and I shall be surprised.

* * *

What Life Means

—WHAT A THING to congratulate you on is your life! Why, it is worth more than all the gems of the universe kindled into one precious stone. I am alive! What does that mean? Why, it means that I still have all opportunity of being saved myself, and helping others to be saved. To be alive! Why, it means that I have yet another chance to correct my past mistakes, and make sure work for heaven. Alive, are we? Come, let us celebrate it by new resolutions, new self-examination, new consecration, and a new career. The smallest and most insignificant to-day is worth to us more than five hundred yesterdays. Taking advantage of the present, let us get pardon for all the past and security for all the future. Where are our forgiven sins? I don't know. God don't know, either. He says, "Your sins and iniquities will I remember no more."

Our New Serial

In this issue of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, we publish the opening chapters of a new and timely short serial story, "The Head of the Family," by a well-known author, Mr. Burton E. Stevenson. His earlier books, "The Heritage," "A Soldier of Virginia," "At Odds with the Regent," and "Tommy Remington's Battle," have already given him a high place in public estimation. "The Head of the Family" is of special interest in view of prevailing conditions in the coal regions, where the action of the story takes place. The author has evidently made a study of social and economic conditions in the anthracite region, and he writes with a vivid and realistic pen, and from an accurate knowledge of the subject. Few will read without emotion the story of the little hero of the breaker, whose adventures are the inspiring theme of Mr. Burton's serial.

Kind Words

Warm words of admiration received in thousands of letters concerning our premium books, The Story of the Hall of Fame and The Speaking Oak, are most gratifying to the publisher, who highly appreciates these gracious expressions, which reward him for his pains to please his friends, the readers of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD family. The following extracts are typical of many communications:

W. J. Cruell, Harrisburg, Pa.: The Hall of Fame is a marvelous premium.

Mrs. Joseph Giles, Dover, N. Y.: I have received the Bible Dictionary and the Hall of Fame. These books are fine.

William H. Doane, Norwich, Conn.: How you can send out such a work of art as the Hall of Fame for the money is beyond my comprehension.

John G. Dohlan, Ackley, Ia.: I have read The Speaking Oak with joy and heart's content. It is a true Christian book.

George W. C. Munro, Putnam, Ga.: The book is intensely interesting from beginning to end. It contains exceedingly valuable information.

Mrs. J. F. Smith, New York City: I am much pleased with The Speaking Oak. It is fine, and will be appreciated by the twelve-year-old boy to whom I mean to give it.

Either of the above books, together with THE CHRISTIAN HERALD one year, $2, with exception of the Bible Dictionary, which, with the paper, is $3.

The Gospel for our New Colonies

The Gospel according to St. John, in Spanish and English, with a collection of Gospel hymns in both languages, will be sent, postage prepaid, to any address in Cuba, Puerto Rico, South America, or the Philippine Islands, for five cents per copy. Friends of mission work among Spanish speaking communities will do well to order promptly. Address, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD Book Department, Bible House New York City.

THE BIBLE and the NEWSPAPER

Arbitration for Venezuela

THE gratifying news comes, at last, that all the parties to the Venezuelan dispute have agreed in principle to arbitration. There are apparently preliminaries to settle, but it is not likely that these will be suffered to defeat the agreement. The Allies were anxious that President Roosevelt should be the arbitrator, but he wisely referred them to the Court established at the Hague for the purpose of deciding just such disputes, and they have agreed to accept the Hague Tribunal. It was well that President Roosevelt should take that attitude. Our interest as a peace-loving nation bids us do all in our power to inspire confidence in the Hague Tribunal; if the President had accepted the position of arbitrator, it would have been a slur on the ability or the impartiality of the Hague Court, which might have had disastrous results in the future. We may hope now, that the blockade of the Venezuelan ports will be raised. It must be apparent to the Allies that they cannot collect the money that they claim, by any such measures. Nor will such acts as the sinking of the Venezuelan fleet and the bombardment of the Venezuelan forts do anything toward getting the money demanded. Some hints have been thrown out implying that the United States should guarantee the payment of any award that may be made, but Secretary Hay has firmly discouraged any such hope. As the Allies chose to employ force to collect the debt due them, they cannot consistently expect us to help them now that force has failed. The only concern we have in the dispute, beyond that of peaceful neighbors, is in prohibiting the Allies seizing Venezuelan territory in settlement of the claim. It has been made clear from the beginning that the United States would not allow the alienation of any part of Venezuelan soil, and it must be said in justice to the Allies that they have manifested no disposition to make such seizure. It is possible that when the matter comes up for adjudication before the Hague Tribunal, the measures taken by the Allies will be reviewed. It will cause them some chagrin if that Tribunal should regard the loss of the Venezuelan fleet as a set-off against their claim, and should deduct its value from the total sum owing to them by Venezuela. It has been an undignified and unsatisfactory business throughout, reflecting no credit on the little State which failed to pay its debts, nor on the great Powers which undertook the debt collecting business. It is a good thing that it is to be settled in a humane and sensible manner and that there should be no further danger of this claim for money involving loss of life.

From whence come wars and fighting among you? Come they not hence even of your lusts? (James 4: 1.)

The Germ of Laziness

An address delivered recently before the Sanitary Conference of American Republics, by Dr. Charles Wardell Stiles, has attracted general interest, not only of physicians, but of sociologists. He announced his discovery of a new disease, which he calls uncinariasis. The disease, he said, is not really new; it has existed a long time, but it had not been previously identified. It is the product of a microbe, which he calls the hook-worm. He explained that uncinariasis produces a condition of which the symptoms are greatly like those of continued malaria, for which it is almost invariably mistaken. The presence of this disease in the South in past years, he said, had resulted in the pitiable condition of the poor whites in many of the Southern States. Its presence in succeeding generations had resulted in their inferior physical development and mental powers, and is the cause of their proverbial laziness. This laziness, Dr. Stiles says, is not a normal condition; and attention paid to this matter by planters and farmers in the Southern States would result in not only improved conditions generally, but a great increase of the percentage of work which they would secure from their employees. It is a surprise to learn that there can be a germ producing laziness. It may be hoped that the doctor will speedily find how to destroy it. At present, no cure has been found so radical as that prescribed by the Apostle:

This we commanded you that if any would not work, neither should he eat (II. Thess. 3: 10).

A Daughter's Long Search

Inquiries have been made for some years past in most of our great cities by a German woman for her father. She said that he left Newhofen, in Bavaria, about thirty years ago, to seek his fortune. Shortly after his departure his wife gave birth to a daughter. No tidings came from the man, but his wife never lost faith that he was living and would return. As her daughter grew up the deserted woman would talk to her about her missing father, whose absence preyed on her as she became older. At last she lay on her death-bed, and, calling her daughter to her, enjoined her to devote her life to the discovery of her father. The girl promised, and after her mother's death began her search. After many months of inquiry she heard that he sailed for America. She came here and began her search on this side. Going from city to city, she inquired of the police and searched records of deaths, but without finding a clue. A few days ago she received a letter from Chicago, reporting the discovery of a man who answered her description. She wrote to him at once and has received a reply admitting his identity. He says he had been told that his wife was dead, and did not know he had a daughter, but is delighted to know it, and will gladly welcome her to his home. How different has this daughter's experience been from that of the children of God. Instead of seeking him for a score of years over the world, he seeks them and invites them to come to him.

I have nourished and brought up children, and they have rebelled against me (Isa. 1: 2).

A Promise Broken

A remarkable suit now pending in the Supreme Court was cleared last week of preliminary questions, and will now be brought to trial. It is based on the complaint of a woman who contends that she is entitled to receive the whole estate of a merchant who died recently. Many years ago, she testified, she had made an agreement with the merchant, to reside with him and to care for him as a daughter, as long as he lived. In return, he promised to make a will leaving her everything he possessed. She says she fulfilled her part of the agreement and attended to his comfort until he died. It was then found that he had made no will, and his estate was claimed by his niece who is his nearest relative. Thereupon, the woman who had performed the part of a daughter to him, brought suit to have the agreement enforced. Objections were made that to accede to her demand was against public policy. This objection the court rejects, and in delivering the decision the Justice said: "It would have been competent for him to have given all of his property to the plaintiff during his lifetime or to have left it all to her by will. It was equally competent for him to make a valid agreement with her for a sufficient consideration, of the nature of that alleged, which is incapable of exact money value, that she should receive all of his property upon his decease, and if a definite agreement, either parole or written, to that effect be clearly shown by satisfactory evidence, a court of equity may in its discretion decree a specific performance thereof. . . . It is natural that having given faithful service for so long, the plaintiff should resist the attempt to deprive her of her reward. The Christian has no need of such fear in his service. His reward can never be held back.

Wherefore receiving a kingdom that cannot be shaken, let us have grace whereby we may serve God acceptably with reverence and godly fear (Heb. 12: 28).

LA GUAYRA, THE CHIEF PORT OF VENEZUELA

BRIEF NOTES

The population of Jerusalem now numbers 60,000, of whom 40,000 are Jews. In Judea there are about 120,000 Jews.

A fully qualified lady doctor, a daughter of the Lord Mayor of Sheffield, England, has become an officer of the Salvation Army's medical work among women.

Among the epigrams uttered by the late Dr. Joseph Parker is this: "He that is least in the Kingdom of Heaven is greater than he that is greatest outside."

News comes by cable of the death of Dr. Temple, Archbishop of Canterbury and Primate of all England. He was in his eighty-second year, but had attended to his duties to the last.

Mr. and Mrs. Booth Clibborn, daughter and son-in-law of Gen. Booth, have set up a Boer headquarters for their "Christian Mission" at Brussels. They have twenty evangelists at work or in training.

The Tripitteka or Buddhist Scriptures in thirty-nine volumes, is a present from the King of Siam to the Library of Congress. We hope the king has a Bible in his library. If not, we should certainly send him one in return for his gift.

Rev. J. C. Lawson, of Aligarh, India, who was on a visit to this country, has been summoned back to India by the critical illness of his wife, whom he left behind at Aligarh. He sailed from New York on Dec. 18.

Dr. L. W. Munhall recently conducted a series of meetings in Coburg, Canada, in which three churches united. All churches benefited, the Methodist church alone adding over one hundred names to its membership, as a result of the meetings.

Dr. George F. Hall, of Chicago, proposes to erect a huge temple in that city for use as an Institutional Church. He has interested a number of wealthy gentlemen in the project, and Hughes himself to get from them all the stone needed for the walls.

THE VENEZUELA WAR VESSELS SUNK BY THE ALLIES

For Her Boys

Dear "Christian Herald": The lovely Calendar and "Family Art Gallery" are both treasures in themselves. The Book of Books is also a very great treasure. It will be one of the most instructive books for my little boys when they are grown. All the premiums we have gotten from you in the last seven years are just splendid. We could not do without THE CHRISTIAN HERALD; it is so full of information and helpful.

White Cloud Co., Va. MRS. W. L. WISE.

THE BRAVE TRAVELER WHO ENTERED FORBIDDEN TIBET

EXPLORER SVEN HEDIN to VISIT US

HE WILL TELL OF THE SEALED LAND OF THE LAMAS

REV. WALTER RIJNHART

TIBETAN HORSEMEN: THEIR PONIES ARE THE HARDIEST IN THE WORLD

EXPLORER SVEN HEDIN

TWO interesting events draw public attention to Tibet. One is the expected visit to this country of Dr. Sven Anders Hedin, the Swedish traveler, who has won renewed fame by his recent explorations in that mysterious region of Central Asia; the other is the journey which Mrs. Peter Rijnhart is about to undertake to Tibet, where she hopes both to assure herself of the facts in regard to the reported murder of her husband and also to carry on the missionary work, on behalf of which it now appears certain that his life was sacrificed.

Mrs. Rijnhart is a Canadian. Her husband, the Rev. Peter Rijnhart, was a Dutch subject. If still alive, he is now about thirty-five years old. In 1898, the two left the mission fields of China to carry the Gospel into the "sealed land" of Tibet. They were under no delusion as to the dangers and hardships which they would be called upon to face. Again and again the heathen Tibetans have shown the world that they will not welcome the visits of any foreigners, and, least of all, tolerate them when they come to spread religious doctrines.

But, undeterred by the threatening prospects, Mr. and Mrs. Rijnhart set out. They carried with them a year's provisions, five hundred New Testaments and four hundred Tibetan text-cards, which were loaded on a train of sixteen ponies. With them, too, went their little year-old baby. Their body-guard consisted of three Chinese natives, who, understanding well enough the nature of the probable termination of the expedition, deserted at the end of the third day's march.

But worse was to follow. The little child of these devoted missionaries sickened and died. Fresh guides were obtained, more ponies were bought and the journey was continued. The new guides proved as false as the old. The little party was attacked by brigands, and all the ponies but one were either shot or driven off. They were now in an uninhabited country. A river ran near by, upon the farther side of which a small cluster of tents could be barely distinguished. It was decided that Mr. Rijnhart should cross the river, in the vain hope of obtaining succor in their dilemma.

Mrs. Rijnhart waited alone until dark. She said, "The tents are far away; he will be back by morning."

But when morning came she was still alone—without a tent to shelter her, or even the companionship of a dog, in an unknown country inhabited by hostile people.

For several days she watched and waited. At the end of this time some natives passed by, and Mrs. Rijnhart persuaded them to take her across the river on an ox. But all her efforts to get news of her husband were fruitless. He had disappeared as completely as if the earth had opened and swallowed him up.

The terrible experiences of the return journey, which she now began, were probably the means of sustaining her under the mental anguish which threatened to destroy her reason. After a visit to America, Mrs. Rijnhart is determined to return to Tibet, both to gain more certain information about her husband's fate and to carry on the work on behalf of which his life was sacrificed. She hopes to spread the New Testaments and other Gospel literature through the country, by enlisting the good services of those in charge of the caravans which penetrate to the interior.

A TIBETAN LAMASERY

These monasteries are rather fortified camps, than the abodes of peace-loving Buddhists. Every Lama is well-armed, well mounted, and always ready for a fray. He is, however, an excellent host.

Much new light will be thrown upon this strange and forbidding land as a result of the exploration of Eastern, Western and Central Tibet made by Dr. Hedin, who in a previous journey met both Mr. and Mrs. Rijnhart. A large part of his caravan, including four men, perished under the incredible hardships which are incidental to journeying in these lofty regions, destitute as they are of every species of vegetation. On account of the rarefied air, breathing was most difficult. All members of the expedition suffered intensely. Two died gradually from their feet upward, retaining their senses to the end when the brain was at last attacked. Sven Hedin himself was quite unable to walk, and saved himself by remaining immovable in the saddle from morning to night. His heart was literally at the point of breaking, so that even the exertion of buttoning his coat caused him intense pain. Of the forty-five horses in his caravan, forty-four died, and of thirty-nine camels, only nine survived.

Dr. Hedin made two attempts to enter the southern region of Tibet, but notwithstanding the care with which he was disguised as an Oriental, he was discovered, and compelled to return to his caravan, the second time accompanied by a force of five hundred horsemen.

However the Dalai Lama's emissaries treated him with the greatest respect and politeness. Dr. Hedin's travels in Central Asia occupied altogether three years, and its successful issue was in great part owing to the circumstance that the Emperor of Russia had provided him with an escort of four Cossacks to attend upon him throughout. They proved themselves honest, capable and brave. In the course of his remarkable journey he has been enabled to lift the veil which for a thousand years had hidden vast stretches of the mountainous and desert regions of the heart of Asia. One of the principal objects of his journey was to follow and map out the course of the River Tarim, the largest river in the whole of Central Asia.

The explorer visited the ancient and historical lake Lop-nor. It was a land of death. There were ruins of temples and of houses with high towers in four villages, a few miles apart. The road Sven Hedin followed was a great postal highway from Pekin to Kashgar in Turkestan 1,600 years ago, and it was, no doubt, the longest road in the world.

Mrs. Rijnhart, Dr. Hedin and other explorers, all agree that Tibet is the most forbidding country in the world. It is shut in by towering ramparts of snow-clad mountains. Intensely cold winds sweep over the face of the land, the general aspect of which is indescribably bleak. The usual dress of the people is a single sheepskin, with the wool worn on the inside. The mode of salutation among the people is novel. They hold out both hands, palms uppermost, bow with raised shoulders, stick out their tongue, and then say Oji, oji. When desirous of showing respect to a person they also stick out the tongue. The Tibetans are heathens, but they are not irreligious. In fact the number of monasteries and monks is incredible; on an average every thirteenth, and, in some places, every seventh man is a monk, and must be provided for by others. This last clause is significant. The country is not only oppressed by its ecclesiastical system, but poverty everywhere prevails. Eighteen thousand monks live in and around the capital, L'hassa, "the ground of God," where also the Grand Lama resides. The sacred city remains the most mysterious spot in the whole world, for no white man has ever succeeded in reaching it.

The religion of Buddha, in a modified or original form, has been accepted in Tibet for nearly two thousand years. In the fifteenth century, one Gebnu Dub, provost of a large monastery, claimed to be an incarnation of Buddha, and assumed the title of the "very costliest teacher ocean." He was called Dalai Lama, the "priest ocean," and thus was inaugurated Lamaism, which became the established religion of the country.

THE MYSTERY PLAY OF TIBET

The Lamas reserve to themselves the exclusive right to act in these sacred dramas or reputed dances.

TIBETAN FISHERMAN

The coracles (or round canoes) are composed of yak (ox) hides, stretched over a few bent twigs.

Drawing-Room Talks

By MARGARET BOTTOME

A Greeting for 1903

I AM very glad of the opportunity at this time of wishing so many new friends a Happy New Year. I have a profound conviction that what I wish you, you can have. Nothing can prevent the New Year being a happy one to us, if we have received the Christmas gift of a Saviour—God's gift to the whole world. Less than this will not insure you a Happy New Year.

MRS. MARGARET BOTTOME

Mind, I do not say that you will know no happiness in 1903, unless you have received God's best gift. Every good gift cometh down from the Father. But when I say I wish you a Happy New Year, I mean a New Year that will bring you happiness under any and all circumstances.

If you should ask me to take you to-day where you might see real happiness, without health, I probably would not take you to a mansion on Fifth avenue, though I might even do that. If I did take you there, you might say, "With all this luxury that money can give, I can see how happy one might be, even though health were denied." So I would not take you there, but I would take you instead to see those who have neither health nor wealth. I would let you see faces that beam with joy, because they have the Saviour—God's Christmas gift.

• • •

Now we may as well face facts as we enter on the New Year. What has come to others may come to us. Are we prepared for the great changes the year may bring, for ourselves or for those dearest to us? You say you would rather think of a Happy New Year; well, that is just what I am thinking of. A happiness that no earthly calamity can touch; a joy independent of health, independent of death—isn't that worth having?

So I cannot wish you, in any shallow way, a Happy New Year. If you should say: "I know what I want, and what would give me a happy New Year," I answer: all right, as far as it goes, but I go further, you see. I wish you a Happy New Year, in spite of your not having what you want. I want you to sing with me,

> No storm can reach my inmost calm,
> While to this refuge clinging.

It is well enough to rejoice in all the lovely things we have for a time; but I am not going to forget that, after all, we are in a broken-hearted world, and that that is just the reason why a Saviour came to bind up the broken-hearted, and to set the captives free. Did you ever see captives? They were bound, and handcuffed, and they could not set themselves free. That is the reason God sent a Deliverer.

Many a man and woman will say: "I mean to turn over a new leaf this year. It will not do for me to go on as I have been doing. I am coming too close to a precipice." No, my friend, you think you will do it; but you will go right on, in spite of the new leaf, unless you seek higher help and let Jesus set you free from all that you know to be wrong. Let him open your blind eyes.

• • •

Suppose you take a look at the Saviour's programme for the whole world, hear what his intentions are and what he said he was sent for. Then, as you let him carry out his programme, you will see what will be the glory of your life; for you will find out from his own words that "as the Father (as he said) sent me into the world, even so have I sent you into the world." Then you yourself may have the joy of healing the broken-hearted, and of opening the eyes of the spiritually blind. And you may not even have to leave your family or your work in order to carry out this programme, though of course if he wants you to go to China, or Japan, or India, or anywhere, even to the uttermost parts of the earth, to carry out his work, you will be so joyful that you wouldn't want to stay here.

I listened the other day to an address by Mrs. Howard Taylor, who leaves this week for inland China. She was speaking in a beautiful drawing-room, to over a hundred of the best Christian women of New York—most of them women of wealth and all of refinement. We felt her sincerity, when she expressed her pity that we were debarred, the most of us, from all joy of going to the foreign field as missionaries. The happiest life could never be ours. Before she was through, she made us feel that she was right; all that is needed is to have the spirit of the Founder of the religion we profess to believe, and then we can adopt the language of Madame Guyon:

> To me remains no place or time, my country is in every clime,
> I can be calm and free from care on any shore, since God is there.

If you or I are not ready to be kind to those around us, to endeavor to bind up the hearts of sorrowing people around us; if we do not care for sorrowing little children, we are not needed in Japan, or India, or China, or anywhere else. Show kindness at home. Faber says, "Kindness is the turf of the spiritual world." We make much of our lawns. Don't forget, every time you look at a lovely lawn, that kindness is the turf of the spiritual world.

• • •

There are broken hearts, among men and women, but I was so shocked to learn, lately, that little children die of broken hearts. I was told by an Episcopal clergyman, who was very fond of visiting children's homes or hospitals, that there is a name they give to a certain ailment that means broken-hearted. He told me that he looked over a large number of children and he noticed particularly one little face. There was something that made him ask the nurse at his side what was the matter with that little girl. She replied, "Oh, she will not live long; she has a broken heart." He was told that that was not uncommon. He kept his eye on the child, and when an opportunity offered, he went up to her and, kneeling on one knee, he took her close to him and told about a story of his little chickens. The child became intensely interested, and when he said to her, "Now, I must go," she threw her arms around his neck, sobbing out, "Take me to the chickens." When I think of the little children in New York—Christ's poor little children—then I think also of so many people who could say, "Suffer at least one little child to come unto me," and then when I see women of wealth petting and caring more for their little dogs than some of them do for their own children, let alone for the homeless, loveless children around them—all of them with immortal souls. Don't despise the day of small things, don't overlook the little things you can do to make the smile come. Sowing always means a harvest.

• • •

I know a woman who was made very happy by having her son write to her. He is the father of a large family of his own. He wrote to his mother telling her that since he was fourteen years of age, not a week had passed in which his mother had not sent him a spiritual letter. I suppose he meant that in her letters there was something which showed him she was caring for his soul. Are you mothers really caring for the souls of your children? Are you looking after what they read? You are careful about the physical training, and that they should not eat anything that might hurt the body. Are you equally careful that they are not taking into their minds what might be injurious to their moral character?

I heard Mr. D. L. Moody say that when a friend asked, "Mr. Moody, have you read such and such a book?" he replied, "I hear there is poison in it." "Well," said the friend, "you might read it." "No," said Mr. Moody, "if I take poison into my stomach, then the doctor has to come with a stomach-pump, and it has to be pumped out; but if I take poison into my mind, it will be many a year before it will leave my mind—maybe never."

Look out! Don't be blind! Save your children from moral blindness. You should know whether there is poison in the books they read, or in the boys and girls they associate with.

You will do a splendid business in the year 1903 if you can say (as you ought to) "the Spirit of the Lord God is upon me to do the work I was sent into this world to do." So in this spirit—doing as he did, caring for the suffering world of men and women, and rejoicing that we can tell them the glad tidings—in this Spirit, again I wish you, one and all, a Happy New Year.

"BLIND MARY." THE WONDERFUL ORPHAN GIRL OF OORFA

SOME years ago, a little girl named Mary was found in one of the Aintab schools, at Oorfa, Armenia, who, with one weak eye (the other eye being entirely useless), was earnestly at work, learning the rudiments of an ordinary education. Her orphan state, her great eagerness in study, and what she had told her teacher of her desire for a full course, interested one of our missionary ladies, who took her to the seminary, where she continued through the entire course of fitting for a teacher.

While there she became a decided Christian, and was baptized, and received in one of the churches. She became interested in Sunday Schools, and in teaching at the hospital, and it was seen she was very fond of children.

After graduating, Mary went to Oorfa with Miss West, who had undertaken her seminary education, and there she continued two years as teacher in school for the more advanced girls there. She was desirous of still further study and spent two years in Marash College, leaving with a full diploma.

Well do I recall the three anxious days we kept her in a darkened room, with her one poor half-eye bound, after she had accidentally walked against something that injured it temporarily. Five years of teaching in Adana Seminary, with a special year of study and practice of Armenian in Adabazar intervened, and again she was called to Oorfa High School. After a most efficient year's work, during the summer vacation of 1899, she had an attack of ophthalmia and became totally blind.

Feeling peculiar responsibility for one who had been my pupil during her college course, and had given eight years of service as teacher in our mission schools, I obtained from friends while in the United States about $300—the sum required for a year of study in the Normal College for the Blind in London, under my friends, Dr. and Mrs. F. J. Campbell. Miss Chambers, on her journey to America in March, 1901, kindly took charge of Mary, and saw her settled in the college home. Eight days later, before Miss Chambers left London, she found that Mary had mastered the Braille alphabet, and was reading short sentences, and performing problems in addition with the types used by the blind.

"BLIND MARY" AND HER TYPEWRITER

Mary has now returned to Oorfa, and is about to begin her work. Dr. Campbell writes that she is capable of giving instruction in reading, writing, arithmetic, geography, Bible lessons, sewing and knitting. The blind teacher has as equipment a complete Braille Bible in English, given her by the British Bible Society, a set of eight raised maps, type and type-boards, writing-frames and styles, sewing-charts, etc., for eight pupils, and several story books and magazines in the Braille, with various useful articles, and a typewriter, all given by English friends. We have an open-windowed room rented for her, and an orphan companion assigned her. The yearly salary for support of the two will be $150; rent and furnishings for home and schoolroom will be $40. These are the immediate requirements for beginning a very needy work in this place, where there are more blind than in most Oriental cities, and for whom nothing has yet been done by way of special training. Mary is now working over the problem of adapting the Braille to the Armenian alphabet.

Oorfa, Turkey. CORINNA SHATTUCK.

PAUL AT THESSALONICA AND BEREA

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR JAN 18. ACTS 17: 1-12

By Dr. and Mrs. Wilbur F. Crafts

GOLDEN TEXT—PSA. 119: 105: "THY WORD IS A LAMP UNTO MY FEET"

WE seem to see a scale, and Thessalonica and Berea are being balanced against each other. Thessalonica is a great city of commercial importance, and it has the proud distinction of being named after the daughter of Alexander the Great, Thessalonica, by her husband Cassander, its great builder. It was, therefore, sometimes called "the lady city." In the other side of the scale is Berea, an insignificant little out-of-the-way place among the mountains, more noted as a place of refuge than anything else. One side of the scale goes up, and the other goes down, and the Apostle Paul is the weigher. And what does he say? "These [in Berea] were more noble than those in Thessalonica." What makes the difference? We will ask the Apostle Paul to tell us. He says: "It is less than a month ago that Silas and I left Philippi for a long journey of more than fifty miles by foot, our backs still very sore from the severe beating we had received when we were in prison. The kind offices of the jailer who washed our stripes after he had been converted, had somewhat relieved our condition. We left Philippi because so requested by the magistrates, who came to release us, on hearing of my claim that I was a Roman citizen. They looked upon us as disturbers of the peace, when our errand had really been to bring peace to that city in the name of Jesus Christ. We went from the city to the home of Lydia, and there had a farewell meeting with those who had become the friends of Jesus. We brought young Timothy with us, and left Luke, 'the beloved physician,' because there were sick ones among our friends who needed his care. We made three stages of our journey, coming the first day to Amphipolis, a distance of thirty-two miles, the next day to Appollonia, thirty miles further on, and the third day brought us to Thessalonica. The small store of means which we brought with us was soon exhausted, and we set to work to earn our daily bread. We found here a synagogue of the Jews, and it was our duty to first preach the Gospel to them, which we did for three Sabbaths. But they would not believe that Jesus was the Son of God, the Messiah, whom they had so long expected. Instead, they were angry, and created such an uproar that we were obliged to give up teaching in the synagogue. Jason then invited us to teach in his house. Quite a little company gathered there, some women of noble birth, a few Jews who had been led to believe in Jesus, and some Greeks who had left off worshiping their idols. But we were not allowed to meet there in peace, for the Jews gathered together some of the worst people in the city, and came in a mob, and attacked the house of Jason, and when they did not find Silas and myself, because we were not there at the time, they dragged Jason out, handling him so roughly that they nearly killed him. They brought him before the magistrates of the city, and made them very angry by telling them that Jason was befriending two men who had set up 'a new King, one Jesus,' in place of their King, the Roman Cæsar. Then the magistrates said we should leave the city, and they made Jason pay money, and give his promise that he would have us go. That very night friends helped us to get away, for they feared another mob if we should remain until the next day.

"And so we started on a journey fifty miles to Berea. We found Jews in Berea, and, as our custom was, we went into the Synagogue on the Sabbath day, and there we preached about Jesus. They listened with great interest, and they wanted to hear us talk on other days than the Sabbath, and day by day, as we talked about Jesus, they read in their Bibles to see how our teaching compared with the word of God; and many of them, both men and women, some of them the greatest among the Jews, became the friends of Jesus; and so did many of the Greeks, who had been idol worshipers." Now I think you will understand why Berea weighed more in the scale than Thessalonica. "These [of Berea] were more noble than those of Thessalonica, in that they received the word with all readiness of mind, and searched the Scriptures daily whether those things were so. And the Jews of Thessalonica appeared in a still worse light, when not content with creating a disturbance in their own city, they came to Berea, with the evil intention of doing further harm to Silas and myself."

Illustration and Application

Thy Word is a lamp unto my feet. At Thessalonica, we find samples of those in every age, who are in darkness, and yet reject the light; who seek to blow it out, to drive it away, because it reveals their own errors and sins, loving darkness rather than light, because their deeds are evil. On the other hand, in Berea, we have examples of those who welcome the light, and use it as "a lamp to their feet and a light to their path." If the Bible be thought of, quite as appropriately as the seed which the apostolic sowers were scattering in the great field of the world, we find in this lesson, as in every congregation and almost every Sunday School class, the stony, thorny soil of pride and prejudice, in contrast with the good ground of honest hearts that desire to know the truth and live it. The burning question in this matter is one of present moment, namely: Is my heart like Thessalonica or Berea? Am I a rejector or welcomer of God's message?

Paul reasoned with them out of the Scriptures.—Great efforts have been made to make reason seem a foe to faith. But the Bible's challenge is: "Come, let us reason together." Christianity is a science, not a dream; a science based, like the sciences of jurisprudence and of history, on reliable testimony; based also, like the great certainties of gravitation and the earth's rotundity, on a proved theory of the world which alone includes and harmonizes all the facts involved; based, like medicine and philosophy, on experiments and experience. "The fool hath said, There is no God." Equally a fool is the man who, believing there is a God, acts as if there were none. The International Teachers' Association are asking the restoration of the Bible to the public schools, not in the name of religion, or even of ethics, but in the name of culture, as a mind food that cannot be spared.

> We search the world for truth, we cull
> The good, the pure, the beautiful,
> From graven stone and written scroll,
> From the old flower-fields of the soul,
> And, weary seekers for the best,
> We come back laden from our quest,
> To find that all the sages said
> Is in the Book our mothers read. —WHITTIER.

Christ must needs have suffered.—This is one of the many can nots of character that goes with, "He can not deny himself," and "Ye must be born again." Part of its meaning is what Paul showed the Thessalonians, that in order to fulfil Old Testament prophesies, the true Messiah must be a sufferer. The Jews, in looking for a conquering Messiah, had forgotten the many passages like Isaiah 53, where he is pictured as also suffering, and so counted it disproof of Christ's claim to Messiahship that he had been crucified by the Romans instead of conquering them. But back of the prophesies themselves was the fact that "Christ must needs have suffered," because love and justice made such suffering a necessity for man's salvation.

CHURCH IN WHICH PAUL IS SAID TO HAVE PREACHED

SALONICA, THE MODERN CITY OCCUPYING THE SITE OF THESSALONICA

But the Jews which believed not assaulted the house.—It is a solemn fact to prompt heart searching, that these and so many others who "believe not" but fought the truth even unto blood, were church members. A pastor announced "a sermon to the unconverted members of the church." The true Church is made up of true hearts, but in the visible ranks of the churches there have been many who were manifestly unconverted, and many more are consciously unfaithful. It has been estimated that three-fourths of the Bible is addressed to these two classes. "Lord, is it I?"

These that have turned the world upside down have come hither also.—A quaint street preacher of London, taking this text, divided his subject into four heads: Firstly, the world was originally right side up; secondly, the devil came and turned it wrong side up; thirdly, it must be turned right side up again; fourthly, we are the chaps to do it. As sure as God's Word is true the world is to be righted (Rev. 11: 15), and we the millions of professing Christians have now the ability, and so the responsibility to do it. The lever by which the world is to be righted is the Word of God, and the spot Archimedes could not find to place a world-moving lever, we have found at the Cross. The mob violence which the Thessalonians used for arguments, as guilty men often do, recalls a story of Charles Burleigh, who was assailed with rotten eggs by those who smarted under his unanswerable reproofs. Wiping the stains quietly from his face, he said calmly to his enemies, "This proves what I have often said, that your arguments are unsound."

These were more noble than those of Thessalonica.—Paul did not give up the Thessalonians because the majority of them rejected God's message and drove him away. In his two letters to the Thessalonians, first written of his epistles, see what sweet words he has for the church, whose foundation stones were thrown by persecutors. But places and churches differ almost as much as individuals, and in the synagogue of Berea he found Jews "more noble," though of lowlier station than he had found in Thessalonica. With open minds they heard Paul expound the prophecies, showing how they were all fulfilled in Christ. And they "searched the Scriptures daily whether these things were so," inspiring examples of the true nobility in God's sight, who love and live his Word. Bible verses are often read as thoughtlessly and superstitiously as if the verses were beads of a rosary. To avoid such reading, use these

Helpful Questions to Follow Bible Reading

1. What have I read about God or Christ or the Holy Spirit? 2. What have I read about myself? 3. What good things are spoken of that I should try, with God's help, to imitate? 4. What sins are named that I should fight against? 5. What Divine promise is there in these verses that I should appropriate? 6. Is there any prayer in this passage that I should adopt? 7. What other Bible verses resemble these and throw light upon them as parallel passages? 8. How is the Scripture I have read "profitable" to me or for others, for contrition? Or for conversion? Or for Christian culture?

Stories of Bible Lovers

And now for some stories of other modern Bereans, who loved and studied the Bible, that may help to make Bereans of those in our Sunday Schools. A cobbler of Hamburg, sat under his awning, near his street door. Many of the gay crowd seeking pleasure on the street turned to look at him, for he chanted German psalm tunes as he worked, and a starling over his head was apparently trying to join in his music. A young Jew student stopped to say: "Well, friend—beg pardon—you seem a merry fellow." "To be sure, I am—right merry, my brother. Why shouldn't I be so?" "All are not so. You seem poor, and have to work hard, and you have only that bird, that seems as jolly as yourself, to care for you." "He is not all my family. I have a wife and seven children." "And yet you can sing?" "I am richer than thou thinkest. I am a King's son." The student stared and walked away, saying: "So it is madness makes him merry." A week later, the student passing by, took off his cap, and made a very low bow, and said: "Good evening, your royal highness." "Come in, and I will sing you of my kingdom." The student, thinking to find amusement in a crazy fancy came in, and the cobbler sang him a psalm of God's kingdom, and explained how the Messiah-King had been expected from the beginning and had come at last. "My father Abraham knew of that kingdom," said the Jew, "and I see it brings happiness to thee. Where can I learn more?" "Here, take this Bible and read it, and may God aid thee to find that Christ is thy Messiah-King." The Jew "searched the Scriptures daily whether these things were so," and thus found the King and the joy He brings.

The Boy who was a "Bible Fearer"

A beautiful story of Queen Elizabeth's coronation, which followed the reign of "Bloody Mary," when to read the Bible was a crime, illustrates the great privilege of free access to the Bible, its heavenly origin, and how a boy may bear God's message. It was the one great theme of rejoicing when Elizabeth became queen, that the Bible was unchained, and so a pageant was arrayed to express that joy. A boy, skilful in athletic feats, was dressed as an angel, in green and gold, with wings on shoulders and feet, and on the approach of the queen's coach, he descended, as if from heaven, from the top of Temple Bar, where the city of London proper then ended, bearing a most elegant Bible, made expressly for the queen. As the winged boy descended, the crowd exclaimed, "The Bible bearer," and the queen received the Book as from heaven, for the guidance of her throne. Happy the man or woman who enthrones the Bible as the law of life! Happy the boy or girl, the man or woman, who accepts God's call to every one to be a "Bible fearer."

An Evening in an Art Gallery

ONE week ago the "Family Art Gallery" reached me, and I did not inspect them until the next evening. When, after arranging them according to your suggestions, wife and I and some friends examined them at our leisure. We were all entertained and greatly pleased with every one. The pictures are well worth the price of our subscription. As my four children are married and have each a home of their own, these ten pictures, except one or two for our own home, will go to them, the same as last year; and so many will enjoy these pictures for years to come. We thank you heartily for the Art Gallery, and for what you are doing in the way of giving to the poor such pleasure as usually only the rich enjoy. THE CHRISTIAN HERALD is a permanent fixture in our home. The Calendar reached me a few days ago and it is a gem of the first water. Thanking you again.

Narrowsburg, N. Y. GEORGE W. MAYBE

Every subscriber receives free our "Family Art Gallery."

Choosing a Flower

THE school children in one of the beautiful mountain regions of West Virginia have lately been choosing a flower. True, this is not the season for flowers, when the storms are abroad, and the cold is intense, but the flowers are not dead; they are merely asleep. I think it very sensible, indeed, to select the class flower or the school flower in winter, not waiting for spring or summer to come. Besides, spring is moving towards us as fast as ever it can, with its regiments of grasses, its millions of posies, its battalions of birds, its orchestras of breezes, and it has only to cross the Alpine hills of January and February, before it sounds the golden bugle calls of March.

The flower the West Virginia children have chosen as their own is the beautiful mountain laurel, an exquisite American flower, that fairly lights up the woods with its rare smiles and dazzling profusion of color and blossoms, when its time of bloom arrives. For students, what flower more appropriate than the laurel, if you please, with its suggestion of undying renown?

Which is your flower? The rose, the daisy, the golden-rod, the lily, each has its admirers. But can you bring an argument to bear in their favor, that surpasses in weight what one can say for the dear mountain laurel?

I once knew a mother who chose a flower for each child of hers at its birth, and as the little one grew, its pleasures and pastimes were associated with that. Marie, for example, had mignonette for her flower. A vase filled with this most delicately sweet of the garden's darlings was always in the child's room, on her desk, on her dressing-table. The mother had wealth, and could indulge herself in dainty fancies, so she covered the walls of Marie's room with paper on which were loose sprays of mignonette. Modesty, sweetness, unobtrusiveness, endurance, the flower taught the child. Louise had the carnation for her special flower, and Josephine the violet, and in each case the spirituality, the hidden meaning of the plant-life was made to be of service in bringing up the child.

Some Lonely Lives

Among those who lead lonely lives without a murmur, that they may do their brave share in helping on the tasks of the world, we should not forget the signal-service men, the lighthouse-keepers, and the crews along the coasts who man the life-boats in boiling surf, and go out to save those in peril of death. Peculiarly isolated are the men who on lofty eyries of the mountains, or on some desolate coast, do the bidding of science and the nation, and watch the drift of clouds, the movement of the upper and lower currents of the air, and all the shifting variations of climate and temperature, that, away off in thronged cities life may be easier, and commerce more safely plough the great seas.

Our Friend, the Horse

Few more faithful friends than the horse have ever served and stood beside man, and few have been treated with so much ingratitude and unkindness. In cold weather, the horse should have the protection of the warm coat which nature provides for him. Fashion clips it closely, and as fashion has already docked its tail, at once an ornament, a comfort, and a means of defense, there does not seem much more in that line that she can do. Heedlessness sends the poor horse out in slippery, icy weather, on pavements like glass, with dulled shoes that afford no foothold. In zero weather, city horses should be sharply shod. If the poor horse falls, does not prudence dictate helping him rise with as little strain as possible; yet men fume and storm and blaspheme, as the unwieldy animal vainly struggles, when the mere placing of a blanket on the ground would relieve the situation with speed.

The account which the horse has against man foots up with large indebtedness on our side. People who love and admire this noble friend and servitor, should not tolerate the cruelty which is too often displayed in his treatment.

To close a house, as some cruel folks do in summer, and leave a poor cat to forage for itself, is indefensible. True, it may pick up a living. But you might as well shut your Aunt Sallie or your Cousin Miranda out of her own room, as exclude a cat, accustomed to a bed indoors, from that comfort. And the poor gaunt, starved, degenerate tramp cat, is a witness to your barbarity of disposition that ought to make your acquaintances watch you with care. If a cat cannot be looked after properly, mercifully put it to a long and dreamless death.

This is apropos of the Chicago Cat Show!

GRANDMOTHER AND HER BOY

Dear Little Sonny is grandmother's boy,
She gives him advice and she tells him of God.
May he live to be grandmother's pride and her joy,
And walk like a man in his pilgrimage road.

Puss on Exhibition

A cat show has just been held in Chicago. Beautiful specimens of the feline family have permitted their fur to be stroked and their good points noted, and prizes have been awarded to the finest cats, their owners visibly swelling with pride thereat. The cats came from Canada, and from many States of the Union, and the show lasted an entire day.

Nobody is indifferent to a cat. People adore or despise this familiar creature who sits by the fire, suns himself in the south window, or monopolizes the softest cushion in the house. Cats hate dirt and discomfort. A cat can and does attach itself to localities, but it is capable of very close friendship with human beings who are kind to it. Some neighbors of mine wanted to go to Europe last summer, but at last resigned their trip, because they could find nobody with whom they were willing to leave a precious Madam Puss, who was the pet of the household. "We could not forsake the little gray lady, and we would not chloroform her," they said, in explanation of their abandoned jaunt.

Aunt Prudence Payson's Catch-All

—W. L. Marriage without love is a sin.

—EMILIE. Your little sister may be a flower-girl at your wedding.

—ROSE DEE. Miniature painting is well paid if the work is artistic.

—WILLIE. Beauty is not confined to youth. There is a beauty of old age.

—LULU. A luncheon before bed-time should be light. Heavy suppers cause indigestion.

—WILL. A husband is not beyond his rights who expects his clothing to be kept in repair.

—JOHN. Finger-bowls are not an affectation. They are a convenience when one eats fruit.

—YOUNG LADY. We say girl rather than young lady now, but every girl should be the latter.

—MRS. S. A quarrelsome neighbor should be treated civilly. Avoid having an issue about anything.

—IN FLY-TIME. Screen doors and windows, and keep flies out. An ounce of prevention is desirable here.

The Lord Will Provide

THE sigh which Mrs. Lewis breathed was a deep one. The day had been full of vexation, she had worried herself into a serious headache, and the night had come finding her with distressing thought.

"Little woman, you make me feel rather blue," father said, as he came in from the barn, his face flushed from vigorous labor.

"Oh, father, I do not see how we are going to make out with Mary Ellen sick, and you short of farm help, and everything just as wrong as it can be."

"Yet I never knew repining to help in the least, mother. You know the sun is still shining behind the clouds, and it will reappear by and by, perhaps when we least expect it. I have known many to cry nights, but the dawn always followed. There is a word of sublime confidence that we should write deep in our hearts, 'Jehovah-jireh.' It is the assurance that no promise of God ever fails, and that out of seeming loss and sorrow he often brings blessings."

Mrs. Lewis pressed her hand wearily to her heart. "And I have been fretting all day," she answered, "quite forgetting that the Heavenly Father is always mindful of us. Oh, John, if it were not for your faith and trust, I wonder sometimes where I would drift."

"Has the Lord ever been unmindful of us? Has he not promised that no good thing will be withheld from them that love him? Does not this imply that there should be a calm waiting, even when the road lies dark before us?"

"I think I have always wanted to walk by sight," said the wife. "Yet we cannot see a single step before our feet, and we are told that we should enter upon the morrow without anxiety and forebodings."

"Ought we not to repose the same confidence in God that our children repose in us? Since He has promised to provide for my every need, I see no reason why I should fill my days with anxious thought."

"My God will supply all you need," said Mrs. Lewis softly. "Indeed, John, with the blessed Word so full of rich promises, I shall no longer fret. I am willing to trust and abide in his love."

SARA V. DUBOIS.

Her Treasure Long Desired

Kind Friend:—Over my premium Bible I have shed tears of joy. When I received it, I went to my room, knelt down, and thanked God that he had, through your kindness, sent to me the very gift I had so long desired—a beautiful Bible—and I will always hold it as a dear treasure. MRS. E. S. MANSBARGER.

Our Red Letter Bible, and THE CHRISTIAN HERALD one year, $3.

What makes the lamb love Mary so?
Why, Mary loves the lamb, you know.

"Cobbler Jim"

By CHARLES NOEL DOUGLAS

COBBLER JIM was happy and gay, and as his store you passed,
You'd hear his voice above the din of the blows that fell on his last;
His wasn't a voice of culture, nor was it a voice of power,
But as Jim sat at his bench and sang, blithely from hour to hour,
His song would blend with that of the birds, perched in the trees close by,
And it seemed as together they sang, the man and the bird would try,
Which best could prove by their happy notes, that whether at work or play—
God's world is full of sunshine and bliss, the man at his bench, or they.

You'll ask what caused the cobbler's joy, and what inspired his song
With that note of perfect happiness, which rang the whole day long,
What was it gave to those rugged notes a tone almost divine,
And made them seem so different from a voice like yours and mine,
What was it made the birds join in whene'er he chanced to sing,
And hover in the branches near and o'er the lintel cling,
The answer's clear, the answer's plain, and all is due to Him,
The God who gave the birds their song inspired the notes of Jim.

Time was when Jim was a ne'er-do-well, and never a note he sang,
Unless strong drink inflamed his blood, and then the tavern rang
With a flood of ribald melody, at once both coarse and rude,
Then with an oath he staggered home in a mean and ugly mood:
Then trouble came and sickness, and but for a loving wife,
Right then and there would have ended the cobbler's misspent life,
And Jim resolved when health returned, no more he'd be a clod,
He had worked and sang for the devil, now he'd work and sing for God.

And how Jim worked, and how he sang, 'twas glorious to see
No living soul upon the earth was happier than he!
And every time his hammer fell, or home a nail drove in,
He'd say: "There goes another blow at misery and sin!"
The dogs, that never came near Jim without a blow or kick,
Saw Jim had changed, and bravely came his proffered hand to lick.
For even in the animals the power, the instinct lies
To tell if God or Satan looks at them through human eyes.

Yes, Jim had "got religion," and it didn't make him sad—
He had the proper Christlike kind that ever makes one glad;
The kind that lights the heart and soul and drives out gloom and fear;
The kind that fills one's life with joy and heaven itself draws near;
The kind that makes the grave itself a stepping-stone to bliss—
No other kind is Christ-inspired unless it's like to this—
For misery, despair, and gloom can never have a part
In any truly Christian life when Christ is in the heart.

Let's take a leaf from out Jim's book, and when our lives seem dark,
Let's join our voices with the birds and imitate the lark,
And make our hymns of joyfulness to heaven's gates ascend,
And angels gathered round the throne a listening ear will lend,
And join their melodies with ours, until all heaven rings
With mighty Alleluiahs grand unto the King of kings;
And God will hear our anthems, and a blessing then from Him
Will fill our lives with sunshine, and make us just like Jim.

FINLAND SWEPT BY FAMINE

Continued from page 3

and has a population of nearly two and a half millions. Its southern shore is washed by the Gulf of Finland, and its western by the Gulf of Bothnia; northward, it joins the territory of Sweden and extends well into the Arctic circle. With thirty-seven towns, in all it has only seven with a population numbering ten thousand and over. Helsingfors, the capital, is a handsome and well-built city of eighty thousand population. It is noted for its healthfulness of situation and its excellent morals, which compare favorably with those of any other capital in Europe.

Finland is known as "The Land of the Thousand Lakes," a very large part of the interior consisting of lake, swamp and forest. It has few rivers or mountains. Its lakes are studded with islands, and much of the scenery is very beautiful. Its principal industries are timber, grazing, dairy-farming, cloth-making, tar and resin, cotton mills, flax mills and iron foundries. Wheat, barley and oats are cultivated. Many people in the interior live exclusively by fishing in the lakes. and providing fresh and salted salmon for the market.

Althoughit is by no means an exceptionally cold country, the winters in Finland are long and hard, lasting about six months. At Christmas time, the sun is only visible for six hours a day, and the whole land is a vast tract of snow and ice, over which the people travel in sleds, or on snow-shoes or skees. In the south, there is fairly good railroad communication, but primitive methods of traveling prevail in the interior. Finnish, Swedish and Russian are the languages spoken, the latter by a very small percentage of the population.

There are few more simple or devout races than the Finns. They are scrupulously honest, trustworthy and industrious. Their churches are to them real sanctuaries, and their Lutheran pastors are true spiritual "shepherds of the flock." Living hard and laborious lives in a sterile land, their industry and thrift, in normal years, have sufficed to keep them from actual want. Now that keen adversity has overtaken them, they are deserving of the sympathy of benevolent people everywhere. If we extend a helping hand to the heathen or to those of an alien faith, how much more quickly and generously should we come to the rescue of those who are our Christian brothers and sisters, of the same "household of faith" as ourselves.

Travelers have been struck with the quiet and reserved demeanor of the people, who are peaceable and law-abiding, hospitable to strangers, thrifty and intelligent. The houses, within and without, are scrupulously clean, and so are the streets. Notwithstanding its many disadvantages, Finland has kept up a high standard of public education, and illiteracy is rare. In Finland proper, there is practically no aristocracy, most of the people belonging to the industrious class. Until the recent advent of "hard times," following on successive failures of the crops, poverty seldom oppressed the Finns. Even in the cities, slums and masses of destitute, such as may be found elsewhere, have been unknown. Both sexes believe in work. In banks, business offices and railroad depots, women clerks are numerous; in the farming districts, women work in the fields, and in the cities they may be seen even sweeping the streets, while many labor as stonemasons and carpenters. Yet these women, notwithstanding their avocations, preserve their womanly traits to a remarkable degree. They usually marry early and happily, for divorces are rare in Finland, and the domestic infelicities which sadden so many homes in other countries is regarded with abhorrence.

THE BRIDE'S VOWS AT A FINNISH WEDDING

FINNISH FISHERS AT THEIR "TRAPS"

In dress, the Finlanders are somewhat picturesque. Many of the Young Finnish women wear white velvet caps, or blue or crimson handkerchiefs over the head or tied under the chin; bright-colored cotton bodices, neatly embroidered skirts and aprons, while the men—the peasantry, at least—wear linen blouses and high boots with soft moccasin soles, turned up at the toes. They are, as a rule, sober and abstemious, their daily fare consisting of fish, oatmeal, milk and rye biscuit.

The Famine Officially Confirmed

In response to a cablegram of inquiry sent by the proprietor of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD to Count Andre Bobrinsky of St. Petersburg (a Russian noble of high rank and position in the imperial court), the following answer has been received:

St. Petersburg, Dec. 27.

NEED IS ACUTE. Finnish Department accepts gratefully America's aid. Will send famine statement.

(Signed) BOBRINSKY.

This official corroboration of the famine reports, emphasizes the urgency of the case. "The need is acute," and all who wish to have a share in the work should act now. Send in your contribution to the

FINLAND FAMINE FUND
THE CHRISTIAN HERALD
92 BIBLE HOUSE, NEW YORK

Selling Peasants in Russia

One of the most striking illustrations of the results of the present famine in Russia is mentioned in a cablegram from St. Petersburg, which says:

"The state of affairs in the Government (or province) of Kovroff is almost incredible. Regular auction sales of women and children are held there, the wives, daughters and little ones of men who are too poor to buy food for them being knocked down to the highest bidder in order that they may not perish. A sound, wholesome young girl fetches $35. A healthy child sells for from $10 to $25.

"Speculators are said to do a thriving business by fattening their emaciated purchases and selling them again. Whole families are subsisting on a little meal mixed with the ground bark of trees, while roots and herbs are boiled with the flesh of diseased animals to make soup."

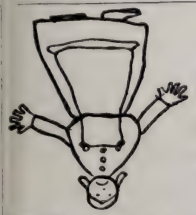
It is almost inconceivable that such conditions should exist in a civilized country. The government is doing what it can to give relief, but the suffering is so widespread as to be beyond its power to assuage.

Mellin's Infants' Food

is a food that feeds.

Send for a free sample of Mellin's Food.

Mellin's Food Company, Boston, Mass.



That's Aunt Ann. Doesn't she look upset? Well I would too if I got a note like the following:

Dear Ann:

I'm sorry Mary's left, but I'm more sorry to see your hands becoming rough and red: that's a sure sign you are using cleansers which ruin your clothes as well as your hands. Cleansers that injure the hands will injure everything they come in contact with. Why in the world don't you use BORAX? It makes washing quick and easy. It makes clothes whiter than anything else you can use. It preserves colors and is above all absolutely harmless, keeping the hands soft and white and preserving clothes. If you doubt this ask your physician. He recommends it for washing out baby's mouth. It saves time, saves soap and saves wear on clothes.

Ask your grocer for "20 Mule Team Borax"

There are substitutes adulterated with soda

If BORAX were better understood, it would be constantly used in every household as a helpful economy. You can learn more about it from the quaint booklet, "Borax—Come In." Sent on receipt of a two-cent stamp. Address Department K, Pacific Coast Borax Company, Chicago.

The KALAMAZOO

All our cook stoves and Ranges equipped with patent oven thermometer, which makes baking a delight.

The only strictly high grade stoves and ranges sold direct from factory to user at factory prices. They are sold on a 360 DAYS Approval Test.

Don't buy until you have investigated our special proposition. Send for FREE catalogue No. 103

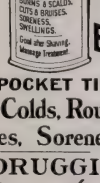
KALAMAZOO STOVE CO.
Manufacturers, Kalamazoo, Mich.

No Member of your Family should be without an Individual Stick of



Taylor's PURE COCOA BUTTER

(10¢ POCKET TINS.)

Relieves Colds, Rough Skin, Bruises, Soreness &c

ALL DRUGGISTS,

OR BY MAIL ON RECEIPT OF PRICE IN SILVER OR STAMPS. Taylor's 863 BROADWAY, N.Y.

UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT SOLD 100,000 Guns, Revolvers, Swords, etc., to FRANCIS BANNERMAN, 579 Broadway, New York. Catalog 1,000 illustrations, free.

Gospel Messengers in the Mountains

LITTLE MOUNTAINEERS AT SUNDAY SCHOOL

THE MISSIONARY IN THE MOUNTAINS

CHRISTIANS living amid all the comforts, conveniences and wonderful spiritual advantages of great cities, will read with sympathetic interest the following account of the journeyings of a missionary of the American Sunday School Union, an organization whose history and good works are familiar to readers of this paper. He was traveling in a mountainous section of our country, where railroads are few and far between, carrying God's message to a noble people, worthy though poor, who do not have the religious privileges they deserve and hunger for.

My assistant, Mr. S., was much pleased to find an old companion of his boyhood days, teaching the public school here. We were readily granted permission to speak to the scholars in the interest of the Sabbath School we had organized a few weeks before, the teacher promising to aid this Sabbath School by his presence and in every possible way.

SUSPENSION FOOT-BRIDGE ACROSS CLINCH RIVER

We tramped through mud and rain to a cabin and got supper, then back to the schoolhouse and held religious services, much interest being manifested by those present, who had come, though it is dangerous to travel over the mountain trails when it is very dark.

Next day we started for an appointment at H—— schoolhouse, some ten miles distant, across Clinch River. We had but one horse, which we "took turns" riding, the one who rode carrying our luggage, which consisted of large "saddle-bags" and a valise full of Bibles and Testaments, and a "suit-case" containing a change of clothing for each of us. It was my "turn" to walk, and the steep trail was very muddy and slippery. We visited some of the homes and announced services for that night in the public school, which we also visited, after which Mr. S—— proposed that he walk across the mountain that evening, leaving me to conduct the services, organize a Sunday School if I could, and follow with the horse in the morning. As we were some twenty miles from the railroad, which he must reach by eleven o'clock next day (he was going home on the cars, while I was to ride the horse), I consented, and he walked across the mountain, about six miles, while I remained, held the service and organized a promising Sunday School.

We had been away from home almost a month, and had only heard from our families once. It is difficult for us to keep in communication with our families while at work in the mountains. Mails are very uncertain back twenty or thirty miles from the railroad, and we cannot tell where to have it sent to us, as we frequently do not know where we will be. While Mr. S. was waiting for his train, he accidentally heard of some religious meetings, which were being conducted by an old friend, some four or five miles in the country, and was urged to attend and assist. "I will," said he, "if I can get back to town for my train." He was told this would not be possible, as he would have to walk both ways. Nevertheless he concluded to go, and walked the eight or ten miles, preached for them, and organized a Sabbath School, with forty scholars pledged to attend.

We have organized seventeen Sunday Schools within ten weeks past. We will have to revisit these schools frequently at intervals, to encourage and instruct them, until they are ready to stand alone. Mr. S., is a mountaineer, and understands the mountain people thoroughly. He knows the country, and has a large personal acquaintance extending over five or six large counties in Southwestern Virginia. With his help I have been enabled to do many times more than I could possibly have accomplished alone. I am very anxious that funds may be received to continue him in the work for which he is well fitted, and am grateful to those who have contributed to employ him temporarily. We have not failed in any place we have visited to plant a Bible school, and many have been awakened and stirred by the preaching of the Word. We are praying that God will bless the work done and make it fruitful, as he has in many other localities where conditions at first were almost or quite as discouraging. These people are hungry for the Gospel. Any one wishing further information about the work of this society, may apply to Rev. E. P. Bancroft, Secretary, 158 Fifth avenue, New York City. J. H. LITTLE,

Missionary American Sunday School Union.

"The Bowery Tree."

FRIENDS of the poor who contributed so generously to Mrs. Bird's Christmas Tree, will be pleased to read the following letter, dated December 26, from that lady:

DEAR CHRISTIAN HERALD READERS:

The children had a glorious time yesterday. They gathered in such masses in front of the Bowery Mission, that we had to open the doors at seven, instead of two P. M., the hour set. Before we knew it, the room was packed: on the gallery stairs, in the windows, everywhere we stowed little folks away. It was touching to see our Mission converts, all kind-hearted men, carrying the tiniest tots about on their shoulders and in their arms. Such neglected-looking children I never saw before!

The Captain of Police told me that he estimated at 20,000 the children who gathered in front of the Mission, between 8 a. m. and nightfall, pleading for a look at the "Bowery Tree." We allowed not one adult to enter, taking in only the children. They were joyous, but very orderly. Hundreds of toys and other presents were given out and the little ones were told of the kind-hearted friends in many lands who had made their holiday glad.

Dr. Klopsch's chair was put under a bower of beautiful gifts of his generous giving. Our saved men would have it so. Fifty of them worked all their spare time, night and day, to make Christmas happy for the Bowery waifs. The music was fine, all the little children sang joyously. To-day, our big tree will be used by the Mariner's Temple. Out of our many toys, we saved some and sent them to the children of the colored Sunday School in the "Cellar Mission," -ecently mentioned in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD; so the "Bowery Tree" has made a multitude glad. The children of the poor extend hearty thanks to the distant friends who remembered them.

SARAH J. BIRD.

Delicious Drinks and Dainty Dishes

ARE MADE FROM

BAKER'S BREAKFAST COCOA

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Unequaled for Smoothness, Delicacy, and Flavor

Examine the package you receive and make sure that it bears our trade-mark.

Under the decisions of the U. S. Courts no other Cocoa is entitled to be labeled or sold as "BAKER'S COCOA."

Walter Baker & Co. Ltd.

Established 1780 DORCHESTER, MASS.

No Sour Cream if you use

Highland Brand Evaporated Cream

It is the purest form of cow's milk—evaporated, sterilized and canned under the supervision of a partner of the business. Produced on the famous "Highland Model Dairy Farms," it is a most wholesome and appetizing form of milk and is a

PERFECT INFANT FOOD

Highland Brand Makes Weak Babies Strong.

Most grocers sell it. If yours doesn't, send us his name and we will send you a sample can FREE.

HELVETIA MILK CONDENSING CO., Highland, Ill., Dept. F, U. S. A.

"Where Model Dairy Farms Abound."

These trade-mark crisscross lines on every package.

Gluten Grits AND BARLEY CRYSTALS,

Perfect Breakfast and Dessert Health Cereals. PANSY FLOUR for Hot Rolls, Cake and Pastry. Unlike all other foods. Ask Grocers. For book of sample, write

FARWELL & RHINES, Watertown, N. Y., U.S.A.

CORNS come out by the roots—easily and quickly and safely—and stay out a long time when you use A-CORN SALVE. Send postal for free trial box. Full-size box 15c at druggists or by mail.

Giant Chemical Co., Philadelphia

WE WANT WOMEN WORKERS TO BE INDEPENDENT by selling to the best families in your locality our Famous Progressive Dinnerware Patterns, Knives, Spoons, Berlaine Pictures, Tray Scrapes, and our famous Dishwashing Compound. Handsome Souvenir Case Free. Write to-day for full details and exceptional offer. THE CRAIG BAKING POWDER CO., Dept. D, Cleveland, O.

Agent's Outfit Free.—Rim Strainer, fits any pan. Agents make 5 to 6 dollars per day. Large catalogue new goods free. RICHARDSON MFG. CO. Dept. 6. BATH, N.Y.

Reduced Prices on Suits and Cloaks

UNLESS you are already in possession of one of our handsome and attractive Suit, Skirt or Cloak, made to order of bran new materials at one-third less than regular prices, you cannot consider yourself properly dressed this season. We have just completed our contracts at greatly reduced figures, and will make a clean sweep of our entire stock in a very few days. We must carry over as little as possible of these goods, so are willing to lose a large profit rather than carry them over. Now is the time to buy for Winter and early Spring wear. Nearly all of our styles and materials are included in this Sale.

Note these reductions:—

Tailor-made Suits; former price $10, reduced to $6.67.

$12 Suits reduced to $8.

$15 Suits reduced to $10.

Skirts, made of all-wool materials; former price $5, reduced to $3.34.

$7.50 Skirts reduced to $5.

$9 Skirts reduced to $6.

Costumes of Black Velvet Cords and Corduroy; former price $17, reduced to $11.34.

$19 Costumes reduced to $12.67.

Attractive Coats, former price $10, reduced to $6.67.

$15 Monte Carlo Coats reduced to $10.

Reduced Prices on Rainy-day Suits, Traveling Suits, Raglans, Etc.

We are also closing out a number of sample garments at one-half of regular prices.

Catalogue, Samples and Bargain List sent free upon request. Be sure to say that you wish a Winter Catalogue and Reduced Price Samples. This is the last month of the Sale, so act quickly if you wish to take advantage of it.

Our new Spring Catalogue will be ready January 20th; every well dressed woman should have a copy. Write today, and we will mail you one, with a line of new Spring Samples, as soon as issued. Be sure to say you wish the New Spring Catalogue and Samples.

THE NATIONAL CLOAK CO.
119 and 121 West 23d Street, New York

SOLD! UNDER A Positive Guarantee

to wash as clean as can be done on the washboard, even to the wristbands and collar of the dirtiest shirt, and with much more ease. This applies to Terrill's Perfect Washer, which will be sent on trial at wholesale price. If not satisfactory, money will be refunded. AGENTS WANTED. For exclusive territory, terms and prices, write

PORTLAND MFG. CO., Box 231, Portland, Mich.

Magic Tucker

(Improved.)

Tucks without creasing, basting or measuring—Silks, Velvet, Woolens, Lawns and all goods any machine will sew. Guaranteed to fit all machines and give perfect satisfaction. Box plaits without leaving crease in center. Tucks smallest pinch tuck to largest tuck. Simple, speedy, durable.

35,000 sold by agents past season. One agent wanted in each town. Millions will be sold. Tucker mailed on receipt of $1.00.

MAGIC TUCKER CO., 45 Glenn Building, Cincinnati, Ohio.

NOTHING AS GOOD ADVERTISED ANYWHERE.

Sewing Machines $7.25 TO $26.50

Shipped on approval anywhere in U. S. No money in advance. All kinds, all styles; direct from factories. Avoiding salesmen's expenses and dealers or agents' exorbitant profits saves you from $10 to $15. Estab. 1895. 250,000 sold. Testimonials from every state. References: First Nat'l Bank, Chicago. Send for big illustrated catalogue showing all styles and samples of work.

CASH BUYER'S UNION, Dept K 18, Chicago.

PARKER'S ARCTIC SOCKS

Ideal bedroom and bath slippers. Knitted fabric, with soft, white wool fleece. Slumber-rubber heels. Unequaled for comfort, convenience, economy. Address Dept. 1803 for free booklet. Postpaid on receipt of price, 50 cents. Catalogue free.

J. R. PARKER, Dept. K, 163 Bedford St., Boston, Mass.

CHEAP RATES California, Washington, Oregon, Colorado. We ship at all kinds of rates to the above States. We ship anything, anywhere. Write for rates.

TRANS-CONTINENTAL FREIGHT CO., 333 Dearborn St., Chicago

NO POISON has ever been found in the Carmelized STEEL WIRE. The Red Label, indorsed by chemists of United States Court, passed on every loop, proves it.

THE HEAD OF THE FAMILY

CONTINUED FROM PAGE

two-room hovel, grimy with the dust of the fields, built against the hillside, and shadowed in front by a towering pile of culm. For this abode, the company deducted two dollars monthly from the boy's wages; the remainder went for food to the company store. Clothes? the old ones must be made to answer. Medicine? a doctor? not to be thought of for a moment.

Let it be said in fairness that Boyton had left his family rather worse off than the average; but for years he had had "hard luck," so that he was not wholly to blame. Indeed, he had struggled against fate with such persistency as he was master of. An invalid wife, a succession of accidents in the mine—these had tended to impoverish him, to plunge him hopelessly in the company's debt. He had fallen behind in his dues in the insurance department of the Miner's Union, and he was dropped. From the roll of the Union itself he was not dropped, since his dues were deducted monthly from his wages by the company, and turned over to the officials of that organization. So when a fall of coal had caught him in his chamber far underground and crushed his life out, he left his family nothing but his debts. The Union buried him and considered its duty done, as indeed it was, according to the letter of its agreement.

To be sure, the neighbors helped when they could, for sympathy and kindness of heart may survive even in the coal-fields, but they were themselves hovering always on the verge of want, and so could do little. Then the elder boy, by means of a perjury concurred in by his mother, had secured a position in the breaker.

Mrs. Boyton had looked after him as he trudged away to work that first morning of the new year with a new misery in her eyes, full of misery as they had been before, and a dry sobbing, which soon ceased—for despair brings with it, at last, a kindly apathy, just as the nerves, wrung by long suffering, in the end forget their office. She saw him come home in the evening numbed with cold—for a breaker cannot be heated—and choked with dust; she saw the insidious advance of weakness and disease, and sometimes those fits of sobbing reappeared; but what could she do? What hope was there? She herself could scarcely move at times; for long hours together she huddled over the kitchen stove, rocking slowly backwards and forwards, incapable even of thought. The end had come inevitably as she had foreseen it; the boy had broken down, and her other son had gone forth to what she knew must be the same fate.

"You're better, aint y', mother?" was his first question every evening, as he entered the house.

"Yes, I reckon I'm better, Jimmy," was the invariable answer, given with such cheerfulness as she could muster. "I reckon I'm a little better."

"An' how's Tom?"

"I reckon he's better, too. He 'peared t' take a little more int'rest t'day."

"That's good!" he cried, with new cheerfulness—it took so little to make him cheerful—and set to work to cleanse himself of some of the grime of the breaker, before going in to see his brother. It was tedious work, for the dust had crept into every pore—and painful work, too, for his hands were cut in many places. But at last it was accomplished, as well as soap and water could accomplish it, and he went into the dark little back room, where Tom lay on the grimy bed.

"Any better, Tom?" he asked, sitting down on the side of the bed and taking his brother's feverish hands in his. "Mother said she thort y' was a little better."

"I don' know, Jimmy. Maybe I am better, but I don't seem t' git any stronger."

"Well, never mind; y' take y'r time. I'm gittin' along all right. Th' cracker-boss don't pay no notice t' me—he's a mighty good kind o' feller. What 'd y' like t' eat?"

There was a sublime, unconscious irony in the question, since the whole food supply of the house consisted of a piece of "side-meat," a sack of corn-meal and a measure of potatoes.

"I d' want nothin'," answered Tom, tossing fretfully on his bed; "nothin'."

Alas! he, too, knew of just what the food resources of the house consisted, and the thought of them sickened him; but he would have died rather than let a complaint escape him.

"Oh, come now," protested Jimmy, "that won't do. How 're y' a-goin' t' git any stronger if y' won't eat? You've jest got t' eat, Tom, if only a little bit!"

The mother, bending a listening ear from the kitchen, broke again into sobbing, but checked herself sharply at the thought that they might hear her.

The older boy did not answer, but pulled his hands away and rolled himself over toward the wall, choking back the words that rose to his lips. And his brother, watching him, felt his lips quiver and his eyes fill with tears—felt his self-control slipping from him. But he, too, checked himself, and, winking back the tears resolutely, went out into the kitchen and rejoined his mother. One reads often of the self-control and bravery of children in high places; but the bravery of the children of the poor passes unrecorded—perhaps because it is such a common thing, a part of every day!

"Tom don't seem t' be so much better, after all," he remarked. "He says he d' want nothin' t' eat."

Supper was not long in getting, and he sat down opposite his mother. But both of them made only a pretense of eating—a thing so unusual on the boy's part that it at once attracted the mother's anxious notice. She scanned his face with fearful eyes; she saw how it had thinned and aged in the past month; how it was no longer a plump, colorful child's face at all! She saw the circles under the eyes that told of insufficient rest; she saw the cruel cuts on the little hands; prophetically, she saw the hopeless future which stretched before him, and she bit her lips in sudden agony to keep back the sob that rose in her breast and choked her.

"Y'r workin' too hard, Jimmy," she ventured, when she had mastered herself. "Can't y' rest a day or two? It'll do y' good."

"Pooh!" he cried, with an attempt at gayety. "Workin' too hard, nothin'! Why, I'm as strong as any of the fellers — you jest ort t' see!"

"But if y'd rest a day or two," she began, again, insisting, driven on by fear.

TO BE CONTINUED

Kind Words from Georgia

DEAR DR. KLOPSCH:—I cannot refrain from expressing my gratitude for the many and beautiful premiums you have so generously sent out during the past year. First, I mention the unique Red Letter Testament, which is, to say the least, nice, nicer, nicest. I have gladdened the hearts of six dear friends by presenting each with a copy. Next, the wonderful Red Letter Bible, which is fine, finer, finest. Two copies have shared a joyous welcome with my wife and daughter. Then came the Calendars, lovely, lovelier, loveliest. A week ago came a copy of the well-known painting of Morgan, "The Young Mother," beautiful, more beautiful, most beautiful. Today we received the Art Gallery, and what shall I say? Superlatives are exhausted in any effort to justly describe your paper and its gifts. Added to all this, we have been delighted every week with the coming of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD—the Queen of the Weeklies—which is good, better, best, and a marvel of excellence and beauty. God speed THE CHRISTIAN HERALD.

Atlanta, Ga. C. W. JEROME.

The Red Letter Testament, together with THE CHRISTIAN HERALD one year, $1.85; The Red Letter Bible and the paper, $3. Our "Family Art Gallery" of ten beautiful pictures goes free to every subscriber to this paper.

Her Husband's Gift

DEAR DR. KLOPSCH:—My husband has received the pictures and presented them to me. As new subscribers, we thank you heartily for the beautiful "Family Art Gallery" given free with the paper. "Lost in the Storm" has long been one of my favorites, and in this set of ten is the one most liked by us.

Tranchville, Conn. MRS. E. L. JONES.

Our "Family Art Gallery" goes free to every subscriber of this paper.

RUBIFOAM

CLEANSES THE TEETH AND STOPS DECAY WITHOUT THE USE OF GRITTY TOOTH POWDER. A PERFECT LIQUID DENTIFRICE PRICE, 25c. AT DRUGGISTS. E. W. HOYT & CO., MAKERS, LOWELL, MASS.

FLEISHER'S WORSTED THE BEST YARNS

This trade mark is on every skein of the best yarn made

Send 5 of these tickets and 2 cents for postage to the Manufacturers S. B. & W. Fleisher, Inc. Philadelphia, Pa. for their new Knitting & Crocheting Manual

LABLACHE FACE POWDER

CAUTION!

Unscrupulous imitators have attempted to float upon the public harmful imitations of

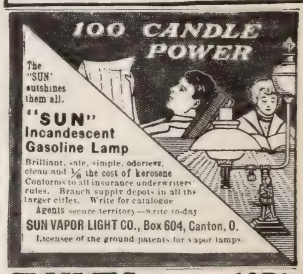
LABLACHE

Face Powder. Be sure that Ben Levy's signature in red ink appears across the cover of each box. That marks it as genuine. Many cheap powders are highly perfumed with chemical compounds actually harmful. LABLACHE has the perfume of natural flowers. Flesh, White, Pink, Cream Tints. 50c. a box. Druggists or by mail. Take no other.

BEN LEVY & CO.
French Perfumers, 125 Kingston St., Boston

100 CANDLE POWER

The "SUN" outshines them all.



"SUN" Incandescent Gasoline Lamp

Brilliant, safe, simple, odorless, clean and ⅓ the cost of kerosene. Conforms to all insurance underwriters' rules. Branch supply depots in all the larger cities. Write for catalogue.

Agents secure territory—write today.

SUN VAPOR LIGHT CO., Box 604, Canton, O.

Licensee of the ground patents for vapor lamps

THE HARTSHORN SHADE ROLLER

Revolves on an exact center. Accurately adjusted end fittings. The IMPROVED HARTSHORN Shade Roller requires NO TACKS. Ask dealer

OUR SUNDAY HOUR WITH THE LITTLE FOLKS

DEAR CHILDREN, we hope you had a merry Christmas, and that this first week of the new year has been a happy promise of joyful weeks to come.

Now, for a pleasant hour over puzzles. Here are the new ones promised. Answers must be mailed not later than next Monday. Doubtless you all know what a rebus is; many of you have worked out secular puzzles of this kind; if any of you have not, you are at liberty, as you are aware, to ask grown-up kinsfolk and friends to help you. We advise you, however, not to accept too much assistance. You do not get the greatest good from work that others do for you. The largest benefit to be derived from puzzles is the information acquired and habits formed in looking up answers. Nice as our prizes may be, they cannot equal the permanent value to character that comes through searching the Scriptures. But we do not want you to work too hard. If you do not win a prize one time, you may another. We will not tire of reading your letters, little friends. We are interested in every one of them, and proud of your painstaking work.

Competition No. 1
Picture Puzzles Nos. 1 and 2

These two pictures stand for places named in the Old Testament. Cut the pictures out, paste on one sheet of paper, write under each your answer in one word.

Competition No. 2.
Curious Questions

1. What musical instruments are mentioned in the Bible?
2. Who, according to the Old Testament, first used a saddle?
3. What man in the Bible wore a vail?
4. What, as told in Scripture, were the first temperance societies formed?

RULES. No competitor shall be over fourteen years of age. A reader may enter one or more competitions. They are quite distinct. But no reader may send in more than one attempt for each competition. There is no rule against asking the help of others, but each competitor must send in the answers in his or her own handwriting.

In Competition No. 1, answers must be written on one side of a sheet of paper under the puzzle pictures neatly pasted thereon—one word to each. Write your name, age and address clearly at the top.

In Competition No. 2, the competitor must answer as many of the questions as possible. The name, age and address must be written at the top of the first sheet of paper, and all the sheets must be numbered. The writing must be on only one side of each sheet of paper.

Picture Puzzle No. 1

What city in Palestine does this drawing stand for? Give the answer in one word. First, read the rules carefully.

Answers to all four questions must not be more than one hundred words inclusive.

Competition No. 1. The prize for the best answer to the picture puzzle will be a handsome silver watch, lady's or gentleman's. To the fifty readers sending the next best answers, we will give a beautiful book, bound in rich white vellum, with attractive decorations in green, red and gold.

PRIZES.

Competition No. 2. To the reader who sends in the best answers to the greatest number of questions, we will send a handsome silver watch, either lady's or gentleman's. Fifty consolation prizes of the beautiful book mentioned above will also be awarded.

All answers must be mailed not later than January 12, 1903.

Address, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, Little Folks Department, Bible House, New York.

. . .

Children, did you know that America is brimful of earnest little Bible students. We know it at this office. Out of the thousands of excellent answers received to our "Picture Problem" and "Curious Questions" of Dec. 10, it has required almost the wisdom of Solomon to select the two that are best, and the 100 next best.

Announcement of Prize-Winners
For December 10, 1902

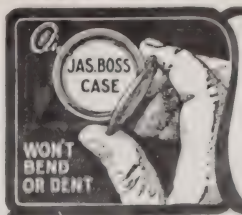
Our picture problem of Dec. 10, illustrated the reconciliation of Jacob and Esau. In our "Curious Questions," the answers are: 1. Jer. 36:22, and Amos 3:15. (To these some little readers added Judges 3:20, as proving by inference that the Jews had winter residences) . . . 2. "Trees for meat," that is nut and fruit trees. Deut. 20:19-20. 3. Isa. 3:18-23 . . . 4. The following different colored horses are referred to in Scripture: white, black, red, speckled, bay, grizzled, pale or ash-color, and "horses of fire." (To these the Revised Version adds "sorrel," which some little friends gave.) Owing to lack of space, we cannot publish the answers of prize-winners.

Paul E. Hubble, Va., who sent the best description of Scripture Problem No. 1, Competition No. 1; and Grace E. Logan, Penn., who sent the best answer to Curious Questions, Competition No. 2., will each receive a silver watch. The one hundred children named below will each receive a consolation prize, in the form of the beautiful book promised.

CONTINUED ON PAGE 18

Picture Puzzle No. 2

What mountain and desert of Palestine does this drawing stand for? Give the answer to this puzzle in one word—just the name. First, read the rules carefully.



WATCH PROTECTION

The Jas. Boss Stiffened Gold Watch Cases are an improvement on solid gold cases. They are stronger and won't bend or dent. Made of two layers of gold, with a layer of stiffening metal between, welded together into one solid sheet. The outside layer contains more gold than can be worn off in case in 25 years, the time for which a Jas. Boss Case is guaranteed.

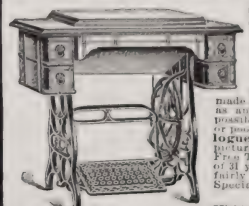
Jas. Boss Stiffened Gold Watch Cases are recognized as the standard by all jewelers. They are identical with solid gold cases in appearance and wear, but much lower in price. Don't accept any case said to be "just as good" as the Boss. Look for the Keystone trade-mark. Send for booklet.

The Keystone Watch Case Company, Philadelphia.

COSTS NOTHING TO TRY IT



$8.45

less cost of our "Competition" Drop Head Sewing Machine. It is a better piece than any piece of equal grade is or ever was sold for. For $8.45 we offer a strictly high grade, latest design drop head machine, equipped with latest improved attachments, high loop, full length shuttle, automatic tension release, self-threading, self-regulating, self-setting needle, etc. In fact the machine we guarantee to do as good or better work, to be as well made and finished and to give as long and satisfactory service as any machine on the market. A better machine cannot possibly be made, and agents get $40 or $50 for it in the cities or towns of 2000 inhabitants or more. Write for free Sewing Machine Catalogue L A, which gives complete descriptions and large pictures of our extensive line, also full particulars about our Free Trial Offer and Guarantee. Our 27 years' reputation of 27 years' standing is an assurance that we will treat you fairly and do exactly as we agree. Write today for the Special Sewing Machine Catalogue, sent free.

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.,
Michigan Avenue, Madison & Washington Streets, CHICAGO.

THE EQUITABLE

HENRY B. HYDE FOUNDER

STRONGEST IN THE WORLD

J. W. ALEXANDER
PRESIDENT

J. H. HYDE
VICE PRESIDENT

A GOOD RESOLUTION

for 1903 would be to save something from your income.

An Equitable Endowment policy will not only help you to save something during 1903, but will help you to save during every year for 15 or 20 years—and will assure your life in addition.

A resolution of this kind will not benefit you—or your family—unless it is carried out. If it is acted upon, the money you might waste will be saved.

If you would like to accustom yourself to saving something each year, fill out coupon below

(Vacancies in every State for men of character to act as representatives. Apply to Gage E. Tarbell, 2d Vice-Pres.)

THE EQUITABLE LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY.
120 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Dept. No. 60.

Please send me information regarding an Endowment for $..... if issued at..... years of age.

Name.....

Address.....

"Why waste time experimenting with other methods of House Lighting?" Consult the Page.

CLEVELAND HYDRO-CARBON LIGHT

BURNS 84% OF AIR AND 16% OF HYDRO-CARBON GAS.

EVERY LIGHT IS A COMPLETE GAS PLANT IN ITSELF.

Generating and Burning Its own Gas.

More light at less cost than any known system of lighting. For all houses wishing economical independence. Gives a steady white light, more brilliant than electricity and softer. Excels any town gas service; gas cannot escape. It gives ten times the light of a kerosene lamp at half the cost, with no smoke and no odor. Nothing to get out of order. No accident of any kind possible.

YOU CAN TEST BEFORE PAYING!

Knowing that if you give one of our lights a test you will at once recognize it as being far beyond anything in the line of home lighting, we will send you one of our Pendent Lights C. O. D., $4.00, express prepaid, with mantle, chimney and tinted porcelain shade, ready to light. Test it three nights and if not found satisfactory and most brilliant and inexpensive light you ever saw, return it to express agent, whom we instruct to refund your money and return light at our expense.

NOTE: If west of the Mississippi river enclose 50 cents for expressage. If west of Denver, $1.00.

A RARE CHANCE FOR AGENTS WRITE AT ONCE FOR TERRITORY

Write at once for our full description and instructions on the new system of Cleveland Lights.

THE CLEVELAND VAPOR LIGHT CO.,
1809 E. Madison Ave., - - - CLEVELAND, OHIO.

References: Colonial National Bank (Capital Stock, $2,000,000), Cleveland, Ohio.

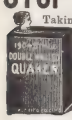
Write for particulars of our street lights, used in Chicago, Cleveland and other Cities

DREER'S
Garden Calendar
FREE

A revelation to all seed planters. Nothing so complete, practical and helpful, ever before issued; 208 pages of the most valuable information about Flower Seeds, Plants, Vegetable Seeds; richly and fully illustrated; four colored plates. FREE to all applicants who mention this paper.

HENRY A. DREER,
714 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

STOP TAKING MEDICINE



Taking drugs and nostrums. Your stomach is for food not "poisons." Cleanse your system by Nature's Drugless Method. Get into a Vapor Bath Cabinet, steam and sweat the poisons from the blood and system by opening the millions of skin pores, equalizing the circulation. Remove the load and Nature will do the rest. Astonishing are the results. 10 days' trial will surprise you. Physicians and best hospitals relieve acute, chronic cases by this method. Delightful bath for men, women and children. Harmless, exhilerating. Write for "New Book" just out FREE. Prices reduced. $5.00 Cabinet $3.50. $10.00 Cabinet $6.10. Catalogue free. Agents Wanted. Big Money. Address, WORLD MFG. CO., 673 World Bldg., CINCINNATI, O.

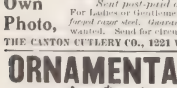
A Knife With Your Own Photo,

Lodge or other Emblem, Name and Address in a Transparent Indestructible Handle.

No. 273. Cut 1-2 size. - - - - Price $1.00.
With your own photos, - - - - - - $1.25.
Sent post-paid on receipt of price.
For ladies or gentlemen. 59 styles. Blades hand-forged razor steel. Guarantee with each knife. Agents wanted. Send for circulars and terms.

THE CANTON CUTLERY CO., 1221 W. Tenth St., Canton, Ohio

ORNAMENTAL FENCE



25 designs, all steel. Handsome, durable.—Cheaper than a wood fence. Special inducements to church and cemeteries. Catalogue free.
KOKOMO FENCE MACHINE CO., 445 North St., Kokomo, Indiana.

MARK THE GRAVE.

This headstone, 17 in high & 12 in wide, at this moment, 42 in. high, $11; same size different style, $11. Handsome marble monuments cheaper in proportion. Write for illustrated catalogue and prices before placing order. Save agents commissions. Send for Catalogue.
W. J. MOORE,
348 Third St.,
Sterling, Ill.

LAWN FENCE

Many designs. Cheapest and best. 32 page Catalogue free. Special Prices to Cemeteries and Churches. Agents wanted.
COILED SPRING FENCE CO., Box 11, Winchester, Ind.

ELECTRIC HANDY WAGONS,

Electric Wheel Co., Box 136, Quincy, Ills.

Training for Service*

How God Uses the Talents of His Servants Who Trust in His Help

APPEALS made to the younger members of a church to engage in Christian service, are often met by the reply that qualification for it is lacking. "I have no talent in that direction"; "I am not fit for the service"; "I am not sufficiently advanced in the Christian life to speak to others." With such replies, the minister is only too familiar. Sometimes they are made through laziness, but often they are really the expression of modesty and lack of self-confidence. It is remarkable that some of the most successful workers for Christ have, like Moses and Isaiah, felt their incapacity for the task to which God's providence is calling them. John Knox shrank from it so stubbornly, that only when he was publicly summoned before the congregation, would he consent to preach; yet, when he did enter the service, his success was phenomenal. It has been so with others, and it is easy to understand how one imbued with a true conception of the honor and dignity and responsibility of serving Christ, should feel that he is not fit for it.

It is such persons who need to take account of the many encouraging promises God makes to his people. Again and again he assures them, that if they earnestly and honestly make the effort to work for him, his Spirit will help them. The wisdom that they need, he gives to the earnest seekers; knowledge, and judgment or tact, he will supply, if they depend upon him. This does not imply that every Christian should be a preacher. There are many who are not called to that work; but it does imply that if any man undertakes the work nearest at hand, the work which needs to be done, help will be given. The essential at the beginning is dependence on God, and a willingness to be led by him. Where that is found all else is possible. After that, study, strenuous effort must be employed so that, as Paul said to Timothy, one may become "a workman who needeth not to be ashamed." God does not dispense with our talents nor our knowledge; he uses them and develops them. He deserves the best we can give, and no man should consider that time wasted which he spends in gaining knowledge of God's Word, or of books that can help him to a clearer understanding of it.

A Message from the Word†

The Promise of Power and Purity to Those Who Walk With God

WHO can tell what would be the culmination of a life spent from beginning to end in the constant enjoyment of God's loving presence? We know the effect of companionship with a refined person. How unconsciously the character becomes attuned to that of the friend. How the manner loses its harshness, the thoughts their crudity, the speech its coarseness, and the conduct its faults. Where there is respect and affection for some one better than ourselves, the character is sure to develop. Every one knows of men transformed by the influence of a refined wife; of girls redeemed from frivolity and vulgarity by the companionship of some noble woman. The power of character over character, where the friendship is close, is almost illimitable. What then must be the effect on the character of one who consciously lives in the presence of God? How it must purify thought and word and life! We do not know what Enoch was at the close of his long life on earth; but the inspired historian gives us a clue to the sublimity of his character, when he says, that after walking with God for so many years, "he was not, for God took him." It reads as if he was fit to enter the ineffable presence, even in human form. We say to ourselves, can a close walk with God have such an effect? We have seen a mother seize her boy, when he came bounding among the guests in her parlor, after playing in the stable and the mud of the street, and hurry him away to the bath, in vexation and chagrin. How like to that boy would some of us be, if we entered heaven as we are, polluted by sin and begrimed with evil.

What power, too, comes from that walk with God on earth. God can trust such a man, he knows him so well. His communion with God, his reverence, his faith, his love, that come from abiding with him, have so developed that God is assured his desires will be in harmony with his own, so thoroughly that he can promise him that whatsoever he asks shall be done for him. That is the greatest privilege ever offered to a human being. It would not be safe to put it in the power of some who bear Christ's name. The remains of sin cling, there is so much of evil in our desires, in our antagonisms to one another, in our ambitions and aspirations, that such power could not be entrusted to us with safety. But those who abide in him may be endowed with it and God confers it upon them. The honor and confidence it implies are almost inconceivable. To attain to such power there is only one way. The Divine nature which God implants, must have had free development; it must have been allowed to eliminate from our hearts the power of sin.

*Topic of The Christian Endeavor Society for Jan. 18. Acts 2: 17, 18; Prov. 2: 1-8; Mark 1: 16-20.

†Topic of the Epworth League for January 18. Jer. 15: 16; John 15: 7; Acts 20: 32.

Our Sunday Hour

WITH THE LITTLE FOLKS

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 17

Second best descriptions of Picture Problem 1. Competition 1. A. W. Hodgman, Minn.; Oliver Christianson, Kans.; Crill Merryday, Fla.; Albertus C. Van Raalte, Mich.; Olive M. Moore, Kans.; Herman Weigand, Ontario; Eli Davis, Ontario; Ellsworth W. Givens, Ill.; Edna Hester, Kans.; Imogene McKown, Cal.; Dale Newell, Ia.; Amanda Bellage, Tex.; Fred. Farrior, N. C.; Willie Bruce, Ontario; Ralph Matthews, Ill.; Mollie Lee Wylie, Tex.; Jas. Ezra Troth, Md.; Mary H. Vallentyne, Ontario; William A. Lamb, Ontario; Hattie A. Kearney, Me.; Laura M. Mathers, Calif.; Albert Reeder, Ill.; Mary Cooke, Miss.; Lizzie Pibus, Quebec.; Myrtle Hood, Conn.; Wayne Bosworth, Vt.; Worth Stewart, Minn.; Alice Jerauld, Pa.; Ethel J. Gardner, N. J.; Lula Dixon, N. C.; Addie Goheen, Ky.; Emma Latham, Montreal; Billie Walters, Tenn.; Howard C. Keiser, Ohio; Bert R. Peat, Mass.; Emma L. Martin, Tenn.; Jesse Edsall, Ind.; Mabel Lillian Jones, Washington, D. C.; Carobeth Tucker, Tex.; Abbie E. Shillo, Wash.; Walter F. Eisele, Ore.; Addie Robins, Mich.; Ernest L. Bachelder, Vt.; Stuart Gibson, Cal.; Eva M. Williams, Del.; Margaret A. Thomson, Mass.; Elsie Hull, Ia.; Eleanor M. Stevens, Pa.; Harold Guy Hilts, N. Y.; Florence M. Duel, N. Y.

Second best answers to "Curious Questions." Competition 2. Albertus C. Van Raalte, Mich.; Nancy E. Steadman, R. I.; Ruth Davenport, Wis.; Bertha I. Phillips, R. I.; M. Etta Sampson, New Brunswick; William James Foster, Vt.; Roscoe Nickerson, Me.; David Wallace, Pa.; Geo. Tolman, Neb.; Grady Sinclair, N. C.; Raymond C. Hopkins, R. I.; Bessie M. Weede, Kans.; Millard G. Gjerstad, Ia.; C. Garman Johnstown, Pa.; Lucile Wall, Ga., Addie Robbins, Mich.; Esther Carson, O.; Hettie Zeldenrust, Mich.; Dagias Stobets, N. Y. Annie E. Hood, Conn.; Franklin Brown, Toronto; E. Ray Gaines, Wash.; Rubie M. Miller, Vt.; Frank S. Niles, N. Y.; Maude E. Horting, Pa.; Wm. Hall, O.; Emma G. Richards, Ottawa; Glen Leslie Gebhardt, Kans.; Hope C. Pendleton, Mass.; Florence L. Benedict, N. Y.; Mattie Lee Wood, Ky.; Bessie Beel, N. Y.; Gladys Gore, Ill.; Eva S. Moore, Mo.; William Gardner, N. Y.; Henry Logan, Pa.; Ben. Palmer Davidson, La.; Anna E. Lippincott, N. J.; Marguerite Cassill, Ia.; Chester Parsons, Manitoba; Elva L. Wilson, Ind.; Elmer Warwick, British Columbia; Irene E. Kelley, West Va.; Neva V. Naramore, Washington, D. C.; Raymond E. Boulden, Mich.; Irma Bixby, Mich.; Lee Griffin, Fla.; Ruby M. Anderson, Minn.; Clara M. Andersson, Minn.; Lucretia Williams, Pa.

SMALL MONEY.

What a Quarter Did.

The person who uses the brain and nerves actively needs food to rebuild them and replace the waste, and should not rest on stimulants. Coffee excites these organs so they cannot get the necessary rest and nourishment and steadily tears them down, then other disorders follow.

"I am under a constant nervous strain as I have 52 girls under my care," writes a school teacher from Knoxville, Tenn.

"I suffered terribly with indigestion and nervousness in its worst form, and paid out hundreds of dollars in doctors' bills. Many of my friends advised me to quit coffee and use your Postum Food Coffee, and I tasted it once and it was something horrible. Some time later I met a friend who wished me to try a cup of Postum and her manner was so convincing that I finally tasted the Postum to please her. Great was my astonishment to find it so different from what I had drunk before and I immediately asked how the difference in taste was brought about and discovered it was simply that the first I had was only boiled a minute or two, whereas 15 minutes boiling brings out the delicious flavor and food value, so I determined to use Postum in the future, following the directions carefully, and have done so ever since.

"My indigestion has entirely left me, my nervousness gone, and I now feel bright and well after the most tiresome day in the schoolroom. A little 25-cent package of Postum did me more good than the hundreds of dollars I paid for doctors and medicines." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

All Seasons the same to

The Oldsmobile

The motor carriage that does not need to be stored for winter. A practical machine for everyday use. Ample protection afforded by a leather or rubber top and storm apron.

Every machine now leaving the factory is equipped with 1903 improvements. Simpler and stronger than ever. No complicated machinery.

Nothing to watch but the road.

Price $650 at Factory.

Call on any of our 58 Selling Agents or write for illustrated book to Dept. O.

Olds Motor Works
Detroit, Mich.

$45 TOLMAN RANGES $21.75

Great Foundry Sale

We ship range for examination without a cent in advance. If you like it pay $21.75 and freight and take range for

30 Days FREE Trial.

If not satisfactory we agree to refund your money. Tolman Ranges are made of best wrought steel, Oven 17½x21 in. Six 8 in. holes. Best bakers and roasters on earth. Burn anything. Asbestos lined flues.

Guaranteed 5 years.

Will save their cost in fuel in One Year. Write to-day for our new Catalogue.

JUDSON A. TOLMAN COMPANY,
Department R 17, 66 Lake Str. et, Chicago.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD
CENTRAL MISSISSIPPI VALLEY ROUTE

New Line.
Fine Service.

Minneapolis and St. Paul

BEGINNING NOVEMBER 2.

Fast "Limited" night train, with stateroom and open-section sleeping car, buffet-library car, and free reclining chair car through without change. Dining car service.

A. H. HANSON, G. P. A., - - CHICAGO.

Dr. Lyon's
PERFECT
Tooth Powder

Used by people of refinement for over a quarter of a century

PREPARED BY
J. W. Lyon, D.D.S.

CASH FOR YOUR

farm, home, business, or other property (no matter where located or how large or small) may be obtained through me. Send description, state price, and get full particulars free. Est'd 1896. Highest references. Offices in 14 cities, from Boston to San Francisco.

W. M. OSTRANDER
1417 N. A. Building, Philadelphia

This is the house the young couple saved and paid for in five years.

A Young Couple Were Married 5 Years Ago

He had a moderate salary. They started simply and saved. But they didn't skimp. They gave little dinners and heard the best lectures. In five years they had saved enough to pay for the house at the head of this page.

Another Young Couple Were Married, Too

They put by $7 a week, and the house at the bottom of this page is now theirs,—entirely paid for. A third young couple's income was $16 per week. They saved $8 of it, and bought and paid for the house at the bottom of this page.

How these and 97 others did it, step by step, dollar by dollar, is all told in the great series, "How We Saved For a Home,"—100 articles by 100 people who saved for and now own their own homes on an Average Salary of $15 a Week: None Higher Than $30

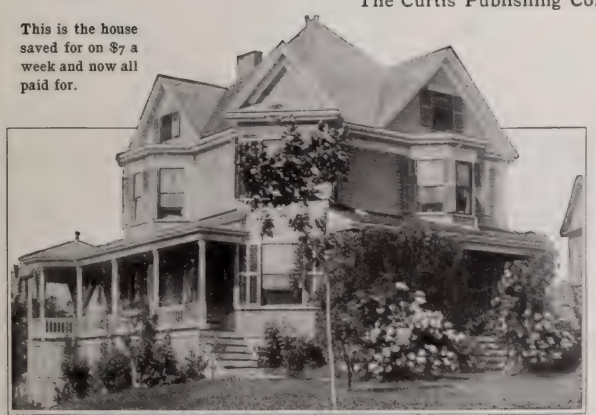
This great series will run for an entire year in

THE LADIES' HOME JOURNAL

For ONE DOLLAR, for a year's subscription, you get the whole series.

The Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia, Pa.

This is the house saved for on $7 a week and now all paid for.



This is the house paid for out of a salary of $16 per week, saving $8.

GEMS FROM NEW BOOKS

Some Homely Virtues*

IAN MACLAREN, has written a little book of essays on The Homely Virtues. One might call them, commonsense sermons. Here are one or two extracts.

THOROUGHNESS—The reason why men fail is, in five cases out of six, not through want of influence, or brains, or opportunity, or good guidance, but because they are slack; and the reason why certain men with few advantages succeed, is that they are diligent, concentrated, persevering and conscientious—because, in fact, they are thorough.

KINDNESS—Might we not resolve that every day we will do at least one act of kindness to some neighbor. Let us write a letter in such terms that the post will bring pleasure next day to some house; make a call just to let a friend know that he has been in our heart; give a young man, starting in business, some bit of work to encourage him in his first year; send a gift on someone's birthday, or on his marriage day, or on Christmas Day, or on any day we can invent. Let us make children glad with things which they long for and cannot obtain. And a thousand other things which we could do within a year if we had eyes to see and a heart to feel, and had the will to take some trouble.

THRIFT—Justice is seldom done to the thrifty, and a great deal more than justice is done to the thriftless. Will people never understand that whether we live simply or extravagantly, whether we pay our debts at once or after several years, whether we use the gifts God has given us for selfish or noble ends, is really a moral question? The thriftless nation, the thriftless family, the thriftless person has broken one of the laws, both of nature and of Christ.

COURTESY—One resents keenly that class of people who are honest and well meaning, but who are persistently discourteous and are not ashamed—I mean the man who is credited with what is called a bluff, blunt manner, and who credits himself with a special quality of downrightness and straightforwardness. He considers it far better to say what he thinks, and boasts that he never minces his words, and people make all kinds of excuses for him, and rather talk as if he were a very fine fellow, beside whom civil-spoken persons are little better than hypocrites. As a matter of fact, no one can calculate the pain this outspoken gentleman causes in a single day both in his family and outside. Nor have I ever been able to understand why he is praised, or even tolerated, and why he is not sharply dealt with as an offender against the social peace.

"His bark," it is said, "is worse than his bite," and one hopes it may be, but I do not see what consolation it is for me, when this ill-mannered person barks at my heels, that he has not also bitten me. I object to his barking, and if he persists, I am justified in using a stick.

* The Homely Virtues, by Ian Maclaren. Dodd, Mead & Co., New York. Price $1.

BOOKS RECEIVED

Elsie's Winter Trip, by Martha Finley. A good book for family reading. Dodd, Mead & Co., New York. Price 85 cents.

The Evolution of a Girl's Ideal, by Clara E. Laughlin. Fleming H. Revell Company, New York. Price 50 cents.

The East of To-Day and To-Morrow, by Bishop H. C. Potter. Pp. 196. Price $1. Published by The Century Co., New York.

Talks to Students on the Art of Study, by Frank Cramer. Pp. 309. Published by The Hoffman Edwards Co., San Francisco.

Gentle Reader. Ethics for Young People, by Emma L. Bullock. Pp. 160. Price 75 cts. Published by Marsh Bros., Lebanon, O.

The Church and its Social Mission, by John Marshall Lang, D.D. Pp. 304. Price $1.00. Published by Thomas Whittaker, New York.

The Doomed Turk: The End of the Eastern Question, by E. Michelson. Pp. 182. Published by The Abbey Press, 4 Fifth avenue, New York.

James Chalmers: His Autobiography and Letters, by Richard Lovett, M.A. With Portrait, Maps and Pictures. Pp. 510. Price $2.50. Published by The Fleming H. Revell Co., New York.

In the Wyoming Valley, by Everett T. Tomlinson. An exciting and thoroughly interesting book for young people. The Griffith and Rowland Press, Philadelphia. Price $1.25.

Mosaics from India: Talks about India, its Peoples, Religions and Customs, by Margaret B. Denning. Pp. 256. Price $1.25. Published by The Fleming H. Revell Company, New York, Chicago and Toronto.

Four Pearls from the Lord's Treasury, or Precept, Promise, Prayer and Praise, from the Holy Scriptures for each day of the year; a little booklet that is designed to be a closet companion. Price, 15 cents, or $1.50 per dozen. M. E. Munson, publisher, Bible House, N. Y.

Young People's Songs of Praise, especially adapted for use in Young People's Societies, Church Services, Prayer Meetings, Sunday Schools and the Home Circle, compiled and arranged by Ira D. Sankey. An admirable selection of hymns. The Biglow & Main Co., New York and Chicago. Price $25.00 per 100.

The Negro in Revelation, in History and in Citizenship. A book which reviews the progress of the race, from the earliest times, in all lines of human achievement, by Rev. J. J. Pipkin. Pp. 401, copiously illustrated, cloth binding. N. D. Thompson Publishing Co., St. Louis, New York and Chicago, publishers.

An Unknown Benefactor

His Liberal Gift Sent on its Mission to Many Lands, Through "The Christian Herald"

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD received, on the morning of Monday, December 22, an unregistered letter, mailed in Oregon, containing a number of crisp, new bills, and a little anonymous slip, asking that the money be distributed in the following manner:

Salvation Army Colony Work	$500
Foreign Missions	100
For the relief of destitution	90
	$690

In the afternoon of the day on which the money was received by THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, it mailed the following payments on account of the gift:

Commander Booth-Tucker, Salvation Army	$500
J. G. Hallimond, for the relief of the poor and destitute on the East Side	90
Rev. Gerard A. Bailly, 419 Apartado el Correo, Caracas, Venezuela, S. A.	10
James H. Dickson, Tillipally, Jaffna, Ceylon	10
Francis M. Price, Guam, Ladrone Islands	10
Dr. Levi B. Salmans, Guanajuato, Mexico	10
James D. Taylor, Esidumbini, Upper Tongaat, via Natal, So. Africa	10
Rev. Walter T. Currie, Cisambia, care of Cassa Hollandeza, Benguella, Africa	10
Rev. Henry Loomis, American Mission, Japan	10
Rev. John Paton, D.D., Aniwa, New Hebrides	10
Rev. Z. Charles Beals, Wuhu, China	10
Rev. Reginald J. Young, Santos, Brazil, S. A.	10
Total	$690

In addition, there was $100 designated for subscriptions to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, for four families, for which THE CHRISTIAN HERALD extends to the unknown donor its sincerest thanks. We will also gladly furnish the donor with a list of the families who were supplied with THE CHRISTIAN HERALD on account of this gift.

FED THE PROFESSOR.

This One Had "Dreams More Terrible Than Visions of 'The Comet.'"

You must feed the professors and teachers right or they can't do justice to pupils. They should, of all people, possess a healthy nervous and mental organization. The teacher with weak nerves cannot obtain as good results as the one who has a perfect mental poise.

"It had been for me a most difficult problem," said a professor connected with a prominent college of the South, "how to keep the nerves in proper condition and the brain in good working order. Lack of proper opportunity to take exercise, an irregular diet and improper food brought on a general breakdown in health. I became irritable and restless, and at night would dream of more terrible things than any of Dr. Holmes' visions of 'The Comet.'

Upon the suggestion of a friend, who is a busy business man, I commenced to eat Grape-Nuts every day, and found in a short time a great improvement in my health; the food contained just the right kind of nourishment for my body and brain that was lacking. The restlessness disappeared, my stomach ceased to trouble me, mental vigor returned, and I am now able to do more and better work than ever before.

When friends express surprise to find me so well, it is necessary only to mention the merits of Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

The more we make,
The better they take—Growing better with every bake—

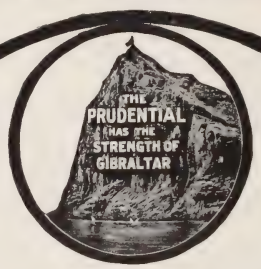
Uneeda Biscuit

In the In-er-seal Package.

5¢

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY



You Sign Your Name

and you pay the first premium on a Life Insurance Policy. Only a slight formality, but think what it may mean to your family or yourself in the future.

Write for Information, Dept. 70

The Prudential

Insurance Company of America

JOHN F. DRYDEN, President.
HOME OFFICE, Newark, N. J.

Everything for the Garden

Is the title of Our New Catalogue for 1903—the most superb and instructive horticultural publication of the day—190 pages—700 engravings—8 superb colored plates of vegetables and flowers.

To give this Catalogue the largest possible distribution, we make the following liberal offer:

Every Empty Envelope
Counts as Cash.

To every one who will state where this advertisement was seen, and who incloses 10 Cents (in stamps), we will mail the Catalogue, and also send free of charge, our famous 50-Cent "Henderson" Collection of seeds, containing one packet each of Sweet Peas, Large Mixed Hybrids; Pansies, Giant Fancy Mixed; Asters, Giant Victoria Mixed; Big Boston Lettuce; Early Ruby Tomato and Cardinal Radish, in a coupon envelope, which, when emptied and returned, will be accepted as a 25-cent cash payment on any order of goods selected from Catalogue to the amount of $1.00 and upward.

PETER HENDERSON & CO.,

35 & 37 Cortlandt Street, New York.

Silverware

I prefer PEARLINE to other soap powders. I like it for dishwashing better than soap; it keeps the silver bright.

Mrs. Rev. H. B. M

One of the Millions. 689

One Year's Music Free

We will ship a Cornish Piano or a Cornish Organ anywhere upon the distinct understanding that if it is not entirely as represented after twelve months' use, we will take it back and pay carriage both ways—

This is the CORNISH PLAN

Our large souvenir catalogue explains our unique method fully—it will be sent free to anybody upon request. With the catalogue we present four embossed pianos in miniature—the most costly advertisement ever offered to the public. Write to-day.

PIANOS $155 AND UP ORGANS $25 AND UP

CORNISH CO., Washington, N. J.

We Will Pay On Your Savings 5%

No Speculation — Business Established 10 Years — Under State Banking Department Supervision

THE INDUSTRIAL SAVINGS AND LOAN CO. is thoroughly responsible and has always lived up to its agreements. Our depositors, many of the most prominent clergymen and professional men in the country, heartily endorse our methods.

Accounts of Conservative Depositors Solicited, Upon Which We Will Pay 5 Per Cent. per Annum.

Deposits may be made or withdrawn at any time, and bear earnings for every day invested. Full particulars sent upon request.

Paid-In Capital, $1,000,000; Assets, $1,600,000; Surplus, $185,000.

INDUSTRIAL SAVINGS AND LOAN CO.
1131 Broadway, New York

Joy for Jotters Dixon's Pencils

Write for illustrated booklet V free.

JOSEPH DIXON CRUCIBLE CO., Jersey City, N. J.

Will Carleton's Magazine EVERY WHERE

Edited and conducted by WILL CARLETON Author of "Farm Ballads," "Farm Legends," "City Ballads," etc., etc.

New poems by Mr. Carleton in every number. Contributions from other well-known writers. Ten complete departments. Handsomely illustrated. The price is 50c. a year. 10c. for a trial of 4 months. Address

Every Where Publishing Co. Dept. J. Brooklyn, N. Y.

Agents Wanted in Every Town and City.

Are You Deaf?

We have 25 KINDS OF INSTRUMENTS TO ASSIST HEARING Sent on approval. Write for catalogue.

WM. V. WILLIS & CO. 134 South 11th Street, Philadelphia

Song-Writers and Poets. A SUCCESSFUL SONG WILL MAKE YOU RICH. We write music to your words, arrange compositions and publish. Groom Music Co., Steinway Hall, Chicago.

WEDDING INVITATIONS, Announcements, Calling Cards, and Monogram Stationery Engraved in the latest styles. Finest work. Write for samples and prices ELITE ENGRAVING CO., N.E. Cor. 13th & Arch, Philadelphia.

DEGREE BIBLE COURSE by mail. Students in every state. For free catalogue, write C. J. BURTON, President Iowa Christian College, Oskaloosa, Iowa.

QUAINT PSALMS for QUEER FOLK

By Rev. C. H. Yatman

PSALM XLIX
The Resurrection Psalm

1. Hear this, all ye people; give ear all ye inhabitants of the world
2. Both low and high, rich and poor, together.
3. My mouth shall speak of wisdom; and the meditation of my heart shall be of understanding.
15. But God will redeem my soul from the power of the grave; for he shall receive me. Selah.

"HEAR, YE PEOPLE"

It must be a mighty theme, even for a Psalmist, to call such a congregation as this Psalm opens with, "Hear this, all ye people; give ear, all ye inhabitants of the world." If the dead of sea and soil are to come forth, then Redemption's full story is worthy of hearing by the whole world.

"They that have done good come forth unto a resurrection of life, and they that have done evil, unto a resurrection of damnation." John 5 and Revelations 20 will yet be true.

PSALM L
True Worship Psalm

14. Offer unto God thanksgiving; and pay thy vows unto the Most High:
15. And call upon me in the day of trouble: I will deliver thee, and thou shalt glorify me.
16. But unto the wicked God saith, What hast thou to do to declare my statutes, or that thou shouldest take my covenant in thy mouth?

"TO THE MOST HIGH"

Formalists and ritualists and worshipers without heart get an awful lesson here, and it is straight from God himself. It is the opening chapter of Isaiah repeated. Worship of God that has not, back of it, and in it, and following it, Christ-like living, will get not the blessing of God but his curse. In dealing with Jehovah, the lip and life must agree.

PSALM LI
The Prodigal's Psalm

1. Have mercy upon me, O God, according to thy lovingkindness: according unto the multitude of thy tender mercies blot out my transgressions.
2. Wash me thoroughly from mine iniquity, and cleanse me from my sin.
3. For I acknowledge my transgressions: and my sin is ever before me.

. . .

This is David's best work. It is more kingly than his kingship, more victorious than Goliah's head, more truly royal than his princely robes. It is the companion piece in painting with the Prodigal Son.

"HAVE MERCY"

No sinner who ever makes this prayer from his heart will be lost. Of the seven penitential Psalms, this one is the greatest. This should be a marked page in every Bible, not marked with ink or pencil, but marked with a changed life.

PSALM LII
Psalm for Deceitful People

1. Why boasteth thou thyself in mischief, O mighty man?
2. Thy tongue deviseth mischiefs; like a sharp razor, working deceitfully.
3. Thou lovest evil more than good; and lying rather than to speak righteousness.

"WHY BOASTEST THOU?"

Sinner and saint stand out in strong contrast in this Psalm. Six verses for the liar, three for the man of truth. The deceiver plucked up and rooted out, the righteous like an olive tree in the house of God. It is the old story written on sacred page and human heart alike—hell for a Judas, heaven for a John. "And all liars shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone"

THE SATURDAY EVENING POST
FIVE CENTS THE COPY
An Illustrated Weekly Magazine Founded A. D. 1728 by Benj. Franklin to which the following men contribute:-
HON. GROVER CLEVELAND
HON. ALBERT J. BEVERIDGE
HON. CHARLES E. SMITH
OWEN WISTER
F. HOPKINSON SMITH
RUDYARD KIPLING

☛ February 1st the subscription price of THE SATURDAY EVENING POST will be doubled. It will be better and larger. We shall double its value and give you more of it for your money.

Until FEBRUARY 1st you can have it a whole year—52 weeks—

FOR ONLY ONE DOLLAR

After Feb. 1st the price will be $2.00 per year.

Has been regularly published for 174 years, and now has a paid circulation of more than 400,000 copies weekly.

Save a dollar now by sending a dollar TO-DAY, for the oldest, strongest and best weekly magazine. Handsomely printed and illustrated.

THE CURTIS PUBLISHING COMPANY
PHILADELPHIA, PA

DON'T

decide on the new hymn book for your Sunday School until you have seen either

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SONGS OF PRAISE or GEMS OF SONG,

Both new, and 25 cents each.

Returnable copies for examination mailed free.

THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., New York & Chicago.

LORD'S PRAYER

Bangle Ring. Smallest Ever Coined. Or any Initial engraved Free. Rolled Gold. Warranted 3 years. Send Size. Be for either or Before both.

YOKES Mfg. Co., 46 Western Av., COVINGTON, KY.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS. UNLIKE OTHER BELLS SWEETER, MORE DURABLE, LOWER PRICE. OUR FREE CATALOGUE TELLS WHY. Write to Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., Cincinnati, O.

ENTERTAINMENTS

For CHURCHES and SUNDAY SCHOOLS

Finest Magic Lanterns, Stereopticons and views; all prices. Full particulars in our magazine, book, free. McALLISTER, Mfg. Optician, 49 Nassau St., N. Y.

MISSOURI 5% INVESTMENTS. Let the seed you sow. WM. R. COMPTON, Farm Mortgages. 5 Wardell Bldg., Warren, Mo.

SHORTHAND. Students of the Christian Herald Shorthand Inst. "Shorthand Instructor," 25c.; "Reasons why" free. ISAAC PITMAN & SONS, 33 Union Sq., New York.

ONE YEAR'S FREE TRIAL

Kenwood ORGANS $21.75 to $78.50

Shipped on approval anywhere in the U. S. NO MONEY IN ADVANCE. Guaranteed for 25 years.

Magnificent exclusive designs unexcelled and unexcelled tone. Kenwood Majestic Grand, as illustrated, a masterpiece of organ building, $48.75. Hundreds to one. Testimonials from every state. Send for our big illustrated

Piano and Organ Catalogue FREE

The renowned Kenwood Pianos and Organs cost less than half what dealers and agents charge for inferior makes.

Cash Buyers' Union, Dept. O-13 Chicago.

GRAY HAIR RESTORED

"WALNUTTA" HAIR STAIN

is prepared from the nuts of the butternut tree. Restores gray hair, and prevents falling. Stimulates. Fades or Bleaches Hair. Imparts brown Beautiful Moustache to the youngest. Gives instantaneously. Comes and Washes from Light Brown to Black. Does not wash off or rub off. Contains no poisonous ingredients, and is not sticky or greasy. "Walnutta" Hair Stain will give more satisfactory results on gray hair than all the hair restorers and dyes sold by druggists. Price 60 cents a bottle, postpaid. If your druggist does not keep it, send 1 sample bottle postpaid for 20c.

PACIFIC TRADING CO., Dist. Office 66, St. Louis, Mo.

ANNIVERSARY RING.

1903 SOUVENIR.

$1 Solid Silver Ring for 10c.

This ANNIVERSARY and SOUVENIR RING of 1903 we warrant 925-1000 solid sterling silver, worth one dollar each. To introduce our great new 1903 illustrated catalogue of Jewelry and Novelties, we will send one sample for TEN Cents in silver or postage stamps. Send piece of paper size of ring wanted. Address

LYNN & CO., 48 Bond Street, New York.

Right or wrong chimney makes or unmakes a lamp.

MACBETH.

My name on every "right" one.

If you'll send your address, I'll send you the Index to Lamps and their Chimneys, to tell you what number to get for your lamp.

MACBETH, Pittsburgh.

200 Egg Incubator
For $12.80

The simplest, most perfect incubator made in the world. This is a new one at a remarkably low price. It is an enlargement of the famous and made as thoroughly good as any incubator on the market. It will hatch every fertile egg, and stand up to regular usage as well as the most costly.

WOODEN HEN

Write for free catalogue with 14 colored views.

GEO. H. STAHL, Quincy, Ill.

HOGS ARE HIGHER!

Get ready for the boom by breeding now. We send a sample pair of our Famous O.I.C. Hogs on time and give agency to first applicant.

Two of these weighed 2806 lbs. HOGS

Write today.

L. B. SILVER CO.
347 Hog Bldg. Cleveland, O.

A MAN SAVED

BY USING A FOLDING SAWING MACHINE.

One man can saw more wood with it than two in any other way and does it easier. 9 CORDS IN 10 HOURS. Saws any wood on any ground. Saws trees down. Catalog free. First order secures agency.

RUNS EASY
So Backache weighs only 41 lbs.
EASILY CARRIED

Folding Sawing Mach. Co., 55 N. Jefferson St., Chicago, Ill.

RELIABLE

is a word that stands for the best Incubators and Brooders in the world. Each has special distinguishing features. Send 10c postage for Book No. 19, just out, giving guaranty of money back if incubator is not satisfactory.

110 Yards Fine Poultry.

Reliable Incubator and Brooder Co., Box B 16 Quincy, Illinois.

$9.50 FOR 200 EGG SIZE $5.50 FOR 140 EGG SIZE

THESE ARE ALL ONE BANTAM INCUBATOR

OVER 100,000 PATRONS IN USE AND 30 DAYS TRIAL

SELF REGULATING

CATALOGUE AND PREMIUM LIST FREE

BUCKEYE INCUBATOR CO. SPRINGFIELD OHIO.

SHOEMAKER'S POULTRY BOOK ON and Almanac for 1903, contains 200 large pages, handsomely illustrated. Beautiful colored plates, true to life. It tells all about all kinds of fowls, their care, etc. All about INCUBATORS AND BROODERS and how to operate them. You can't well afford to be without it. Only 15 cts. C. C. SHOEMAKER, Box 516, Freeport, Ill.

The Greider Strains, fifty of them, are bred to make prize-winners. Very low prices on birds and eggs, considering quality. Elegant 1903 catalogue sent postpaid for 10 cents. Write to-day.

B. H. GREIDER, RHEEMS, PA.

"The Breed That Lays is the Breed That Pays."

Single Comb WHITE LEGHORNS are the greatest layers known. Supply your table with fresh eggs all the year round. Write for illustrated catalog free.

WHITE LEGHORN POULTRY YARDS, Box C. Waterville, N. Y.

DON'T SET HENS the same old way while a 200 Egg Natural Hen Incubator Costs But $5, otherwise equally as low. Over 10,000 now in use. Enthusiastic testimonials. Weighs 8 lbs. Our Patent protects against infringements. Agents wanted everywhere, either sex, no experience necessary. Catalogue and 25c Life Formula FREE if you write today.

NATURAL HEN INCUBATOR CO., Box Columbus, Nebraska.

APOSTOLIC PREACHING

The Method Adopted by Paul to Win Converts

BY MRS. M. BAXTER

SERMONS, as they are now known, the preacher taking a text, and a large amount of reasoning, argument or eloquence based upon it, were unknown in Paul's day. His teaching was the Word explaining itself. By the Word of God, i. e., the Old Testament, which Paul opened to the people at Thessalonica, by the Spirit, he alleged "that it behoved the Christ to suffer, and to rise again from the dead; and that this Jesus whom, said he, I proclaim unto you, is the Christ" (Acts 17: 1-3, R.V.). And the Thessalonians received "the word of the message not as the word of men," but as it is in truth, the Word of God. And those who believed "consorted with Paul and Silas." But these were not all Jews. Here as elsewhere there were many Greek and other proselytes; a great multitude of these were "devout Greeks," and not a few were of "the chief women" (1 Thess. 1: 4). This reminds us of Lydia and the Philippian women who gathered together for prayer, and it shows us how prominent a place women had in the introduction of the Gospel into Europe.

It was but three Sabbath days' ministry. But God would show to all succeeding ages what he could do in a short time by his own Scriptures, opened and applied by a man full of the Holy Ghost, and accompanied by three companions who prayed and believed. The effect was marvelous. Paul himself writes of it in his first Epistle to the Thessalonians: "Our Gospel came not unto you in word only, but also in power, and in the Holy Ghost, and in much assurance."

Disinterestedness in the lives of the preachers gave power to their words. No one could accuse them of self-interest; they gained nothing by it but souls for Christ, and sufferings for themselves. Thus they were samples of what Christ makes of those who believe in him and follow him in the path he trod. Men draw their conclusions far more from what we are than from what we say. The converts were numerous, but this was not all; it was not only quantity but quality. Ye became imitators of us and of the Lord." How? "Ye also suffered the same things of your own countrymen even as they did of the Jews." That these newly-made converts—none of them more than three weeks converted—should already have learned to suffer affliction with joy of the Holy Ghost, shows how radical, as well as how sudden the change of heart had been which had so transformed them. It was indeed newness of life (Rom. 6: 4).

And, so deep a root had the Gospel taken in their hearts that this church became the model church. Ye became an example to all that believe in Macedonia and Achaia (ver. 7); practically in the whole of Greece! The deeper a work of grace is, the more ready are the converts to win other souls to Christ.

Instead of being discouraged by their imprisonment at Philippi, the very fact of the mighty intervention of God on their behalf gave a new boldness to Paul, Silas, and their friends, and their converts resembled them. They had understood that they were saved to serve; and they did serve. They were not under the false impression which some have that they were saved to "enjoy religion." A higher purpose had been awakened in them by the higher standard which they saw in the lives of their teachers, and it was their joy, and their glory, to give up themselves and all they had, to serve a living and a true God, and to wait for the second coming of the Lord. They could wait for rest, and wait for reward, until the Lord should come, transform their bodies, and take them away to be with him.

The work was too intense and too great for the enemy of souls, "the prince of this world," to leave it unopposed. "The Jews, being moved with jealousy, took unto them certain idle fellows of the rabble, and gathering a crowd, set the city on an uproar," just as again and again has happened in China, when missionaries have lost their all, and often their lives. Assaulting the house of Jason, they sought to bring them forth to the people. And when they found them not, they dragged Jason and certain brethren—only just converted—before the rulers of the city, saying, "These that have turned the world upside down have come hither also." What a testimony! It is a religion that cannot turn the world upside down which is our disgrace at the present time.

The indictment against the new teachers was that they were dangerous to the government, "saying there is another king, one Jesus." It was a complete perversion of the truth, but God permitted it. The multitude and rulers were troubled; but nothing had been done against the law, and they were obliged to let go the few disciples, among whom were probably Luke and Timothy. What had become of Paul and Silas? The brethren, who must have securely hidden them, sent them away by night unto Berea. But they could do no other thing there than they had done at Thessalonica.

FREE

Two Pairs of Lambric Lace Curtains

like picture—furnish two windows; 60 inches wide, 3¼ yards long, for using a few minutes of your time.

No Money Required

All we ask is that you send us your name and address and allow us to send you on 30 days trial that retail at 25c each. Sell them to your friends, send us the money you get for them, and the curtains will be sent at once, express charges prepaid.

1 Dozen Hold-Fast Skirt Supporters

You take no risk—we take back any you do not sell. We offer over 100 premiums besides the curtains. Catalogue sent with each order. Over two million Hold-Fast Skirt Supporters have been sold by the ladies of the United States.

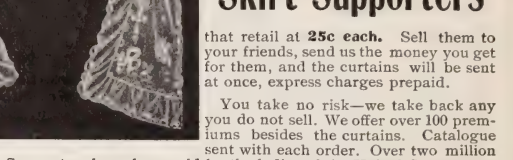
Every woman needs one. Send today and you will have these beautiful curtains in a few days. Be the first to order in your locality.

Also a bed set of two shams and lace spread to match—for selling one dozen.

THE COLVER CO., Dept. S, 811 Schiller Bldg., CHICAGO

LONG DISTANCE SINGLE BARREL SHOTGUN $4.35

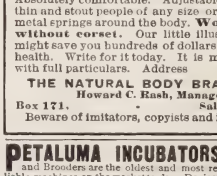
SEND US $1.00 deposit, state if the $4.25 or $4.85 guns is wanted, give length of barrel and gauge desired, and we will send this guaranteed long distance single barrel shotgun C.O.D., by express, subject to examination, you to pay the express agent the balance and express charges, after you find it perfectly satisfactory, otherwise we will refund your $1.00.



Breech loading, made with finest blued crucible rolled steel barrel, taper choke bored to size from the solid bar and bored for any nitro powder. Choice of 30 or 32-inch barrel in 12 gauge or 30-inch barrel in 16 gauge. GUARANTEED an accurate shooter, a sure killer at a long distance and absolutely the best gun in the world at anywhere near the price.

THIS FINE GUN is made by expert gun makers, every part and piece fitted perfect and reinforced so it cannot shoot loose or shaky, strong rigid steel frame built extra solid to withstand the use of any NITRO POWDER, breech loading, barrel of finest crucible rolled steel, taper choke bored to size from the solid bar, latest improved top snap and rebounding hammer, best quality steel works, extra strong spring, fine walnut stock, heavy rubber butt plate, full pistol grip, thoroughly tested for pattern, penetration and strength. For 50c. extra or $4.85 in all we will furnish the same gun with latest improved automatic shell ejector which throws shell out automatically, making it possible to reload and fire in rapid success. SPECIAL GUN CATALOG which contains ejector single barrel shotguns at $3.85 up, non ejector gun at $3.50 up, double barrel shotguns at $8.85 up and everything in rifles, revolvers, ammunition and sportsmen's goods at factory prices. JOHN M. SMYTH CO., 150-159 West Madison St., CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

THE NATURAL BODY BRACE



10 Years of Demonstrated Success.

TRIAL FREE

A delightful, certain and quick remedy for the peculiar ailments of women and girls.

Helpful to all women (not bedfast) whose health or strength is not good. Makes work easy and walking a pleasure. Simple in construction, Absolutely comfortable. Adjustable to fit both thin and stout people of any size or figure. No metal springs around the body. Worn with or without corset. Our little illustrated book might save you hundreds of dollars and years of health. Write for it today. It is mailed FREE with full particulars. Address

THE NATURAL BODY BRACE CO.,
Howard C. Rash, Manager,
Box 171, Salina, Kansas.
Beware of imitators, copyists and infringers.

PETALUMA INCUBATORS and Brooders are the oldest and most reliable machines on the market to-day. Devices purely automatic and sure. Catalogue FREE.

PETALUMA INCUBATOR CO.,
Box 64 Petaluma, Cal. Box 64 Indianapolis, Ind.

STARK TREES best by Test—78 Years
Largest Nursery
Fruit Book free. We want more salesmen PAY CASH Weekly
STARK BRO'S, Louisiana, Mo.; Dansville, N. Y.; Etc

DENT'S CORN GUM

REMOVES

CORNS-BUNIONS-WARTS.

Easy to apply. Does not spread. Gives almost immediate relief.

AT ALL DRUGGISTS 15 CTS., OR BY MAIL UPON RECEIPT OF PRICE

THE GENUINE IS IN TIN BOXES.

C. S. DENT & CO., DETROIT, MICH.

ROBINSON'S BATH CABINET

Guaranteed to Overcome Rheumatism.

Gives new life and vigor to every organ of the human body. Thousands of people are daily sufferers because they continue to clog the circulation with poison in place of eliminating the uric acid from the blood by Hot Air Baths. Every intelligent person ought to know by this time that heat is the only relief for disease.

Write for descriptive matter and special 1903 proposition.

Good inducements offered to reliable men and women on both commission and salary.

ROBINSON THERMAL BATH CO., 901-917 Jefferson St., Toledo, O.

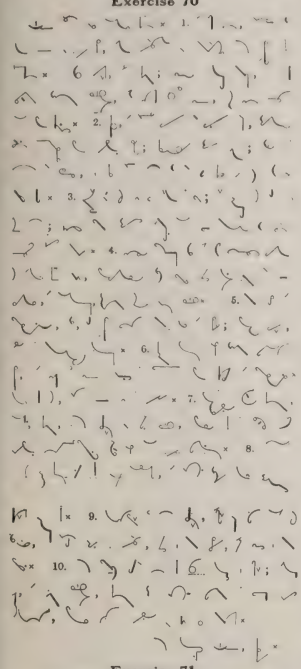
"East, West, Home is Best," if kept clean with SAPOLIO

OUR COMPLETE COURSE IN.... SHORTHAND Isaac Pitman's 20th Century Revision

By Special Arrangement with Isaac Pitman & Sons, 33 Union Square, N. Y.

LESSON XXVII

Exercise 70



Exercise 71

1. You-will-be interested when I-tell-you we-have-seen some-(of the) finest sights here, though you-must-not suppose we-have-seen them all. 2. It-is-said, and-we-think it-is-not improbable, that-they-will arrange excursions, so-that we-can climb at our-own convenience several (of the) mountain peaks. 3. This-is, of-course, very satisfactory, and-we hope to see them in-their beauty. 4. You-will-do well to-come, if-you-can; it-is an opportunity for climbing which-you-will hardly have again. 5. We-can arrange for-you, while you-are here, to-stay in our hotel; we-have abundant room. 6. In-this-way no-time will-be lost in going to-you, and-we-will see that-you-are pleasantly lodged. 7. If-you have a friend who-would-be willing to-come with you, and who-would-not object to climbing, you-cannot-do better-than bring him; it-would-be a great delight to us to-have his company; we-are pleased to see your friends. 8. I-have-seen-the guide, and-have sought his opinion about-the excursions. 9. He-thinks-the time chosen is most suitable, and for-this-reason alone that the atmosphere is very clear, he says that the trip is one which cannot fail to be pleasant. 10. Of course it is a great satisfaction to hear this, as it is the fact, I think, indeed, it must be admitted, that fogs and clouds do not add to the pleasures of such a trip, and the risk, as well as the toil, is greater. 11. Is it not so?; and has not the guide spoken correctly? 12. He is one who would not consciously mislead, and would be-the last to do so; we-have-not-the-slightest doubt he-would. 13. I-shall be greatly surprised, and I think many of us would be so too, if guides for their own ends, or in their own interest, gave bad advice. 14. This-is as-it-should-be; they have a reputation they-must maintain, and-I think I-shall be justified in the confidence I-have in what-is told me. 15. You-may think otherwise, but you-cannot deny—you-must admit—that he-was right in the readiness with which he-has acted when any of those in-his party have-been in danger; to him they owe their safety. 16. I did not think I should be called on to defend him, though I shall always do this, for I-feel it-is a duty I should do, when-it-seems needful. 17. I-do hope that-you-will see that, as it-is my duty, the task is one which-you-may assist, and with-which, or in-which, you-can feel sympathy. 18. I-shall, and I am-certain he-will be, gratified if it-should-be so; I-did-not suppose it-would-be. 19. To-them and to all who-have to-do with-it, as-well-as to-him, would-it prove a great delight when-it happened, and-it-is-certain to-do-so very soon.

REVIEW

1. What is Phraseography? 2. State the characteristics of a good phraseogram, and give a few illustrations. 3. How is ⟋ in some cases, employed in a phraseogram? 4. When logograms are united, which determines the position of the outline? 5. How may a logogram be written in relation to another word so as to indicate con or com? 6. In what way can there or their be added to curved logogram?

Punctuation, etc.

206. STOPS are written as usual, except the PERIOD, for which, as already explained, a small cross is used; thus, The HYPHEN is written thus, well-spoken; the DASH thus, The PARENTHESIS stroke should be made a little larger than a double-length upright consonant. In shorthand correspondence the sign may be used to indicate that the preceding sentence is to be taken humorously; and the NOTE OF INTERROGATION is better represented thus and the NOTE OF EXCLAMATION thus

207. ACCENT may be shown by writing a small cross close to the vowel of the accented syllable; thus, ar'rows, arose', renew'.

☞ The student having advanced to this stage, is now advised to read some book printed in the Corresponding Style of shorthand, and we would recommend for this purpose either of the following: Tales and Sketches, by Washington Irving, price 40 cents, or Self Culture, by John Stuart Blackie, price 40 cents. Either of these works will be sent post-paid on receipt of the amount by Isaac Pitman & Sons, 33 Union Square, New York. Lesson No. XXVIII. will appear in the issue of January 21, 1903.

FAIRY SOAP

A soap that agrees with the delicate skin of a child is sure to delight "grown ups." Such is FAIRY, a dainty, white, oval cake of floating soap purity.
With all its goodness FAIRY Soap sells for 5 cents.

THE N. K. FAIRBANK COMPANY, Dept. 70, Chicago.

Fairy Plate Calendar FREE! The most unique and artistic calendar of the year. We will send calendar free to any one who will forward full name and address with ten Oval Fairy Box Fronts, or 10 two-cent stamps.

1 of 100 Premiums

$10 PREMIUMS GIVEN AWAY WITH $10 ASSORTMENT

Of Laundry and Fine Toilet SOAPS and Perfumes. Our Premiums consist of Couches, Morris Chairs, Rocks, Tables, Desks, Stoves, Musical Instruments, etc. In fact, through the LOCKWOOD WAY you can furnish your entire home free. Send your name and address and we will mail you absolutely FREE our beautiful illustrated catalogue containing handsome and useful premiums, also full information in regard to our 30 days' FREE TRIAL offer.

LOCKWOOD SOAP CO., Department 13, KANSAS CITY, MO.

$225.00 IN EXTRA CASH PRIZES is distributed each month among our boys just as an extra incentive

ANY BOY who is willing to work after school hours on Friday and on Saturday can earn as much money as he wants. If he will write to us we will not only tell him how to do it but put him in the way of doing it. We want boys in every town to sell

THE SATURDAY EVENING POST

Thousands of boys all over the country are making many dollars weekly in this work. Some are making $10 to $15 a week regularly. No money required to begin. We furnish the first week's supply free. You can start next week if you write now.

If you will try it, write and we will send next week's supply of ten copies without charge, to be sold for five cents each, and everything necessary to start at once, including a booklet showing photographs and describing methods of our most successful boy agents.

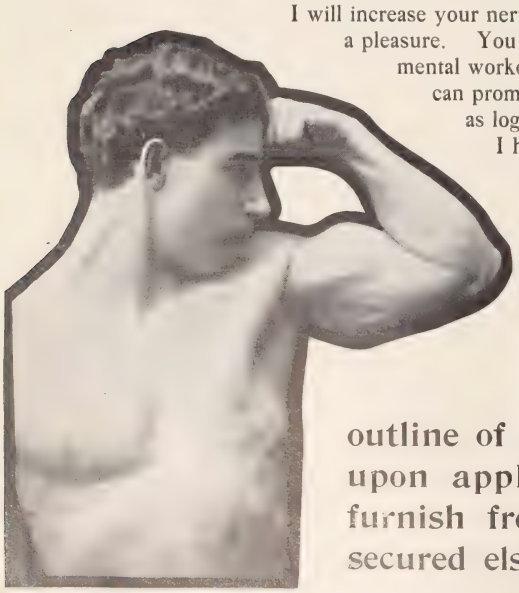
THE CURTIS PUBLISHING COMPANY, 403 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Penna.

WHEN I tell you that I teach a different kind of exercise, something new, more scientific, more rational, safer, and immeasurably superior to anything ever before devised, I am but repeating what thousands of prominent men and women are saying for me who have profited by my instructions.

If you are not convinced from my previous advertising that my system of Physiological Exercise will do all that I claim for it, the fault is in the advertising and not in the system itself.

What is so strong as the testimony of others?

Mr. J. Logan Jones, Vice-Pres. and Secy. of Jones Dry Goods Co., of Kansas City, Mo., after years of gradual but certain decline physically and mentally, had a complete collapse. It was impossible for him to sleep without medicine and he went without natural sleep for the period of about ten months. He tried the best physicians to be had, traveled almost constantly, being unable to remain long in one place; took hunting trips in Colorado and a sea-coast trip to Northern Maine, with no appreciable results. He had been constipated for sixteen or seventeen years and had to take physic constantly, never having a natural action. The following is an extract from a recent letter to me: "A little over ten months ago I took my first exercise from you, and under the circumstances consider the transformation a positive miracle. Will say that I am getting to be quite a giant. I weigh more than I have ever weighed in my life, and my muscular development is something wonderful. I sleep soundly, my digestion is good, constipation a matter of ancient history, and do more work than I ever did in my life and enjoy it all the time." What could be more convincing, and do you wonder that he is enthusiastic? I could name hundreds of others who have received similar results, but it would not make the system any better. But if you will follow my instructions for a few weeks I promise you such a superb muscular development and such a degree of vigorous health as to forever convince you that intelligent direction of muscular effort is just as essential to success in life as intelligent mental effort. No pupil of mine will need to digest his food with pepsin nor assist nature with a dose of physic. I will give you an appetite and a strong stomach to take care of it; a digestive system that will fill your veins with rich blood; a strong heart that will regulate circulation and improve assimilation; a pair of lungs that will purify your blood; a liver that will work as nature designed it should; a set of nerves that will keep you up to the standard of physical and mental energy. I will increase your nervous force and capacity for mental labor, making your daily work a pleasure. You will sleep as a man ought to sleep. You will start the day as a mental worker must who would get the best of which his brain is capable. I can promise you all of this because it is common-sense, rational, and just as logical as that study improves the intellect.



I have no book, no chart, no apparatus whatever. My System is for each individual; my instructions for you would be just as personal as if you were my only pupil. It is taught by mail only and with perfect success, requires but a few minutes' time in your own room just before retiring, and it is the only one which does not overtax the heart.

I SHALL be pleased to send you free valuable information and detailed outline of my system, its principles and effects, upon application. This information which I furnish free is very interesting and cannot be secured elsewhere at any price. Write at once.

ALOIS P. SWOBODA, 591 Unity, CHICAGO, ILL.

CHRISTIAN HERALD

SUBSCRIPTION, $1.50 PER ANNUM
Published 52 Times a Year

NEW YORK, JANUARY 14, 1903

VOL. 26 No. 2. PRICE 5 CENTS
Offices: Bible House, New York

SEE PAGE 31

The Venezuela Arbitration—Leading Members of The Hague Tribunal Who Will Decide the Case

1. Judge George Gray. 2. Chief-Justice Fuller. 3. John W. Griggs. 4. Prof. de Martens. 5. Baron Lambermont. 6. Count Apponyi. 7. Prof. H. Matzen. 8. T. M. C. Asser. 9. Edward Fry. 10. Duke of Tetuan. 11. Oscar S. Strauss (photo. by Aime Dupont). 12. Leon Bourgeois.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

D. C., Milan, Mich. In a young men's club, this question came up: "What was the rich man's name in the parable of Lazarus?" Is it mentioned anywhere?

The name is not given in Scripture, but in early Christian literature it is given as Dives, which is symbolical, like that of Lazarus. Chaucer writes of "Lazar and Dives," and Euthymius calls the rich man "Nimeusis," though that appellation seems to have been soon forgotten.

J. P. H., and several other readers, have written, stating that in the issue of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, which contained the article on "Great Revivals," the names under the portraits of Jacob Knapp and Peter Cartwright should have exchanged places. The misplacement of the names was a mechanical error, and we thank our friends for calling attention to it.

T. P. H., Philadelphia. 1. What does the word "world" imply? Does it include the earth, the sun, moon, stars and all the planets? 2. Has it been proved that any of the planets are inhabited, and, if so, would they be called worlds?

1. "World" simply means our own particular planet—the globe on which we live. 2. It has not been proved, and cannot be under the present limitations of human science, although it is held by scientists that some planets have atmosphere and vegetation not unlike our own, and are therefore capable of sustaining life.

Robert S., Camington, Ont., Can. If Eve had told Adam not to eat of the forbidden fruit, would he have obeyed her?

Nobody knows. That is one of the mysteries that must, we fear, remain forever unsolved. As she did not forbid him, however, it is useless to speculate upon what might have happened otherwise.

Ralph H. M. 1. Is Christianity consistent with ordinarily reputable business competition? 2. Should a press censorship be established to prevent the publication of the details of crimes and the like?

1. We believe that a successful business man can be a consistent Christian, if that is what you mean. Such a man will be honest in his dealings, truthful in his representations, and will not be guilty of sharp practice. He will be content with the legitimate profits of trade. 2. Publishing the details of crimes is certainly an evil; but a press censorship, once established, might speedily become a muzzle to prevent free utterances on matters of the highest public interest. We see how such a censorship operates in other countries, and we do not envy their experience.

V. L., Wampum, Pa. By whom and under what circumstance was the song, "I'll go where you want me to go," written? I mean what incident.

It is a consecration hymn, written on the occasion of the departure of missionaries, and set to music by Carrie E. Rounsefell. It can be found in the Biglow & Main collections.

F. M. S., Coopwood, Miss. What is the difference between faith and absolute determination?

The person who is absolutely determined to quit sin and lead a godly life may be supposed to be depending on his own strength. He is resolved to change his ways and to be a Christian. The person who exercises faith depends on the strength of Christ. He is convinced that he cannot change himself; he has learned from experience that good resolutions are apt to be broken, and he places himself in Christ's hands to be saved. He is sure that Christ is able to save him from punishment for past sins, and to keep him from falling into new sins. He is also sure that Christ is willing to save him and he trusts, not in his own resolves, but solely and only in Christ. The difference, you see, is radical.

R. H. W., Hot Springs, Ark. Give a description of the crown of England.

The old imperial crown, called St. Edward's crown, with which the act of coronation is performed, is, as described by Dyonne, in the Pageants and Ceremony of the Coronation, "of gold, and consists of two arches, crossing at the top, and rising from a rim or circlet of gold, over a cap of crimson velvet lined with white taffeta and turned up with ermine. The base of the arches on each side is covered by a cross. Between the crosses are four fleur-de-lis of gold, which rise out of the circle; the whole of these are splendidly enriched with pearls and precious stones. On the top, at the intersection of the arches, . . . are a mound and cross of gold, the latter encircled with a fillet, the former richly jeweled and adorned with three pearls."

L. E. S., Boston, Mass. Is it true that the United States differ from other countries in having more men than women in the population?

According to the census of 1900, the males numbered 39,059,242; the females, 37,241,145, showing a majority of males of 1,815,097. In Great Britain and other European countries there are more females than males. The difference with us is probably largely due to the fact that more men than women come as immigrants from foreign lands.

R. C. H., Grand Rapids, Mich. Kindly give the nationality of "Parson Brownlow," of Civil War times, and his denominational affiliation.

William Gannaway Brownlow, or the "Parson Brownlow," born in Wythe Co., Va., in 1805, was an itinerant Methodist preacher, who, in 1838, took so lively an interest in politics as to win the pseudonym of the "Fighting Parson." He was opposed to secession, but persistently advocated slavery. From 1848-61, he was editor of the Knoxville Whig. He was imprisoned once for his convictions, then released and sent North, where he made a lecturing tour through prominent cities. In 1864, he returned to Tennessee, and was twice elected Governor; in 1869, he went to the United States Senate; after his term expired, he returned to Knoxville, purchased a controlling interest in his old newspaper, and edited it until he died in 1877.

H. R. G., Lexington, Ky. What is the leading dairy State in the Union?

By the census of 1890, it was Iowa. The census of 1900 places New York ahead, with 100,000 more dairy cows, yielding 130 more gallons of milk per cow. Nearly 800,000,000 gallons, representing some $55,000,000, was the lacteal output of the Empire State for the fiscal year 1899-1900. Forty million pounds of butter and over 100,000,000 pounds of cheese were produced. On June 1, 1900, there were over 1,500,000 milk cows in the State.

Mrs. S. A. Carswell, Charlestown, Okla., writes:

Please allow me, through your columns, to thank those who have sent literature, cards, etc., in reply to our appeal of November 5. The response has been so hearty and generous, that not only our Sunday School, but many other homes will be reached by the bright, attractive papers, and much good done.

D. L. S., Avon Park, Fla. What, in your opinion, will be the total paid attendance at the St. Louis World's Fair? Do you think it will be twice that of the Chicago World's Fair?

Those who are officially connected with the arrangements seem to be confident that it will be a success. As to a comparison of figures, it would be the merest speculation. The St. Louis managers will have the advantage of the experience of Chicago and Buffalo, and will therefore know what to avoid and what to cultivate, to make success the more certain.

M. C., Greensburg, Ky. "Uncle Sam" and "Columbia" both personify the United States. Do they represent different ideas or things?

Certainly. "Uncle Sam" typifies the practical, masculine, managing, "Yankee" ideal of our country, full of hard, shrewd common sense, good humor, honesty, independence, self-reliance and kindly feeling. "Columbia" is the sublimated type, poetical and feminine. We have "Uncle Sam" and "Columbia," as Great Britain has "John Bull" and "Britannia."

A. H., Bedford, N. Y. Are we under obligations to forgive seven times over a person who has wronged us, when that person shows no sign of repentance?

Our duty is to cultivate a forgiving disposition. There is no doubt that when the wrongdoer repents, we ought to forgive him, even though it be seventy times seven times that he has offended. Toward the hardened offender who does not repent, we ought to feel more pity than animosity. It may be that for his own sake, forgiveness should be withheld. It is good for some men that they should be taught by a sharp lesson that they must not misbehave. But under all that, the Christian ought to exercise a kindly feeling toward the wrongdoer, ought not to be vindictive, and should be ready to forgive when he shows contrition. We believe that God loves the sinner while hating his sin, and we should try to be like him in that. We, who have done so much for which we hope God will forgive us, can surely afford to forgive those who have injured us. The man who has done the injury and is not penitent is in the greater need of forgiveness, though he is not entitled to it. We should pity him.

Mrs. M. Turner. You will find the hymn in question among the "paraphrases" in the old Scottish Bibles. It begins:

'Twas on that night when doomed to know
The eager rage of every foe;
That night on which He was betrayed—
The Saviour of the world took bread—

H. R. S., Keokuk, Ia. Would a man be committing a sin in marrying a fallen girl, who is willing and anxious to quit her evil life and promises to be a true and faithful wife?

There would be no sin in such a marriage. It would be prudent, however, to find out, as far as possible, whether the girl is really repentant. A mere disgust for the life and a desire to quit it, is not sufficient ground for hope of reformation. If a situation could be obtained for her, in which she would have an opportunity of earning a living in a virtuous way, and she conducted herself properly for a time, there would be less risk in marriage with her. The only real basis for hope of her reformation, however, is in her conversion, and until that takes place, there is always the possibility of a relapse into old habits.

D. H. K., Port Townsend, Wash. Would it not be possible for parents to so train their children in dependence on God, that their conversion would be unnecessary? If the children have always been Christ's followers, would there be any need of a new birth?

We believe that Christ's statement, "Ye must be born again," applies to every human being. The most carefully trained child needs it. It is true that there are many so good by nature and training, that they pass through the process almost unconsciously. They do not go through the sorrow and anxiety and distress that precede conversion in the case of people who have led openly wicked lives. They come to God as to a Father, and having learned to love him from their earliest years, they are changed imperceptibly into his image. But, none the less, the change takes place, and the child yields itself by a definite act to Christ as a Saviour. These are beautiful characters, and they have reason to thank God for giving them parents so good and wise. They are, however, very rare. The best trained child is often conscious of having lied, or committed other sins which need to be forgiven, and of having a nature that is prone to sin, which needs to be changed by the Holy Spirit.

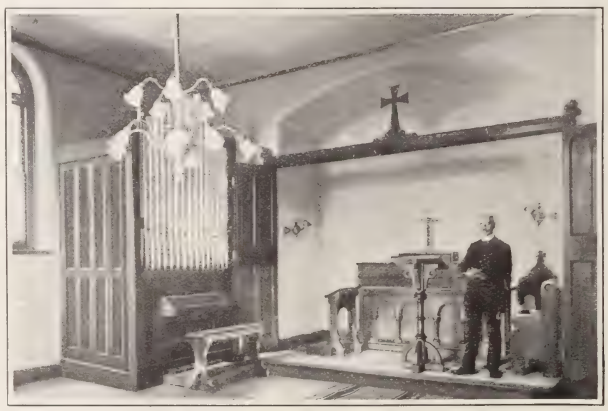
David K., Russell, Okla. Thirty-five years ago, and again in 1889, I traveled up and down the Red Sea. During an excursion on the land to the east of it, in company with a party of friends, I visited certain wells, about fifteen miles south of Suez, which we were told were the wells of Moses. Can it be possible that these wells were dug by Moses or by his orders during the wandering?

It would be difficult to trace the origin at this late day; but there is strong ground for crediting the tradition. In Numbers 21:16-18, menion is made of the princes and nobles of the people having dug a well "by direction of the lawgiver." As they dug a well on that occasion, they may have dug others at other stopping places. A well in the desert is so valuable to public utility that it would be sure to be treasured and preserved by succeeding generations. In Oriental lands there are no such changes in the scene as we witness, but things remain much as they were in ancient times. Abraham's well, which antedated those of Moses by five hundred years, is still in existence, so that it is quite possible the wells you saw may have been dug by order of Moses.

R. W., Toronto, Can., sends us some verses with this excellent illustration:

One little word for Jesus—
None knew what strength it took
To oppose the crowd
Who talked so loud,
With sneering laugh and look.

Reader, Colorado Springs. A man should vote as his conscience dictates, and always for what he believes to be the best interests of the community.



THE PROTESTANT CHAPEL IN THE NEW TOMBS PRISON, NEW YORK

In the old Tombs Prison, which was opened in 1838, there was no chapel into which adult prisoners could be invited for service on the Lord's Day. In the new prison, just opened, a neat and attractive chapel has been provided for the Protestant worshipers. For many years, the society known as "The Gospel Mission to the Tombs" has maintained regular religious services in the prison on Sundays. At the consecration of the new Chapel, Chaplain Munro conducted the service, Rev. Dr. Terry, Bishop Sabin, and other clergymen taking part. All the services are simple and evangelical in character. The new chapel will accommodate about one hundred and twenty worshipers.

From Bishop J. C. Sharp

DR. KLOPSCH—DEAR FRIEND:—As a new subscriber, I am desirous of informing you that your premiums with THE CHRISTIAN HERALD are worthy of all the praise they will receive in many homes. The Red Letter Bible is beautiful in its completeness, and the "Family Art Gallery" is worthy of a place among the home treasures.

Indianapolis, Ind. J. C. SHARP.

Freighted With Good Things

DEAR DR. KLOPSCH:—For the premium, The Speaking Oak, freighted with only that which is beautiful, instructive, elevating and wholly satisfying; the "Family Art Gallery," a rare and most generous gift; the calendar, with its dainty and suggestive decorations; and for numerous previous favors, we desire to express our gratitude. Of the pictures, Schenck's "Lost in the Storm" strongly appeals to me; yet, if I consider the merits of the nine, I can scarcely say of the tenth—this alone is my choice; but I can unhesitatingly say, that of publications of its class with which I am familiar, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, with its ever prevailing "good will toward men," is my unqualified choice.

E. Springfield, Pa. MRS. L. M. STRONG.

NEW YORK, JANUARY 14, 1903

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD

AN ILLUSTRATED FAMILY MAGAZINE

"ICE CREAM" PEOPLE OF ST. CROIX THE PORT OF ST. THOMAS CHARCOAL BURNER A FRUIT SELLER

A VISIT TO THE DANISH WEST INDIES

By CHAPLAIN C. Q. WRIGHT, U. S. Navy

TWENTY-SEVEN thousand dollars per square mile was the price that Denmark refused for her West Indian Islands, notwithstanding the fact that they should, by right, be classed as "abandoned farm" property. Furthermore, it now appears that her title to one of the islands may not be clear, as I was informed that during the recent negotiations, France had intimated that she might bring forward a "historic claim" to St. Croix, so long owned and finally abandoned by the Knights of Malta. A significant reminder of this ancient Gallic predominance in these parts, is the fact that the Roman Church throughout these islands is still called the French Church; and that a considerable part of the colored population speaks a French patois, though the common language of this region is English. All the negroes are frequently spoken of as "creole."

The recent decision of the Danish home government to retain her West Indian possessions, caused even more surprise in Christiansted and Frederiksted and Charlotte Amalia, than in New York, Denver and Washington, and, I think, more disappointment. Perhaps I should explain that the three first-named places are towns, and the only ones, in the Danish West Indies—the two former in St. Croix and the latter in St. Thomas.

But the promise of a readjustment of relations with, and an improvement of the conditions of her colonies by Denmark, has had a marked effect upon the people I talked with during a recent visit to the islands, when I met many of the leading business men and officials.

Our wide-awake Consul, Hon. Mr. Van Horn, thought the sentiment of the masses overwhelmingly "Pro sale." He also said there was great inconvenience being experienced by all classes from the scantiness of the local currency. (The currency is purely local, no Danish money being used in the colonies.)

Doubtless it is a matter of much surprise to the average visitor, to find so few Danes here—none, speaking comparatively, except officials and soldiers. This may help account for the fact that I found, in several instances, the same man holding several offices. Usually, I believe, there are not enough offices to go 'round, but here, it seems, men run short, i.e., Danish men. With no Danish citizens (or few), nor language, nor customs, nor coin, nor trade, it is little wonder that there is so little national sentiment or attachment manifested among the masses. Undoubtedly, the recent agitation has very much quieted down within the last few weeks, and much is expected from the work of the Government Commission that is to be sent out, and of the new industrial enterprises starting up. It is said that the commission of four—all men of prominence in Denmark—will endeavor to revive the islands by reduction of administrative expenses, and a readjustment of relations with the mother country. They are expected to begin work by February 1. One of the commissioners, Chief Justice Rosenstand, was long a resident of the West Indies, and holds the confidence of the people there.

Besides the efforts of government to improve the situation, several private enterprises have sprung up that look to the same ends. One, known as the New Danish West India Company, proposing principally to run extensive lines of steamers to connect at both ends with a monthly main line to and from Copenhagen, is being exploited there and in the colonies, and more than one-fifth of the stock has been sold.

Some new industries talked of are: A plant for the evaporation of bananas, cattle-raising, trucking, pineapple and cocoa plantations, etc. At present, St. Croix is the only productive island, and only part of that is worked, as follows: In sugar, 16,478 acres; pastures, etc., 29,776 acres; waste, 4,926 acres; total, 51,180. Population, 20,000. St. Jan or St. Jans has a few dilapitated plantations, but St. Thomas raises nothing except a little truck and fruit. A small amount of charcoal is produced in the mountains. Charlotte Amalia has a population of ten thousand, and the rest of St. Thomas one thousand.

Beautiful for situation since long before the Danish occupation, in 1666, St. Thomas has enjoyed a just fame for cleanliness, good order and civility. Near the centre of the south side, bordering a beautiful deep harbor, lies Charlotte Amalia on three hills, called "Fore," "Main" and "Mizzen"—after the masts of the sailing craft that once created its wealth and importance. And it depends upon whether one fancies this imaginary ship of state to be headed west (towards the United States), or east (towards Denmark), as to just which is fore and which mizzen. The majority of the people appear of late to have been thinking of the easternmost as the mizzen. This and the main hill are crowned with ancient towers, called, respectively, "Fluebeard's" and "Blackbeard's" towers—gray, vine clad and picturesque.

The Governor, who divides his time equally between the two main islands, is appointed by the Crown, and assisted by a chief justice, appointed by the Crown, and a Colonial Council, four of whom are nominated by the Crown, and eleven elected by the people. At present there are about two hundred citizens of St. Thomas who are entitled to vote. The local or city government consists of the Upper Guardians, the Fire Commission and the Reconciling Court. The latter meets every Friday morning for the purpose of reconciliation; it is not a court of justice.

Drunkenness has increased among the poorer class, and is more noticeable among the women than the men. It was explained that the government had been very liberal in granting licenses to any and all applicants regardless of location or character, so that saloons have multiplied, and most groceries have a grog bar attached.

Education is compulsory between the ages of six and thirteen, and the majority have the rudiments of useful learning. This department is in charge of Prof. Quin, F.R.G.S., who is a member of the Colonial Council, and editor of two papers in St. Croix. It is said his department is well conducted. There are several private schools of greater or less degrees of merit. The Moravians have a theological seminary at Nisky, "For the training of students intended for the Moravian church work throughout the West Indies." The English Church does some educational work in the towns.

In St. Croix live a number of the descendants of the Irish planters, and some of the old-time slave dealers (the latter now mostly poor)—all adhering to the Roman ("French") church.

I saw something of the pastoral methods of the Moravian ministers, one of whom drove me over the island of St. Croix, and invited me to preach in his large church in Frederiksted, where the audience was largely made up of colored folk, who all filed past the pulpit steps to skake hands with the minister and guest. Then, about nine P.M., we crossed the street to the manse where the venerable colored housekeeper served us with supper. In addition to arduous pastoral labors, and preaching almost daily, these Moravian ministers are also clerks, treasurers, and managers, for that is what their title of "Superintendent" actually means. They also administer simple remedies to their sick, some of them being excellent family physicians.

One good work done by the superintendent of Frederiksted is the free distribution of water to the poor. There are no streams nor springs in St. Croix, and all drinking water must be caught when it rains. Some seasons it rains little, and the best cisterns soon fail; but in all seasons, the small, defective cisterns of the poor are apt to be empty when the dry months are well on, and there is often much suffering in consequence. As the church roof was large enough to form a capital watershed, they dug a large cistern in the rear, and have

CONTINUED ON PAGE 29

DANISH WEST INDIAN NATIVES ON THE WAY TO MARKET

THE AMERICAN PULPIT

The World's Paramount Need

A Sermon by REV. CHARLES M. SHELDON, D.D.

MATT. 1: 21: "And thou shalt call his name Jesus; for he shall save his people from their sins"

WHAT do we need to be saved from more than from our sins? What does the whole world need to be saved from more than from its sins? No man can stand facing such a text as we have here, and face it thoughtfully, without feeling that the birth of Jesus Christ was more than an ordinary event. It was the one great event of the world's history, and ever will be, because of that fact. He was born to save us from our sins. It is true that great multitudes of people are thinking of Christ. It is also true, no doubt, that many of them are thinking of him in a vague, undefined way, without much personal feeling, not much more than they would feel towards any great person whose birthday was remembered. Shall it be our purpose to-day to think of Jesus in such a way that we shall never forget why, of all the persons born into the world, we owe the most to this one? How may we think of Jesus? What words may we use of him whenever we recall his name, or try to imitate his example?

We may think of Jesus as a King. He is a King. It is no empty title. We are singing true words when we sing, "Bring forth the royal diadem, and crown him Lord of all." Jesus is King. It is not an empty title. He sits on a throne. He has a kingdom. He has thousands of subjects. Thousands of the best men and women in the world have called him Master. Thousands have loyally followed him to death. No other king of earth ever commanded so many people in such a way. It is one of the astonishing facts of the world that this Person, who was brought up in a workingman's shop, who never owned a palace or an acre of land, to our knowledge, who had for his closest friends day laborers and sinners—this person was and is a King over the greatest territory ever conquered by any monarch—the human heart.

We may think of Jesus as a great Miracle Worker. For so he was. He healed the sick, he cleansed lepers, he opened blind eyes, he raised the dead. His birth was ushered in by angels, and his death was made significant by unusual manifestations. The supernatural was a familiar thing in his daily life. It is well for us to think of Jesus as the Miracle Worker.

Christ as Teacher

We may think of Jesus as the Teacher. How much do we owe him for his words? How much is the world indebted to him for his sayings? The instruction contained in the Gospels is invaluable. The world would lose the most important of all things out of its literature if what Jesus taught should be lost or forgotten. Jesus spake as never man spake. The greatest wisdom combined with the utmost authority marked his sayings. Truly we may say, "Lord, where shall we go? Thou hast the words of eternal life." No thought of Jesus is complete which leaves out the thought of the Teacher. The world still sits at his feet to learn. Statesmen and philosophers and learned men of all centuries have called him their superior. We may then think of Jesus as the supreme Teacher of the human race.

But while we may think of Jesus as the King and the Teacher and the Miracle Worker, I wish now to ask you all to think of him under another title. For there is one title that belongs to Jesus more than any other. It is the name which is the most prominent, by which he is best and most widely known, and you would speak it quickly if I were to ask you to say the word—it is the title of Saviour. Let us think of Jesus at this time as the Saviour of the world. For that is the meaning of the name "Jesus." "And thou shalt call his name Jesus, for it is he that shall save his people from their sins."

It is not irreverent for us to say that God knows what is the matter with the world better than any one else. It is not irreverent to say that he knows the best remedy for the troubles of the world. And it is certainly true that knowing both the trouble and the remedy, he should tell the world plainly what they were. He did so when he sent his only begotten Son into the world. Let us look briefly at two things which the world is apt to think are very important, and which it thinks must be discussed at great length in order to understand the causes of the world's unhappiness and trouble.

Sin Worse Than Poverty

Poverty. This is a condition which every one agrees is accompanied by great suffering and unhappiness: It is a condition in which men are miserable, dissatisfied, jealous and bitter. There are very many persons in the world to-day who really believe that lack of wealth is the great cause of the unhappiness of the world. If only every one had money and the comforts and luxury that money can buy, every one would be happy. There are persons here to-day who think that if their debts were paid, and they were free from the daily grind of poverty, they would be different persons, more agreeable, less anxious, more happy.

Now this is the way we look at it. Suppose it was true, that the world's greatest source of unhappiness was poverty. Then, supposing that God is more anxious than any one else to remove men's unhappiness, our text would have to read like this: "And ye shall call his name Jesus, for it is he that shall save his people from their poverty." But let us look at the world as God did when Jesus was born. He saw a world of unhappiness. He saw poverty everywhere. He saw misery. He saw discontent. He saw cruelty. He saw hatred. He saw tears, and heard wailing and anguish. And he said: "Poverty is not the cause of all this unhappiness in the world. It is not because men are not rich that they are miserable. It is because they are sinful. It is because their hearts are not right in my sight. And I know this to be so, because the rich are also miserable. It is not what men have that makes them happy. It is what they are. It is not what they don't have that makes them miserable. It is what they are not in the way of righteousness. It is not because they lack money that they are unhappy. It is because they lack love to me and to one another. Sin, that is the great, first, deep, underlying cause of all the world's wretchedness. Therefore I will send the world a Saviour, who shall save it not from its poverty, but from its sin."

To enter into this thought of God reverently, we may suppose he went on to say: "I know that a poor man may be happy if sin is removed, if he be saved from it he will be happy. And I know that a rich man may be happy if his sin is removed, if he is saved from it." And if God thought that before Jesus was born, his thought has certainly been proved to be true, for thousands of poor men have been saved from their sins by Jesus, and are happy men. Their poverty has been full of disagreeable things, but they have been happy men in spite of them, because the great cause of unhappiness has been removed. Is not the divine wisdom sufficient for the world's hardest problems? Does not God know what is the remedy for unhappiness?

REV. CHARLES M. SHELDON

Or, take another condition, which men have insisted was the great cause of unhappiness, namely, inequality. There are a great many persons who really think that the cause of the world's unhappiness is found in its inequality. Men grow discontented and wretched because they are envious of others who are greater than they are. They see great differences in ability, and their envy grows into hatred and class prejudice. This prejudice exists under all forms of government. It is found in republics as well as in monarchies. It is a constant source of trouble. "If we could only remove it," so say these men, "we would have a happy world." But how does God look at this matter? He sees that inequality is a constant fact among men. Some are great and some are small. Some talented, some without any special mental qualities. And he also sees that this fact is accompanied with unhappiness. Now, if God really believed that inequality was the world's great curse, and that it was the great cause of the world's unhappiness, he would act accordingly, and our text would have to read like this: "And ye shall call his name Jesus, for it is he that shall save his people from their inequality."

But God knew that inequality was not the cause of the world's trouble. The cause, the first, great, constant cause of unhappiness and trouble, is sin. Therefore he sent his only begotten Son into the world to save it from its sin. "Behold the Lamb of God," says John, "that taketh away (not the poverty, not the inequality), but the sin of the world."

Now if this is true, that the great cause of all the world's trouble is sin, and if it is true that Jesus came to save his people from their sins, the thought of Jesus may prove to be a thought so large that it shall compass the best and largest emotions we can ever know on earth. And among them we may note these:

God's Diagnosis of the World

God understands better than any one else what is the matter with the world. And the fact that he knows what the remedy is, ought to drive us joyfully into his presence continually. "If any man lack wisdom let him ask of God, who giveth to all men liberally and upbraideth not, and it shall be given him." Oh surely the nations ought to go to the divine source of wisdom to conduct a nation. Individuals need to go to the divine source for the only remedy that can cure their woes. Go into the great libraries to-day, and there is one shelf that is specially full of volumes on the one subject of "Economics," including its branches, "Political Economy," and "Sociology." And among the hundreds of books on that subject will be found theories respecting the causes of discontent and inequality and hard times and misery of various sorts, theories that in almost every case ignore the great first cause of all human unhappiness, that is, sin. Now God teaches us better. One book by the side of the hundreds on Economics teaches us better. That book is the Bible. And of all the volumes ever written on Sociology none ever yet began to go to the real cause, to the bottom of human trouble like the Bible. Why? Because it states again and again God's message to the world, that sin is the cause of all misery in nations or in individuals. God kept trying to impress this truth on the world until the fulness of time. Then in Jesus he stamped it deeper into the conscience of the world, that only through righteousness could happiness flow into and out of life. "And ye shall call his name Jesus, for he shall save his people from their sins." That is what they need to be saved from more than from anything else. That is the reason for their troubles. They need a Saviour. God knew what the world needed. Shall we learn that lesson to-day?

The sins of the world are more terrible than anything else. We know this is so, for Jesus was sent to save his people from their sins. And the love of God would surely have chosen the most terrible thing in the world as the one from which to rescue his people. It is impossible that Jesus could be sent into the world to save it from some little insignificant, trivial or unimportant trouble. So, we know that the sin of the world is more terrible than anything else.

Sin, the Source of Ill

What is worse than sin? Let us see if we can name anything. Sickness? It is a terrible thing to have a diseased or imperfect body. Life is robbed of a great part of its sweetness if the physical mechanism is broken or its beauty marred or its strength wasted. It is a terrible thing to be sick. But it is not so terrible as to be sinful. Who is there here to-day, strong, healthy man or woman, who would not choose to be an invalid for the rest of his days rather than spend the rest of his life in prison, because of some great sin committed against God or man? What man here would not be willing to give up his physical strength or beauty before he would commit a murder, or become a drunkard or a thief or a perjurer? What is the sickness of the body compared with the illness of the spirit? It was not an accident that Jesus said to the palsied man, "Son, thy sins are forgiven thee," before he had said a word to the man about his palsied body. What was the body compared with the soul in the body? It was more necessary that the man's sins be removed than his physical trouble. That is the way God speaks to us all. "Son, thy sins be forgiven thee." The most important first.

Poverty. This is a terrible thing, but it is not so terrible as sin. Who is there here this morning who is in debt and in trouble because of poverty who would be willing to grow rich at the cost of character? How many of you would commit a murder for a million or a hundred million dollars? Who is there who would be willing to steal or lie or lose his reputation if by doing so he could suddenly become rich? Think of all it would mean to you to be rid forever of the terrible grind of poverty, of its humiliations, of its constant harassing cares, of its bitter economies, of its sordid planning, of its continual reception of the contempt or scorn or indifference of a fashionable, fawning, but all-powerful society. Think of it, my friend! And as you think of Jesus Christ, is there one of you who would dare sell his soul for money? "What shall it profit a man to gain the whole world and forfeit his life? Or what shall a man give in exchange for his life?" Yes, poverty is a terrible thing, but sin is more so. Poverty is nothing compared with sin.

Or consider Death. That is a terrible thing. "Ah, me," says Ian Maclaren in Beside the Bonnie Briar Bush. "Ah, me! The thud of the spade on your mother's grave!" And the sight of your baby in its little white coffin. Truly death is a terrible thing. Yes. But is there a man here who would not a thousand times rather hear the thud of the spade on his mother's grave than see that mother alive and well but living a life of sin? Is there a young mother here to-day who would not a million times rather caress the dead face of her baby in its coffin than see it grow up into a drunkard or thief? How small a thing Death seems by the side of sin. How many of us would die a thousand cruel deaths sooner than live an impure life or deny our Lord. What terrors has Death compared with the stings and torments of Remorse? How insignificant his arrows by the side of outraged conscience or the fiery Hell of disobedience to God! I sometimes think Death is the least trouble men ever have. It is soon over. It is not terrible for the soul that believes in Jesus. "Be not afraid of them which kill the body," said Jesus. What is there to fear? But the sin? That which destroys soul and body. That is the terrible thing. We ought to have the habit of fearing sin more than we fear Death. Our faces ought to blanch and our hearts beat fast and our whole nature shudder in the presence of temptation to do evil. The messenger in that train which was held up lately between Kansas City and St. Louis, was so frightened at the thought of death that the reports said he was at first unable to speak aloud. What a vivid sense of the terrible nature of sin in all its horrible ghastly appearances! O, death, where is thy sting? The wages of sin is death! That is the death that knows no awaking. That is the most terrible destruction that a man can ever face.

Is there anything else that is more terrible than sin? Name the long list of terrible things. The things that are accompanied with unhappiness. Accidents, loss of reason, ingratitude from others, failure to realize our ambitions, disappointments over plans for great things we would like to do. Name everything, but still keep the soul unstained from sin and how insignificant are they all with sickness, poverty and death added? "And ye shall call his name Jesus, for it is he that shall save his people from their sins." The most awful thing that could ever touch a soul to disfigure it is removed by this Saviour. Is it any wonder that the world is at last going to be subject to Jesus? Is it any wonder that he is crowned already King of kings? Is it not a greater wonder that any of us can any longer refuse to call upon him for salvation? For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord, shall be saved from his sin. And there is nothing else you need to be saved from more than from your sin.

We can never be fully satisfied until we are saved from our sin. Everybody who is sane wants to be happy, satisfied. It has been said that the struggle on the part of the world to be happy is a selfish struggle. But certainly it would be a very strange world where everybody was struggling to be unhappy. It is true that the struggle to be happy at the expense of others, or while forgetting others, is a most intensely selfish thing, and very many people are trying to get happiness that way. We all know something about that, and we all know how useless it is to get happiness that way. But satisfaction, contentment, such as Paul had when he said, "I have learned in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content," the joy that goes with one through financial loss, and the breaking of earthly ambitions, and the sudden calamity, and the grievous illness, and the terrible death, this kind of satisfaction is not possible until you are saved from your sins.

There are some of you here to-day who are not fully satisfied. You are well, you have the physical comforts, you are surrounded by loving friends, you are trying to be happy. It is right you should. God's will for all the world is that it may be full of joy. But if you have dissatisfaction, if you do not feel that contentment which walks hand in hand with the Father, it is because you have not the peace of God's forgiveness in your soul. What saith the great prophet: "I create the fruit of the lips. Peace, peace to him that is far off, and to him that is near, saith the Lord: and I will heal him. But the wicked are like the troubled sea, when it cannot rest, whose waters cast up mire and dirt. There is no peace, saith my God, to the wicked" (Isa. 57: 19). I do not suppose that any one here is wicked in the sense that he has committed great crimes, and has awful guilt upon his soul. But the term wicked is a term that includes all those who are not at peace with God. You are all conscious of being saved from sin or not. There is no middle ground between salvation and not being saved. Even if you are indifferent, and don't care, that shows where you stand; the indifferent soul is not with God, he is against him. "He that is not with me is against me. And he that gathereth not with me scattereth abroad," said Jesus. Where do you stand? Are you able to say with positive joy "I know whom I have believed, and I am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day." "That day" when we shall all be judged for the deeds done in the body. "And ye shall call his name Jesus, for it is he that shall save his people from their sins." Do we all know that we are saved? Nothing else can make us truly happy. Nothing except that peace can make the world satisfied.

We owe Jesus more than we owe any other being. Suppose some great powerful friend should save you at a terrible risk. We know something of the affection we feel for the physician who by his skill saves from death. Many of you have myself with a swelling heart the time the doctor came to your home day and night, and saved the life of your child by his skill and his care. How do you feel towards that doctor? He has a high place in your regard. You feel towards him an affection particularly personal and tender. You will never forget him as long as you live.

Suppose some powerful friend should pay your debts, and relieve you of the pressure of a life long poverty. How would you feel towards such a friend? Supposing it were done in such a noble, generous spirit as to leave you free from all loss of self respect, your love and gratitude would certainly be very great. You would always remember that friend with feelings of heartfelt affection. He would be one of the two most loved of your intimate friendly circle.

Suppose death suddenly confronted you. And a powerful friend, at the risk of his own life, snatched you out of peril and saved you. How would you feel towards him? Would you not owe him a lifelong debt of gratitude? Would you not love him as long as you lived?

But Jesus Christ came to save you from a more terrible thing than sickness or poverty, or death. "And ye shall call his name Jesus, for it is he that shall save his people from their sins." What is your feeling towards Jesus? Don't you care much about it? What is the measure of your gratitude? How much do you owe him? He saves you not from physical weakness alone, but from spiritual death. Not from financial trouble, but from the loss of that riches of grace which to lose is to be lost eternally indeed. Not from the physical, fleshly death, which is a very small thing, but from the soul's destruction, which is death unspeakable. What do you owe to Jesus? It is a free gift. We never can buy salvation. Come without money and without price, because it cannot be bought. He shall save his people from their sins. The whole world groans and cries about because of its sins. It is not because our money is not the right kind, it is not because our system of government is at fault, it is not because we are physically sick, it is not because we are poor, it is not because we don't have the right kind of laws that we are in trouble. It is because we are sinners. It is because we are selfish. It is because we need to cry aloud: "God be merciful to us, for our hearts are not right in thy sight." But Jesus is a Saviour. He saves from sin. Therefore, the world owes him all. How can it ever pay? "The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit. A broken and a contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not despise" (Psalm 51: 17).

What shall we say to this great truth made vivid every time we think of Christ? Let us fall upon our faces before him, and give him our loyal and loving and repentant hearts. "For the wages of sin is death. But the free gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." Thanks be unto God for his unspeakable gift.

A VISIT TO THE DANISH WEST INDIES

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 27

BISHOP GREIDER
Moravian Church, D. W. I.

MAHLON VAN HORN
U. S. Consul, St. Thomas

DR. A. RUST
Consul of Sweden and Norway

een able to fill it every year since. The water is regularly issued at certain hours daily so any buckets per family, and several of the people spoke of what a blessing it had been o the town.

The good Bishop Greider, head of the Moravians in the West Indies, with church, residence and headquarters at St. Thomas, is a most amiable and able man, highly esteemed n his own church, and greatly honored by the entire community. He thought there was not much lay activity in any of the churches, except among the young women, who have several guilds and societies, such as King's Daughters, Dorcas Society, etc., and work among the poor and in the hospitals. He explained that most of the young men go off among the islands seeking employment, and many are in that way lost to the church and community.

The Y. M. C. A. has never been started in these colonies, but St. Thomas has a flourishing Mutual Improvement Society for men, meeting every Monday evening, and a well-supported Atheneum. About two-thirds of the people are regular attendants at church. Sunday observance is general, but it is the Danish Sunday. This appears to be one of the few things the Danes have impressed upon the islands. The Lord's Day begins at nine and ends at four—seven hours.

Mr. Van Horn, our efficient consul, is a colored man, and for twenty-five years was a Congregational minister in Rhode Island. He worships with the Dutch Reformed Church. He remarked upon the peculiarity of this curtailed Sunday, and upon their very strict observance of Good Friday and certain other church holidays, to which far more reverent attention appeared to be accorded. The consul also deplored the lax marital relations, and the large percentage of illegitimacy. But that he is far from being a pessimist, will be seen from the following statements written expressly for THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, in answer to the questions, "What is the religious, moral and industrial outlook, and what is the true sentiment of the people on the question of transfer to the United States?"

"We are suffering from the common business depression of the West Indies. The people, however, have bright hopes for the future. They are expecting great good from the opening of the Isthmian Canal in a commercial way. Religiously, the churches have a good influence over the people. In fact, the habits of the people are very much like the ordinary communities of the United States. All parents are particular to have their children baptized, and brought up as Christians.

"In reference to the great question of annexation, the masses of the people favor the United States. Like good, loyal citizens, when the Danish Parliament decided not to sell the islands, there was a general acquiescence, and a generally expressed desire that the mother country would assist them to self-help. No one is more heartily welcomed to this country than the American."

MORAVIAN CHURCH AND BISHOP'S HOUSE, ST. THOMAS

LYE IN PEASANT | IN A FINNISH FOREST | A NATIVE PASTOR READING THE BIBLE | A FINNISH MATRON

From Stereograph Photographs. Copyrighted 1898, by Underwood & Underwood, N. Y.

Famine's Work in Finland

400,000 Peasants in Direst Need — Aid From This Country will be Gladly Welcomed

IN every section of the United States, deep and genuine sympathy has been awakened by the publication in last week's issue of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD of the story of suffering Finland. That over 400,000 Finns were in actual want and liable to perish of starvation, was of itself a fact sufficiently appalling; but to the great multitude of American citizens of Scandinavian birth or descent it possessed a deeper and more tragic interest, and led to a desire to render help quickly to the sufferers.

More than one-sixth of the entire population of Finland is reported as destitute. In the present condition of affairs in Russia, where the government is already engaged in fighting one famine in Siberia and another in the central Russian provinces, there is hardly a prospect of adequate relief coming from that quarter, in time to save the multitude of Finns in the northern districts, who are threatened with extermination by hunger.

With famine raging in a Christian land, whose unfortunate people are totally unable to help themselves, it becomes the duty of other Christians to give every aid and comfort to the stricken ones. Throughout the Christmas time, while all the world was glad over the return of the joyous festival, the Finlanders have been fighting back starvation with hard, grim determination. In thousands of homes, the larders have long since been emptied of the last crust of food, and the household has been compelled, for the first time, to beg from the few more fortunate families in the neighborhood, enough meal or flour or dried fish to sustain life for a few days.

It has been a fight almost against hope from the start, last November, when the tooth of the hunger-wolf first began to be felt. How many have died in these intervening weeks cannot now be learned. When the revelation does come, it will very likely be one to excite world-wide pity.

As already stated in these columns last week, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD has been urged from many quarters to present the cause of Finland to American benevolence. Before doing so, it cabled to Count Bobrinsky, a high official in St. Petersburg, who replied by the cable, confirming the reports of the famine, and stating that American aid would be welcomed. A cablegram was also sent by the proprietor of this journal to the Mayor of Helsingfors, the capital of Finland, inquiring concerning the extent of the famine and the character of the aid required.

A Relief Committee of Lutheran pastors and business men in Finland will have charge of the relief operations, and all contributions from this country sent through THE CHRISTIAN HERALD will be forwarded to this Committee. It is believed that the wretched condition of the Finns will appeal powerfully to the humanity of the civilized world, and that generous help will be contributed toward their relief.

In the famine of 1867-68 in Finland, when the population of entire villages was wiped out and over 100,000 persons died of sheer hunger, the first foreshadowings of the visitation were not so ominous or so widespread as at present. It is feared that the mortality now will prove greater by far, unless the people are helped in time. They are a quiet, undemonstrative race, and would suffer in silence, even to the point of extinction, rather than personally appeal to the pity of the world. According to the St. Petersburg correspondent of the London Times, the Finnish peasants have, in many districts, for weeks past been using the bark of trees for food. This has been supplemented in some districts by unripe rye and barley, which was frost-spoiled and which even the animals refuse. Many have sold everything they possessed for food.

MARKET BOATS AT HELSINGFORS WHARF

The Viedomosti, a leading Russian newspaper, says, the frosts that killed the crops were followed by floods which swamped the fields, utterly destroying what little growing stuff remained. One schoolteacher wrote to the Viedomosti that in his village alone, over five hundred persons were in want.

Pastor Francis, of the Anglo-American Church of St. Petersburg, is making an effort to feed and clothe the schoolchildren of several Finnish parishes. He declares that the conditions to-day are far worse than those that prevailed in the famine of 1867.

Another account says, that so terrible is the dearth of vegetation, that even the birds have died by thousands in the forests. Horses turn at the "bitter bread" which the ravenous peasants welcome. It is made with barley husks and straw mixed with a little flour-dust; it has very little nutrition, and is absolutely unwholesome, yet it is eaten. So many of the poor have given everything away for food that they have been unable to provide winter clothing.

An appeal from Pnomussalmi, one of the famine provinces, says:

The rain prevented both the oats and the rye from producing sufficient for seed, and blight, and frost made even this almost useless. Many have sought to make bread from the rye. It is scarcely possible to believe that it is bread. It is quite green, and hardly holds together, and is so bitter that one cannot well swallow a morsel of it. Yet it is all many have to live on. And even this will not last many weeks. There are places where the people have not even such bread, but have to live on bread made from the bark of trees. With milk one might eat bark bread, but many have not this. They must kill their only cow. The failure of the hay harvest and the potato crop, has been followed by an almost entire failure of the oats and rye.

Those who have the opportunity of traveling in these parts and of visiting one of the little homes, and of seeing the sad faces of the mothers, and the white faces of the almost naked children, and of hearing their cries for bread, and seeing how many cry in vain, realize how great and how pressing is the need.

So sad a story of hunger and suffering needs no elaboration at our hands. It appeals with an eloquence that is irresistible to every sympathetic heart in America. By promptly sending your contribution to the relief fund, you may be the means, under God, of saving some poor, wretched family from perishing, and of bringing a gleam of hope into hearts that were filled with despair. In some of the stricken localities the dreaded "famine fever" has already appeared. Food, medicines and clothing must all be supplied to save these people. We trust that the responses of our readers will be prompt and liberal. All contributions should be addressed

FINLAND FAMINE FUND
THE CHRISTIAN HERALD
92 Bible House New York City and every contribution will be acknowledged in these columns.

A PRIMITIVE CHAIN-FERRY IN FINLAND

The "Prince of the Weeklies"

PROPRIETOR CHRISTIAN HERALD: The Red Letter Bible is all that one could desire in the way of a premium, in fact I think it is worth the price of the paper and itself together. You certainly do treat your subscribers in a liberal manner. We all like the "Family Art Gallery" pictures very much. If any preference is expressed, it is for the sheep in a storm; but all are greatly appreciated. Last, but not least, I am pleased to be enrolled as a subscriber of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. I consider it the prince of religious weeklies. NORMAN M. LEWTON
Portland, Ore. Office Secretary, Y. M. C. A.

The Red Letter Bible and THE CHRISTIAN HERALD one year, $3.00.

LADY CURZON DISTRIBUTING PRIZES | PROMINENT NATIVE PRINCES OF INDIA | THE STATE BARGE OF A MAHARAJAH

From Stereoscopic Photographs, Copyrighted, 1901, by Underwood and Underwood

INDIA'S GREAT DURBAR

An Imposing Pageant in the Historic City of Delhi

NEVER in the history of India has so significant and imposing a pageant been witnessed, as that which for two weeks past has been seen in Delhi. It is in a sense a duplication of the Coronation ceremony in London, in so far as it relates to India. The native princes of all British India, with the independent and semi-independent rulers of adjacent states, have come by special invitation to the historic heart of the nation to celebrate with pomp and magnificence the accession of King Edward VII. as Emperor of India. An evidence of the high importance of the ceremony, in the estimation of King Edward and his ministers, is given in the fact that he sent his brother, the Duke of Connaught, to represent him on the occasion. Lord Curzon, the Viceroy of India, had cherished the hope that the King would attend in person, and at one time it was considered probable that he would do so; but in view of the severe illness through which he has passed, his physicians peremptorily forbade his taking so long a journey. A large numbers of the British aristocracy of the highest rank were specially commissioned to take part in the ceremony, and they mingled with the native princes and added a strange element of European grandeur to the barbaric splendor of the titular rulers of India. Even in the bygone days of India's greatness, no such magnificent assembly could have been gathered.

On December 29, the high functionaries who were to take part in the grand ceremony made a state entry into Delhi. Lord and Lady Curzon, seated in a gold howdah on the back of a huge elephant richly caparisoned, led the procession. The bodyguard, riding black horses with leopard skins over the saddle, surrounded the elephant. Following came the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and the native princes with their retainers, also on elephants. Vast crowds of people from all parts of India lined the route through which the procession passed on its way to the encampment beyond the city walls, where the court, technically known as a Durbar, was held.

The culminating ceremony took place on January 1 in a great amphitheatre capable of accommodating twelve thousand persons. It was built in the shape of a horseshoe, in the inner recess of which was set the dais on which the Viceroy, his American wife (formerly Miss Leiter) and their court, and the Duke of Connaught, as representative of the Emperor of India, took their seats. On the seats around, the native princes were seated, according to their rank.

The amphitheatre was adorned by gilded cupolas, and was surrounded by batteries of artillery and squadrons of native cavalry. In the outer circle were great numbers of elephants apparently taking an intelligent interest in the pageant. The spectacle within the arena was most imposing and gorgeous. The Pathan chiefs and sirdars were resplendent in brilliant raiment. Soldiers, civilians and visitors from far distant countries were included among those within the amphitheatre. Upon the entrance of the veterans of the Indian mutiny there was tremendous enthusiasm, and as the arrivals marched to their places the bands played national airs. When the great amphitheatre was filled and the hour for the announcement drew near, the multitude within and without awaited expectantly the first act of the proclamation ceremony.

LADY CURZON, VICEREINE OF INDIA
(Formerly Miss Leiter, of Chicago)

A cable dispatch from Delhi to the New York Herald, thus describes the ceremony: "Alighting from his carriage, Lord Curzon mounted the dais to the throne, which was decorated with golden lions, and around which were placed massive silver footstools. The throne itself was surmounted by a canopy of white and gold. When the Viceroy reached the throne the national anthem was played and a salute of twenty-one guns was fired. When the spectators had resumed their seats after the anthem there was a flourish of trumpets from the heralds, and Major Maxwell, at the command of the Viceroy, read the proclamation opening the Durbar. The Royal standard was then raised, and the Imperial salute fired. The massed bands attached by flaming bonfires were started by the troops outside. And it was announced that King Edward was Emperor of India.

"There was another flourish of trumpets and Lord Curzon arose and stood for a moment impassive. Then, in impressive tones, he delivered a speech and read a message from King Edward. In his address the Viceroy announced the coronation of the King. He extolled the loyal India people and prophesied prosperity for the Indian Empire. He said also that it had been decided not to exact interest for three years on all loans made or guaranteed by the government of India to the native States in connection with the recent famine.

"In the King's message, His Majesty said that the Prince and Princess of Wales would shortly visit India. He regretted his absence from the Durbar, and sent his greetings to his Indian people. In conclusion King Edward said: 'I renew the assurances of my regard for the liberties of the Indian people; of my respect for their dignities and rights; of my interest in their advancement, and of my devotion to their welfare. These are the supreme aims and objects of my rule, which, under the blessing of Almighty God, will lead to the increasing prosperity of my India Empire, and to the greater happiness of its people.'

"As the Viceroy finished reading the King's words the assembled people broke into cheers for the King and Emperor. The cheering was taken up by the multitude outside the amphitheatre and was long sustained.

"There then followed the presentation of Indian Princes to the Viceroy and the Duke of Connaught and political officers paid homage to the sovereign. This ended the ceremony, and the royal cortege then left the arena, followed by the delegates from foreign powers and the Indian princes."

For two weeks the celebration continued, each day being marked by some central pageant. On one day the various orders of knighthood were entertained by the Viceroy. On another day the British troops were reviewed by the Duke of Connaught. On other days there were reviews of the native regiments. These, with social ceremonies, balls, presentations, polo matches, and entertainments of various kinds, filled the period with spectacles and amusements which will doubtless never be forgotten by any who took part in them.

AMERICA STANDS BY THE WORLD'S PEACE COURT

See Illustrations on 1st Page

NOW that the excitement over the Venezuelan controversy is somewhat abated, the wisdom of the course pursued by our government in insisting that the case be taken before the Hague Court of Arbitration, becomes more apparent. Our support of the Hague Court and its far-reaching jurisdiction, places arbitration once more where it was in 1898–99, as the leading topic of discussion in every cabinet in Europe. Official communications on the Venezuelan affair are now being exchanged between London, Rome, Berlin, Caracas and Washington, and the governments interested are preparing their respective cases for submission to the Hague Court. On the first page of this issue, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD gives the portraits of a group of the leading members of that court, who will listen to the arguments on the case and render decision. These portraits were procured by the New York Tribune, and we are indebted to the courtesy of that journal for permission to present them here.

The Hague Court of Arbitration had its origin in a suggestion of the Czar of Russia, who, in 1898, sent a "Peace Vote" or rescript, to the heads of the governments of civilized nations throughout the world. That note invited the attention of the various governments to the desirability of establishing an International Tribunal, before which all matters of dispute between the nations could be heard. After some preliminary correspondence, formal invitations were issued for a meeting of the representatives of all the nations interested, at the Hague, May 18, 1899.

Over thirty governments were represented. The United States had six representatives, namely, Hon. Andrew D. White, our Ambassador to Germany; Mr. Stanford Newell, our Minister at the Hague; Capt. Crozier and Capt. Mahan, of our army and navy, respectively; President Seth Low, of Columbia College, and Frederick W. Holls, a prominent New York lawyer. Other countries were represented by their ablest diplomats, jurists, and military and naval representatives. Russia sent Baron De Staal, who presided at the Conference; France, M. Bourgeois; England, Sir Julian Pauncefote; Germany, Count Von Muenster, and Austria, Count Welsusheime. A leading figure at the Conference was Baron De Bloch, the famous Russian financier, and author of several books showing the evils and wickedness of war and the social, industrial, and financial ruin in which it involves the nations.

. . .

The Peace Conference met in the beautiful building known as the "House in the Woods" (Huis t'en Bosch), near the Dutch capital. It is one of Queen Wilhelmina's most picturesque palaces. The sessions were at first short and progress was necessarily slow, many of the delegates being probably unable to comprehend the programme, which had for its object the subversion of much of the martial pomp and paraphernalia which ordinarily surround the throne, and which are usually supposed to make nations great.

It became clear, quite early in the Conference, that the time was not yet ripe for disarmament, and that the really important work to be done must be on the lines of arbitration. A Drafting Committee, representing

CONTINUED ON PAGE 32

Their Lives Spent in "God's Courts"

MANY GRAND EXAMPLES OF CONTINUOUS CHURCH ATTENDANCE AND LIFE-LONG CHRISTIAN ACTIVITIES

DURING the last few months, the question, "Is Church-going Declining?" has been widely discussed. Enemies of the Gospel have been loud in their claims that it is losing its power to draw the souls of men. On the other hand, actual statistics from reliable sources show that the decrease in attendance is apparent and not real, and that only in a few abnormally congested localities, which cannot be accepted as representing the whole country, is there any reason for solicitude, or urgent need of increased effort.

In the letters which we print on this page, there is much to inspire with enthusiasm every one who loves God's Holy Word, and who finds delight in attendance on the ordinances of religion. Surely a "cloud of witnesses," like these aged saints, who here testify to the blessing and satisfaction that have followed upon continuous attendance in God's house, should be an encouragement to the younger generation.

Sometime ago, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD invited its readers and their friends to send information of cases, within their own knowledge, of long and continuous church attendance. Answers came from many States, a very large number of them really remarkable, as giving instances of humble, consecrated lives spent in ceaseless activity for the Master—lives thoroughly devoted to his work, and caring nothing for worldly reward or recognition. They form a phalanx of the noblest object-lessons in Christian living, and as such we lay them before our readers:

Seventy Years Spent in God's Courts

I was born in 1815, and in 1832 I became a member of the Brandywine Manor Church, Chester, Pa. In 1841 I took my letter to Honeybrook Church; in 1844 to Churchtown, Lancaster County; in 1848 to Old Leacock Church, Lancaster County, and in 1852 to West Chester, Pa. I was a trustee in the West Chester Church for many years, and in 1872 was elected ruling elder, which office I still hold, being seventy years a member of the Presbyterian Church, thirty years a ruling elder and fifty years a continuous member of the West Chester Church, of which I am still a member and elder.

Coatsville, Pa. JOHN G. ROBINSON.

Six Remarkable Records in One Church

In our church records, I find the following who have been continuous members and attendants of Central Baptist Church, Southbridge:

Mrs. R. H. Cole, Bapt	1836,	66 years
Mrs. Dea Henry Fiske, Luth	1838,	60 "
Mrs. Geo. Freeman, Bapt	1848,	54 "
Mr. Hiram C. Wells, Luth	1852,	50 "
Mrs. Hiram C. Wells, Bapt	1855,	47 "
Dea. Adoniram Judson Coombs Bapt,	1855,	47 "

Southbridge, Mass. L. E. AMMIDOWN.

Still a Churchgoer at Ninety

Mrs. Louise Persons, of McGraw, Cortland County, N. Y., has been a member of the M. E. Church since 1831. Has been a member of three different churches of the same denomination of the third church since 1845, which gives her a total membership in the M. E. Church of seventy-one years. She was ninety-three years old October 10, 1902. Attends regularly the church of her choice every Sabbath morning. Is a lovely Christian character.

McGraw, N. Y. MRS. SUSIE HOLDEN.

Two Old Church-going Christians

In our Methodist Church at Heckston, we have an aged couple, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Robinson, who were both converted in 1845, and have been faithful church members ever since. For the last thirty years they have driven two and a half miles to church, and very often come twice on Sabbath.

Heckston, Pa. H. FROOM.

Sixty-four Years a Churchgoer

Mr. Stillman Holden has been a member of the First M. E. Church in McGraw, N. Y., for sixty-four years and five months, having joined in April, 1838. He will be ninety-three, if spared to see February 1, 1903. He is still a regular attendant at morning service.

READER.

A Venerable Saint's Record

William Belshaw is ninety-eight years of age. He is, and has been, a consistent and faithful member of the Baptist Church here since 1834, sixty-eight years, beginning his attendance upon its services in 1830, and continuing them steadily until 1899, a period of sixty-nine years. His memory is marvelous, repeating with me to-day the entire fifth chapter of Matthew, which he learned when a boy. He lives upon the same spot where he was born and expects to die. His trust in the Redeemer is firm and abiding.

Jordanville, N. Y. REV. EDWARD BELL.

Phenomenal Records From North Carolina

I send the following from the records of Organ Evangelical Lutheran Church, of Rowan County, N. C. Mrs. Maria Lippard became a member by transfer in 1832, and has been in regular connection ever since—seventy years. She is now ninety-four years old, and has not been able to attend for about five or six years. The following have been in constant attendance to the present time:

	Confirmed	Constant Attendance
Mr. George Troutman	1840,	62 years
Mr. Alex. Powlass,	1840,	62 "
Mrs. Maria Cruse	1844,	58 "
Mrs. Polly C. Kluttz	1845,	57 "
Mrs. Crissie C. Cruse	1851,	51 "
Mr. Alfred W. Kluttz	1853,	49 "
Mr. William Beaver	1853,	49 "
Mr. Eli Houlshouser	1853,	49 "
Mrs. Amy Fisher	1853,	49 "
Mrs. Rachel Cruse	1853,	49 "

Organ Church, N. C. GEORGE H COX.

Two Phenomenal Records

Two sisters in our Baptist Church—Mrs. Eliza Fenton, born in 1817, and Mrs. William Hurlburt, born 1819—were both baptized in 1850. Mrs. Fenton has been a constant attendant until the last three years. Mrs. Hurlburt still attends, saying she has "always found the way good to follow."

Morris, N. Y. MARY LITTLE.

Preached Over Half a Century

Rev. William Waith, Ph.D., is a fine, cultured gentlemen, an agreeable companion, who has endeared himself to many people. He is seventy-nine years old, straight as an arrow, in full vigor and recently performed the unusual feat, for a man of his age, of walking from Lancaster to Buffalo, a distance of eleven miles. He feels that he is good for at least ten years of hard work. In addition to his duties in Lancaster he has been for years the stated clerk of the Buffalo Presbytery, and last year the great Synod of New York State elected him its moderator at the Buffalo meeting. He has never been installed as pastor of the Lancaster church, but has been elected Stated Supply from year to year. He has now begun his fifty-second year. CONSTANT READER.

Buffalo, N. Y.

A Life-Long Worker

I commenced attending the M. E. Church in Herrick, Pa., about 1830, united about 1834, and was a regular attendant there twenty years. Then at Lenoxville I attended the church continuously for fifty-one years and seven months. Was licensed to exhort sixty-one years and eight months ago. Am now worshiping at the Lyon Street Church, and waiting for the summons to worship in the Temple "not made with hands."

Freso, Pa. A. CHURCHILL.

A Veteran's Faithful Service

I have been in the M. E. Church sixty years on the 18th of last August, more than fifty years of this time in the local ministry, and active all of these years excepting six months. I am now seventy-seven, and still teach in the Sunday School, lead prayer-meetings, assist at sacrament, etc. SAMUEL POLLOCK.

Allegheny, Pa.

An Invalid's Fine Record

I went to the Simpson Methodist Church twenty-five years, in Hyde Park, and twelve years in Providence Methodist Church—thirty-seven years in all. Now I am an invalid, and seldom get out; I am seventy-three years old. MRS. S. A. FEDDEN.

Scranton, Pa.

Fifty-three Years a Faithful Worshiper

Jos. M. Elford, of Spartanburg, S. C., has attended continuously the Church of the Advent (Episcopal) for over fifty-three years; has been a member of the vestry of said church for over fifty years, and still attends regularly as senior warden of the same church

Spartanburg, S. C. JOSEPH M. ELFORD.

Over Sixty-three Years in God's Service

I came here, where I am to-day, with my father, in March, 1839. That summer a new church was erected, where I have been a regular attendant all these years—sixty-three and a-half—and will continue on in God's service until the Master says, "Come home."

Rawson, N. Y. I. C. F.

A Fine Record from Maine

I commenced attendance of the Central Church of Bangor, Maine, in 1851, when four years of age, and attended that church till 1900, a period of forty-nine years. I then removed from that city and have regularly attended church in this city since. I filled the offices of secretary and librarian of Sunday School, and of deacon, clerk and treasurer in the church, and treasurer of the parish.

Portland, Me. GEORGE S. HALL.

A Wonderful Family of Church-goers

We have a family here, ten in number, all belonged to the Presbyterian Church. The oldest, a son now in his ninetieth year, has a son who has been a church member for seventy years; a daughter (deceased) for sixty-one years; a daughter (living) for sixty-six years; a son (living) for fifty-four years; four other daughters, who have been members for sixty-seven, sixty, sixty, and fifty years, respectively; a son (deceased) for fifty-four years, and another daughter, a member for fifty-four years. I took this from the family record.

Honey Brook, Pa. P. DAMPMAN.

Other Notable Records

Mr. Charles C. Larkin, Chester, Pa., has a record of over fifty-six years' church attendance.

Mrs. Ruth E. Dawley, Woodhull, N. Y., has an attendance record of over fifty-seven years.

Mrs. Sarah McCune, Rome, N. Y. (now eighty-two), has a record of over sixty-three years.

Mrs. Jane Mills, Rome, N. Y., has a record of forty-eight years' continuous attendance.

The late Thomas Downs, of Richmond, Kans., had a record of over seventy years' attendance.

Mrs. B. Tiphart has been a member and regular attendant in the M. E. Church of Sandusky, O., for over fifty years.

The late Mr. Marcus Barnes of Keeseville, N. Y., had a record of membership in the Congregational Church of 67 years.

Mr. James Marlow, Mansfield, O., has a record of over fifty-eight years' active membership in the congregational Church.

The late Mrs. C. W. Turner, Dighton, Mass., had a record of church and Sunday School attendance and work covering sixty years.

Elder James Kennedy, Garfield, Ky., has been a member of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church there, and a regular attendant sixty-nine years.

The late Mr. Kuenstler, of Philadelphia, had a church record of active membership extending over forty years, as Sunday School superintendent.

Mr. and Mrs. Gandy, of Seaville, N. J., have continuous membership records of sixty-eight and forty-four years, respectively. They are members of the Baptist Church.

Mr. Abram Rynearson and Mrs. Rachel Rynearson, his wife (both lately deceased), had records of fifty-two and fifty-four years of consecutive church attendance, respectively.

Mr. Steven Stillwell Clark joined the M.E. Church of Carbondale, Pa., January, 1843, and was elected trustee, 1849, and has been an official member almost continuously ever since.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Heath of Baltimore, have each records of over fifty years' continuous membership and attendance in the Westminister Presbyterian Church. Mr. Heath has been Sunday School teacher and superintendent more than fifty years, and ruling elder thirty-three years.

"A day in God's courts is better than a thousand" in the tents of sin, and a life of serene, unostentatious Christian well-doing, with contentment and assurance growing brighter and brighter toward the close, is of more value to mankind, and does more toward making the race happier and better, than the careers of all the conquerors since the days of Pharaoh. Heaven will reward these self-denying men and women, and the believers on earth will honor and love them for the example and influence they have given to the human race.

AMERICA STANDS BY THE WORLD'S PEACE COURT

Continued From Page 31

Britain, the United States, Russia, France and Italy, prepared a series of articles dealing with questions to be compulsorily submitted to arbitration, and providing for the establishment of an Arbitration Court. Many important changes in the laws of war, by land and sea, were adopted.

Before the conclusion of the Conference, nearly all the Powers signed the final act, approving of the work accomplished, and recommending future conferences. Sixteen governments signed an Arbitration Convention, or Treaty; seventeen signed a declaration prohibiting the use of projectiles or explosives in balloons; sixteen a declaration against the use of asphyxiating gases, and fifteen a declaration against the use of explosive bullets.

By far the most important work of the Conference was the mediation and arbitration plan, which provided that all the signatory Powers to the Arbitration Treaty should use their efforts to secure a peaceful solution of international differences, and invite mediation by friendly Powers, before beginning war. It was also stipulated that such friendly Powers might offer their services as mediators at any time, even during war preparations, without offence; also, that quarrels, which cannot be settled by mediation, should be submitted to an International Committee of Inquiry, whose arbitration award, while morally binding, would still leave the Powers free to act as they might decide. The signatory Powers, however, reserved the right, in certain cases, to make arbitration compulsory. In addition, the Treaty provided for a permanent Court of Arbitration at the Hague, with a permanent General Secretary and four qualified representatives from each Power as members, their term to last for six years. This Court is open not only to all the signatory Powers, but to all governments throughout the world, for the settlement of international differences. The sessions are conducted as in an ordinary court of law, each side being represented by counsel. To the United States belongs the honor of bringing the first case before this august peace tribunal for trial—viz., the Mexican "Pious Fund," which was lately decided in our favor.

Notwithstanding the acceptance of arbitration by all the governments involved in the Venezuelan dispute, the blockade of Venezuelan ports by the English, German and Italian warships continues. It is said that President Castro, as a preliminary to arbitration, has demanded the cessation of the blockade and the restoration of the Venezuelan fleet, captured by the Allies. It is not believed, however, that these conditions will be insisted upon. Castro has given notice that France is a preferred creditor of Venezuela. The claims of the Allies will each be considered in turn, but those presented by Belgium and Holland must wait. Pending arbitration, Germany will not resume diplomatic relations with Venezuela, and the others may follow her example. Their fleets, however, will remain in Venezuelan waters. British warships have brought portable barracks to La Guayra, and there is talk of landing a military force there. It would seem as if the Allies, by their continued attitude of hostility, intended to give Castro's government warning that, pending arbitration, any renewed outbreak against the persons or property of foreigners would be promptly punished.

THE HEAD OF THE FAMILY

A Story of Anthracite

By BURTON E. STEVENSON

Author of "The Heritage," "Tommy Remington's Battle," "A Soldier of Virginia," etc.

CHAPTER II.

(Continued from Last Week)

SUDDENLY his self-control dropped from him — utter weariness was too much for him—she saw his chin quiver, and the tears ran over on his cheeks. He laid his head down upon his arms, the great sobs shaking him. She went to him and put her arms about him.

"What is it, Jimmy?" she asked. "What's th' trouble? Somethin' at th' breaker? Hev they fired y'?"

He sobbed a denial.

"No, it ain't that. Bill Jones is mighty kind t' me; he wouldn't fire me, Bill Jones wouldn't."

"What is it, then?" she persisted. "You'll tell me, won't y'?"

It was some moments before he mastered himself sufficiently to speak.

"Thay's been a strike ordered," he said, at last. "Everybody's goin' out next Sat'rday."

A strike! She knew from sad experience what that meant, and her heart sank within her.

"What's it about?" she asked.

"I don' know," he answered, hopelessly. "None o' th' fellers seems t' know — I've heard 'em talkin' about it a good deal, but they all say somethin' different. I reckon th' men know. They passed th' word aroun' this mornin'."

"Will it shet doen all th' mines?" she questioned.

"Th' company says not; anyway, I'm goin' t' work ef they'se any work t' do. I ain't a-goin' out."

"You ain't!" she cried, astonishment getting the better of her grief. "But, then —but, then — —"

"Yes, I know," he said, a new note of discouragement in his voice. "But I don't keer. Now let's see ef Tom won't eat somethin'," and he left his mother sitting dazed at the table.

CHAPTER III.

Victim to the Mob

A GREAT strike had indeed been ordered, to go into effect the first Monday in June. Its causes need not be dealt with here, for they are quite outside the province of this story—doubtless both operators and miners had some just grievances—but its effect would be to close down all the mines and to stop, for the time being, the production of anthracite coal in the United States, since this strip of land in eastern Pennsylvania contained the country's whole supply.

Few other industries were so well organized. The great coal-carrying roads had secured a controlling interest in the mines, and had stifled competition by charging exorbitant freight rates, until, one by one, the independent operators had been forced to sell out or join the combination. This combination decreed just how many tons of anthracite should be mined every year—about half the possible output of the mines—in order that the market price might be maintained at a certain level. Then the men, in self-preservation, had organized, too, that they might stand as a unit in the fight for fair treatment and living wages, which were becoming more and more unattainable under the restrictions the operators put upon them.

This battle would doubtless be waged, just as a dozen previous ones had been—the company would endeavor to get outside help to run their mines; the miners would oppose this; would, in moments of passion, fearful for their own existence, assault the non-union workers; the State militia would be called out to preserve order, with a success dependent wholly upon the temper of the men: and in the end, the miners would either be starved into submission, or the operators, under pressure from politicians and the public, would be forced to compromise. At best, the struggle would last for months, and the greatest loss would fall upon the men themselves.

Work stopped early in the breaker on that last Saturday, for many of the miners, eager to begin the struggle for what they believed to be their rights, did not report for duty. So the supply of coal to be crushed and sorted ran low soon after noon, and at last the whistle screamed in signal and the great wheels stood still.

"All over, boys," cried the boss, and rejoicing in their unaccustomed freedom and in the prospect of exciting times ahead, they thundered down the stair and out into the warm sunshine. Only Jimmy lingered.

"I s'pose th' mine 'll be shet down now," he began timidly, approaching the boss.

"O' course," answered that individual shortly. "An' worse luck," he added, for he was not wholly in sympathy with the decree of the Union. Even if the men won, his wages would not be affected, and meanwhile he must live as best he could—not an easy thing to do when the daily wage must go for the necessities of life.

"But won't none o' th' mines run?" persisted the boy. "Won't they try t' run none o' them?"

"Oh, they'll try hard enough," said the boss, with an inflexion that told plainly how the effort would result. "They allus do thet, y' know."

"S'pose a feller d' want t' strike," continued Jimmy. "S'pose he wants t' work? What's he t' do?"

The boss stared down at him for a moment in amazement—a boy who didn't want to strike was something new in his experience.

"Well," he said at last, "ef a feller d' want t' strike, he goes down t' th' company's office an' gives in his name. Only a feller 'd be a fool t' do thet, for they'se a crowd o' Union men down there, an' when th' feller come out o' th' office, he'd likely hev a mighty lively time. Besides, after th' mines started ag'in in earnest, he'd be out o' his job—th' Union 'd freeze him out, an' it wouldn't take it no great time t' do it, neither."

Jimmy did not answer. He merely shut his lips tight together, went down the stair, and started for the company office. But when he approached it, his heart failed him for a moment and he stopped. As the miners quit work, they strolled down to the office to see what might be toward; to see if, by any chance, there was any man among them foolhardy enough to defy the edict of the Union. It was rumored, too, that John Simms, the president of the local lodge, was having a last conference with the company officials, in the effort to settle some differences about wages due, and he might stand in need of moral (or physical) support. They were there to give him either—and so were the scores of breaker-boys and door-boys and driver-boys, more alert for trouble even than their fathers—even hoping for it, with youth's fine carelessness of consequences.

As Jimmy's eyes wandered over this formidable and boisterous crowd, his heart fell more and more; he knew how cruel boys could be under temptation of this sort; but a thought of mother and brother at home, facing starvation, dependent upon him, the head of the family, nerved him, and he went on.

He pressed his way through the scattered groups, but no one seemed to notice him. It was not till he had his hand on the knob of the office door that he heard a sudden sharp hoot from a boy near him; but he did not hesitate. He turned the knob, pushed the door open quickly, and entered.

The shades at the windows had been drawn to protect the room from the gaze of the crowd without, and for a moment the sudden transition from the bright sunlight to the gloom of the interior blinded the boy. Then he saw a high railing, behind which some half dozen men were sitting with their heads together. They were looking toward the door, as though startled by its opening.

"That's funny," said one of them, in a low voice. "Nobody came in. What are they after?"

"Perhaps you'd better lock the door, Sam," said another, addressing the young man who acted as the company's secretary.

"But maybe Mr. Carver, some of the men will want to report for work," protested Sam.

"Oh, nonsense!" retorted the other impatiently. "I'd like to see anybody come in here in the face of that crowd. Why, he'd be killed—and this is called a free country, too," he added.

Sam got up, seemingly convinced by this argument, and started for the door; but as he swung back the gate in the high railing, he saw Jimmy standing there, cap in hand.

"Why, hello, youngster," he cried. "Where did you come from?"

"I jes' come in th' door, sir," answered Jimmy.

"And what do you want?"

"I want t' work," said the boy simply.

The secretary answered with a shout of laughter which recalled him sharply to the boy's memory—here was one of the men who had laughed at him once before.

"Come in here," cried Sam. "Gentlemen," he continued, addressing the group, "allow me to present to you the first defection from the ranks of the Union—you'd better be watching your fences, Simms. They're in danger, I can tell you!"

They all smiled as they looked at him—even Simms, the president of the local lodge, to whom defection meant black treason.

"What's your name, sonny?" asked the secretary.

"Jim Boyton, sir."

The secretary ran rapidly through an indexed book.

"Where have you been working?" he questioned at last.

"In th' breaker at th' Carver shaft, sir."

Sam looked at the book again.

"Come," he said, after a moment, a little harshly, "what's your game: There's no Jim Boyton here—there's a Tom Boyton."

"I'm his brother," interrupted the boy eagerly. "He's sick; I've been workin' fer him."

"Ah," said the secretary. "So, of course, you haven't got a certificate?"

"No, sir," and the boy hung his head.

The secretary looked at him more closely.

"Let's see," he said, suddenly, "aren't you the boy who came in here one day last winter and tried to get a job?"

Jimmy blushed more deeply than ever—he suspected what was coming—an act of frenzy on his part, which he had thought long since forgotten, was to be brought home to him.

"Yes, sir," he said humbly.

"And when we wouldn't give him one," went on the secretary relentlessly, "went out and banged the door behind him so hard that the glass cracked right across."

Jimmy followed the direction of the secretary's finger with distended eyes. He stared at the accusing crack with a look of utter dismay.

"I did bang the door, sir," he admitted at last, in a choked voice. "I wus purty

CONTINUED ON PAGE 42

"SIMMS TURNED TO THE CROWD WITH LIVID FACE"

COPYRIGHT, 1903, BY LOUIS KLOPSCH

OUR EDITORIAL FORUM

B. J. FERNIE, ASSOCIATE EDITOR — LOUIS KLOPSCH, Editor and Proprietor — G. H. SANDISON, ASSOCIATE EDITOR

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD is published weekly. Subscription price, $1.50 a year, in advance.

Remittances should always be made in the safest manner available to the remitter. Register your remittances.

Foreign Postage. For countries to be mailed outside the U. S., Canada, and Mexico, add one dollar a year.

Change of Date. It takes at least two weeks to change the date after your subscription is renewed.

Expiration of Subscriptions. The date on the wrapper indicates when your subscription ends.

Change of Address.—Give both your old and your new address when you ask us to change your address.

Subscriptions may commence with any issue.

Letters should be addressed, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, Bible House, New York.

Entered at the Post-office, New York, as Second-class Matter

WE present our readers this week with a timely sermon by Rev. Charles M. Sheldon, of Topeka, Kansas. We hope, during this year, to publish sermons occasionally by eminent preachers of the Baptist, Congregational, Methodist Episcopal, and other denominations, in alternation with the sermons of Rev. Frank DeWitt Talmage, which, during the past year, as we are glad to learn from the letters of our subscribers, have been most acceptable and helpful to readers generally.

Veteran Churchgoers

THE letters in the symposium on another page, on church-going, are deeply interesting reading. The statements they contain, are full of significance. Many of them show an unbroken record of church attendance of over forty years, some of more than fifty years, a few of sixty and even of seventy years. In several instances these have not been attendance only, but of active service in church-office or in Sunday School. When we hear of men in secular service having been in the same employment for long periods, we regard the record as honorable alike to employer and employee. It shows that the employer has appreciated faithful service and that the employee has found his occupation congenial. What shall we say of the men and women who have been found regularly in their places in church for three score years and ten? They have not tired of hearing the Gospel message; they have not found praise and prayer a burden. In their old age they are full of enthusiasm, and there is not one word of regret that so much of their time has been devoted to the service of Christ. In contrast with the testimony of aged men who have given their years to the world, the record is remarkable.

Young people may wisely make a note of these remarkable records. Many centuries ago, one who had exceptional opportunities for making the best of this life, tried all the avenues of activity then open to men, and found that even in his success they were disappointing and yielded no satisfaction. "Vanity of vanities" was his verdict in every case. It is a discouraging story. But here is a different record. Seventy years of religious service, without pay, without material advantage, yet with perfect satisfaction. There has been no weariness, no regret, but joy and delight without alloy. Truly this is testimony of inestimable value. It is good to have it, and we congratulate the veterans and trust that their example may have the influence on the world that it deserves.

The Methodist $20,000,000

HEARTY congratulations are due the Methodist Episcopal Church on the announcement formally made in Trinity Church, Springfield, Mass., at the moment 1902 ended and 1903 began. At that solemn time, the statement was made that the twenty million thank-offering fund was complete. Subscriptions and pledges received within a few days had brought the fund up to, and beyond the $20,000,000 mark. The announcement was made in the Springfield Church, because it was in that church, four years ago, that the fund was inaugurated. Little likely did it appear then that so large an amount could ever be raised by one denomination, over and above its current expenses. But the men who undertook the task were men of strong faith, and their faith has become "the substance of things hoped for." Tireless energy, ingenious methods, persistent appeals have been crowned with success. Twenty million dollars in four years, besides supporting churches, missionary societies, and all the multitudinous enterprises of the church! This is a record gift absolutely unprecedented in history. Alike to the givers, many of whom must have exercised self denial, and to the men who kindled the enthusiasm of the people is this magnificent success an honor. It is an evidence of religious sincerity and of unbounded confidence in the Christian faith, that teaches a valuable lesson in these days of doubt and materialism.

The details of the work as related by Rev. Edmund Mills, the Secretary of the fund, are full of suggestion. Its story reads like a romance. The subscriptions came from all quarters and were of various amounts, ranging all the way from one cent to $400,000. Three million persons in all contributed to the fund, so that the average is about seven dollars each. In one instance $400,000 was given by a millionaire whose father was a Methodist minister. He said that his father's salary was only four hundred dollars a year. The amount given by the son, therefore, represented all that the father would have earned in a thousand years. He must have done his work well and without neglecting his own vineyard, to have had his son in his mature years, so possessed with faith in the church his father served, as to give so large a sum out of his abundance. The son must have known well what Methodism was and is, with the spectacle living in his memory of his father's ill-requited labors. It is a fine testimony to a preacher's heroic self-sacrificing life, that the son should so love not his father only, but the cause he served. Doubtless there are many more stories that might be told of gifts that had such double significance. They are honorable alike to the church, the givers, and the men who in past generations consecrated themselves to Christ's service

The twenty millions will be devoted to permanent usefulness and will not be used in relieving the members of the church of their current duties. A definite division was arranged at the outset, which will be observed in the apportionment of the huge sum. A large part will be devoted to the liquidation of the debts on church buildings. The money will be applied in such forms that it is believed there will not be a single Methodist Church in the United States with a debt upon it. A portion of the fund is to be used to endow educational institutions, another portion as a fund for the support of city evangelization, and another for the support of aged ministers. All these are worthy objects which commend themselves to the good will of all Christians.

The Coal Famine

WHATEVER expectations may have been entertained of a mitigation of the coal famine, in consequence of the settlement of the strike, they have not been realized. It is now nearly two months since the settlement, yet the people suffer acutely from the shortage of coal, which affects the entire country. In the larger cities, unusual hardship prevails. Factories are hampered, businesses temporarily crippled, and many trade establishments are almost at a standstill through lack of fuel. Schools, hospitals, churches, and thousands of private dwellings are inadequately heated. In the East Side tenements of New York, where coal is usually bought by the pailful, the impossibility of procuring the usual supply at any price, has driven many poor families to the last resort of breaking up their furniture for fuel, that their wretched homes may be momentarily warmed. Boston has nearly half its population coalless and other cities are scarely better off. None are in a condition to face the blasts and "northers" of the coming midwinter. Wood, too, is at famine prices, and almost as scarce as anthracite. In the country districts, the situation is almost as cheerless.

This unprecedented experience is thus far unrelieved by any hope of early mitigation. Railroads and operators declare that ample coal is being mined for all necessities; dealers, on the other hand, assert that their yards are empty and it is impossible to get coal. On some of the railroads, hundreds of coal-laden trucks are lying on side-tracks, instead of being forwarded to market. In some parts of the country, coal-yards have been attacked by crowds of people, resolved on getting fuel at all costs—only to find the yards empty.

While the Arbitration Commission is busily investigating the causes of the recent strike, it would be well, if the scope of its instructions extends so far, to take up as a subject for immediate inquiry, the prevailing coal shortage. That the people are suffering outrageously through the tactics of the operators or the dealers is unquestionable. Possibly the Commission may be able to discover the true cause of the shortage and to place the responsibility for the protracted coal famine where it rightly belongs.

Instantaneous Conversion

HOW quickly a soul may be won or lost! A single moment may settle for a man whether he will be Christ's disciple or not. Some people tell us that belief in instantaneous conversions is unphilosophical. Rather, are not their objections unphilosophical? Are not all decisions matters of an instant?

A friend told of a fine stroke of business he had just effected—a perfectly honest stroke. He wanted to make an important sale. He sought his man, making a journey of many miles. He planned adroitly for a meeting; with utmost caution and patience and skill, which seemed marvelous to a listener as the details were related, he moved along step by step in his plan and purpose. He had a good thing to sell, and the man needed it, but it was necessary to make him see its value and feel his want. There was hesitation, there was weighing and balancing, a protracted process, but all that was no part of the decision. The decision at last was a moment's work, a knife edge. So it is always in business, and so it is in the matter of turning to Christ, of what we call conversion. Hesitation may be long—questionings, doubtings, fears, struggles with an opposing will and nature, but the decision is at last, and must ever be, a matter of an instant.

GEMS FROM TALMAGE

Thank God for Sanity

—WE ARE accustomed to be more grateful for physical health than for the proper working of our mind. We are apt to take it for granted that the intellect which has served us so well will always be faithful. We forget that an engine of such great power, where the wheels have such vastness of circle and such swiftness of motion, and the least impediment might put it out of gear, can only be kept in proper balance by a Divine hand. No human hand could engineer the train of immortal faculties. How strange it is that our memory, on whose shoulders all the misfortunes and successes and occurrences of a lifetime are placed, should not oftener break down, and that the scales of judgment, which have been weighing so much and so long, should not lose their adjustment, and that fancy, which holds a dangerous wand, should not sometimes maliciously wave it, bringing into the heart forebodings and hallucinations the most appalling! Is it not strange that this mind, which hopes so much in its mighty leaps for the attainment of its objects, should not be dashed to pieces on its disappointments? Though so delicately tuned, this instrument of untold harmony plays on, though fear shakes it, and vexations rack it, and sorrow and joy and loss and gain in quick succession beat out of it their dirge, or toss from it their anthem. At morning and at night, when in your prayer you rehearse the causes of your thanksgiving, next to the salvation by Jesus Christ, praise the Lord for the preservation of your reason.

Life's Rough Voyage

—YOU HAVE had a rough voyage—no mistake about that. Snowy day after snowy day. Again and again the machinery of health and courage broke down, and the waves of temptation have swept clear over the hurricane-deck, so that you were often compelled to say, "All thy waves and thy billows have gone over me," and you were down in the trough of that sea, and down in the trough of the other sea, and many despaired of your safe arrival. But the great Pilot, not one who must come off from some other craft, but the One who walked storm-swept Galilee, and now walks the wintry Atlantic, comes on board, and heads you for the haven, when no sooner have you passed the Narrows of death than you find all the banks lined with immortals celebrating your arrival; and while some break off palm branches from the banks and wave them, those standing on one side will chant, "There shall be no more sea"; and those standing on the other side will chant, "These are they which came out of great tribulation, and had their robes washed and made white in the blood of the Lamb." Off the stormy sea into the smooth harbor. Out of the snowy day of earthly severities into the gardens of everlasting flora, and into orchards of eternal fruitage, the fall of their white blossoms the only snow in heaven.

Supremacy of Law

—HOW THE law honors and sanctifies everything it touches. Natural law. Civil law. Social law. Commercial law. Common law. Moral law. Ecclesiastical law. International law. Oh, the dignity, the impressiveness, the power of law! It is the only thing before which Jehovah bows, but he bows before that, although the law is of his own making. Law! By it worlds swing. By it the fate of centuries is decided. By it all the affairs of time and all the cycles of eternity will be governed. We cannot soar so high or sink so deep or reach out so far or live so long as to escape it. It is the throne on which the Almighty sits.

THE BIBLE and the NEWSPAPER

Exploration Prohibited

ONE of the most thrilling incidents in the journey of Dr. Sven Hedin, described in this journal last week, is depicted in the illustration on this page. Dr. Hedin had set out with the determination to reach Lhassa, the sacred city of Tibet. In spite of severe illness and in the face of misfortunes and obstacles, he explored the neighborhood of Lake Lopnor, and traced the course of the famous River Tarim. He prepared maps of the whole region, and then resumed his journey toward Lhassa. He had proceeded only a few miles when he was met by an armed party under the command of an officer, who introduced himself as Kamba Bombo. The officer greeted the explorer courteously, and told him he had been looking for his arrival for some time. Certain yak hunters, he said, had reported at Lhassa the approach of a foreign traveler, and orders had been sent to Kamba Bombo to intercept him and turn him back. Dr. Hedin had so thoroughly disguised himself that he hoped to avoid being recognized as the foreign traveler, but the Tibetan officer was under no illusion, and Dr. Hedin could not deny the charge. He was grievously disappointed at the peremptory order to return, and asked the officer what would be the consequence of his persisting in his journey in defiance of the prohibition. Kamba Bombo significantly drew his hand across his throat with a reference to that part of Dr. Hedin's person which could not be misunderstood. Dr. Hedin accordingly promised to comply, and the officer, evidently glad to be relieved of an unpleasant duty, gave him two horses and a quantity of provisions. He also appointed a guard of twenty mounted soldiers and three officers to protect Dr. Hedin on his journey to the frontier; but really to satisfy himself that the explorer took his journey in that direction. Dr. Hedin showed his wisdom in complying with the order. Ardently as he desired to see the famous city, it would have been folly to sacrifice his life to his curiosity; but when a great issue is at stake, we honor the man who persists at the peril of his life. The world owes its salvation to the devotion of Him who, though he knew he was going to his death, steadfastly set his face toward Jerusalem.

Who for the joy that was set before him, endured the cross despising the shame (Heb. 12: 2).

Cable to Hawaii

Another link in the earth-girdling telegraphic connection has been forged. On New Year's day, the island of Hawaii was put in telegraphic communication with the United States, and messages of congratulation were exchanged between President Roosevelt and Governor Dole. The shore end of the cable was landed at San Francisco on Dec. 14. The little daughter of Gov. Gage officiated at the ceremony of connecting it, and then the steamship Silverton, with the 2,500 miles of cable on board, started for Hawaii, laying the cable as it went. Meantime, the shore end of the cable was laid at Honolulu, and the sea end buoyed to await the arrival of the Silverton. The shore end was picked up in Molokai channel, thirty-five miles from Honolulu, on the morning of Jan. 1, and the splice was made. Sufficient time was allowed for the guttapercha to harden, and then at eleven o'clock P. M. came the message from Gov. Dole to President Roosevelt. This was quickly followed by another message from Clarence H. Mackay, President of the Pacific Cable Company, from the people of Hawaii, thanking the Company for their new facilities. They rightly regarded the Company as a benefactor, because it put them in communication with the rest of the world. Would that men showed similar gratitude, for which there is infinitely greater reason, to Him who by his self-sacrifice brings them into communication with God.

For though him we have access by one Spirit unto the Father (Eph. 2: 18).

A Fatal Blow

A strange death occurred a few days ago in the Hudson Street Hospital, New York. It was that of a man suffering from blood-poisoning. About a week before he entered the hospital, he had been engaged in a violent altercation with another man. Losing his temper, he struck the other a furious blow in the mouth, knocking out his antagonist's teeth. The man collapsed under the blow, but was taken care of by friends and he recovered. The man who struck the blow noticed that the knuckles of his hand were cut by the teeth of his foe, but he thought little of it. A day or two afterward, however, his hand began to swell, and he went to the hospital for treatment. The surgeons there told him he would have to have the hand amputated, but he would not agree to let them do it. At last, when the swelling had spread to his arm, the man consented to let his hand be taken off. It was too late then, however, and he died in agony. He is not the first to suffer through his own violence. Long centuries ago men were warned that it would be so.

His mischief shall return upon his own head, and his violence shall come down upon his own pate (Ps. 7: 16).

A House On the Ice

A bold attempt at house moving in Connecticut has ended in disaster to the owner. A press despatch from Dover, Me., says that the owner of a house in Willimantic, Conn., recently determined to move his house to Milo, Me., a distance of twenty seven miles. The house was mounted on huge runners. Twelve pairs of horses and ten men constituted the working force, under the command of the owner. The route lay for the first twelve miles on Schoe Lake and everything moved along beautifully with prospects of success, when suddenly, about a mile down the lake from the starting point, the ice gave way, and the house dropped into the water, floating at the level of the second story windows. The horses and men narrowly escaped. The problem of getting the house back upon the ice is beyond the grasp of local engineering skill, and it is probable that it will have to remain in the water until the ice melts, when it can be towed back to its starting-point, ready for another attempt when the ice is strong enough to bear its weight. At present it looks as if the man had lost his house. It was quite natural for him to think how easily it would run on the ice; but something more is necessary to constitute a good road than a smooth surface. Men who take the downward path in morals discover that fact sooner or later.

DR. SVEN HEDIN HALTED BY TIBETANS ON HIS WAY TO LHASSA

There is a way that seemeth right unto a man: but the end thereof are the ways of death (Prov. 16: 25).

Sleeping Sickness

A report on the new disease which is working havoc in Africa has been issued by the School of Tropical Medicine. It is based on the reports of physicians in Central Africa who have studied the cases. It is but a few years since the first case was recorded in Uganda, yet already the deaths from it number over twenty thousand. It belongs to the class of diseases of which small-pox or consumption of the lungs is a type. It differs however, from that disease in being contagious. One case is sure to be followed by others, and, in that unprotected region, the deaths rapidly multiply. It is now spreading in all directions and has reached the southern border of Egypt. The first symptoms of the disease are in the disposition and mental attitude of the patient, who in a short time becomes stupid and restless. The next stage is that of coma, from which the patient cannot be aroused. No remedy has yet been found for the disease. The only measure adopted is the isolation of the persons affected as soon as the disease is diagnosed. It seems hard to isolate the sufferer from his family and friends just at the time he most needs their care; but as there is no known remedy for the disease, that is the wise course. If a remedy could be found, how gladly would it be administered and how thankful the patient would be for it! Yet when the malady of sin, which the sleeping sickness so strikingly resembles, seizes a man, he will not avail himself of the remedy God has provided, though he is warned that isolation and death are inevitable.

These shall go away into everlasting punishment: but the righteous into life eternal (Matt. 25: 46).

Drowned by Its Prey

A remarkable instance of the penalty of success is reported by persons living near Jamestown, N. Y. For many years past a colony of American eagles has made its home near the shores of Chautauqua Lake. They have not been molested and have grown bolder in their depredations. Recently one of them was noticed hovering over the lake, and its graceful flight was watched by several persons. Suddenly it darted with lightning rapidity toward the water, catching in its talons a muscallonge two feet or more in length, and weighing probably ten pounds. There was a clash and a splashing of fins and feathers, but slowly the bird rose in the air with its captive dangling and wriggling below. When at a height of about 1,000 feet the bird, still clinging to the fish, began to sink slowly toward the lake again, gaining speed as it descended, and finally fell with a splash in the water. Later, the bird and fish were found together dead. The eagle had evidently found the fish too heavy to carry, but had been unable to drop it, owing to its claws being so firmly imbedded in the flesh that it could not release its hold, and as its strength gave way it sank into the water whence it had sought its prey, and was drowned. The very tenacity with which the eagle grasped its prize prevented it loosing it when it wished to do so. It is often so with men, who discover when too late that some eagerly coveted prize is proving fatal to them.

Ye know how that afterward, when he would have inherited the blessing, he was rejected: for he found no place of repentance, though he sought it carefully with tears (Heb. 12: 17).

BRIEF NOTES

The King of Corea styled the Methodist college at Seoul "the hall for training useful men."

The church census of London shows that there are in the whole of the city four thousand buildings consecrated to religious service.

During the year just closed, the Young Men's Christian Association added to its list 18 new buildings, costing in the aggregate $400,000.

Count Taleeri, an Italian electrician, has devised an aerial electric railway for use in the postal service, which is to be tested by the Italian government.

From the National Capital

Publishers Christian Herald.—After examining the books, The Hall of Fame and The Speaking Oak, must say that I am delighted with them, and would not take several times what they cost for them. They are magnificent premiums. J. PERSINGER.

Washington, D. C.

Either of the above books and THE CHRISTIAN HERALD one year, $2.00.

GRACES, AND HOW TO GROW THEM

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR JAN. 25
I THESS. 5: 14-28

By Dr. and Mrs. Wilbur F. Crafts

✳ PAUL'S COUNSEL TO THE THESSALONIANS

GOLDEN TEXT—I. THESS. 5: 21: "HOLD FAST THAT WHICH IS GOOD."

THE Bible is a library, a collection of sixty-six books, written by at least forty different authors, who lived during sixteen hundred years in different lands.

Children know very little about how God gave the Bible to the world. On several occasions groups of children in Chautauquas and other places have been questioned about it, and they have given such replies as "God gave the Bible to Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden." "Moses wrote the Bible because God told him to do it." "God sent the Bible by angels." "Jesus brought it." Let others test the matter if such replies seem incredible. It has also been found that children are greatly interested when the history of how the Bible came is given to them in an illustrated form, with blackboard—a picture of the sixty-six books arrayed as a library. And older people as well take great interest in such lessons.

"WE GIVE THANKS FOR YOU"

Let us now consider the book of I. Thessalonians, in which to-day's lesson is found. How it would startle us to open our New Testaments and find this book first instead of Matthew! But there can hardly be a doubt that is where it would be if position had been determined by the order of time in which the books were written. The epistles to the Thessalonians were the first books written by the Apostle Paul. He probably wrote the first one in the year 52-53, when he was living in Corinth, while it is supposed by our best Bible scholars that Matthew was written between 60-66 A.D. (Schaff.) The question will naturally arise; Why then was not I. Thessalonians placed first, and why do not all of the writings of Paul precede the Gospels, which probably were all written later than Paul's epistles? We reply that the historic books are placed first, and in the order of events, the birth and work of Christ coming first, because they form the basis for Paul's writings. The book of Acts also precedes the epistles of Paul, because it gives the occasion of Paul's writing, and the circumstances under which he wrote. To understand the first letter to the Thessalonians, we must read carefully Acts 17: 1-10. Though Paul had been shamefully treated by some of the Jews in Thessalonica, and finally ejected from the city, love for him, and for the truth he preached, found lodgment in the hearts of other Jews, and of some Greeks. And it was to these that Paul wrote this letter. Paul placed a high estimate on his converts in Thessalonica. He pays a high tribute to their Christian character, when he commends the love which they exercise toward each other (I. Thess. 4: 9), and also when he writes of his strong desire to see them again. That Paul's good opinion was not misplaced is evident from the fact that through those Thessalonian Christians, much of Europe was leavened with the Gospel. For several centuries Thessalonica was an important centre of missionary work. The second letter followed after the first with an interval of a few weeks. And God has made those letters a part of his Word, that Christians in all the world may learn the things they also ought to know.

Illustration and Application

Here are ten commandments that God gave through Paul in this lesson:

> See that none render evil for evil.
> Ever follow that which is good.
> Rejoice evermore.
> Pray without ceasing.
> In everything give thanks.
> Quench not the Spirit.
> Despise not preaching and teaching.
> Test all things.
> Hold fast that which is good.
> Abstain from every form of evil.

Dr. John Hall once said to a modest Sunday School worker, who distrusted her own powers: "We may not all have gifts, but we can all have graces." Above are ten graces we all may and should grow in our daily lives, graces not too bright or good for human nature's daily food; but, in order to grow them, our human nature must be quickened by the life-giving beams of the divine nature. What a Paradise Regained our world would be, if every one would grow those graces! Not one of them is an impossible ideal, but all are practicable, and let all be practiced by us at least, to make our small corner of the world brighter and better.

Warn . . . comfort . . . support . . . be patient. That is a four-in-hand that all of us may have for a graceful "turn out." We will call these four beautiful steeds: Courage, Sympathy, Helpfulness and Patience.

Here is one of many stories of brave preachers that dared to "warn the unruly" even when they were kings, who might kill them. In the year 1596, a deputation waited upon James the Sixth of Scotland, in order to remonstrate with him on certain measures he had consented to for the extirpation of "heresy." Among that crowd of dour, white ruffled, white banded Scotchmen was one who had been described as "the best philosopher, poet, and Grecian of any man in the land." This was Andrew Melville, an eminent Reformer, who had but just escaped an imprisonment of two years on a charge of heretical teaching. Gaunt, worn, and defiant, the brave old man stood before his majesty, and listened doubtfully to his rough talk. James told him that the Moderator of the General Assembly and Rector of St. Andrews ought to be more subservient to kingly rule. "Dost forget," stuttered the king, "that thou art my vassal, and must yield obedience to my rule?" "Sire!" retorted the undaunted old man, "ye are but God's vassal yourself. There are, indeed, two Kings and two Kingdoms in Scotland. There is King James, it is true, head of this commonwealth. But there is Christ Jesus, too, the King of the Church, whose subject James the Sixth is, and of whose kingdom James the Sixth is not a lord, nor a head, but a member."

And here is a beautiful illustration of "comforting the feeble-minded and supporting the weak." At a village store a plain old country woman drove up and stopped. Her horse was restless, and she had trouble in making it stand. Men and women passed by without a glance or thought. Finally a schoolboy came along who took in the situation. Stepping to the horse, he held it by the bridle and encouraged the woman to alight. Then he tied the horse. Not satisfied with that, he helped the grateful woman unload some bundles from the vehicle and carry them into the shop. That done, the lad lifted his cap with a courtly air, smiled in reply to her thanks, and sprang away to rejoin his companions. To one onlooker he seemed not less chivalrous than did Sir Walter Raleigh on a famous occasion. "Ah," said one who witnessed the act, "I must know his mother. She cannot fail to be a lovely woman."

> I shall not pass this way again! The thought is full of sorrow;
> The good I ought to do to-day I may not do to-morrow.
> If I this moment shall withhold the help I might be giving,
> Some soul may die and I shall lose the sweetest joy of living.

See that none render evil for evil. Jody was an Indian boy in a Western mission school. At first he could not understand why he should not knock down any boy who offended him. But when he heard the story of Jesus, he wanted to be a Christian at once. He resolved every day not to fight, and every day broke his resolution. One day he was given a beautiful Bible, with an appeal to be like Jesus, gentle and forgiving. For a time, by great effort, he kept from his besetting sin of fighting. One day some white boys from a public school near by came to the grounds of the Indian school and tried to start a fight by taunting the redskins. Jody had to put his fists in his pocket to keep from blows. At last a white boy said to Jody, "I see Mr. Christian can't fight. How are you, Mr. Preacher Bible?" Jody drew his fist from his pocket to strike, then, quick as a flash, he ran into the school building, and into his teacher's room, and holding out his Bible, said: "Here, take Bible, quick. Jody have to fight. Can't help it. But can't fight and keep Bible. Can't be a Christian and fight." His teacher laid her hand gently on his arm and said, "It's braver to overcome your temper." "Can't overcome," said Jody. "Too mad. Must whip Joe," he said. But she persuaded him to kneel, and he rose a conqueror of himself, "greater than he that taketh a city." An animal will retaliate when hurt. For a man to fight, except when necessary, in self defense, is to lower himself to the dog level of the one who has begun the quarrel.

"I CHARGE YOU THAT THIS EPISTLE BE READ UNTO ALL"

Ever follow that which is good. One of the truest of proverbs, of wide application to all forms of evil and good, is this: "People will go for whiskey, but milk must be brought to the door." There are many who will receive the good if thrust upon them, who will not "follow that which is good," or if they "follow," it is with such zigzaging steps as Israel moved toward the Land of Promise.

> Lord, grant us eyes to see, and ears to hear,
> And souls to love, and minds to understand,
> And steadfast faces toward the Holy Land.
> —Rossetti.

Rejoice evermore. The way to be happy is to make others happy. A story is told of a girl that nobody liked. She knew it, and had told herself as much bitterly again and again. There was a pain about her heart, but she said to herself, as she set her lips defiantly, that nobody should ever know she cared. On her eighteenth birthday a kind aunt said: "I notice you pass your acquaintances with a mere nod or a curt Good Morning. I wish you would say something pleasant to every one instead. Try it for a week." The girl promised. She almost forgot her pledge when she met Mrs. Anderson the next morning. She had passed with the usual cold nod when she remembered, and turned about to say, "How is Jimmy, to-day?" The mother was glad to tell of her sick boy, and the girl found herself getting interested and promised to bring some of her scrap books to the sick room. The mother thanked her with more gratitude than the slight favor really called for. At the next corner she met Cissy Bailey, and wondered if her promise covered the washerwoman's daughter. "It was very kind of you, Cissy," she said, "to bring the clothes so early last week, I was in a hurry for the shirt waist." Cissy smiled in surprise and pleasure. And, so the day went on. When she could not think of anything else she said, "Hasn't this been a beautiful day?" She was making it for others and for herself, a beautiful day indeed, and many a grateful glance promised her that she was to be no longer the girl that nobody liked.

Pray without ceasing. In everything give thanks. Many a boy is troubled, because it seems impossible to obey this command about ceaseless prayer. But, as he grows older, he learns that the best part of prayer is a state of loyalty. One may be loyal without ceasing to his wife or to his country, even when not thinking of either, and so in unbroken loyalty to Christ, in that submission which is the permanent element of prayer, one may pray without ceasing. Oliver Wendell Holmes once gave this beautiful illustration of the overlooked occasions for gratitude: "If one should give me a dish of sand and tell me there were particles of iron in it, I might look for them with my eyes and search for them with my clumsy fingers and be unable to detect them; but let me take a magnet and sweep through it, and how would it draw to itself the most invisible particles by the mere power of attraction! The unthankful heart, like my finger in the sand, discovers no mercies, but let the thankful heart sweep through the day, as the magnet finds the iron, so it will find in every hour some heavenly blessings; only the iron in God's sand is gold."

Quench not the Spirit. Here is the source of the graces. It is, as if we were warned, not to cut off their roots. A spiritual life may be put out like a fire that furnishes light and warmth and power and purification. It is this holy fire that "sanctifies wholly, spirit and soul and body," burning out the dross of base desire. The refiner sits by the burning silver, till he can see his face in it. Then it is taken from the fire. So it is, when we have come to reflect the likeness of Christ, that we no longer need the furnace of affliction.

The lesson as a whole presents every-day graces that all should cultivate. "Little things are little things, but to do little things faithfully is a great thing." There is a lesson for older people in these words of a little girl: "It is easy enough to remember that the old woman who lives down in the Row is the 'neighbor' God tells me to love and help, for she is very poor, and when I carry things that mamma sends, she says: 'Bless you, my little lady;' but it is not so easy to remember that my own grandmother is my 'neighbor,' when she calls me from my play to run upstairs to get her spectacles, or hold her yarn." At an Endeavor convention an unkempt boy looked in. He saw other boys acting as pages, and felt a desire to help in a similar way. He walked up to a lady usher and said, "Say, I want to do suthin'." "All right; go home and wash and get slicked up." He fairly flew home in delight that he could "do suthin'." He found much to do. "It's kinder hard," he said, "but it's fun just the same." In his rough way he had found the joy of being useful.

> I asked the Lord to let me do some mighty work for him;
> To fight amid his battle hosts, then sing the victor's hymn;
> I longed my ardent love to show, but Jesus would not have it so.
>
> He placed me in a quiet home, whose life was calm and still,
> And gave me little things to do, my daily life to fill:
> I could not think it good to be just put aside so silently.
>
> Then quietly the answer came: "My child, I hear thy cry:
> Think not that mighty deeds alone will bring the victory;
> The battle has been planned by Me; let daily life thy conquests see."

"Grandma and the Little Boy"

My mother, Mrs. Jessie R. Burns, is delighted with the pictures in the "Family Art Gallery," also with the indexed Bible. The print is fine for reading, and the index very useful. I wish you might see the dear old lady with her little grandson studying up the answers to the competitions in your paper. We are very glad you have a page for the children, as I am sure it will be instructive as well as interesting. It is hard to tell who is the most eager for the paper to arrive, grandmother or the boys. MRS. R. M. FRY.

The Red Letter Bible, with THE CHRISTIAN HERALD one year, $3.00; with the International Teacher's Bible, without thumb index and leather lining, $2.00; with thumb index and leather lining, $3.00. The "Family Art Gallery" free to every subscriber of this paper.

VOSE PIANOS

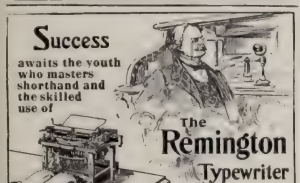
Are receiving more favorable comments to-day from an artistic standpoint than ALL OTHER MAKES COMBINED

We Challenge Comparisons

By our easy payment plan, every family in moderate circumstances can own a fine piano. We allow a liberal price for old instruments in exchange, and deliver the piano in your house free of expense. You can deal with us at a distant point the same as in Boston. Send for descriptive catalogue H and full information.

VOSE & SONS PIANO CO.
161 BOYLSTON STREET, BOSTON, MASS.

Success awaits the youth who masters shorthand and the skilled use of



The Remington Typewriter

THE use of the Remington everywhere predominates, and for the young man who operates it the best positions, providing the surest avenues for subsequent advancement, are always open.

Our new illustrated booklet, "A Stepping Stone to Success," contains the biographies of many successful men who have been helped by their knowledge of shorthand or typewriting. Sent free to young men on request.

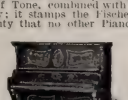
Remington Typewriter Company
327 Broadway, New York

"Standard of Highest Merit"

FISCHER PIANOS.

THE NEW SCALE Fischer yields a wonderfully pure quality of Tone, combined with great power and durability; it stamps the Fischer Piano with an individuality that no other Piano possesses.

62 Years Established



Over 110,000 Sold

BY OUR NEW METHOD of Easy Payments, every home is at once enabled to possess and enjoy a High Grade Piano. Pianos delivered to all parts of the United States. Write for catalogue, terms and all particulars.

J. & C. FISCHER
164 Fifth Ave. New York, N. Y.

Wanted A few more men and women as AGENTS For Mrs. Gen. JOHN A. LOGAN'S Grand New Book THIRTY YEARS IN WASHINGTON, or Life and Scenes in the National Capital. Magnificently illustrated, low in price, no competition. Any man or woman can easily earn $75 a month. Outfit free. We pay freight, give credit, extra terms, exclusive territory. Address A. D. WORTHINGTON & CO., Hartford, Conn.

MAKE MONEY EVENINGS. Men employed during the day can make money evenings giving public exhibitions with MAGIC LANTERN or STEREOPTICON. Little capital needed. Write for particulars. 200-page catalogue FREE. McAllister, Mfr. Optician, 49 Nassau St., N. Y.

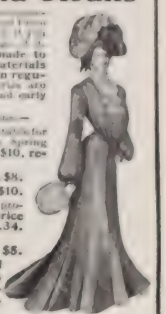
Gladdened by "The Toy Mission"

PERHAPS there is just one "Toy Mission" in the world. Pittsburg, Pa., has that. A business man founded it. In 1894, captain, now Major, R. W. A. Simmons, of that city, pausing to exchange a few words with some poorly-clad children in a poverty-stricken neighborhood, asked, "What will Santa Claus put in your stocking Christmas?" There was no answering gleam of joy in their eyes; they expected no gifts. Passing through the shopping districts, he saw many of his friends coming out of the gaily-decked stores merry over their purchases. He told them about the children. The "Toy Mission" was inaugurated. Gifts of toys, books and wearing apparel, not strictly speaking new, but capable, though second-handed, of carrying much happiness to little people looking for nothing at all, were sent to the major, and he distributed them. Next year, gifts were so numerous that it was impossible for him personally to bestow them on the children at their homes as before; he invited them to come to him. Hundreds of small people in rags and tatters besieged him; there were not enough presents to go around. Woe and pandemonium reigned. The philanthropist's hands went down into his pockets and peace was secured.

In 1896, Major Simmons systematized the work; volunteer helpers from benevolent associations in Pittsburg and Allegheny rallied to his aid; and now, its plan of operations is considered well-nigh perfect, its benefits extending to many thousands of poor children in both cities on the holidays just past, over 10,000 little hearts were gladdened at the Toy Mission. Imagine the happy scene! On great long tables hundreds of dolls and playthings of all descriptions are heaped. A large corps of workers are in attendance. Between eight and nine, all the children calling present cards with the letter A in large outline on it, in addition to the applicant's name, address, etc. A package with an inscription duplicating his or her card is handed out to each. The next hour the cards have B on them, and so on down the alphabet. All this is a part of the system annually observed; everything has been prearranged by parents, teachers, superintendents of classes or institutions throughout the two cities and the Toy Mission authorities, to avoid a dangerous rush and blocking the street. In a letter to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, Major Simmons says: "We have no permanent headquarters. Our work begins about the middle of October, and ends the night before Christmas. So we depend each year on the owner of some building, empty at the time, to give us a distributing place. One year, there being no available quarters elsewhere, a church opened its doors. This year, an abandoned church was offered us."

It might be a good idea for other cities and many small towns to copy the "Toy Mission." Though in active operation only three months in the year, the happiness it gives to children who receive and to children who give, more than justifies its existence.

Reduced Prices on Suits and Cloaks



Suits and Skirts made to order of bran new materials at one-third less than regular prices. Fabrics are [illegible] for Winter and early Spring wear.

Suits, [illegible] for Winter and early Spring wear, former price $10, reduced to $6.67.

$12 Suits reduced to $8.

$15 Suits reduced to $10.

Skirts, [illegible] former price $5, reduced to $3.34.

$7.50 Skirts reduced to $5.

Stylish Costumes of Black Velvet Cords and Corduroy, former price $17, reduced to $11.67.

$19 Costumes reduced to $12.67.

Long Jackets, former price $10, reduced to $6.67.

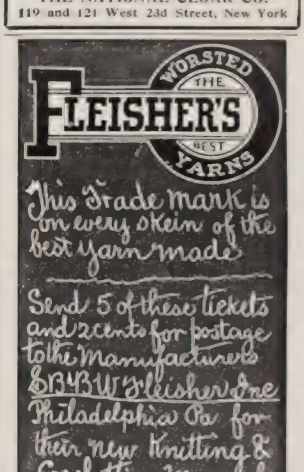
$15 Monte Carlo Coats reduced to $10.

Reduced Prices on Rainy-day and Walking Suits, Traveling Suits, Etc.

We are now closing out our Summer [illegible] at greatly reduced prices. Send for our [illegible] Catalogue. Samples sent free. Last year [illegible] purchased by us and sold at our store direct to the consumer. This year we have [illegible] and guarantee a better assortment and values [illegible] than ever.

Our new Spring Catalogue will be ready January 20th. Send for it. It will be mailed free. Write to-day, and be sure to mention this paper. Be sure to state you want the Very Superior [illegible] Cloaks.

THE NATIONAL CLOAK CO.
119 and 121 West 23d Street, New York



WORSTED
THE FLEISHER'S
BEST
YARNS
This Trade Mark is on every skein of the best yarn made
Send 5 of these tickets and 2 cents for postage to the Manufacturers
S. B. & W. Fleisher, Inc.
Philadelphia, Pa. for their new Knitting & Crocheting Manual

Our Imperiled Missionaries in Morocco

ACCORDING to the latest cable despatches from Tangier, the situation in Morocco is anything but reassuring. The rebels have won an important victory over the Sultan's forces, and that ruler has taken refuge in

THE SULTAN OF MOROCCO

Fez, which he is preparing to defend against anticipated attack. With him are the remnant of his troops. Provisions are scarce, and it is quite clear that the place will not be able to hold out long.

Communication with the town has been cut off. James W. S. Langerman, the Commissioner to South Africa for the St. Louis World's Fair, was the last foreigner to leave Fez. He reached Tangier safely.

Foreigners in the interior of Morocco have been advised to hasten to the coast. Unfortunately, the missionaries at Mequinez, and several other points in the interior, had not succeeded in reaching the capital. Eight missionaries who are laboring in Morocco under the direction of the Gospel Missionary Union, whose headquarters are in Kansas City, are believed to be in peril. At Fez are stationed George C. Reed, of Kansas City, formerly of Nebraska, Secretary of the Morocco Mission; Mr. and Mrs. Welliver of Minnesota, Miss Maude Carey, of Emporia, Kans.; Miss Irene Ward, Avoca, Iowa, and Miss Nellie Alson, of Alabama. Another party now at Mequinez is composed of F. C. Enyart, of Kansas City, and Victor Swanson, of Nebraska. Mequinez is forty miles west of Fez. A letter from Mr. Reed at Fez, dated Dec. 4, says: "Word to hand indicates that the Sultan is returning to Fez from Mequinez, instead of going to Rabat. The fight last Sunday east of here was a serious reverse for the government, and estimates of the loss are very high, some putting it at 500 on the army side; probably one-half to two-thirds of that number."

At Tangier, among other missionary workers, are the Rev. Fred. Weiss and wife, and the Rev. Mr. Currall, wife and family. These Tangier workers are well known to our readers through their frequent letters to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. In a recent letter Mr. Weiss stated that the feeling had grown so bitter against Christian missionaries that they were stoned in the market places of the capital. There is little doubt that the missionaries, if they fell into the hands of the rebels, would be quickly put to death. Indeed, it is not improbable that, in the event of Fez falling into the hands of the rebels, every European and American in the city may be massacred.

Of course, in these war times, the prisons of Morocco are full. Missionary Weiss writes:

"The prison work is an opportunity for Christian men and women to labor to the blessing of soul and body of these very needy ones. 'Not since the Rohanna prisoners were brought into Rabat,' said the Tangier paper lately, 'have we witnessed such painful sights in our streets. The prisoners were all heavily ironed. There were a number of boys and old, sickly, gray-bearded men on camels, two by two. One young lad was thrown into the panniers of a mule, in an exhausted and dying condition. A number of soldiers who were in charge of the prisoners, carried with them clubs or jiboojes, to belabor these poor helpless creatures.'"

None of the European powers are making any unusual preparations to avert the overthrow of the Sultan's government, although Italy, England, France and Spain are all ready to send warships quickly should necessity arise. Meanwhile, the prayers of God's people in this country are requested on behalf of the Christian missionaries in Morocco, that they may pass safely through the present trying ordeal.

The American Soldier

In the frigid zone of Alaska or in the humid zone of the Philippines can enjoy the delicious flavor of Borden's Eagle Brand Condensed Milk, is the positive, emphatic statement made. Established in 1857 it has stood first for forty-five years.

TO SUIT EVERYBODY! JUST OUT!
For Sunday Schools,
Young People's Societies,
Revival Meetings, etc.
100 New Songs.
256 Pages.
Bound in cloth.

Young People's Songs of Praise 4

EDITIONS:
REGULAR,
EPWORTH LEAGUE,
CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR,
BAPTIST Y. P. UNION.

25c. per copy. SEE SPECIAL OFFER FREE
THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., New York-Chicago.

I Print My Own Cards
Circulars, Newspaper, Press $5. Larger size, $18. Money saver. Big profits printing for others. Type-setting easy, rules sent. Write for catalog, presses, type, cards, etc., to factory.
THE PRESS CO., Meriden, Conn.

"FOUR PEARLS" [illegible] and Prayer Topics for the Young People's Meeting. Issued monthly at 10 cents a year. THE CHRISTIAN HERALD is the best paper for the Young People's Meeting. Send for sample copy.
M. E. Munson, Pub., 72 Bible House, New York

Individual Communion Outfits. Send for FREE catalogue and list of users.
Sanitary Communion Outfit Co., Box 7, Rochester, N. Y.

WEDDING INVITATIONS. Announcements, Calling Cards, and Monogram Stationery Engraved in the finest style. Write for samples and prices.
ELITE ENGRAVING CO., N.E. Cor. 11th & Cedar Sts., Philadelphia

DIVINITY & PHILOSOPHY COURSES by Mail. Degrees Conferred. Low fees, extraordinary terms. Cat. & Circ. Free. Rev. J. C. BURTON, Pres. Iowa Christian College, Oskaloosa, Ia.

THE LATEST DISCOVERY of MR. JAMES TAPHOUSE, the originator of many superior health foods and for 21 years head of the baking department of the Battle Creek Sanitarium, is

MALTA-CERES
THE Health Food.

The most delicious, appetizing and healthful breakfast dish you ever tasted. Also served with oysters, fish, fruit, etc. MALTA CERES is different and better, a perfect scientifically prepared, predigested health food of great merit.

READY TO EAT

Send Grocer's Name for Free Sample Package

THE TWIN CITY NUT FOOD CO.
2838 Bryant Avenue Minneapolis, Minn.

Don't Scrub Your Life Away.

Ox Fibre Scrub Brush
Hub Brand.

They take the backache out of cleaning, last many times as long and do the work twice as easily. The fibres never break off or fall out and they never matt or become water soaked. Ox Fibre Scrub Brushes save time, work and money.

Insist on Ox Fibre, and see that you get the Hub Brand. Price 25 cents. For sale by dealers or will be sent direct from the makers, postpaid, on receipt of price.

OX FIBRE BRUSH CO., Cincinnati, O., U. S. A.

Kitchen Utensils HAVING THIS TRADE MARK

ARE SAFE.

NO POISON
Has Ever Been Found in the Enamel of Agate Nickel-Steel Ware.

The BLUE LABEL
Protected by Decision of United States Court, pasted on every piece.

PROVES IT.
If substitute is offered, write us. New Booklet Free.

Agate Nickel-Steel Ware is sold by the leading Department and Housefurnishing Stores.

Lalance & Grosjean Mfg. Co., New York, Boston, Chicago.

Reduces Your Fuel Bills
50 per cent. when you use our
Perfect Steam Cooker With Doors. Steam cooked foods are healthier and more digestible than boiled or baked. Entire meal cooked over one burner. Write postal avenue or call and see. Book free. Special rates for ten days. Duplicates any kind of stove. AGENTS WANTED. $30 to $40 a week, or more.

OHIO STEAM COOKER CO.,
27 Ontario Building, TOLEDO, OHIO

LEARN PROOFREADING

HOME CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOL PHILADELPHIA

ABSOLUTELY FREE

STARK TREES best by Test—78 Years
STARK BRO'S, Louisiana, Mo.; Dansville, N. Y.; Etc

OUR SUNDAY HOUR WITH THE LITTLE FOLKS

CHILDREN, let us begin our puzzle hour with an imaginary walk. Suppose we stroll through Mount Morris Park, Harlem. This is one of the prettiest little parks in Manhattan; and, according to its size, has perhaps a larger squirrel population than any other. Saturdays and Sundays, if the weather be good, the place overflows with children, and here, there and everywhere, little folks are feeding squirrels. If the sun be shining overhead, snow under foot does not count as bad weather. The children are merrier, the squirrels hungrier. You see a little boy sitting quite still on a rock, while a squirrel creeps into his lap for peanuts. A tiny, fur-clad person almost squeaks joyful invitations to another Bunny toddling boldly up to her, as she holds out a pecan, which he accepts without hesitation. The children and squirrels seem to understand each other. The exceptions are only when newcomers appear.

Recently, a nurse in attendance on three stylishly dressed children had not more than entered the grounds before her charges bounded away, chasing the squirrels and trying to catch them. The little animals fled in all directions, and were so frightened they would not return to friends who had been feeding them. One of these, an old gentleman, called the children to him, and told them some pretty stories about animals. He found that they were not cruel, only thoughtless. As he said good-bye, they cried: "Won't you tell us stories another day?"

"If you will do something for me. Get nurse to help you look up Bible texts showing that God wants us to be kind to dumb creatures; and when you have told me the texts, I will tell you more pretty stories."

They promised. Will our little readers engage in the same quest, and write us of as many texts as they can find on this subject, between now and Monday next, when all answers must be mailed. To the child sending the largest and best selection, we will give an interesting, illustrated book about animals, by Ernest Seton Thompson, the famous naturalist. To each of the fifty children sending the next best, a consolation prize of the beautiful Calendar for 1903, Sunshine and Her Pets, will be awarded.

COMPETITION No. 1
Picture Puzzles

What places mentioned in Scripture do these pictures represent?

Competition No. 1
Picture Puzzles

These two pictures stand for places named in the Old Testament. Cut the pictures out, paste on one sheet of paper, write under each your answer in one word.

Competition No. 2.
Curious Questions

1. Name as many Bible texts as you can that show God's merciful remembrance of beasts and birds.
2. Name as many of the beasts and birds mentioned in the Bible as you can.
3. What animals are spoken of as types of Christ?
4. What birds are spoken of as types of Christ?

RULES. No competitor shall be over fourteen years of age. A reader may enter one or more competitions. They are quite distinct. But no reader may send in more than one attempt for each competition. There is no rule against asking the help of others, but each competitor must send in the answers in his or her own handwriting.

In Competition No. 1, answers must be written on one side of a sheet of paper under the puzzle pictures neatly pasted thereon—one word to each. Write your name, age and address clearly at the top.

In Competition No. 2, the competitor must answer as many of the questions as possible. The name, age and address must be written at the top of the first sheet of paper, and all the sheets must be numbered. The writing must be on only one side of each sheet of paper. Answers to all four questions must not be more than two hundred words, inclusive.

Competition No. 1. The prize for the best answer to the picture puzzles will be our Smith-Peloubet Bible Dictionary, bound in leather and illustrated. To the fifty readers sending the next best answers, we will give Sunshine and Her Pets, a beautiful Calendar for 1903, with Two-Century Calendar telling at a glance the day of the week for any date between A.D. 1800 and 2000 A.D.

PRIZES.

Competition No. 2. To the reader who sends in the best answers to the greatest number of questions, we will send Wild Animals I Have Known, a delightful, illustrated book, by Ernest Seton Thompson. Fifty consolation prizes of the beautiful Calendar mentioned will also be awarded.

All answers must be mailed not later than January 19, 1903.

Address, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, Little Folks Department, Bible House, New York.

Announcement of Prize-Winners
For December 17, 1902

Competition 1, Picture Problem 2, in our issue of December 17, illustrated the siege of the tower in Thebes and the stoning of Abimelech (Judges 9: 51–54). Many beautiful selections of Scripture texts were sent in response to Competition 2, Curious Questions; decision was very difficult. In numerous sets, most appropriate in sentiment, the texts were too long for inscription over ordinary doorways. Our judges decided the following, sent in by Charlie Ainslee, to be, all things considered, the happiest selection for Christmas decoration of doorways in a home: "Peace, good will toward men" (Luke 2: 14). Parlor door: "The dayspring from on high hath visited us" (Luke 1: 78). Dining-room: "He hath filled the hungry with good things" (Luke 1: 53). Bedroom door: "He giveth his beloved sleep."

The replies to both competitions demonstrate what excellent little Bible students attend our "Sunday Hour" meeting. If we owned a watch factory we would send every one a chronometer to tick off the happy hours in 1903. As it is we can only be as good as our promise, and send a silver watch to Mary Edick, Cleveland, O., who sent in the best answer to "Competition No. 1, Scripture Problem No. 2," published in our issue of December 17; and another silver watch to Charlie Ainslie, Chatfield, Minn., who sent in the best selection of texts as called for in Compe-

CONTINUED ON PAGE 43

KNOX'S GELATINE
desserts are the only finish to every dinner. It melts in your mouth and is clear as spring water.
"It's not like pie—it's healthy."

FREE
I will mail free, my book, "Dainty Desserts for Dainty People," for your grocer's name. Or, instead, send a 2c. stamp. For 5c. in stamps, the book and full pint sample. For 15c. the book and full two-quart package (2 for 25c). Pink color for fancy desserts in every large package. A package of Knox's will make 2 quarts (½ gallon) of jelly.

CHAS. B. KNOX
55 Knox Ave.
Johnstown, N. Y.

ABSOLUTE RANGE PERFECTION
... Sold for Cash or on Monthly Payments.

$10 to $20 Saved

Your money refunded after six months' trial if Clapp's Ideal Steel Range is not 50 per cent. to 100 per cent. better than you can buy elsewhere. My superior location on Lake Erie, where iron, steel, coal, freights and skilled labor are the cheapest and best, enables me to furnish a TOP NOTCH Steel Range at a clean saving of $10 to $20, quality considered. Freight paid east of Miss. River and North of Tennessee, and equalized beyond.

Send for free catalogs of all styles and sizes, with or without reservoir, for city, town or country use.

CHESTER D. CLAPP, 620 Summit Street, Toledo, Ohio.
(Practical Stove and Range Man.)

GREATEST HOUSEHOLD NECESSITY FREE!

THE "1900" BALL-BEARING FAMILY WASHER SENT FREE without deposit or advance payment of any kind, freight paid both ways, on 30 days' trial. Unquestionably greatest family labor saver ever invented. Saves time, expense, and wear and tear. Will do the family washing without boiling clothes, hand-scrubbing or back-breaking. Revolves on bicycle ball bearings and is therefore easiest running washer ever made. Will do two hours' washing in ten minutes. Washes blankets as well as laces, absolutely clean, and without the slightest injury.

KANSAS CITY, MO., May 14, 1902.

"I have given your washer a fair trial. It is the best washer I ever saw. It has washed our heavy blankets with ease. I washed them last spring and rubbed more than an hour, and yet they had to go through again, but the "1900" Washer cleaned them thoroughly clean. We do our washing very quick and have no tired and worn-out feeling as of old." MRS. J. L. BANNER, 4302 Troost Ave.

It costs nothing to try. Sent absolutely free, freight paid both ways, for a trial of 30 days. No money required in advance.

Write at once for book and particulars to

THE "1900" WASHER CO.,
33 F, State Street, BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

GREATEST

Labor saving device ever invented, worth three closets, prevents waste, saves time, trouble, space and labor. Convenient places for baking utensils, cereal products, spices, table linen, etc. We make 20 styles, all sizes, price $2.50 and up. Following bargain catalogues FREE. Get our wholesale factory prices.
Kitchen Cabinets and Furniture No. 530 A. General Merchandise No. 580 C.
Sewing Machines and Organs - - 530 B. Office Furniture - - No. 530
E. H. STAFFORD & BROTHERS, CHICAGO.

AND SO

She Found How the Coffee Habit Could Be Easily Left Off.

"My husband had coffee dyspepsia for a number of years," writes a lady from Dundee, N. Y. "Coffee did not agree with him as it soured on his stomach, and he decided to stop it.

"We felt the need of some warm drink and tried several things, but were soon tired of them. Finally a friend told me of the good Postum Food Coffee had done her family, and I ordered a package from the grocer.

"We have used it for three years with splendid result. It agrees perfectly with his stomach and dyspepsia has entirely left him. I find in talking to people who have used Postum and not liked it that the reason is that they do not let it boil long enough. When prepared according to directions, it makes a beautiful, clear, golden brown beverage like the highest grade of coffee in color.

"We let the children have Postum every morning and it agrees with them nicely and they thrive on it. I am sure that if everyone using coffee would change to Postum that the percentage of invalids would be far less than it is at present." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

It is easy to change from coffee to Postum and the benefit is sure and quick, for Postum is composed only of the grains intended by Nature for man's subsistence and it goes to work in Nature's way to correct the disorders caused by coffee and rebuild the broken down blood and nerve cells. A ten days' trial of Postum will prove this to the most skeptical.

UNIVERSITY EXTENSION

By Correspondence in

ENGINEERING

MAIN BUILDING, ARMOUR INSTITUTE

Instruction Under Members of Faculty of Armour Institute of Technology.

COURSES IN

Electrical, Mechanical, Locomotive, Stationary, Marine and Sanitary Engineering; Navigation, Architecture, Mechanical and Perspective Drawing, Sheet Metal Work, Textile Manufacturing. Also 40 Short Special Engineering Courses.

In addition to regular instruction papers, students in full Engineering courses are furnished a Technical Reference Library (in ten volumes) as a help in their studies. Catalogue sent upon request.

American School of Correspondence

at

Armour Institute of Technology

Chicago, Ill.

Mention Christian Herald

72 Pieces of New Sheet Music FREE

A Chance to Join a Club That Will Make and Save Money for You.

Everybody should join the Mutual Literary Music Club of America. There is nothing else like it anywhere. It costs almost nothing to join and the benefits it gives are wonderful. It enables you to purchase books and periodicals, music and musical instruments at special cut prices. It secures reduced rates at many hotels. It answers questions free of charge. It offers scholarships and valuable cash prizes to members. It maintains club rooms in many cities for its members. In addition, every member receives the official magazine entitled "EVERY MONTH" a publication in a class by itself, including 6 pieces of high-class vocal and instrumental music, full size, each month without extra charge; 72 pieces in one year in all. YOU CAN GET ALL OF THESE BENEFITS for almost nothing.

The full yearly membership fee is One Dollar for which you get all above, and you may withdraw any time within three months if you want to do so and get your dollar back. If you don't care to spend $1.00, send 25 cents for three months membership. Nobody can afford to pass this offer by. You will get your money back in value many times over. Full particulars will be sent free of charge, but if you are wise you will send in your request for membership with the proper fee at once. The 25 cts. three months membership offer will not be held open long. Write at once addressing your letter and enclosing $1.00 for full year's membership or twenty-five cents for three months to

MUTUAL LITERARY MUSIC CLUB.
Sec'y 63 No. 150 Nassau St., N. Y. City.

MISSOURI 5% INVESTMENTS.

Let me send you my book. Farm Mortgages. Unquestioned Security. 5 Wardell Bldg., Macon, Mo.

WM. R. COMPTON.

A KALAMAZOO STOVE ON TRIAL 30 DAYS.

This ought to interest you. Write for catalogue 108.

KALAMAZOO STOVE CO., Kalamazoo, Mich.

APOSTOLIC INJUNCTIONS

Paul's Message to a Young European Church

By Mrs. M. Baxter

IT was to the church at Thessalonica that Paul unfolded the coming of the Lord Jesus. The natural heart always seeks its own. Some of the converts got intoxicated with the prospect. "If this is what we are to look for," thought some of them, "we may as well leave off working for our daily bread. The Lord may come to-morrow; the richer Christians can easily maintain us during the short interval, and we shall find it easier to preach if we have not to spend our time and strength in working." Paul was not responsible for this. While he was with them he worked for his living, and he exhorted them: "Study to be quiet and to do your own business, and to work with your own hands as we commanded you; that ye may walk honestly toward them that are without, and that ye may have lack of nothing."

The enemy of souls seeks always to pervert the truths of Scripture which bring us most immediately and constantly in touch with God. The coming of the Lord and his words about the healing of the body have been especially travestied by him. The natural impulse of fallen nature to pry into the future, which has led unsaved men in all ages into unlawful intercourse with evil spirits, has also led many men of God into unhealthy speculations as to the time of our Lord's coming. Paul guards against this when he says, "But of the times and the seasons, brethren, ye have no need that I write unto you; for yourselves know perfectly"—all that you need to know—the suddenness and unexpectedness of his coming "as a thief in the night." They knew also their call to be found of him "unblameable in holiness," and thus he exhorts them to be ready; not to sleep as do others, but to watch and be sober—to live always as though he were coming to-day. It may be to-day; let us also watch and be sober.

And yet, lest some should think that they who live to see the coming of our Lord are in any way superior to others who may pass through death, he says: "Our Lord Jesus Christ . . . died for us, that, whether we wake or sleep, we should live together with him" (I. Thess. 5: 10). And meanwhile "comfort yourselves together and edify one another, even as also ye do" (ver. 11.) This is the first of a number of exhortations as precious for us as for this early Church. They are to know, and to esteem very highly in love—and this precludes criticising—"them which are over you in the Lord, and admonish you." Are we not all more or less guilty in this matter? Many of us grieve over the deadness, worldliness, and formality of our churches, and perhaps expect great things of the ministers; but do we constantly bear them up in believing prayer, and all the more if there is anything especially unsatisfactory in their life or doctrine?

An earnest child of God frequently attended the church of one of the rationalistic preachers. Unknown to him, she constantly bore him on her heart in prayer. Years passed on, and then, although several earnest Christians had left the church, she still went there, and still prayed; and a wonderful change came over him; he who had denied the inspiration of the Scriptures began to come to them himself as a little child, and to subject his highly trained intellect to Him who made it. Now life reigns where all was death, because one child of God obeyed the Scripture in I. Thess. 5: 12, 13. The next words seem to be addressed to the teachers: Warn them that are unruly. Who are these? Those who work not at all, but are busybodies (II. Thess. 3: 6–12); from such the church and its teachers are to withdraw. "Comfort the feeble-minded, or faint-hearted; support the weak," instead of avoiding them; "be longsuffering toward all." We see in the Church of today very many faint-hearted and weak members who need the longsuffering of all. Are we as patient with them as the apostle here exhorts us to be? Do we tenderly take them by the hand and seek to strengthen them?

From our relations to the brethren Paul turns to our relations with all men. "See that none render evil for evil to any man"—no retaliation is to be found in one who has been much forgiven, through the crucified Jesus, "but ever follow that which is good, both among yourselves and to all men." The apostle never gives commandments without showing us where the power to obey them is to come from. "Rejoice evermore": with such a God and such a salvation we have good cause for it. A Christian who is not a rejoicing Christian is always a feeble Christian—he does not appreciate his God. "Pray without ceasing: in everything give thanks." Constant prayer, if it is in faith, gives constant cause for thanksgiving because it is answered; but the fact that we may pray always, and that God is ready to hear and undertake for us, leads us into the habit of seeing by faith the petition already undertaken by the Lord, and thanksgiving is the certain consequence. "For this [i. e., constant prayer in the spirit of thanksgiving] is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you."

EARLY WINTER NUMBERS OF

THE SATURDAY EVENING POST

An Illustrated Weekly Magazine

Established 1725 by Benjamin Franklin and regularly published for 175 years

To Begin January 17

GOLDEN FLEECE

The American Adventures of a Fortune-Hunting Lord

In this sparkling serial story of American society Mr. David Graham Phillips makes us personally acquainted with a certain type of Englishman.

His campaign, begun on the liner, is continued in New York, Boston, Washington, Philadelphia and Chicago. In each of these cities we are given a glimpse of the local "Smart Set" and its own peculiar fads and foibles. The end—an unexpected one—comes in Chicago.

Another strong feature now running:

Papers by De Blowitz

The distinguished Paris correspondent of the London Times. For thirty years he has been of the inner circle, and his brilliant achievements have won for him a unique position in European politics.

February 1st the subscription price will be increased FROM $1.00 TO $2.00 per year. Send a Dollar now and secure a Two-Dollar Magazine for half price.

The Curtis Publishing Company
Philadelphia, Pa.

The World's Regulator

Nearly ten million Elgin watches act as one great pendulum in regulating the hours of business, travel and pleasure the world over. Every is made of the finest materials by the most skilled hands.

ELGIN Watch

Always look for the watch word "Elgin," engraved on the works of the world's best watches. Send for free booklet about watches.

ELGIN NATIONAL WATCH CO., Elgin, Ill.

BOOK SALESMEN

Clergymen, School Principals and others who wish to devote all or part of their time to easy, honorable and profitable work on "Heroes of History," the new successful 25 volume history of the world in biography. Address

The Perkins Book Company, 296 Broadway, N. Y.

The "Best" Light

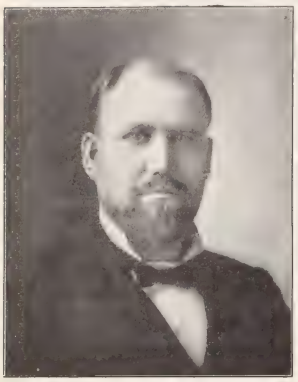
Is a portable 100 candle power light, costing only 2 cts. per week. Makes and burns its own gas. Brighter than electricity or acetylene, and cheaper than kerosene. No Dirt. No Grease. No Odor. Over 100 styles. Lighted instantly with a match. Every lamp warranted. Agents Wanted Everywhere.

THE "BEST" LIGHT CO.
3—70 E. 5th Street, CANTON, OHIO.

Bringing Comrades to Christ

A Christian Training School Where Nearly All the Students are Converts

TEN years ago, a Christian work was begun in Seattle, in a modest way and under difficult surroundings, by the Rev. Alexander Beers, a well-known minister of that city. It is the training institution, which has now become widely known throughout the State of Washington as Seattle Seminary. The attendance, the first term, was scarcely more than a dozen. There was a debt on the property, and from the human side the outlook was exceedingly dark. But soon the interest and attendance increased, and it became evident that the training school was to enter on a broader sphere of usefulness. The debt disappeared as by magic, another fine building was erected and paid for, and the attendance increased, until there are now 140 enthusiastic young people, whose lives are devoted to the Master's work.



REV. ALEXANDER BEERS

The main object of the founders of Seattle Seminary, was to provide a place on the coast where education for Christian character and usefulness could be carried forward. The students and members of the faculty live in the same buildings, eat at the same table, attend religious services together, and are one in heart and soul in all religious work. This daily contact has a most inspiring and encouraging effect on the students. Indeed, it is a remarkable fact, that the students are nearly all brought to Christ before remaining in the institution any great length of time. Of one hundred and forty enrolled at present, all but four or five are earnest Christians. The institution is like a Christian family, where the personal salvation of each member is earnestly sought and constantly expected.

Another special object is to prepare young people for the Gospel ministry and the missionary field. While they have as complete courses of study as are to be found in any other institution of academic grade, and are conscientiously thorough in their college preparatory work, yet spreading the Gospel in all lands is the great ultimate object of all. At present a large number of efficient young men and women students are preaching the Gospel acceptably in various places in the home land, while some are in the foreign mission field. Last year, Prof. and Mrs. Clarke, two of the best workers in the institution, were sent to India, where they have charge of a department of missionary work. Others are arranging to go in the near future to China, Japan, and other lands.

The influence of these consecrated students has been felt in the work in the slum missions of Seattle. The Seattle Wayside Mission has afforded them an open door for great usefulness and practical experience.

Rev. Alexander Beers, President of the institution, who has been connected with it from the beginning, is making broad plans for the enlargement of the work. He is planning for an endowment fund, to be used in erecting buildings in Seattle, the income from which will be expended in preparing young people for Gospel and missionary work, and sending them forth to needy fields.

There is no "perhaps" about the OSTERMOOR MATTRESS $15.

THE OSTERMOOR PATENT ELASTIC FELT MATTRESS consists of any, interlacing, fibrous sheets of snowy whiteness and great elasticity; closed in the tick by hand construction, not stuffed, softer than hair, never mats or packs as hair does and never needs remaking, and is absolutely vermin-proof. In all respects practically unimpeachable, retaining its shape and elasticity under all sorts of conditions and hard usage. The old-fashioned hair mattress has distasteful and dangerous possibilities. The hair is taken from the bodies of dead beasts. Vermin and germs have doubtless lodged in it, for it cannot be sterilly purified. Such a mattress will absorb moisture, and needs frequent "making over" – which is a dirty job. There is no "perhaps" – no doubts about THE OSTERMOOR. Remember our offer:

SLEEP ON IT THIRTY NIGHTS FREE.

We sell on the distinct agreement that you may return it at our expense and get your money back (without dispute) if not satisfactory in every possible way, if it is not all you ever hoped for, at the end of thirty nights' free trial. And positively guarantee that the best $50 Hair Mattress made is not its equal in cleanliness, durability or comfort. It is the best mattress ever made at any price, and is not an imitation of anything else. Don't believe anyone who says it is "just like this," or "just like that." It is just like nothing but itself. BEWARE of imitations trading on the name of "felt." If it is not an "Ostermoor" it's not a felt mattress. Our name and guarantee on every genuine mattress.

Send for Handsome Book FREE We have spent thousands of dollars in perfecting our handsome book, "The Test of Time," which we mail free. It costs us 25 cents, but costs you nothing but the postal card to ask for it. It tells about a product and a process of manufacture on which every intelligent man and woman should be posted, whether they want a mattress or not. We want you to have this book – simply send your name on a postal. We don't ask you to buy, although we hope some day you will.

STANDARD SIZES AND PRICES:

2 feet 6 inches wide, 25 lbs.,	$8.35
3 feet wide, 30 lbs.,	10.00
3 feet 6 inches wide, 35 lbs.,	11.70
4 feet wide, 40 lbs.,	13.35
4 feet 6 inches wide, 45 lbs.,	15.00

All six feet three inches long.
In 2 parts 50c. extra. Special sizes at special prices.
WE PREPAY ALL EXPRESS CHARGES.

CHURCH CUSHIONS.

We make and renovate them quickly, thoroughly, and cheaper than you imagine. They are in use in over 25,000 churches. Send for our new book "Church Cushions," which contains (among others) a remarkable letter from Rev. D. S. MacArthur, of Calvary Baptist Church, New York.

OSTERMOOR & COMPANY, - 115 Elizabeth Street, New York.

40 BEAUTIFUL FLOWERS FREE

SEND US 25c. to cover cost of packing and postage, and receive this grand "Sunshine" collection of Beautiful Flowers, our new catalogue containing the most liberal offers ever made, and a CASH CHECK for 25c., giving you your money back.

20 PACKETS SEED

1 Pkt Evening Primrose	1 Pkt Giant Daisy
1 Pkt Kudzu Vine	1 Pkt Aster
1 Pkt Balloon Vine	1 Pkt Begonia
1 Pkt Baby Rose	1 Pkt Cal. Poppy
1 Pkt Blue Bells	1 Pkt Love Lies Bleeding
1 Pkt Star Flower	2 Pkts Pansy (named)
1 Pkt Double Carnation	1 Pkt Chrysanthemum
1 Pkt Petunia, white	1 Pkt Double Portulacca
	1 Pkt Sweet Pea
	1 Pkt Cypress Vine
	1 Pkt Wild Flower, garden

20 Bulbs 1 Calla, 1 Madeira Vine, 2 Gladiolus, 2 Cinnamon Vine, 1 Amaryllis, 2 Hyacinth, 1 Montbretia. 10 Bulbs for Edging or Hanging Basket. 20 Pkts Seed, 20 Bulbs, Cash Check and Catalogue all for the price of the packing and postage 25c.

J. ROSCOE FULLER & CO., Floral Park, N. Y.

VICK'S GARDEN AND FLORAL GUIDE for 1903

IT IS FREE

Valuable to every one who plants seeds—whether it's only a flower bed or an immense farm. It is not a mere catalogue, but a work of reference, full of profitable information about Flowers, Plants, Fruits and Vegetables. Helps you to cultivate your ground for greater profit or greater pleasure. Handsomely illustrated in colors and half-tones.

JAMES VICK'S SONS
Box 1510, Rochester, N. Y.

SEEDS THAT SUCCEED

The seed house of D. Landreth & Sons, the oldest in America, has had 119 years' experience with seeds, and the results of this are placed at the service of farmers and gardeners in a finely illustrated catalogue, issued free. No grower of seeds, professional or amateur, can afford to be without the valuable information contained in this catalogue. Send for it.

WHITE STAR CLIMBER

No one beside Landreth offers this exquisite in-door Winter climber for window decoration. In the house it will bloom all Winter, covering a window; and in Spring, after being cut down and planted out, will grow 15 feet high before Mid-Summer. Regular price 20c, but offered now for four 2c stamps if ordered immediately.

Good Gardens Assured

JAS. VICK, formerly of Rochester, Manager of Mail Order Department.

D. Landreth & Sons, Philadelphia.

$47.50 OUR GENUINE SPLIT HICKORY SPECIAL TOP BUGGY is sold direct from the makers at $47.50 and 30 DAYS' FREE TRIAL allowed before acceptance. This is YOUR chance, Just drop postal for catalogue.

OHIO CARRIAGE MFG. CO.,
Station 54, Cincinnati, Ohio.

ANY LADY who will sell or use 8 pounds of Clifton Baking Powder (according to plan 97), will receive our full size 27-piece decorated tea set and $1.00 worth of sample Coffee, Tea, Extracts, Soaps, Glassware, etc. We will send all the goods as well as the Tea Set in the same shipment, allowing two weeks in which to send us the money. Our catalogue containing illustrations of Side-Boards, Furs, Silver Ware, Lace Curtains, Chairs, Couches, Rugs, Skirts and full information will be mailed free for the asking. You can furnish your home without investing any money whatever.

CHAS. T. WALTHALL & CO., B 7, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

SEEDS Vegetable and Flower. In fact everything in the Nursery and Florist line. We send by mail postpaid Seeds, Plants, Roses, Bulbs, Small Trees, Etc., safe arrival and satisfaction guaranteed, larger by express or freight. Send for our elegant 168 page free catalogue and see what values we give for your money. 49 years, 44 greenhouses, 1,000 acres.

THE STORRS & HARRISON CO.,
Box 220, PAINESVILLE, OHIO.

For nearly half a century

Ferry's Seeds

have been growing famous in every kind of soil, everywhere. Sold by all dealers. 1903 Seed Annual postpaid free to all applicants.

D. M. FERRY & CO.
Detroit, Mich.

Counting Chicks Before Hatching

is not safe unless you have an

IOWA ROUND INCUBATOR

R. C. Bauerminster, Norwood, Minn., got 493 chicks from 503 eggs. He followed directions, the machine did the work, because it was built on right principles and by good workmen. The IOWA has fiber-board case, does not shrink, swell, warp or crack. Regulation and ventilation perfect. Our free book gives more testimonials and full particulars. Everything about incubation free.

IOWA INCUBATOR COMPANY, BOX 246 DES MOINES, IOWA

Run Themselves.

Heating, ventilating, moistening, all automatic. CYPHERS INCUBATORS do all the work. Guaranteed superior to all others or money back, you to be the judge. Send 10c for 196 page book (No. 87) "How to Make Money with Poultry and Incubators." Covers entire poultry field.

CYPHERS INCUBATOR CO.,
Buffalo, N. Y., Chicago, Ill., Boston, Mass., New York, N. Y.

Self Supplied Moisture

You Can Succeed

in the poultry business just as we have if you follow the same plans. We tell all about what we have done and how we did it, in our new year book,

"Poultry for Profit."

Gives cuts of every variety of fowl, together with prices for singles, pairs, trios and pens, and eggs for hatching, in season. Cuts and plans for poultry houses. It cost too much money and time to be given away, but is sent for 10 cents.

THE J. W. MILLER CO., Box 179 Freeport, Ill.

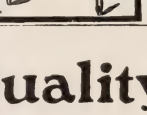
TRY IT FIRST FOR 30 DAYS

That's the way we sell the

ROYAL INCUBATOR,

the best self-regulating, automatic incubator in the world. It works perfectly. If not entirely in every way send it back. Cat'g free.

ROYAL INCUBATOR CO.,
Dept. 71, Des Moines, Iowa.



FENCE! STRONGEST MADE. Bull Strong, Chicken-Tight. Sold to the Farmer at Wholesale Prices. Fully Warranted. Catalog Free.

COILED SPRING FENCE CO.
Box 47 Winchester, Indiana, U. S. A.

VIGOROUS CHICKS are the results of Petaluma Incubators. They maintain Nature's conditions. They have no accidents, make no failures. Catalogue free.

PETALUMA INCUBATOR COMPANY,
Box 64 Petaluma, Cal. Box 64 Indianapolis, Ind.

We pay freight in the U. S.

THE VERY LATEST

Don't buy an incubator until you see the new regulator on the Sure Hatch. Greatest improvement ever made. Catalog free.

SURE HATCH INCUBATOR CO.,
Clay Center, Neb., or Columbus, Ohio.

30 days free trial.

FREE A Catalogue of Rare and Choice Palms, Dwarf Pot Oranges, etc. Jessamine Gardens, Jessamine, Fla. FLOWERS

The Burpee Quality in Seeds

Best that can be Grown! The new "Silent Salesman" of the largest mail-order seed trade in the world will be sent with 184 pages of useful information and hundreds of true illustrations,—if you mail a postal to

W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Seed Farmers, Philadelphia

Mellin's Food

does not overtax the infant's stomach with insoluble, indigestible or unsuitable material.

SEND A POSTAL FOR A FREE SAMPLE OF MELLIN'S FOOD.

Mellin's Food Co., Boston, Mass.

Vapo-Cresolene

AN INHALATION FOR

Whooping Cough, Croup, Bronchitis, Coughs, Grip, Hay Fever, Diphtheria, Scarlet Fever,

Don't fail to use CRESOLENE for the distressing and often fatal affections for which it is recommended. For more than twenty years we have had the most conclusive assurances that there is nothing better. Ask your physician about it.

An interesting descriptive booklet is sent free, which gives the highest testimonials as to its value.

ALL DRUGGISTS.

VAPO-CRESOLENE CO., 180 Fulton Street, New York.

ONLY $1.00 Cut this ad. out and send to us with $1.00, and we will send you this handsome RESERVOIR COOK STOVE, by freight C.O.D., subject to examination. You can examine it at your nearest railroad station, and if found perfectly satisfactory, exactly as represented, the equal of stoves others sell at $15.00 to $20.00, then pay the railroad agent Our $11.64 and freight charges, less SPECIAL PRICE... the $1.00 sent with order.

This is the regular 8-18 size, 18x17x11 oven, 24x44 top, weighs 300 pounds, burns coal or wood, handsomely nickel trimmed, large porcelain lined reservoir, made in our own foundry and one of the best cook stoves built.

WE SELL STEEL RANGES AT $12.98 and up-wards, and in our own foundry we make all kinds of steel and cast iron stoves and ranges, also everything in heating stoves, which we ship to any address at actual foundry cost, with but our one small percentage of profit added. Write for FREE STOVE CATALOGUE. Address, SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., CHICAGO, ILL.

5% Per Annum

NO SPECULATION

Paid in Capital $1,000,000

Assets $1,600,000

Surplus $185,000

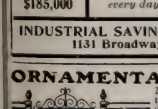
Our business is regularly inspected by and conducted under absolute supervision of State Banking Department.

Our depositors include many of the most prominent clergymen, professional and business men in the country, whose endorsements, together with full information of our methods, we will gladly send upon request.

Deposits may be made or withdrawn at any time and bear earnings for every day invested.

INDUSTRIAL SAVINGS AND LOAN CO.
1131 Broadway, New York

ORNAMENTAL FENCING



Made of steel. Best workmanship. Handsomest in design. Perfect yard protection. LOWEST IN PRICE. Fully Guaranteed. Special prices to Churches and Cemeteries. Catalogue FREE.

KITSELMAN BROTHERS,
Oak St. Muncie, Indiana.

DON'T SET HENS the same old way while a 200 Egg Natural Hen Incubator Costs But $5, other sizes equally as low. Over 125,000 in use. Indispensable to anyone who keeps a hen. Our Patents protected against infringement. Agents wanted everywhere, either sex, no experience necessary. Catalogue explaining about and Our Live Formula FREE. If you write today.

NATURAL HEN INCUBATOR CO., Box 1 Columbus, Nebraska.

CLEAN CUT CAKE TIN

FREE TO AGENTS

Flat thin knife cuts loaves a perfect cake. $2 Outfit free Exp. prepaid. Dept. T

HOUSEHOLD NOVELTY WORKS, Chicago, Ill., or Buffalo, N.Y.

QUAINT PSALMS for QUEER FOLK

BY REV. C. H. YATMAN

Psalm LIII—Second Fool's Psalm

1. The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God. Corrupt are they, and have done abominable iniquity: there is none that doeth good.

2. God looked down from heaven upon the children of men, to see if there were any that did understand, that did seek God.

3. Every one of them is gone back, they are altogether become filthy; there is none that doeth good, no, not one.

"GOD LOOKETH DOWN"

There must be some good reason why a Psalm is repeated in the Bible. Possibly it is because so many folk, sometimes good folk, play the fool. What folly, for instance, to hope for salvation in conduct instead of Christ, or to rule God out of our reckonings, or to side against him in matters of duty and destiny.

How foolish to join the multitude of backsliders! No one of them was ever happy. They can't be.

Psalm LIV—Psalm for the Oppressed

1. Save me, O God, by thy name, and judge me by thy strength. 2. Hear my prayer, O God: give ear to the words of my mouth.

"GOD IS MINE HELPER"

3. For strangers are risen up against me, and oppressors seek after my soul.

4. Behold, God is mine helper: the Lord is with them that uphold my soul.

"Oppressors seek after my soul." There are more Davids that have Sauls seeking after them. Javelins get hurled at many choice spirits; the weight of an evil fist is felt by those who never think of striking back. What came to the Master, will overtake the servant, but the promise is, "If we suffer with Him, we shall also reign with Him in glory."

Psalm LV—Burden Bearer's Psa m

8. I would hasten my escape from the windy storm and tempest. 22. Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and he shall sustain thee: he shall never suffer the righteous to be moved.

"I WOULD HASTEN"

23. But thou, O God, shalt bring them down into the pit of destruction: bloody and deceitful men shall not live out half their days; but I will trust in thee.

"Peace after pain." The agony of this Psalm is great: the collar chafes, and the load crushes. Fried turned into fog, the burden becomes too heavy; then amidst the gloom, like the sound of a silver bell at night, there rings out, "Cast thy burdens upon the Lord." The sigh is turned into song, the weights into wings, doubt gives place to trust, and the pilgrimage continued.

Psalm LVI—Psalm of Confidence

1. Be merciful unto me, O God: for man would swallow me up: he fighting daily oppresseth me.

2. Mine enemies would daily swallow me up: for they be many that fight against me, O thou Most High.

3. What time I am afraid, I will trust in thee.

4. In God I will praise his Word, in God I have put my trust; I will not fear what flesh can do unto me.

"KEEP THY FEET FROM FALLING"

Misplaced confidence is multiplied sorrow, and furnishes many tears for God to bottle up. But the Son of God never betrayed a trust or failed in jot or tittle of all his Word. The One who saves a soul from death can keep the feet from falling. Before the grave, at it, and after, the friendship of Jesus can be al solutely relied upon.

O'Neill's

Clearing the Christmas Merchandise is the order of the day, and the prices we have made will certainly do it.

The Reductions affect the following lines:

Fancy Goods, Silver Novelties.
Brush, Comb and Mirror Sets and Fancy Stationery.
Umbrellas, Handkerchiefs, Lace Neckwear, etc., etc.
Men's and Women's Fancy Hosiery, Neckwear, Gloves, etc.
Fancy Rockers in Golden Oak and Mahogany.
Music Cabinets and Desks in Mahogany.
China Closets in Solid Quartered Golden Oak and Mahogany.
Parlor Tables in Solid Mahogany and Quartered Golden Oak.
Rich American Cut Glass and many lines of China.
Dress and Shirt Waist Patterns in Black and Colors, etc., etc.

Buy your Groceries at O'Neill's—They are the best and purest in the town and our prices are the lowest for similar grades.

Sixth Avenue, 20th to 21st Street.
NEW YORK

A NEW INVENTION! Big Money MAKER.

BIG WAGES TO HUSTLERS. Write for Special offer to Men and Women, at home or traveling, as agents for HARRISON'S BLUE FLAME NEW FUEL OIL STOVES, with or without Radiator attachment for heating. Wonderful invention. Just out. Nothing else like it. A Great Seller.

Splendid for Cooking and Heating

We want Agents, Salesmen and Managers in every State. Biggest money-makers ever offered. Enormous demand year round, in every city, town, village and among farmers. Customers delighted.

Write for catalogue—Most Wonderful Stove ever Invented.

A Spoonful of Oil Makes A Hogshead of Fuel Gas.

Generates its own Fuel Gas from Kerosene or common coal oil. No wick, dirt, smoke, kindling, ashes. Splendid for cooking. Makes fine Heating Stove for rooms, stores, offices, with Radiator attachment.

CHEAPEST AND SAFEST FUEL 10 to 20 CENTS a week should furnish Fuel Gas for small family for cooking. A gallon of Kerosene oil cooking 8c to 10c will furnish Fuel Gas for a constant blue flame, hottest fire, for about eighteen hours.

NO MORE BIG COAL BILLS—Expensive, dirty coal and wood stoves, smoky oil wick stoves, dangerous gasoline stoves, etc. Our stoves are a delight—absolutely safe—will not explode, simple, easily operated. Handsomely made of sheet steel, finely finished last for years. All sizes. PRICES, $3.00 UP.

Write to-day for Catalogue FREE. ALSO FOR SPECIAL OFFER, NEW PLAN, ETC.

Address, WORLD MANUFACTURING CO., 5275 WORLD BUILDING, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

Write for Free Sewing Machine Catalog.

AT $8.65 to $26.75

we offer for sale the largest assortment in the world of light running and perfect pivot and BALL-BEARING SEWING MACHINES that do perfect work. We have drop-head, cabinet-desk, upright and automatic styles in plain or richly carved cabinets, all fitted with our famous "Paulitess" extra high and extra long arm heads, which possess all improvements of $40 to $60 machines and many valuable improvements not found elsewhere by us. OUR FREE SEWING MACHINE CATALOG illustrates and describes our machines in detail, tells all about the mechanism and woodwork, gives hundreds of testimonials from people using our machines and demonstrates decisively that our machines are as good as $50 to $75 equal any other machines at any price, no matter what the name may be. We guarantee our machines 20 years, ship on easy terms, C. O. D., subject to examination and allow 20 days' free trial in your home. For your own good you should not buy a machine anywhere before seeing our catalog. Write to-day. JOHN M. SMYTH CO., 150 to 159 W. Madison St., CHICAGO, ILL.

LOST SIGHT OF

A Most Important Aid to Education.

An important point often overlooked by parents in bringing up children is the use of [illegible] food as an aid to education.

Children make wonderful progress when scientifically fed.

A little woman in East Brentwood, N. H., [illegible] her girlhood days, "I was never very rugged and cold lunches and hearty evening [illegible] and improper food soon began to work [illegible]

Then came a period of self-boarding while [illegible] and to-day [illegible] in the haste to acquire knowledge the true knowledge of proper and nourishing food was neglected. The result, as may be imagined, was indigestion, dyspepsia and constipation. Then followed a weary time of dieting and [illegible] after another, physicians were consulted, till hope of permanent relief was abandoned. Then, two years after leaving school, I entered a new home as a bride and having grown wiser through experience, I resolved to use food in accordance with hygienic principles. This was also necessary as I could not eat anything at all rich.

We commenced to use Grape-Nuts and soon became convinced that it was the most nutritious food we could obtain. I noticed an immediate improvement in my health, my indigestion became less marked and eventually left me for good.

It is now two years that we have eaten Grape-Nuts regularly, and I was never as well in my life as now. I have gained ten pounds in weight and can eat, without causing the slightest distress, the richest kind of food as well as anyone, the dyspepsia is entirely gone and constipation never troubles me.

This may not interest others, but it is of great interest to us, for it is our firm belief that my present good health is due solely to the constant use of Grape-Nuts and we feel that we have great reason to be thankful to the maker of such a perfect and delicious food." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

ARTISTIC MONUMENTS

DUE respect for our departed loved ones demands that we erect ARTISTIC and ENDURING MEMORIALS

Marble has proved an unfortunate failure. Moss-grown, broken and tumbled-down slabs appear everywhere. Some cemeteries have probably marble entirely. Granite, too, soon gets discolored, disfigured by growth, cracks, crumbles and decays. Besides, it is very expensive.

WHITE BRONZE monuments are cheaper and . . . Infinitely Better. They are perfectly everlasting. Rust, corrosion and moss growth are IMPOSSIBILITIES. They CANNOT crumble from the action of frost. WHITE BRONZE is far more artistic and expressive than any stone. Then why not investigate it? It has been on the market for over twenty-five years and has established success.

It has been adopted for more than a hundred public monuments and by thousands of delighted individuals in all parts of the country. Many private purchasers have used White Bronze in preference to granite for their own burial plots.

We have hundreds of beautiful designs at prices from $4 to $5000. We deal direct and deliver everywhere. Inquiries are cheerfully answered. Write us at once for designs and information if you are interested. It costs nothing and puts you under no obligations whatever.

Special Inducements Offered on Winter Orders.

Over $5000 worth of work sold to Christian Herald readers in the last few years. AGENTS WANTED.

THE MONUMENTAL BRONZE CO.,
70-90 Howard Ave., Bridgeport, Conn.

If you want most for your money insist on President
being stamped in the buckle when you buy Suspenders
Fifty cents and a dollar.
Ask at favorite shop, or post prepaid from
C. A. EDGARTON MFG. CO.
Box 209 H, Shirley, Mass.
Send 4 cents for catalogue.

SALESMEN AND AGENTS WANTD.

BIG WAGES—for Famous Puritan Water Still, a wonderful, scientific home Filters. 75,000 already sold. Demand enormous. Everybody buys. Over the kitchen stove it furnishes plenty of distilled, aerated, delicious, Pure Water. Only method—saves typhoid and Dr. bills; prevents cholera, malaria fevers. Write for Booklet, New Plan, Terms, Etc. FREE. Address,

Harrison Mfg. Co., 668 Harrison Bldg., Cincinnati, O.

The Head of the Family

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 33

maid. But I didn't know I broke th' glass, an' dood I didn't."

"All right," said Sam, good-naturedly. "I believe you. Now, where's your father?"

"He was killed in th' mine last year, sir."

The president of the "local" nodded.

"That's right," he said, "we buried him."

"And you've looked out for his family since, I suppose, Simms?" put in Mr. Carver, with just a trace of irony in his voice.

"Well, no," answered Simms, flushing a little. "The fact is, Boyton didn't stand very well with the Union—he'd got into trouble and fallen behind—I don't say it was his fault. Still, I didn't know—"

"Oh, of course, not—we never do know—not till it's too late," rejoined the other savagely. "You fellows talk about protecting the working man, and here's an instance of that same brand of protection. You order a strike without any idea what it's going to lead to. Well, see here, my boy," he added, turning to Jimmy, "our fool of an office-boy went out with the rest of the strikers, so you report for duty here at seven o'clock Monday morning. You got seventy-five cents a day at the breaker, didn't you?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, you'll get a dollar a day after this, and more in time, if you do your work right."

The boy's lips were trembling so he could not speak. But the mine-owner saw the thankfulness in his eyes, and smiled kindly as he waved him away. For a moment he fumbled blindly at the door. At last he got it open, and stepped out, a great joy at his heart. Not until then did he see the crowd of boys massed before him.

"Scab!" they yelled; "scab!" And before he could think of flight or make a movement to protect himself they were upon him. They clutched him, hurled him down, struck him, kicked him.

The men within the office had turned again to their consultation with knitted brows when the uproar reached them. With a bound, Mr. Carver was at the window and pulled back the blind.

"Come here, Simms," he called, in a voice shaking with rage. "Here's a sample of the sort of beasts you've got to deal with."

For an instant Simms stared over his shoulder at the throng of boys maltreating some object, at the men looking on, then, with a great oath, he leaped the railing, tore open the door and was out among the crowd. Without a word, but with blazing eyes, he knocked the boys right and left, until he came to a little figure with closed eyes and blood-stained face lying on the ground. He picked it up, and, holding it against his breast, turned to the crowd with livid face.

"You cowards!" he cried. "You fools! Don't you know that it is just this way you ruin our cause? Don't you know that to-night this outrage will be wired from one end of the country to the other? Do you think that will help you in the minds of decent people when they read about it to-morrow morning?"

He paused, his voice choking, too angry to go on. Then he turned suddenly, and, with his burden still in his arms, re-entered the company office.

TO BE CONCLUDED NEXT WEEK

"Its Value Above Its Price"

DEAR DR. KLOPSCH:—We feel that $2 does not begin to represent the intrinsic value of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD and the beautiful book The Hall of Fame, which is instructive as well as interesting. SAMUEL LEES.
Chester, Pa.

DEAFNESS

The Morley Ear-Drum

is the most recent and most effective invisible device for the relief of DEAFNESS.
It is easily adjusted, comfortable and safe. Send for descriptive booklet.

The Morley Company,
Dept. E,
19 South 16th Street, Philadelphia.

Health, Clear Skin and a Good Figure

I am trying to convince you if you want to reduce flesh, build up your figure, renew and strengthen nerve force, to be relieved of Indigestion, Sleeplessness, Constipation, Torpid Liver, Sluggish Circulation, Rheumatism, Weak Heart or Lungs, diseases peculiar to the sex, or all so-called chronic ailments, I can do more for you than physicians can do.

I thoroughly study your case, prescribe for you the diet and the bathing which your system requires and give you special exercises necessary to bring you out as an individual to perfect health and symmetry. It is to my twelve years of work with women, in person before I began my instructions by mail, that I attribute my marvelous success with my mail pupils. I have failed in but one instance to relieve the condition I set out to relieve. My work is not muscular exercise alone, it is physical culture. It begins with the causes, with the vital organs, the nerve centers, the lungs and the heart, and when I reduce a woman, I reduce her to stay reduced. When I build her, I build her to stay built. My work cultivates the distinguished carriage and bearing, and the engaging presence and ease, which at once bespeaks culture and refinement. It gives you poise, mental, moral, vital—perfect self-possession, a clear brain, quick perception, and a nerve force vibrant with life.

The following are some extracts from letters on my desk since my last month's advertisement:—

"Everybody notices the difference in my complexion. It has lost that yellow color almost entirely."

"My deep breathing has given me skin a new life and color, and my hair is also and feel much better. I am, indeed, grateful to you."

"Some months if not before is permanent, not necessary to realize that as development progresses, it must be permanent."

"Ladies commencing your exercises I was compelled to use glasses which hanging I'm ashamed at the present time. I begin to feel that buoyancy of body and spirit of which you speak."

"I wish I could have had a picture of my shape before and now—it would speak plainer than words can. I feel better all over."

"I never paid out any money with more satisfaction than for these lessons."

"My throat exercise is helping my throat to my great delight. The only benefit I have ever received for it."

"My catarrh is better than it has been for three years."

"I wish that every nervous woman, and their name is legion, could know what benefit is to be derived from your work."

"Miss Cocroft, I am one-half inch taller, that measurement has increased three inches, and abdomen reduced three and one-half inches."

"My neck and chest are filling out very perceptible, and I am broader across the front."

Dear Miss S. Cocroft:—"Let me thank you for all you have been doing for my wife. She feels better now than she ever felt in her life and looks better. She is ready for her third lesson, send it as soon as possible as she is very anxious to get it."

"I have neither had colds nor indigestion, though I was very subject to both. I have gained eight pounds in flesh, but am times the amount in feeling."

"I have lost twelve pounds so far—my bust and hips are smaller. I am feeling very well and full of courage."

I can take but a limited number of pupils, because I give each pupil my personal attention.

If you will write to me, I shall be glad to tell you just what I can do for you, sending you complete information in regard to my work and telling you whether I can reach your case and how. I KNOW that I can reduce prominent abdomens and hips, build up thin necks, chest and cheeks, and bring any woman to roundness and symmetry, and I can give them relief from above diseases. I have done all of these things in hundreds of times. It is no longer an experiment with me. Write to me.

For ten cents I send you an instructive and interesting booklet, showing the correct lines of woman's figure in poise and movement, and card of correct poise for your dressing table.

Yours for a body expressing perfect health, perfect grace and perfect womanhood.

SUSANNA COCROFT
Dept. 110, 57 WASHINGTON ST., CHICAGO

NOTE:—Miss Cocroft is the President of the Physical Culture Extension work in America. This is sufficient introduction to the Public.

RHEUMATISM

Relieved Without Medicine

A Sample Pair of Magic Foot Drafts will be sent prepaid FREE ON APPROVAL to anybody. TRY THEM.

Don't take drugs—most medicine isn't fit for the stomach—but try a modern adaptation of a very old principle, and treat yourself.

Almost everyone has soaked his feet in hot water for a cold in the head. Magic Foot Drafts not only produce the effect of a mild, but continuous foot soaking, opening the pores (here the largest in the body) but they stimulate the excretory functions of the skin, enabling it to throw off the acid impurities from the system through these large pores.

Magic Foot Drafts relieve rheumatism in every part of the body.

Every drop of blood in the body passes ever so often through the feet, where the circulatory and nervous systems are exceedingly susceptible.

The Drafts have great power to absorb acid poisons from the blood. Each time a contaminated drop of blood passes through the foot the Drafts absorb a portion of the acid poison, gradually but surely purifying the blood—the only way to permanently relieve rheumatism.

If you have rheumatism write us to-day and we will send you a pair of Magic Foot Drafts on free trial. If they relieve you send us One Dollar. If they don't, keep your money—the risk is ours. We know that they give permanent relief. Write to-day to the MAGIC FOOT DRAFT COMPANY, R A 14 Olive Building, Jackson, Mich. Send no money—only your name.

Peter Moller's Cod Liver Oil is different from other cod liver oils, as it is never sold in bulk. It is bottled when manufactured, thus passing direct to the consumer without the possibility of adulteration.

Moller's Cod Liver Oil is put up only in flat, oval bottles, and bears our name as sole agents.

Schieffelin & Co., New York

GIVEN AWAY FREE. No. 16. 1-4 SIZE, $1.10.

In order to introduce our GOLDEN RULE KNIVES which are forged from the very finest razor steel and tempered by the new natural gas process; with transparent handles containing your own name, photo or lodge emblem. Agents wanted everywhere. Splendid seller. Send two cents postage for particulars.

GOLDEN RULE CUTLERY WORKS,
815 W. Division St. Chicago, Ill.

WE WANT WOMEN WORKERS TO BE INDEPENDENT by selling to the best families in your locality our Toilet Preparations, Flavoring Extracts, Tea Spices, Baking Powder, Fine Soaps, and our Famous Pickstown Washing Crystal. Handsome Sample Case Free. Write to-day for full details and exclusive agents' terms. THE CRAIG BAKING POWDER CO., Dept. D, Cleveland, O.

The Natural Body Brace advertised in this paper in the first issue of this month is a delightful, certain remedy for ailments peculiar to women and girls. It makes walking and work easy; gives good figure and tight skirt. Write the Natural Body Brace Co., Box 171, Salina, Kan. for free illustrated book.

Come Here! When in search of health and rest for mind and body. Your physician will agree. Booklet free.
STEUBEN SANITARIUM, Hornellsville, N. Y.

CHRISTIAN STEWARDSHIP

The Principle of Christian Giving which God Approves

WHEN the widow dropped her two mites into the treasury of the Temple, while Jesus was teaching there, she unconsciously taught a lesson that has been ringing through Christendom for nineteen centuries. It is worth remembering, in these days of magnificent benefactions, that the gift that had upon it the explicit benediction of Christ, was the gift of half a cent. There is no doubt about the principle involved, because Christ stated it, as he did in the case of the alabaster box of ointment, in clear, unambiguous terms: "She hath cast in all her living; she hath done what she could." Many Christians are perplexed now, by the fashion, widely adopted, of returning to the old Jewish rule of giving the tenth; but there is no difficulty about the widow's rule, which is the Christian principle. If every Christian gave "what he could," the Lord's treasury would be full to overflowing.

Apart from the intrinsic value of a gift, there is a more important consideration, which God takes into account, and that is the spirit that prompts the gift. We understand that principle clearly in ordinary life. The little gift that the boy makes to his father may be of little value, but how precious it is to the father, if he knows how the boy has saved his pennies that he might make the gift! It is then an evidence of love, which is the main thing. It is evidently in this way that God regards the gifts of his people. If one needed anything he would not tell us, but he sees in every gift we make to his cause, the thankful spirit which it expresses, and this is the thing he values. The money given grudgingly, or given in indifference, or given to win the applause of others, does not count with God, as does the gift, which involves self-denial, and is given because of our love of him.

It is a remarkable fact that God blesses the giving soul. The man who gives freely and gives in the right spirit is sure to prosper. God sees that he can be trusted with money, and he blesses him with success in his undertakings. Perceiving this, many have given in the hope of getting prosperity; but it does not come in that way. God cannot be bribed. To the loving, generous soul, he gives the means of doing more good, but he does not bless the calculating spirit that regards its gifts as an investment.

CHINESE MISSIONS†

The Wonderful Triumphs of Half a Century of Consecrated Labor

LESS than a hundred years have passed since Robert Morrison, pioneer of Protestant missions in China, first set foot in that teeming land. He began his work in 1807, and he gave to it twenty-seven years of devoted and self-sacrificing toil. During much of that time he was alone in the service. Now there are more than fifty agencies working in China, each represented by earnest, consecrated men and women. When the great Missionary Conference was held in Shanghai, a few years ago, it was reported that there were nearly thirteen hundred missionary workers in China, and that the native church comprised thirty-seven thousand members. At the recent Ecumenical Council in New York, a substantial advance was recorded. There were then over eighteen hundred missionary workers in the country, and more than a hundred thousand native Christians. Gratifying as this wonderful progress, it is small, compared with the vast population, which is estimated at fully four hundred millions. The thought of what still remains to be done is overwhelming, but in view of what has been done in fifty years, there is every ground of encouragement. Considering that at in 1853, when Hudson Taylor began his great work, which is now the China Inland Mission, there were but three hundred native Christians in all China, we have more reason for hope and gratitude than for fear. It is marvelous that there should have been so much success when the difficulties are taken into account. The conservative character of the Chinese Government fiercely antagonistic to the foreigner and his religion; the ignorance and prejudice of the people, which have recently had tragic demonstration in the Boxer outrages; the difficulties of travel, of language, and hostility aroused by the conduct of western nations toward the Chinese—all these have been obstacles to the progress of Christianity in China. Yet in spite of all, the progress has been uninterrupted, and not even the awful deluge of blood shed in the Boxer troubles has checked it. In China as elsewhere, now as in early times, the blood of the martyrs proves to be the seed of the church. Missionaries are ready to take the places of those who have fallen, and new converts are won by the heroism of those who were slaughtered.

† Topic of the Epworth League for January 25. Matt. 6: 19-34: Acts 20: 35; II. Cor. 9: 7; I. John 17, 18.

† Topic of the Christian Endeavor Society for Jan. 25 Acts 17: 24-31.

OUR SUNDAY HOUR WITH THE LITTLE FOLKS

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 38

tition No 2, "Curious Questions" of that date. One hundred Consolation Prizes, in the form of the beautiful book promised, will be sent to each of the following:

Second best descriptions of Scripture Problem 2: Competition 1: Winifred Cairns, Prince Edward Island; A. Waalkes, Ill.; Rosie Stevenson, Va.; Jessie C. McEwen, Quebec; Ernest W. McEwen, Quebec; Charles Myers, Cal.; Tom Starnes, Tenn.; Robert A. Huffman, O.; Julia E. Hughs, O.; Aureta M. Carruth, Mass.; Alice Coran, Ark.; Eugene Culler, O.; Gray Dinwiddie, Va.; Reginald P. Long, N. Y.; Willie Charlton, Ontario; Carl Smith, O.; Elsie Altenderfer, Pa.; J. Arthur Latham, Montreal; Marion L. Carroll, Mass.; Willie Williams, Pa.; Fannie Hoffman, Pa.; Raymore Walcher, Okla.; Sadie M. Higgins, Me.; Charlie W. Brown, Minn.; Ralph Stevens, Lucile Babb, Ia.; Dorothy Summers, S. Da.; Margaret G. Hamilton, Wash.; Walter Senter, Mass.; Gracie Miriam Currie, Mary Florence Currie, Nova Scotia; Lena Nowlan, Can.; Hattie Mitchell, Tenn.; Marguerite F. Mathers, Cal.; Jean Marton, Mo.; Rachel Gristina Wiss, Elsie Carlson, Earl Duke, Ia.; Johnie McCuthy, N. Da.; Buelah Smith, Ala.; Frank Richards, S. Da.; Charlie C. E. Beam, Kan.; Spurgeon Gunderson, Minn.; Ernest C. Moore, Miss.; Flora A. Best, Nova Scotia; Isabella Hannah, Crissie Blackadder, Irene Whitlock; Ontario; Ada F. Sutton, O.; Beulah E. Tucker, N. J.

Second best answers to "Curious Questions," Competition 2: Kathleen Mitchell, Nova Scotia; Charles Knight, Ky.; Ada May Gifford, N. Y.; Mamie Lawrence, N. Y.; Louise Gilzie, Tenn.; Susie S. Johnson, Ind.; Leland Ragless, Mich.; Florence A. Higgins, Wash.; Muriel Lampert, Ill.; Sadie Frazer, Can.; Martha Louise Ballard, Kans.; Merle Parish, N. Y.; Floyd A. Hays, Mo.; Herman A. Sayre, O.; Anna Alspaugh, Ia.; Harold Perbanche, O.; Ethel Cook, Ind.; Sarah A. Erwen, O.; Mary R. Hull, Conn.; Emily Schanck, N. J.; Minnie Eidmann, N. J.; Ralph Howe, Vt.; Fred Bergelow, Minn.; Stewart Pogue, Can.; Wilmina Kiskaddow, Pa.; Mark H. Thatcher, Pa.; Lillian Fennel, Can.; Elbert A. Hamilton, Va.; Ada E. Lewis, N. Y., Ruth Martens, Ind.; Irma Main, Ill.; Jessie Brown, Vt.; Odessa Bowen, Wash., Bessie Graham, O.; George Magee, Can.; Frank Pine, N. Dak.; Mildred Clemons, Ore.; Donald R. Fry, N. Y.; Susie Tucker, Ark.; Albert Gascoigne, Calif.; Carrie Veh, O.; A. Ray Smouse, Ia.; Alex. Mould, N. Y.; Ralph Freeman, N. C.; Mabel M. Knauf, Wash.; Lura A. Hadley, N. H.; Carl W. Moser, Kans.; Ethel E. Horn, Mich.; Arthur C. Elliott, Me.; William Headrick, Ga.

The Finest of All

DEAR SIR:—The Red Letter Bible is the finest Bible I have ever seen.

Clifington, W. Va. MRS. O. P. JOLLIFFE.

Here is a bright boy in Crestline, Ohio. He sold [illegible] copies of The Saturday Evening Post in one week.

"When I saw your advertisement I knew that there was a good chance to earn some money, which I wanted. I sold my first ten copies easily and then started to work for new customers. My order has grown until I now sell more than sixty a week. I deliver all the copies on Friday, after school closes, and on Saturday. In addition to selling single copies I have earned about $12.00 by taking yearly subscriptions."

IN A DAINTY little booklet which we will send to any boy free. In connection with [illegible] out of more than three thousand bright boys tell us how their own work just [illegible] they have made a success of selling

The Saturday Evening Post

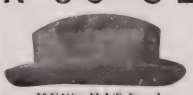
Pictures of the boys—letters telling how they built up a paying business—[illegible] of school boys—interesting stories of real business tact.

Some of these boys are making $10 to $15 a week. You can do the same. NO MONEY REQUIRED TO START. We will furnish ten copies the first week free of charge, to be sold at five cents a copy. You can then send us the wholesale price for as many as you find you can sell the next week. IF YOU WILL TRY IT WE WILL SEND THE COPIES AND EVERYTHING NECESSARY.

$225.00 IN EXTRA CASH PRIZES [illegible] SENT MONTHLY [illegible] SELL FIVE or more COPIES WEEKLY

THE CURTIS PUBLISHING COMPANY
403 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

A 50-CENT HAT BY MAIL



MEN'S HAT No. 1
In soft, rough finish. Colors: GRAY Mix, Brown Mix, and Black Mix.

Either of these hats sent, postpaid, on receipt of 50 cents in cash, P.O. Stamps, or stamps. Money back if not satisfactory. We refer to The First National Bank of Middletown, N.Y. We are not manufacturers and make the following offer to introduce these hats and our other lines of Men's, Boys', and Women's hats in every town in the United States. Send for catalogue.

MEN'S HAT No. 2
[illegible] Black, Brown Mix, Steel, and Pearl.

MIDDLETOWN HAT CO., 44 Mill St., Middletown, N.Y.

WE WILL SAVE YOU FROM $10 TO $45 on almost any kind or style of machine.
Sold direct from factory, saving all salesmen's expenses and dealer's profits. Our machines have modern features not possessed by any others. Ball-bearing Stands, finest attachments FREE. Latest design woodwork, the at each swell front, polished oak, guaranteed to be better than machines sold for twice the price. SHIPPED ON APPROVAL, anywhere in U.S. Guaranteed 20 years.

ARLINGTON GEM $25.00 Regular 5 drawer Drop Head $11.25
Including all Attachments.

ARLINGTON QUEEN Flat Tension Take-up, same as New Home, Domestic and White. $35.00 Regular 5 Drawer Drop Head $14.75 with fine Marquetry Decorations. $45.00 Regular 5 Drawer Drop Head $19.75 $45.00 Beautiful 1 Door Desk cabinet $16.45. $75.00 Beautiful 1 Door Desk cabinet $23.75

ARLINGTON Highest arm made. Use Tension, Independent Drawers, same as Singer, Wheeler & Wilson and Standard. $55.00 Regular 5 Drawer Drop Head $17.75 $65.00 Automatic Lift, Drop Head $19.75 $75.00 Beautiful 1 Door Desk cabinet $23.75

Write for our Catalogue 64 pages beautifully illustrated. Contains all points about Sewing Machines right—FREE. CASH BUYERS' UNION, Dept. B 18, CHICAGO.

Twenty-Five Hundred Strong

We Await Your Orders

Each employee thoroughly trained to attend to his or her special part of your order in the quickest possible time and without mistake. Not only best goods at lowest prices, but PROMPT SHIPMENTS are largely responsible for our immense and still rapidly increasing business. Ninety-seven out of every hundred orders are shipped within 3 days after being received and thousands are shipped the same day.

Don't you think it would pay you to trade with us? From our large catalogue you can buy everything you need at wholesale prices.

Fill out the slip below and send it with 15 cents for our catalogue TODAY—you will more than save your money on the first order you send us.

Why not place your Mid-Winter Order with us?

What will you need during January and February?

Look ahead—Better begin by filling out coupon below.

SAVE YOUR EYES
Write for special spectacle catalogue with instructions for fitting, free.

CUT OUT THIS COUPON
Send for Catalogue TODAY and get ready for Spring "fixing up."

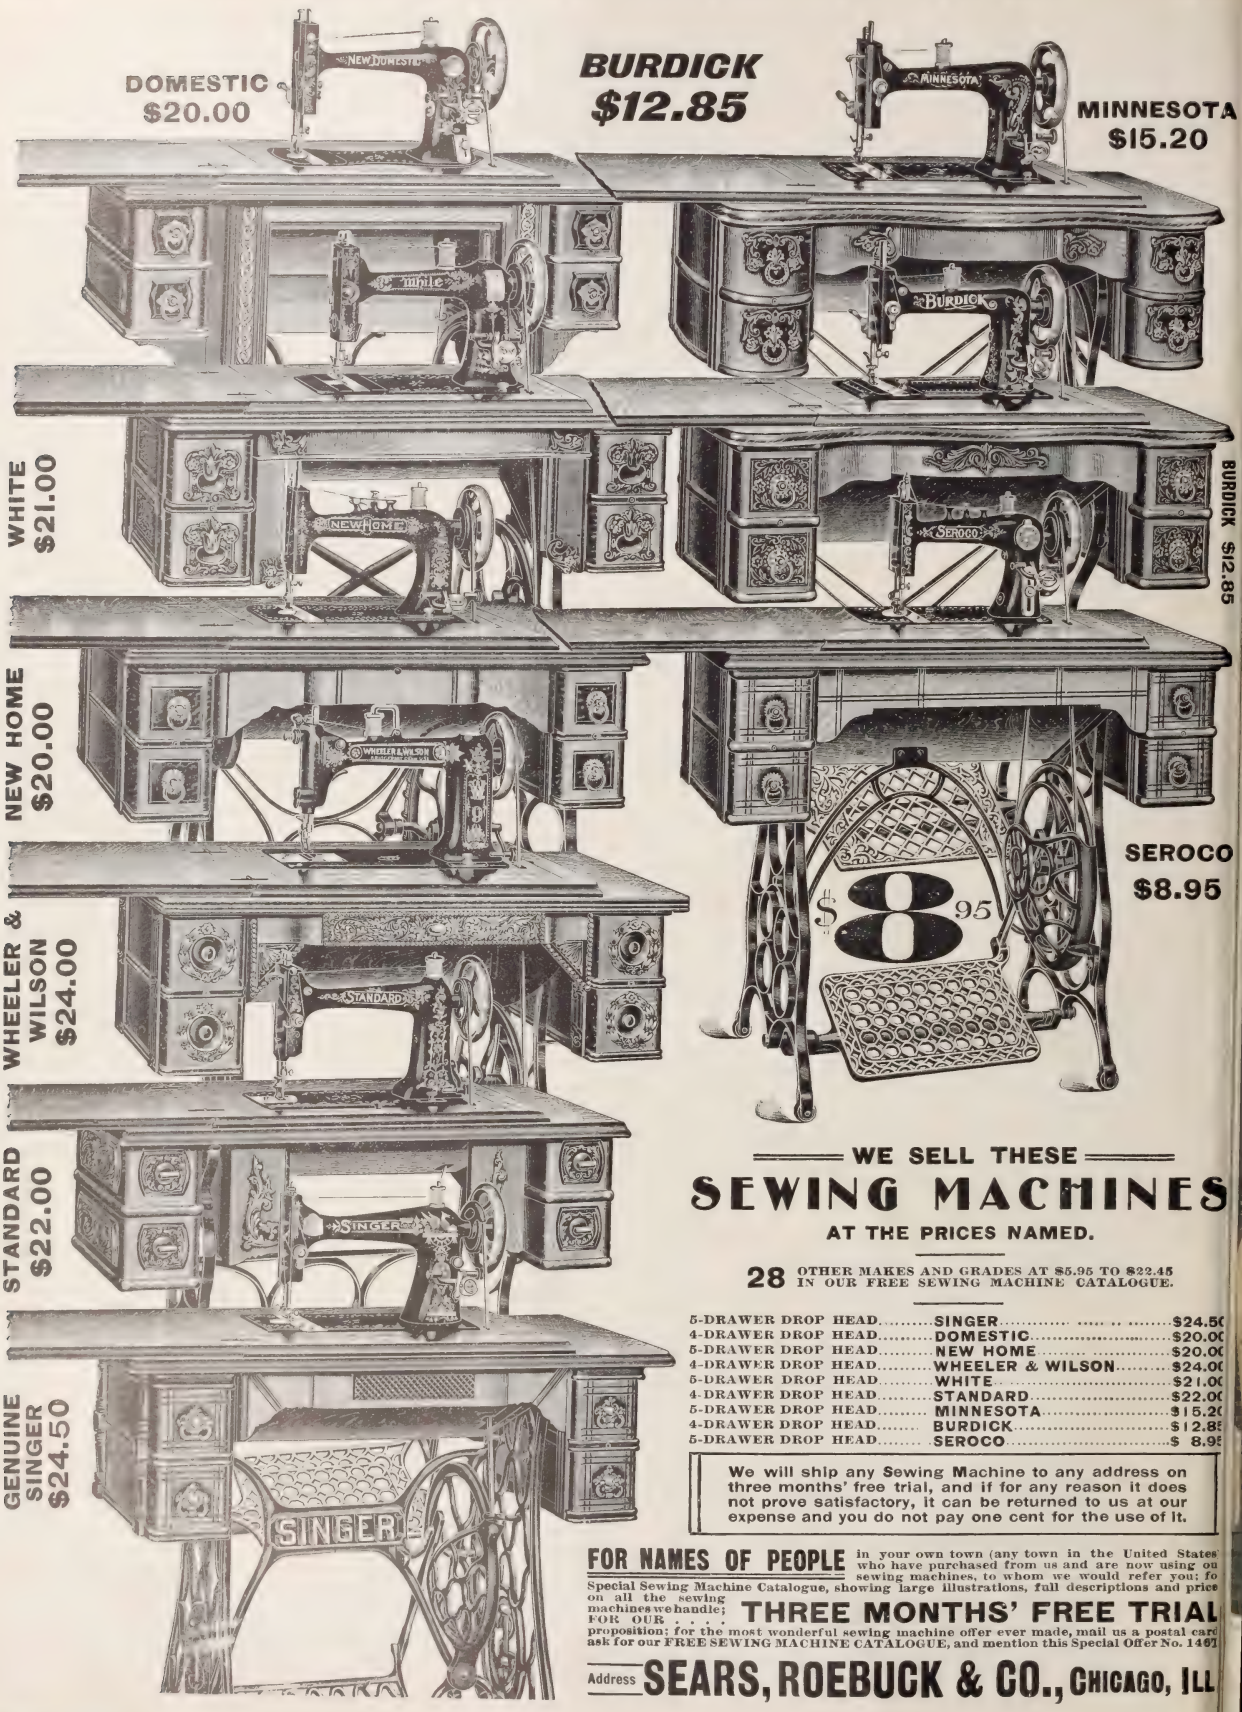
Montgomery Ward & Co., Chicago.
Enclosed find 15 cents, for which please send me Catalogue No. 71.

Name _____
Write very plain.

Express Office _____ Post Office _____

County _____ State _____

Montgomery Ward & Co.,
Chicago



WE SELL THESE

SEWING MACHINES

AT THE PRICES NAMED.

28 OTHER MAKES AND GRADES AT $5.95 TO $22.45 IN OUR FREE SEWING MACHINE CATALOGUE.

5-DRAWER DROP HEAD	SINGER	$24.5(
4-DRAWER DROP HEAD	DOMESTIC	$20.0(
5-DRAWER DROP HEAD	NEW HOME	$20.0(
4-DRAWER DROP HEAD	WHEELER & WILSON	$24.0(
5-DRAWER DROP HEAD	WHITE	$21.0(
4-DRAWER DROP HEAD	STANDARD	$22.0(
5-DRAWER DROP HEAD	MINNESOTA	$15.2(
4-DRAWER DROP HEAD	BURDICK	12.8
5-DRAWER DROP HEAD	SEROCO	$ 8.9$

We will ship any Sewing Machine to any address on three months' free trial, and if for any reason it does not prove satisfactory, it can be returned to us at our expense and you do not pay one cent for the use of it.

FOR NAMES OF PEOPLE in your own town (any town in the United States) who have purchased from us and are now using our sewing machines, to whom we would refer you; for Special Sewing Machine Catalogue, showing large illustrations, full descriptions and prices on all the sewing machines we handle; THREE MONTHS' FREE TRIAL FOR OUR . . . . proposition; for the most wonderful sewing machine offer ever made, mail us a postal card ask for our FREE SEWING MACHINE CATALOGUE, and mention this Special Offer No. 1467

Address SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., CHICAGO, ILL

CHRISTIAN HERALD

SUBSCRIPTION, $1.50 PER ANNUM
Published 52 Times a Year

NEW YORK, JANUARY 21, 1903

VOL. 26—NO. 3. PRICE 5 CENTS
Offices: Bible House, New York

From a Stereoscopic Photograph, Copyright, 1897, by Underwood & Underwood

SEE PAGE 50

The Market-Place of Helsingfors, Finland, Where Famine Now Prevails

OUR MAIL BAG

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. E. S., Boston, Mass. Is it true that the Scottish people have entered a protest against King Edward's title? If so, on what grounds?

We never heard that the Scottish people entered any formal protest. There were objections made in letters to various journals, but we saw no account of their taking definite shape. They were based on the fact that the present king was the first Edward to reign over Scotland as well as England, and therefore ought not to be called Edward VII. The same objection would have applied to William IV., as he was only the second William who reigned over the United Kingdoms.

Subscriber, Hotchkiss, Colo. Is the second work of grace instantaneous as in conversion?

There are times in the Christian's life when he comes very near to God, and the effect is a spiritual uplift that is very clear and definite. In the majority of cases, however, the sanctifying work of the Holy Spirit is a process extending over years. Even then, under fervent preaching, or in long communion with God, the progress of the work is accelerated, and the soul seems to gain more purity and power in an hour than it has done in a long period.

G. W., Providence, R. I. I understand that New York State has about three hundred trades-unions incorporated under the State laws. Has incorporation proved practically advantageous to them?

Unquestionably it has proved advantageous. Incorporation is the first step toward taking an organization out of the category of irresponsible and unrecognized bodies, and giving it a legal existence and responsibility. An incorporated Union has a standing in court and in business which no unincorporated body could have. Its pledges are accepted as substantial, and the fact that it is a responsible body in law makes it conservative, law-abiding, and therefore respected. Are not these advantages?

Reader, Saunemin, Ill. Can a subscription to build a parsonage be considered a gift to the Lord?

Providing for the comfort of one of God's servants seems to us an undoubted gift to the Lord. Christ said to his disciples: "He that receiveth you, receiveth me," thus, as in other passages, identifying himself with his messengers. A minister ought to be liberally paid and well lodged, so that his mind should be free from worldly anxieties and discomforts, that he may devote himself to study and his duties. The church to which he ministers will gain by it. But apart from that consideration, and in direct answer to your question, the fact that he comes among you as a representative of Christ, should insure his being honored and provided for generously, for in caring for his comfort, you show your love and reverence for your Lord. As a king accepts honor paid to his ambassador, as honor paid to himself, so Christ will see to it that they who give to his ambassadors, because they belong to him, shall in no way lose their reward.

J. B. M., Lochalel, Ont., Can. Is the moral law a rule of life and conduct and is it incumbent on all people to strive to obey and live up to it?

When Jesus, replying to the Pharisee lawyer, said that upon "the first and greatest commandment" of loving love to God, and the "new commandment," enjoining love to man hang all the law and the prophets, he outlined the rule of life under law. But the Christian is not under law, but under grace. Kept down by his evil nature and by his surroundings, the sinner finds it impossible in his own strength, to obey to law. His only hope, therefore, is to accept Christ, who has accepted the law, and thus, under grace, the sinner finds pardon and peace.

Student, New Haven, Conn. What were the four great heresies?

There have been many heresies, but the four to which you probably refer, were the Arian, the Apollinarian, the Nestorian, and the Eutychian. They all referred to the nature of Jesus Christ, and were mainly attempts to explain the incarnation. The Arians held that Christ was created by the Father, and necessarily inferior to him; the Apollinarians, that the mind and soul of Christ were divine, while his body was human; the Nestorians, that Jesus had two natures, of which one was the human and the other divine; and the Eutychians, that Christ was pure Deity, and human only in appearance.

Subscriber, Topeka, Kans. Is there any law requiring that the Pope should be an Italian? Has there ever been an English Pope?

There is no law to that effect, but as a majority of the College of Cardinals is generally Italian, they prefer to elect a Pope of their own nationality. Adrian IV. was an Englishman. His name was Nicholas Breakspeare. Though of humble birth, he became one of the most haughty of the Popes. It was he who insisted that the great Frederick Barbarossa should hold his stirrup, like a servant, while he (Adrian) mounted his horse, Frederick resisted for a long time, but finally complied. He smarted, however, under the humiliation and afterwards began a quarrel, in which Adrian threatened him with excommunication, but died before he could execute his threat.

J. B. Garner, Bay City, Ill. What is the spiritual meaning of the expression, "Many Mansions," in John 14:2?

Mansions mean abiding-places or dwellings. We do not know that the phrase has any definite spiritual meaning. It appears simply to denote that in God's house, which is the whole universe, there are places in which the dead will live again. The disciples, oppressed by the parting with him, which, as Jesus assured them, was approaching, and having only the gloomy views of the condition of the dead held by the Jews of their time, needed comfort. He tells them that he is going before, to prepare a place for them, and that they will be with him in that place. They are not to suppose that this world is the only place in which life is possible. There are many dwelling-places in God's universe, and they would have one prepared by him.

An enthusiastic friend (Edith B. of Freedom, O.), sends us these verses:

Your presents are rare and beautiful
Your books a delight to read,
The Christmas cheer you delight in,
Make many hearts glad indeed.

Accept thanks for pictures sent us,
"Lost in the Storm" is our choice,
May we keep close to the Shepherd,
Aye following his dear voice.

M. L. M. Frewsburg, N. Y. Do you know anything of the discovery of a lost book of the Bible, which contains a description of the Apostles' mode of baptism?

You probably refer to the Didache or "Teaching of the Twelve Apostles," which was found in manuscript in Constantinople by Bryennios, in 1873. It was in the library connected with the Patriarchate of Jerusalem. It was written on vellum, and covered five leaves. It has been examined by eminent scholars, who regard it as a genuine document. Athanasius, who died in 373 A. D., refers to such a manuscript as having been in existence in his day, and Clement and other early Christian writers were evidently familiar with it. It purports to contain an account of the teaching of the Apostles on several subjects. The passage on baptism is as follows: "Now concerning baptism, thus baptize ye! Having first uttered all these things, baptize into the name of the Father, and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, in living water. But, if thou hast not living water, baptize in other water; and if thou canst not in cold, then in warm. But, if thou hast neither, pour water upon the head thrice, into the name of Father, Son and Holy Spirit." A translation of the manuscript by Dr. Roswell, D. Hitchcock and Dr. Francis Brown was published by Charles Scribner's Sons in 1885.

E. G. G., Murray River, P. E. I. What is the amount of property destroyed by fire annually in the United States and the number of lives lost by the same?

In 1902, property valued at $140,000,000 was destroyed by fire in the United States. We have no statistics to show the losses of life.

G. A. L., Bay City, Mich. Is it wrong to play cards if you do not play for money? We have a minister in this city who tells boys they can play cards if they do not play for money.

There are many things which, though they may not be wrong in themselves alone, become so by association. Cards are the tools of the professional gambler. They are the special diversion of the idle, the dissipated, the spendthrift. They were first used in Europe (so it is said) to divert a mad king, and, strangely enough, they have been the means of driving multitudes mad, as their use kindles the lust for ill-gotten gains. Skill in cards is a sinister skill and a card-sharp is a name of disgrace. No one was ever known to be benefited morally, socially, physically, or in a legitimate business way by cards. On the other hand, an employer would hesitate to hire in bank or office any young man addicted to cards. For the sake of example, therefore, and in order to avoid the very appearance of evil, the Christian and all sensible people should avoid cards.

Howard S., Deerfield, N. J. If the nature of your calling goes against your conscience, you should, by all means, change your vocation at the earliest opportunity.

Mrs. S. A. Kelley, San Francisco, Cal. There is no record to show when the first church building was erected in Siam, but the first Christian church was established between 1828 and 1831.

T. A. G., Media, Tex. There is no further light thrown on the relationship existing between Boaz and Mahlon, than that which is afforded by the Scripture story. Josephus, the Jewish historian, gives no additional information. The relationship must have been sufficiently close, however, to justify the union under the old Jewish law. There was but one nearer kinsman, who surrendered his claim in favor of Boaz. (See Ruth 4: 1-10.)

MIDWINTER IN AN OLD VIRGINIA HOME

In the "Old Dominion," as elsewhere, the old-fashioned home of reposeful comfort is rapidly giving place to modern dwellings, filled with modern furnishings and the modern spirit of hurry and bustle. All the more interesting are the few that remain as types of the past. On the back of the photograph from which this is reproduced is written: "His Old Virginia Home. Mr. E. D. Macfee, Scottsburg, Va."

THE CONQUEST OF FINLAND

[During a long-past famine in Finland, a ship laden with food came to Helsingfors from an English port. It had been sent to the Finns by those who were formerly enemies, but who now, by that beautiful Christian act, became their friends. Our good gray American poet, Whittier, immortalized the incident in these verses, which have a special and pathetic timeliness in view of the terrible famine now prevailing among the Finns.]

Across the frozen marshes
The winds of autumn blow,
And the fen-lands of the Wetter
Are white with early snow.

But where the low, gray headlands
Look o'er the Baltic brine,
A bark is sailing in the track
Of England's battle-line.

No wares hath she to barter
For Bothnia's fish and grain;
She saileth not for pleasure,
She saileth not for gain.

"God bless her," said the coast-guard.
"God bless the ship, I say.
The holy angels trim the sails
That speed her on her way!

"Where'er she drops her anchor,
The peasant's heart is glad;
Where'er she spreads her parting sail,
The peasant's heart is sad.

"Each wasted town and hamlet
She visits to restore;
To roof the shattered cabin,
And feed the starving poor.

"The sunken boats of fishers,
The forage beeves and grain,
The spoil or flake and storehouse,
The good ship brings again.

"And so to Finland's sorrow
The sweet amend is made,
As if the healing hand of Christ
Upon her wounds were laid!"

NEW YORK, JANUARY 21, 1903

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD

AN ILLUSTRATED FAMILY MAGAZINE

ESKIMO HUT AT NUSHAGAK | ALASKAN, WITH WIFE AND DAUGHTER | A NATIVE VILLAGE

HEROIC LIVES IN THE FROZEN NORTH

THE MORAVIAN MISSIONS OF ALASKA, AND THE SPLENDID RECORD THEY HAVE MADE

NEARLY two hundred years have passed since the Moravian Church began its missionary career. In those two centuries, it has carried the standard of the Gospel of Jesus to almost every quarter of the globe. Its workers have been found in Europe, in the East and West Indies, among the wild tribes of North and South America, in Central Asia, in Africa's plains and jungles, in Greenland, Lapland, Labrador and the islands of the sea. Its glorious record as a disseminator of the religion of Jesus Christ among the savage peoples of the earth is unsurpassed by that of any Protestant denomination.

Moravian missionary work in Alaska began in 1885, when a party, consisting of the Rev. W. H. Weisland and wife, the Rev. J. H. Kilbuck (a converted Delaware Indian) and wife, and Hans Torgersen, a mechanic, founded the mission settlement of Bethel, on the Kuskokwim River. Shortly after their arrival, the mechanic Torgersen was accidentally drowned, and the missionaries were left with crippled resources, to prepare for the terrible Alaskan winter. They gradually became acquainted with the natives, and, having studied their language, formed classes for religious instruction. In 1888, two other workers were added to those already engaged at the Bethel Mission station.

In 1887, the Moravians commenced work at Carmel, on the Nushagak River. This Mission is shown in the photographs on this page. The Rev. Frank Wolff, with his wife and two children, and Miss M. Huber, were the pioneer missionaries. A school was established and work opened under encouraging auspices. In 1889, the force was strengthened by the addition of another missionary to the station. In 1894, the Rev. J. H. Schoechert was placed in charge of the work at Carmel, he having already assisted there for five years. When Mr. Schoechert assumed the superintendency of Carmel, it numbered only twenty-one members, all told. At the end of seven years, it had two hundred and twenty-one members, with two hundred and fifty adherents (candidates and new people), with three out-stations, where small log chapels have been erected, and native helpers employed. The latter receive from $15 to $25 a year as regular salary.

THE MISSIONARY AND HIS DOGS RETURNING FROM A LONG JOURNEY

At Carmel Station, there are now four substantial buildings. About twenty native Alaskan children attend the Moravian boarding school, and from twenty to twenty-five day scholars. The sole teacher is supported by the United States government. To obtain practical manual training, the girl pupils in the boarding school help in the housework, and the boys in gardening and fishing. Blacksmithing is taught to a number of the larger boys. There is a growing Sunday School, and a lively spiritual interest is manifested.

Carmel Village has one of the largest tanneries in the world. Formerly, mail came to the village once a year; now it comes every quarter—twice in summer, and twice in winter. It is taken overland by dog team 1,200 miles from Unalaska and Seattle. Freights are very high—$25 to $50 a ton. This makes life's necessities expensive. If the benefits of civilization are introduced as fast as its evils, railroads should at an early date bring Alaska into closer and less costly connection with the outside world. There are two white men to every native in Alaska at the present time, owing to the great influx of gold hunters, the proportion being about 40,000 whites to 20,000 natives. The natives greatly need the Gospel to save them from the many temptations that have been brought into the country by the incoming whites.

In visiting natives up and down the river, the missionary spends from ten to fifty-one days on each journey. In one year, one hundred and ten days were so employed, the traveler using the Eskimo boats or dog sleds. The three main stations of the Moravian Mission are on three different rivers, with water communication between all. A new Mission will be opened next spring. Two Eskimo boys from the Carmel Mission are now at the Indian schools in the States, under training for future missionary work among their own people.

After numerous efforts to establish a new mission station at Togiak, nearly half-way between the two main stations, Bethel and Carmel, it has now been decided to renew the attempt this year. Mr. and Mrs. Schoechert are going there, and will live in a tent in that bleak, wet and barren country till a house can be erected. The hardest of their trials will be the parting from their two children in the States. They will be separated from them for ten years, having opportunity of hearing from them only two or three times yearly. No one who has not had a similar experience can know what it means to make this sacrifice; yet it is done gladly for the sake of the souls of the benighted Eskimos, and for the love of Him who said, "Go ye into all the world and teach all nations."

The Moravian Mission in Alaska costs annually from $10,000 to $12,000. There are now eighteen Moravian missionaries there, with a total church membership of nine hundred and thirty-nine. At the present time the greatest need of the Mission is a small schooner,

CONTINUED ON PAGE 51

THE MORAVIAN MISSION BUILDINGS AT CARMEL

THE American Pulpit

...SERMON BY...

Rev. Frank De Witt Talmage, D.D.

of the Jefferson Park Presbyterian Church, Chicago

Beneficent Tempests

MATT. 14: 22: Jesus constrained his disciples to get into a ship

THERE it is! See! Yonder is the disciples' boat, tossed about on the waves of Lake Galilee! Those men seem to be in as critical a situation as was the captain of an Atlantic coal barge some time ago. The barge had been caught in a storm and was sinking under his feet. The captain signalled to the tug. Then, as it drew near, he picked up first one and then another of his little children. He raised them above his head and hurled them through the air into the arms of the rescuers. Then he turned and fastened a rope, thrown to him from the tug, around the waist of his wife, and another around his own waist, and both leaped into the sea. Two minutes after he and his wife had been dragged into the rescuing boat, his own coal barge made a plunge and disappeared. Every moment, the disciples, like that captain, expected their boat to founder. Some of them were veteran fishermen, yet they had given up all hope of ever reaching land again.

The danger of drowning in Lake Galilee was not the only danger, nor, indeed, the greatest danger, which threatened the disciples. They were in spiritual danger. Having seen Jesus, only a few hours before, feed a multitude of five thousand persons with five loaves and a few fishes, they had lost sight of his spiritual mission, and were about to hail him as a temporal leader. Like the multitudes which had been fed, they began to whisper among themselves, "Why not make Christ our king? Such a miracle-working leader as this could not only feed us and clothe us without any work upon our part, but he also could liberate us from Roman tyranny, and be to us another Moses, another Joshua, or another David." In order to counteract this design, of making him merely a temporal king, which would have brought him into collision with the Roman power, and have degraded his mission into a mere insurrection, he determined to teach the disciples their weakness and helplessness. He compelled them to launch their boat and enter into a fearful combat of at least ten long hours with the Galilean tempest. So, in order to compel you and me to look away from our worldly interests, which are absorbing our thoughts and desires, and lead us to seek from him the higher spiritual blessings he has to bestow, God clouds our skies, and brings upon us a tidal wave of crushing disaster, that we may be driven to climb into his loving, protecting arms.

Refining Persecution

The dark, tempestuous nights of religious persecution have often been, in God's sight, the brightest and the most blessed of sunshiny days for the church. It was by having his eyes temporarily blinded that Paul gained spiritual sight. It was by being lowered in a basket by a few friends over the Damascus wall, in order to escape the murderer's dagger, that Paul was set free to embark on his missionary career. It was by exile to a lonely island of the Mediterranean, that John was enabled to see his marvelous apocalyptic visions. It was not until Rome had been burned by the bloody Nero, who laughed and fiddled while the conflagration raged; not until the Christians had suffered under the false charge of being the incendiaries, that the church was purified and fully launched on its great evangelistic work. It was when Martin Luther had to face the Diet of Worms, and had been imprisoned for months in the Wartburg, that the Reformation was started. When the Pilgrim Fathers on account of religious persecution had to leave England, then the first foundation stone of Christian America was laid. And in no time of church history can you find that a great religious awakening has occurred, or a great religious leader has come forth, without the previous roar of the Galilean tempest, as it yawned to destroy the church and engulf Christian faith.

Sometime ago, I heard a great minister of our country developing this thought. In part, he said: "The reason we do not have Savonarolas, and John Knoxs, and John Husses in the present day, is because we do not have the ancient persecutions which purified and ennobled the ancient church." Some people are foolish enough to suppose that the best and greatest day of the early Christian church, was when the Emperor Constantine joined the church with the State, and had thousands upon thousands of his subjects baptized by the priests in the different rivers. But I want to tell you that when Constantine joined the church with the State, it was a sad day for the history of the Christian church. With the regal power of the church, it became a corrupt church. With the regal power of the church, there came the sins of a licentious and mercenary-minded church. Then came the sins of the Dark Ages. It is by persecution that the Christian church is purified, not by the commendation of sinful kings and fawning nobles. The church, by its past history, ought to know that God's loving and saving voice can be heard in the growling thunder, as well as in the whispering summer wind. His divine love can often be seen in a flood of heartrending tears, as well as in the smile of an April shower, or in the gentle glow of a June sunrise.

Adoniram Judson's Trial

What tempestuous struggles have accomplished for the church as a whole, they may also accomplish for the humble individual workers in the church. God fits many of the humbler workers for his vineyard as he spiritually prepared Adoniram Judson, the great missionary, for his work. For seven long years, Mr. and Mrs. Judson seemed to labor in Burmah in vain. For seven long years, he testified for Christ amid almost insurmountable difficulties. For seven long years, he and his wife every four weeks sat down to the communion table, absolutely alone. They had not yet made one convert for Christ. At the end of these seven long years of seeming defeat, the Missionary Society wrote to him that he had better surrender his mission as a failure, and start in another field. Adoniram Judson, with his Gospel spirit aglow with the awful struggle from those seven long years, answered the Missionary Society in these memorable words: "No! No! I cannot, and will not surrender this mission. Success is as certain here, as the promise of a faithful God can make it." Then came the great outpouring of the Holy Spirit. Then Burmah saw its day of Pentecost. So, my brother, in the Christian ministry, or in the Christian pew, fighting against seemingly overwhelming obstacles, remember that God has sent to you that tempest for a purpose. Remember, that you are being fitted for your work, if you are faithful to him, as Adoniram Judson was being fitted for his work. Remember that in the dark hours of your tempestuous night, Christ is watching and caring for you, as he watched the disciples struggling on the waves of Lake Galilee. Remember, that at the fourth watch, or just at the breaking of the dawn, Christ, as he did of old, will appear to you walking upon the crystal pavement of the deep.

There is a suggestive story told of a young girl who sang in a large concert hall of London. One of her friends asked a noted musical critic, who was present, what he thought of her voice. "She lacks one element which would make her the greatest singer of Europe," answered the critic. "She lacks soul power. If I were a young man and could marry her, and ill-treat her, and break her heart, then, on account of her grief and her talent, she would be one of the brightest stars in the musical firmament." Time passed on, and this woman's heart was broken by a cruel husband. Then came the true days of her power and fame. God, when he wishes to fit us for great and true work, sends us a hurricane of trouble. He compels us to battle with the Galilean tempests for a whole night. Do not be weary of well-doing, my brothers. You are

One of God's Favorites

There is a great triumph of gospel usefulness for you ahead.

'Tis easy enough to be pleasant
When life flows along like a song,
But the man worth while, is the one who will smile,
When everything goes dead wrong;
For the test of the heart is trouble,
And it always comes with the years,
And the smile that is worth the praise of the earth
Is the smile that comes through tears.

The dark, tempestuous nights of financial ruin have often been, in God's sight, the bright, blessed, sunshiny days for the merchant. "How is George Watson getting along?" I ask you. "Well," you answer, "I do not know how he is getting along now. We were boys together in the same town. We came to the city at the same time. We used to room together, but we have drifted apart in the last few years. At first, George made quite a success. He saved up a little money, and then started in business. But George was always a trustful fellow, and he had a dishonest partner. I believe the partner swindled him out of some money. Then the panic came, and his creditors began to press him. Then the next thing I heard, was that George had failed. He moved out of our neighborhood. I have not seen him for a long time. I heard, however, that he is now quite an active member in church work. He is also one of the active men in the Young People's Christian Endeavor Society. But I fear George is not doing very well. When a business man begins to get mixed up in church matters, as a rule, it implies he has not a very big business to run. However, to tell the truth, I do not know what George is doing, except that I have a feeling that his credit is not very high in the business world." I that all you know about George? "Well, my friend, can tell you that George Watson is getting along a grea deal better than you are. 'Tis true he was caught in financial storm as fierce as the Galilean tempest, which threatened to engulf the disciples, after Christ had fe the multitudes; but after that tempest abated, he hear the voice of Jesus calling him to the truer and noble life. And George would never have heard the voice o Christ, had he not first heard the hurricane of a financia storm shrieking about his head."

George Watson landed in this city a Christian boy from a Christian home. He carried in his satchel the Bible which his mother gave to him the Christmas before he left the old homestead. The very first Sabbath after he came to Chicago, he hunted up a church and joined a Sunday School class. The girl whom he afterward married was a member of that same Sunday School The trouble was, George Watson made in business. He worked hard all day and had promotion after promotion. Then, Sundays, he would feel tired He neglected church. His wife would stay home with him. The more money he earned, the greater were his responsibilities and the less his religion. Then came the panic and the financial cyclone. George was at first overwhelmed by the catastrophe. Then his brain began to clear. He called his wife into his study and said, "Kate, this is the happiest time of all my life. I can truly say that to-night I am glad God took my money. I know, Kate, that I was only thinking of my gold, and not about the good which I could do with it. Kate, we will give ourselves to God to-night. We will give to him our children, and our whole future lives, and we will promise God that never again shall we work six days and twenty-two hours each week for the world, and only give to God two hours of a church service on Sunday." That is the history of your friend George. That is the reason you now hear of George as an elder in the church; as a leader in the prayer-meeting; as a director in the Young Men's Christian Association; as a church visitor, who never refuses to call on the poor. It was a dark night when that financial storm overtook George on Lake Galilee, but that storm drove George to Christ.

Too Big a Success

My friend, you think George's figurative history cannot be duplicated in life. I tell you that it can. I declare to you to-day that there are thousands and tens of thousands of American merchants, who would never have been able to see clearly the spiritual face of Jesus, except through a financial tempest. The best merchant I ever knew was consecrated to Christ through a Galilean tempest. Mr. A. F. Brooks was not only the chief member of the old Second Presbyterian Church of Pittsburg, when I was there, but he was also the most influential Christian layman in the city. He told me, just before his death, that the cause of his consecration to Christ came to him when a dishonest partner made him lose millions of dollars. Had it not been for the action of that dishonest partner at that time, Mr. Brooks would have become, before closing his career, not only one of the wealthiest men in Pittsburg, but also one of the wealthiest men in the United States. Oh, ye merchants, in those hours of trials and financial embarrassment, I want you to make your troubles the stepping-stones to a complete consecration to the Cross. I want you, here and now, to feel that Christ constrained you to enter the leaky boat of financial shipwreck, so that you might truly see his face, as the disciples saw the living Christ, in the fourth watch of the night on Lake Galilee.

The Revealing Angel

The dark, tempestuous nights, when the shadow of the death angel's wing hovered over the home, have often been, in God's sight, the bright shining days for the broken-hearted household circle. It was awfully hard for you to hear the doctor say there was no hope. You felt that other people might die. But somehow the truth was never fully brought home to you until then, that your mother, or wife, or child could ever be taken. Since that moment, not only this life, but the next, has for you an entirely different significance.

Why did you place upon her coffin-plate the words, "At rest"? Did you mean that her sleep was to be an endless sleep, which shall never have an awakening? You used to revel in the theories of Darwin's evolution. You used to claim that the physical man was only a higher form of a developed animal. Man was born like a dog, he must die like a dog. Did you still cling to those theories when you placed upon her coffin-lid the words, "At rest"? Oh no. You immediately went back to the sweet faith of your father and mother. You ected in your own life just as Ethan Allen, the New England infidel, acted in reference to his dying daughter. She called the great revolutionary soldier into her bedroom, and said: "Papa, I am going to die. Mamma says there is a Christ and a hereafter—if I trust Him. You say there is no hereafter. I am dying, papa, and I must make my last decision now. Whom shall I believe? Shall I accept mamma's Christ, or your infidelity?" The great soldier's frame shook with emotion. Then, though he had just finished his famous infidel book, called, Reason, the only Oracle of Man, he turned and said, "My darling, you had better die in your mother's faith, and not in my unbelief." And so when the death angel's wings began to flutter over the bed of one of our loved ones, with one blow it not only struck your heart, but it also knocked your infidelity clean out of your life. You immediately said, as you looked into the pale face sleeping in the casket, "I know she lives; I know she is living in some other world for me." And as you look up to see where that other world is, do you not feel that you were being struck by a Galilean tempest, as were the disciples of old? Do you not feel that through the dark shadow of the death angel's wing, you have been able to see the spiritual face of Jesus Christ as never before? It was trouble that did it—tempestuous trouble alone which made you use the hillock of a grave for a kneeling stool at the altar of mercy and pardon and love.

The dark, tempestuous nights in your sick-room have often been, in God's sight, the bright dawn of a day of Christian usefulness. Perhaps I can well illustrate this thought by telling the personal history of a famous American minister. He told me in the sick-room his personal experiences, the recital of which made a lasting impression upon my mind and heart. He is a very dear friend of mine.

For many years this minister was not only admired, but loved. But whenever a man went to hear him preach, he did not know exactly where that minister stood. A hearer could not say he was unorthodox, because in his sermons he always called Jesus a "Divine King." Neither could the hearer say this preacher was a true believer. His sermons could always be questioned. They would nearly always have something in them that would make the hearer say, "I wonder what the preacher means by that? Is he one of those liberals who only believe the Bible in spots; who only believe what he wants to believe?"

But one day the newspapers all over the country had the startling telegraphic announcement "Dr. So and So is sick." Then came the reports that Dr So and So might die. For weeks and months, that famous minister hovered between life and death. Then he came back to his pulpit and to his work. But now, what a change! If any stranger goes to hear him preach, the first and the last thought he has is, "Doctor So-and-So is nothing more or less than a mighty Gospel evangelist. He has Christ in the beginning of his sermon; Christ in the middle of his sermon; Christ all the way through." Do you know the cause of this marvelous change? It was the Galilean tempest of physical pain that did it. Doctor So-and-So told me that never before did he truly know what the purpose of preaching was until he lay upon that bed of suffering. For months the barking of a dog would cut him like a knife. For months he lay in his room, an exile in agony. For months he had but one wish, and that was to die. But, when God led him forth out of that Galilean tempest to preach Jesus Christ, he came forth a new man—he was a Saul, the member of the Hebrew Sanhedrin changed into the mighty Paul, who had fought with the beasts at Ephesus. He became the disciple of the Lord, looking and pleading for a spiritual Christ alone.

It was physical pain that helped make Frederick W. Robertson one of the greatest soul-winners of his day. It was physical pain that helped draw the multitudes to the Cross, when Robert Hall preached in London, and John Summerfield preached in America. And it is physical pain, which nearly all of us have suffered in the past, and physical weakness, which many of us are suffering now, which ought to make us turn our faces toward the Good Physician, who can heal the body and heal the soul.

Now trouble comes to us in one of two ways, and it rests with every one to decide in which of the two ways it shall come to him. It may come as a sanctified trouble, or as an unsanctified trouble. It came in both forms to the thieves who were crucified with Jesus. To the one thief the physical agony was unsanctified trouble, causing him to curse and deride Christ; to the other it came as a sanctified trouble, causing him to plead for mercy and love. Unsanctified trouble comes to a man who stands by his rubber-goods basket, and it embitters him and causes him to set his face in rebellion and say: "No good God would ever have taken that child out of my arms." Sanctified trouble came to a young officer of my church, and caused him to say to the visiting pastor, "I do not want a pastor to come into my sick-room to make merely a social call. I want him to come in to pray." Yes, I want him to come in to pray. In the midst of your sorrows and trials, are you ready to let your troubles become sanctified troubles? Are you ready to sing about the compassionate sight of trouble, as the Christian poet once sang about beautiful Lake Galilee?

It is not that the wild gazelle
Comes down to lap the tide,
But he that was pierced to save from hell
Oft wandered by thy side.
Graceful around thee the mountains meet
Thou calm reposing sea,
But ah, far more, the beautiful feet
Of Jesus walked o'er thee.

Are you ready to feel that in the darkest hours of your night, Christ is waiting to speak to you, that Christ is ready to help you, that he is ready to appear unto you?

There is an old and familiar story of a Christian lady, in the far East, who had two beautiful boys. Both her sons died in the same night while her husband was away on a journey. When the father returned, the mother met him with a smile and said, "Husband, while you were gone, a stranger came and left two beautiful jewels in my charge. Then he returned the next day, and wanted them back again. I gave them to him. Should I have done so?" "Yes," answered the father. "If the two jewels belonged to the stranger, you should have done as you did." "Oh, husband," answered the wife, as she led him into the death chamber, "I was not talking about a stranger, but about our Father. God. There are our two boys, dead. Can we not say, 'the Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away. Blessed be the name of the Lord?'"

Friend, to-day in your troubles, can you not hear the voice of Jesus Christ speaking to you? Can you not, will you not see that even in this dark hour, Jesus is walking towards you, stepping lightly upon the crystal pavement of the deep?

KEEPING UP THE VENEZUELAN BLOCKADE

PRESIDENT CASTRO IN HIS PALACE

REPLIES have now been received by our State Department from all the governments involved in the Venezuelan dispute, to the Secretary of State's formal proposition to submit the case to the Hague Court. All the replies give promise of an ultimate arbitration agreement. Germany wishes to hold a preliminary conference with respect to conditions precedent to arbitration, but it is not believed this will be more than a formality. It is expected that each of the powers will soon designate its representative at the Hague. In all probability, the German, English and Italian ministers in Washington, will be empowered to represent their governments at the preliminary conference. As President Castro has chosen U. S. Minister Bowen, that official will leave for Washington shortly, to represent Venezuela in the conference.

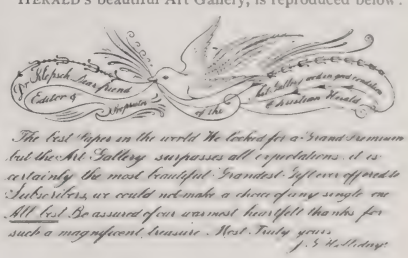
At the Conference, Sir Michael Herbert, the British Ambassador; Signor Edmundo Mayor des Planches, the Italian Ambassador, and Count A. von Quadt-Wykradt-Isny, a member of the German Embassy, will each represent their respective governments. There is a remote probability that the general question may be reached at the Conference, and matters put on such a footing that the case will not go to the Hague after all. It is believed that the European governments interested will use all diplomacy to avoid resorting to the Arbitration tribunal.

Meanwhile, the blockade of the Venezuelan ports by the allies is being more stringently maintained than ever. Even fishing boats have been forbidden to leave the harbors. Food supplies at Caracas and the leading cities are becoming alarmingly scarce. Castro's army has won a victory over the rebels, who have been more aggressive than ever since the allies began operations against Venezuela. The rebellion is very far from being suppressed, and many believe that it is only a question of time when Castro must abdicate. The dictator, however, presents a bold front, and has succeeded in securing from the merchants and bankers of Caracas a pledge of continued loans, to enable him to pay his army until the present troubles are over.

Commodore Montgomerie, commander of the English squadron, has caused considerable comment in consequence of his apparent discrimination against American commerce. Even the business men of Caracas regard this discrimination as totally unexpected. On the other hand, Dutch vessels have been allowed to enter ports now blockaded by warships of the British squadron, and to discharge cargo there.

An Artistic Testimonial

One of the most interesting and picturesque testimonials yet received, in appreciation of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD'S beautiful Art Gallery, is reproduced below:



The best Paper in the world We looked for a Grand Premium but the Art Gallery surpasses all expectations it is certainly the most beautiful Grandest Gift ever offered to Subscribers we could not make a choice of any single one All but Be assured of our warmest heartfelt thanks for such a magnificent treasure Most Truly yours

THE FORTS OF PUERTO CABELLO DESTROYED BY THE ALLIES COMMMANDER MONTGOMERIE THE ALLIED FLEETS NOW CONDUCTING THE BLOCKADE

SENDING QUICK HELP TO FINLAND

Christian America Responds to the Appeals of the Famine-Stricken Peasants—THE CHRISTIAN HERALD Sends the First $5,000 to Helsingfors to Commence the Work of Relief

THREE GENERATIONS OF FINNS

From Stereoscopic Photo, Copyright, 1905, Underwood & Underwood

A YOUNG PEASANT GIRL OF FINLAND

FARMERS' WIVES AT WORK IN THE FIELDS

ONCE more the readers of this journal have given evidence of their warm, practical sympathy in the cause of human suffering. Already contributions are coming in in response to our appeal in behalf of the 400,000 famine-stricken peasants of Finland. The proprietor of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, knowing the urgent need, has personally advanced the sum of Five thousand dollars, anticipating the contributions to that extent, and this sum has been cabled to the Relief Committee at Helsingfors, to be applied immediately in relief work among the sufferers. Meanwhile, it is especially urged upon all who wish to have a share in this great life-saving campaign, to send in their contributions to the Fund with as little delay as possible. Days, and even hours, are precious, where hundreds of thousands of those poor peasant-folk are fighting a desperate battle with hunger in the cold, bleak, Finnish winter. It must not be said, when the Lutheran farmers of Finland and their families were praying for succor, with death hemming them in on all sides, that Christian America was deaf to the cry. Let us act with energy and generosity, and under God's blessing, we may be the means of saving thousands to life and happiness. Every reader should remember that a single act of self-denial now, may enable the contributor to the Famine Fund to become God's messenger of hope and safety to some poor, starving Finnish household. If you can do no more, you may at least rescue one human being from death by famine. Send your gift quickly then, and let it be accompanied by a heartfelt prayer for the saving of Finland. May God speed the work!

Under arrangements made by THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, we expect soon to have direct and authentic reports from the chief sections where the famine is now prevailing, with all available information concerning the relief operations. It will be a story of marvelous interest, presenting instances of Christian fortitude in its noblest aspects. These Finns are a simple and lovable race, deeply religious, and are rightly regarded as one of the most moral nations in Europe. Their cities, towns and villages are marked by cleanliness, sobriety, and a regard for decorum that is hardly equaled anywhere. They have fallen on evil times: floods, frosts and blights, with lost crops, tell the story and give the cause of the present suffering. In 60,000 families, it is said, the last of their belongings has been sold for food, which is so scarce that it can hardly be had at any price. In some of the villages, the people are living on tree bark and a horrible compost called "hunger bread." Even the cattle and the birds are dying off from sheer hunger. The whole situation is one that should arouse the world to benevolent action.

During the week many letters have been received, conveying the warmest expressions of sympathy with the Finns, and also bringing contributions to the Fund. We give below extracts from a few of these letters:

"I enclose express money order for $1 for the Finland Famine Fund. Realizing that all the littles, if only a little, help a little, I hasten to send my mite in at once. The grand old CHRISTIAN HERALD is always ready to aid the suffering and starving in any country or clime," writes G. S. C., Balcony Falls, Va.

M. A. A., Montreal, writes:

I saw in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD the account of the terrible famine in Finland, and am glad to send what I can to help, though it seems but a drop in the ocean. I enclose $1, with sincere prayers for their speedy relief, and that it may please the Lord to put it into the hearts of all good Christians to help our sisters and brothers in their sore need.

W. R. Clark, London, Ont. ($1), writes:

I am greatly pleased to see you have so heartily taken up the pressing need of Finland, not only contributing freely yourself, but seeking to get the subscribers to your valuable paper to do so. I pray that all may help in saving many lives. I will endeavor to get some of my friends to help also.

Mrs. David W., Little Falls, Minn., writes:

Enclosed are two dollars, which I send to the Famine Fund, with many prayers that God will put it into the hearts of his followers to respond heartily to the call of his people in distress.

With his gift of $1, Giles B. C., North East, Md., writes:

May many helpers be raised up to relieve and save from starvation the poor, suffering Finlanders, in answer to your appeal, is my prayer.

From Miss Ella Carlson, St. Paul, Minn., comes a letter enclosing a contribution of $9.42. She writes:

We have read with sympathetic interest of the famine in Finland, and therefore are pleased to send in a contributi which we hope may be used in the very best way to relie some of the great want.

"Wife and I have just read your account of t famine in Finland and send you $5 for the same. W wish we could do more," is the sympathetic letter Rev. H. A. Ridgway and wife, Providence, R. I.

Mr. W. A. Hines and Mrs. Hines, Manchester, I ($2), write: "We thought it might do some a little goo May God bless it to some one."

"I would like to join, with the rest of your su scribers, in sending to you my little mite ($2). Hopi that it may be blessed by the Giver of all good a perfect gifts, and at least be a blessing to some on writes Jeremiah C., Owen Sound, Ont., Can.

A New York Subscriber ($1) writes: "May God ble this dollar and move many hearts toward helping th famine-stricken land."

"It makes my heart sore for these poor people writes Valentine W., Grinnell, Ia. "Gladly would give you more, but I have a cripple wife now."

"I pray that God our father may add his blessin and that there may be a speedy deliverance," writes M., Manston, Wis. ($1). In the same spirit of sympath N. P. C., New London, Wis., sends $1, and write "May it save some poor starving people from dying "Heaven help them, and we must, too," writes Miss J., of Fort Wayne, Ind., in forwarding her contributi of $2. "May their sufferings be speedily relieved writes Mrs. Catherine B., Dayton, Ind. ($4). Anoth lady, Mrs. Jennie G., Litchfield, Mich. ($2), says: " wish I could multiply it ten thousand fold, for my hea aches for their sufferings."

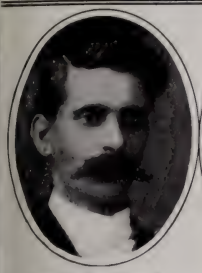
Among those who have sent contributions to th Famine Fund, are many who are of Scandinavian birt or descent, and who consequently have a very warm ar sympathetic interest in the unfortunate Finlanders. B the Christian's claim to brotherhood is broader than th of common race or nationality; for he remembers Hi who said: "One is your Master, even Christ; and all y are brethren." So it is a pleasure, no less than a dut to extend a helping hand to the Lutheran peasants Finland in this time of trial. Send all contributions t

FINLAND FAMINE FUND
THE CHRISTIAN HERALD
92 Bible House New York City

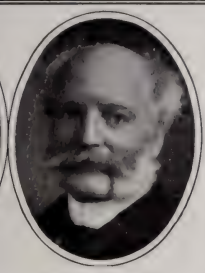
Every contribution, however small, will be duly a knowledged in these columns.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE FINLAND FAMINE FUND:

Louis Klopsch, Proprietor of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD $100 00
P B Bromfield 25 00
Friends who sympathize 5 00
W K Clark 1 00
E Yager 2 00
Mrs D and Mr A Ely 2 00
Lorenz Thomson .. 2 00
M A Andrew 1 00
Mrs R G Chaney 2 00
Miss P A Hillis 2 00
Mother and Daughter, Gaithersburg, 1 55
John N Carlson 5 00
Mrs A M Carlson .. 1 00
Miss Ella Carlson. 1 00
Gladys G. Carlson. .05
A Friend 25
Miss Alice B Carlson 10
Mrs John Carlson .. 1 00
John Carlson 1 00
Geo Olson 1 00
Wm Hoates 1 00
Thos E Bennett 5 00
O M Brownson 1 00
A Friend 1 00
Susan Ratlof 1 00
Mrs Jennie Gilder .. 2 00
Mary and Emilie Goltz 5 00
Mrs C Bice 4 00
A Friend, La Porte, Ind 1 00
Mr. J M V. [illegible] son, Henry 50
Wm Stock 1 00
Mrs G D Haisley ... 5 00
Henry Atchison ... 1 00
Jos McElhinney ... 2 00
M L Wheeler 5 00
Sub, Greensburg, Ind 1 00
C W Perkins 1 00
Rev & Mrs H A Ridgway 5 00
E Hardly 5 00
John Auracher ... 5 00
Subr Red Wing, Minn 1 00
Subr London, Ont., Can 1 00
Lizzie Hickman ... 2 00
G S Campbell 1 00
Mary Symonds 1 00
Mrs J. E Potts 2 00
E & C Buck 2 00
Henry Dexter 1 00
Mrs David Wright 2 00
F'd, Frederick, Md. 1 00
August Schaal 1 00
Mrs H Hoates 1 00
Mrs C Ruthven ... 1 00
Chas J Dar 5 00
A F'd, Madison, Ind 50
Andrew Long & Wm Gerbey 1 00
Henry Reese 1 00
C A [illegible] 1 00
W H Walker 1 00
E H S & S [illegible] 5 00
A & H L Farrell 1 00
Mrs E Jacobs 1 00
Dennis Dunn 1 00
John Symonds 5 00
C H, Dubuque, Ia.. 5 00
N P Christensen ... 1 00
J H Johnson 1 00
Friend, Worcester, Mass. 2 00
Mrs G C Arms 1 00
—, Waterbury, Ct.. 1 00
Mrs M M Conkling 1 00
P Meng 1 00
Mrs D E Frink 1 00
Rev B Whillock ... 2 00
Sarah J Van Nalts. 1 00
B Y, Phila, Pa..... 2 00
Friend, Indiana 1 00
L P Maples 1 00
John Hodges 1 00
J T Bagshaw 1 00
Mr and Mrs E O Wright 2 00
Subs, Bayonne, N J 1 00
V Weinman 1 00
Subs, N Y City 1 00
Mrs J Robb 1 00
J Cauby 2 00
W A Hines & wife. 2 00
Mrs C I Dikeman 100 00
L P Ekenbarger ... 1 00
Sympathizers, Plainwell, Mich. 26
Joseph Rogg 50
Mrs C H Wright .. 1 50
T S L, No Heel, Vt 50
Mrs Jane Richmond 1 00
Mrs W McKinney 1 00
Mr and Mrs E G T, Pa. 20 00
John Utter 2 00
E S Moore 5 00
A M Dailey 1 00
J Lindholm. 1 00
J G Danielson 1 00
Axel Anderson 1 00
C F Blackman 2 00
Aug Johnson 50
G Holmberg 50
J Bergquist 50
H Stolberg 25
Mrs D A Hall 5 00
Lidie E McGurk .. 1 00
Mr and Mrs G E Burnham 1 00
Paul S Lugar 1 00
Jane C Rose 2 00
A Friend, Allentown, Pa. 1 00
C F Stout 1 00
Mrs A Buffat 1 00
Mrs R L Stienbarger 1 00
James D Lytle 1 00
Mrs C G Westholm 1 00
H F Whitman 6 00
—, Mass. 1 00
J R Carlson 2 00
T J Simonton 1 00
Mrs Julia A Bishop 2 00
S S Bobst 1 00
L M Stanton 1 00
C E W. Elkhorn, Wis. 6 00
Mrs C B Young 1 00
J H Birkhead 4 00
M S Hance 2 00
Mrs W McKinney 1 00
Mr and Mrs E G T, Pa. 20 00
John Utter 2 00
E S Moore 5 00
A M Dailey 1 00
E M G, Washington, D C 1 00
Minnie Kiemle 1 00
T E Packer 2 00
Mr and Mrs J R Kuhns 2 00
Charlotte Ryland.. 5 00
A Poor Widow, Worcester, Mass. 5 00
H E Nourse 1 00
J M Jones 1 00
Mrs J P Nielson ... 1 00
Mrs J L Pinkham.. 3 00
Peter Meyer 1 00
Alexander Reynolds 2 00
Sympathizers, Steubenville, Ohio 5 00
Rev O J Marson ... 1 00
D L Baird 1 00
R P Mc Conaughy. 25
Mrs Mary E McCartney 2 75
W J McCartney ... 5 00
Mrs L B Lindsey .. 1 00
H M Chalmers 2 00
L A Bruce 1 00
Friend, Jordan, Ont, Can. 1 00
B Wilkins 1 00
De Voe Wilkins ... 1 00
—, Coram, N Y 1 00
Mrs J Ratliff 1 00
—, Campbellton, Can 2 00
Mrs J L Johnson... 2 00
Theo Waldron 5 00
John Utter 2 00
G C Arms 5 00
Mrs S Smyser 1 00
Friend, Westboro, Mass. 1 00
Mrs F Chadwick... 5 00
I H N, Sisterville, W Va. 1 00
Mrs W A Thomason 1 00
LRA, Boxford, Mass 1 00
Julia L Harrison ... 5 00
J N Cadby 1 00
Jessie, Griggs Co, N D 5 00
J Owen 1 00
Mrs F B Berkheiser 1 00
Mrs H Deerwechter 1 00
Sarah L Parr 1 00
W S Detwiler 5 00
Eleane R Williams. 1 00
Mr & Mrs T P Whipple 2 00
A E Eckerman 2 00
O F Price 5 00
Edwin Parker 5 00
Mrs L W Clark 1 00
Mrs Min'e Pearson. 1 00
Friend, Houghton, Mich. 10 00
E L Blackmore 5 00
Wm H Saville 1 00
Miss S A West 2 00
Mr & Mrs F B Clark 2 00
S K I., N Y C 1 00
E A Taylor 1 00
Mary A McMath ... 1 00
F'd, Painesville, Wis 1 00
—, Lynchburg, Va. 2 00
Jas H Smith 5 00
Dr F—, Martinsburg, Ohio 2 00
C Van der Smissen. 2 00
M & A Robbins 5 00
Chas Talcott 1 00
A B Estock 2 00
G A P, Evanston, Ill 2 00
Mrs J E Hamill.... 1 00
Mrs C Palton 1 00
Mrs M P Reigart.. 1 00
Cash, Lowville, N Y. 1 00
F'd, Winsted, Conn 1 00
E Walker 2 00
Mrs S Feets 1 00
W R Karges 1 00
J M Turner & wife 2 00
Mrs H A L Keith.. 5 00
Mrs M E Mace 1 00
E T Davis 1 00
R Mellor 1 00
G Raun 1 00
J Denny 1 00
Mary A Brindle.... 2 00
Rees C Hines 25 00
G W Walker 2 00
Rachel Walker 1 00
Della Walker 1 00
Hattie Walker 1 00
A P Adams 50
E P. Jackson, Mich 2 50
M A Hitchcock 2 00
Tryphena & Tryphosa, Newark, N J..... 2 00
Adelbert Wait 2 00
C W Hepburn 1 00
Casper De Vilbiss.. 1 00
Mrs S A Ayers..... 2 00
Maria F Mott..... 1 00
W S Lindsey..... 1 00
Mrs E Hanson..... 1 00
Samuel Batt..... 1 00
—, Racine, Wis... 25 00
Frederica S Hill.... 5
Mrs H J Deakin & D C Miller..... 3
A Sympathizer, Millerton, N Y..... 1
M A Ormsbee..... 5
A W Anderson..... 10
Mrs J L Paterson.. 1
Mrs Susan E Lane. 1
W & H A Hubbert. 2
B, Wolfville, Can.. 1
Mattie Yarnell..... 1
Mrs A E Sigler.... 1
J N Kellogg..... 1
Louise Kellogg.... 1
Wm E Kellogg..... 1
I H N, Martinsburg, W Va..... 1
Amanda L Cornish 2
Benj Morris..... 1
Henry M Marsh.... 1
A W Reid..... 5
—, Boston, Mass.. 1
Mrs W H Van Kernen..... 1
Mary L Belden..... 1
Isaac Pullin..... 1
Samuel Taylor..... 1
J H. Mass..... 1
N W Merrill..... 3
Mr and Mrs Chas H Patch..... 2
Miss C G Whitcomb..... 5
Mrs S H Whitcomb 5
Mrs E P Miller.... 1
John Nixon..... 1
Mrs Strong..... 5



REV. MR. MCKENZIE

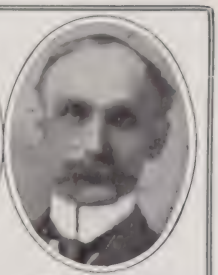


MR. J. M. TREBLE

HOW A SEED Of Faith Grew

The Story of the Wonderful Origin and Development of Toronto's Memorial Mission

REV. J. D. FITZPATRICK



MR. BARTLE E. BULL

ONE day, a Christian lady, walking through the poorer section of Toronto, heard some very little boys taking Christ's name in vain. Shocked, she lifted up her heart and asked: "Lord, who is responsible for this state of things?" Quick as a flash, the answer came: "You, in so far as you are able to prevent and do not." For a long time, her heart had been earning towards neglected children of the street. At ast, it seemed clear that, though reluctant, she should ve up her class in the Metropolitan Church Sunday chool, and gather in some room a few of these chilren. Several godly ladies joined hands with her; a oom was lent them; no children came; then four. hat was the beginning, in 1886, in Orange Hall, Queen treet, Toronto, Canada, of what is now the Fred ictor Mission Society.

The Junior Epworth League numbers six hundred embers; it gathers every Sabbath for a Children's unday Morning Service; has a noir of its own, and has sustained successful series of cottage meetngs, in which the little ones take art under direction of a leader. very Thursday afternoon, seventyve to one hundred and twenty-five omen, many bringing their chilren, are found in attendance at he Mothers' Meeting. Thursday ights, some two hundred homess men are given free suppers. here are a Senior Epworth eague, a Christian Endeavor Soety, King's Daughters' Society, iterary and Social Departments, oys' Brigade, Choral Club, classes n Elocution and Physical Culture, ymnasium, Kitchen Garden and Manual Training School; in fact, full complement of institutional ctivities are found in operation t the Fred Victor Mission.

Of course, the one room has enrged into something else, or it ould not contain this full flower f the little seed of faith which udded in Mrs. Mary Telfer Sheffeld's heart in 1886. How the lission found its present commoious and handsome home is a eautiful story. It was in 1888, that the Metropolitan Church took Mrs. Sheffield's Sunday School, which had already developed phenomenal proportions and varied activities, under its wing. Temporary abodes were found for it here and there according to its need. The work was almost exclusively for men and boys. Among the earnest toilers in this vineyard of the Lord was Fred Victor Massey, a young man before whom life was opening with every promise that wealth and affection could bestow. Death removed him from his labors. Out of the hearts of those who loved him came the thought of a fitting memorial, and in 1894, the Fred Victor Mission, erected by Mr. Hart A. Massey at a cost of sixty thousand dollars, was handed over, a free gift to Toronto Methodism. The Fred Victor Mission Society, composed of representatives from five or six churches reasonably contiguous to the Mission, was vested with management of the institution. A superintendent, appointed by the Conference, and seven deaconesses, devote their entire time to the work. The Society does not confine itself to the institution, but lends a helping hand to other mission or aggressive Christian work in the city.

Through co-operation of the Deaconess' Training School and the Lillian Massey Normal Training School of Household Science, the institution is able to extend special advantages to those who attend its clubs and classes. It has not, however, any endowment, and is entirely dependent for support upon the generosity of friends in the various Methodist churches of Toronto. Though sustained and managed by Methodists, its benefits are free to all creeds and peoples. Roman Catholics and all denominations of Protestants are found in attendance on the clubs and classes. The evangelistic features of the work are held as most important. While ministering to the body and training of the intellect is not forgotten, the supreme aim of the Mission is to save souls. There are regular services, besides class meetings, cottage-meetings, and "Out-door Lantern Services."

"It is our privilege," says the superintendent, "to preach the Gospel to many who, we believe, would not hear it but for the work of the Mission. Some would not go to church; some come intoxicated; some, strolling past, are attracted by the singing and the brightness of the hall, seen through the open door. Some tell us they have not been in a place of worship for years. Not a few find Christ here. Our Mission is situated in the down town section, and amid the poorest and most wretched homes of the city of Toronto."

The Superintendent is Rev. J. D. Fitzpatrick; the Honorary President, Mr. Chester D. Massey; the President, Mr. Bartle E. Bull; the treasurer, Mr. J. M. Treble; Secretary, Mr. Alex. Mills; Associate Superintendent, Rev. Mr. McKenzie. Any inquiries concerning the work will be cheerfully answered by Rev. Mr. Fitzpatrick, if addressed to him at the Fred Victor Mission Society, Toronto, Canada.

MOTHERS' MEETING IN THE FRED VICTOR MISSION

Beautiful and Inspiring

The Hall of Fame is a book excellent in design, beautiful in execution, inspiring in effect. I am reading it with the greatest interest and pleasure. The "Family Art Gallery" is very handsome. I have great difficulty in comprehending how you can afford to give so much—ten lovely pictures, this fine book, and fifty-two issues of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, so instructive and excellent a magazine, for only $2. C. B. SMITH.

Anacostia, D. C.

HEROIC LIVES IN THE FROZEN NORTH

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 47

To convey missionaries and goods from San Francisco to Alaska, as the various transportation companies have combined, and freight has constantly increased until the charges now amount to sixty per cent. of the actual cost of the goods purchased. As the Mission has had a large deficit regularly for several years, a steamer cannot be afforded.

Any reader wishing to assist this valuable mission work can do so by addressing Rev. Paul de Schweinitz, at Bethlehem, Pa. Our photographs are supplied by Mr. Schoechert, and will give the reader an idea of the Mission and its surroundings, and the class of natives among whom this Gospel work is conducted. The photographs were taken under peculiar difficulties, but are, nevertheless, remarkably clear and instructive.

MISSIONARY SCHOECHERT AND FAMILY

A GROUP OF NATIVE SCHOOL CHILDREN

Chapter 4, verses 1-11, of the Gospel according to Matthew, in Alaska Eskimo Hieroglyphics

LEARNED, BUT NOT WISE

PAUL AT ATHENS

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR FEB. 1 ACTS 17: 22-34

By Dr. and Mrs. Wilbur F. Crafts

GOLDEN TEXT—ACTS 17: 18: "HE PREACHED UNTO THEM JESUS AND THE RESURRECTION"

I AM an Athenian, who used to be very proud of my own learning and the culture of my city, which, in the age of Pericles, produced the greatest harvest of eloquence, literature and art that was ever produced by a city of equal population in any equal time. Many of us spent nearly all our waking hours talking philosophy, while our slaves worked for us. We were so busy making theories of the universe that we never stopped to argue whether slaves and women had any rights, although in former times we had dethroned kings and made great boasts of our liberty as a republic. Our Supreme Court, elected by ourselves, was called the Areopagus. When Rome conquered us, because we had been weakened by vices, in spite of our beautiful statues, the conquerors let us keep our Areopagus and govern ourselves in small matters, subject to the Roman Emperor's veto. I was one of the members of this Supreme Court and proud of my office as an Areopagite, and yet more of my city's fame for learning and philosophy; but it was a city full of idols, and, with all our study, we had not given up the worship of images. Many of the learned were sceptical about their alleged power to hurt or help, but we all thought the fear of the gods was a good thing to restrain the evil passions of the common people. Whenever a plague or other disaster came on us, we offered sacrifices to one idol after another, not knowing which one we had offended, and once, when the plague still continued, we set up an altar "To the Unknown God," supposing some God for whom we had no image—perhaps the God of the Jews, for whom no images were made by them—might have been offended.

One day a man named Paul came to our city, and told a few of us in the public square about this unseen God, and how he had sent his Son to this world to proclaim his love and law. This was something new, and the philosophers crowded around in curiosity, more than could hear well in the street, and so we invited Paul to speak in the Areopagus, where, on a hill and in the open air, many could hear distinctly.

Paul began very politely by telling us he had noticed we gave much time and money to religion. He was especially impressed that we had made idols to represent not only the gods we knew about, but also one altar for any "Unknown God whom we might have overlooked." But he was courageous as well as courteous, and presently showed us that although we were very religious, we were also very foolish and even ignorant, in supposing an image that men had made, had made men and all things else in the world. He proclaimed the "Unknown God" as One unseen, Creator of nature, controller of nations, friend of every man. He told us God would judge us lightly for our idolatries while he was unknown, but now that he was made known, all must repent and turn in loving loyalty to the Son of God, Jesus Christ, whom God had proclaimed to be his own Son, and also our Judge, by raising from the dead. When he spoke of repentance and resurrection all the other members of the Areopagus burst into derisive laughter, and cried out, "No more of that nonsense about the dead coming back to life, and about philosophers repeating like common sinners." But I felt that Paul's words were true. Our contradictory doctrines about the idols had never satisfied my reason, and prayers to them had brought no pardon or peace to my heart. I knew I was sinful, and what Paul said of the Creator as my Father, and of Jesus Christ as my elder brother, and of all men my brothers, seemed to be the very truth. While the other judges hurried away in disgust, I stopped to grasp the hand of Paul and thank him. Damaris, a woman, also lingered to express her faith. A few others, lowly people, heard Paul in private conversations and believed, but the crowds left him, and there were not enough believers to form a church, though we met together in our homes. We tried to persuade others, but those we won were mostly slaves and peasants. Pride of intellect proved a barrier to the Gospel, harder to overcome than vice itself. But what a joy the story of the true God and of Jesus proved to those of us who believed!

From the painting by Raphael

"WHEN THEY HEARD OF THE RESURRECTION OF THE DEAD, SOME MOCKED"

Illustration and Application

1. God unknown, vv. 22, 23. 2. God made known as Creator, vv. 24, 25. 3. As Ruler of nations, vv. 26, 27. 4. As our Father: approached by repentance and faith, vv. 28-31. Will you be like those who rejected God, or those who postponed, or those who believed?

Ye men of Athens, I perceive that ye are very religious (American Revision). Here we have a lesson in manners, which are closely related to morals. "Be courteous" (I. Peter 3: 8), is one of the Bible commands too much overlooked by those Christians who have associated politeness with frivolity. Preachers, teachers, missionaries, all of us, will be able to do more good to others, if we, first of all, commend whatever we can find in them, in any way, worthy of praise. But what history tells us of others at this period, is an impressive reminder that people may be "very religious," and yet very immoral. They may be "very religious," while God is really "unknown." This is true not alone of those who worship idols of stone, but also of those whose worship is as dead, even though it may also be as beautiful as an Athenian idol (Ezekiel 11: 19). The story of Diogenes, reminds us that it was "easier to find a god than an honest man in Athens." Even in our Christian cities, it is easier to find church members than Christlike lives. "Lord, is it I?"

I found an altar with this inscription, "To an Unknown God." The Athenian hospitality that kept "open house" for all gods, and a "vacant chair" for any one they might not have heard of, and so might not have honored with an image, was a case of excessive tolerance, in striking contrast with the bigotry of the Thessalonian Jews, who had driven Paul from their own city, and even from Berea, because they would not even hear some new truth about the one God they thought was known to them, but who was really as much an "unknown God" to them as to the idolatrous Athenians. We are in deeper guilt, if knowing God, we refuse him the love and obedience that we admit to be his due as our Father and King. Ours is the greater sin, if we neglect the altar to a God made known.

> For what are men better than sheep or goats,
> That nourish a blind life within the brain,
> If, knowing God, they lift not hands in prayer,
> Both for themselves and those who call them friend.
> —TENNYSON: Idyls of the King.

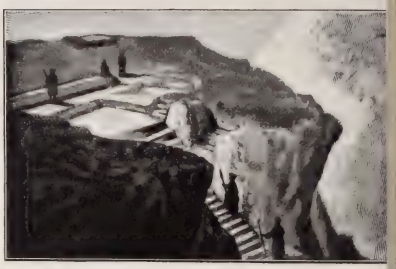
Perhaps some consideration for the unseen God that the Jews worshiped in Grecian cities may have prompted that Athenian altar without an image, which so providentially prepared the way for Paul's proclamation of an invisible God, even as the destruction of idols by the natives of Hawaii preceded and prepared the way for the American missionaries. The tradition is that Epimenides of Crete, a heathen seer, being called to Athens during a great plague, erected this altar to the "unknown God," whose wrath it was supposed was resting on the city. Several such inscriptions have been found on old altars, in pathetic contrast to the abundant comfort which the Bible brings to those in distress to-day, who can say with Job, "I know that my Redeemer liveth." What a contrast, that Athenian plague to that hour when a supreme calamity befell our country in the assassination of Lincoln, when Garfield stood among the pallid brokers of Wall street, beside the statue of Washington, and said, with the solemnity of a prophet, "The Lord reigns"—words that again were taken up to express the nation's faith when Garfield fell. Not by an altar "to an unknown God" do we stand to pray in public or private grief, but we look up confidently to him who has shown us the Father.

God that made the world. To us these words are a commonplace, for there is scarcely an atheist left in the civilized world, so clearly has design, order and progress in nature proclaimed one Master Mind behind it all. But nearly all those learned Athenians whom Paul addressed, although they gave nearly all their time to study, thought the world was made and managed by a crowd of gods that did not even co-operate, one of many historic illustrations of the fact that it is one thing to be learned and quite another to be wise, which found another illustration in the numerous agnostics of a few years ago, whose very name was borrowed by Huxley from the Greek inscription Agnosto Theo, "to an unknown God."

These modern agnostics had no altar, and ignored God in their interpretations of the universe, left God out, which is the literal meaning of atheist—without God. And to be without God is to be not only "without hope," but also without a consistent theory of the universe. In the universe these scientists found law, but told us we could not know there was any Lawgiver behind it. They found everywhere evidence of purpose and plan, of adaptations long pursued toward far-off ends; they found in man thought and love and will; but denied that there was purpose in the First Cause of all this, as if one could put hot and lifeless mud into a mill and bring out of it the brain of a Shakespeare. That sort of learning has been beaten by common sense, and there are to-day very few scientists of high rank whose theory of the world leaves God out. Those agnostics of the near past, on finding the rudest arrowhead of stone in a gravel bed, where not a human bone or other trace of man was to be found, were sure that human mind had shaped the stone; but when they found in nature nearly all the tools and machines that man has unconsciously copied, "thinking God's thoughts after him," they could see in them no proof that Mind made the world, or that man is the child of that Creator.



MARS' HILL, ATHENS

Many young students, too busy with games to know of the recent movement from doubt to faith in the scientific world—we are teaching this lesson with young men's classes in mind—need to be reminded that the mechanical theory of the universe is utterly discredited and packed away with agnosticism in the old curiosity shop of learned follies. In the words of President Schurman, of Cornell University, once counted an agnostic himself: "The conception of God as spiritual and not mechanical; as immanent not external; as working by law not by caprice, and with steady, infinite patience, not by catastrophic outbursts; as adumbrated in nature and revealed in the moral and spiritual qualities of man who is the goal of evolution and the epitome of existence; is not this conception, in combination with the Divine Fatherhood (which is the essence of Christianity), taking possession of the best spirits of the modern world and dislodging the agnosticism by which it was preceded and by which, in a sense it was originated?" (Agnosticism and Religion, Scribner's.)

In these last words there is a hint of what those who have always been orthodox should gratefully recognize, that God has providentially used the work of agnostic scientists, who seemed to be destroying the doctrine of God, to magnify and strengthen it. Paley compared the world to a watch, which must have had a maker; but to-day we compare the universe to a watch factory, in which the manufacturer works, not only through other minds but through wonderful machinery, which being once started, can turn out wonderful products all by itself as a secondary cause.

[We believe that even children can follow Paul's argument for God, and the watch argument, but if it were not so, this discussion is not out of place in this Sunday School page, for we remember, what some who address the whole school in "baby talk" forget, that there are young men's classes, and would be more, if great themes were manfully discussed. This lesson can, however, be simplified for children, who easily understand that some one must have made our beautiful world.]

Hath made of one blood all nations of men. God's control is declared to extend not alone to mineral, vegetable and animal kingdoms, but also to political kingdoms, whose national boundaries God determines. It is said that Gibbon, though a sceptic, when he had finished his great history of the Decline and Fall of Rome, expressed his profound feeling that a mighty unseen Hand had controlled the world tragedy he had described.

> This world's no blot for us, nor blank;
> It means intensely and means good.—BROWNING.

He is not far from each one of us. For in him we live, "God is never so far off as even to be near."

> Closer is he than breathing, and nearer than hands and feet.

The ever-pulsing heart is God moving in us. We abide in him and he in us. He is, therefore, "an ever-present help in every time of trouble." This was strange doctrine to those who externalized their God in stone images, but even to-day we are too apt to think we must ascend into heaven to bring God down.

For Bible Lovers

We are to-day in receipt of the Bible Dictionary, and I am very happy to say that it more than meets my expectations. It is something that no student, or real lover of the Word of God, can afford to be without. A. AUGUSTA CONANT.

THE HEAD OF THE FAMILY

A Story of Anthracite

By BURTON E. STEVENSON

Author of "The Heritage," "Famous Remington's Battles," "A Soldier of Virginia," etc.

CHAPTER IV.

In the Shadow of the Culm-Pile

IT was not until a week later that Jimmy Boyton, still bearing the scars of his injuries, was able to report for duty at the company's office, but in the meantime a number of unusual things had happened. The doctor who had been hastily summoned to attend to him immediately after the assault, had found him a mass of cuts and bruises, but, luckily, with o bones broken. He had dressed the injuries, and then accompanied him home in President Carver's carriage.

There Jimmy was put to bed, and the doctor had taken a look at his brother and mother, diagnosing their trouble at a glance—as, indeed, a much less skilful physician could have done—and left some medicine for them. He was shaking his head in the privacy of the carriage as he drove away again, and he must have made a report to his employer that was far from rose-colored, for presently the carriage drove into Poverty Row a second time, and from it was unloaded all sorts of surprising things—bed clothing of a fineness and food of a delicacy hitherto unknown in that little cottage—and finally came a stout, cheery-faced Irish girl, who announced that her name was Polly O'Brien, and that she had been sent to nurse the "childer," which term she evidently understood to include Mrs. Boyton.

She proceeded at once to make herself very much at home. It was almost magical the transformation she wrought in the hut's interior, and Jimmy, waking the next day from the fever that had chained him, imagined that he must be dreaming. And then the food! What delicious surprises Polly prepared for him and Tommy—what wonders of appetizing dishes to ravish the palate accustomed to side-meat and corn-bread! And not for the children only, but for their mother, too, until it seemed that new life had been breathed into all three.

I suspect that Polly knew another specific, too—the value of a cheery smile and a merry word, which so many people seem to forget. So passers-by in Poverty Row were astonished by the unaccustomed sound of ringing, heart-whole laughter issuing from one of the least-inviting houses, and stopped to have the mystery explained to them. To Jimmy, such a cheerful outlook upon life was a revelation, and his whole being warmed and expanded under it.

So it was a very thankful boy who, a week later, having said good-by to Polly, not without tears, entered for a third time the office of the company, and the secretary, looking down from his desk, addressed him in the very same words he had used once before.

"Why, hello, youngster? Where did you come from?"

"If y' please, sir, I'm ready t' go t' work," said Jimmy, blushing, very red at the secretary's scrutiny.

"Oh, come now," began Sam, swinging himself down from his stool, "don't you think you'd better rest another week? You're still looking rather done up."

"I'm all right ag'in," protested the boy. 'I want t' go t' work right away. Indeed, I do, sir."

"Your salary began a week ago, you know," observed Sam; "your staying away another week wouldn't make any difference."

"Yes, I know, sir," answered Jimmy simply; "that's th' reason I want t' go t' work, sir."

The other looked at him for a moment with a queer light in his eyes.

"Very well, then," he said, at last, and he opened the gate in the railing and motioned the boy in. "You're to be messenger boy for the office. Can you read?"

Copyright, 1903, by Louis Klopsch

"N—no, sir," stammered Jimmy, with downcast face, seeing the rosy future already slipping away from him. "That is, not much. Y' see, I only got t' go t' school a year an' a half. A feller can't learn much in that time."

"No, a fellow can't learn much in that time," assented Sam, "no matter how hard he tries. Now, how old are you, Jimmy; honor bright?"

"I was nine last April," said the boy, slowly: "But I'm mighty strong fer my age," he added defiantly.

"I'm glad of that," said Sam, looking down at him with a little smile, "and we'll see if we can't arrange for a little more schooling after awhile. It won't make any difference just now," he went on, seeing the boy's downcast face. "All you'll have to do is to carry messages around and bring others back. If anybody tries to stop you, you must call on the nearest soldier or policeman—they're bound to help you. Now this envelope goes over to the office of the Springbank Company. You know where that is?"

"Oh, yes, sir," answered the boy, who, indeed, knew the field quite accurately for many miles around, for he and his brother had spent many days wandering about it in that happier time when their father was alive.

"Well, you will ask for Mr. Johnston and give this letter to him. Tell him you will wait for an answer."

Jimmy took the letter and sallied forth, and so began his duties as messenger and office boy. They were neither fatiguing nor confining, and it seemed to him that he was very far from earning his dollar-a-day wage. Nor was he troubled in the performance of his duties by the other boys; Simms had taught them an emphatic and unforgetable lesson. Mr. Carver, however, seemed to have forgotten him, save for a friendly nod in passing, now and then; but Jimmy worshiped him from a distance, and longed for an opportunity to prove his devotion.

"A MAN IN UNIFORM TURNED QUICKLY AS THEY ENTERED"

Indeed, it was not wonderful that Mr. Carver should forget such a little thing as his new office-boy, for he had many bigger and more pressing ones to worry him. As the weeks passed, the struggle between men and operators grew more bitter; hunger began to pinch the men, despite the help tendered by other labor organizations; the public demanded coal, and the operators knew that they must produce it somehow, at whatever cost. Although the chiefs of the Union did everything in their power to restrain the men, and to persuade them from acts of violence, outbreaks of various kinds became increasingly frequent. To the men, it was a struggle for existence; small wonder, then, that at times their passions got the upper hand and urged them on to deeds which they afterward regretted! An empty stomach, the knowledge that wife and children are hungry—these things do not tend to make men law-abiding. Besides, to many of them, unlettered, ignorant of the great world, the "company"—the combination which controlled the anthracite fields—seemed an insatiable, all-devouring monster, intent on draining away their very life-blood, denying them even bread to eat. To attack this monster with fire and dynamite—with anything that would wound and cripple it—seemed to them both just and right! At last, came the expected appeal to the Governor of the State for protection, and five thousand men in blue uniforms, with glittering muskets on their shoulders, and ball cartridges in their belts, marched into the coal fields.

For a week or two after that, everything was quiet. Even the more desperate among the miners were awed by this display of force—which, indeed, was the only thing that could impress them. For many of them, it was the only effective argument. Untutored, governed only by their own wild passions, they had come straight from the military despotisms of the Old World, where levelled bayonets and muskets loaded with ball were the certain rewards of insurrection. But as the days passed, word ran among them that these men in blue were not like the soldiers of the Old World—that men had hearts, consciences—they would not ruthlessly shoot down their fellowmen, their brothers. The impression grew and grew, and the strikers gradually became bolder.

Many things were occurring to vex them. Under protection of the militia, a number of non-union men had been brought into the fields, and two or three of the collieries had been started up again. New pumpmen and engineers were secured to keep the workings free from water. To be sure, the output was not a hundredth part of what it normally would have been; the miners knew that without them it was utterly impossible to supply the market, whatever boasts to the contrary the operators might make; their leaders were doing everything in their power to preserve peace, realizing the importance of having public sympathy with them; and yet it was not wonderful that under constant dread and aggravation, the men sometimes lost their tempers and took the law into their own hands.

Among the great body of better-class Americans, sitting comfortably at the breakfast table, reading the morning paper, it was inevitable that a feeling of antipathy to the miners should grow up. Every piece of lawlessness was reported carefully to the newspapers and given an importance which it did not really deserve, for an army of correspondents had been sent into the fields for that very purpose. The papers controlled by the syndicate—and, directly and indirectly, there was a great number of them—did everything they could to influence public sentiment by subtly-worded dispatches and editorials. Besides, the better-class American was conscious that his coal-cellar was empty, that it could not be filled except at great outlay, and that winter was almost at hand. So it was quite natural that he should look askance upon the strikers.

Not so the great body of toilers throughout the land—the millions of men who earned their bread by the labor of their hands. They knew that the miners' battle was also their battle; they knew that it was a fight for existence, and they did not wonder that in such a fight men should sometimes lose their self-control. In every labor lodge from east to west, a sum of money was set aside to be sent monthly to the miners' Union, to provide the men with food until the fight was won

Meanwhile, in the fields the mutterings grew louder and more threatening; more troops were called out, until the whole militia force of Pennsylvania was on the ground. The public was wearying of the strike. It demanded either that the operators produce coal with non-union men, now that they had ample protection, or that they come to an agreement with the Union. The operators determined to make a mighty effort to satisfy the first of these demands.

As Jimmy left his work one evening and, in the gathering darkness, skirted the great pile of culm that overshadowed Poverty Row, he came suddenly upon a little group of men, talking together in low tones. He was about to pass on, when a sentence which just reached his ear, brought him to a halt, with fast-beating heart.

"So they're goin' t' start th' Carver t'morrer," said one of the men.

"That's what they say."

There was a moment's silence, and the boy sank farther back among the heaps of slate and stone.

"Well, we kin stop thet, I reckon," said the first speaker, at last.

The others laughed in concert—not a pleasant laugh.

"Yes, I reckon we kin," agreed one of them.

"Well, pass th' word aroun'," continued the other. "Say th' old place at nine t'night."

CONTINUED ON PAGE 58

OUR EDITORIAL FORUM

E. J. FERNIE, ASSOCIATE EDITOR — LOUIS KLOPSCH, Editor and Proprietor — G. H. SANDISON, ASSOCIATE EDITOR

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD ... Subscription ... $1.00 ... Foreign Postage. ... Expiration of Subscriptions.—The date on the wrapper indicates when your subscription ends. ... Subscriptions may commence with any issue. Letters should be addressed, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, Bible House, New York.

Remittances ... Change of Date. ... Change of Address.—Give both your old and your new address when you ask us to change your address. ... Entered at the Postoffice, New York, as Second-class Matter

Church Progress in 1902

THE church census to which we called attention on this page recently, now has a new basis of comparison, in the statistics of the churches, a statement of which, prepared by Dr. H. K. Carroll, is published by the Christian Advocate. From this, it appears that the aggregate membership of the churches of all denominations in the United States is 28,689,028 which, if the population has increased at its normal rate since the census of 1900, is about thirty-eight per cent. There are 194,116 churches and 147,113 ministers.

The net gain during the year is not so large proportionately as in 1901. The gain in church membership is 403,743, or on an average of about one and a-half per cent., which would imply that the number of church members at the beginning of 1903, bears a smaller proportion to the whole population than it did at the beginning of 1902. The chief difference is in the Roman Catholic Church, which, in 1901, reported a net gain of 473,083, and in 1902, of only 120,634. The Methodists, on the other hand, who, in 1901, had a gain of 50,151, had in 1902 a gain of 98,184. The Presbyterians show a gain in 1902 of 30,001, as against 20,615 in 1901, and the Congregationalists a gain in 1902 of 13,330, as against 3,475 in 1901. Taking away from the list the figures of Jews, Roman Catholics, Mormons and Dowieites, it appears that the other denominations have more communicants at the beginning of 1903, than they had at the beginning of 1902, by 114,930. The same denominations report an increase of 972 church buildings during the year, of which 442 were added by the various branches of the Methodist church.

On the whole, while the report is not so encouraging as last year, it is not so discouraging as the pessimists would have us believe. It should incite to new energy, increased consecration, and more fervent prayer, that the Lord of the harvest may more abundantly bless the labors of his servants during the year on which we have entered, and that, as in the early days of Christianity, the Lord may add to the Church day by day such as are being saved.

The Rich Young Man

RICH young Mr. Rockefeller, who conducts a Bible Class for men, in connection with the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, New York, has lately been made the target for some very sharp criticism in consequence of his efforts to serve in the ranks of Christian workers. These critics have taunted him with his youth and inexperience, and have declared it to be impossible for a fashionable young millionaire, son of a multi-millionaire, to divest himself of the exclusiveness peculiar to his class, and to feel that sympathy for the sinner, which is essential to the effective presentation of the Gospel. It is a spectacle for laughter, they say, to witness the son of the richest man on earth expounding the doctrines and interpreting the words of the lowly Nazarene.

From the very facts of the case, these critics argue, young Mr. Rockefeller can know but little of human suffering or of the moral and social conditions surrounding the lives of the poor, since he himself does not come into actual personal contact with those conditions. Therefore, they hold, he must necessarily be insincere and incapacitated to lead others into the Christian life; and the fulsome adulation with which he is loaded by the newspapers only proves that they have no perception of the true bearings of the matter.

We expect to find criticism of this character, which is at once illogical and unjust. If the critics had confined the reckless to young Mr. Rockefeller's inexperience, they might have stood on unassailable ground; but there is no reason whatsoever to impugn his sincerity. Hypocrite he certainly is not. He has shown a courage and straightforwardness in his Bible class work that are admirable, and all the more so because we consider that it requires unusual courage for a young man of great wealth and high social position to decide openly for Christ, as he has done.

It is a profound mistake to imagine a young person, or any person, that the possession of wealth and social distinction is largely or at all barred from rendering acceptable Christian service. It is only when the individual sets up his riches and bonds and estates as a barrier between his Maker and himself, that riches become a curse, and the owner's heart is hardened against God. Sacred and secular history is full of instances of the splendid services rendered by men and women who consecrated their wealth and energies to the cause of religion, and the uplifting of the human race. And in no single instance was the sincerity of their religious profession, or their purity of purpose ever successfully assailed. The world is all the better for such characters, and they should receive its cordial welcome and co-operation, rather than its harsh and cynical abuse.

Young Mr. Rockefeller has really nothing to fear from his present critics. They are not Christians, for they do not show the spirit of Christ. If they were Christians, they would encourage him in well-doing, and help rather than hinder him. They are merely cheap sensationalists. Let him not turn aside from his work, but rather labor to broaden and deepen it. Great as his wealth may be, he will find ample opportunity for its employment. He may do much, if he will. Bunyan's "man with the muck-rake," who was so completely engrossed with his work of accumulating dirt and straw, that he could not see the shining One, who held above his head a rich prize to be had for the taking, was a type of the man who, neglecting all else, gives up soul and body to the gathering of wealth. Hard may be the struggle of the rich who desire to enter the Kingdom; but the harder it is, the greater is the victory.

The President and the Trusts

WHEN the government of a nation voluntarily assumes, with every evidence of sincerity, the task of conducting a great reform, the average citizen may well be pardoned if he indulge the hope that some substantial public benefit at least may come from such promising conditions. This is the attitude of the American people at the present time on the trust question. They are looking to the President and his advisers—not to any party, but to those who have sufficient patriotism and public spirit to discern what is for the country's best interests—to employ all the influence of the administration to secure the passage by Congress of legislation to regulate the trusts.

This demand is an outcome of the cumulative experience of the last two years, and more particularly of the last six months, culminating in the oppressive coal famine.

There will, unquestionably, be a very great deal of partisan talk over the legislative measure proposed by the President and formulated by the Attorney-General, as a brief of recommendation for the Judiciary Committee of the Senate and House. Attempts will be made to have the proposed measure seem a party issue. It is so in no sense whatsoever; it is the inevitable result of conditions which were superior to all the parties, and which have been wisely recognized by the administration as indicating an imperative public necessity. This view is now accepted by the broadest-minded men in public life today. All who have the faculty of discerning the tendencies of the times, acknowledge the need of a wise and comprehensive law to suppress "predatory competition," and to check the growth of monopolies that are fast getting beyond national control.

It will be a long fight, and one that will not be concluded in a single session. As a preliminary step, it is proposed to establish a Department of Commerce, with jurisdiction over all concerns engaged in interstate or foreign trade. States must themselves regulate the monopolies within their own borders. As to the urgent existing cases, special provision is to be made for their trial under the present Anti-Trust Law.

This is the exact situation, up to date, and it is by no means discouraging. If the President continues, as we believe he will, to keep the public interest steadily in view as the paramount issue, there can be little doubt as to the final outcome. It will soon become convincingly clear to the politicians, that all party interests must stand aside, in order that the reform demanded by the nation and promised by the President may be made a part of the statute law of the land.

* * *

Rev. Dr. ARTHUR CRANE, the evangelist, has lately been conducting a series of successful union meetings in Kansas and Ocala, Fla. He leaves for London, England, in January, to conduct evangelistic services there.

30,000,000 STAND FOR TEMPERANCE

Splendid Progress Reported in the National Crusade Against Intoxicating Drinks

To the Editor of The Christian Herald:

TWO articles which appeared recently in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, bearing respectively these titles, "An International Disgrace," and "The Shadow of a Great Evil," are well worth a careful reading, because of the facts they contain concerning twin vices. The dangers pointed out are real, not imaginary. Twenty years of pastoral work in this and other large manufacturing towns and cities and six years in reform work, have given the writer opportunity to know whereof he testifies.

It is utterly impossible for any one to give the exact statistics of the increase of drunkenness amongst women during the last seven years; yet the daily press, the records at Bellevue Hospital of the number of women patients in the alcoholic ward and the records of inebriate asylums, all furnish evidence that is conclusive of the fearful prevalence of this growing vice. A visit during the day-time to many restaurants and department stores that provide refreshments, would convince the most sceptical of the prevalence among women of the custom of ordering intoxicating drinks. It is fast becoming a conviction with many, that these restaurants, etc., are simply fashionable drinking-places for women. Besides, the grocery stores that sell the vile stuff for "family use" are doing untold injury, to say nothing of the "bottle stores," where liquor is sold by the bottle to be taken home, or drunk in a back room of the store.

But let me give a few facts on the other side of the question. I consider that the outlook for temperance reform never was so bright as at the present moment, for the following reasons:

1st. That in spite of pessimistic declarations concerning the failure of prohibition to prohibit, and that "people drink on the sly," there never were so many total abstainers in our country as at this moment.

2d. That there is not a Christian denomination or church which has not denounced drinking and drunkenness in the strongest conceivable terms.

3d. That many religious bodies now appoint certain ministers as their representatives to devote all their time and energies to the promotion of temperance.

4th. That there are now no less than twelve national organizations for carrying on the different departments of temperance reform. In August, 1901, twelve national organizations sent delegates to a conference called by the National Temperance Society of New York, to be held in connection with the World's Fair in Buffalo.

5th. That there is not a State in the Union where scientific temperance is not taught in the public schools, in accordance with mandatory law. Twenty-six million children, of school age, are being warned of the danger from alcoholic drinks. They are the coming American citizens.

6th. That there is not a single American railroad company which will employ a man if they know that he drinks, either on duty or off. Leading business men are also coming around to the same position.

7th. Insurance men are all refusing to insure men engaged in the manufacturing and use of intoxicating drinks, and in cases where they do insure such men, they are all charging heavier rates.

The National Temperance Society, with headquarters in this city, at 3 West 18th street, began nearly two years ago to make preparations for a World-wide Twentieth Century Pledge-Signing Crusade. On Sunday, Nov. 23, last, the Crusade was inaugurated all over the English speaking world. Reports show vast accessions to the total abstinence ranks. The same society has sent out over 2,000,000 temperance pledges since Oct. 20th last, and 350,000 leaflets, and 45,000 circulars, and a great mass of temperance literature besides has appeared in over one hundred newspapers. Lastly, the following facts gathered by the General Secretary of the National Temperance Society from the various State Auditors speak for themselves.

Alabama now has local option in 50 out of 66 counties; Arkansas 50 out of 75 counties; California 175 towns and cities; Colorado 50 towns and cities; Connecticut 75 out of 125 towns; Delaware half the State; Florida 30 out of 45 counties; Georgia all of the State, except 4 cities; Illinois 650 towns and cities; Indiana 140 towns; Iowa all of the State, except 25 cities; Kentucky 90 out of 119 counties; Louisiana 20 out of 59 counties; Maryland 15 out of 24 counties; Massachusetts 125 out of 175 towns; Michigan 400 towns and cities; Minnesota 400 towns and cities; Mississippi 71 out of 75 counties; Missouri 84 out of 115 counties; Nebraska 250 towns and cities; New Jersey 200 towns and cities; New York 700 towns and cities; North Carolina 60 out of 90 counties; Ohio 500 towns and cities; Pennsylvania 600 towns and cities and 20 counties; Rhode Island 20 towns and cities; South Carolina all the State, except 10 cities; Tennessee 70 out of 96 counties; Texas 120 out of 246 counties; Virginia 55 out of 106 counties; West Virginia 40 out of 54 counties; Washington 50 towns and cities; Wisconsin 300 towns and cities.

It is estimated that 30,000,000 of our people in these numerous towns, cities, and counties and States are living under prohibition in some form. For these and many other reasons that might be mentioned, I repeat that the outlook for Temperance Reform was never brighter than it is at the present moment.

HERVEY WOOD,
Field Secretary, National Temperance Society.

Among the Workers

—EVANGELIST C. H. YATMAN has lately been conducting a series of most successful services in the Willes Wood Theatre, Kansas City, under Y. M. C. A. auspices.

—EVANGELIST L. SHELLHORN, of Ashland, N. J., is conducting a series of meetings at Pocono Lake, Pa. The audiences are large, and good spiritual results are noted.

—EVANGELIST ROBERT L. LAYFIELD and wife, of Kansas City, have just closed successful meetings with the churches of Howard, Kans. The meetings were held in the Court House. Christians were revived, souls saved, and God glorified.

THE BIBLE and the NEWSPAPER

Controlling the Nile

TOMORROW will it be before the ceremony performed recently will be forgotten in Egypt. When the Duchess of Connaught, sister-in-law of King Edward, laid the last stone of the mighty wall that crosses the Nile at Assouan, she put the crown to the work which will tranform a large section of the country from an arid waste to rich alluvial land. For more than three years ten thousand men have been laboring on that gigantic work. Unexpected difficulties have been encountered, but they have been overcome, and now the massive pile of masonry stands complete, at once a dam, a bridge and a waterway. Its advantage will be understood when it is remembered that Egypt is practically rainless, and that only the narrow strip of land on each side of the river is productive. But that ribbon of soil is the richest in the world. Its entire area is about ten thousand square miles, and it owes its fertility to the fact that every year it is submerged by the overflowing river, which, when it subsides, leaves a deposit of mud. Practical engineers saw that if a dam could be built across the river, a reservoir could be formed, which would retain the Nile water for use after the river fell, and irrigating canals could be dug, which would increase the width of that arable strip of land on each bank. Accordingly, a series of granite piers, extending a mile and a quarter, was erected, having between them openings six inches wide, which can be closed by gates. This wall is at its maximum 130 feet above its foundation, twenty-three feet above the level of the river, and nearly a hundred feet thick at the base. When the gates are closed in January or February, when the river begins to fall, the dam will throw back water for 140 miles, and form a huge lake of 1 thousand million tons of water. This will be retained until the parching heats of summer, when the gates will be gradually opened and the priceless water will enter the irrigating canals. The cost of the work has been over twelve million dollars, but it is estimated that its results will pay for it in a single year, and that it will permanently add nearly two million dollars a year to the revenues of the Egyptian government, besides enriching the occupiers of a million and a half acres of land formerly worthless. Besides this advantage, the river, which was formerly closed to navigation during a greater part of the year, will now be navigable all the year round, and the trouble of dragging craft over the cataracts will be avoided. It is marvelous that a work so clearly beneficial to the country was not done centuries ago. The men who built the Pyramids could have built the dam, and there is evidence that more than four thousand years ago the advantages of it were pointed out to the Pharaohs. Yet year by year, the life-giving waters, so sorely needed, have been left to run uselessly to the sea. It is so in spiritual matters. God has made ample provision for the salvation of the whole world, but men do not avail themselves of it.

From Black and White

THE DUCHESS OF CONNAUGHT LAYING THE LAST STONE OF THE GREAT NILE DAM

Thou openest thine hand, and satisfieth the desire of every living thing (Psalm 145: 16).

A Cruise on an Ice-Floe

A citizen of St. Louis, Mo., had a thrilling experience a few days ago. He had become despondent, and determined to commit suicide. Early in the morning, while it was yet dark, he jumped into the river. The shock of the icy water worked a quick change in his intentions, and he struggled desperately to get back to the shore. A large ice-floe passed near him, and he struggled to get upon it. It carried him slowly down the river, striking other floes of ice on its way. The man, fearing that he would be thrown off if he stood up, flung himself prone on the ice, trying vigorously to retain his hold upon it. He could not see the shore, and had lost the points of the compass, and was unable to tell whether he was floating out or toward the shore. The slush ice, and many other big cakes surrounded him. As he grew more numb with the cold, he began to lose hope of reaching the shore. He simply clung to his icecake, now and then crying out feebly for help. For three hours he was on the ice. When broad daylight came, he saw that by extremely careful work he could make his way to the solid ice, his cake having become lodged against other chunks in such a manner that there was a precarious bridge. He slowly crawled over the grinding ice-floe, and reached the solid ice near the shore. Upon land again, he sank to the ground exhausted, and there he was discovered by a policeman, who took him to a place of shelter. How strange that he made such great effort to save the life that only a short time before he was so ready to fling away! How many there must be, who are throwing away their souls, who will in the end similarly deplore their folly and long for the salvation which now they despise.

Ye know how that afterward, when he would have inherited the blessing, he was rejected: for he found no place of repentance, though he sought it carefully with tears (Heb. 12: 17).

An Ancient Statute Book

Professor Hugo Winckler, of the University of Berlin, has been engaged for several months in deciphering an ancient inscription on a block of stone which was found near Susa, the former capital of Persia. Prof. de Morgan, who has charge of the French Archæological expedition, disinterred the block from the ruins of an ancient royal palace and submitted it for examination to the eminent Orientalist. Prof. Winckler is convinced that the inscription upon the stone is the most ancient code of law in existence, antedating even that of Moses. It bears the name of King Hammurabi, whom Prof. Winckler identifies with Amraphal mentioned in Genesis 14: 1, who was contemporary with Abraham. The inscription is in sixteen columns and in the cuneiform character. Part of it has been defaced, but sufficient of it remains to show the character of the statutes. It is a civil code enacting penalties for various offences, chiefly concerned with the rights of property. The ancient rule of "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth," characteristic of the Mosaic code, is observed, but there is an absence of the just and merciful provisions of that code. That was to be expected. Left to himself, man's laws for men have little of mercy in them. From God alone came the light of love and mercy to Moses, which in our dispensation attains its full revelation.

The law was given by Moses, but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ (John 1: 17).

Curing Heart Disease

A series of singular experiments has convinced a Chicago physician that it is possible to apply remedies to the heart of a patient, when the heart is affected. He uses a fine, hollow gold needle, about eight inches long, which he calls an organotone. This he inserts between the ribs, so that its point will just puncture the heart. Attached to the organotone is a tube through which his remedies are injected. Hitherto he has operated only on animals, but so successful has the treatment proved, that he says he shall have no hesitation in using it with human patients. One of his associates, who has aided him in his experiments, is absolutely convinced that the effects of the treatment will be far superior to any quantity of medicine administered by the mouth. He says that the heart continues its beat after it has been punctured, and responds quickly to the remedies thus applied. The remedies the doctor inserts doubtless vary according to the nature of the disease of the organ, and that disease must be physical. If he had a remedy for hard hearts, there are innumerable cases on which it would be well for him to operate. For them there is no remedy in human skill, but even those God promises to change:

I will take the stony heart out of their flesh, and will give them a heart of flesh (Ezek. 11: 19).

Houses Fall Into a Mine

There was widespread consternation in the town of Olyphant, Penn., on January 2, when a large section of one of its principal streets sank bodily into a yawning pit. The first sign of the approaching catastrophe was a working of the pavement. The telegraph poles and some trees on the edge of the curb began to quiver. Soon the middle of the street fell in, leaving a huge fissure. Then a hotel immediately in front of the gap fell forward, and, turning a somersault, pitched into the chasm, alighting roof downward. One after another, adjoining houses slipped from their foundations and plunged headlong into the opening. In half an hour from the first sign of the trouble, there was a huge hole, where shortly before stood the hotel and the houses. Happily, the signs of the cave-in were observed in time for the inmates to make their escape. Two sick persons in the hotel were hastily roused from their beds, and were carried to a place of safety, and all the other inhabitants hurried away without attempting to save any of their effects. It appears that the roof of a mine underneath that part of the town had been supported by timbers, which had rotted through. Above them was a thin layer of sand and soil on which the hotel and houses were built. It is a pity the people did not know how insecure were the foundations on which their houses were built, so that they might have saved their valuables and household effects. Perhaps if they had known, they would not have moved: men do not seek salvation for their souls though they know that any day the body, that they value so much more, may crumble into dust.

The world passeth away, and the lust thereof: but he that doeth the will of God abideth for ever (I. John 2: 17).

BRIEF NOTES

The group of school buildings at Tokyo, Japan, maintained by the Missionary Association of Philadelphia Friends, has been destroyed by fire.

The new Archbishop of Canterbury and Primate of all England, appointed in succession to the late Dr. Temple is Dr. Randall T. Davidson, who has been Bishop of Winchester since 1895.

One of the young women who caused a sensation some time ago by leaving the Christian Endeavor Society for Mormonism, has renounced her new faith and returned to Christianity. She declares that under the Mormon doctrine of spiritual marriage are hidden lives of licentiousness of the most horrible kind.

During the year 1902 there was a marked advance of Protestantism in Austria. During that year 4,216 converts were received from the Roman Catholic Church. It is believed that the number received last year will bring the total up to 21,000. Thirty-eight Protestant Evangelical churches were opened during the year.

Mr. Keir Hardie, the labor leader in the British Parliament, declared in a recent speech that he had been a total abstainer all his life, and that he was convinced from his observation that the key to the problem of the elevation of the workingman was to be found in total abstinence.

The new Missionary Almanac, issued by the American Board, shows that the number of missionaries now laboring in heathen lands is 13,805, of whom 7,334 are women. The number of converts is now 1,443,033, of whom 90,800 were added last year. The number of adherents not yet accepted as church members is 3,208,447.

Miss Helen M. Clark, who has done valuable work among the Chinese and other foreigners living in New York City, needs funds to aid her in continuing the work. Her services in the rescue of women and children from evil lives, deserve the hearty commendation of Christian people, and give her a claim on the generous help of all lovers of humanity.

An Elevating Medium

The "Family Art Gallery" and The Hall of Fame are very rich premiums to represent THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. The Hall of Fame should be in the hands of every aspiring young person as an elevating medium. The "Lost in the Storm" is my choice of the Art pictures, supported by my entire family. The assortment is calculated to arouse a spirit of charity. DR. H. M. FIELDING.

This book, with THE CHRISTIAN HERALD one year, $2.00. The Art Gallery is free to every subscriber of this paper.

The Girl Who Does Not Want to Marry

I AM sure, if I may judge from the reports of the past, that the girl who does not want to marry is a product of our own times. In bygone days, women hated and loathed the idea of a single life, and dreaded unspeakably the reproach of being styled old maids. It is on record in the Scripture, that in certain contingencies seven women would take hold of one man, crying, "Only let me be called by thy name," and certainly, though this is partly due to the conceit of men, the latter have often complained that they were pursued. A man once said to me, "I am most careful never to pay any marked attention to a girl. I do not wish to raise false hopes in her mind!" He was not a very attractive man, and I resented his remark on behalf of the girls in his social set. But this was several years ago.

. . .

The fact is, that there are many young women to-day who would be most reluctant to give up their independent life, their good salaries, and the comforts they enjoy in their agreeable occupations, for the sake of a husband, whose caprices they must endure, and whose clothing they must mend. They know little of domestic life, because they have gone straight from the schoolroom to the counter or the typewriter, and they have no fitness for managing a home. This, they know.

I think it is the greatest of misfortunes that so large a class as the wage-earning young women of the land compose, should, with few exceptions, be ignorant of practical housewifery, but they are. In the times when women staid at home, and were supported by fathers and brothers, as a matter of course, they were anxious to have a home of their own, and a good man to labor for them, and they did then know how to bear their end of the load.

. . .

Another reason complicates the situation. With their far greater quickness and their power of easy adjustment, young women of the ordinary type who have been to grammar and high school are better educated and better mannered than the men who seek them as wives. The latter had to go to work very early, and have not had time to study the niceties which women like and acquire with ease. The young working girl, especially if she has read novels of romance in her hours of leisure, has dreams of a different and more polished husband from the honest and straightforward fellow who applies for her hand.

"I respect Mr.——," said one such young woman, a stenographer of no mean ability; "he is a good man, and he is doing well, but I cannot bring myself to love him. His trousers are never properly creased, and he wears such horrid ties!"

. . .

The new attitude of young women to marriage inevitably provokes a similar indifference on the part of young men. Something is wrong, and should be set right, for the present prevalent cynicism in young and marriageable people is opposed to nature and reason.

The saving clause, so to speak, in the situation, is the fact that Mother Nature is, and from Eden onward, has been, an inveterate match-maker. Young people, however prudent, however equal to their own support, do fall in love still, in the good old-fashioned way. And then, being in love, objections vanish; the lover is seen through a golden haze, the girl and the man each realize that here is the ideal they have always cherished in their secret hearts. They marry, and in the great majority of cases are happy ever after, as God meant wedded folk to be.

A Second-hand Book Stall

Prowling around among second-hand books in some of the little shops, down town, in New York, one comes upon many a kind of tragedy. Books that have reposed in grandeur on the shelves of rich private libraries sometimes, after their owner's death, reach their last days in the confusion and strange company of the second-hand shop. Here, on the fly-leaf of a book of poems, is the legend, "Fred to Annie," and a date, thirty years ago. Fred to Annie! One is sure she knows just how they looked, Fred, erect, eager-eyed, ambitious; Annie, slim, coquettish, affectionate, stout and silver-haired. Should you meet them to-day, they would not be at all like their youthful selves, and it may be that both are gone, else why is their book here in this trayfull of odds and ends, on the ten-cent tray, that accommodates the rubbish of the stock.

Occasionally, the collector of old books is thrilled at the discovery of treasure in the repository of second-hand volumes. He comes upon excellent sets of standard works at a very low figure, or on rare first editions, or copies of some work now out of print, but still prized by all lovers of literature. And, on the day of such a find, he goes home elated and walking on air.

Only your true book-lover can glean wheat in the sparse fields of the second-hand shop. But the true book-lover does exactly that.

Restful Colors

The ten beautiful pictures are very pleasing. The collection is in good taste. The colors are soft and restful to the eye. Thank you for the "Family Art Gallery," which comes with my year's subscription to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD.

MRS. J. M. BURGAR.

THE FREE AND THE CAGED

THE little bird in the pretty cage,
Has seed and water and constant care;
Has love for its song's unstinted wage,
And the daintiest sort of daily fare.
Has everything fine for a bird, you see,
But it lives in a prison; it is not free.

The birds that fly in the world outside
Are sometimes very hungry and cold;
But the air is their play-place, clear and wide,
And they range about over field and wold.
They have not dainties, as all may see,
But then, these happy small birds are free!

Heedless Blunders

BY misiake, a husband and wife, in a Western State, partook of oxalic acid, supposing it to be table salt. Both died the same day, though the doctors tried hard to save them. Some years ago in New York, a man of wide fame and profound culture, living most happily, reached out in the dark for a quinine powder, and took instead a dose of strychnine, which had been provided for some vagrant cats in the back yard. He lived only long enough to tell the family of his unintentional mistake.

All poisons should be labelled and kept strictly under lock and key, where it is difficult to find them. No one should ever keep oxalic acid on the shelf with salt. Nor should any one take a drug without first lighting a candle and making sure that it is the proper prescription.

Naphtha, gasoline, and similar inflammable and volatile preparations, largely used for cleansing purposes, should be used by daylight only, and in a room where the windows are open. People who use matches should satisfy themselves by touch that they have ceased to burn, before they throw them aside. Even then, do not throw them upon shavings or waste paper.

Learn to Knit

Fifty years ago, every woman and girl was taught to knit as part of her education. For that matter she was very carefully drilled in hand-sewing. At present there is a revival of interest in the latter accomplishment, and girls are learning to handle the needle again, but comparatively few are taking up knitting-needles with any seriousness of intention.

Young women should become expert knitters, not because they cannot buy many things as cheaply as they can produce them, but with a view to that far-off day which is certain to come in time—the day of old age. To the brightest girl there may, fifty years hence, arrive the day of deafness, when the voices of music shall be brought low, or the day of blindness, when this fair world shall be dim and darkening to twilight or night. To the gayest of us all may come in the far-off time of the future, a period of great loneliness, for "friend after friend departs." When one cannot see well nor hear well, when acquaintances are few and hours drag, there is a great satisfaction in being able to employ the fingers. A good knitter uses hers with the swiftness and precision of an automaton. She sits in the firelight and knits, an embodiment of contentment. Ennui is dissipated by the deft motion. Hers is the joy which never pales, the joy of production. She makes something out of, so to speak, nothing, and is, therefore, a creator. And her grandchildren, or her troop of nieces and nephews, in that day that is to be, will vie with one another to wear the mittens and the socks that she will make for them. Please, Goldenhair, take my advice and learn to knit, against the hour of whitened locks.

The most beautiful of jackets, called "sweaters," are hand-knit in these days, and as girls wear them, and their brothers cannot do without them, why should not every young woman buy needles and wool and learn how to make these useful garments.

Aunt Prudence Payson's Catch-All

—JOHN. The young lady must not be annoyed. Since your attentions are discouraged, withdraw them.

—EVA DELL. You do not take a man's arm when walking with him, nor does he take yours. Each walks independently.

—JEAME. In going to Europe, carry as little luggage as possible. It is paid for by weight when you travel on the Continent. Take warm wraps for the steamer.

NO FROZEN MILK BOTTLES

No Sour Cream if you use

Highland Brand Evaporated Cream

It is the purest form of cow's milk—evaporated, sterilized and canned under the supervision of a partner of the business. Produced on the famous "Highland Model Dairy Farms," it is a most wholesome and appetizing form of milk and is a

PERFECT INFANT FOOD

Highland Brand Makes Weak Babies Strong.

Most grocers sell it. If yours doesn't, send us his name and we will send you a sample can FREE.

HELVETIA MILK CONDENSING CO., Highland, Ill., Dept. F, U. S. A.

"Where Model Dairy Farms Abound."

$48 TOLMAN RANGES $23.75

with high closet and white enamel lined reservoir (or water front.) Great Foundry Sale. We ship range for examination without a cent in advance. If you like it pay $23.75 and freight and take range for

30 Days FREE Trial.

If not satisfactory we agree to refund your money. Tolman Ranges are made of best wrought steel. Oven is 20 inches, Six 8 inch holes. Best bakers and roasters on earth. Burn anything. Asbestos lined flues.

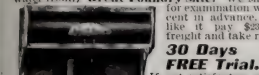
Guaranteed 5 years.

Will save their cost in fuel in one year. Write to-day for our catalogue.

JUDSON A. TOLMAN COMPANY, Dept. B 17, 66 Lake Street, Chicago.

FURNITURE CATALOG

represents the largest and most complete assortment of high-grade reliable furniture in the world, quotes prices that in cheapness are startling, enabling



Write for Free Furniture Catalog.

you to buy furniture for less money than you ever thought possible. Also illustrate, we sell 3 piece PARLOR SUITES AT $8.70

5-piece parlor suites at $15.60 up, fine upholstered couches at $4.20 up, solid oak sideboards at $9.75 up, solid oak dining tables at $4.75 up, hardwood dining chairs at 90c up, and every known article of furniture made at proportionately low prices. We furnish homes complete not only with furniture but with carpets, curtains, tableware, stoves, etc., at factory prices. Write us stating goods wanted and we will send free a catalog representing goods desired. JOHN M. SMYTH CO. 35-159 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

SOLD! UNDER A Positive Guarantee

to wash as clean as can be done on the washboard, even to the wristbands and collar of the dirtiest shirt, and with more ease. This applies to Terrill's Perfect Washer, which will be sent on trial at wholesale price. If not satisfactory, money will be refunded. AGENTS WANTED. For exclusive territory, terms and prices, write PORTLAND MFG. CO., Box 231, Portland, Mich.

DROP US A POSTAL—IT WILL SAVE YOU $10.00.

A BIG BOOK FREE

Swell Front

Bar Sewing Machine Book for the agents' error. It explains beginnings and outs of the business how machines are made from the ground up, the different styles, what they cost to make, systems of selling, etc., etc.

It will save you from $10 to $45

by giving you practical pointers in purchasing any kind or style of machine. Written by a sewing machine man—a close associate of Elias Howe the inventor of the sewing machine. Drop us a postal and the book is yours Free. Handsome illustrations showing all styles and samples of work. CASH BUYERS' UNION, (Inc.) C 18 Chicago.

NO POISON has ever been found in the enamel of AGATE NICKEL-STEEL WARE. The Blue Label, protected by decision of United States Court, pasted on every piece, proves it.

AGENT'S OUTFIT FREE. Easysweep Dust Pan. Handled with foot: dirt emptied without litter. Large Catalog very latest household articles; rapid sellers. Richardson Mfg. Co., Dept. 6, Bath, N.Y.

OUR SUNDAY HOUR WITH THE LITTLE FOLKS

CHILDREN, welcome! Thousands of little folks are coming now to every "Sunday Hour." We wish we could give every one a prize. But, if we could, there would be no contest, would there? Do not think that because you do not win a prize, all your labor is lost, little friends. Faithful work is never lost. It leaves an impression on character. Little missives, showing how tiny hands struggled with pen and ink and spelt out (printing sometimes), every word have been tenderly and reverently handled at this office; we took comfort, thinking: "Dear children, if you do not get every one a watch or book, you have certainly captured benefits beyond what man can give you in your study of the Word of God."

A word of advice: Read the rules carefully. Do not enclose with your answers anything else.

Since December 19, when our first competitions appeared, twelve have been published, making the two in this issue respectively thirteen and fourteen; and as you see they are so numbered. We adopt the consecutive numbering in order that we may be able to classify more expeditiously the thousands of answers received. Please observe the rules about writing "Competition 13" or "Competition 14" on envelopes. Outside and inside your answer should tell at a glance to which Competition it belongs. In "Curious Questions," you should not repeat each question before your answer—state only the number. This saves you some work. We do not want you to toil over them, but simply to entertain yourselves with these puzzles.

COMPETITION 13

What two places mentioned in Scripture do these pictures represent?

Write "Competition 13" plainly across the top of a postal card or sheet of paper; next, your name, age and address; then the answers. For each of the two answers employ but one word—the name of the place you think the picture represents. Don't quote Scripture passages; simply state the name of the place. Read the rules given below.

Competition 14
Curious Questions

1. Which of the Hebrew festivals were women and children required to attend?
2. Who was the first shepherdess?
3. Who wore the first bridal veil?
4. What, according to Scripture, was the first use made of currency?

Write "Competion 14" plainly across the top of your postal card or sheet of paper; next, your name, age, and address. Answer as many of the questions as you can, writing in each case the number of the question (not the question itself) before its answer. Answers to all four questions must not exceed fifty words in the aggregate. Read the following rules.

RULES AND PRIZES

Contests are not open to competitors over fourteen years of age. Only one weekly competition is open to any one person. If you answer both Competition 13 and 14 you forfeit your chances therefor. Do not send two solutions. There is no objections to asking the help of others, but each competitor must send in the answers in his or her own handwriting. Should you use paper instead of a postal card, be sure to write on the envelope in which you enclose your answer "Competition 13" or "Competition 14," as the case may be. Do not write on both sides of a sheet of paper.

Prizes are as follows: For the best answer to "Competition 13," a handsome silver watch, lady's or gentleman's; for each of the twenty-five next best answers, a beautiful book. For the best answer to "Competition 14," a handsome silver watch, lady's or gentleman's; for each of the twenty-five next best answers, a beautiful book.

All answers must be mailed not later than January 26, 1903. Address, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, Little Folks Department, Bible House, New York.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF PRIZE-WINNERS FOR DEC. 24, 1902

Scripture Problem 3, in our issue of Dec. 24, illustrated the meeting of Saul and David (I. Sam. 24: 7-11). "Curious Questions" answers for that number are: 1. Hiram King of Tyre. 2. Habits of the wolf are learned from these texts: Gen. 49: 27; Ezek. 22: 27; Jer. 5: 6; Zeph. 3: 3; Hab. 1: 8; Matt. 7: 15; 10: 16; Luke 10: 3; John 10: 12; Acts 20: 29. 3. Milk of sheep and goats is spoken of; milch kine and milch camels are mentioned; "milk of the Word" occurs I. Peter 2: 2; "milk of the Gentiles," Isa. 60: 16; human milk, the milk of "sea-monsters," and other kinds are indicated but not named. 4. Og, King of Bashan.

Imogene McKown, California, receives the first prize of a silver watch for the best description of the picture, "Scripture Problem 3," Dec. 24; Rosa A. Goldberg, Canada, a silver watch as first prize for best answer to "Curious Questions" in that issue. The following each receive a beautiful book:

Second best description of picture in Scripture Problem 3: Austin, Paul, S. C.; Booth, Green, Kans.; Bowden, Ralph, Wis.; Breihan, Lothar, Kans.; Buerstetta, Blanche, Neb.; Calhoon, Marvin, Mo.; Coffman, Carl, Va.; Cowit, Paul, N. Y.; Edmundson, Cathleen, N. C.; Felder, Henry, S.C.; Fouts, Mildred, Ind.; Freeberg, Dorothy, Wis.; Fry, Robert M., N. Y.; Fuller, Leslie, Miss.; Goldberg, Rosa A., Ont.; Curney, Kitty, Can.; Hall, Earle, Ind.; Hoskins, Edith, Neb.; Howard, Winifred, N. Y.; Hultkrans, Hildur E., Minn.; Jeffords, Leo, Vt.; Jones, J. D., Can.; Kernohan, K. J., Me.; Kibler, Helen, O.; Koenig, Ruth, Ind.; Long, R. P., N. Y.; McClintock, E., Mo.; Madison, Hazel E. M., Wash.; Martel, L. H., Mass.; Millett, Marion, Mass.; Morlock, Melva, Ills.; Nelson, Walter, Me.; Osborn, Eugene T., N. Y.; Reid, Grace A., Va.; Reynolds, Helen O., N. J.; Rice, Pansy May, N. Y.; Richardson, Blanche W., Me.; Sammis, Edna A., Conn.; Scholander, Fritfoff, Pa.; Shirley, Bessie, O.; Smith, Leslie, Md.; Stevens, Claude Gibson, Ga.; Stone, Mabel, Wis.; Taylor, Susie V., Md.; Vance, Ruth, Mass.; Vandeburg, Velmar, Cal.; West, Gertrude, Minn.; White, Earl V., Wis.; Workman, Wilma, Neb.; Young, David Herbert, Kans.

Second best answers to "Curious Questions." Allen, Theron S., S. C.; Askins, Maggie, Ky.; Banker, Walter B., N. Y.; Bishop, R. Walter, Conn.; Black, Fred, N. J.; Boyd, Fannie, Vt.; Bump, Emma F., Vt.; Burson, Otelia, Oreg.; Chambers, Ollie, Ind.; Court, Jesse, N. Y.; Crosby, Frank B., Can.; Chapman, Grace, Conn.; Coghill, Miriam, Va.; Colton, William L., N. Y.; Coppan, Ida E., Mich.; Cutter, Florence, Kan.; Davis, Beulah B., Tenn.; Davis, David, Mosetown, O.; Davis, Marie, Ga.; De Revere, Florence, N. Y.; Durfee, Willard A., N. Y.; Erving, Frank C., O.; Flehr, Elmer H., O.; Getman, Marguerite, N. J.; Floyd, Ralph E., Mass.; Green, Herbert Hartin, Ont.; Haywood, Ralph C., Mass.; Johnston, Edgar G., Pa.; Kellogg, Ruth H., Conn.; Larkin, Jennie N., N. D.; Linderman, Dell, Mich.; McFall, Ora, S. C.; McGowen, Lucilla, Ala.; Marshall, Margaret, Tenn.; Neely, Roy W., Pa.; Owens, Irving, Ont.; Parkin, Pearl Grace, Mich.; Peck, Horace Dudley L. I., N. Y.; Pierson, Merle, Wis.; Plannett, Loretta, Mo.; Sauter, Miss Vera, Ill.; Seely, Lulu Belle, Minn.; Seymour, Master Allie, O.; Stahl, Francis C., O.; Steele, John Edward, Can.; Stewart, John T., Pa.; Sutherland, Neal, Neb.; Taylor, Susie V., Md.; Whitcomb, Eleanor M., Wis.; Wren, J. Harold, Va.; Wyeth, Marion, Me.

Delicious Drinks and Dainty Dishes

ARE MADE FROM

BAKER'S BREAKFAST COCOA

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Unequaled for Smoothness, Delicacy, and Flavor

Examine the package you receive and make sure that it bears our trade-mark.

Under the decisions of the U. S. Courts no other Cocoa is entitled to be labeled or sold as "BAKER'S COCOA."

Walter Baker & Co. Ltd.

Established 1780 DORCHESTER, MASS.

My old Aunt Sophia says most of these girls are in a fix. If they don't use rouge they're pale, if they do use it they're beyond the pale. And so there they are. Well anyway lots of famous beauties didn't have a mite of color and what's the difference so long's they had a nice clear complexion. Any girl can have that if she uses BORAX.

COMPLEXIONS AND PORES AND SOAP

After washing your face and hands it is very difficult to rinse the soap out of your pores. Nine times out of ten it is not thoroughly rinsed out and the effects on the skin can be imagined. If you use a pinch of BORAX in the cleansing water, the soap becomes much more soluble and is quickly rinsed out of the pores. The BORAX makes the cleansing much more thorough and has in itself a decidedly beneficial effect on the skin. After the cleansing by this method is completed rinse the face with clear water.

Ask your grocer or druggist for "20 Mule Team BORAX" in packages

It will pay you well to send a two-cent stamp for our quaint booklet, "Borax—Come In." This gives some valuable hints. Address Department K, Pacific Coast Borax Company, Chicago.

Dr. Lyon's

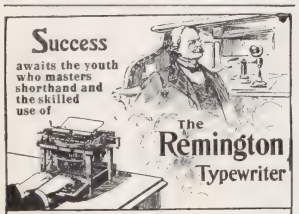
PERFECT

Tooth Powder

Used by people of refinement for over a quarter of a century

PREPARED BY

J. W. Lyon, D.D.S.



THE use of the Remington everywhere predominates, and for the young man who operates it the best positions, providing the surest avenues for subsequent advancement, are always open.

Our new illustrated booklet, " A Stepping Stone to Success," contains the biographies of many successful men who have been helped by their knowledge of shorthand or typewriting. Sent free to young men on request.

Remington Typewriter Company
327 Broadway, New York

Your Deposits Solicited Upon which we will pay 5% Per Annum

Paid In Capital $1,000,000
Assets $1,600,000
Surplus $185,000

OUR depositors participate in the earnings of a non-speculative business, operating in gilt-edged New York realestate securities. Under absolute supervision of State Banking Department. Our methods endorsed and recommended by leading clergymen, business and professional men throughout the country.

We will gladly send you full particulars upon request.

INDUSTRIAL SAVINGS AND LOAN CO.
1131 Broadway, New York

Will Carleton's Magazine
EVERY WHERE
[illegible] WILL CARLETON [illegible]
Every Where Publishing Co.
Dept. J. Brooklyn, N. Y.
Agents Wanted in Every Town and City.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS.
UNLIKE OTHER BELLS SWEETER, MORE DURABLE, LOWER PRICE. OUR FREE CATALOGUE TELLS WHY.
Write to Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., Cincinnati, O.

ENTERTAINMENTS
For CHURCHES and SUNDAY SCHOOLS
[illegible] Magic Lanterns, Stereopticons and Views; all grades. Lowest prices. Catalogue free.
McALLISTER, Mfg. Optician, 49 Nassau St., N. Y.

IOWA CHRISTIAN COLLEGE [illegible]

THE HEAD OF THE FAMILY

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 53

"They've put up a wire fence aroun' th' breaker," remarked a third man.

"Thet don't matter. I've got clippers. Nine t'night, remember."

They nodded assent, and after a moment shuffled away in different directions. Jimmy watched them until they were out of sight, then turned and sped away in the direction of the company office.

CHAPTER V.

At the Breaker

JIMMY BOYTON knew perfectly well what disaster threatened the Carver mine. He had recognized the leader of the conspirators as a big Swede, who had the reputation of being the worst man employed at the Carver shaft, and who had already been concerned in more than one scrape since the strike began, but who had always escaped arrest. Plainly, they intended to destroy the great breaker by fire or dynamite, and so defeat definitely any attempt to start up the mine. Doubtless there were some guards stationed there, but how could they hope to withstand the sudden, unexpected rush of a body of reckless and desperate men?

Thinking of all this in a confused way, the boy sped over the uneven ground, stumbling, falling once or twice, but picking himself up instantly and pressing on. Darkness had come in earnest, and his heart fell within him as he came within sight of the office-building. The windows were dark—there was no one there. He rattled vainly at the door, and then sat down on the sill to consider the next step. If he could find Sam, the secretary—he knew where he boarded — he had carried messages for him more than once—and again he was off as fast as his short legs would carry him.

Ten minutes later, he was knocking at the door of the boarding-house and inquiring for the secretary, but again he was destined to disappointment. Sam had eaten his dinner hastily and had gone out again immediately. He had not said where he was going.

Fate seemed to be against the boy, and again he sat down to formulate some plan of action. If he could get word to Mr. Carver—but Mr. Carver, as he knew, lived half a dozen miles away in a great house back among the trees just outside of Wilkesbarre. He could not hope to reach there until long after nine o'clock. One course remained—he would go to the breaker and warn the men on guard there—at least, they would not be taken by surprise and they might be able to summon aid before the attack was made.

So off he went again, back past the office to make sure the secretary was not there, and then on toward the breaker, half a mile away. He was tired and breathless, but he pressed his elbows tight against his sides and panted forward, for he knew that the hour of the attack must be dangerously near. His love for the man who had helped him in his need, who had given him work, who had spoken to him kindly, who had brought new life to mother and brother, held him up and strengthened him. Now he would have the chance to prove his gratitude!

At last the great breaker loomed ahead, and he made his way forward cautiously. He came to the wire fence and stopped. Right and left, it stretched away from him, rigid, closely-knit, ten feet in height—how to get past it was a question. Of course, there must be a gate somewhere, and he worked his way slowly along looking for it. He came to it at last, but it was tightly closed. He shook it in an agony of despair.

"Who's there?" demanded a rough voice. "What d' y' want? Speak quick!"

The boy jumped at the nearness of the voice, whose owner was evidently just inside the gate; but he kept his wits about him and obeyed the command to answer quickly.

"I want t' talk t' somebody," he gasped. "They're a-comin' after you!"

"What?" questioned the voice. "Say that again."

"They's a-comin' after you!" repeated Jimmy, shaking the gate again in his excitement.

A bar was raised and the gate was opened a crack. Jimmy's appearance was not formidable, and after a moment's inspection of him, the guard opened the gate a little farther.

"Come in," he commanded, and as Jimmy slipped through, the gate was slammed shut and the bar dropped into place again. "Now, tell your story," said the man, who loomed up alarmingly large in the dark; and the boy gasped out the details of the conference he had heard in the shadow of the culm-pile. It was told stumblingly and incoherently, but it was not hard to understand, and as it proceeded, the face of the listener grew darker and darker.

"Come along," he said, briefly, when the boy stopped, and led the way on toward the breaker. As they neared it, the boy saw little streamers of yellow light pouring through the crevices of a blinded window in the one-storied office-building built against the side of the great shack. His guide abruptly turned a corner, opened a door, and pushed him before him into a lighted room. A man in uniform, seated before a table, turned quickly as they entered.

"Well," he asked, "any trouble, Russell?"

"This boy says there's going to be an attack on the breaker at nine o'clock, lieutenant," answered Jimmy's guide, saluting; and he repeated, in a few words, the story the boy had told him.

"Very well, Russell," said the officer, briefly. "Make a tour of the posts and warn the men. I'll be with you as soon as I have 'phoned headquarters."

Russell opened the door and disappeared in the darkness, while the officer hurried to the telephone. He got headquarters in a moment, and told them of the threatened danger. The answer he got evidently reassured him, for he hung up the receiver with a more cheerful face, but his lips tightened again as he glanced at his watch.

"It's a toss-up whether they'll get here," he murmured, and took out his revolver and glanced at the cartridges, to be sure they were all right. "What's your name, youngster?" he asked suddenly, seeing the boy standing by the table.

"Jim Boyton, sir."

"And how does it come you're not a Union man? Why should you take all this trouble to warn us?"

Jimmy flushed, but met the officer's keen eyes bravely.

"I's got a fambly t' keep," he said, simply, "an' th' Union won't let me work. Mr. Carver give me a job anyhow—he's been mighty good t' me."

"Well, you've got pluck," said the officer, smiling; "and you're grateful for favors received—which is much rarer. I'm going out now. You'd better stay here—you look pretty tired out. Are you hungry?"

"I ain't had no supper," began the boy, hesitatingly. "I didn't have time t' go home."

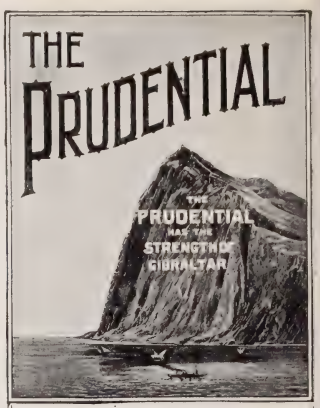
The officer quickly opened a hamper which stood on the table, and drew out its contents.

"Help yourself," he said. "Eat all you want."

The door closed behind him, and Jimmy at once proceeded to obey his last injunction. Such a load of good things there was—it reminded him of that happy week when Polly O'Brien had assumed the duties of caterer to him and his family. But at last he could contain no more; he replaced what remained, and then sank back in the chair with a sigh of satisfaction. How glad he was that he had overheard that plot by the culm-pile, that he had been able to save the great breaker. For, of course, it would be saved—the troops were coming—were perhaps almost here by this time. His eyes closed—then he started awake and rubbed them guiltily—but tired nature asserted herself, his head dropped lower and lower—

What was that? A man's voice rang out in challenge; there was a chorus of hoarse shouts, the bang of a musket, the sharp cracking of a pistol—then a great roar—the building seemed to rock and fall in upon itself—a wave of flame burst in upon the boy.

CONTINUED ON PAGE 59



If You Thought

yourself uninsurable, how you would work to be accepted. Yet that time may come to anyone failing to make application NOW, while he has strength and health. How about yourself?

The Prudential
Insurance Co. of America

Write for Information to Dept. 70.

Home Office: Newark, N. J.

JOHN F. DRYDEN, President.

TO SUIT EVERYBODY! JUST OUT!
For Sunday Schools, Young People's Societies, Revival Meetings, etc.
100 New Songs.
256 Pages.
Bound in cloth.
Young People's Songs of Praise
4 EDITIONS:
REGULAR,
EPWORTH LEAGUE,
CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR,
BAPTIST Y. P. UNION.
25c. per copy. RETURNABLE SAMPLE FREE
THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., New York-Chicago.

PRAYERS For Public Worship, Private Devotion and Personal Ministry.
By Abbie C. Morrow. A New and Priceless Help to Spiritual Life, Invaluable to Christians everywhere. Given aid to persons of all ages wishing to take part in prayer in public; also Prayer Meetings, special Occasions, Family Prayers, Prayers for Young People's Meetings, in Sunday Schools, etc.; also the Prayers of eminent Christians. A Complete Guide to Devotion. Sent postpaid to any address. Fine cloth binding, gold side and back stamps, $1.00; Royal Purple cloth, silver back and side stamps, silver edges, $1.50; Beautifully bound in leather, red under gold edges, $2.00.
M. E. MUNSON, Pub., 77 Bible House, New York

Illustrating for Profit at Home
If you have taste or talent for Drawing The HEEB System of Teaching by Mail will prepare you quickly for a paying position as Cartoonist, Newspaper Artist, Illustrator, Etc. Special offer to those who write now. NATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS, E. J. HEEB, Pres. 19 N. Pa. St., Indianapolis, U. S. A.

WEDDING INVITATIONS, Announcements, Calling Cards, and Monogram Stationery Engraved in the latest styles. Finest work. Write for samples and prices. ELITE ENGRAVING CO., N.-E. Cor. 13th & Arch Sts., Philadelphia

DID YOU EVER KNOW

That Improper Food Often Causes the Liquor Habit?

It is a great proposition to get rid of a taste for liquor by changing food.

"About three years ago," writes a man from Lowry City, Mo., "my appetite failed me and my food disagreed with me. I got weak and nervous and felt dull and entirely unfit for business; then like a fool I went to taking liquor to stimulate an appetite. For a time that seemed to help and I congratulated myself on finding so simple a remedy. But, alas! I had to take more and more all the time until I got so that I could not get along without the whisky, and I was in a pitiable condition.

I tried to quit, but that seemed impossible, as I needed nourishment and my stomach rejected food, and the more whisky I drank the worse I got. I kept fighting this battle for more than two years and almost gave up all hope.

I noticed an advertisement of Grape-Nuts in the paper and concluded to try it. I found I could eat Grape-Nuts with a relish and it was the first food that I found nourished me in a long time. Soon my stomach trouble stopped, my appetite increased, the craving thirst relaxed until all desire for drink was gone. I have used Grape-Nuts constantly for over a year and I am now strong and robust; entirely weaned from drink and able to work hard every day. My gratitude for Grape-Nuts is unspeakable, as it has saved my life and reputation." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

The KALAMAZOO

All our cook stoves and Ranges equipped with patent oven thermometer, which makes baking a delight.

The only strictly high grade stoves and ranges sold direct from factory to user at factory prices.

They are sold on a

360 DAYS Approval Test.

Don't buy until you have investigated our special proposition. Send for FREE catalogue No. 103

KALAMAZOO STOVE CO.
Manufacturers, Kalamazoo, Mich.

ROBINSON'S BATH CABINET

Guaranteed to Overcome Rheumatism.

Gives new life and vigor to every organ of the human body. Thousands of people are daily sufferers because they continue to clog the circulation with poison in place of eliminating the uric acid from the blood by Hot Air Baths. Every intelligent person ought to know by this time that heat is the only relief for disease.

Write for descriptive matter and special 1903 proposition.

Good inducements offered to reliable men and women on both commission and salary.

ROBINSON THERMAL BATH CO., 901-917 Jefferson St. Toledo, O.

DENT'S Toothache Gum

A SWELL AFFAIR

Does its work thoroughly
Everywhere known as effective
Not a chewing gum
Take none but DENT'S
Sold everywhere; mailed for 15c.

C. S. DENT & CO., Detroit, Mich.

CORNS REMOVED. Easy, safe, quick, no knife, no poison. Send postal for free sample of A-CORN SALVE. Full-size box 15c. (at druggists or by mail).

Giant Chemical Co., Philadelphia

CHEAP RATES California, Washington, Oregon, Colorado. We secure reduced rates on household goods of intending settlers to the above States. Write for rates. Map of California, FREE.
TRANS-CONTINENTAL FREIGHT CO., 353 Dearborn St., Chicago

THE HEAD OF THE FAMILY

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 58

"Thank God there was no one there!" said John Carver, an hour later, as he surveyed the ruins of the little office building. "The damage won't amount to much."

He had come from headquarters with the reintorcements. The strikers had made off at the first glimpse of them.

"It's lucky we got here, though," he added, "or the flames would have got beyond control. As it is, I think we can start to-morrow, just as we intended. I can throw up another office in a few days. It's lucky you weren't in there, lieutenant."

"Yes, it's lucky I wasn't there," assented Lieutenant Ward, in a queer, choked voice. "But there was somebody else there—the boy who brought us the warning. I left him there while I went out to make the rounds. I hadn't any idea he would be in any danger. He said he was hungry, and I gave him something to eat."

The other swung round upon him sharply.

"The boy!" he repeated. "Was there a boy?"

"Yes—a little fellow. He heard these scoundrels laying their plans, and ran all the way here—he said you'd been kind to him and given him a job. He seemed a plucky youngster."

Mr. Carver's face grew suddenly sharp and gray.

"Given him a job?" he repeated, in a low voice. "Who was he—what was his name?"

"He said his name was Boyton, I think. He—"

But the other waited to hear no more—with a livid face, he had started toward the ruins.

CHAPTER VI.

Plans for the Future

THERE was an unaccustomed stillness and suspense about the great Carver house. Past one closed door, the servants went on tiptoe; before it, two or three were always stationed to obey instantly any command from within. And within, on a bed of snowy whiteness, lay a boy of nine, fighting for his life. A great surgeon, summoned from New York, brought by special train as fast as steam could go, sat by and watched the child's labored and uncertain breathing; across from him, a nurse, in white cap and apron, waved a fan gently above the fevered face.

It had been a desperate fight from the first.

"There is only one man in the country who can save him," Mr. Carver's physician had said, as he finished dressing his injuries that first night; and he named the famous surgeon. Five minutes later, a telegram had been sent him, and he had come; but it seemed for a time that even he must fail. The anxious day wore away, and a second and a third—a week of them. But the period of waiting ended at last.

It was one morning while John Carver and his wife were seated at the breakfast-table that the butler came in with a message.

"The doctor is outside, sir," he said. "He wishes to speak to you."

"Show him in, then," answered Mr. Carver, instantly, and he half-rose from his seat when the doctor entered. "Well?" he asked.

"He'll pull through," said the great man briefly, "with good nursing."

"Will he be a cripple?"

"No—a little stiffness of the left leg, perhaps—but even that will pass in time."

"Nor blind?"

"No—though his eyes may never be quite so strong as they were."

"Thank God!" and Mr. Carver sank back into his chair with a sigh of relief.

"It depends a good deal, of course, upon the nursing," repeated the doctor, "and upon the life he leads hereafter. Work or a breaker would probably bring on an irritation of the eyes which would eventually result in blindness."

Mr Carver answered with a quick gesture

"He'll never work in a breaker again," he said.

"I won't come down again," added the doctor, "unless he gets worse, in which case you can wire me. But I don't believe you'll need me again. He'll be all right with rest, care, good food. I've told the nurse."

Mr. Carver nodded. "I'll see that she has everything she wants," he said.

"And now," concluded the doctor, looking at his watch, "if you'll have me driven in right away, I think I can catch the 8.10 for New York."

Five minutes later, he was bowling along the road toward Wilkesbarre, and Mr. Carver sat down again opposite his wife.

"Well, my dear," he began, glancing at her with just a trace of anxiety in his eyes, "we'll have to decide what to do with the boy."

"Yes," she assented. "What would you like to do with him, John?"

"I'd like to give him the best that money can buy," he said, his face flushing with sudden eagerness. "He's got the foundation—he's brave, manly, honest. I'd put him through school, through college, and then through a technical school with a course of practical work here that would make him a master of the ins and outs of the mining business—the anthracite business, anyway."

"Yes—and then?" asked his wife again, as he paused.

"And then—well, it's a little early to talk about that, my dear,—it would depend on whether he turned out the man I think he will. But if he does—we haven't any of our own, Milly."

"No," she assented, with trembling lips. "No, we haven't any of our own, John."

He went to her quickly and put his arm about her.

"We have each other," he said, "and that's as much happiness as any one has a right to expect in this world. But twenty years from now, maybe, I'll want some one to lean on—some one to help carry part of the burden—some one that I can rely on absolutely — and I like the boy, Milly."

"But he has a mother, hasn't he?" she asked, after a moment.

"Yes, and a brother," and his face clouded at a sudden painful thought. "I have been looking after them. The doctor tells me that neither can live six months. The mother has consumption of long standing; the boy has the quick form aggravated by the dust of these accursed breakers, which there seems no getting rid of."

She pressed his hand in sympathy—she knew, better than any other, how he had labored to improve the conditions at the mine.

"And there are no other relatives?"

"No,—his father was killed in the mine. You see, we've brought only bad luck to him, so far, Milly. I want to bring him some good luck. It's mighty hard for a boy of nine to be left alone in the world."

Her eyes were misty as she looked up at him.

"God bless you, John," she said, softly. "You're a good man. The boy shall be ours, then—I will love him, too."

[THE END.]

"All Fine Musicians Now"

Mrs. E. S. Adams, Kans.: The Concert Roller Organ is a little beauty. A lady is coming from the country here to see my organ.—Grant R. Bratton: I am highly pleased with the Concert Roller Organ, and the children are delighted over it. My wife says we are all fine musicians now.—M. L. Hall, Calif.: The Concert Roller Organ is much better than I expected, and I expected a good thing.—Mrs. C. Downing, O.: The Organ is perfectly satisfactory. Everything is strictly as represented.—J. E. Sherman, Ore.: We have tried all the tunes. The organ is fine.

This organ can be purchased, together with five music rolls, for $12. in monthly payments; or, by special offer, $10 cash, sent before Feb. 1, buys it, and a free gift will be made of ten additional tunes, making fifteen in all.

For Winter Evenings

I have been a subscriber to your valuable paper for six years, and I consider it the best family paper published. It does good to all mankind, without regard to creed or color. Thanking you for the nice premium, Speaking Oak; it will be good reading during the winter evenings. JAMES SCOTT.

This book, with THE CHRISTIAN HERALD one year, $2.00.

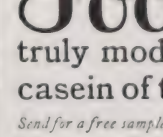
Mellin's Infants' Food

truly modifies the casein of the milk.

Send for a free sample of Mellin's Food.

Mellin's Food Company, Boston, Mass.

ONE YEAR'S FREE TRIAL



Kenwood PIANOS

High grade artistic instruments of unsurpassed musical power. Sold direct from factory

Saving You from $175 to $375

KENWOOD Concert Grand, as illustrated, $175. KENWOOD Cabinet Grand, a superb 4-foot piano for $115. Shipped anywhere in U.S. on one year's free trial

(several feet from floor) A masterpiece of piano construction for big illustrated PIANO and ORGAN CATALOGUE FREE. Kenwood Pianos and Organs cost less than half what dealers and agents charge for inferior instruments.

perfection is here. Write

CASH BUYERS' UNION, Dept. P-18 Chicago, Ill.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD — CENTRAL MISSISSIPPI VALLEY ROUTE

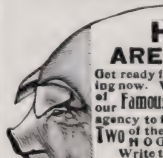
New Line. Fine Service.

Minneapolis and St. Paul

BEGINNING NOVEMBER 2.

Fast "Limited" night train, with stateroom and open-section sleeping car, buffet-library car, and free reclining chair car through without change. Dining car service.

A. H. HANSON, G. P. A., - - CHICAGO.



HOGS ARE HIGHER!

Get ready for the boom by breeding now. We send a sample pair of our Famous O.I.C. Hogs on time and give agency to first applicant.

Two of these weighed 2806 lbs.

Write today.

L. B. SILVER CO.
347 Hog Bldg. Cleveland, O.

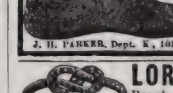
HAPPYFOOT HAIR INSOLES

Keep feet warm and dry. Make walking a pleasure. Relieve Rheumatism, Callous, Tender and Perspiring Feet. Do not crowd the shoe. At all drug and shoe stores or sent 10c. a pair, 3 pair 25c., postage paid. Send size of shoe

The WM. H. WILEY & SON CO., Box D Hartford, Conn.

PARKER'S ARCTIC SOCKS

(Trade Mark Registered)



Ideal bedroom and bath slippers. Knitted fabric, with soft, white wool finish. Used for rubber boots. Comfort, health, convenience. All sizes 25c.; dealers or by mail. Parker pays postage. Catalogue.

J. H. PARKER, Dept. K, 102 Bedford St., Boston, Mass.

LORD'S PRAYER

Bangle Ring. Smallest Ever Coined. Or any Initial engraved Free. Rolled Gold. Warranted 3 years. Send Size. 10c for either or 15c for both.

YOKES Mfg. Co., 46 Western Ave., COVINGTON, KY.

The Natural Body Brace advertised in this paper is the best inside of this month in a delightful, certain remedy for ailments peculiar to women and girls. It makes walking and work easy, gives good figure and light step. Write the Natural Body Brace Co., Box 121, Salina, Kan. for free illustrated book.

Are You Deaf?

We have 25 KINDS OF INSTRUMENTS TO ASSIST HEARING Sent on approval. Write for catalogue.
WM. J. WILLIS & CO. 134 South 11th Street, Philadelphia

MISSOURI 5% INVESTMENTS.

Let the seller you my book. Farm Mortgages. Unquestioned Security.
WM. R. COMPTON, 5 Wardell Bldg., Macon, Mo.

Chimney with nobody's name on it.

Who's responsible for it?

Not MACBETH.

If you'll send your address, I'll send you the Index to Lamps and their Chimneys, to tell you what number to get for your lamp.

MACBETH, Pittsburgh.

Burpee's Seeds Grow

Probably you have heard of this famous motto for many years but have you proved for yourself that Burpee's Seeds are the BEST that Grow?

If not, write to-day for Burpee's Farm Annual for 1903—so well-known as "The Leading American Seed Catalogue." It is an elegant book of 184 pages, with beautiful colored plates and will be sent FREE to planters everywhere; —to others upon receipt of 10 cents, which is less than cost per copy in quarter-million editions. Write TO-DAY. Do not delay! It is sufficient to address simply

BURPEE, Philadelphia

SEEDS Vegetable and Flower. In fact everything in the Nursery and Florist line. We send by mail postpaid Seeds, Plants, Roses, Bulbs, Small Trees, Etc., safe arrival and satisfaction guaranteed, larger by express or freight. Send for our elegant 168 page free catalogue and see what values we give for your money. 49 years, 44 greenhouses, 1,000 acres.

THE STORRS & HARRISON CO., Box 220. PAINESVILLE, OHIO.

ORNAMENTAL FENCE

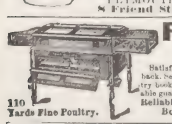
25 designs, all steel. Handsome, durable.—Cheaper than a wood fence. Special inducements to church and cemeteries. Catalogue free.

KOKOMO FENCE MACHINE CO., 445 North St., Kokomo, Indiana.

Squabs Pay Best Hens

Easiest, need attention only part of time, bring big prices. Raised in one month. Attractive for poultrymen, farmers, women. Send for FREE BOOKLET and learn this immensely rich home industry.

PLYMOUTH ROCK SQUAB CO. 8 Friend Street, Boston, Mass.



RELIABLE INCUBATORS and BROODERS.

Satisfaction guaranteed, or your money back. Send 10 cents postage for great poultry book, illustrated, explaining remarkable guarantee under which we sell.

110 Varieties Fine Poultry. Reliable Incubator & Brooder Co., Box B-46 Quincy, Ill.

SHOEMAKER'S POULTRY BOOK ON and Mammoth Catalogue for 1903, contains 200 large pages, handsomely illustrated. Beautiful colored plates. True to life. It tells all about all kinds of fowls, their care, etc. All about INCUBATORS AND BROODERS and how to operate them. You can't well afford to be without it. Only 15 cts. C. C. SHOEMAKER, Box 548, Freeport, Ill.

CYPHERS—Guaranteed the best Incubator in all the world. Time to prove it. Allmoney back if not entirely satisfactory. Every modern approved device. Write for Poultry Guide and Book No. 53 free. 196 large pages. Treats of poultry for profit. 10c for postage; book free. Circular free. CYPHERS INCUBATOR CO., Buffalo, N. Y. Chicago, Boston, New York

Self Supplied Moisture

PETALUMA INCUBATORS and Brooders are the oldest and most reliable machines on the market today. Hot-air, purely automatic and sure. Catalogue FREE.

PETALUMA INCUBATOR CO. Box 64 Petaluma, Cal. Box 64 Petaluma, Ind.

GREAT POULTRY BOOK My 1903 catalogue. Elegant in illustration, full of practical hints, describes 66 breeds—1 of 1926 winners. Low prices for birds and eggs. Book postpaid, 10 cents. Calendar for 1903 on cover.

B. H. GREIDER, RHEEMS, PA.

OUR COMPLETE COURSE IN.... SHORTHAND Isaac Pitman's 20th Century Revision

By Special Arrangement with Isaac Pitman & Sons, 33 Union Square, N. Y.

LESSON XXVIII

208. EMPHASIS is marked by drawing one or more lines underneath; a single line under a single word must be made wave-like, ⌒ to distinguish it from ⎽⎽ k.

209. TO MARK AN INITIAL CAPITAL draw two short lines under the word; thus, The Times, Abel.

210. FIGURES are written as usual. When one and six are written by themselves, form them thus, 1, 6, that they may not be mistaken for shorthand characters.

211. NOMINAL CONSONANT.—Initial letters should in all cases be written in longhand; as J. E. Smith. For certain purposes, however, the phonographic vowels can be written without consonants, by using ⌊ ⌈ as outlines having no specific values; thus, ⌊ a, ⌊ eh, ⌈ i, ⌊ ah-i, (yes). The stroke vowels may be struck horizontally THROUGH the nominal consonant, as ⌈ o, + u, ⌊ oo.

212. FOREIGN CONSONANTS AND VOWELS. —The Scotch guttural ch, Irish gh (heard also in German, Dutch, Welsh, and other languages), is written thus, ⌒ ch: as in loch (Scotch, lake), Loughrea, Clogher, ich (German I), dach (German, roof). The Welsh ll (the whispered or breath form of the English l, like f and v, wh and w), by ⌒ ll: thus, Llan. French nasal ⌒; French and German vowels jeune, Goethe, du.

Exercise 72

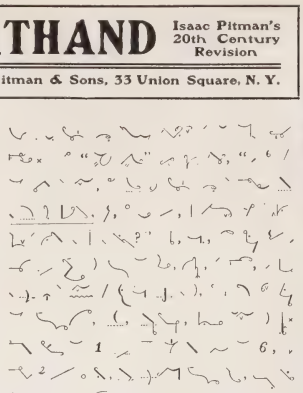
Write the following sentences in shorthand and punctuate, introducing all the above signs. Express emphasis with regard to words in italic, and indicate accent in the word printed in SMALL CAPITALS. This exercise will be given in the next lesson accurately punctuated, and the student should then compare his work and correct any errors.

The characters employed in longhand writing are too lengthy and complicated to admit of their being written with neatness and expedition and most of us have felt the need for some means of bringing the operations of the mind and hand into closer correspondence As the English Review once truly observed "Who that is much in the habit of writing has not often wished for some means of expressing by two or three dashes of the pen that which as things are it requires such an outlay of time and labor to commit to paper" It is indeed most strange that we who excel our progenitors so far in science literature and commerce should continue to use the mode of writing which they have handed down to us with but very slight changes in the forms of the letters though by its complexity it makes handwriting so tedious What can be spoken in one hour can only be written in six but the expert shorthand writer is able by the use of the winged forms of Phonography to keep pace with the tongue In letter writing there is a very great saving of time when communications can be written in Phonography instead of in longhand and in various forms of composition from lengthy articles to PRECIS writing the system saves time and effort May it prove its excellence to the reader

Exercise 73

The preceding exercise (No. 72) accurately punctuated.

☞ The next lesson (No. XXIX) will appear in the issue of Feb. 4, and will be devoted entirely to shorthand reading practice.



Method of Practice

213. The student, having made himself familiar with the principles of the system as presented in the preceding lessons, should take every opportunity to practice writing. As much time, however, should be spent in reading as in writing Phonography. Printed Phonography is better for this purpose than manuscript. One or two shorthand volumes should be read before a rapid style of writing is cultivated, so that it may be formed on a correct model. The following is a good method of practice:—Take a specimen of printed shorthand, and read it over two or three times. Then write it in shorthand from the shorthand copy, pronouncing every word aloud while writing it. Next take the key in the common print, and write the passage in shorthand without looking at the printed shorthand. Then compare the written and printed shorthand, and correct any errors. Write the correct outline for every word wrongly written at first several times on a separate sheet, or in a note-book, filling a line with each word, and pronouncing it aloud while writing it. This practice should be continued until a correct style is obtained.

214. Various books and periodicals are published containing shorthand reading matter printed in the Corresponding Style of Pitman's Shorthand, as developed in these lessons. When copying printed matter into Phonography, the student is recommended to refer to The Shorthand Dictionary (Published by Isaac Pitman & Sons), in the case of doubtful outlines. The Dictionary, however, should not be used to save the learner the trouble of thinking how the word should be written.

Another admirable means for improving your knowledge is that of teaching others what you already know. Of course, "there is an art in so communicating knowledge as to make it attractive," but where it is in your power to do good to others by imparting to them a portion at least of that benefit that you have been permitted to enjoy yourself, it should be done irrespective of degrees of ability or inability. It is an axiom that we cannot instruct others without instructing ourselves. "By having to explain the exercises to my pupils, it gives me (says one student), a clearer knowledge of the principles and beauties of the system." When two or three students are studying together, questions will often arise that would never have been thought of by the student individually.

A GREAT BOOK BARGAIN

We have a quantity of CONVERSATIONS WITH CHRIST, which was the last work of Bishop John P. Newman, and which he completed just before he was called to his reward. CONVERSATIONS WITH CHRIST is one of the most elevating and edifying volumes that has been published in many a year. Thousands have already been sold, and the few that we are offering to close out our stock will no doubt find a ready sale, considering the great discount at which they are offered.

"Conversations with Christ"

by Bishop JOHN P. NEWMAN, 368 pages, bound in cloth, regular price $1, postage ten cents extra; our price, postage prepaid by us, only fifty cents. As there be but a limited number of copies, act quickly if you expect to be fortunate enough to secure one. Address The Christian Herald Book Department, Bible House, New York City.

The Good Shepherd

DEAR DR. KLOPSCH:—The pictures in the "Family Art Gallery" are all good, but my favorite is "Lost in the Storm." These poor sheep remind me of the unhappy condition of sinners. The Bible says, all we like sheep have gone astray. I was lost, but thank God the Good Shepherd found me. He is a shelter in the time of storm. I like THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, and would not be without it.

Clayton, Berks Co., Pa. AMANDA K. FREY.

"Our Most Beautiful Book"

The Speaking Oak is the most beautiful book we have ever had. We all are delighted with it, it is so very interesting; it ought to be in every home. The calendar and pictures are fine. Each picture is a gem in itself. We have received a great deal for $2.00, and we don't see how you can afford to give so much for so little. MRS. JENNIE M. FOGG.

FLORAL BUTTERFLY PLANT

No plant possesses so many good points as do these two glorious new Commelinas. Of graceful trailing habit, superb for carpet bedding or for hanging pots. In pots they bloom every day in the year. In the garden from May until frost, showing daily scores of large winged butterfly-like blossoms. Color (No. 1) the most beautiful blue to be found in any flower. A shade so exquisitely lovely as to baffle description. Thrives in sun or shade, wet or dry, rich or poor soil; as easily raised as a weed from seed or cuttings, grows rapidly, flowers at once, and propagates so easily that plants are very cheap. Blooms in 50 days from seed.

No. 1—Exquisite Blue, like tropical Butterflies.

No. 2—Rosy Pink, in other respects like No. 1.

Strong plants for blooming at once, by mail guaranteed to grow, 20c each; the 2 for 30c, 5 for 60c.

Seed of both colors mixed, 25 cts. per packet.

FREE OUR GREAT CATALOGUE of Flower and Vegetable Seeds, Bulbs, Plants and Rare New Fruits, Profusely Illustrated, Large Colored Plates—136 pages. Do not miss our great Novelties, Emperor Asparagus (crop in 11 months from seed), Early Lima, Perpetual Rhubarb, Pineapple Onion, Climbing Currant and Blackberry, Everblooming Wisteria, Tree, and Double Lilacs, etc. We have the finest Asters, Pansies, Peas, Stocks, Verbenas, Geraniums, Azaleas, Roses, Palms, Ferns, Begonias, Gloxinias, Violets, Phloxes, Gladiolus, Cannas, Dahlias, Lilies, Caladiums, Shrubs, Vines, New Fruits, and all Vegetables.

JOHN LEWIS CHILDS, Floral Park, N.Y.

The WOODEN HEN

A high-class self-regulating incubator on a small scale. Fifty egg capacity. Heat, moisture and ventilation automatically and perfectly controlled. Price only $7.

Send for the Wooden Hen Book; mailed free, together with a book about the EXCELSIOR INCUBATOR, to those who name this paper.

GEO. H. STAHL, Quincy, Illinois.

DREER'S Garden Calendar FREE

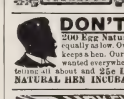
A revelation to all seed planters. Nothing so complete, practical and helpful, ever before issued; 208 pages of the most valuable information about Flower Seeds, Plants, Vegetable Seeds; richly and fully illustrated; four colored plates. FREE to all applicants who mention this paper.

HENRY A. DREER, 714 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

CASH FOR YOUR farm, home, business, or other property (no matter where located or how large or small) may be obtained through me. Send description, state price, and get full particulars free. Est'd 1856. Highest references. Offices in 14 cities, from Boston to San Francisco.

W. M. OSTRANDER 1417 N. A. Building, Philadelphia

LAWN FENCE Many designs. Cheap as wood. 32 page Catalogue free. Special Prices to Cemeteries and Churches. Address COILED SPRING FENCE CO. Box D. Winchester, Ind.



DON'T SET HENS the same old way while a 200 Egg Natural Hen Incubator Costs But $3, other sizes equally as low. Over 150,000 in use. Indispensable to anyone who keeps a hen. Our Patents protected against infringements. Agents wanted everywhere, either sex, no experience necessary. Catalogue telling all about and $25 Lice Formula FREE. If you write today.

NATURAL HEN INCUBATOR CO., Box Columbus, Nebraska.

$5 $10 $50 $100 $200 $500 $1000 SIZES

INVEYE INCUBATOR SPRINGFIELD OHIO

$4500.00 IN PREMIUMS CATALOGUE 2 CTS

SELF REGULATING 30 DAYS TRIAL AUTOMATIC MOISTURE

STARK TREES best by Test—78 Years LARGEST Nursery. FRUIT BOOK free. We WANT MORE SALESMEN PAY CASH Weekly

STARK BRO'S, Louisiana, Mo.; Dansville, N.Y.; Etc

QUAINT PSALMS for QUEER FOLK

By Rev. C. H. Yatman

PSALM LVII
Psalm for Persecuted People

1. Be merciful unto me, O God, be merciful unto me: for my soul trusteth in thee: yea, in the shadow of thy wings will I make my refuge, until these calamities be overpast.

"I WILL CRY UNTO GOD"

2. I will cry unto God most high; unto God that performeth all things for me.

3. He shall send from heaven, and save me from the reproach of him that would swallow me up.

It is time to call on God when men become beasts; when their persecution is like fire, their teeth like spears, arrows and sharp swords. God will turn their feet to the net they have spread, and their own carcass will fill the pit they dug. Bedford jail may come to a Bunyan, but Pilgrim's Progress will come from the jail.

PSALM LVIII
Vengeance Psalm

9. Before your pots can feel the thorns, he shall take them away as with a whirlwind, both living, and in his wrath.

"AS WITH A WHIRLWIND"

10. The righteous shall rejoice when he seeth the vengeance: he shall wash his feet in the blood of the wicked.

11. So that a man shall say, Verily there is a reward for the righteous: verily he is a God that judgeth in the earth.

This Psalm reminds us of Job breaking the jaws of the wicked, of Jesus with scourge of small cords, and Paul who turned the silversmith over to God for just reward. Christianity is not without law, only the Christian takes it from his own hands and passes it over to the One who said: "Vengeance is mine, I will repay." Love for us—Law for Him.

PSALM LIX
Second Defense Psalm

1. Deliver me from mine enemies, O my God: defend me from them that rise up against me.

2. Deliver me from the workers of iniquity, and save me from bloody men.

"THEY LIE IN WAIT"

3. For, lo, they lie in wait for my soul: the mighty are gathered against me; not for my transgression, nor for my sin, O Lord.

So much trouble and so many enemies, made David more than once write of God as his defense. Here we find him in sore straits; his house is watched that they may kill him. Provocation like that brings out a Psalm like this. You do not look for a gentle breeze in a thunderstorm or a tempest.

PSALM LX
Bitter Wine Psalm

1. O God, thou has cast us off, thou hast scattered us, thou hast been displeased; O turn thyself to us again.

2. Thou hast made the earth to tremble; thou hast broken it: heal the breaches thereof; for it shaketh.

"THE EARTH TO TREMBLE"

3. Thou hast shewed thy people hard things: thou hast made us to drink the wine of astonishment.

The wine of astonishment is for all who follow the man of Galilee, who went to the Garden and Golgotha. The road that leads to the King's Palace is up hill, and none climb without crosses. There can be no victories without battles, and battles mean bullets and blood. God's people must be shown "hard things" here, if they are to be shown great things hereafter.

Making Money After School Hours

The above are four of the five thousand boys who are making money in spare time by selling The Saturday Evening Post to their neighbors and friends. Some of them are making $10.00 to $15.00 a week. We will furnish you with Ten Copies the first week Free of Charge, to be sold at Five Cents a Copy; you can then send us the wholesale price for as many as you find you can sell the next week.

$225 in Extra Prizes will be distributed next month among boys who sell Five or more copies weekly.

Send for booklet, showing photographs and describing methods of some of our most successful boy agents.

Circulation Bureau, The Curtis Publishing Company, 403 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

ONE YEAR'S TRIAL FREE
PIANO or ORGAN

It's one thing to offer a Piano or an Organ at a low price. It's another thing to get a

First-Class High Grade
PIANO or ORGAN

at a low price. We have a proposition to make you. Will you let us make it? It cannot be explained here. It outdoes any offer we have ever made. Drop us a postal card or letter, and ask us to send you our catalogue for 1903 with our Special Proposition to New Customers. State whether Piano or Organ is wanted.

ONE YEAR'S FREE TRIAL TO ALL.

We ask no advance payment and sell on terms to suit any purchaser. NO AGENTS. NO STORES. NO MIDDLEMEN. Only one way from our big factory right into your own home at lower than WHOLESALE PRICES.

BEETHOVEN PIANO AND ORGAN CO. BOX. No. 741 WASHINGTON NEW JERSEY.

RHEUMATISM
Relieved by Magic Foot Drafts

Free on Approval—TRY THEM.

Don't take medicine—most medicine isn't fit to take—but let us send you on approval, without a cent in advance, a pair of Drafts to be worn on the soles of your feet. If they help you then send us one dollar. If they don't, send us nothing. They relieve nine out of ten cases—on an average—probably they'll help you. You certainly ought not to hesitate to risk a stamp or a postal when we are willing to risk the drafts. 50,000 persons wore Magic Foot Drafts last year, and we are still sending them on approval to every sufferer we can hear of.

The drafts act on rheumatism in every part of the system by drawing out and absorbing the poisonous acids through the tender soles of the feet. They act as a gentle counter-irritant also, stimulating the entire system. Don't suffer but send to the Magic Foot Draft Co., R A 21 Oliver Bldg., Jackson, Mich., for a pair of Magic Foot Drafts as soon as the mails will bring them. They will give you permanent relief. Ask for our booklet on rheumatism, which goes with every pair—free.

Everything for the Garden

Is the title of Our New Catalogue for 1903—the most superb and instructive horticultural publication of the day—190 pages—700 engravings—8 superb colored plates of vegetables and flowers.

To give this Catalogue the largest possible distribution, we make the following liberal offer:

Every Empty Envelope
Counts as Cash.

To every one who will state where this advertisement was seen, and who incloses 10 Cents (in stamps), we will mail the Catalogue, and also send free of charge, our famous 50-Cent "Henderson" Collection of seeds, containing one packet each of Sweet Peas, Large Mixed Hybrids; Pansies, Giant Fancy Mixed; Asters, Giant Victoria Mixed; Big Boston Lettuce; Early Ruby Tomato and Cardinal Radish, in a coupon envelope, which, when emptied and returned, will be accepted as a 25-cent cash payment on any order of goods selected from Catalogue to the amount of $1.00 and upward.

PETER HENDERSON & CO.,
35 & 37 Cortlandt Street, New York.

PRICES REDUCED FOR 60 DAYS.

$4.00 Vapor Bath Cabinet $2.25 each
$5.00 Quaker " " 3.50 each
$10.00 " " " 6.10 each
$1.00 Face & Head Steam Attch. 65c
Quality best. Guaranteed. $2 Book Free with all "Quakers." Write for our New Catalogue, special 60-Day offer. Don't miss it. Your last chance. New plan, new prices to agents, salesmen, managers. Wonderful sellers. Hustlers getting rich. Plenty territory. World Mfg Co., 675 World Bldg., Cincinnati, O.

FREE Our large catalogue containing hundreds of illustrations of Stamped Linens, Cushion Tops and all kinds of Fancy Work; also Patterns of Battenburg, Honiton, Duchess, Arabian, Irish and Point Lace, with illustrated lesson on Lace Making and also on Colored Embroidery, with all stitches fully illustrated; also illustrations and directions on the new Teneriffe Wheel Lace. All Free. Send your name and address to-day on a postal. Address LADIES ART CO., Box 213, St. Louis, Mo.

9 CORDS IN 10 HOURS

BY ONE MAN. IT'S KING OF THE WOODS. Saves money and backache. Send for FREE illus. catalogue showing latest improvements and testimonials from thousands. First order secures agency. Folding Sawing Mach. Co., 55 N. Jefferson St., Chicago, Ill

GRAY HAIR RESTORED

"WALNUTTA" HAIR STAIN is prepared from the purest and finest vegetable dyestuffs, and contains no sediment. Restores Gray or Bleached Hair to its natural color instantaneously. Imparts a soft, glossy appearance to the hair. Does not wash off or rub off. Contains no poisons, and is not sticky or greasy. "Walnutta" Hair Stain will give more satisfactory results in every case than all the other restoratives and hair dyes put together. Price 60 cents a bottle, postpaid. To prove merit of the preparation we will send a sample bottle postpaid for 20c.
PACIFIC TRADING CO., Dist. Office 66, St. Louis, Mo.

DECIDE TO-DAY*

Early Decision for Christ the Wisest and Only Safe Course

EVERY wise teacher cautions his pupils against the miserable habit of procrastination. There is always need for it. The tendency to leave a duty for to-morrow, rather than to do it to-day is found in every child. It grows up with him if it is not eradicated; and it causes irreparable mischief. It is often found in company with the best intentions. One is busy to-day; a great amount of work is waiting to be done; this matter requires more attention than can be given to it to-day; let it stand over till to-morrow, when one will have more time. But to-morrow brings its own duties and there is no time to deal with arrears, and so the laid-over matter is indefinitely postponed. The habit once acquired brings confusion and waste of power. But the mischief it does in business and ordinary work is small in comparison with its fatal results in religion. Few persons deliberately turn their back on Christ and decide to reject his claims. The great majority of those who die without accepting his salvation intended to accept it eventually. The boy thinks that when he has finished his education he will attend to it; when he is entering commercial or professional life, all his thoughts and energies are demanded for his duties, and he decides to postpone the question of religion to the time when he has established himself in life; then the absorbing competition of life occupies his thoughts and he resolves to wait until he has obtained a fortune, or at least a competence. So he drifts until, if he lives to retire from business, he finds himself indisposed for a consideration of religion, and the subjects that have filled his thoughts, all through his life, leave no room in his mind for Christ. The only sure and safe course is that of prompt decision. Death may come suddenly, it is very liable to come early, and then the opportunity is gone forever. Even if life is continued, the danger of postponement is serious. It shuts out of life its best preservative and its opportunities of usefulness; it deprives the soul of the divine influence which elevates, ennobles, develops it. After all, religion is the chief thing in life, and it is better for every one to attend to that first and rest not until it is settled.

SELF-MASTERY†

The Highest Attainment of which Human Nature is Capable

SOME Christians seem to be content to proceed no further in religion than to be convinced that their souls are saved. They are satisfied to know that through Christ, God will accept them and admit them into his glorious presence. And truly, that is a most blessed attainment. It is sufficient to give consolation in affliction, to inspire hope in bereavement, and to sustain the soul in the dark hour of death. But religion may do much more for a man, and it is intended to do more. It will lead to development. It ought to make its possessor desirous of reaching a higher plane of life; it should fill him with a holy ambition to become like Christ. As a man said who boasted of being self-made, he had made the best of himself that could be made out of the stuff, so the Christian ought to put himself in God's hands, to be made the best that human nature is capable of becoming. God will not do this for the man who remains passive, but he will do it for the man who actively strives to reach a higher life.

It is worth while to consider what this prize is that is set before us. Paul calls it an incorruptible crown. Its value is obvious. Men strive for wealth, or fame, or power, and devote all their energies to gain one or other of these prizes, but not one of them is permanent. The possessor may be stripped of them in life, and in any case must leave them behind him when he dies; but spiritual attainment can never be taken from a man, and he takes it with him beyond the grave. It is, consequently, the highest and best prize. Having settled that with himself, the Christian should consider the means to be adopted to gain it. Here he gets a hint from the athlete. He gains control of himself, develops his powers, makes the best of himself by self-denial. Other men may do this or that, but he puts aside resolutely every indulgence that may deplete him. He is intent on reaching the highest, and therefore he counts all things loss that may hinder or weaken him. To a man who will do this, God gives omnipotent help.

*Topic of The Christian Endeavor Society and Baptist Young People's Union for February 4. Heb. 3: 7-13.

†Topic of the Epworth League for February 1. I. Cor. 9: 24-27.

IT PAYS

To Know Facts About Coffee.

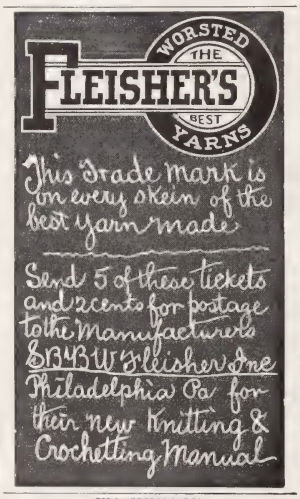
When man takes properly selected food and drink, Nature will most always assert herself and rebuild the structure properly.

"From my earliest remembrance, I was a confirmed coffee drinker," writes a gentleman from Marshallville, Ga., "taking two cups at nearly every meal. While at college I became very nervous, dyspeptic, irritable and unfit for study, and attributed it largely to coffee, but did not stop its use.

"When I was married, I found my wife was troubled the same way, and we decided to try Postum Food Coffee. My wife made the Postum according to directions, and we found it superb. We used it exclusively for the morning beverage, and the taste of ordinary coffee became distasteful to both of us.

"We have found a distinct gain in health. Any amount of Postum does not cause a feeling of either dyspepsia or nervousness, while the return to coffee even for one meal has disastrous effects upon my nerves. My dyspepsia has entirely left me, and both my wife and self are well and strong, and feel that it is all due to the Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

It is easy to replace coffee with Postum, which has, when properly made, a rich flavor and the color of coffee with none of its injurious after-effects.



WORSTED
THE FLEISHER'S
BEST
YARNS
This trade mark is on every skein of the best yarn made
Send 5 of these tickets and 2 cents for postage to the Manufacturers S. B. & W. Fleisher, One Philadelphia Pa. for their new Knitting & Crocheting Manual

WASHINGTON.

Three-Day Personally-Conducted Tour via Pennsylvania Railroad.

The next Pennsylvania Railroad Personally-conducted Tour to Washington leaves Thursday, January 29. Rate, covering railroad transportation for the round trip, hotel accommodations, and transfer of passenger and baggage, station to hotel in Washington, $14.50 from New York, $13.00 from Trenton, and $11.50 from Philadelphia. These rates cover accommodations for two days at the Arlington, Normandie, Riggs, Ebbitt, Shoreham, Cochran, Gordon, Barton, or Hamilton Hotels. For accommodations at Regent, Metropolitan, National, or Colonial Hotels, $2.50 less. Special side trip to Mt. Vernon.

All tickets good for ten days, with special hotel rates after expiration of hotel coupons.

For itineraries and full information apply to ticket agents: Tourist Agent, 263 Fifth Avenue, New York; 4 Court Street, Brooklyn; 789 Broad Street, Newark, N. J.; or address Geo. W. Boyd, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Broad Street Station, Philadelphia.

How Old is Baby

If baby is under four years old send us his name and date of birth, with mother's name and address on Post Card. We have something useful to send him.

COVERCLIP CO., Yonkers, N. Y.

"This for That" will trade anything you have for anything you want. Get our magazine paper which prints thousands of exchange advertisements. Six months trial subscription, 10 cts. "THIS FOR THAT" PUB. CO., 1488 Star Bldg., CHICAGO.

SHORTHAND. Students at the Correspondence Institute of the Christian Herald should send for "Shorthand Instructor." Price, by mail, postpaid, $1.50. ISAAC PITMAN & SONS, 33 Union Sq., New York. "Reasons Why" free.

The proof of the pudding—
You know the rest.
Just so with

Uneeda Biscuit

It's the In-er-seal Package that keeps them so different from common crackers and biscuit. 5¢

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

EIGHT DOLLARS AND NINETY-FIVE CENTS

BUYS OUR HIGH GRADE, HIGH ARM, GUARANTEED, FIVE-DRAWER, SOLID POLISHED ANTIQUE OAK, DROP HEAD CABINET SEROCO SEWING MACHINE, the equal of sewing machines that cost twice the money elsewhere.

$10.45 buys our 5-drawer drop head cabinet, celebrated NEW QUEEN sewing machine.

$11.95 buys this beautiful marquetry decorated, 5-drawer, drop head cabinet EDGEMERE sewing machine, exactly as illustrated.

$12.85 buys the standard ball bearing BURDICK sewing machine.

$15.20 buys the highest grade sewing machine made, our MINNESOTA, the equal of regular $50.00 and $60.00 agents' machines.

THE ABOVE MACHINES ARE ALL OUR OWN MAKE. WE SELL EVERY OTHER MAKE OF SEWING MACHINE ON THE MARKET AT CUT PRICES.

5-drawer, drop head, genuine	SINGER, $24.50
4-drawer, drop head	DOMESTIC, $21.00
5-drawer, drop head	NEW HOME, $20.00
4-drawer, drop head	Wheeler & Wilson, $24.00
5-drawer, drop head	WHITE, $21.00
4-drawer, drop head	STANDARD, $22.00

These and many other high grade machines beautifully illustrated and fully described, the parts, mechanism and special features, in our big, new, free Sewing Machine Catalogue. You must write for it. If you mention the name of this paper we will give you the names of a number of your own neighbors to whom we have sold machines, so you can see and examine your neighbors' machines, learn how they are pleased with them and how much money we saved them.

THREE MONTHS' FREE TRIAL ON ANY SEWING MACHINE ORDERED. For Free Sewing Machine Catalogue, the most wonderful price offerings ever made, our liberal terms, pay after received offer and three months' free trial plan, cut this ad. out and mail to-us, or send us a postal card, ask for Free Sewing Machine Catalogue, and say that paper or magazine you saw this notice in. Address SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., CHICAGO.

EDITOR'S NOTE—These machines offered at above prices by Sears, Roebuck & Co. are the GENUINE and well known makes.

$8.95

WE CAN SURELY SAVE YOU $10.00 TO $30.00 ON ANY KIND OF A MACHINE.

Flowers are Blooming In California

Its a little hard to realize that right now, while we are burning up our coal pile trying to keep warm, the flowers are blooming and the fruits are ripening and the birds are singing in California. Why not go out there for a few weeks? The trip is very inexpensive—a double berth in our modern tourist sleeping cars Chicago to Los Angeles only costs $6.00. Our "Personally Conducted" parties leave Chicago and St. Louis every week—find out about them. Write me for particulars TO-DAY. There is no more comfortable, interesting and inexpensive way of going to the Coast.

P. S. EUSTIS, Passenger Traffic Manager C. B. & Q. Ry. Co., 209 Adams St., Chicago.

669

1 of 100 Premiums

$10 PREMIUMS GIVEN AWAY WITH $10 ASSORTMENT

Of Laundry and Fine Toilet SOAPS and Perfumes. Our Premiums consist of Couches Morris Chairs, Beds, Tables, Desks, Stoves Musical Instruments, etc. In fact, through the LOCKWOOD WAY you can furnish your entire home free. Send your name and address and we will mail you absolutely FREE our beautiful illustrated catalogue containing handsome and useful premiums also full information in regard to our 30 days' FREE TRIAL order.

LOCKWOOD SOAP CO., Department 13, KANSAS CITY, MO

These trade-mark crisscross lines on every package.

GLUTEN FLOUR For DYSPEPSIA.
SPECIAL DIABETIC FLOUR.
K. C. WHOLE WHEAT FLOUR.
Unlike all other goods. Ask Grocers.
For book or sample, write
Farwell & Rhines, Watertown, N. Y., U.S.A.

ALL IMPROVED HARTSHORN SHADE ROLLERS HAVE AUTOGRAPH OF LABEL ON NO TACKS REQUIRED TO ATTACH SHADE WOOD ROLLERS TIN ROLLERS

You will realize that "They live well who live cleanly." If you use SAPOLIO

LEARNED PAGANS

Paul's Discourse to the Greek Philosophers

By Mrs. M. Baxter

THE ministry of "the brethren" to Paul in his second missionary journey is worthy of note. When at Thessalonica, the Jews had stirred up a riot against Paul, it was "the brethren" who "sent away Paul and Silas by night unto Berea" (Acts :7:10). When, again, the disaffected Jews stirred up the multitudes in that city, it was again "the brethren" who "sent forth Paul to go as far as to the sea," and "they brought him as far as to Athens, where he was left alone until Silas and Timothy should join him." Quite a number traveled with him at different times—Silas, Timothy, Luke, Aquilla, Priscilla, Apollos, Erastus, Gaius, Aristarchus, Sopater, Tychicus, Trophimus, etc. It must have been a precious ministry to care thus for this man of God, and the ministry of brethren is a precious thing; but Paul did not always avail himself of it. When the brethren sailed from Troas to Assos, Paul went on foot (Acts 20: 13, 14), probably that he might secure time to be more fully alone with God. The kindly ministration of loving Christian friends may sometimes complicate, in their care to protect God's instrument just when he may call for them to take a step of faith. But Paul was not ungrateful, and he accepted from God's hand the ministry of the saints.

Athens was at that time perhaps the most idolatrous and the most intellectually cultivated city in the world. Some have said that so great was the number of their gods that it was easier to find a god than a man in Athens. While Paul was waiting for Silas and Timothy in Athens, "his spirit was stirred in him when he saw the city wholly given to idolatry," or R.V., "his spirit was provoked within him as he beheld the city full of idols." Music and art were present to render it attractive, but these did not attract him. So he reasoned in the synagogue with the Jews and with the devout persons (proselytes), and in the market-place every day with them that met with him. Paul was commissioned of God "to bear his name before the Gentiles" (Acts 9: 15), and nothing hindered his testimony. He waited for nothing, but went straight forward with his message.

It was not long before the children of this world (or age) in Athens heard of the presence of a new teacher in their city. The men of Athens, "and the strangers sojourning there, spent their time in nothing else but either to tell or to hear some new thing." Therefore they were ready to meet with Paul, but quite unprepared for the "new thing," which he had to tell. Philosophers of two different schools, the Epicureans, which were the most luxurious, and the Stoics, which were the most ascetic, encountered him, but neither the one nor the other could find anything in their systems which resembled the teaching of Paul. This "new thing" was beyond them. Ignorance, even when it is the ignorance of the most learned according to this world, despises what it cannot understand. "What will this babbler say?" was their comment, and "He seemeth to be a setter forth of strange demons" (gods), because he preached Jesus and the resurrection.

But these very men, who were always ready for every new thing, perceived that between their heathen ideas and the things which Paul preached, there was a radical difference, the acceptance of the one meant the rejection of the other, the life of the one, the death of the other. So they sought Paul, and invited him to speak before their highest court, that of the Areopagus, of his "new teaching," and of the "strange things" which he brought to their ears. It was a splendid opportunity. Paul had never yet spoken before such an assembly. He had no time to make any preparation. His preparation was the Spirit of God within him, as the Spirit of Wisdom, the Spirit of counsel and strength (Isa. 11: 2), and he knew that his God was equal to the occasion. His ministry was to be before kings, and his appearance before the court of the Areopagus might prepare for this.

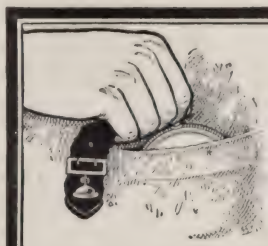
"Paul stood in the presence of the Areopagus, and said, Ye men of Athens, I perceive that ye are somewhat superstitious. For, as I passed along, and observed the objects of your worship, I found an altar with this inscription, 'To the Unknown God.' What, therefore, ye worship in ignorance, this set I forth unto you." How many missionaries in heathen countries have followed Paul's example, by showing the people the unreasonableness of their worship, and so made known to them the true and living God! "The God that made the world," he continued, "and all things therein, he being Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands; neither is he served by men's hands, as though he needed anything, seeing he himself giveth to all life and breath and all things."

A Family Missionary

Dear Christian Herald:—The books The Hall of Fame and The Speaking Oak received are beautiful, and such an addition to our parlor table; every one is so pleased with them. The pictures are just fine, and the Calendar a lovely thing. My house is full of your generous gifts, as I always take your premiums. The Christian Herald we prize as the best paper we take; we would part with any other one first. Last year I sent it to eight of my friends. I think it is like sending a missionary with a family.

Cambridge, Mass. Mrs. W. Knox Smith.

Either of these books and The Christian Herald one year, $2.00.



A Watch Case Wears

at pointof contact with the hand or pocket. A solid gold case wears thin and wears and a cheap filled case wears shabby. A Jas. Boss Stiffened Gold Case is guaranteed to wear for 25 years. It is made of two layers of solid gold with a layer of stiffening metal between all welded together in one solid sheet. The outside gold will last a quarter of a century and the stiffening metal will keep the case strong as long as you wear it. This is why thousands wear the on costly works in preference to a solid gold case. Ask your jeweler to show you a Jas. Boss Case and look for the Keystone trade-mark stamped inside. Send for Booklet.

JAS. BOSS Stiffened GOLD Watch Case

THE KEYSTONE WATCH CASE COMPANY, Philadelphia, Pa.

EARNED BY SELLING 4 DOZ. EARNED BY SELLING 4 DOZ. EARNED BY SELLING 4 DOZ. EARNED BY SELLING 4 DOZ.

YOU, DEAR MADAM can earn these and a hundred other beautiful articles quickly and easily by introducing among your friends our New Flavoring Extracts. They sell readily at 20 cts. and every family buys extracts and after you get so your business will be permanent and growing. Sell only 1 dozen for a Dress, Suit, Rug or Watch. NO MONEY REQUIRED WE TRUST YOU. We will send you at once 1 doz. assorted Flavoring Extracts to commence with. Ask Liberal Lay this Magazine Down and Write Us Now paid, also our Catalogue showing many articles you can earn for selling 1 doz. up to 5 doz. We guarantee our Extracts to give satisfaction. If you can't sell them we will take them back, but there's no can't about it. YOU CAN. PETERSON & CO., 1340 Belmont Ave., Dept. 18, CHICAGO, ILL.

EARNED BY SELLING 5 DOZ. EARNED BY SELLING 3 DOZ. EARNED BY SELLING 5 DOZ. EARNED BY SELLING 5 DOZ.

The "SUN" INCANDESCENT LIGHT

THE "SUN" OUTSHINES THEM ALL.

Burns 50 per cent Air and 10 per cent Illuminating gas—costs but little more than daylight. Conforms to insurance underwriters rules. The ideal light for home, church, hall or business.

Write For Our Liberal Terms To Agents

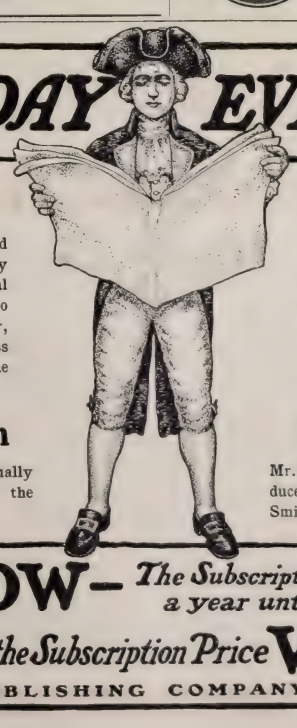
Branch supply depots in all the larger cities.

SUN VAPOR LIGHT CO. BOX 604. CANTON, O.

(Licensee of the ground patents for vapor lamps.)

100 CANDLE POWER

The SATURDAY EVENING POST



Old Gorgon Graham

Readers of The Saturday Evening Post need no introduction to Old Man Graham. They know him as Pierrepont's father and the central figure in Letters from a Self-Made Merchant to His Son. In a new series, by the same author, Old Man Graham delivers more of the business philosophy and shrewd humor that have made him famous.

By F. Hopkinson Smith

A Point of Honor, soon to appear, is an unusually readable tale in which are set forth some of the humors of the French duel.

William Allen White's Washington Papers

The country boasts of three or four political writers as shrewd and clever as Mr. White; but not one of them possesses his fresh, keen humor or his striking, forceful way of saying things. Mr. White will write a weekly Washington letter for the magazine during the winter.

Owen Wister's New Tale

Mr. Wister's next contribution to the magazine introduces the reader to the author's old friends, Mr. Skookum Smith and Mr. Frisco Baldy.

$1·00·NOW— The Subscription Price is One Dollar a year until February 1st.

After Feb. 1st. the Subscription Price WILL BE $2

THE CURTIS PUBLISHING COMPANY, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Here's a Perfect Feast

Ralston BREAKFAST FOOD

AND

Purina PANKAKES.

These 2 Packages for 25 Cents at your Grocer's.

Just go 'round the corner to your grocer's and buy these two packages. You'll give the family a perfect feast for breakfast.

Purina Pankake Flour makes the best pankakes you ever tasted—they're so delicious, it just seems like you can't get enough of them.

Ralston Breakfast Food is even more appetizing, and possesses a flavor all its own. Remember, these products are "Appreciated in a Million Homes," which is a magnificent recommendation. Insist on getting Checkerboard Packages. Made by Purina Mills, St. Louis.

"Where Purity is Paramount"

SUBSCRIPTION
$1.50 PER ANNUM

NEW YORK = MAGAZINE NUMBER = JANUARY 28, 1903

VOL. 26 – NO. 4
PRICE 5 CENTS

COPYRIGHT LOUIS KLOPSCH 1903

CHRISTIAN HERALD

"THROUGH WOODLAND AISLES, SNOW-CARPETED"

HERE'S A RECIPE FOR MAKING BREAD

WHEN a well bred girl expects to wed,
'Tis well to remember that men like bread.
We're going to show the steps to take,
So she may learn good bread to make.

FIRST, mix a lukewarm quart, my daughter,
One-half of milk and one-half of water;
To this please add two cakes
of yeast,
Or the liquid kind if preferred in the least.

NEXT stir in a teaspoonful of nice clear salt,
If this bread isn't good, it won't be our fault
Now add the sugar, tablespoonfuls three;
Mix well together, for dis solved they must be.

POUR the whole mixture into an earthen bowl,
A pan's just as good, if it hasn't a hole.
It's the cook and the flour, not the bowl or the pan,
That—"Makes the bread that makes the man."

NOW let the mixture stand
a minute or two.
You've other things of great importance to do.
First sift the flour—use the finest in the land.
Three quarts is the measure,
'GOLD MEDAL" the brand.

SOME people like a little shortening power,
If this is your choice, just add to the flour
Two tablespoonfuls of lard, and jumble it about,
Till the flour and lard are mixed without doubt.

NEXT stir the flour into the mixture that's stood Waiting to play its part, to make the bread good.
Mix it up thoroughly, but not too thick;
Some flours make bread that's more like a brick.

NOW grease well a bowl and put the dough in,
Don't fill the bowl full, that would be a sin;
For the dough is all right and it's going to rise,
Till you will declare that it's twice the old size.

BRUSH the dough with melted butter, as the recipes say;
Cover with a bread towel, set in a warm place to stay
Two hours or more, to rise until light,
When you see it grow, you'll know it's all right.

AS soon as it's light place again on the board;
Knead it well this time. Here is knowledge to hoard.
Now back in the bowl once more it must go,
And set again to rise for an hour or so.

FORM the dough gently into loaves when light,
And place it in bread pans greased just right.
Shape each loaf you make to half fill the pan,
This bread will be good enough for any young man.

NEXT let it rise to the level of pans—no more,
Have the temperature right—
don't set near a door.
We must be careful about draughts; it isn't made to freeze,
Keep the room good and warm
—say seventy-two degrees.

NOW put in the oven,—it's ready to bake,—
Keep uniform fire, great results are at stake.
One hour more of waiting and you'll be repaid,
By bread that is worthy "A Well Bred Maid."

WASHBURN-CROSBY'S
GOLD MEDAL FLOUR

MAKES THE FINEST BREAD, AND IS BEST FOR BISCUITS ALSO.

WE HAVE a very complete cook-book containing over 1,000 carefully prepared recipes, which we will send to you upon receipt of 8 cents in stamps, and the names and addresses of two friends who would also like to obtain the GOLD MEDAL COOK-BOOK. Write your name plainly and address.

WASHBURN-CROSBY CO., Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Mention The Christian Herald

NEW YORK, JANUARY 28, 1903

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD

AN ILLUSTRATED FAMILY MAGAZINE

NATIVE WORKERS DRYING COCOA

GATHERING ORCHIDS IN VENEZUELA

VENEZUELA IN WAR TIME

By a Special Correspondent of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD

WE were surprised to learn how little impression war had made upon Venezuela. Perhaps the vast extent of her territory, and her poor facilities of intercommunication may largely account for this.

Venezuela has nearly a million square miles of territory, divided into three well-defined regions—agricultural, grazing and forest lands. The first is situated in the northwest, where are the fertile valleys; the great grazing belt lies to the south of this; and the forest region extends from these grassy plains over the whole of the southern part of the country. As the population is about two and a-half millions, there are two and a-half persons to the square mile—a grand country for those people we have heard of who dislike near neighbors. The predominating race is Latin and mixed Latin; but there are in Venezuela still three hundred and twenty-six thousand aborigines, of whom sixty-six thousand are independent, twenty thousand subjugated, and the rest semi-civilized and assimilated with the other peoples, mostly with the colored people. Along the coast there is a considerable Cosecan and Italian population.

Some changes have taken place since my last visit to Venezuela, and the Anglo-German blockade prevented me from entering the country, so I hunted up the most prominent and intelligent of the many Venezuelan refugees who had flocked to Trinidad, the British colony just across the Gulf of Paria, from the troubled republic. From them I gained much information respecting the people and their life in the several States there. Some of these refugees have been deeply involved in revolution; some have met with business misfortunes; some had suffered persecution—all had some tale of woe to tell. The majority were Catholics; but suffering had made them kind and open-hearted, so they spoke to me without the slightest reserve, fear or dissimulation.

I asked one of these men what work Protestants had attempted in the section from which he came (Cumana, the ancient city), and he threw up his hands, exclaiming: "Nothing! nothing! It is impossible! they can do nothing—it is no place for them." Then he related the facts in the case of a bold Protestant attempt on "the virgin faith of Catholic Cumana." A minister, agent of one of the Bible societies, landed, years ago, in Cumana, with several hundred Bibles for sale. The first man he accosted happened to be a well-to-do merchant, who asked to be permitted to see the Bibles, and then proposed to buy them all, a proposition that was readily accepted. Then he had them delivered at his establishment, and piled on the edge of the pavement. When a crowd had gathered, he appeared with a bucket of kerosene which he poured over them and set the Bibles on fire. The minister looked on horrified. When the sacred volumes were consumed, the merchant turned to him and said: "Sir, it is against the rules of the church to sell or to buy Bibles in this country." No further attempt has been made to corrupt the faith of the people there, from that day to this.

A PORTION OF PRESIDENT CASTRO'S ARMY

Mr. Turner, head of the Orinoco Steamship Co., of Venezuela, Colombia and Trinidad, thought that morality was at a very low ebb in Venezuela, particularly amongst the Indians, who have no marital laws, and with whom the fundamental moralities are unknown. They live along the water courses, in palm-leaf huts, until rumors of war drive them to the mountains. It has been the custom to press numbers of them into the army in times of civil strife, where they are killed by thousands or die of disease, so that they have learned that safety lies in hasty flight when war breaks out. In the more civilized regions, they are employed on the plantations, cotton, sugar, cocoa, cattle, etc., where they always take the side of their master, whatever that may be. Mr. Turner thought that, with the exception of a few small chapels for the few foreigners in the larger cities, there was no Protestant work being done in all the country. He mentioned the case of a Gospel boat that went up the Orinoco River a year ago, and was mobbed, fell into distress, and accomplished nothing. He had to help the minister in charge to get back to the United States.

I was told that in many of the southern districts there is as yet no protection to life or property, so that the rich mines cannot be worked, and the metals cannot be carried out with any degree of safety. In one of these territories, there is a mine being worked, because government has established an armed mule train for transporting the mails. It consists of three hundred mules and an armed guard of twelve hundred men. All the southern portion depends upon the Orinoco River for communication with the outside world, and America feeds the whole region by means of this stream. As soon as this highway is made secure, colonists will flock into Venezuela and Colombia, to open up the natural wealth there.

Nearly the whole of the cocoa crop and that of the tonga bean is handled in Trinidad. The cocoa grows on small trees, planted pretty much as a peach orchard is laid out, and after the seeds have been removed from the large tough pods, they are slightly dried, then sweated under ground or in a covered trough, before being spread in the sun to dry for shipment. In the factory most of the cocoa butter is extracted before the beans are ground and made into chocolate and cocoa. In the warehouses of Trinidad I saw hundreds of tons being made ready for shipment to the United States, France, Germany, and England. The great chocolate manufacturers have agents here, and purchase the crop of a plantation before it is gathered.

The vessels that usually ply between Venezuela and

TWO REFUGEES OF TRINIDAD SIGNORINA FIGUERADA MR. TURNER DR. C. FERRARA

CONTINUED ON PAGE 69

THE AMERICAN PULPIT

THE CROWNING GRACE

A Sermon by REV. GEO. C. LORIMER, D.D.
Madison Avenue Baptist Church, New York

TEXT—I. Cor. 13: 13: "But the greatest of these is love"

WHEN this eloquent eulogy was penned, religion had reached the most important stage in its historical development. The glittering ceremonial of Judaism, the splendid and superstitious ritualism of Paganism were decadent and departing, and the miraculous gifts and wonders of primitive Christianity were already preparing to vanish away. These things, like the grass and its flower, were being cut down and were rapidly fading. Religion was passing through a most stupendous transformation—from being provincial, it was becoming catholic, from being a shadow it was becoming a reality, from being a form it was becoming a life, and from being a bondage it was becoming a redemption, a redemption from sin and guilt and from the social tyrannies of the ancient world. But to a people who had always identified it with the outward—with magnificent temples, with gorgeous priesthoods, with visible altars, and with the pretentiousness of bewildering marvels, these changes were almost synonymous with the triumph of atheism. And dispossessed of these distinctive marks how could the new cult, whose Founder was a peasant, whose apostles were fishermen, whose sign was the infamous cross, and whose worship was so essentially spiritual as to render superfluous sacred localities and sacred orders, hope to arrest the attention or secure the homage of mankind? To meet this reasonable perplexity, St. Paul devotes various passages in his invaluable epistles; and in this portion of his letter to the Corinthians, where the same doubt seems to be troubling the disciples, he declares that God had provided substitutes for the things that were necessarily transient—"faith, hope, love"—and further implies, when he proposes to show "a more excellent way," that these three were themselves sufficient to invest religion with attractiveness and power, and that in their presence the external pomp and showy observances, to which they so tenaciously clung, dwindled into insignificance and vanity.

The Supreme Characteristic

Of these graces, the apostle singles out one which surpasses in greatness the others, and devotes this beautiful chapter to its exposition and exaltation. To him, it is evidently the special and crowning glory of Christianity. The great religions of the world are distinguishable from each other by some supreme characteristic. Thus, the genius of Hinduism, is mysticism; that of Buddhism, is asceticism; that of Parseeism, is dualism; that of Mohammedanism, is fanaticism; that of Confucianism, is secularism—and that of our own faith, is altruism, or love. No other inference than this is possible from the teachings of the New Testament. There God is represented as sending his Son to the earth because he loved, and he in this way "commends his love," and then St. John, seeking to sum up his nature in a single word, exclaims: "God is love."

Here, then, we have the origin of the Christian religion. It has been begotten of a divine love, and in this grace it is to find its true expression and its most complete fulfilment. Hence the many and varied ways in which its spirit and obligations are enjoined on the disciples. The disciples are to love God with all their mind and strength, and their neighbor as themselves. They are reminded that love edifies, and that it covers a multitude of sins, and, more than all, that it is the essence of the new birth; "for he who loveth is born of God."

Specious Counterfeits

The church of late years has come more and more into sympathy with this conception, and the world lying beyond its bounds has professed itself charmed and fascinated by such a religion. And yet there is reason to fear that they are both, to some extent at least, ravished by a sentimental illusion of their own creation, and that neither has a comprehensive idea of what is involved in that which they praise so fervently. Indeed, there are not lacking signs that we love more in word than in deed, and that we frequently substitute the word, especially when it is an eloquent one, for the deed, and that sometimes we are wholly at fault in our understanding of what Christian love really is, what it enjoins, what it leads to, and what the secret of its power. In these circumstances I may be permitted to examine anew the crowning glory of Christianity.

That love is extolled to be thus illustrious, is demonstrated by what St. Paul says in this chapter concerning its relative value, its incomparable character, and its imperishable influence.

We can hardly fail to observe, as we follow the apostle's thought, that in this infancy he is more anxious to insist on its human side and on its ameliorating influences, and does not even relate it to its supreme source, the Heavenly Father. A recent writer remarks on this, that in contrast with the teaching of Christ: "The references which he makes to the love which man bears to God are fewer than might have been supposed, from the intensity with which the mystics have urged this on mankind as the supreme ideal of religion." May it not be that, just here, we touch on one of the misconceptions which have rendered some of the saints vulnerable to criticism. They have wrought themselves into a fervor of passionate devotion, or into an ecstacy of feeling, and this they have looked on as love for God, and have imagined, because of the comfort and satisfaction they themselves have experienced, that in this way they have also exhibited and exhausted their love for man. But this does not follow. And I am inclined to interpret our Lord's comparative reticence on how we are to show our love for God, and his specific and minute instruction as to how we are to evince it for our fellow beings, that we may be saved from this confusion, and to remind us that, after all, it is by benevolent human service we fulfil the promptings of our love for God. For, as an earthly parent is touched more deeply, and is honored more highly by kindnesses shown to his children than to himself, so our Father in heaven is pleased to accept as worship what we do to aid and to bless his children when inspired by our love for him.

In estimating the value of this grace, which is done in the three opening verses of the chapter, there are certain words which are of importance to the exposition: "Though I speak," "though I have," and "though I bestow." That is, love is quite superior to anything we may say, anything we may possess, or anything we may confer or give.

From his latest photograph

REV. GEORGE C. LORIMER, D.D.

And yet tongues, both of men and of angels, are of incomputable worth. Of the latter, we cannot form an adequate idea, and can only imagine that they must surpass the power of human eloquence. But who shall fix for us the terms of our indebtedness to what we do know, whether oral or written, whether it charm us through the potent spell of the voice, or through the silent fascination of the printed page? Speech, what has it not done? It has been the truest torch by which the world's ignorance has been dispelled; it has been the highest sacrament by which the world's faith has been quickened; it has been the keenest sword by which the world's liberties have been championed; and it has been the mightiest force by which the world's progress has been accelerated. And yet love is worth more than it. One breath of love is more excellent and precious than the finest sentences ever woven, or the grandest peroration ever uttered when love is absent. There is more healing in its touch, more consolation in its smile than in all the stately periods of a Burke or Clay, of a Massillon or Hooker. Without it, oratory is a delusion and a snare; and what is pitiably pathetic there is no necessary connection between them. Men may write and talk beautiful things, and avow the purest sentiments, and do it all in the most poetic phrases, and the heart be dead and cold. Well, then, does the apostle liken such loveless speech to clanging brass and tinkling cymbals, to a noise that crashes on the ear and startles, but which conveys no subtle sound of divinest melody to the troubled soul.

In comparison also with possessions, love is pre-eminent. This is the apostle's second standard of valuation. The treasures he enumerates are not to be despised. They include "the gift of prophecy," "the knowledge of mysteries," and "the faith to remove mountains." These surely are worthy any man's solicitude and ambition. They have too often been extolled to need fresh appraisement now. But the distinction here implied is altogether startling. It is intimated that these possessions may be held and exercised by those who are strangers to the grace of love. Our Lord once said, "Ye shall profess to have cast out devils in my name and in my name to have done many wonderful works. I will say unto you, 'Depart, I never knew you.'" What! people overcoming the powers of darkness and by the blessed Saviour! Why, there are persons in many of our cities who are removing mountains of nervous diseases, and who claim that they succeed because they feel more fully than others the force of divine love, and who are proselyting feeble evangelical professors in the name of the life of love; and yet, if this text is to be credited, all that they accomplish is possible without love. Prophesies may be uttered by a Balaam, and Simon Magus may bewitch by his sorceries, and Judas may share with his brethren the apostolate in casting out devils, and still be seekers of gain and indifferent to human affection. These marvels of Lourdes, these healings that proceed from mental suggestion or hypnotism, or from some other unexplained psychic force may be wrought by those in whom the divine Spirit is no more operative than in those who are doing their best to live nobly and unsensationally. Nay, it is quite mortifying to read that we may have knowledge, discernment, foresight, and faith, and yet be really nothing. This is humiliating.

Achieving Marvels, and yet Unowned

Neither can our gifts serve as a substitute and compensation for its absence. "And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor—it profiteth me nothing," continues the apostle in this most disillusioning discourse. Why, we moderns have almost come to identify alms giving with religion, and have almost concluded that if we feed the poor after we have made our millions, the Lord will forgive us if we have somewhat starved the poor for the sake of making them. But no honest student of the Scriptures can for a moment credit so preposterous a position. We may be generous with our money, and we may give promptly so as not to be annoyed by importunity, or even as an act of retributive justice against our own oppressions demanded by our outraged conscience, and we be utterly devoid of religion. It is very sad to see

People Missing the Mark

Love is the very essence of religion, and without it there is no religion. The Romanist may trust his ceremonies and the Protestant his benefactions; but these things will profit neither of them anything. Whatever significance they may have, and whatever good they may do, they are valueless without love—and if love be present then a bishop, such as Victor Hugo paints, is a blessing, notwithstanding his rituals, and, then a poor curate such as Goldsmith portrays, is a living benefaction to society, notwithstanding his poverty.

And all this is suggested by what St. Paul writes without in the least detracting from the relative worth of faith, knowledge, prophecy, benevolence, or any other good thing. All of these treasures have their place and office in Christ's church. All have a beauty, though love is the fairest; all are children of God, though love is the divinest. It is impossible to dispense with faith for we must believe something; nor can we do without hope, for we must all be inspired by expectation; and we cannot progress without knowledge, for by light do we see how to advance; but love transcends them all, is the highest mountain-top in all this glorious range of excellencies, and without which they would be as apparently dwarfed and dull as would be the Alpine scenery of Switzerland without Mont Blanc or the Matterhorn.

The apostle having computed the exceptional preciousness of love, proceeds to give a sketch of her character. He furnishes the church a full-length portrait of her many charms. Let us unveil the picture painted by St. Paul, and attempt to restore some of the colors which have been a trifle obscured by their exposure to the strange sentimental atmosphere of modern life.

We ought, first of all, to take note of her graciousness and unobtrusiveness. She vaunteth not herself and is not puffed up. On the housetops she does not stand drawing attention to herself. The disposition to parade nd show off is not hers. In this she differs from much hat has assumed her name in modern times. And we nay receive with caution the loud asseverations of hose who insist that they are the lovers of their ellow-men. And she does not seek her own. I fear by his rule her sway is not very conspicuous in modern imes. She surely does not reveal herself in the temper which declares that business belongs to one domain nd religion to another; that not only seeks its own, but lso what belongs to others, and whose rule of life outide the church is that of unmitigated selfishness. Neither is she manifest in the spirit of offended dignity, hat seeks more than is her own in the acknowledgments made by some one who has trangressed against er. On the contrary, it is of the nature of love to give. As the feeble child-arms of the Christ must have encirled Mary's neck, and now, in their divine strength emrace the world," so love infolds humanity and conveys benediction with its smile.

It is the genius of love to give. God so loved the orld that he gave his only begotten Son. As the unierse, symbol of the Creator's heart, is constantly imarting new light from the sun, rivers from the earth, oods from the sea, and rain from the clouds, so wherver love is she is ever giving freely of her possessions, nd of herself, and explain it as we may, she is endued ith the power of transmitting her very self to the lone- and weary hearts of men, whom she would help nd comfort. And naturally, all this being true, she is longffering, that is, patient and tolerant. Faith, taken by self, is always in danger of the opposite. In proportion s it has been cultivated at the expense of affection, it as prepared Inquisitions and thumb-screws, and has peretrated fanatical crimes. Lecky and other rationalists, taintain that the intense realization of religious doctrines as led priests and churches into wholesale murder.

A Generous Grace

But knowledge also, when unbaptized in affection, is kely to be vain, cold and critical. It often glitters ke ice. It sneers and mocks at the illiterate, and is sposed to withdraw from human intercourse. But the titude of love is different. She realizes the magnide of truth, the difficulties in the way of mastering its crets, the weakness of the intellect, the might and limng strength of prejudice, and therefore does not exct complete agreement in creeds, and is generous in her dgments of those who are earnestly seeking the light. Love is also distinguished by joyousness and conlousness. Probably she rejoices because she is upght. And here we reach a special variation from curnt notions about love. Generally it is identified with niability and gentleness, and with a sentimental indference to some radical distinctions on which the elfare of society depends. To send flowers to murrers, to indulge in maudlin solicitude for bank-wreckrs and defaulters, and to say sweet things about moveents in society which imperil health and morals, and ver to protest vigorously against wrong-doing and isleading interpretations of the Bible, is taken by not few as the equivalent of love. Like Glaucus, the son Minos, who was smothered in honey, many expect at the ethical life of love shall be engulfed and stifled mere sweetness. But believe me, love has no pleasure in iniquity; that she hates with perfect hatred. Never expect her fair lips to say soft things about it, or to apologize for its inroads. Whatever may justify this laxity, love does not. She must always prize the good and true in thought as well as activity, and is the last thing in the universe to disparage the value of what God has revealed in his enduring Word.

The character of love is crowned with the virtues of vicariousness and trustfulness. She bears and endures all things. She takes on herself the shame and sorrow of mankind, as Jesus took on himself the world's grief and guilt. He bore, that he might expiate and expel them; love endures, that she may remedy and remove. There has only been one atonement offered; but there must be many reconciliations. Love knows that the race cannot be rescued without sacrifice. Hence, feeling in her sympathy the wrong and the woe that afflict the children of Adam, she is perpetually travailing in pain for their deliverance. The love that never knows tears for the fallen and agony for the wretched, that is only good-natured and genial, is not the love God felt for man when he gave his Son to die, and is not the love St. Paul eulogizes here. And yet the depth of her sorrow and the intensity of her passion does not prevent her from "believing all things and hoping all things." And hoping all things, she perseveres upon her way, carrying her burden, performing her task, and praying for the dawning of the better and endless day.

The One Immortal Thing

Such, then, is love; and we may advance now to St. Paul's final thought by which the supremacy of this grace is confirmed—its imperishable influence. "Love never faileth." It is the one immortal thing. Faith and hope also abide—and yet we can readily foresee the time when hope shall be fulfilled, and when faith shall be lost in sight. These three are permanent in the church here and now, but when eternity shall come, it would seem that only love would survive, as it is the very life of God. But there are other things which we esteem and which it will outlast. Whether there be tongues they shall cease. Where are your orators? Where are your men of knowledge? Knowledge changes, but love endures, is the same, and the passionate grief of the New York mother that bathes her murdered boy in tears is not different from the passion of Eve when Cain murdered his brother Abel. Prophecies are accomplished, philosophies are outgrown, languages are reconstructed, but love is the same forever.

Assuming, as we have, that faith and hope continue as long as the church does, but after all, the influence and potency of love is more influential than them both. We often bewail lost power. Conventions are held to study how we can regain our hold in the world. Various remedies are proposed—mainly in the direction of more knowledge, of more faith or hope—occasionally it is set forth that modern Christianity needs the renewed power of working miracles, of tongues, or of healing, or of prophesying—or interpreting prophecy. From these windy meetings the people go home, and soon discover that they are as weak as ever. Ministers, who are scholars and who live in their studies, and keep away from touch with their congregations, gifted and noble men, wonder why they see no larger results, and plunge deeper into their books, and try to become more and more orthodox—and yet in vain. What is the matter? How explain the comparative impotence? Have we not sufficient knowledge? We never had more. Have we not sufficient faith? We have as much as ever we had. Have we not enough of supernaturalism? There never was more credence in gifts of healing and more professed reliance on miraculous manifestations, from the ghosts of spiritualism to the occult mysteries of psychologic therapeutics, than at present. What the world needs is love. The church that loves most will be most powerful. That is the secret of power. If she is abandoned of her gospel is to the multitude meaningless; if is because she herself by her artificialities, by her preposterous aristocracies, by her petty affectations of social discretion, excludes herself from the broad sympathies of a world that is dying for love.

The Way of Attainment

And the influence of this grace is more enduring than all the rest. A bishop has been chosen for London, and what is it that entitles him to the position? Love. When the great pass on we may not forget their gifts and genius, but we cling to and cherish above all else the evidence of their human affection for their fellows. Side by side with Gladstone's pleas for Ireland and Armenia, the world will place his visits to the injured street arab and his kindness to him. Side by side with the brilliant eloquence of Phillips Brooks, the world will remember the story of his caring for the poor woman's child while she rested. And when everything else is forgotten of many of the loftiest intellects, it will be recalled that in them love had its perfect work, and the chiefest honor of many exalted personages will simply be that desired by Leigh Hunt's hero, "Write me down a lover of my fellow-men."

This is the crowning glory of our religion. Do we believe it? But how can we attain to so excellent a way? Men and women, let nature teach us. The banyan tree is conspicuous in the forests of India, and the mangrove, flourishing at the mouth of tropical rivers, is scarcely less so. They are alike in this—their branches bend downward, and when they touch the ground or the slimy marsh they begin to take root. Thus the banyan becomes an enormous mass and multiplies itself into a small forest. The mangrove buries its drooping boughs in the marshes, and becomes a tangled network under the water, and the deadly poison from it all infests the district with malaria. So we, too, may be unduly devoted to the world, and not satisfied with our root in it, may seek many, until we are bound to it by a thousand ties and are too secularized to love. There are two other trees, the palm and the pine, both evergreens, the one of the sun and the other of the snow—but they both grow upward and not downward, they both seek heaven, not earth, and both crave the light and not the shadow. They are both beneficent, beautiful and strong. The emblem of love that faileth not, as possible in the warm and affluent plains, as on the chilly mountain side, as possible to the rich as to the poor, to the poor as to the rich, if with both there is one supreme aspiration to live in the free, wide universe of spiritual things, where love—the love of God and the love of Christ—beget in human souls the love of man.

VENEZUELA IN WAR TIME

Continued from page 67

rinidad are now idle in the harbor of Port of Spain, at Bolivar, 300 miles up the Orinoco. The flagships the two blockading fleets are at anchor in the Gulf Paria, in sight as I write, with their captures from e Venezuelan navy anchored under their guns.

At the time the late revolution began, the United ates of Venezuela consisted of thirteen States, inding the Federal district, in which is located the pital, Caracas. Each State has its President, besides overnor selected by the President of the Republic. e constitution and laws are elaborate, and, if carried t consistently, ought to make Venezuela one of the happiest, and most prosperous, and advanced of the nations of the world. All the machinery of government is elaborate, the national traditions are inspiring, and thousands of the enlightened citizens are most patriotic.

In no country in the world have I found a better or more complete arangement for public instruction. In some respects it is unique. Besides the public schools, there are provided normal schools, and several elaborate universities. Though nominally under federal control, the schools are actually managed, in the main, by ecclesiastical influence. So are the universities. To support the system, these revenues have been set apart:

The proceeds from the school, and postage stamps and postal cards, and letters deposited in the treasury of public instruction; the interest allotted to its service out of the national consolidated debt; the fines imposed upon the infractors of provisions of law in force relating to public instruction; the taxes on inheritances; the duties on cut and manufactured tobacco imported into the country, and the stamps affixed to cigarettes.

The revenue amounts, in peaceful years, to about 3,000,000 bolivars—or some $500,000. Nominally, there are about eleven hundred public schools, with 4,225 pupils registered, of whom 3,100 are in regular attendance—less than three to a school.

Strenuous effort has been made from time to time, to induce immigration. Public lands were offered at $3.12 per acre, on a four-year credit; grazing land, at $65.32 per square mile. The government owns the railroads and telegraph lines.

Most persons speak hopefully of Venezuela, seeming to look forward to a very bright future for her. Nearly all regarded the governmental system as being satisfactory, but deplored the lack of patriotism and public intelligence. One of my newly-made friends replied, "O, the scheme of government, it is magnificent! But it is not government! Government on paper, yes! But practical, beneficent, free government—there is no such thing!" But, in times like these, allowance must be made for the "disappointed ones." One of the younger men of the refugee colony at Trinidad said: "The Venezuelans are a good people—peaceable, law abiding and contented; but they are easily led, and are made tools of by designing politicians, who instigate them to faction and rebellion upon the slightest occasion, when few really know for what they are fighting. The Indians are very superstitious, worshiping, spirits unseen, but terrible—probably a form of demon-worship."

Surely, here is a field for missionary work, as urgent, and as difficult as Africa, or Asia. With the co-operation of the many enlightened men and women of so fair and fine a land, the servants of God's progress and light ought to win a kingdom here that in time would be fit to stand as one of the industrial, civic, and religious monuments of the great western continent.

INDIAN BASKET WEAVERS

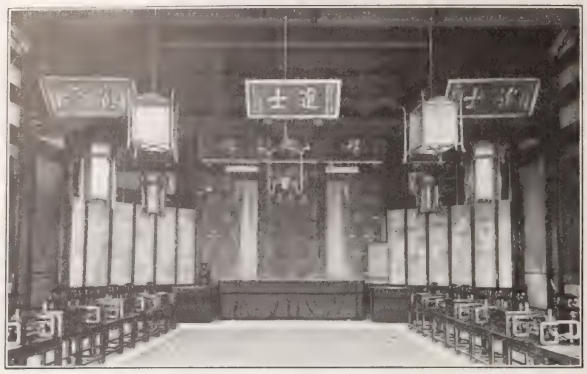
PREPARING CASSAVA MEAL

CHINA'S GREAT HEATHEN FESTIVAL

CHINA'S New Year festival lasts for many days. Upon the 24th of the twelfth month, as they believe, the household gods ascend to heaven, taking with them the records of the past year, for the purpose of making their reports to the "Supreme Ruler," or "Pearly Emperor." They do not return until the fourth day of the new year.

The last day of the old year is anything but pleasant. It is the day when all debts must be paid, for the new year must be begun with a "clean slate." Chinese, looking very cross, throng the business streets trying to arrange their affairs. But by the close of the day all disagreeable business is over, and every one is ready to celebrate.

New Year's is their gift-day, when everyone bestows and receives gifts. On the last day of the old year every shop closes, and remains shut over New Year's day or longer. Many firms do no business until after the fifteenth.



A RECEPTION HALL PREPARED FOR GUESTS AT A CELEBRATION
Showing Tablets given by the Emperor as honors for faithful and distinguished service.

The average Chinese family rises up long before dawn on New Year's. At five o'clock is the first ceremony, which is "the great sacrifice to Heaven and earth," and is known as "The Presentation of Rice." In the principal reception hall of the home is placed a large table, and on it are a bucket of boiled rice, ten bowls of vegetables, ten cups of tea, ten cups of wine, ten pairs of chopsticks, a package of mock money, a calendar of the new year, two large red candles, and several sticks of incense. Near the centre of the table there is always a bowl of small, delicious, loose-skinned oranges. When all is ready, the head man of the family—all the household being present—kneels in front of the table and bows his head three times to the floor, holding lighted incense in both hands. He then makes a prayer, giving thanks to heaven and earth for past protection and favors, and asks for health for his family during the new year and for continued prosperity. At the conclusion of this ceremony, fire-crackers are exploded and the mock money is burned.

At daylight, the family worship the household gods, making offerings of vegetables, rice and wine to each. Then comes the ancestral worship—making reverence to deceased ancestors, represented by ancestral tablets that stand in the hall of every Chinese home. Next comes the ceremony of worshiping the elders of the house. The oldest of the family are seated in chairs, while the junior members kneel befor them and bow thrice, expressing thei congratulations. The ceremonies bein ended, the men and boys of the family g out to pay New Year calls, and the da is spent in feasting, merry-making an rejoicing. To every caller are served te and wine in dainty cups, also water-melo seeds, and cakes and oranges. In th evening, the sky is brilliant with the blaz and flare of gorgeous and wonderful fir works. This display is kept up until th fifteenth.

ANCESTRAL TABLETS IN A CHINESE HOME

On the fourth day, there is a celebratio called, "The Receiving of the Gods." O this day the household gods return fror heaven, and are received so royally as t put them in good humor. Generous offer ings of rice, wine and incense are made after which the household returns to it regular routine.

CHARLOTTE BALDWIN FROST.

"Beautiful Stories"

DEAR DR. KLOPSCH:—I have received Th Speaking Oak, and already have derived muc pleasure from its beautiful stories. They ar so uplifting and inspiring, that they always make me feel tha I want to do something or be something better than in th past. I cannot say that I was surprised with the book, as have learned what to look for from THE CHRISTIAN HERALI

Last year it was the Bible Dictionary, which has been great help to me in my study of the Bible all through th year. The calendar is a beauty. I was also pleased with th "Art Gallery." I feel that I have been very well used b THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, and I am always glad when I ca speak a good word for the paper, which is a great source o comfort and help to me. You have brightened my Christ mas time. ALICE F. BOWMAN.

Falsington, Pa.

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD one year, with The Speakin Oak, $2; with the Bible Dictionary, $3; the "Family Ar Gallery" goes free to every subscriber.

"A Choice Work"

With the premium book The Hall of Fame I am more tha pleased. It is a choice work and can never become les valuable than now. MRS. A. T. WALKER.

West Somerville, Mass.

A Self-Helping Enterprise

HOW A FEW COLORED PEOPLE HAVE PLANNED AND TOILED TO ELEVATE THEIR RACE

OUR readers who have contributed to the support of the Educational and Industrial Institute at Mayesville, S. C., will be glad to learn that the enterprise is extending itself along practical lines. Through the addresses delivered in New England and New York by the Principal of the Institute, Miss Emma J. Wilson, friends have been made who have enabled the managers to enlarge the scope of their work. It is to the credit of the colored people who initiated the enterprise, and have conducted it from the beginning, that they were prompt to realize the chief need of their race. They saw that, sorely as the colored boys and girls needed education, they needed quite as much a training in handicrafts, by which they could earn an honest living. The trouble has been that so large a proportion of the race drifted into the ranks of unskilled labor. This was clearly perceived by Miss Wilson and her colleagues, and when, through the generous help of our readers and the stanch friends of the race in New England, money was at command, it was not spent in elaborate buildings, or in providing for the higher education of the pupils, but in adding to elementary education, appliances for practical training. The object, of course, is to turn out of the Institute, boys who will be efficient workmen, and girls who, by their skill in sewing, cooking and household occupations, can render valuable service in the home.

One of the most recent additions to the facilities of the Institute, is a small farm of sixty-seven acres, which has been bought and nearly paid for. The possession of this land serves a double purpose. It gives the boys an insight into practical farming, and enables the teachers to show them how to make the best of a small holding, and it also provides grain and vegetables for the use of teachers and boarders in the Institute. Mr. Booker Washington, who has taken a kindly interest in the enterprise, has recommended Mr. A. C. Wilshir, a graduate of Tuskegee, who is now superintendent at Mayesville, and is arranging the courses of instruction, some of which he is personally able to give. The boys will soon be able to make a selection of trades, which include, besides agriculture, the arts of the blacksmith, the shoemaker, and the carpenter. The girls are being taught laundry work in addition to the accomplishments already mentioned. Arrangements are also being made to obtain a loom, by which coarse materials and the refuse of the mills can be woven into the rugs and carpets which command a ready sale in the Southern States. Negotiations are also in progress with a teacher, who will teach both boys and girls the art of making baskets with grass and cane. Last session there were 305 children and young people in the schools, and there is every prospect of there being a still larger number this year.

This remarkable success, which has developed from the modest beginning in 1882 in the old gin-house, is all the more gratifying because of its being the result of the efforts of the colored people themselves. How Miss Wilson and the noble band of teachers have toiled, and denied themselves during these twenty years, to build up their school, cannot be told. Nothing can explain it but the intense love they have for the children of their race, and their passionate desire to stem the tide of ignorance and idleness, and to make the next generation a more intelligent and more useful one than its predecessors. They have had th cordial sympathy of the white people o the town and neighborhood, who have en couraged them and advised them, but th effort and the self-renunciation has bee all their own.

THE SEWING CLASS IN THE INSTITUTE AT MAYESVILLE, S. C.

* * *

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD is glad t have had a hand in helping on this benev olent undertaking. Small, as it was, whe this journal described it in its early stages there were in it the best elements of suc cess. Sound elementary education wa being imparted; the children were being trained in religious knowledge and o strict moral principles; and it was being conducted with unwavering faith tha God's blessing would attend an effort s altruistic and devoted. Our readers re sponded generously, as they always do t appeals that are based on these principles and so, sometimes in storm and stress they stood by the growing work. It i now an Institution to be proud of, and w hope such institutions will multiply, for i such efforts are the best prospects of a happy solution of the colored problem The managers, of course, still need pecu niary help. They need books, they nee tools, they need all kinds of appliances, al of which cost money. But they do not now come before the public, as they did a first, untried and unknown, the object o the distrust that had been bred of th failures of others. These people have proved their mettle, they have shown their economical care, they have demon strated their capacity to teach, their honesty and their disinterested spirit. I the question is raised whether they are worthy of confidence and assistance, they can answer it by pointing to what has been already accomplished. No better pledge can any one give, that further contributions to their work will be well and wisely used. Any funds sent to this office, for the benefit of the Institute, will be ac knowledged in these columns and forward ed to the local treasurer.

THREE HUNDRED OF OUR HAPPY LITTLE INDIA FAMINE ORPHANS

FROM A PHOTOGRAPH PROCURED SPECIALLY FOR THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, BY MISSIONARY WARD OF GODHRA

This solid array of Indian maidenhood represents over three hundred little orphans, all thanking God for THE CHRISTIAN HERALD readers who rescued them from death. The central figure in white is Phulbai Ward, of Godhra, the lady who organized the establishment. The language spoken by these little ones is curious, being a mixture of Sanscrit, Persian and Arabic, and is called Gujarathi. The mission has lately been reinforced by the services of Miss A. A. Abbott and another lady, and it is hoped that these children will develop into Christian workers, who shall be as useful in the future as they are happy in the present.

IT ONCE SHELTERED WASHINGTON

MONUMENT THAT MARKS THE SITE OF THE CROSSING

INTEREST has been revived lately in the historic old ferry-house which was the scene of Washington's landing on the Jersey shore just before the Battle of Trenton. In order to settle the estate of its former owner, the house is to be sold, and will probably be destroyed. It is a little frame house of one and a-half stories, and is still in perfect condition. No alterations have been made to it since Revolutionary days. For one hundred and twenty-six years it has marked the spot made famous by the dauntless valor of Washington, who stopped here while on his way to seize Trenton from the British.

In Revolutionary days the owner of the house, William McKonkey, was the keeper of the ferry that crossed the Delaware River at that point. He was a staunch "rebel" and a warm friend of Washington. Knowing that he was familiar with the shoals and currents of the river, the General selected him to guide the troops across from the Pennsylvania to the New Jersey side. It was well for the Continentals that he was with them, for they were obliged to cross amid a storm of snow and sleet, and in a river crowded with blocks of ice. The plans for marching on Trenton were not completed until the day before Christmas, and it was decided then that Washington, with his division, should cross ten miles above Trenton. The shore opposite the ferry-house was to be the place of embarkment, and McKonkey was notified.

Very early on the morning of the 26th of December the troops landed near the little ferry-house, soaked and chilled through their ragged clothing, and with a very cheerless ten miles' march before them. They had cause to remember the little house, however, for a long time afterwards. They were compelled to stay for a short time at the landing-place, and the hospitality offered them by the keeper of the ferry was appreciated keenly by the half starved soldiers.

Mr. McKonkey's daughter was then eleven years old, and though she lived to the good old age of ninety-seven, she always had fresh in her memory that morning of the 26th of December, 1776. A great kettle of boiling tea was brought forth and piles of food were prepared. The soldiers ate as though they were famished, and their hearts were warmed and bodies strengthened by the cordiality of their host.

Mary McKonkey never tired of telling how she fed her brave countrymen, and waited on the great General during his brief stay in the house. Many relics of this occasion are still preserved in the ferry-house, though the place itself has long since passed out of the hands of the McKonkey family.

Near the house, a huge boulder stands on the spot that marks the landing of Washington's men. The boulder bears a plate on which is the following inscription:

"This tablet is erected by the Society of the Cincinnati, in the State of New Jersey, to commemorate the crossing of the Delaware River by General Washington and the Continental Army, on Christmas night of 1776."

On the one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of the Battle of Trenton, the ferry-house had quite an important place in the ceremonies of the occasion. From miles around people flocked to the historic ground; the doors were thrown open, and many persons of distinction were the guests of the hostess, Mrs. Mary Borroughs.

Mrs. Burroughs says: "I have preserved as far as possible the appearance of the interior of the house as it was in the eighteenth century, though many of the furnishings have been lost or taken away. Historical societies have tried to buy everything, but I have kept most of the things in the house. It would not seem to me so much like home without them."

THE OLD FERRY-HOUSE, AS IT IS TO-DAY

OUR EDITORIAL FORUM

B. J. FERNIE, ASSOCIATE EDITOR — LOUIS KLOPSCH, Editor and Proprietor — G. H. SANDISON, ASSOCIATE EDITOR

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD [illegible] $1.50 [illegible]

Remittances [illegible]

Foreign Postage. [illegible] to Canada and Mexico, add one dollar a year.

Change of Date. It takes at least two weeks to change the date after your subscription is renewed.

Expiration of Subscriptions.—The date on the wrapper indicates when your subscription ends.

Change of Address.—Give both your old and your new address when you ask us to change your address.

Subscriptions may commence with any issue.

Letters should be addressed, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, Bible House, New York.

Entered at the Post-office, New York, as Second-class Matter

Women and Gambling

MRS. JULIA WARD HOWE, venerable in years and with honors clustering richly upon her, has spoken a strong and true word and sounded a note of danger. That women in fashionable circles do play cards for money is an admitted fact. Said a little girl, at a family table the other day, in the presence of a guest: "How much did you make last evening, mamma?" The mother tried to check the enfant terrible with a look, but an older girl, unaware that there was anything to conceal, explained, triumphantly: "Mother has won two hundred dollars in the last month." That women gamble, and pocket their winnings, and are not ashamed, is a fact that bodes ill to public morals, since a community does not rise ethically above the high-water mark set by its women—wives, mothers, sweethearts and sisters.

Women do not play cards exclusively for themselves. Often they cheat their own sense of right and pacify conscience by dropping their winnings into the box that holds their charity fund. But they are not a whit better when they do this, than the snare gambler in the professional line, who robs men with the right hand, and possibly helps a poor family or a crippled child with the left. Progressive euchres given for hospitals, for King's Daughters' benevolent schemes, and for orphanages, have the trail of the serpent hidden among their flowers, his hiss under the gay revelry, his leer at the bright scene, so winsome and so charming. Raffles at church fairs are equally wrong; they partake of the spirit which underlies every game of chance, and of the meretricious pretense of giving something for nothing. Earnings and winnings which have not stamped on their face: "For Value Received," have no place in refined, decent and Christian society."

The women of this republic must not ignore nor forget the purposes of its founders, nor the traditions of its lofty past. To let the effete ways of the continent of Europe breed corruption among us and deprave our homes, is to lay the axe at the root of our freedom.

The Congregational Allocution

CHURCHES, however widely they may differ in doctrine and government, have many characteristics in common; and it frequently happens that all are encountering the same or similar difficulties. It may therefore be useful to churches of all denominations to study the letter which Dr. Amory H. Bradford, the Moderator of the National Council of Congregational Churches, has addressed to the ministers and congregations to whom he stands, for the time being, to some extent, in the relation of a bishop. The office he holds does not clothe its occupant with any authority, but it does give his advice the stamp of official weight, entitling it to careful attention. We are sure that Dr. Bradford would rejoice if other churches, not of his fold, profited by any of his suggestions, and therefore we commend them very heartily to the consideration of all denominations.

Dr. Bradford suggests that the methods of the business world be applied by the churches in the consolidation of missionary and benevolent agencies under one responsible head, with as many departments as may be necessary. Steps in this direction have already been made in some denominations with success. A second practical suggestion is, that a committee or a bureau be organized for the purpose of introducing ministers without a charge to churches in need of pastors. The utility and advantage of this suggestion are so obvious that it is surprising that the Bureau was not organized long ago. A third utterance relates to the Federation of the Churches. Dr. Bradford strongly recommends it, and expresses the belief that it might wisely include Jews as well as Christians, inasmuch as they are interested, as Christians are, in moral reform, and in dealing with pauperism and other problems which demand the best thought of all patriotic citizens. The Christian churches, at any rate, Dr. Bradford contends, would gain in influence and power by friendly association on Federation lines.

But it is on higher grounds, for definite spiritual purpose, that Dr. Bradford's final suggestion deserves attention. He says: "Many signs prophesy the approach of an entirely new manifestation of spiritual power in the life of humanity—one such as this country and perhaps the world has not often seen." Among these signs are: that science is bringing nearer to us unseen realities, which are convincing men of the existence of hitherto unknown forces; that there is a clearer consciousness in men's minds of the closeness of human relationship, and a tendency to realize that all are brothers because all have one divine Father; and also, that there is a more earnest seeking observable for reality, and a determination to be satisfied with nothing less. Accepting these signs, and hailing them as happy auguries of a coming blessing, Dr. Bradford urges ministers and people to devote time, especially during the approaching Lenten season, to an effort to realize more clearly the personality, love and immanence of God, and of man's personal relation to him.

The utterance of our Congregational brother is wise and timely; we most devoutly hope that he reads correctly the signs of the times, and that the time of refreshing, for which so many earnest prayers have been offered, is near at hand.

Helping Finland

THERE is something very gracious and noble in the manner in which Christian America is responding to the call for help from stricken Finland. Not from the heaped-up coffers of the rich, but from the scanty savings of the poor, these gifts are pouring in to buy bread for the famishing Finns. These generous ones have found out the great secret of joyous giving—that the gift must come spontaneously, in the spirit of true sympathy, for pity of the object, and for love of Him whose whole life was a ministry of help to the needy and the afflicted. Such gifts are winged with the richest blessings.

As we read the letters that come from those who are reaching out a helping hand to the Finnish peasants, we are struck with the conviction that the grace of giving is by no means to be accounted one of the least of Christian graces. Especially is this true of secret benevolence, which scatters its benefactions while itself remaining unseen. Many of those who sympathize with Finland are giving anonymously, but "the Father which seeth in secret" himself shall reward them openly in due season; for with Him no single act of unselfish kindness ever fails of recognition.

What a lesson to the thoughtless rich, who live for the world and its fleeting pleasures, is to be found in these letters! "We wish we could make our offering many times more," write E. A. and L. C. "Great sums are the privilege of the rich, but other people have the opportunity of giving according to their means," says another letter. A third writes: "May the Lord open the hearts of many, in this land of plenty and prosperity, to the needs of those who are perishing." Another says: "I could not resist the desire, out of my small means, to do something to help some one to a meal of food." "We will send this before we eat our own dinner," write A. B. B. and wife, and a young lady (C. L. H.), in sending her offering, expresses the conviction that "it is not right for me to spend my money for things I really do not need, when others are starving."

May God open all hearts, rich and poor alike to unite in this ministry of benevolence. Holding the same faith with ourselves, these Finnish peasants should find "in our abundance a supply for their wants." Our latest advices from Finland, which we print in another column, declare the distress to be universal and the need most urgent. Let it not be said that the women, and the tender little children, suffered and died of hunger, while a people whom God had richly blessed turned a deaf ear to their cry.

New Judaism

AN interesting movement has started among the Jews of London, which appears likely to have far-reaching results. A new congregation of Jews has been organized, which at present holds services in the ball-room of a large hotel. It is intended to erect a synagogue for the services as soon as arrangements can be made. The novelty of the movement consists in dispensing with the time-honored Jewish ceremonies, such as the procession with the sacred scrolls. Another novel feature is that nearly the whole service is in English instead of in Hebrew, and that many of the hymns sung are taken bodily from Christian hymn-books and are sung to the same tunes as in Christian churches. The ritual is exceedingly beautiful and a Christian could join in the Litany with as great fervor and sincerity as the Jew. Such a passage as the following is a specimen in point:

Leader.—When, immersed in sordid cares, or in the eager pursuit of worldly aims, of material wealth and bodily pleasures, the very thought of thee fades out of our consciousness Congregation.—Lift thou up the light of thy countenance upon us, O Lord.

Leader.—And when there is a stirring within us of a better spirit, and a noble discontent seizes upon us and bids us rise above our old sinful selves, and we strive as best we can to raise our soul out of the dark abyss to our Father who is in heaven, then come thou to meet us, to cheer and hearten us and Congregation.—Lift up the light of thy countenance upon us, O Lord. O God, in the abundance of thy lovingkindness, answer us in the truth of thy salvation. Amen.

The services are crowded, and large numbers of Jews who were seldom seen in the synagogues, attend the new services. They admit, that being unfamiliar with Hebrew, the regular synagogue service was uninteresting and almost meaningless to them. The English service, on the other hand, answers a deep need of their souls. The Chief Rabbi of London and many other Rabbis are indignant at the innovation, and denounce it, but the movement is growing and promises to increase. The Christian world rejoices to see it, believing that it will prevent many Jews lapsing into infidelity.

"Our Young Encyclopedia"

The Speaking Oak and the "Family Art Gallery" made quite an addition to our holiday cheer. Our boys call the book "Our Young Encyclopedia." There are so many bits of interesting information in its pages that not only please for home reading, but aid them in their school work. The pictures are a constant delight to home folks and visitors. We consider the new department of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, devoted to children, the very best move forward that could have been made, to induce old and young to read the Bible. It is interesting, improving and does good. Accept our grateful thanks for so many good things with and in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD.

MRS. I. N. MCCULLOUGH.

Como, Tenn.

BRIEF NOTES

The theatre services in Pittsburg commenced by Pastor S. Edward Young are increasing in interest. The Bijou Theatre is now too small to accommodate all who attend, and meetings for women only have been begun in the Second Presbyterian Church to relieve the crowding at the theatre.

The Rev. Charles L. Thompson, D.D., Secretary of the Board of Home Missions, calls attention to the fact that Washington's Birthday this year comes on a Sunday, and urges that it be made a great day in the churches, and that ministers in their sermons call attention to the traits of Washington's character, which are needed now more than ever in our public men.

The prohibition vote in Ontario is much more satisfactory than at first reported, the majority now being over 80,000. Though the total is still insufficient, it is felt that so emphatic a declaration cannot be ignored. This Premier Ross admits in a general manifesto to the electors, and if his present slender majority is increased or even retained at the by-elections, now pending, further legislation may be expected from his administration.

Rev. Wm. E. Biederwolf has been holding union evangelistic services at Marion, Ind. Six churches united in the movement. From the beginning there was evidence of a work of grace and the blessing has gladdened the hearts of all Christians in the city. Many parents are rejoicing in the conversion of their children and it is reported that the pastors are welcoming to the church older persons who previously had been impervious to Gospel truth.

Dr. L. Munhall's meetings at Bellefontaine, O., are receiving a wonderful blessing. The Republican of that city says that "although the movement is only fairly started, the city is already thoroughly stirred." The Presbyterian, Christian, Lutheran and Baptist churches have united with the Methodists in the work. At one of the meetings over two hundred persons left their seats and came to the platform at the preacher's invitation to all who were desirous of beginning a Christian life.

Mr. R. J. Young, who is laboring in Brazil, reports that in the adjacent States of Goyaz and Matto Grosso there is a readiness and even anxiety to learn the way of salvation. Mr. Young has already sold a number of Bibles there and distributed portions among those too poor to buy. He is now awaiting the means to send teachers there. Since the mission was established in Brazil in September, 1900, more than two hundred persons have been converted, fourteen of whom have themselves become workers.

The second term of the Bible Teachers' Training School, of which Dr. W. W. White is President, was opened in the Chapel of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York City, recently, by an address by Dr. Robert W. Rogers, of Drew Theological Seminary, on the subject, "A Bundle of Letters Thirty Centuries Old." This address included a popular account of the discovery of Babylonian letters in upper Egypt, with historical materials derived from them. The lecturers and instructors of the school, announced for the second term, are, in addition to Dr. White; Dr. R. W. Rogers, Dr. A. F. Schauffler, Rev. George Soltau of England, Miss Jane de Groffe Thompson, Mrs. Caroline L. Palmer and Miss Caroline M. Homes of New York. The exercises of the school will be from 9:30 to 12:45 each morning, from Mondays to Thursdays, and on Fridays from 10:30 to 12:45 A.M., and 3 to 5 P.M.

THE BIBLE and the NEWSPAPER

Consumption Cured

ONE of the most remarkable developments of the healing art, which recent years have witnessed, is in the treatment of consumption. In the sanatoriums on the Alps cures have been effected which have mazed European physicians. The treatment has een the exact opposite of that which previously was egarded as the only one that could prolong the life of he patient. At that time a mild, soft, equable climate was sought, and the utmost are was taken to shield the atient from draughts. The ew treatment requires the paent to breathe cold air, and akes him to regions where a ealthy person shivers, and ven allows him to sleep in he open air. The one indisensable condition is that the ir shall be pure. At present he Swiss Alps have a moopoly of these sanatoriums here the new methods are sed, but if the results conue as effectual as they have one hitherto, it is safe to preict that our own mountains vill soon be the resort of conumptive patients. It is now ully sixty years since a Euroean physician excited the deision of his brethren by dearing that, "the application of old, pure air to the interior urface of the lungs is the nost powerful sedative that an be applied, and does more o promote the healing and losing of cavities and ulcers f the lungs than any other neans that can be employed." His suggestion was laughed o scorn, but in 1859, Dr. Herann Brehmer, himself a conumptive, founded a sanatoium at Goerbersdorf, in Prussian Silesia. Another institution of the same kind was opened in 1876 at Falkenstein, in the Taunus, and placed under the direction of Dr. Dettweiler, a former assistant of Brehmer. The excellent results obtained at these establishments led to the foundation of similar institutions, mostly conducted by pupils of Brehmer and Dettweiler at Davos and Arosa in the Central Alps, Leysin and Montana in Switzerland, Nordrach and St. Blasien in the Black Forest, and many other places. The places which have been found most beneficial to consumptives, however much they may differ in other respects, have certain features in common which must be regarded as essential. In the first place they have pure air, free from dust and smoke and the impurities inseparable from a dense population; secondly, they are fresh and bracing, but well protected against stormy winds; thirdly, they have sufficient fine weather, or sufficient artificial shelter, to render an out-of-door life possible; and lastly, they have a dry, warm, well-drained soil. These conditions are best fulfilled by Alpine health resorts, by elevated tablelands in various parts of the world, German hill sanatoria, and many places with marine or semi-marine climates. The pictures on this page give an idea of the life the patients lead. Open air and exercise, outdoor rest and regular life have proved curative when medicines have failed. So it would appear that while physicians have vainly sought a cure for consumption, and patients have been futilely swallowing nauseous medicines, there was in the air itself a remedy more efficacious than any. So it has been with the malady of sin. Philosophy, asceticism, self-torture, and good works have all been tried, while the remedy God provides has been available all the time.

CONSUMPTIVE SANATORIUM, MONTANA, SWITZERLAND

To him that worketh not, but believeth on him that justifieth the ungodly, his faith is counted for righteousness (Rom. 4: 5).

A Lonely Watcher

An interview appeared recently in the New York Herald with a woman who has a strange occupation. She is the keeper of a lighthouse on Robbin's Reef, a dangerous ledge of rocks, five miles out of New York Harbor. Many years ago she came from Germany, a bright, young, pretty girl. The keeper of the lighthouse fell in love with her and married her. They went to live in the solitary tower and took turns in watching the light. It was pleasant in the summer, but in the winter the work was hard, and often for months at a time no visitor came near them. One bitter day the ice and sleet had collected on the lantern, and the lighthouse-keeper went on to the gallery outside to scrape the glass clear. He caught a severe cold; pneumonia developed and he died. The widow begged for the appointment of keeper and obtained it. During the years she had lived there, a boy had been born, who promised to help his mother in the duties. He kept his word, and between them the work has been done. She says her days are full of occupation. There is the fog-bell to be kept bright and clean, and after the light is lighted at night it is watched continually in turn by her and her son, for if it were to go out, one of the Atlantic liners, all of which must pass the reef, might be wrecked. It would be well if every Christian were as intensely concerned for the salvation of others, as this woman is for the safety of incoming ships; then, like her, he would keep his light burning.

OPEN-AIR BALCONY AT LEYSIN, SWITZERLAND, FOR CONSUMPTIVE PATIENTS

A crooked and perverse nation, among whom ye shine as lights in the world (Phil. 2: 15).

An Indignant Artist

A suit has been brought in Paris by the famous artist, M. Gerome, against M. Brandus, a picture-dealer, for damages. The artist finds in the possession of M. Brandus, a picture painted by himself, which he says has been altered since it left his hands. He contends that the picture has been spoiled, and that persons seeing it in its present condition, and hearing that he painted it, would form a low opinion of his genius. It appears that the picture was sold six years ago to an American collector, and was brought to this country. Four years afterward the purchaser sold the whole of his collection, among which was the painting in question. It was bought by M. Brandus for $1,720, and taken back to Paris. M. Brandus declares that the painting is now in exactly the same condition as when he bought it, and says that if it has been altered since it left M. Gerome's hands, the alteration was made by direction of the American owner. M. Gerome alleges that the picture represented a scene under the light of the setting sun, with the rising moon shedding a soft glaze over it. The moon has been painted out and the light is that of mid-day. M. Gerome does not deny that the change was skilfully made, but insists that it robs the picture of its beauty. The question therefore arises, whether a man who buys a picture has the right to make alterations in his own property. In Paris art circles the dispute is being watched with intense interest, because it is held there that the painter alone has the right to sanction a change in his work. It seems probably that the artist will win his case, and so there will be a new limitation to the rights of property. It would be well if men realized that there are similar limitations to their rights in themselves. In how many men is the image of God defaced and his purpose in creating them thwarted!

For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them (Eph. 2: 10).

An Important Discovery

The President of a medical society in New York is authority for the statement that a discovery recently made by Dr. Charles C. Barrows, another New York physician, "is the most important contribution to medical science of this generation." Dr. Barrows has, for some years, been making a study of blood poisoning, with the object of finding an antidote for the bacteria developed in the blood of patients who suffer from that malady. A few weeks ago he had under his care in Bellevue Hospital, a woman who was at the point of death from that cause. He tried all the remedies known to science, and proved that the diagnosis was correct by analyzing her blood. It contained an enormous number of bacteria, and as the coma, which precedes death in cases of blood poisoning had set in, the doctors had no doubt that she would die in a few hours, Dr. Barrows readily obtained permission to try the remedy he had found. It consisted in the injection into the patient's veins of a solution of formalin, which Dr. Barrows believed would be fatal to the bacteria. The result justified his opinion. The patient's temperature fell six degrees in a few hours, and she is now well on the way to complete recovery. It is perhaps too soon to count on the uniform efficacy of the remedy in all cases; but the experiments thus far made encourage the hope that, at last, a means of cure has been discovered for this dread affliction, which has hitherto been deemed incurable. It is safe to predict that in future no case will be pronounced hopeless till this simple remedy has been tried. We are not so wise when eternal death is impending. Many perish who might be saved by the Physician who never fails to save all who trust in him.

Whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die (John 11: 26).

In a Pastor's Study

DEAR DR. KLOPSCH:—The pictures in the "Family Art Gallery" are fine. My favorite is "Lost in the Storm." The poor storm-driven animals make me think of other lost sheep of the Shepherd, far off on the hills of heaven, who would like to have them safely housed from the tempest of outraged law. I shall place the picture in my study, to be a reminder of my work as an under-shepherd of the Christ.

Berlin, Md. (REV.) WILLIAM HENRY BANCROFT.

The "Family Art Gallery" is free to every subscriber of this paper.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE CHRISTIAN HERALD FINLAND FAMINE FUND

RECEIVED PRIOR TO JANUARY 14, 1903

Abbott, J B 5 00
Ajala, Otto 2 00
Allen, ... 1 00
Allen, ... 5 00
Allen, ... 1 00
Allison, Mrs R 1 00
Alton, Anne 1 00
Ames, Jason F 2 00
Anderson, P E 3 00
Anderson, ... 1 00
Anderson, ... 1 00
Anderson, N P 1 00
Anna, Mary 1 00
Ankeman, Wm 5 00
Anderson, ... 1 00
Archer, Mrs J 1 00
Babb, Edwin 3 00
Bachman, Wm 2 00
Badgley, W S 3 00
Baird, C B 1 00
Baker, M M 1 00
Baker, Mrs S R 1 00
Baker, Mrs Wm B 2 50
Bakken, Anna 2 00
Balch, Miss S P 1 00
Balch, ... 1 00
Baldwin, ... 2 00
Baldwins, The 2 00
Ball, Capt G T 5 00
Barker, John 1 00
Barrett, Mrs G E 1 00
Barrett, Helen 25
Barrett, Mrs M 1 00
Barrows, S C 2 00
Bartlett, Mrs H D 1 00
Bartlett, N C, wife & dau 1 00
Barton, Mrs S 2 00
Bassngthwaite, G 2 02
Batchelor, Mrs W H 1 00
Bates, O B 1 00
Bayer, H T 2 00
Bayer, J P 1 00
Beach, O A 5 00
Beech, N 10 00
Beach, Mrs J 1 00
Beach, Jacob, Jr 1 50
Bear, A R 5 00
Bedell, J Frank 2 00
Beedlman, Mrs H 3 00
Beekman, Mathena 1 00
Beety, J H 5 00
Bell, Duncan 1 00
Bell, Mrs S 2 00
Beltz, Mary 2 00
Benham, A B & wf 2 00
Bennett, Mrs M E 1 00
Benson, M H 1 00
Bergh, A H 1 00
Bert, Jas 1 00
Berthiau, Wm F 1 00
Betz, A K 1 00
Beutman, Wm 15 00
Bewkes, L 5 00
Bidwell, Edwin 1 00
Bieders, Belle Pl'n 5 00
Bilger, George 3 00
Billings, Julia 10 00
Bills, Eliza 1 00
Bingham, Helen 1 00
Bishop, W S 5 00
Bjorklund, Daniel 3 00
Bjorklund, Hans 1 00
Black, Mrs Emma 50
Blackwell, J W 1 00
Blankemeyer, Mrs M R 5 00
Boggs, Mrs Selina 1 00
Bolles, N C 5 00
Bonar, Mrs C 2 00
Boothby, Mrs S M 1 00
Bottome, Mrs E 1 00
Bottome, Mrs John 1 00
Bowden, Mrs A 1 00
Bowker, Mrs 1 00
Boyd, Ms M J 3 00
Brace, E 1 50
Brace, H E 2 00
Bradley, Mrs E W 1 00
Bradish, C F 1 02
Brainard, Edith A 1 00
Brainard, Mrs P 1 00
Brewer, Mrs P A 2 00
Briggs, Mrs Jas 1 00
Brinton, Susanna 10 00
Broberg, P 1 00
Brockway, C E 1 00
Bronson, Mrs H H 100 00
Brookes, A E 1 00
Brown, Mrs Viola 1 00
Brown, Mrs 1 00
Brown, Mrs G R 2 00
Brown, Gilbert 1 00
Brown, Mrs L 1 00
Brown, Leslie G 2 00
Brown, W C 1 00
Brumbidl, Jesse 2 00
Bryan, Mrs T H 5 00
Bryant, Mrs E W 1 00
Bryant, Mrs F L 1 00
Buchanan, Duncan 1 00
Bubst, Robert B 1 00
Bull, B F 1 00
Bunch, A E 1 00
Bunce, Henry 1 00
Burch, E 3 00
Burch, S & E 3 00
Burd Hatfield, ... 1 00
Burdick, Mrs S 1 00
Burgan, Mr & Mrs John 1 00
Burke, Mrs C 1 00
Burke, Herbert 1 00
Burnham, Mrs A C 1 00
Burton, J A 1 00
Burton, Judson 2 00
Bushong, J W 2 00
Butterfield, Mrs SA 3 00
Buttorff, R H 1 00
Byerly, John B 1 00
Byers, S S 17 00
Bert, John 1 00
Bacon, Mrs Mary 1 00
Baker, G W 1 00
Bucks W R 1 00
Bracewell, Jas 3 50
Barchard, Jeremiah 50
Barnhart, Daniel 50
Bateman, Mrs Vinnie 1 00
Cannon, S A 2 00
Cash, Wm H 1 00
Carr, Mrs M J H 1 00
Cameron, Miss J P 1 00
Canon, Mrs E W 2 00
Cantrell, Mrs A D 1 00
Capes, S M & moth 2 00
Carey, Henry 1 00
Carle, Mary A 1 00
Carpenter, S S 5 00
Carson, Jas R 1 00
Carson, ... 1 00
Carson, ... 1 00
Carson, A A 2 00
Carter, T G 1 00
Cartwright, ... 1 00
Cashman, W 1 00
Cashman, ... 1 00
Cassel, Mrs T O 5 00
Cassell, H 3 00
Mrs Mill 5 00
Cassidy, Marion 1 50
Cassidy, M J 2 00
Castle, Mrs E 1 00
Castle, ... 1 00
Cavanaugh, Miss 1 00
Chadwick, Mrs 1 00
Chapman, ... 1 00
Chase, Calvin 1 00
Check, Mrs Noah 2 00
Check, Mrs D M 1 00
Cheeke, Thomas 5 00
Chrkson, J W 1 00
Clements, Mrs J H 2 00
Clendenin, Mrs B 2 00
Cleveland, Mrs E S 1 00
Cleveland, John 1 00
Cobb, Amanda 2 00
Cochrane, David M 1 00
Coffman, Mrs W 5 00
Colbert, ... 1 00
Colbert, Mrs C S & dau 5 00
Coles, Mrs Mack 1 00
Collins, Salome 1 00
Comstuff, Nellie E 1 00
Cook, A M 1 00
Cook, John E 1 00
Cook, J A 1 00
Cook, J J 1 00
Cooper, Mrs E B 1 00
Coulter, W L 2 00
Counsill, Jos G 1 00
Cowell, Mr & Mrs B H 1 00
Cowles, M E & fam 3 00
Covey, Mr & Mrs James S 2 00
Crane, D N 2 00
Crawler, Andrew 1 00
Crenshaw, C E 1 00
Cross, Mrs F J 2 00
Crumb, E E 2 00
Crump, W R M 1 00
Cuthill, Wm 1 00
Cuyler, Mary L 1 50
Christensen, N S 2 00
Cotton, Rev Dana E 10 00
Cobb, Henry 1 00
Conant, Mrs J N 2 00
Carter, Mrs R D 1 00
Clark, Mr & Mrs E G 5 00
Clark, Mrs L 1 00
Clark, Sylvia 25
Daley, Mrs P W 1 00
Daugherty, Laura 2 50
Daugherty, Mrs M 1 00
Dean, Mrs L M 1 00
Dean, Wm 2 00
Deardorff, Mrs G C 1 00
Deeds, Ida 3 00
Deglow, D R 2 50
DeGroff, W L 2 00
DeLaucett, Louis 1 00
Derrick, P M 1 00
Desh, W K 10 00
Despland, Master L 1 00
Despland, Mrs L 5 00
Dillon, J A 2 00
Dolmetsch, W H 2 00
Doubler, A J 1 50
Doubler, Mrs H 1 00
Drake, Alva Mrs 5 00
Drape, J W & Co 10 00
Dreibelbis, W F 1 00
Dunkelbarger, Mrs S 20
Dunn, W R 5 00
Decker, Mrs M H 1 00
Earsley, Miss T 1 00
Eastman, Mrs A P 1 00
Eckert, Jacob 1 00
Eddy, Mrs S E 1 00
Edmonds, E A & L 2 00
Edwards, Mrs H O 5 00
Eggan, John 1 00
Ehrig, Jonny 1 00
Elliott, Mrs & Mrs Stanley 4 00
Elliott, Wm 5 00
Ellis, Eliz 5 25
Ellison, Gertrude 1 55
Emmett, Thos 1 50
Erickson, Chas 5 00
Erickson, Edele 1 00
Erickson, Sivert 1 50
Estapp, A 1 00
Ewer, A W 1 00
Evans, H D 1 00
Everlyn, C W 1 00
Edwards, Eliza 1 00
Eisenstein, Mrs L M 5 00
Fancher, S 25
Farrell, Mrs W F 1 00
Ferguson Mrs J K 1 00
Field, F 1 00
Fiestel, H 1 00
Fitzrock, Mrs M A 4 00
Finley, Howard 5 00
Fisher, Mrs E 1 00
Fisk, Mrs C D 50
Fiske, Anna O E 5 00
Follett, Mrs Jane 1 00
Forbes, Mr & Mrs Will 5 00
Forrest, Mrs Wm 2 00
Forrest Rev Wm 2 00
Foster, G H 1 00
Fowler, Eliza J 2 00
Fox, H H & fam 5 00
Freible, Gabriel 10 00
Friedrich, Mr & Mrs George 2 00
Freibert, Rev S 2 00
Fremel, Mrs Geo 2 00
Frey, John 1 00
Fryer, S & S 2 00
Galbraith, Mrs C M 1 00
Galbraith, Harry 1 00
Gallagher, Mrs 1 00
Gardner, Mr & Mrs B S 2 00
Gardner, E 1 00
Gardner, J S 1 00
Gaskill, Mrs E 1 00
Gault, Mrs 1 00
Gault, Ben 50
Gault, Dr M B 10 00
Gehr, J H 10 00
George, Adam 1 00
George, Miss Adam 1 00
George, Mrs D H 5 00
Gerry, Thomas 5 00
German, C 1 00
Getzendaner, M E 5 00
Gibson, Jas G H 1 00
Gibson, C N 1 00
Gibson, C & I 10 00
Gooch, W M 1 00
Goode, Jas 2 00
Gordon, Ida 1 00
Gosnell, Mrs S 1 00
Gosselin, Mrs T O 5 00
Gould, H H 3 00
Goodwin, Marion 1 50
Graham, M L 2 00
Grant, Mrs J E 2 00
Gray, Mrs Lucy 1 25
Gray, Mrs V E 5 00
Greenwood, Mrs G H 1 00
Gregg, Emma C 1 00
Gridley, ... 1 00
Griffin, J H 1 00
Grimes, M J & Mrs S 5 00
Griswold, Mrs C L 5 00
Gulick, Geo 1 00
Gulick, Mrs L 2 00
Gunkers, B 2 00
Gustarson, Ida 1 00
Gwaltney, Mrs C B 5 00
Groenwoltt, A 50
Graham, W T 5 00
Haas, Mrs Anna 1 00
Haastrip, John 1 00
Haines, H 25
Haines, Mrs H 50
Haines, R B P 5 00
Hall, Mrs E 2 00
Hall, H Alfreda 1 10
Hall, H S 1 00
Hall, Jas S 1 00
Hall, Wm & wf 2 00
Halsey, C H 1 00
Halsey, I L 5 00
Halverson, E 5 00
Hamilton, Mrs C 1 00
Hansen, Geo 1 00
Hansen, Hans 2 00
Hapeman, Adam 5 00
Harding, Chas E 5 00
Hardy, Cecil L 1 00
Harmon, Carrie R 1 00
Harmer, Samuel 1 00
Harr, Mrs A E 2 00
Harrell, Mrs A V 1 00
Harris, Laura 1 00
Harris, Mrs W 1 00
Harris, Mrs W G 2 00
Harrison, Jos R 5 00
Hartwiggsen, A A 25
Hartwiggsen, B H 10
Hartwigsen, C E 10
Hartwigsen, C P 1 00
Hartwigsen, Mrs C 1 00
Hartwiggsen, G H 25
Hartwigsen, J J 50
Hartwiggsen, W E 25
Hartwiggsen, Z F 10
Haven, C I 1 00
Hawn, Mrs H H 2 00
Hayes, Maria S 5 00
Hebbard, Mrs 1 00
Head, Mrs B F 1 00
Heath, Mrs C M 1 00
Heath, J & J 3 00
Heilman, Fred 1 00
Heilig, Geo J 1 00
Heiskell, Mrs F 3 00
Hemhill, Thomas 1 00
Hendrix, J A 1 00
Hendrix, Mrs J E 1 00
Herbert, Mrs J W 1 00
Herr, Hannah 50
Herr, M Lizzie 2 00
Herrschaft, G 1 00
Hickok, Robert E 1 00
Hicklin, Mrs A 1 00
Hill, Miss A M 1 00
Hill, Ida E 1 00
Hill, Nora 1 00
Hiner, Mrs W C 1 00
Hinman, Mrs 1 00
Hird, Mrs S 1 00
Hirley, Mrs R C 1 00
Hitt, Eliz 1 00
Hoag, G 1 00
Hoag, S 25
Hobart, M S 1 00
Hobbs, Miss Eliz 5 00
Hockaday, Chas N 1 00
Hodges, Kate 1 00
Hoff, K O 5 00
Hoff, S P 2 00
Hoff, K W 2 00
Holden, Anna L 25 00
Holman, J M 5 00
Holmes, Mrs F C 1 00
Heffnen, Denis 3 00
Hartman, D L & Wife 7 00
Hunt, Edna S 1 00
Hunter, Mrs S 1 00
Humble, John 1 00
Holland, Mrs A S 1 00
Hollister, Mrs A 1 00
Hollopeter, ... 2 00
Holloway, Mrs F H 1 00
Houser Bros 5 00
Howard, Mary M 1 00
Hoyt, J M 1 00
Hubbard, M A 1 00
Huffman, J A 1 00
Hughes, Margt 1 00
Hull, J P & fam 2 00
Humphrey, Mrs A R 2 00
Humphrey, S E & L 5 00
Hungerford, F R 5 00
Hunter, D G 1 00
Hunter, Mrs J 1 00
Huntington, Mrs M L 2 00
Huntley, Mrs H 1 00
Hurst, Mrs H 1 00
Hyde, Miss K 1 00
Hyer, Mrs A C 2 00
Ingwey, Miss Metta 1 00
Ingerson, L 1 00
Ingram, Sophie 1 00
Ions, Mrs Samuel 1 00
Irish, Bertha 5 00
Johnson, Mrs J A 1 00
Johnson, Louis 50
Johnson, Mrs M A 1 00
Johnson, ... 1 00
Jones, Mary J 1 00
Jones, Nelson 2 00
Jones, Mrs Ross 1 00
Jordan, Mrs C F 1 00
Judgeson, Gerhid 2 00
Jube, John P 10 00
Kessler, E B 2 00
Kessler, Frank 2 00
Kerr, Mrs C N 1 00
Kamnin, O G J 1 50
Keech, W M 6 00
Keene, Jas 1 00
Keiser, Jos T 1 00
Keller, A A 1 00
Kellogg, Chas D 1 00
Kempton, D S 1 00
Kempton, Sarah 1 00
Kenny, ... 1 00
Kerr, Miss Edith 5 00
Kikuchi, S 1 00
Kimball, Caroline 5 00
King, Mrs Ritz 5 00
King, Rev F L & Rev A B 5 00
Kintner, C V 2 00
Kinnoular, ... 1 00
Klein, Miss E 1 00
Kleinhesselink, Joe 1 00
Knapp, F W 1 00
Knight, Mrs M E 1 00
Kolbe, Louis C 1 00
Kolin, Mrs A 1 00
Koons, F M 1 00
Kreidler, Geo G 1 00
Kruemmel, Adolph 1 00
Kruse, Henry F 1 00
Keyes, Lucy A 3 00
Keck, Mrs Mrs L 3 00
Lawrence, A P 1 00
Lampman, Mrs H M 1 00
Lamb, H E 1 00
Landkka, Henry 1 00
Lamma, Fena 1 00
Landerdale, Mrs M 1 00
Lane, Mrs S E 1 00
Larson, Chas 1 00
Larsen, Henry 1 00
Larson, Detlef 10 00
Law, Mrs J 1 00
Lawson, Jas 2 00
Leavitt, Mrs Jas 1 00
Lecrone, T W 1 00
Lehman, Mrs A 1 00
Lemgate, J C 1 00
Lewis, Mrs E P 1 00
Lewis, Mrs G S 1 00
Lewis, John F 1 00
Liebti, Otto 2 00
Lieurance, Nettie 1 00
Lindsey, Mrs A L 1 00
Linebaugh, Wm G 1 00
Lippitt, A 10 00
Lithgow, Mary 5 00
Logan, J C 1 00
Long, Mrs H A 1 00
Loomis, E & L 2 00
Lord, Mrs Frances 1 00
Lord, Jas 1 00
Lord, Mrs Hannah 1 00
Lord, S S 1 00
Lord, Wm W 50
Lund, C 2 00
Lorensen, J 6 02
Loud, W M 1 00
Louk, Ray D 2 00
Loveland, Mrs J 1 00
Lowry, J G 2 50
Ludington, H R 1 01
Ludwig, Alvin T 1 00
Lynde, C & wf 10 00
Lynn, C P 1 02
McEwan, H E, Sr 1 00
McFarlan, C 1 00
McGilchrist, C 5 00
McGlathery, M 5 00
McGregor, Duncan 2 00
McClure, Archie 1 00
McChun 13
McLean, Miss Edna 1 00
McLean, Mrs John 50
McLean, Jno A, Jr 1 00
McLean, John, Sr 1 00
McLean, Miss Lu 50
McLean, A P 1 00
McLean, Mrs Thos 2 00
McMichael, Rev J 5 00
McNair, Mr & Mrs M 2 00
McVay, F H 1 00
MacAlpine, Bernice 1 00
MacLaurin, Mrs J J 3 00
Main, Miss E G 2 00
Mallming, Mat 1 00
Manerly, A & LL 2 00
Manning, C S 1 00
Marble, P L 5 00
Marshall, F P 1 00
Marshall, J L 1 00
Marston, Mrs P 1 50
Martin, Celina 1 00
Martin, Horace 2 00
Mason, Mrs R E 1 00
Mathers, J H 5 00
Matson, Chas 1 00
Matson, Chas 1 00
Matthews, Zach'S 5 00
Maude, Mrs E C 1 00
Maxwell, Geo 1 00
Mayer, Wilson H 1 00
Mayes, Mrs C 1 00
Maynard, L 10 00
Maynadier, Geo Y 1 00
Meade, F H 1 00
Meeker, Mrs D H 1 00
McAllister, Mrs W 3 00
Miller, Wm 1 00
Mills, Mrs Isaac 3 00
Maddock, Mollie S 1 00
Mead Mr & Mrs W D 2 00
Medcalf, J H 6 50
Merrick, Mrs Thos 1 00
Merry, John 1 00
Merriman, Helen 1 00
Merritt, J B & H P 5 00
Michel, Mrs M 1 00
Mickelsen, A L 3 00
Middlekauff, Mrs E 1 00
Mikkelson, C 2 00
Millard, Mrs F M 1 00
Miller, Anna H 2 00
Miller, Frank 2 00
Miller, George 1 00
Miller, J D 2 00
Miller, Ralph 50
Miller, Mrs Ralph 50
Milwesack, Sgnl 1 00
Mitchell, F J 1 00
Mills, Mrs F H 1 00
Mills, Mrs L R 1 00
Minors, Mrs Jane 1 00
Mix, Mrs M 2 00
Monday, Elias 2 00
Monnaw, B C 1 00
Mooney, C E 50
Morris, W R 3 00
Moore, Mrs L W 1 00
Moore, Mrs M L 2 00
Moore, Mrs M A 1 00
Morehouse, Mrs J E 1 00
Moodes, Miss M F 1 00
Moorer, Carrie A 1 00
Mosher, Mrs C F 1 00
Mullineaux, Wm 1 00
Muncart, S B 1 00
Munroe, Mary D 10
Murdock, Martha 1 00
Muth, Annie M 1 00
Myers, Mrs Agnes 1 00
Myers, Sarah 2 00
Newkom, Henry 1 00
Nightingale, Mrs S M 2 00
Nagliw, C 1 00
Neighbour, Mrs J H 1 00
Nelson, Jas P 1 00
Nelson, Richard 1 00
Newman, E 1 00
Nichol, Mr & Mrs R K 1 00
Nissley, Christian 1 00
Noble, W R 1 00
Nicholas, Mrs W 10
Oakley, Mr & Mrs F L 1 00
Ogden, Mrs Dan'l 1 00
Ogden, Miss N T 1 00
Olin, S M 1 00
Oliver, O J 3 00
Olson, Mrs H 1 00
Olson, Miss Thora 1 00
Olsson, A 1 00
Orth, H 1 00
Orton, R N & wf 4 00
Ostrum, N A & fam 1 00
Pace, A 1 00
Palmer, Dr J M 1 00
Palmer, Mrs L C 2 00
Parish, Geo E 5 00
Parker, Miss Agnes 1 00
Parker, Mrs A 1 00
Parker, Miss M G & fam 25 00
Parsons, C S 1 00
Parsons, Sarah D 1 00
Patterson, Mrs J F 1 00
Patterson, Mrs L C 10 00
Payne, A 1 00
Passelin, Mary 1 00
Peacher, Eliza I 2 00
Peck, J B 15 00
Pedro, Jos C 1 00
Pemberton, A G & wf 10 00
Pembrook, S C 1 00
Perkins, Mrs C 1 00
Perkins, Mary G 1 00
Pesler, Nels 1 00
Petersen, Mrs O S 1 00
Pettit, A S 2 00
Pier, Dr W B 1 00
Pierce, Mrs E 1 00
Pierce, M 2 00
Pierce, W C 1 00
Piper, A R 2 00
Pitkin, Mrs J M 5 00
Plummer, Philip 1 00
Pollock, Eliza 2 00
Pollock, Samuel 2 00
Poole, Miss Laura 50
Poor, Mrs D W 5 00
Pothast, F L 25
Pragor, Carrie 1 00
Prager, Chas J 1 00
Pratt, Mae 50
Prevost, Chas A 10 00
Price, Ed, Mrs J 1 00
Pritchett, Mrs A E 1 00
Proctor, Mrs A C 1 00
Quittenger, R H 1 00
Ramsdell, S M 2 00
Rand, Miss J 2 00
Randall, Mrs C B 1 00
Randall, J W 1 00
Randolph, Mrs E R 1 00
Rankin, J H & J 10 00
Raramus, Peter 1 00
Reeder, J C 1 00
Reger, Martin 5 00
Reich, H L 1 00
Reiner, Mr & Mrs John, Sr 1 00
Reynolds, Mrs H M 1 00
Rhees, H A 2 00
Rhuhe, H & fam 3 00
Richard, H R P 1 00
Richardson, S G 1 00
Rice, F H 2 00
Rich, E C 3 00
Richmond, Sue K 1 00
Rides, Clark 1 00
Ridley, Matt 1 00
Ridley, F 1 00
Robbins, Ansel 1 00
Robbins, J A 1 00
Roberts, Miss E 1 00
Robinson, Fred 1 00
Robinson, Mrs H 1 00
Robinson, L M 1 00
Rockwell, H H 2 00
Rockwell, L W 22 00
Roe, Mrs J G 2 00
Roelfs, Tido 50
Rosenquist, F 1 00
Rudolph, Mrs E 1 00
Rue, H 1 00
Rumple, W A 1 00
Rupley, Mrs H 1 00
Rupley, Rev H 1 00
Russ, Amanda 5 00
Russell, Mrs O A 1 00
Russell, Mr & Mrs J W 2 00
Russell, Rich 2 50
Ryan, Mrs Rodgers 2 00
Redman, R L 1 00
Reed, Mrs 1 00
St John, Mrs Julia 1 00
Sallans, Mrs A 1 00
Sahnliler, John 1 00
Samson, F H 1 00
Sarge Family, Walthall 2 00
Sandig, F E 1 00
Satterlee, Virgil 1 00
Saunders, Mrs M 2 00
Schaubluth, K F 1 00
Schoellkopf, Mrs F 1 00
Schweitzer, Geo 1 00
Scruggs, A R 1 00
Seibolt, Mrs M 5 00
Self, Ollie 1 00
Severtson, Emma 5 00
Shadinger, Addie G 1 00
Shanklin, Mrs O 2 00
Shaw, Mrs L A 1 00
Shearman, E 5 00
Shepper, Mrs C 1 00
Sheu, Mrs P F 1 00
Shumate, Jas J 1 00
Sigler, Mrs A M 1 00
Silkett, Family 2 00
Simpson, Wm H 1 00
Skredt, H B 1 00
Sloan, W G 2 00
Small, Jared 2 00
Smalley, John 1 00
Smit, Jan 3 51
Smith, Mr & Mrs A B 2 00
Smith, Mrs C E 1 00
Smith, Miss C & Mrs S J Graham 50
Smith, Mrs C F 1 00
Smith, J C 1 00
Smith, Mrs Jane 1 00
Smith, Oliver 5 00
Smith, W F 25 00
Sorenson, S P 1 00
Sander, Jessie 1 00
Snavely, M & wf 2 00
Snellbaker, Lida 1 00
Snyder, Mrs Rufus 1 00
Solem, C 5 00
Spangler, G E 1 00
Spears, Mrs E G 1 00
Spencer, O 1 00
Spendley, Mrs R W 1 00
Sprague, Mrs 1 00
Sprague, C A 2 00
Standley, W H 1 00
Starr, F D O 25
Starr, D O 25
Stebbins, Geo C 5 00
Steffy, R P 1 00
Stewart, M & dau 2 00
Stewart, Phebe M 1 00
Stinemates, Mrs O 1 00
Stirk, Preston 1 00
Stone, E C & E E 1 00
Stonesifer, Jacob H 1 00
Stoodley, S C 1 00
Stows, Mrs A J 2 00
Stows, Miss Ida 1 00
Straven, Mrs 1 00
Streeter, H 1 00
Strong, Harriet E 2 00
Stroud, Mrs Ruth 1 00
Struble, Carl 2 00
Stryker, John 2 00
Sturtz, Mrs R F 1 00
Sweeddale, Mrs 1 00
Sweetser, F T 5 00
Swenson, J F 1 00
Swift, A 1 00
Swift, L & R 1 00
Sybrandt, Mrs C G 1 00
Sybrandt, Ruth 10 00
Schoefer, Mrs W 2 50
Shepherd, Augusta 65
Shepherd, Jos 2 00
Shepherd, Mrs Jos 1 00
Shepherd, Ralph 1 00
Spencer, O 1 26
Squires, Mrs H G 1 00
Steiner, D C 5 02
Stroup, Jas 25
Stroup, Della 25
Stroup, Naomi 25
Sweetland, H B 1 00
Sykes, Mrs Harriet 2 00
Settlemoyer, G M 5 00
Stickley, D E 5 00
Swaney, C 1 00
Schaber, S 1 00
Taber, Mrs M & E 10 00
Talbot, L A 1 00
Tarbox, Mr & Mrs G S 2 00
Taylor, Mrs Mary 1 00
Terry, Mrs Mrs S 1 00
Thicket, Sam'l J 1 00
Thomas, Mrs D 1 00
Thomas, D L 5 00
Thomas, Mrs J 2 00
Thompson, R J & Mrs 25 00
Thompson, Mrs S E 5 00
Thompson, T E M 2 00
Thurber, P F 1 10
Thurston, J F 2 00
Tiedtke, Harriet 5 00
Tilton, C 1 00
Tobin, Mrs A A 1 00
Toft, Mrs E 1 00
Toledo, John 1 00
Tollefson, M O 1 00
Topliff, Frank B 1 00
Topliff, Rose J 1 00
Topliff, Mrs S 2 00
Tosdal, Mrs 1 00
Tosdal, H H 5 00
Tourtellot, Mrs E 2 00
Trask, H S 50
Trowbridge, J H 5 00
Trowbridge, Miss E 1 00
Trowbridge, Theron 1 00
Truax, Mrs E D 1 00
Turner, Mrs A 1 00
Turner, Mrs R A 1 00
Toledo Boys Home 3 75
Truax, Mrs D B & Mary 2 00
Thomas, Sarah J 1 00
Tolman, R L 2 00
Tilman, Jacob 2 00
Van Allen, C L 5 00
Van Dyke, W J 1 00
Verree, W J 1 00
Vollmg, Benj 1 00
Voorhies, Mrs E L 1 00
Vroman, Mrs J R 2 00
Vincent, Mrs & dau 3 00
Vose, Mrs M D 1 00
Wade, C W 5 00
Wadsworth, Mrs S G 1 00
Wagner, Eliz 1 00
Wagstaff, George 5 00
Walamotta, Henry 1 00
Walker, Mrs C M 3 00
Walkup, Dr & Mrs H C 1 00
Wallace, Wm 1 00
Walker, Miss F 1 00
Walker, ... 1 00
Watkins, Jas 5 00
Wager, Mrs M A 1 00
Walter, Minnie 2 00
Williams, R E 3 00
Walker, Isabel C 2 00
Whitaker, J & S 2 00
Watson, David H 10 00
Walker, Holfor1 ..... 5 00
Wells, J V K 2 00
Wardner, Clara A 1 00
Warrandelbruen 4 10
Warrender, Geo 1 00
Watterson, Mr & Mrs 20 00
Watts, Mrs Wm 1 00
Weidemann, Anton 2 00
Weissner, Mrs J H 1 00
Wentz, Andrew 2 00
West, Mrs E A 1 00
Weston, G & wf 3 00
Whaley, Henry H 3 00
Wheaton, E H 5 00
Whisler, R G 1 00
White, R 1 00
Whitworth, Mrs L S 6 00
Wiggin, Augusta 1 00
Wilber, Katie, L 1 00
Willby, Fred 2 00
Willard, J F 1 00
Williams, C B 1 00
Williams, Mrs C B 1 00
Williams, Mrs J 2 00
Williams, Jas 50
Williamson, Geo 1 00
Willits, J H 1 00
Wilson, D W 1 00
Wilson, Mrs J A 1 00
Wilson, Mrs Jas 1 00
Wilson, Wm F 1 00
Winter, Mrs Geo 1 00
Winter, Paul 1 00
Winter, R, Sr 5 00
Wisner, Mrs W T 1 00
Wittmer, Mrs J H 2 00
Wnotkka, Jacob 1 00
Wolfe, Wm A 10 00
Wood, Mrs Dent 1 00
Woodbridge, Rev S M 5 00
Woodruff, Mrs A H 1 00
Woodruff, F D 3 00
Wright, Mrs Caleb 1 00
Wright, Caleb 1 00
Wright, T T 1 00
Wright, Mrs T Z 1 00
Wyker, E N 10 00
Watson, E L 8 50
Whitehead, Mrs E C 1 00
Wood, Mrs A B 1 00
Yapinen, Nectar 50
Yates, Sarah 1 00
Young, E C 1 00
Young, Wm 2 00
Young, Jno H 5 00
Youngman, Mrs C D 1 00
Zinert, Mrs B 3 00
Zippler, J H 1 00
Zook, Samuel 1 50
Carter, Wagerman 1 00
Alice, Atlanta 1 00
N A W 1 00
E, Muskegon 1 00
P B & Valley Spg 2 00
W A G, Adams 2 00
A G, Adams 1 00
M H V, Elizabethton 1 00
M A B, Vernon Ctr 2 00
J A M, Wheeling 1 00
A F, Albion 2 00
D A S, Fair Haven 1 00
D J, Forrest 1 00
N B S I, New Brighton 1 00
J G E, Macomb 1 00
O W, Mauch Chunk 50
M E P, New Haven 2 00
E P, Newtown 2 00
L M, Montrose 1 00
L L S, Muncy 1 00
Mrs E P, Mineral Point 1 00
C, Ashland 1 00
M E L B, Morton 1 00
H B, Hannibal 1 00
M S, Indianapolis 2 00
J R Y, Volant 1 00
L F S, Phila ..

"America Can Save Finland!"

NEW HOPE KINDLED IN THE HEARTS OF THE STARVING PEASANTS BY OUR PROFFERED AID—CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE FAMINE RELIEF FUND

INTERIOR OF A FINNISH COTTAGE

GOING TO CHURCH IN FINLAND

AN AGED RUNIC MINSTREL

IT is now midwinter in Finland. Icy blasts, that mean death to the unprotected, sweep down from the arctic and freeze the Finnish provinces, from Kivalo to Lake Ladoga. Farms, forests, valleys and rivers are, all alike, sheeted in snow and ice.

In the northern and eastern provinces, the peasant farmers and fishermen are about to face the crisis of the famine, for it was well-known, weeks ago, that by midwinter the slender stock of provisions would be exhausted.

Of the 400,000 who are now face to face with absolute want, how many will live to see the spring? Will they suffer the fate of the hundred thousand who starved to death in Finland's last famine. Every dime and every dollar is a reinforcement to the famished peasants, who, in silence and with empty larders, have been fighting back death in that bleak northern land. A loaf of bread, a bowl of soup, a frugal meal, which may cost you but the merest trifle, will mean life to some poor starving Finnish farmer and his family.

At Helsingfors, the direction of the principal relief work is in the hands of a Central Relief Committee, to which all contributions sent to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD are forwarded. "This Committee," says the Rev. G. Blomgren, a Finnish pastor in New York, "is an association of well-known Christian men and women, who are working earnestly and systematically to save their poor country people. They have sent agents everywhere, to get accurate information in the localities where the famine prevails." In those parishes where the greatest need exists, homes have been established for the starving children, where they are fed and sheltered. Free soup kitchens have been opened in connection with the schools, where the hungry are fed.

There are in all nearly 300,000 Finns in the United States—immigrants who have left their native land within the last few years. As a rule, they are very poor, yet they have been sending the bulk of their scanty savings home to the still poorer ones in Finland for many months past, hoping to avert the famine. But the disaster was overwhelming; and the help rendered was pitifully inadequate.

In a letter from Manager J. H. Jasberg, of the Suomi College, Hancock, Mich., the writer (a Finn), says:

"The Finnish people of the Old World have been exceedingly unfortunate, and more so during the past five or six years than ever before. To cap the misery of our afflicted race, the crops throughout nearly all of Finland were an absolute failure, not even hay bringing any return, where formerly they were nearly always certain of large hay-crops. All of the country was practically flooded, during the past year, with never-ending rains, and the hay-fields were under water, and no means of either cutting or curing it, had it been cut, until the ice formed late in the season, and whatever hay was secured was cut and cured above the ice. They had to sell their cattle, thus leaving them without occupation or means of subsistence.

"We had been receiving very serious and alarming reports, from time to time, from the northern part of Finland (where there are no railroads, and where the highways even are of the crudest kind, and communication is therefore necessarily slow), that some people had already suffered death by starvation as early as November last, and the help extended them by the people of southerly Finland and by the Finns living in the United States, has not been either of sufficient quantity, or the necessary speed, to do more than allay the most aggravated suffering of our stricken countrymen."

Prof. Saltzman, of Helsingfors, a member of the Medical Department of Finland, cables to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD that the principal suffering is in the northern and eastern provinces. American aid is welcomed.

From the Burgomaster of Uleaborg, in the centre of the famine district, comes this cablegram:

CHRISTIAN HERALD, New York:

Distress in northern and eastern provinces. Suffering in an area of about seventy thousand square kilometers. Towards spring, when supplies are exhausted, the want will be greater. Help will be thankfully received.

(Signed) CASTREN, Burgomaster.

Count Andre Bobrinsky writes from St. Petersburg, as follows:

DR. LOUIS KLOPSCH:

Dear Sir:—It is officially admitted that a state of famine exists in Finland, and that the distress is acute and widespread. Private investigations prove that the facts of the case are minimized, rather than exaggerated, in the official statement. In proportion to its population, Finland has a larger number of people dependent upon agriculture than any other country. The ground is poor, and the crops never large. The people are industrious, sober, and scrupulously honest. Inured to suffering, and inclined to hide rather than expose their wounds, any statement of their case must come from others, rather than from themselves. By general consent, the failure of this year's harvest is more complete than that of 1867. This means almost universal want, and the need becomes more widespread every day. Resources are inadequate to cope with a distress so universal.

Contributions to the Finland Famine Fund, sent to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, are acknowledged in these columns, and forwarded to the Finnish Central Relief Committee in Helsingfors. All who have the cause at heart should send in their gifts without delay to

FINLAND FAMINE FUND
THE CHRISTIAN HERALD
92 Bible House New York City

A GROUP OF FINNISH EMIGRANTS

PEASANTS CARRYING HOME WINTER PROVISIONS

WORK AND WORSHIP

THE CHURCH AT CORINTH

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR FEB 8. ACTS 18 1-11

By Dr. and Mrs. Wilbur F. Crafts

GOLDEN TEXT—Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ. I. Cor. 3: 11

LAST week we were with Paul in Athens, where he appeared as a learned man and orator in the world's seat of learning. This week we are with Paul, the laborer, in the commercial centre of the world, the city of Corinth. Paul, the orator, was possible because of his genius, and because he had been taught by the great Gamaliel, "that sun in Israel." And he could be a laborer among laborers, because he had been brought up to a trade.

As a boy and a young man, he had probably heard such quotations from the Mishna as the following: "Where there is no worldly support, there is no study of the law, and where there is no study of the law, worldly support is of little value." "Fair is the study of the law if accompanied by worldly occupation. To engage in them both is to keep away sin; while study which is not combined with work, must in the end be interrupted, and only brings sin with it." There may have been on the walls of Paul's boyhood home such mottoes as the following: "Whoever does not teach his son a trade, is as if he brought him up to be a robber." It is probable that from his early youth Paul was destined to be a teacher; all the more was a trade obligatory, because it was a sentiment among the noblest Jews that a rabbi should not gain support from his profession, that it should not be to him as a "crown or a spade."

And so Paul comes from Mars' Hill in Athens to Corinth, seeking employment which will yield him the necessities of life. He was a tent-maker, and as a stranger in Corinth he undoubtedly sought that part of the city where the guild of tent-makers were located. Shall we not say that Providence brought him to the door of Aquila and Priscilla? God had a plan to be worked out through their comradeship in work, for Aquila and Priscilla were to be prepared by him to be the instructors of the great Apollos.

Paul went every Sabbath to teach the Jews of Jesus in the synagogue. Storms of hate and opposition rose high against him, from which he was forced to seek shelter in the home of Justus, where he continued his teaching. The opposition increased, as one by one such men as Crispus, the leader of the synagogue, and other prominent men and honorable women were won to Christ by the preaching of Paul. Many of the Greeks were also won from their idolatry, which aroused other foes, and two seas of opposition met about Paul. He seemed to be in danger of his life. But in this trying hour, he was comforted of God, for in the night, in the humble home of Aquila and Priscilla, he had a vision, and heard a voice saying: "Be not afraid, but speak and hold not thy peace, for I am with thee, and no man shall set on thee to hurt thee, for I have much people in this city." From that time Paul had no fear in Corinth. The robe of righteousness was to him as a coat of mail. The discord of hate could not penetrate to his consciousness. He knew only Christ and him crucified, and the purpose for which he had come to Corinth, which was not to make tents, but to save souls.

If Paul needed any consolation in his daily toil to meet his necessities, he could think of some of the greatest men of his nation who had been toilers. Perhaps he thought of King Saul, for whom he was probably named, who, before being king, was a herder. Perhaps he thought of David, who went back to tend sheep after his anointing as king. He may have thought of Elisha, who was faithfully ploughing his field when called to be a prophet; or of Amos, the herdsman, who was also a prophet. Undoubtedly he thought how Jesus himself had worked as a carpenter. Ten years afterward Paul wrote in a letter to the Philippians, "I have learned in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content." He learned that in part, during his sojourn in Corinth.

Illustration and Application

He found a certain Jew named Aquila. In such casual meetings out of which great results come, we often have beautiful illustrations of the way in which a divine Providence directs our steps. Paul, driven from Athens by the scornful rejection of his message, meets in Corinth Aquila and Priscilla, driven from Rome by an unjust banishment of Jews, but for which the world would probably never have heard of them, whereas they not only learned the Gospel themselves in exile from Paul, but became teachers of the great Apollos, through whose eloquence they persuaded thousands to enter upon a Christian life career. So Joseph, sold into slavery, was providentially placed where he could save his own betrayers in a famine of after years. Matthews, gambler, who lost his sight, was thus led to a Christian mission to the Presbyterian Mission hospital at Moukden, in Manchuria. He was robbed on the way and even lost a blind beggar when he applied for admittance. The hospital was already crowded, but he was finally admitted. He did not get the healing for his eyes for which he came, but he found the Gospel and welcomed it with all his heart, and ever after was back and preached it in all the villages of his native valleys, winning many converts. He had little education, but "an extraordinary gift in leading souls to Christ," and became widely known as "Blind Chang." When he left the hospital he was not thought to be instructed enough to receive the baptism he earnestly desired, but from those to whom he preached, 170 were baptized in one year. And here is the point of the story for our lesson, the saying that arose, "If Chang had not lost his sight, there would have been no church here." So it might be said that if Aquila and Priscilla had not been banished, the churches founded by Apollos might not have been built. Some of us will not know until we get to heaven how much good has come out of our own seeming misfortunes. "Fortune," "misfortune," "luck," "mishap," and the like, are words for which Christians have no use.

THE CITY OF CORINTH

Because he was of the same trade he abode with them and wrought. There, at Corinth, Paul illustrated the Jew's honorable conception of labor, learned from the Bible, which was in marked contrast with the contempt for labor, which the Greeks had learned from their philosophers. Even in Christian lands, only a few have learned the Bible's first lesson, that inasmuch as labor was a part of Eden's joy before the fall, labor is a "curse" only when sin comes in to make it selfish or oppressive. Whatever the church that was founded by a Carpenter, may be in doubt about as to its duties in the solution of the great labor problems of our time, there can be no doubt it should drive out of the minds of employers and employees alike the last remnant of pagan conception, that work is a degradation, and idleness an honor. Aristophanes ridicules a tanner and lampmaker for presuming to engage in politics. In Shakespeare's Julius Cæsar, a carpenter and cobbler are reproved, because "being mechanics, they should not walk upon a laboring day without the sign of their profession." Among the Persians, merchandising was counted by educated men as degrading, on the assumption—not yet wholly outgrown—that it could not be carried on without lying and cheating. Even literary work, was in Greece and Rome, left to slaves called literati. The same conception appears in China, where finger-nails more than a foot long are displayed by the gentry, as an honorable proof that they never have worked. There are some in America who are equally proud, with as little reason, of their "lily fingers." "I guess they don't have to work, if they have plenty of money," said a boy of nine, in a Christian home, who had caught the spirit of our times. A young man of twice that age said: "If I had plenty of money, I would do nothing but hunt." Thousands of others have said the commandment "Six days shalt thou labor," with as little thought that God commands us to work on Monday just as much as to rest on Sunday. The whole Bible, from Adam to Paul, teaches us the duty and privilege of work. "All people may be divided into three classes—workers, beggars and thieves. God himself was a worker, for Christ said, 'The Father worketh hitherto and I work.' There is no place for those who do not labor." Hon. Carroll D. Wright says: "The Decalogue is as good a labor platform as any. In religion, we find the highest form of solution yet offered. We are to have a new law of wages, grown out of religious thought. The old struggle was for existence, the new struggle is for a wider spiritual margin." He who has been "paid in advance" by inherited wealth and does not need to work for support, is in duty bound to have some regular task for six days per week whenever health permits. A President and a preacher are supported by the public, but we do not think of the "pay" as the chief motive for their work. It is a duty, and should be a privilege to do our part of the world's work, whether there is any pay or not, and whatever be the kind of work that we are able to contribute. We are now told there is a microbe of laziness. In other words, idleness is disease, not health. No one who knows and appreciates the story of the divine Carpenter of Nazareth, can ever despise honest work in himself or in any other man.

I think the King of that country comes out from his tireless host,
Yet walks in this world of the weary, as if he loved it the most;
Lost here in the dusty confusion, with eyes that are heavy and dim,
He meets again the laboring men who are looking and longing for Him.

He cancels the curse of Eden, and brings them a blessing instead:
Blessed are they that labor, for Jesus partakes of their bread.
He puts his hand to their burdens, he enters their homes at night:
Who does his best shall have as his guest the Master of life and light.

This is the gospel of labor—ring it, ye bells of the kirk—
The Lord of Love came down from above, to live with the men who work.
This is the rose that he planted, here in the thorn-cursed soil—
Heaven is blest with perfect rest, but the blessing of earth is toil.

—Henry Van Dyke.

In the story of the lesson let us not forget that work and worship were combined not alone by the mighty Paul, but also by his lowly comrades in toil, Aquila and Priscilla, and so let every child combine devotion with dilligence in daily toil.

"Elsie, dear, will you take care of baby for an hour? I would like to finish these button-holes before dark."

"Why, mother, I am sorry, but I must go to the Reading Club at the church. It's so useful and benevolent, you know." So fair Elsie trips off to read to a dozen poor children, who would have been just as well attended to by Miss Lawrence or Mrs. Warner, or any of the other half-dozen ladies who were there, while her tired mother rocks the baby to sleep and works a score of button-holes by the wearing gas-light.

A younger child made a better showing at the great Exposition in Omaha, where it was the custom for the people to register, or sign their names, in the different State buildings. People who registered were asked to give their occupation, so that the book read like this, "John Smith, farmer," "Thomas Brown, carpenter," and so on. A little golden-haired girl asked that she might register. She was told to write her name and not forget to write her occupation, and this is what she wrote: "Mary Jones, help mamma."

This lesson affords us a good basis for teaching from the example of the great apostle, that religion has to do with stitching as well as singing; with workshops as well as meeting-houses; with self-support as well as testimony. On the other hand, it suggests how work may be made poetry instead of drudgery, by bringing in, as Paul and his associates did, noble thoughts of God and man

Lord, let me not be too content
With life in trifling service spent—
Make me aspire!
When days with petty cares are filled,
Let me with fleeting thoughts be thrilled
Of something higher!

—Helen Gilbert.

What a contrast to Paul stitching and teaching at the same time, is the case of the young lady who spent time which she figured out was equal to four weeks, in embroidering a table mat, having previously given up a class of little girls in a mission because she "simply had no time to prepare the lesson!"

When Silas and Timothy came down.—These men were lesser lights than Paul, but their coming made him greater and mightier in some way at which the text hints. He had been reasoning in the synagogues on the weekly Sabbaths only with discouraging results, despite his mighty logic. But his weary heart found new life in the coming of faithful friends, even of lesser talent, and he took up the theme of the Crucified Saviour with burning zeal for every day. The Jews were only angered as he proclaimed that Jesus was the promised Messiah, but a few Jews and many Corinthians believed on him. As when Christ preached, so in Corinth sinners were readier to accept the truth than Pharisees, and vice proved a weaker barrier to break down than pride. The sins of the mind that commonly are hardly counted sins at all, are really more dangerous to the soul than sins of the flesh.

Be not afraid, but speak.—How human Paul was, with all his greatness! Like Elijah under the juniper tree; like John the Baptist worn with prison life and loneliness; like Jesus in the great temptation, Paul, too, had his hour of discouragement in that cultured Gomorrah of Corinth, where the natives, with all their art, as founders of painting and of the most beautiful element in architecture and of Corinthian brass were themselves foul with beastly vices, while the Jews were yet more opposed to him because of their pride. But Jesus, who had called him at the gate of Damascus, again revealed himself to bring courage and cheer: "Hold not thy peace, for I will be with thee. . . . I have much people in this city." And so Paul, with renewed courage drawn from this new assurance that he was under the eye of Christ, preached on with great results for a year and a half.

"A Valuable Text-Book"

I appreciate The Hall of Fame very much. Shall read it more than once. It contains so much information that I shall use it as I would a text-book, which is much more useful than the book which is read through once and then laid aside.

Granville, N. Y. Gertrude Potter.

This book, with The Christian Herald one year, $2.

A KNIGHT OF AVENUE A

By MARGARET E. SANGSTER

AVENUE A is a neighborhood wherein boys abound, and they have no play-place but the street. As many of the lads go to work as soon as the law will allow, the evening is their especial playtime, and, boys being only men in miniature, fighting and wars are often a part of their fiercely enjoyed recreation. The gangs of fellows from one block or another are organized loosely yet firmly under able leaders, and, on occasion, they meet and make night hideous by their howls and cries, and the furious clash of their violent onset.

When the ladies from a region far away uptown invaded the avenue, hired a house and set up a home in the very midst of the most crowded neighborhood, the residents already on the spot were puzzled. What did these newcomers mean? Why had they forsaken their natural and appropriate environment for quarters that must seem strange and comfortless? The mothers held aloof, the young girls were at first shy, and the children hung round the door, like birds looking for crumbs, who would take wing and scurry off at a hint of further acquaintance. But the ladies had a piano, a harp and a mandolin, and, evening after evening, there was sweet music in their home. The doors flew open at the most timid touch, and the welcome was so cordial that the ice of avenue A was soon melted, as snow melts in a January thaw.

The girls and young women were won before the boys, more cautious, and less disposed to seek indoor ease and instruction in the classes and clubs that the Settlement initiated, came asking for admission. After awhile, however, there were petitions from the boys, and they were drawn into the light, warmth and gladness of evenings with men and women who cared for them, young men from colleges, who understood boy nature, having added their skilled assistance, when Boys' Clubs were formed. The avenue gangs worked harmoniously enough when mustered into civic and patriotic associations, in which they studied, discussed problems, and occasionally had a supper, called in boy parlance "a feed," together.

Rudolph Goldstein was a low-browed, dark-eyed, shrewd-looking youth of sixteen, a youth of excellent natural abilities and absolutely no advantages. He had lived in a rear tenement, in a cellar-basement, flooded in the spring rains, cold in the zero winters, and stifling in the summer heats, all his life, and he was one of thirteen children. The poverty of his home was something the workers at the Settlement could not gauge; but they could and did estimate rightly, before very long, the strong character of Rudolph. He was full of gentle intuitions, and there was a vein of poetry in his soul. Not an unworthy member was Rudolph of that mighty race which produces poets, musicians, bankers, and statesmen, and which once had among its people a shepherd-boy who killed a lion and a bear when they attacked his flock, and whose psalms are sung to-day in every Christian assemblage.

Rudolph admired all the women who took a hand in helping along the clubs, and in making good men of the boys who joined them. But most of all he revered two—the Little Old Lady, and the Lame Princess. These two did not live in the Settlement itself, but they often visited it. The Little Old Lady had white hair, and soft, shining black eyes. She wore furs that wrapped her from head to feet, and she always arrived in a carriage with a coachman and a footman on the box. The Lame Princess was a golden-haired child with a crutch, and she was always with the Little Old Lady, whom she called grandmother. Rudolph had never seen any one so beautiful as this child, yet he held in even closer fondness the dear elderly woman, who was so genial, so courteous, and so wise. For generations, old women had been deferred to, and obeyed in Oriental countries, and Rudolph, a Jewish boy living in Avenue A, New York, was, in every fibre of his nature, a son of the Orient.

There was peace for a long time between the rival factions that had once made the avenue a scene of wild conflict night after night. But finally, a reaction set in. Some of the more restless spirits wearied of the evening study. A snow-storm brought a chance for sport such as city boys prize. There was ice enough in some places for long and delightfully perilous sliding. With scouts stationed at the corners to give timely warning of "Cheese it, cop, cop," if a stout policeman loomed alarmingly on the horizon, the fellows had grand times sliding, and indulged in snowball fights which were most exciting. This was all right until the old enmity awoke between the Fifteenth and Fourteenth street gangs, and the snow-fights became deadly battles, in which each group grew angry and tried to do real harm to the other.

"DOWN WENT HIS RAIN-COAT ON THE SLIPPERY PAVEMENT"

Rudolph, as leader of the Fifteenth street force, felt the joy of battle, and, for a while, forgot the pleasure of the warm room, the wide tables, and the bright lights of the club. "Aw, now!" he said, "a fellow must have some fun!" when his mother remonstrated. She, poor woman, knew what the good ladies were doing for her boys and girls, and prized the evening learning, as a stepping-stone that might enable them to climb out of the basement one of these days, to a first or second floor tenement. The father was growing old and stooped over his tailoring. Rudolph was in a big store downtown. He, at least, would not have to sit cross-legged with a needle in his hand all his days.

The firm that employed Rudolph had promoted him twice since he had been under the influence of the Settlement, each time increasing his pay. And one of his employers had recently presented the boy with a garment of which his mother was very proud. A long, perfectly whole, and very nice rain-coat, which Rudolph wore over a red sweater, which the Little Old Lady had given him for Christmas. The Lame Princess had given him red mittens, but these reposed, as a rule, in Rudolph's pocket. His hands could bear a good deal of cold without flinching.

Well, the battles of the gangs were at their height, when a thaw dropped upon the city as stealthily and suddenly as a thief in the night. The streets were rivers of slush, the gutters were abysmal, the sidewalks were a horror. As for the boys, they declared a truce, and went back in a body to the Settlement, where the forgiving ladies received them with kindness, crullers, and hot coffee.

On the second night of the thaw, when the slush had partially yielded, who should take it into her head to visit the clubs but the little old lady? And the Lame Princess too, of course. The woodenly carved coachman and footman had their own opinion of such folly, but did not express it. And in the carriage, under the warm robes, with their feet on a heater, and every luxury around them, the two visitors—both child and grandmother—were as cozy as in their own home.

When they arrived at the Settlement, there was a delightful excitement and distressing. The carriage could not get quite close to the pavement, owing to debris and heaped up snow, and the pavement was extremely trying over. The footman lifted the Lame Princess in his arms and carried her in safely, but no footman could presume thus to convey the Little Old Lady, who, it is said, at the late Queen Victoria's was almost as stout and "hefty," as the mace on the sidewalk confided, sotto voce, to the man on the box.

At this moment Rudolph appeared on the scene, with his crowd of followers. At one glance he seized the situation. "Come on, fellows," he shouted, "and bring your shiny socks!" These were conveniently kept in the lower hall of the Settlement. With a yell of joy, which made the Little Old Lady laugh till the tears ran down her cheeks, the lads with the shiny socks cleared a place for the carriage to approach close to the sidewalk; then on came Rudolph's splendid rain-coat, and down it went on the slippery pavement, that the Little Old Lady might walk over it in safety to the steps. Never had Rudolph heard of Queen Elizabeth or Sir Walter Raleigh, but Sir Walter's hero heart was his, and he performed a knightly act for the lady he adored.

A few years hence, and Rudolph and his comrades will be boys no longer. They will be men and citizens, taking their share in the government of our great republic. They are wide-awake, energetic, and capable fellows, inured to hardship and open to whatever influence is strongest in their lives. Shall it be the saloon? Shall it be the Settlement? The Little Old Lady and the Lame Princess, and the young people from the colleges and universities, and some of the good men and women who sit in the pews every Sunday, are doing what they can for Rudolph and his friends. Nobody, even if he dwell remote from the big town, can afford to be indifferent to what is accomplished in the tenement districts, for New York is the heart, and the outlying suburbs are the extremities. And as the heart-throbs beat, so the extremities are healthful or feeble. One gallant deed of courtesy to womanhood, one knightly devoir gladly paid, is a pledge of the future which is worth something to us all. God bless the fellows who are growing up in Avenue A, and enrol them in His own great army!

Finlanders Helping Finland

Among other efforts put forth by the Finlanders in Greater New York for the relief of their starving compatriots across the ocean, is the "Finlander Fair," to be held at 120 East 125th street, Saturday, February 28, afternoon and evening. Choice fell upon Saturday, because the Finns, who are chiefly laborers, can more easily give their service and attention to the Fair that day. Articles made by Finns will be offered for sale, embroideries by women figuring in the lists. The hall will be thronged with Finnish men, women and children. An exceedingly interesting feature of the evening programme will be singing by the Finnish Musical Societies; three will take part, one composed entirely of men. They are said to sing beautifully; the melodious Finnish language lends itself easily to song; national airs will be rendered. Two Finnish speakers will deliver addresses in their native tongue, and at the request of the Finlander Relief Committee, made through THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, Mrs. Margaret E. Sangster will deliver an address; and there may be other speakers. Mr. M. Lintunen is Chairman of the Relief Committee, and Miss M. H. Matinke is Secretary. The Committee not only invites American friends to attend the Fair, but earnestly beseeches their presence. They also will be grateful for any articles Americans may donate for sale. Any one desiring to cooperate with the Committee can address Miss M. H. Matinke, 326 East 32d St., New York.

A meeting will be held at Manhattan Church, W. 76th st., Feb. 27, at 8 P.M., in the interest of the Finlanders. Full account of conditions in Finland will be given in the English, Swedish, and Finnish languages, by Rev. Dr. Henry A. Stimson, Rev. G. Blomgren and others.

Drawing Room Talks

By MARGARET BOTTOME

A BUNCH OF FORGET-ME-NOTS

MARGARET BOTTOME

Dear friends, I have brought with me this morning a large bunch of forget-me-nots—spiritual forget-me-nots. I want to tell you how wonderful they have been to me these many years; and how I first came to perceive them as spiritual, fadeless, forget-me-nots. As I looked back into my room this morning when leaving it, it seemed like a conservatory, so full of flowers was it; yesterday being an anniversary (my birthday) many friends had remembered me. I felt like saying to these lovely, fragrant reminders of affection: "O, stay! Do not wither, do not go away!"

The forget-me-nots I bring you this morning, are fadeless. I found them in the 103d Psalm. I want you to find them there for yourself. It was years ago that I had a beautiful dream about forget-me-nots, whose influence abides with me till to-day. In my dream I was surrounded by a wonderful light, unlike any I had ever seen. It was a pure white light, that was neither light of the sun nor light of the moon. "What a beautiful light!" I murmured. As my eyes fell from the light, I saw that I was standing on forget-me-nots. As far as the eye could reach there was nothing before my feet, nothing for me to tread on, but these little blue flowers. I stooped and gathered a handful, when a voice—the sweetest that has ever fallen on my ear—asked: "What have you?" I answered: "Forget-me-nots." The voice said: "Forget not me." And I knew I had heard the voice of God. That dream marks for me the 103d Psalm. That Psalm brings the Lord's presents before you.

It has been a time for looking at presents—the holidays just past. There are those who count their presents and write them down. Some people were rich in gifts and others were overlooked, but it does not follow that those who received most were happiest. From my granddaughter, I had a letter, saying, "When I had arranged all my presents, my time had come to be still, and to look for the child—the Christ-child. And as my spiritual eyes beheld him, the King of kings in the manger, I said, 'So much in so little.'" I could almost wish I were talking to-day to poor women—poor mothers, instead of rich ones—about that King of kings.* His poverty appeals to them so. Yet rich women—rich mothers—needs much to hear of him too. There is great danger that those who have much may forget the Christ-child, and without him, have so little in so much.

"Bless the Lord, O my soul," says the Psalmist in the 103d Psalm, "and forget not all his benefits." Look at God's presents to you. These forget-me-nots are his presents. You never pay anything for a present; you have only to take it; you may think you are not worthy, but you do not send it back. You keep it, and think of the Friend who gave it. He "forgiveth all thine iniquities." This is the first forget-me-not: Forgiveness for every sin of your life—he promises this. The only question is whether you will take it or not. Your joy in the gift depends upon your taking it. Everything will go wrong with you, wrong in your family, unless you take into it him who forgiveth sins. He forgiveth—has nothing against you. So must you forgive others.

If you have this forget-me-not, you will be moved to tell about it; perhaps to put your arms around the neck of the one nearest and dearest to you, and say: "My darling, I have the Lord's gift of forgiveness of sins and the blessing is free to all." Perhaps during Christmas week, there was a gift in your house that you went by yourself to untie—you would let no one else cut the strings. You looked at it, and your eyes filled, and you said: "his gift!" Then, doubtless, you spoke of it, and every one knew how precious it was to you. Taking the Lord's gifts is like this.

The second forget-me-not: He "healeth all thy diseases." "Healeth," is not in the past tense, not in the future, it is in the present. We think of healing as for the soul only, and not for the body. But it is for the body. The body of every child of God is in process of the eternal healing that makes it a glorified body. One who has been my spiritual adviser for forty years, lately passed into Paradise. As I looked down into his face, I was sure that he was nearer the perfect healing than ever before. As I stood last week at an open grave, I asked of the clergyman who had conducted the service: "Do you believe in the resurrection of the body?" All who read the service, do not believe in that. The beautiful old man, looking at the grave, said: "If I did not, I could not read: 'O grave, where is thy victory?'—for the grave has gotten the victory if there is no resurrection of the body." I have never once said of a Christian: "He is dead." When the light of my eyes went out, I said not: "He is dead"; but "It is well with him." When your dear one and mine was laid away, One stood by who had the keys of the grave. Sometime you and I will see our beloved in the transcendent loveliness of their perfect healing. I have known less about pain of the body than most people. When it comes, I shall say: "I am nearer, my perfect healing."

The third forget-me-not: God "redeemeth thy life from destruction." The perils of to-day are not as those of David's time, but they are as real. Why, there is danger in going about the streets of New York; and I do not see that people who have carriages, and horses, and automobiles, are more at ease than those who have not—they are distracted by fears that the coachman is drunk, or that the machine will burst up. The people who walk fear they will be run over. The people in crowded cars suffer! As I go about I take comfort in these words: "He 'redeemeth thy life from destruction.'" At every turn I catch myself saying, "Thank you, thank you," to that unseen protector. Forget not God "crowneth thee with loving kindness and tender mercies." We should see his loving kindness in every blessing, in every flower, in our friends' faces. Forget not that it is God "who satisfieth thy mouth with good things." The nourishing food, the luscious fruit—God gives it all. The senses by which we perceive their pleasantness are his gifts.

Forget not "that the Lord is merciful and gracious, slow to anger." Forget not that he "executeth righteousness and judgment for all that are oppressed." If you are wronged, you have an executor who has your case in his hands. It may not look so now, but God will stand and testify for his people some day. Wait on the Lord and be patient. Hold close this forget-me-not. Wrongs and oppression will be righted—are being righted now. He has it all in the works. If you remember that, you will be careful not to oppress anybody.

Forget not. "He knoweth our frame, he remembereth that we are dust." We forget, but he remembers. I feel so sorry for the fragile, half-invalid women who try so hard not to show pain and weakness and suffering. They want to be strong and cheerful—they feel that so much depends upon them. Perhaps they fail at some moment and are irritable; and others judge them hardly, and they are hard on themselves; nobody knows how much they are staggering under. But the Lord remembers. "He knoweth our frame."

Forget not that "as far as the East is from the West, so far hath he removed our transgressions from us." I wish as a companion piece to the Recessional, "Lest We Forget," Kipling would write "Lest We Remember." As far as God removes transgressions, let us remove even their memory. Forget that somebody has hurt your feelings; forget the sins of others; forget your own sins. Only forget not that it is God removes our transgressions from us as far as the East is from the West.

Wear in 1903 your bunch of spiritual forget-me-nots. Fasten them to your breast with the pin of faith. Others may not see, but God will behold his forget-me-nots over your heart.

*"This "Talk" was in the drawing-room of a wealthy lady, and to an audience of rich women.

GOOD CAUSES HELPED

THE following contributions, sent in by our readers, for the various good causes mentioned below, are hereby acknowledged:

Bethesda Home

C Langdon $1 00
A Friend in Christ, Winter Haven, Fla. 5 00
Susan Rowe 26
C E Myers 1 00

Good Causes

A Friend Cornish, Me 1 00
A Reader Marlboro 1 00
Lillie McKeown 30
Mrs Wm McElroy 35
C F Sherman 1 00
A Friend Mechanicsville, N Y 50
Mary A Frisbie 50
B E Dooley 50
W L Hooley 1 00
Mrs James Gales 1 00
D I Stoddard 15
Mrs S L Agee 15
Lucy A Mitchell 50
Mary Hazeltine 50
Miss B R Smith 10
H W Meier 95
Mrs V L McLennan 3 50
Mrs D C Bowers 1 00
F J Affleck 1 00
L G Wilson 25
Mrs A L Lowry 1 00
H Kindermann 65
Mrs S C York 15
F H C State Soldiers' Home, Ind 50
Miss Ida Funk 25
—, Salem, N J 50
Thos Lynon 3 00
Maria A Jones 5 00
E A Elliott 1 00
Isabell Kerr 1 00
Mrs Levi Jones 1 00
Reader of C H, Ill 25 00
Peter Maker 2 50
Charles A Jewell 50
D C Wood 50
Mrs E D Richardson 25
Mrs Margaret Henry 15
Mrs Lizzie Colyer 1 00
M E B Rice 1 00
Dept of Labor 23 50
Mrs Marx Kramer 1 50
Mrs A A Glasscock 25
A W Fuller 5 00
Mrs Silas Payne 1 50
Emile Bonelle 50
Daniel Herr 50
Mrs John Herring 2 50
M J Rowe 1 00
E B Barber 1 00
Emily Atwater 15
J W Payne 15
Sarah H Reynolds 15
Mrs W F Kramer 40
S E Ratigon 2 00
George W Stockwell. 5 00
Mrs M E V, N Y City. 1 00
M M, Whiting, Ia 1 00
Edna 5 00
Mrs Frances Brown 2 00
A Friend in Christ, Fla 5 00
E W D, Pattersonville, N Y 2 00
Mary E Stewart 1 00
A Friend Ga 1 00
Mrs A E Wright 50
Mrs Eliz Carter 30
Lora J Freer 10
One of His Helpers, Louisville, Ia 2 49
Lillie Bode 1 00
Christian, Belleville, O 2 00
I Pelle 3 50
John Barrett 10
W B Bruce 50
Mrs W H McCormick. 5 00
Theo C Brown 1 00

Days of Help

C Langdon 1 00
Alice Peterson 1 00
Mrs A L Little Cuba, N Y 1 00

Medical Miss. Stoddard

S O Smith 5 00
Dr Talbot Jones 1 00
D C Converse 1 00
E P Gates 20 00
C W Johnson 2 00
Charles Philips 1 00
H W Brinkerhoff 4 00
S P Kane 1 00
Francis Garratt 5 00
Leonard Hills 12 00
Mrs Thos Dunning 1 00
Nettie Ore 1 00
Thos J Armstrong 10 00
J D Mack 1 00
W H Woods 5 00
—, York, Pa 5 00
J O Glenn 10 00
H B Kellogg 2 50
S E Finley 1 00
Miss Sarah Mills 1 00
Sisters Topsfield, Mass 20 00
Mrs J Dixon 1 00
Saml Clelland and wife 5 00
H W Brinckerhoff 1 00
Miss E F Barry 1 00
Miss J E Baird 5 00
Mrs Jane Cosgrove 1 00
L M Felter 2 00
Mrs W F Davis 1 00
L S Dempsey 5 00
Harold W Sayre 1 00
Geo. E Gamble 20 00
Jos Taylor 1 00
P R Thomas 12 00
Mrs W P K Collinston, Utah 2 00
Landa J Little 1 00
John W Silsby 5 00
Mrs H Du Puy 10 00
J H Gehr 10 00
D F Easton 1 00
Mary Montgomery 1 00
In memory of sister, Mahoney City, Pa 19 02
Ruth Lucon, Calif 1 00
Edgar Mansfield 1 00
Mrs R Williams 1 00
Velvet Jone 1 00
Mrs J E Kingsley 5 00
Mrs Sarah Mills 11 00
J E Hartwell 10 00
Harriet H Sayre 1 00
S P Kane 1 00
Linda Little 1 00
John B Mack 1 00
Wm D. Price & Bro 10 00
Mary E I Barry 1 00

Yenna Band, Congregational Church, Brooklyn, N Y.

Charles Philips 1 00
Yenna Band, Congregational Church, Brooklyn, N Y. 20 00
H N Niles 1 00
Mrs A W Parker 6 00

Mrs. Rose H. Lathrop

Margaret Cooper 3 00
Mama & Little Charite, N Y 1 00

Clinton St. Settlement

Leeman Foster 3 00
Mrs L F Stitzell 1 00
Margaret Cooper 3 00
—, Still Pond, Md. 5 00
James H Moore 1 00
H H Morrison 2 50
Mary J Waite 2 50

Home Missions

C E Myers 1 00

Mayesville Institute

A Friend, New York City 200 00
Miss Ellen Collins 50 00
John W Guiteau 5 00
Oswald Villard, Esq. 10 00

Jerry McAuley Mission

Mrs H P Smith 1 00
C O D, Mechanics'bg, Pa 2 50
John Williams 1 00
Mary Montgomery 1 00
John D Mark 2 00
A B Clark 5 00

Mama & Little Charite, N Y

G L Farnsworth 1 00

E. Olsson's Work

H Farnsworth 1 00
Mrs F Pearson 1 00
H Farnsworth 2 00
Oscar B Raymond 1 00
Jennie Kirk 1 00

Foreign Missions, China

Miss Madge Spangler 1 60

School for Syrian Girls

I H N, Beverley, Mass 2 00

Cremorne Mission

A G White 50

Miss Shattuck's Orphan Work

Cong'l Church, Mansfield, Mass 35 00
P B Haber 30 00
Mrs Robt Campbell .30 00
Alice E Cutter 30 00
C O D, Mechanics'bg, Pa 5 00

Girl's Missionary

Guild, Ottawa, Ill. .30 00

Foreign Missions (Mr. Weiss)

Everett Monroe 100 00

Foreign Missions, India

J S Colvin 2 00
S S Class, Glassport, Pa 1 00
Rufus Anderson 1 50
L M Stanton 5 00
Mrs F R Vetter 3 00
Ruth Wycoff 1 00
Clarence Charles 1 50

Foreign Missions

Mrs C Plonk 10 00
—, Delaware, Ind. .10 00
Ida M Flack 1 25
Jennie Kirk 1 00
Jacob Marty 5 00
C F Myers 2 00
Mr and Mrs J F Broadwater 5 00
Mrs John Pierce 2 00

Foreign Missions, for J. G. Paton, New Hebrides

Matilda Parmley 10 00

To Build a Church at Manila, P.I.

M P Benedict 2 00

Lincoln Memorial, Cumberland Gap, Tenn

Ella Howard 3 00
Annetta. L I. N Y 1 00
Miss L A Parker. 1 00
Mrs F H Wilcox 1 00
Miss M E Hosford 1 00
From a friend, Mass. 25 02
J B D, Flundreau, S D 5 00

King's Daughters Settlement

Leeman Foster 3 00
W S Wilkinson 2 00

The White Door

B Bradford 5 00
Anna Bollini 10 00
Mrs F W Harding 50

Steele Orphanage, Chattanooga, Tenn

J W Cowgill 1 60
—, Portsmouth, N H 5 00

Okayama Orphanage

H Kindermann 5 00
A Reader, Tarrytown, N Y 1 00

A. S. S. U. C. H. S. S. Missionary

Mrs H M Seiler 50

Pundita Ramabai, India

I H N, Beverley, Mass 4 00
Alice Peirson 1 00
Mrs Frank Rowland. 25
Miss A Lyons 1 00
Mrs T A Peel 5 00

Home for Little Wanderers (Rev V A Cooper, Boston, Mass)

Mrs E Nibecker 10 00

Gospel Work in Porto Rico

—, Colfax, Wis. 10 00

Gospel Work in Philippines

—, Colfax, Wis. 10 00
Eileen Jenny 75

Elmer E. Hubbard

Mrs Dr Thomas 30 00
—, Colfax, Wis. 10 00
Louisa Kintner 5 00
J C Pillans 1 25
Eileen Jenny 75
Oscar Raymond 1 00
A Friend, Stockton, Ill 10 00
Collection of No Danvers Menonite Ch, Ill 49 22
Jos Goldthorp 8 00

Mrs. Bella Cook

Mrs J Davis 50
Margt Stauffer 1 00
Mrs G J Sineeton 1 00
Theo T Crane 1 00
Mrs A Petersen 1 00
A S Goodin 3 00
S C E, N Y City 1 00
I H N, Newark, N J. 5 00
Mrs E J Trask 2 00
Mrs Wm Kass 1 00

Society Soul Winners

I H N, Beverley, Mass 2 00
Emma Purdy 5 00
E F A Subr, St Louis, Mo 1 00
J A Cederquist 2 00

Hull House, Chicago, Ill

—, Portsmouth, N H 5 00

China Flood Sufferers

Mrs E Pepper 25
Mrs E Pepper 25

Rev. Nicholas Zamora

Wm Clark 5 00
B W, Waupaca, Wis. 5 00
Saml F Melville 2 00
Mrs M C Joslyn 2 00
Mrs F A Bentley 1 00
Anne Alton 1 00
M E Frampton 2 00
F H Peters 5 00
J R Conway 5 00
David Gladstone 10 00
W F Root 1 00
C O D, Mechanics'bg, Pa 5 00
A Believer, Moosup, Conn 5 00
—, Waverly, Kas. .. 5 00
I H N, Newark, N J. 2 00
Mrs Clugh 2 50
Mrs A K Sayre 3 00
Mrs R W Williams 2 00
I H N, Holland, Mich. 1 00
A E Parr 1 00
O A Chilson 3 00
O F Murphy 1 00
T G Ford 25 00
Sarah L Clarkson 2 00
Mrs W Coulter 1 00
F K Jacobs 3 00
I H N. Lanark, Ill. .. 3 00
In Jesus' Name, Jordan, Ky 2 50
B Warren 2 00
Jacob Kraai 1 50
Mrs L M Culver 4 00
Mrs Hoag 1 00
Mrs G L Farnsworth. 5 00
A M Manning 20 00
Mrs L Huse 5 00
A Friend 1 00
C E Holt 2 00
B P, Waupaca, Wis. 2 00
—, Baltimore, Md. 2 00

Womans Board Foreign Missions

Amanda Russ 4 00

Mrs. Esterbrook

C O D, Mechanics'bg, Pa 5 00
Thos N Briggs 2 00

American Bible Society

B E Owen 1 00

Armenian Fund

Prim Class Beth Un S Sch, Boardman, O. 1 00

Porto Rico Sunday Sch

C E Soc, Lincolnville, Ind 5 00

Spanish American Gospel Fund, for Porto Rico

Miss L A Parker. ... 1 00
Carrie P Harmon.... 1 00
E Tilton 1 00
Mrs H C Foote 2 00
S D Hanbridge 1 02
Mrs H P Smith 1 00
Albert A Jagnow 2 00
I H N, Lime Spring, Ia 1 00

Salvation Army

John Williams 3 00
Miss L Dietrick 1 00

Rev. Percy J. Wallace

A C Eaton 5 00
—, Baltimore, Md.. 1 00

GARLAND'S SPRING FASHION CATALOG.

A book now recognized by the shrewdest shoppers everywhere as an authority on styles in

LADIES' SUITS, WAISTS, SKIRTS, JACKETS, ETC.,

IS NOW READY.

Our matchless merchandizing system saves you middleman's profits and brings our enormous stock of all new garments right to your door at prices never before equaled. The Catalog is full of as good bargains as garment illustrated.

$3.69 THIS SKIRT $3.69

NO. 600. Made of Famous Lymansville Cheviot, in black or blue, unlined. Has full flare flounce effect. Trimmed as illustrated with straps of Skinner's satin, finished at bottom with rows of tailor stitching. Samples of cloth sent on request.

SEND FOR CATALOG.

Garlands

LADIES' CLOTHING STORE
DEPT. F, ST. LOUIS, MO.

"It's the Hair—not the Hat."

That makes a woman attractive

SOFT, SILKY HAIR

May be possessed by any person that will take the trouble to keep the hair clean and healthy and the scalp free of dandruff and microbes.

Seven Sutherland Sisters
HAIR GROWER and SCALP CLEANER

Perform such missions, and perform them well. Letters of highest praise from four generations.

SOLD BY DRUGGISTS AND DEPARTMENT STORES

WRITE FOR MONEY

as our graduates are doing successfully. Send for free booklet, "Writing for Profit;" tells how to succeed as newspaper correspondent, magazine contributor, and short-story writer. Learn Journalism and Story-Writing by mail, at home, during spare hours. Mss. sold on commission; criticised and revised. THORNTON WEST, Editor-in-Chief, founded 1895. THE NATIONAL PRESS ASSOCIATION, No. 47 The Baldwin, Indianapolis, Ind.

I Print My Own Cards

Circulars, Newspaper, Press $5. Larger size, $18. Money saver. Big profits printing for others. Type-setting easy, rules sent. Write for catalog, presses, type, paper, &c., to factory.

EXCELSIOR THE PRESS CO., Meriden, Conn

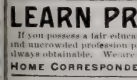
LEARN PROOFREADING

If you possess a fair education, why not utilize it at a genteel and uncrowded profession paying $15 to $25 weekly. Situations always obtainable. We are the original instructors by mail.

HOME CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOL PHILADELPHIA



THE OMNIGRAPH Will Teach Telegraphy absolutely correct in the shortest possible time at a total cost of four dollars. THE OMNIGRAPH Key and Sounder. Expert operator with you all the time. Circular free.

THE OMNIGRAPH MFG. CO. Dept. C 39 Cortlandt St., New York

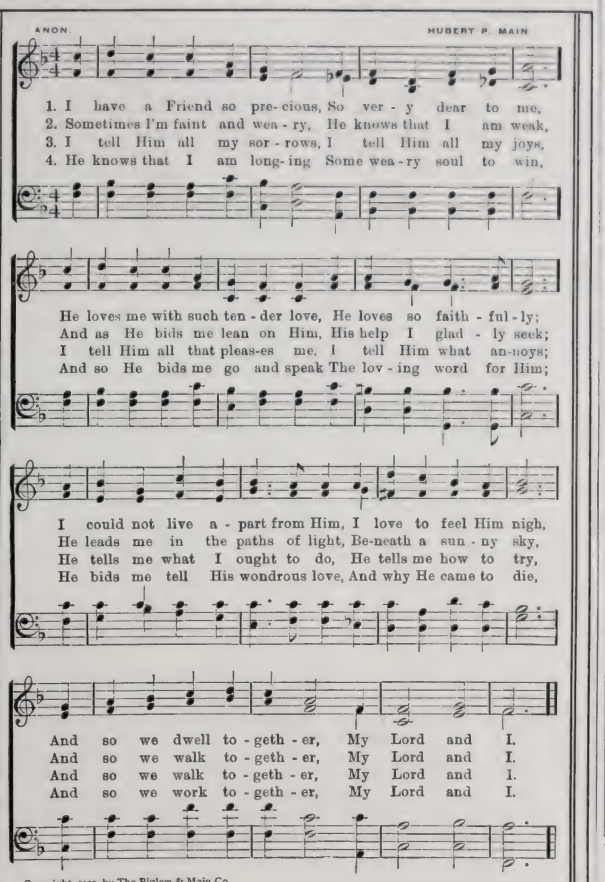
MALTA-CERES

THE Health Food.

ABSOLUTELY FREE our handsomely illustrated book on Lace Making, teaching how to make the most beautiful Valenciennes and Torchon Laces; never done in America before. A refined, lucrative occupation for any lady. Torchon Lace Co., Dept. 14, St. Louis, Mo.

"My Lord and I"

OUR SERVICE OF SONG—EDITED BY IRA D. SANKEY



ANON.
HUBERT P. MAIN
1. I have a Friend so pre-cious, So ver-y dear to me,
2. Sometimes I'm faint and wea-ry, He knows that I am weak,
3. I tell Him all my sor-rows, I tell Him all my joys,
4. He knows that I am long-ing Some wea-ry soul to win,
He loves me with such ten-der love, He loves so faith-ful-ly;
And as He bids me lean on Him, His help I glad-ly seek;
I tell Him all that pleas-es me, I tell Him what an-noys;
And so He bids me go and speak The lov-ing word for Him;
I could not live a-part from Him, I love to feel Him nigh,
He leads me in the paths of light, Be-neath a sun-ny sky,
He tells me what I ought to do, He tells me how to try,
He bids me tell His wondrous love, And why He came to die,
And so we dwell to-geth-er, My Lord and I.
And so we walk to-geth-er, My Lord and I.
And so we walk to-geth-er, My Lord and I.
And so we work to-geth-er, My Lord and I.

Copyright, 1903, by The Biglow & Main Co.

From "YOUNG PEOPLE'S SONG OF PRAISE," by permission of the Biglow & Main Co.

TRUTH AND LIES*

The Insincerities of Social Life Responsible for a Pernicious Habit

ALMOST endless is the list of forms that the habit of lying takes. From the lie whose color is said to be white, which comes trippingly from the lips of society people and which social customs treat with indulgence, to the lie told deliberately with intent to defraud or defame, the degrees of guilt are held to be definite and important. The Word of God makes no such discrimination, but insists on the guilt of all lying. This fact is not always realized even by Christians. The habit of boasting, of exaggerating facts, of paying compliments, insensibly grows even on people who would shrink from lying for the sake of gain, but often has in it all the elements of untruth. It leads, in any case, to a carelessness of statement, which saps the strict principles which ought to regulate our speech. The Psalmist, in his haste, declared that all men are liars, and in our day it really seems as if he might have said it without qualification, so prevalent has the habit become. Any one may learn for himself how unconscious is the habit, by resolving, even for a day, to utter no word that is not the exact truth. The revelation that the experiment will probably make, ought to lead to an eradication of the habit of trifling with the truth.

There is no need in an association like the Epworth League to dwell on the evil of deliberate lying. No Christian can be in any doubt about the guilt of that; but it is not so certain that there is the same conviction about the conventional departures from the truth that have become so common. The excuses that are made for not accepting an invitation, the pleas that are made for some desired favor, and the numerous statements that are uttered as apologies for some conduct or circumstance that reflects on social position, frequently would not stand the test that the Apostle applies in his letter to the Ephesians. They are generally evasions, or are intended to be understood in a sense that is not true, even when the words themselves are not absolutely false. There is no doubt that our conduct needs toning up in this matter, for after all, an untruth uttered or implied is a grievous sin, which brings upon us the condemnation of God.

*Topic of the Epworth League for February 8. Eph. 4: 25; Prov. 12: 19; Ps. 51: 6.

"A Regular Visitor"

Every one of the ten pictures in the "Family Art Gallery" is greatly prized by my people. They are a fine collection. THE CHRISTIAN HERALD has been a regular visitor in our home, and we would greatly miss it. Either the paper or the "Family Art Gallery" is worth more than the subscription price of the former, for which both are sent.

Norwich, N. Y. A. E. BENEDICT.

Infants Thrive

on cow's milk that is not subject to any change of composition. Borden's Eagle Brand Condensed Milk is always the same in all climates and at all seasons. As a general household milk it is superior and is always available.

COFFEE AGAIN.

An Old Philadelphia Physician Tells the Truth About It.

A physician of Philadelphia of many years' practice, during which time he has carefully watched the effects of coffee drinking upon his patients, writes:

"During my practice in Philadelphia I have had many serious cases of stomach trouble and other disorders which I have traced to the use of coffee.

"Last year a fellow physician called my attention to the merits of Postum as the place of coffee. In many severe cases of troubled heart, various kidney diseases etc., since then I have forbidden the use of coffee and prescribed Postum.

"In many cases the results were almost miraculous and in all there was marked improvement due solely to the use of Postum in the place of coffee.

"If you wish it I will furnish you the names of my patients so helped.

"Owing to the feeling that exists among the medical fraternity against physicians using the columns of the papers to advertise themselves, I request that you withhold my name, but you may refer any inquiries to me." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

We have no agents or branch stores.

The Spring Styles Are Now Ready.

WE are enthusiastic about our Catalogue for the coming season. We believe it to be the handsomest fashion publication of its kind ever issued. Never have our styles been more attractive, and our prices more reasonable. We keep no ready-made goods, but make every garment to order. If the garment you order is not satisfactory, send it back promptly, and we will refund your money. No matter where you live we pay express charges.

Our Catalogue illustrates fashionable Suits at $8 up; Etamine Costumes, $12 up; stylish Skirts in the new French cut, $4 up; Rainy-day and Walking Skirts of splendid serviceable materials, $5 up; some entirely new things in Walking suits, $10 up; jaunty Jackets of the new Spring coating fabrics, $6 up.

Our new Spring Catalogue and samples are now ready. Write for them to-day; we will send them free by return mail.

NATIONAL CLOAK AND SUIT COMPANY, 119 and 121 West 23d Street, New York.

WORSTED THE FLEISHER'S BEST YARNS

This trade mark is on every skein of the best yarn made

Send 5 of these tickets and 2 cents for postage to the Manufacturers S. & B. & W. Fleisher, Inc. Philadelphia, Pa. for their new Knitting & Crocheting Manual

BE A PROOFREADER

Work refined, private and educative. Women receive same salaries as men, $15 to $25 a week. Proofreaders always in demand. Send for free booklet, "PRACTICAL PROOFREADING" tells how. NATIONAL PROOFREADERS' ASSOCIATION, The Baldwin, No. 74, Indianapolis, Ind.

MUSIC TAUGHT BY MAIL, Piano, Organ, Guitar, Banjo, Mandolin, Violin and Cornet. Send for free Catalogue and Testimonials. Address, Box 120, U. S. School of Music, 19 Union Square, New York, N. Y.

IF YOU WANT TO BUY OR SELL Real Estate or Business write me. I can sell your property quickly for Cash, no matter where located. Write to-day and learn how. FRANK P. CLEVELAND, Real Estate Expert, 1633 Adams Express Building, Chicago.

VOSE PIANOS

Are receiving more favorable comments to-day from an artistic standpoint than ALL OTHER MAKES COMBINED

We Challenge Comparisons

By our easy payment plan, every family in moderate circumstances can own a fine piano. We allow a liberal price for old instruments in exchange, and deliver the piano in your house free of expense. You can deal with us at a distant point the same as in Boston. Send for descriptive catalogue H and full information.

VOSE & SONS PIANO CO.
161 BOYLSTON STREET, BOSTON, MASS.

THE SMITH PREMIER TYPEWRITER is a landmark of every well regulated business community

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE FREE
THE SMITH PREMIER TYPEWRITER CO.
SYRACUSE, N.Y. U.S.A.

ZOBO
The Musical Wonder
Sold direct (not to trade)
Sample sent prepaid for 25c.
You Can Play it Without Being Taught
Entertains Everybody Everywhere
For Church, Sunday School or Home Assemblies. Illustrated catalogue of Amusing Home Entertainments, free.
Strauss Mfg. Co., 112 W. 19th St., Dept 19 New York

TO SUIT EVERYBODY! JUST OUT!
For Sunday Schools, Young People's Societies, Revival Meetings, etc.
100 New Songs, 256 Pages, Bound in cloth.

Young People's Songs of Praise 4

EDITIONS:
REGULAR,
EPWORTH LEAGUE,
CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR,
BAPTIST Y. P. UNION.
25c. per copy. Specimen pages FREE
THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., New York-Chicago.

NON-RESIDENT COURSES. Leading to Degrees and Diplomas. Law, Music, Languages, Science, Literature, Theology. Chautauqua Collegiate Institute. Chautauqua, N. Y.
President Jerome Dunstan Carpenter, LL.D., Chancellor.

Our Mail-Bag

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Several Readers. The Finnish population in this country, according to statistics compiled over a year ago, was as follows:

	About		About
Minnesota	42,000	New Jersey	1,500
Michigan	45,000	Alaska	1,000
Massachusetts	15,000	Maine	800
Canada	13,000	Connecticut	800
Dakota	10,000	Indiana	500
California	9,000	Illinois	1,000
Oregon	7,500	Utah	1,000
Washington	7,500	Idaho	400
New York	7,000	Vermont	300
Montana	5,000	New Hampshire	200
Ohio	5,000	Other States	5,000
Wyoming	4,000
Colorado	2,000	Total	184,500

It is now much larger, however, and a conservative estimate places the total little short of 300,000. It is believed that nearly 100,000 more, driven out by famine, will emigrate to this country during the present year.

A Wrong-doer, Kansas City, Mo. I have sinned deeply, and have sincerely repented, and I really believe that God has forgiven me; but I heard a preacher say in a sermon recently, that God requires public confession. It cannot do good to any one to know the facts, and it would cause shame and suffering to my family. Ought I to make the confession?

We do not think it is required of you. If you have wronged anyone and can make restitution, you ought to confess your sin to the person wronged and make restitution, but there is no need of public confession. You do not tell us the nature of the wrong you have done; but we can easily conceive of offences in which confession would make greater trouble and do positive harm. If, as you say, you have made your peace with God, your own conscience must guide you as to further steps. Unless it is a wrong which can be rectified, or its consequences alleviated by confession, we do not think you are required to make confession.

Reader, Dodgeville, O. Will you please tell me, through your paper, where I will find an account of Nebuchadnezzar's hanging garden?

Josephus, the Jewish historian, gives a brief account of them. Curtius, Berous, Herodotus, and other ancient writers, and Oppert, Porter, Fergusson, and Rich, in recent years, have attempted to describe them, but with little agreement.

Inquirer, Camden, N. J. A Jewish acquaintance contends that it was not the Jews, but the Romans, who were responsible for Christ's death. He contends that if his execution had been ordered by the Jews, it would have been by stoning, not by crucifixion. Is that true?

At that particular time the Jews were not allowed to inflict the death penalty. Afterwards, as in the case of Stephen, they did inflict it, and they carried it out by stoning. Their responsibility, however, is undoubted. Pilate did not want to kill Jesus. The Jews placed Pilate in a technical difficulty by denouncing Jesus as a rival to Cæsar. If he had refused to punish him, the Jews would, as they covertly threatened, have denounced him to Cæsar. He could easily have cleared himself of such a charge, but there were other matters in his career, which would not so well have borne investigation, and these would naturally have been cited if the Jews had impeached him. Pilate consented to the execution reluctantly under Jewish pressure, and therefore, though the actual execution was conducted by Romans, the Jews were responsible.

P. M. C., Worcester, Mass., writes:

There were six little children baptized in our church, December 7. Two were converted a few weeks ago. One is eleven and the other fourteen years of age. They have an infidel stepfather who does not like to see a Bible in the house. He talks to the children against the Bible and religion. The mother is not a Christian. Notwithstanding this, these two girls have come out bright on the Lord's side. At every prayer-meeting they give interesting testimonies. One of the six is the writer's own little girl. She accepted the Saviour last August, at the age of seven years, and came home with a happy heart and told me she had started to be a Christian.

Reader, New York. Is it true, as I have heard it affirmed, that the best Biblical scholars are abandoning the belief in the deity of Jesus Christ?

There is no evidence that the number of persons who have abandoned that belief is increasing. The Unitarians, who are leaders on that side of the question, do not report any large increase in their numbers. There is, we think, no need for the apprehension you express in your letter. There are a very large number of scholars who steadfastly believe in the divinity of Jesus, and their scholarship is by no means inferior to those who deny it. As for ordinary people, who make no claim to scholarship, we believe that few of them have abandoned the faith. It appears to us, apart from Biblical evidence, that it is a greater tax on credulity to believe Jesus was only human, than to believe that he was divine. Is it likely that a man who passed as a carpenter, in an obscure village in Palestine, could, by less than four years' preaching, lay the foundations of Christianity? No theory but that of the Incarnation can rationally explain such a phenomenon.

Inquirer, Sumter, S. C. Why do some of our bills call for silver dollars and others for gold? Are they of equal value?

They are supposed to correspond with the coin in the Treasury. It would be optional on the part of the government to refuse to pay gold for a silver certificate, though Mr. Carlisle, when Secretary of the Treasury, ruled that gold should be paid for them when it was demanded. If through any cause gold became scarce, the government might insist on redeeming them in silver. The value, as matters now are, is equal.

L. J. Frederick, Md. What is the meaning and the scope of the second Commandment?

It differs from the first, of which at a cursory glance it seems a part, in that it forbids the making of images for worship, while the first simply and singly insists on there being only one God. That point being understood they were not to make any representation of him, nor of anything else for use in worship. It could not have meant a prohibition of sculpture or carving, because immediately afterward Moses was commanded to put cherubim on the ark, and to make images of pomegranates for the adornment of Aaron's tunic. Still, there is no doubt that many Hebrews

CONTINUED ON PAGE 81

TO THE ROOTS.

A School Boy Digs Down to Find Food to Build Him Right.

A good, straightforward letter was recently sent by a bright clever youth which shows his ability to go to the bottom of a trouble and rectify it.

He says, "I attended High School for three years but made little progress. I did not enjoy good health; my food was not properly digested; this caused headache and hence I could not study. I tried taking exercise in the foot-ball field but was unable to stand it as it always increased my headache.

During the summer holidays I began eating Grape-Nuts and the benefit was immediate, the headache stopped, my food digested properly so that I had no more stomach trouble, my general health improved, my weight increased and my brain was clear and bright.

The result was that this summer I procured Junior Leaving and Junior Matriculation Standing. I also took my place on the football team as half-back and played in all the games of 1901.

This wonderful increase in mental and physical health I attribute to no other cause than the nourishment I got from Grape-Nuts. I recommend them to everybody who desires health. I am only a boy of 17 years, but my weight is 148 pounds and this weight was procured solely by the use of Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Cereal Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There is a reason why Grape-Nuts should correct a delicate, physical, or sluggish mental condition. The food is highly nutritious and is predigested so that it helps the digestive organs to assimilate other food. It is also rich in the phosphates that go directly to make up the delicate gray matter of brain and nerve centres.

Bishop Furniture

Is shipped on approval, allowed in your home five days, and returned at our expense, if not all you expected. We prepay freight to all points east of the Miss. River and north of the Tenn. line, allowing freight that far toward points beyond.

No. 1734 Dressing Table is 34 in. wide. Has French bevel Mirror 22 x 16 in. and graceful French legs. Our price for Quartered Oak is $12.75. Birds-eye Maple or Mahogany, $14.00. Worth $20.00.

No. 1733 Chiffonier is 34 in. wide. Daintily hand-carved to match Table. Has French bevel Mirror 22 x 16 in. Our price, Quartered Oak, $21.00. Birds-eye Maple or Mahogany, $23.00. Worth $32.00.

Our Big Catalogue Free, shows 600 pieces of high-grade furniture. Write for it.

Bishop Furniture Co.,
Nos. 23-35 Ionia Street,
Grand Rapids, Michigan.

CORNISH PIANOS AND ORGANS

Are sent on one years FREE trial

Direct From Factory to Home—Saving One-Half
Cash or Easy Payments. FROM $155.
An offer from maker to buyer, which is unequaled in generosity of terms, and which puts a fine instrument within the reach of every purse.
You Advance no Money. We Prepay the Freight.
You Shoulder no Risk. We Guarantee Satisfaction.

Miniature Pianos and Organs Free to every intending purchaser. They are accurate reductions of our models of the latest styles in Cornish Pianos and Organs. These miniatures constitute the most costly advertisements ever issued and enable anyone to select an instrument no matter at what distance they live as the Piano and Organ in exact color as to wood, etc., is exactly reproduced. This elegant embossed set is sent free and with it the Cornish American souvenir catalog, handsomely illustrated with presentation plate in colors and fully depicting and describing 50 Exposition Models of Cornish American Pianos and Organs. Send us your address to-day and we will mail catalog and miniatures FREE, if you mention this paper.

FROM $25. Established 50 Years.
CORNISH CO., Washington, New Jersey.

Success
awaits the youth who masters shorthand and the skilled use of

The Remington Typewriter

THE use of the Remington everywhere predominates, and for the young man who operates it the best positions, providing the surest avenues for subsequent advancement, are always open.

Our new illustrated booklet, "A Stepping Stone to Success," contains the biographies of many successful men who have been helped by their knowledge of shorthand or typewriting. Sent free to young men on request.

Remington Typewriter Company
327 Broadway, New York

OUR FREE CATALOG
OF MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS truthfully describes and accurately illustrates the biggest assortment in the world of high grade Organs, Pianos and Musical goods of all kinds at prices that in cheapness are startling. For example, ORGANS AT $25.80 to $79.50, Pianos at $88.75 to $825.00, Violins at $2.25 to $19.50, Guitars at $2.90 to $22.50, Mandolins at $3.80 to $10.95, Banjos at $2.75 to $18.95, Accordions at $2.15 to $7.50 and Zithers, Autoharps, Wind instruments, Band instruments and all goods pertaining to music at correspondingly low prices. We issue a long term binding guarantee with each instrument and ship on easy terms allowing a free trial in your home. Before buying you must see this catalog. Write for it to-day.
JOHN M. SMYTH CO. 150-152 W. Madison St., CHICAGO, ILL.

MAKE MONEY EVENINGS.
Men employed during the day can make money evenings giving public exhibitions with MAGIC LANTERN or STEREOPTICON. Little capital needed.
Write for particulars. 200-page catalogue FREE.
McAllister, Mfr. Optician, 49 Nassau St., N. Y.

CHURCH FURNITURE. Pews, Assembly Chairs, Pulpits, S. S. Seating.
Largest Line, Latest Styles. Free Catalogue. Mfd. at GRAND RAPIDS SCHOOL FURNITURE WORKS. Salesroom, 22 West 19th Street, New York.

"REVERSIBLE" Linene Collars & Cuffs.

MANY ADVANTAGES.

Perfect in fit, never ragged or uncomfortable. Very convenient, stylish, economical. Made of fine cloth and exactly resemble linen goods. Turn down collars are reversible and give double service.

NO LAUNDRY WORK

When soiled, discard. Ten collars or five pairs of cuffs, 25c. By mail, 30c. Send 6c. in U. S. stamps for sample collar or pair of cuffs. Name size and style.

REVERSIBLE COLLAR CO., Dept. P, Boston

MORE PROOF

of the Safety of Missouri Farm Mortgages

15 years ago a certain investor sent me funds to loan. After careful investigation I placed this money on Missouri farm mortgages—because her laws were just, her lands cheap and crops never failing.

The interest and principal were paid—more money was sent. More investors came. Large financial institutions, men of large and small means invested.

Always the same result. No Losses—No Defaults.

Thousands loaned then. Millions now. This tells the story of care, prudence, good judgment, integrity. I invest your money as I do my own.

This "First Investor" will tell you he still buys Missouri loans.

Send for my Booklet about Missouri 5% Mortgages

WM. R. COMPTON, 5 WARDELL BLDG., MACON, MO.

INCOME OF

6% per annum on sums of $100 or more, withdrawable after one year . . . . . .

5% per annum on any amount deposited, withdrawable at any time . . . . . .

SECURED by mortgages on New York City improved real estate, and by a guarantee fund of 10 per cent. of the face value of all mortgages in force.

This corporation is subject to examination by the Supt. of Banks of the State of New York.

KNICKERBOCKER BUILDING-LOAN CO.

(Established 1883)

38 Park Row, New York City

Depositories.—City Trust Co., of New York, and United National Bank.

5% Per Annum On Your Savings

DEPOSITS may be made or withdrawn at any time and bear earnings for every day invested. Payable quarterly by check. Our operations are confined to strictly high-grade, gilt-edged real-estate securities. Our business is non-speculative and regularly inspected by and under absolute supervision of State Banking Department.

Write at once for full particulars and endorsements of prominent clergymen and professional men.

INDUSTRIAL SAVINGS & LOAN CO.
1131 Broadway, New York

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 80

took the commandment literally, and thus the arts of painting and sculpture were neglected in Palestine.

R. S. S., Worcester, Mass. How do you account for the fact that there are so many creeds and denominations? All profess to prove themselves right by the Bible; how is it that with only one book as a basis, there is so much diversity?

The denominations do not differ so radically as you appear to imagine. If you were to ask a Baptist, a Methodist, a Presbyterian, a Congregationalist or a Disciple the way to be saved, and how a Christian ought to live in the world, you would get practically identical answers from them all. They and other denominations agree in the essential things. On questions of church government, and of rites there is divergence, due largely to the different cast of mind and to association and environment. The Bible supplies a basis for unity, but not for uniformity.

W. G., California. There is to be a play given under the auspices of our church. The church rules are opposed to theatricals. What should be done in the matter?

On general principles, we do not consider the church a proper place for the presentation of plays of any sort. Much would depend on the character of the proposed entertainment. If the matter is brought before the proper church authorities, they may be influenced to take such action as is necessary to prevent any objectionable performance.

J. W. S., New York. Can a sincere Christian be a wholesaler and retailer of spirituous liquors?

Such a business is totally incompatible with the Christian profession. One who makes a living by selling that which ruins men's souls and bodies, which wrecks happy homes, which sends the young and old of both sexes to perdition, which is the chief agent in crime and responsible for nearly seventy per cent. of all criminal offences, must have an extremely elastic conscience to reconcile such work with the spirit of Jesus, "who went about doing good."

Mrs. M. B. D., Shelter Island, N. Y. Is it, or is it not, giving to the Lord when we give for the support and benefit of our own church?

Yes; your own church is one of the agencies employed in doing God's work, and in supporting it, you are assuredly giving to the Lord's work.

A. S. B., Chillicothe, Ill. I saw, many years ago, a story concerning Robert Bruce, of Scotland, watching a spider spin a web, which, after many attempts to fasten it on an opposite rafter, succeeded. This gave the discouraged commander new inspiration to rally his army and push his campaign to a successful issue. Can you tell me where I can find the incident recorded?

You will doubtless find the incident recorded in the Life of Bruce or in any history of Scotland. It is regarded as apocryphal, however. A somewhat similar story is related of several other noted people.

Reader, Brooklyn, N. Y. What is the difference between the Hellenic and the Judaic view of life?

The difference is characteristic of the two races. The Hellenic, or Greek, idea of the development of human character was that the elevation of it must come through culture and philosophy. Graceful statues, fine buildings, beautiful pictures, reading, athletic sports, etc., would all contribute. The Hebraic, or Judaic conception was, that in righteousness alone was there hope of human progress and development. You find it in the Psalms and the Prophets reiterated again and again.

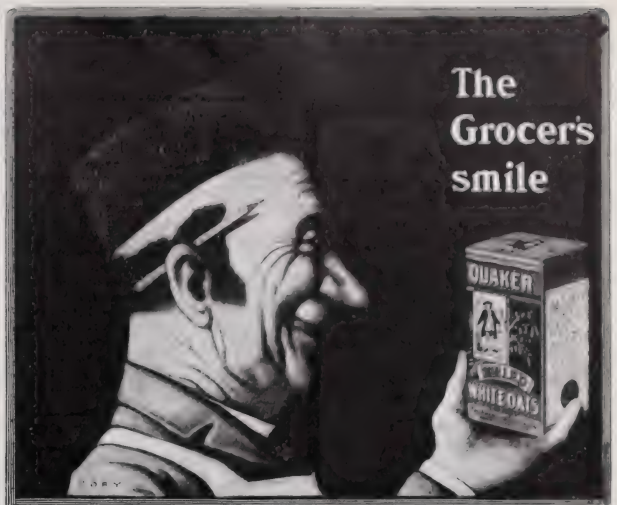
Protestant, Philadelphia, Pa. A Roman Catholic neighbor declares that the priests of his church do not discourage Bible reading, and that the stories that they do are slanderous. Do you know whether he is right?

Probably the practice of the church varies in different countries, and that in the United States the priests do not oppose the reading of the Bible. That they do so in some other countries is undoubted. Within three months, the following warning was published in a Roman Catholic journal at Lourdes, in France: "Every year the effort is made to spread amongst the pilgrims, either by sale or by gift, certain books of Protestant origin, and in particular the New Testament of our Lord Jesus Christ. It is our duty to warn the 'faithful' that it is definitely forbidden to Catholics to read, or even to keep in their houses, books of this kind."

Her "Beautiful Bible"

The beautiful Red Letter Bible, sent me a short time ago, is one of the most complete, convenient, and helpful editions of the Scriptures I have seen; the paper is good, the print large and clear, the red lettering of great assistance in finding desired passages, the Teachers' Helps concise and comprehensive. The maps well-arranged and clear, while both good material and skill have been expended upon the durable and tasteful binding. I have shown the book to a number of friends, all of whom are one with me in praising it most unstintedly. KATE J. CRAWFORD, B. A.

Principal Arden Schools, Arden, Manitoba, Can.



The Smile that Won't Come Off

More Quaker Oats the Grocer said,
No other brand will do instead;
And o'er his kindly features spread
The Smile that won't come off.

Look for the Coupon in the Package.

EIGHT DOLLARS AND TWENTY-FIVE CENTS buys our high grade, high arm, guaranteed, 5-drawer, solid polished antique oak, drop head cabinet SEROCO sewing machine, exactly as illustrated, complete with all accessories, instruction book, etc.

$15.20 buys the HIGHEST GRADE, HIGH ARM 5-DRAWER, DROP CABINET SEWING MACHINE MADE, complete with all accessories, instruction book, etc.

Other high grade Sewing Machines in 5-drawer drop cabinet and other styles $10.45, $10.95, $11.95, $12.85, $14.75, etc. We sell nearly all the best known standard sewing machines, including the genuine Singer, Domestic, New Home, Wheeler & Wilson, White, Standard, Minnesota, Howard, Burdick and Edgemere, and our low prices, etc., will simply astonish you. Every machine shipped on

THREE MONTH'S FREE TRIAL with the understanding, that if it doesn't prove perfectly satisfactory you do not pay us one cent. Write for our free Sewing Machine Catalogue, mention this paper, and we will give you the names of a number of your own neighbors to whom we have sold sewing machines, so that you can see and examine your neighbors' machines, learn how they are pleased with them and how much money we saved them. The Special Sewing Machine Catalogue will go to you by return mail, complete with large illustrations, full descriptions and most astonishingly low prices. You will receive the most wonderful price offerings ever heard of, our liberal three months' free trial proposition and the most extraordinary sewing machine offer ever made. Address,

$8.25

WE CAN SURELY SAVE YOU MONEY ON ANY KIND OF A MACHINE.

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., Chicago.

WE WILL SAVE YOU FROM $10 TO $45 on almost any kind or style of machine. Sold direct from factory saving all salesmen's expenses and dealers or agents exhorbitant profits. Our machines have modern features not possessed by any others. Ball-Bearing, Stand, finest attachments FREE. Latest design woodwork, the stylish swell front, polished oak. Guaranteed to be better than machines sold for twice the price. SHIPPED ON APPROVAL, anywhere in U. S. Guaranteed 20 years.

Swell Front

ARLINGTON GEM $25.00 Regular 5 drawer Drop Head Including all attachments. $11.25

ARLINGTON QUEEN Flat Tension and Needle Bar Take-up, same as New Home, Domestic and White. $35.00 Regular 5 Drawer Drop with fine Marquetry Decorations, $35.00 Beautiful 1 Door Desk Cabinet $16.45. $14.75

ARLINGTON Highest arm made. Double Tension, Independent Take-up, same as Singer, Wheeler & Wilson and Standard. $55.00 Regular 5 Drawer Drop Head $17.75 $65.00 Automatic Lift, Drop Cabinet $19.75 $75.00 Beautiful 2 Door Desk Cabinet $23.75

Write for our Catalogue, 64 pages beautifully illustrated. Contains all points about buying Sewing Machines right—FREE. CASH BUYERS' UNION, Dept. B 18, CHICAGO.

THE "BEST" LIGHT

is a portable 100 candle power light, costing only 6cts per week. Makes and burns its own gas. Brighter than electricity or acetylene, and cheaper than Kerosene. No Dirt. No Grease. No Odor. Over 100 styles. Lighted instantly with a match. Every lamp warranted.

Agents Wanted Everywhere.

THE BEST LIGHT CO., 3-70 E. 5th St., Canton, Ohio.

$35 Our Split Hickory Hummer

TOP BUGGY

is the finest rig you ever saw in your life sold for less than $50.00. We prove this statement by sending them anywhere direct from our factory on 30 DAYS FREE TRIAL, and let you be the judge. Drop us a postal for FREE catalogue of complete line of Split Hickory vehicles and harness.

OHIO CARRIAGE MFG. CO. Station 54, Cincinnati, O.

MALTA-CERES

THE Health Food.

Individual Communion Cups

Why do you permit a custom at the communion table which you would not tolerate in your own home? The use of the individual communion service grows daily. Are you open to conviction? Would you like to see a list of the churches in which it is used and know the satisfaction it gives?

Send for our free book—it tells all about it. A trial outfit sent free on request.

SANITARY COMMUNION OUTFIT CO., Dept. 7 Rochester, N. Y.

KNOX'S GELATINE

It's Not Like Pie, It's Healthy. Why? Send for Free book

"Dainty Desserts for Dainty People." Send your grocer's name. For 5c. in stamps, the book and full pint sample. For 15c., the book and full two-quart package (2 for 25c.). A package of Knox's will make 2 quarts (½ gallon) of jelly—enough for ten large portions.

CHAS. B. KNOX,
55 Knox Ave., Johnstown, N.Y.

FREE TO ALL HOUSEKEEPERS!

THE "1900" BALL-BEARING FAMILY WASHER WILL BE SENT FREE to all housekeepers who answer this advertisement, without deposit or advance payment of any kind, freight paid both ways, on 30 days' trial. Unquestionably greatest family labor saver ever invented. Saves time, expense, and wear and tear. Will do the family washing without boiling clothes, hand-scrubbing or back-breaking. Revolves on bicycle ball bearings and is therefore easiest running washer ever made. Will do two hours' washing in ten minutes. Washes blankets as well as laces, absolutely clean, and without the slightest injury.

EAST PLYMOUTH, Ohio, Feb. 2, 1902.
P. O. Ashtabula, O.

We have been using the "1900" Washer since May 15, 1900. Have done over 1,200 washings, and I think it is good for as many more. We do family work from Ashtabula. We have used 8 different machines, and the "1900" beats them all for good and fast work and durability.
GEO. M. BURNET.

It costs nothing to try. Sent absolutely free, freight paid both ways, for a trial of 30 days. No Money required in advance.

Write at once for book and particulars to

THE "1900" WASHER CO.,
33 G, State Street, BINGHAMTON, N.Y.

"Where every prospect pleases."

FIVE POINTS OF EXCELLENCE.

Leaving the center of the city from which you start; reaching the center of the city of your destination; over smooth and level tracks; giving rest and comfort; riding beside running waters most of the way; through the centers of population to the gateways of commerce; when you travel by the

NEW YORK CENTRAL LINES.

A [illegible] Book of Information and Rates, sent free on receipt of [illegible] postage, by [illegible] Passenger Agent, New York Central & Hudson River Railroad, Grand Central Station, New York.

The Back

The why some shopkeepers do not sell

PRESIDENT SUSPENDERS

is they make more money on imitations.

Fifty cents and a dollar. Ask at favorite shop.

C. A. Edgarton Mfg. Co., Box 209 H, Shirley, Mass.
Send Cents for catalogue.

OUR SUNDAY HOUR WITH THE LITTLE FOLKS

CHILDREN, a happy "Sunday Hour" to you! Our little friend, Lucretia Williams, writes: "I enjoy searching for answers to the questions with the aid of my Bible story books and my Bible." Eva Moore says: "We are learning a great deal about the Bible in working for the prize. Our whole family is interested." We want your pleasure and profit to be not entirely dependent upon prizes, dear little ones. We want you to enjoy "Sunday Hour" with us for itself. We are glad to know that our little prize-winners (who sent fine answers—they had to to win, where many answers were so good) like their prizes. They all say about this:

Nancy Ella Steadman, R. I. "The book, Choice Selections and Recitations, is a beauty. The poems and selections are fine, and some of them are so amusing, it makes us all laugh. One of the sad poems is called 'Guild's Signal.' My home is near Wood River Junction (or Richmond Switch, as it was called then), where Guild lost his life."——Bert R. Peat, Mass. "I am very pleased with the present. I think it is a fine book."——Lula Dixon. "I especially like the way the book is bound, and best of all the beautiful readings and recitations inside."——Lucile Wall, Ga. "The book will help me in my school elocution work. I enjoy finding answers in the Bible to 'Curious Questions.'" (Our little watch winners may be heard from next week. We would have to crowd puzzles out to put in all the letters—and that would never do!)

We make instructions and rules as plain as possible, and we cannot engage to answer letters asking further information about our Puzzle Competitions.

COMPETITION 15

What two places mentioned in Scripture do these pictures represent?

Write "Competition 15" plainly across the top of a postal card or sheet of paper; next, your name, age and address; then the answers. For each of the two answers employ but one word—the name of the place you think the picture represents. Don't quote Scripture passages; simply state the name of the place. Read the rules given below.

Competition 16
Curious Questions

1. Who owned the first time-piece mentioned in Scripture?
2. Who was the first jeweler mentioned?
3. What artistic handicraft besides did he pursue?
4. Who was killed because of the mispronunciation of one word?

Write "Competition 16" plainly across the top of your postal card or sheet of paper; next, your name, age, and address. Answer as many of the questions as you can, writing in each case the number of the question (not the question itself) before its answer. Answers to all four questions must not exceed fifty words in the aggregate. Read the following rules.

RULES AND PRIZES

Contests are not open to competitors over fourteen years of age. Only one weekly competition is open to any one person. If you answer both Competition 15 and 16 you forfeit your chances therefor. Do not send two solutions. There is no objection to asking the help of others, but each competitor must send in the answers in his or her own handwriting. Should you use paper instead of a postal card, be sure to write on the envelope in which you enclose your answer "Competition 15" or "Competition 16," as the case may be. Do not write on both sides of a sheet of paper.

Prizes are as follows: For the best answer to "Competition 15," a handsome silver watch, lady's or gentleman's; for each of the twenty-five next best answers, a beautiful book. For the best answer to "Competition 16," a handsome silver watch, lady's or gentleman's; for each of the twenty-five next best answers, a beautiful book.

All answers must be mailed not later than February 2, 1903. Address, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, Little Folks Department, Bible House, New York.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF PRIZE-WINNERS FOR DEC. 31, 1902

The picture, "Scripture Problem 4," in our issue of December 31st, was "Saul Among the Prophets," I. Sam. 10: 5, 11. To "Curious Questions" of that date, answers are: 1. Moses appointed Abib the first month of the Hebraic year in connection with and in commemoration of the exodus—the departure of Israel from Egypt, Ex. 12: 2; 13: 4; 23: 15; 34: 18; Deut. 16: 1. 2. "An holy convocation," "A day of blowing the trumpets," Numb. 29: 1; "A Sabbath," "A memorial of blowing of trumpets," Lev. 23: 24. The Feast of Trumpets. Rosh hash—Shanah. 3. The blowing of trumpets. Instead of trumpets being merely blown in the temple at the time of offering the sacrifices, there was "a day of blowing of trumpets." 4. The form of benediction pronounced on Israel's congregations by Aaron and his sons is given in Num. 6: 23-27.

For the best description of the picture, "Scripture Problem 4," of Dec. 31, Grace L. Colwell, Sherburne, N. Y., receives the first prize, a handsome silver watch; for the best answer to "Curious Questions," of same date, David Kroeber, Atlanta, Ga., receives a handsome silver watch. The following receive each a beautiful book:

Second best answers to Picture Puzzle Contest.
Bates, Edna, Mont.
Bell, Leon, Ia.
Carlson, Hilding, Pa.
Cartwell, Harold, Can.
Clark, Lewis, Pa.
Cole, Bessie, Ohio.
Collins, Hilda A., Mass.
Cooey, Margaretta, Pa.
Crain, Marietta, N. C.
Crosby, Merle G., Can.
Decker, Worma, Iowa.
DeYoung, Marg't, Wis.
Dickinson, Carrie E., Can
Dixon, Lyman, N. C.
Ebely, Elmer H., Ohio.
Fowler, Clyde A., Pa.
Fuller, Ethel, N. Y.
Gates, Sydney, Wis.
Glade, Vincent, Kans.
Halsted, Egbert, N. Y.
Hannum, Leona, Ill.
Hardy, Gladys W., Can.
Heagy, Rey, Pa.
Johnson, Orlena M., Vt.
Jones, Elsie R., Pa.
Jordan, Ka E., Pa.
Lincoln, Leslie T., Pa.
Locke, Stanley, Can.
Martens, Julia, Ind.
Martyn, Vincent, Pa.
Neefus, Stanley, N. J.
New, Annie C., N. J.
Packer, Grace, Kans.
Paddock, Eddie R., N. J.
Patterson, Edith, Neb.
Plannett, Edwin, Mo.
Reeve, Edmund W., N. J.
Seeley, Nina, Mich.
Shaffer, Frank, Ill.
Smith, Gladys E., N. H.
Smith, James B., Md.
Smith, Loretta, Can.
Stearns, Edw. C., Mass.
Thompson, S., Can.
Voltz, Miriam, La.
Waddell, Stella, Tenn.
Webb, Paul, Colo.
Weeks, Amy L., Me.
White, Ethel R., Ill.
Wilkie, Delos, Wis.

Second best answers to "Curious Question."
Allen, Earl H., N. Y.
Armstrong, Fannie, Ky.
Barton, Warren T., Pa.
Batdorf, A. Luella, Pa.
Beery, Leon F., Pa.
Brown, Joanna, Neb.
Butler, Eugene, Ind.
Campbell, Ellen, Mich.
Coghill, Miriam, Va.
Colton, Wm. L., N. Y.
Crymes, Mary L., Va.
Culbertson, Mary, O.
Davenport, Euge'a, Tex.
Davidson, Edna, Minn.
Dunwiddie, Clyde, Pa.
Esterday, Reid, O.
Gerken, Edna, Kans.
Gillen, Rebecca, Pa.
Harrison, Clinton, Neb.
Hicks, Roy N. L., N. Y.
Johnston, Anna M., Ia.
Judson, C. Everett, N. Y.
Kelly, Pierce Crosby, Pa.
Kime, Josephine A., Pa.
Koch, Violet E., Pa.
Landon, Mary, Minn.
Latham, Mary, S. C.
Lewis, Kenneth, Can.
McMurdo, Roy, Can.
Merry, Belle, O.
Miller, Florence R., Pa.
Moore, Eva S., Mo.
Patterson, Ira, Wis.
Prosser, Milton, Pa.
Rex, Mae, Ia.
Roberts, Douglas, N. Y.
Robins, Addie, Mich.
Rogers, Geo. I., Conn.
Rogers, Geo. M., Mass.
Sauter, Vera, Ill.
Shipley, Carrie E., Md.
Shoemaker, E. E., N. Y.
Smith, Kenneth, Conn.
Sprague, Marion L., Me.
Strickland, Myrtle, Mo.
Sullivan, Vera, Colo.
Tuxford, Lucy, N. Y.
Vail, Glenroie, N. Y.
Walker, Alice, R. I.
Wren, J. Harold, Va.

Mellin's Food

children represent perfect and healthy childhood.

SEND A POSTAL FOR A FREE SAMPLE OF MELLIN'S FOOD.

Mellin's Food Co., Boston, Mass.

Heating Troubles

Thousands of people write us about their distressful condition through inefficient heating methods.

Our experts give proper serious scientific consideration to thousands of cases each month. The best talent in this line is at your service for free consultation. Describe your house to us.

Hot Water or Steam apparatus is now simply and cheaply erected in old homes. Need not be connected to waterworks system. Send for valuable booklet.

AMERICAN RADIATOR COMPANY

Makers of IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators — Dept. E CHICAGO

IDEAL IDEAL IDEAL IDEAL IDEAL IDEAL IDEAL

Young men and women in search of Permanent, Profitable Employment, will appreciate our new, easy method of selling

ALUMINUM COOKING UTENSILS

Takes away all objectionable features of canvassing and adds greatly to the profit. Over 100 different utensils. Very highest grade. Do not burn food, cannot rust, crack or scale. Last a lifetime.

Write to-day for our plan. It's the best thing you ever saw.

THE ALUMINUM COOKING UTENSIL CO.
District 3, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Kitchen Utensils HAVING THIS TRADE MARK

ARE SAFE.

NO POISON
Has Ever Been Found in the Enamel of Agate Nickel-Steel Ware.

The BLUE LABEL
Protected by Decision of United States Court, pasted on every piece,
PROVES IT.
If substitutes are offered, write us. New Booklet Free.
"Agate Nickel-Steel Ware" is sold by the leading Department and Housefurnishing Stores.

Lalance & Grosjean Mfg. Co.
New York, Boston, Chicago.

Peerless Steam Cooker and SANITARY WATER STILL

Combines two valuable articles in one. Cooks a whole dinner over one burner. Emits no odors. Cheap meat made nutritious and tender. Reduces fuel bills. Purifies for water, and can be used as a Perfect Water Still for making the best germ proof drinking water. Imitated by others but never equaled. Agents wanted. Peerless Cooker Co., Buffalo N. Y.

CLEAN CUT CAKE TIN

FREE TO AGENTS

Flat thin knife cuts loose a perfect cake. $2 Outfit free Exp. prepaid. Dept. E HOUSEHOLD NOVELTY WORKS, Chicago, Ill., or Buffalo, N. Y.

MALTA-CERES
THE Health Food.

AN EARLY CHURCH

Paul's Teaching in the Worldly Greek City

By Mrs. M. Baxter

HOW often it has been said that to Christianize educated Brahmins, and the student-class in China, educated people are essential. But how often, when such were not also filled with the Holy Ghost, have they been a failure! and how often some comparatively illiterate man, filled with God, has been blest to many! It is to the very learned Corinthians that Paul explains how the things of God can be only understood by Divine power. "Who among men knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of the man which is in him?" The spirit is the knowing power, as the eye is the seeing power, and the ear the hearing power. But our natural knowing power does not reach out into things divine—for them we need a new faculty: "Even so the things of God none knoweth save the Spirit of God" (I. Cor. 2: 11, R. V.). How absolutely needful, then, is it for us to have the Spirit of God within us, that we may "know the things that are freely given to us of God" (ver. 12). All the wisdom of the Corinthians, and all their learning, left them as much without power to understand spiritual things as a blind man is to perceive things which can only be understood by sight. "The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God; for they are foolishness unto him; and he cannot know them, because they are spiritually discerned."

This kind of teaching was unwelcome in the synagogue at Corinth. It was no light thing for the Corinthian Jews to believe in Christ; it meant opprobrium and excommunication from the synagogue, and they would have to bear the shame of being the followers of one who was branded as a publicly-executed criminal. "They opposed themselves and blasphemed." This brought about a crisis in the life of Paul. The Lord had told Ananias of Saul of Tarsus: "He is a chosen vessel unto me, to bear my name before the Gentiles, and kings, and the children of Israel." Up to this time, Paul had always gone first to the Jew; but God had settled the order of his service, in which the Gentiles were first named. "Now, therefore," he said to the unbelieving Jews, "your blood be upon your own heads. I am clean; from henceforth I will go unto the Gentiles."

Perhaps it was the last straw of his prestige as a learned Pharisee which went with this decision; and for the first time in a city where a synagogue was in existence, he took his disciples elsewhere: they met for worship "in the house of a certain man named Titus Justus, whose house joined hard to the synagogue." But Crispus, the ruler of the synagogue, himself became converted; he "believed in the Lord with all his house." Then another ruler, Sosthenes was appointed over this synagogue, and he not only became converted and baptized, but was persecuted; and later became a companion of Paul, and is joined with him in the writing of the First Epistle to the Corinthians (I. Cor. 1: 1). Naturally the conversion of Crispus, their leader, gave a greater impetus to the work, and "many of the Corinthians hearing, believed and were baptized."

It is often in the most unexpected quarters that those are to be found who receive the Word with all readiness of mind. It is sometimes an excuse for our own cowardice when we take for granted that such or such a person will not come to Christ. Let us be at God's disposal always, and for any to whom he wills to send us. Paul dwelt in Corinth a year and a half, teaching the Word of God among them.

We may gather what kind of teaching he gave them from his two epistles to the Corinthians. That he taught them the fulness of God's grace in Christ Jesus to sinful men comes out strongly in II. Cor. 5: 14-19. And Paul teaches that the very object of the death of Christ has been "that they which live should no longer live unto themselves, but unto Him who died for them and rose again" (II. Cor. 5: 15). He teaches that no goodness of the flesh can commend man to God, He chooses the "foolish," "weak," "base," "despised" things of the world, and even "the things that are not, that he might bring to naught the things that are" (I. Cor. 1: 18-31). He teaches the absolute necessity of having the Spirit of God in order to understand the things of God. He shows (I. Cor. 3) what is the difference between a spiritual and carnal believer, and in the midst of his strong dealing with them about sins and inconsistencies, and the true regulation of Christian life, in chapters 3, 7, he twice reminds them of the motive power in all, that they are the temple of the Holy Ghost (3: 16, 17; 6: 19). In the midst of further practical teaching he regulates the observance of the Lord's Supper (11: 20-34), and then brings out the great truth so little practically understood —the mystical body of Christ into which all are baptized by one spirit (12), and on this ground brings out his precious lesson of love (13) and resurrection (15).

$1.00 UNTIL FEB'RY 1st

This is Your Last Chance

You can have THE SATURDAY EVENING POST every week for a year for only $1.00 if sent NOW. After February 1st it will cost $2.00.

THE POST is a high-grade illustrated weekly magazine, equal in tone and character to the best monthlies. Handsomely printed — profusely illustrated by the best-known artists, and filled with the best editorial thought and fiction.

Established 1728 by Benjamin Franklin

Specially strong features in business stories, and business special articles for young men, by all the leading Bankers, Lawyers, Merchants and Journalists. Special contributors are Senator Beveridge, Hon. Grover Cleveland, William Allen White, Hon. Charles Emory Smith, former Postmaster-General, and hundreds of others.

AFTER FEB'RY 1st $2.00

The Curtis Publishing Company
Philadelphia, Pa.

Vapo-Cresolene

AN INHALATION FOR

Whooping Cough, Croup, Bronchitis, Coughs, Grip, Hay Fever, Diphtheria, Scarlet Fever,

Don't fail to use CRESOLENE for the distressing and often fatal affections for which it is recommended. For more than twenty years we have had the most conclusive assurances that there is nothing better. Ask your physician about it.

An interesting descriptive booklet is sent free, which gives the highest testimonials as to its value.

ALL DRUGGISTS.

VAPO-CRESOLENE CO., 180 Fulton Street, New York.

Excursions To California

Personally Conducted

The tourist parties which leave over our road every week for California are popular for just one reason—the great care and individual attention paid to our guests. Men are very carefully selected to act as special conductors of these parties. They must have thorough knowledge to make them capable servants of those who join us, and they must have the tact and temperament which will make them personally acceptable to the passenger. I know perfectly well that, if you are going to California, and wish to go comfortably, but economically, our Personally Conducted Excursion parties are just what you want. Will you not kindly consult your nearest ticket agent about them, or write me for particulars?

P. S. EUSTIS, Passenger Traffic Manager C. B. & Q. Ry. Co., 209 Adams St., Chicago.

668

A 50-Cent Hat by Mail

MEN'S HAT NO. 1

In soft, rough finish. Colors Gray Mix, Brown Mix, and Black Mix.

Either of these hats sent, postpaid, on receipt of 50 cents in cash, postal order or stamps. Money back if not satisfactory. We refer to The First National Bank of Middletown, N. Y. We are the manufacturers and make the following offer to introduce these hats and our other lines of Men's, Boys', and Women's Hats in every town in the United States. Send for catalogue.

MEN'S HAT NO. 2

In smooth finish. Colors Black, Brown, Maple, Steel, and Pearl.

MIDDLETOWN HAT COMPANY, 44 Mill St., Middletown, N. Y.

MEN WHO HAVE FAILED*

Four Conspicuous Instances of the Evil Results of Yielding to Temptation

ARE men who have failed competent to be teachers? Before we reject their lessons, we may well consider the fact, that having realized in their own experience the results of evil-doing, they are capable of speaking with authority of the nature of those results. The man who has fallen into a bog is, better than all others, able to tell travelers over the same road where the bog is, and what effect follows falling into it. The references associated with the topic furnish us with four types of failure. That of Cain shows the effect of jealousy; that of Samson, the result of infatuation; that of Eli, the consequences of neglect of duty; and that of Saul, the penalty of disobedience. They are four types of failure which are common in the present day. Jealousy still survives and does its deadly work; men still allow love to make them careless of their obligations to God; parents, among ourselves, know that their children are doing evil, yet do not restrain them; and, like Saul, men offer to God tithes and outward observance, and all kinds of reverence, except obedience, which is the one thing essential to pleasing God. The uniform principle in all four cases, is the tendency to disregard the plain teaching of the Bible, that God should occupy the supreme place in every life.

It is the self-centred man who fails, whether his selfishness takes the form of envy, self-indulgence, parental leniency, or greed. The philosophy Christ propounded in his paradox, that he who would save his life should lose it, was eminently sound. To save ourselves from humiliation, from the conflict with our passions, from the distress of correcting our children, from the apparent waste of sacrifice, is the surest way to incur heavier trials than those we try to escape. There come crises in the life of every man when principle is put to the test. It is so much easier to yield, than to take the firm and self-sacrificing course, so much more agreeable to consult our own inclinations, that the habit of doing right at any cost, ought to be formed before the crisis comes, lest, under the strain, human nature asserts itself and bids us consider our immediate interests. Of our ultimate interests, there can be no reasonable doubt, for it is still true that he who sins wrongs his own soul.

* Topic of The Christian Endeavor Society, and Baptist Young People's Union for Feb. 8, Gen. 4: 8-12; Judges 16: 20, 21; I. Sam. 3: 11-14; 15: 22-29.

"Perfect Gems"

The pictures in the "Family Art Gallery" are all perfect gems and very beautiful. I am exceedingly interested in the Hall of Fame, which is a perfect thesaurus of knowledge on the subject. Many thanks for your excellent paper and valuable premiums.

Kewana, Ill. (REV.) JOHN GIFFEN.

This book, with THE CHRISTIAN HERALD one year, $2.

The Maule Seed Book

for 1903 is free to all interested in gardening who mention this paper. If you want an up-to-date garden you ought to have it, the best seed catalogue I have ever published. The first edition alone costs over $37,000. Address

WM. HENRY MAULE,
1711 Filbert Street,
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

HEMET LANDS IN CALIFORNIA

THE best watered lands in California. Located near Los Angeles. Inexhaustible rich soil—the accumulation of centuries. Soil and climate suitable for oranges, lemon and olive culture. Corn, wheat and potatoes yield splendid crops. Market good. Prices excellent. Town of Hemet awake awake, has progressive stores, bank, schools and churches.

FREE Large illustrated pamphlet giving reliable information about the best irrigable lands in California, in tracts to suit. Easy payments and perfect title.

HEMET LAND COMPANY
Dept. F, Hemet, Riverside County, Cal.

CALIFORNIA

Reliable Information about orange growing, fruit culture, vegetable gardening, grain growing, poultry, climate, soil, water, lands, power, markets, manufacturing facilities wages, etc.

Send 50c for illustrated cloth-bound book "San Francisco and Thereabout". All other printed matter and information sent free.

California Promotion Committee
REPRESENTING STATE COMMERCIAL ORGANIZATIONS
Dept. P 25 New Montgomery Street
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA

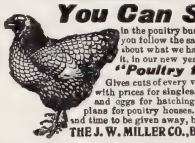
Counting Chicks Before Hatching

is not safe unless you have an

IOWA ROUND INCUBATOR

R. C. Bauerminster, Norwood, Minn., got 493 chicks from 503 eggs. He followed directions, the machine did the work, because it was built on right principles and by good workmen. The IOWA has fiber-board case, does not shrink, swell, warp or crack. Regulation and ventilation perfect. Our free book gives more testimonials and full particulars. Everything about incubation free.

IOWA INCUBATOR COMPANY, BOX 246, DES MOINES, IOWA



You Can Succeed

in the poultry business just as we have if you follow the same plans. We tell all about what we have done and how we did it, in our new year book,

"Poultry for Profit."

Gives cuts of every variety of fowl, together with prices for singles, pairs, trios and pens, and eggs for hatching, in season. Cute and plans for poultry houses. It cost too much money and time to be given away, but is sent for 10 cents.

THE J. W. MILLER CO., Box 179 Freeport, Ill.

WE GIVE TIME

for you to prove that CYPHERS INCUBATORS produce better results than any other machine made. The guarantee says they must or your money all back. Write for 196 page Book No. 67, "How to Make Money With Poultry and Incubators." Fully covers the subject. 10 cents for postage; book free.

Cyphers Incubator Company,
Buffalo, N. Y. Chicago, Ill. Boston, Mass. New York, N.Y.

DON'T PAY MONEY

for an incubator you have not tried, when you can get the best, the Royal Incubator, on 30 days free trial. It is entirely automatic and certain in results. Try one. Catalogue free.

ROYAL INCUBATOR CO., Dept. 71 Des Moines, Iowa.

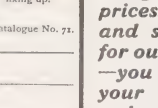
FENCE! STRONGEST MADE, Bull Strong, Chicken Tight.

Sold to the Farmer at Wholesale Prices. Fully Warranted. Catalog Free. COILED SPRING FENCE CO. Box 47 Winchester, Indiana, U. S. A.

DON'T SET HENS the same old way while A 200 Egg Natural Hen Incubator Costs But $5, other sizes equally as low. Over 125,000 in use. Indispensable to anyone who keeps a hen. Our Patents protected against infringements. Agents wanted everywhere, either sex, no experience necessary. Catalogue telling all about and 25c Lice Formula FREE. If you write today.

NATURAL HEN INCUBATOR CO., Box 891, Columbus, Nebraska.

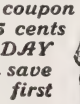
ORNAMENTAL FENCING



Made of steel. Best workmanship. Handsomest in design. Perfect yard protection. LOWEST IN PRICE. Fully Guaranteed. Special prices to Churches and Cemeteries. Catalogue FREE.

KITSELMAN BROTHERS,
136 Oak St. Muncie, Indiana.

THE SURE HATCH



incubator better than ever. New regulator, greatest improvement ever made in incubators. Big illustrated catalog free.

SURE HATCH INCUBATOR CO., Clay Center, Neb., or Columbus, Ohio.

The Wonderful Mission of the Internal Bath.

Do you know that many of the greatest physicians endorse and prescribe this treatment? Also that the following distinguished people are among its patrons: Governor Pingree, of Michigan, ex-Governor Goodell, of Vermont, U. S. Senator A. P. Gorman, of Maryland, General T. S. Peck, G. A. R., Vermont, Miles Devine, ex-City Attorney, Chicago, Ill., Rev. J. Lowery, St. Mary's Church, Troy, N. Y., Rev. A. N. Keigwin, 1025 Park Place, Wilmington, Del., Rev. Dr. John Potts, Victoria College, Toronto, Canada, Rev. W. L. Strange, New Plymouth, Idaho, and hosts of others? Do you know that it goes to the root of and eradicates scores of the most troublesome and dangerous diseases that afflict mankind? Do you know that an occasional Internal Bath is a better preventive of illness and preserver of health than any other single means?

The record of its benefits reads like a revelation to those hitherto unacquainted with it. It is used (by means of the "J. B. L. Cascade," the only scientific appliance for this purpose) by hundreds of the best known people in New York and by innumerable ministers, lawyers, and other persons whose intelligence gives unequivocal weight to their testimony.

It is known that seven-tenths of all disease arises from the retention of foreign matter in the human system; also that the greatest part of this waste is held in the colon, which is Nature's sewer. Hence, the flushing of this sewer removes the greatest cause of disease. While immeasurably the best treatment for constipation, indigestion, etc., there is scarcely any known disease for which the "J. B. L. Cascade" may not be confidently prescribed.

We want to send free to every person, sick or well, a simple statement setting forth this treatment. It contains matter which must interest every thinking person. If you live in New York you are earnestly invited to call, but if you can not call, write for our pamphlet "The What, The Why, The Way," which will be sent free on application, together with our Great Special Offer for this month only.

TYRRELL'S HYGIENIC INSTITUTE,
Clerk 10-V, 1562 Broadway, New York.
(Between 46th and 47th Streets.)

CALIFORNIA INFORMATION FREE

THE SACRAMENTO VALLEY

is picturesque, healthful and productive. No snow or ice, richest soil, abundant water, direct transportation everywhere, advantages of modern Sacramento city, local or Eastern markets and every inducement to settlers and investors. Produces everything grown from New England to Florida. All products reach highest perfection and mature early. Write for official illustrated booklets containing California information and descriptions; also statistics on all fruit and agricultural subjects to Manager Board of Commerce, 250 K St. Sacramento, Cal.

VIGOROUS CHICKS

are the results of Petaluma Incubators. They maintain Nature's conditions. They have no accidents, make no failures. Catalogue free.

PETALUMA INCUBATOR COMPANY,
Box 64 Petaluma, Cal. Box 64 Indianapolis, Ind.

Twenty-Five Hundred Strong

We Await Your Orders

Each employee thoroughly trained to attend to his or her special part of your order in the quickest possible time and without mistake. Not only best goods at lowest prices, but PROMPT SHIPMENTS are largely responsible for our immense and still rapidly increasing business. Ninety-seven out of every hundred orders are shipped within 3 days after being received and thousands are shipped the same day.

Don't you think it would pay you to trade with us? From our large catalogue you can buy everything you need at wholesale prices. Fill out the coupon and send it with 15 cents for our catalogue TODAY—you will more than save your money on the first order you send us.

CUT OUT THIS COUPON
Send for Catalogue TODAY and get ready for Spring "fixing up."

Montgomery Ward & Co., Chicago.

Enclosed find 15 cents, for which please send me Catalogue No. 71.

Name _____
Write very plain.
Express Office _____ Post Office _____
County _____ State _____

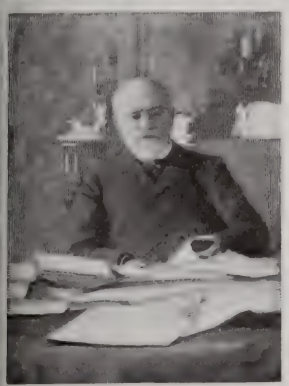
Montgomery Ward & Co., Chicago

Why not place your Mid-Winter Order with us?
What will you need during January and February?
Look ahead—Better begin by filling out coupon below.
SAVE YOUR EYES
Write for special spectacle catalogue with instructions for fitting, free.
17

GEMS FROM NEW BOOKS

The Future of War*

IN his introduction to the book, The Future of War, Edwin D. Mead briefly sketches the career of the famous author. He writes: "Jean de



THE LATE M. BLOCH

Bloch was a poor Polish Jew, beginning his life as a pedler, hawking his wares about the streets of Warsaw. Finally getting through good fortune a sum of money, he resolved that he would push out of the ignorance and narrowness into which he was born, and he found his way to Berlin. There he studied for three years, largely with French and English tutors, and then went back to Warsaw.

"He was a man of immense energy and a devoted student. He rapidly acquired a fortune as a banker and also obtained a high reputation as a sociologist and economist. He married a rich and talented woman, and their home became a notable intellectual centre. He wrote exhaustive works in many volumes upon Russian railways, Russian finance, and Russian local government. It was to him presently that the Russian commercial folks and the Russian government were turning to finance their operations. He became the leading banker of Poland—a sort of Polish Rothschild—and he became the president of important railway systems. He was led, as a result of all this, to understand what were the menaces to the economy of states of the war system obtaining in Europe. Seeing that war lay at the root of the trouble, he devoted himself for years to the preparation of his exhaustive work on The Future of War, the most powerful arraignment of war and the most powerful argument for the peace of the world, which has been written in our time, or perhaps in any time. From his youth he had studied war, and he had written many pamphlets on military subjects; but The Future of War was his supreme effort.

"Jean de Bloch said: 'We must appeal to the purse, to common sense, and make men see that this war system is the most stupid thing in creation.' That was where he directed almost his whole argument. He said that if it came to a great European war, that war could only cease with the annihilation of one combatant and the financial ruin of the other. He said that, so far from this question of an international court being a Utopian thing, it was the men who were going on with their schemes for wars who were really dealing in chimeras: that the time has come when we should apply our resources, not to the things which waste and devastate, but to the things that build up states and the industries and the social welfare of men."

In a preface by William T. Stead, some remarkable conversations with M. Bloch are given, from which we can only make brief extracts. M. Bloch says: "Then, instead of war tought out to the bitter end in a series of decisive battles, we shall have as a substitute a long period of continually increasing strain upon the resources of the combatants. The war, instead of being a hand-to-hand contest in which the contestants measure their physical and moral superiority, will become a kind of stalemate, in which neither army being able to get at the other, both armies will be maintained in opposition to each other, threatening each other, but never being able to deliver a final and decisive attack. It will be simply the natural evolution of the armed peace, on an aggravated scale."

"Humanity has progressed beyond the stage in which war can any longer be regarded as a possible Court of Appeal," writes M. Bloch. "Even military service has lost much of its fascination. At one time, war appealed to the imagination of man, and the poets and painters found no theme so tempting as depicting the heroism of the individual warrior, whose courage and might often turned the tide of battle, and decided the destiny of nations. All that has long gone by the board. War has become more and more a matter of mechanical arrangement. Modern battles will be decided, so far as they can be decided at all, by men lying in improvised ditches which they have scooped out to protect themselves from the fire of a distant invisible enemy. All the pomp and circumstance of glorious war disappeared when smokeless powder was invented."

Referring to the cost of the great wars of the nineteenth century, M. Bloch gives the following approximate figures: French Revolution, $4,200,000,000; Napoleonic Wars (cost France), $116,625,000; Crimean War (cost all engaged), $1,700,000,000; War of 1859 (France, Austria, Sardinia), $253,000,000; American Civil War, $5,000,000,000; Danish War (Denmark, Prussia, Austria), $72,000,000; Austro-Prussian War (cost both), $330,000,000; Franco-Prussian War (cost both), $2,533,400,000; Russo-Turkish War, 1877 (cost Russia), $1,209,750,000.

The Future of War*, in its Technical, Economic and Political Relations, by Jean de Bloch, pp. 380, illustrated with numerous maps and diagrams, cloth covers. Price 65 cents. Ginn & Co., Boston, publishers.

BOOKS RECEIVED

The Gordian Knot: or the Problem which Baffles Infidelity, by Dr. A. T. Pierson. Pp. 265. Price 65 cts. Published by Funk & Wagnalls, New York.

Daniel in the Critics' Den. A Reply to Prof. Driver, by Sir Robert Anderson, LL.D. Pp. 186. Published by The Fleming H. Revell Co., New York.

The Bible for Children: arranged from the King James Version, with 24 full page illustrations from the Old Masters, compiled by Mrs. Joseph B. Gilder. Pp. 475. Price $3. Published by The Century Co., New York.

Last of the Barrier, Side Lights on the Manchuria Mission, by Rev. J. Miller Graham. A book of timely interest, full of instructive facts about a strange people, and finely illustrated. Pp. 235. Price $1. Fleming H. Revell Co., New York, publishers.

Joy in Service, by the Rev. Geo. T. Purves, D.D., and The Teacher and Pastor, by Prest. F. L. Patton, are issued in a neat little book by the American Tract Society, New York. Price 50c., bound in cloth.

A Superb Work

DEAR CHRISTIAN HERALD:—It is only due you, in your untiring efforts to more than please your subscribers, to say that the Red Letter Bible is a superb work of the printer's art and skill. The arrangement is certainly a most happy and beneficent one. I could not offer a single criticism. The "Art Gallery," framed in passe-partout, makes one of the most delightful corners in my study. My mind is equally centered on "The Evening Anthem" and "Off to the Fair," while Mrs. Bame likes "Lost in the Storm." We thank you.

Dawton, Ohio. (Rev.) CHAS. A. BAME.

The Red Letter Bible, with THE CHRISTIAN HERALD one year, $3.

"The Stretched Forefinger of all Time" is on the dial of an

Elgin Watch

—the world's standard for pocket timepieces. Perfect in construction: positive in performance. Sold by every jeweler in the land; fully guaranteed. Booklet free.

ELGIN NATIONAL WATCH CO.
ELGIN, ILLINOIS.

SEEDS THAT SUCCEED

The seed house of D. Landreth & Sons, the oldest in America, has had 176 years' experience with seeds, and the results of this are placed at the service of farmers and gardeners in a handsomely illustrated catalogue, issued free. No grower of seeds, professional or amateur, can afford to be without the valuable information contained in this catalogue. Send for it.

AMERICA'S BED FOR 1903.

The plants to make this attractive and showy bed are worth from $2.00 to $5.00, according to size, but you can have the seeds to grow them, free of charge, by entering into advantageous agreement with your cash order amounting to $1.00 or more. See large illustration and full description in Landreth's catalogue. Write today for the catalogue.

Good Gardens Assured

JAS. VICK, formerly of Rochester, Manager of Mail Order Department.

D. Landreth & Sons, Philadelphia.

SEND US 25c. to cover cost of packing and postage, and receive this grand "sunshine" collection of Beautiful Flowers, our new catalogue containing the most liberal offers ever made, and a CASH CHECK for 25c., giving you your money back.

20 PACKETS SEED

1 Pkt Evening Primrose	1 Pkt Giant Daisy
1 Pkt Kudzu Vine	1 Pkt Aster
1 Pkt Balloon Vine	1 Pkt Begonia
1 Pkt Baby Rose	1 Pkt Cal. Poppy
1 Pkt Blue Bells	1 Pkt Love Lies Bleeding
1 Pkt Star Flower	2 Pkts Pansy (mixed)
1 Pkt Double Carnation	1 Pkt Chrysanthemum
1 Pkt Petunia, white	1 Pkt Double Portulacca
	1 Pkt Sweet Pea
	1 Pkt Cypress Vine
	1 Pkt Wild Flower garden

20 Bulbs 1 Calla, 1 Madeira Vine, 2 Gladiolus, 2 Cinnamon Vine, 1 Ameme, 2 Hyacinth, 1 Mentbretia, 10 Bulbs for Edging or Hanging Basket, 20 Pkts Seed, 20 Bulbs, Cash Check and Catalogue all for the price of the packing and postage 25c.

J. ROSCOE FULLER & CO., Floral Park, N. Y.

At Tree Agents Prices?

Why not save half your money by buying direct of us, the growers of trees, plants and vines? We sell Fruit and Ornamental Trees, Shrubs, Roses, Bulbs and Small Fruit plants, at one-half agents' prices. Correspondence solicited. Illustrated catalogue free. Established 25 years. 200 acres. 750,000 Apple, Peach and Cherry Trees for sale. Secrets of Fruit Growing, 150 photos, mailed for 10 cents.

GREEN'S NURSERY CO., Rochester, N. Y.

All Round the Garden you will see luxuriant growths if you use

GREGORY'S SEEDS

Sold under three warrants. New catalogue free.

J. J. H. Gregory & Son, Marblehead, Mass.

GREGORY'S SEED CATALOGUE FOR 1903

Ferry's Seeds

are planted by farmer and gardener who has stopped experimenting. It pays to pay a little more for Ferry's and reap a great deal more at the harvest. All dealers. 1903 Seed Annual postpaid free to all applicants.

D. M. FERRY & CO., Detroit, Mich.

STARK TREES best by Test—78 Years LARGEST Nursery. FRUIT BOOK free. We PAY CASH WANT MORE SALESMEN Weekly

STARK BRO'S, Louisiana, Mo.; Dansville, N. Y.; Etc

SEEDS Vegetable and Flower. In fact everything in the Nursery and Florist line. We send by mail postpaid Seeds, Plants, Roses, Bulbs, Small Trees, Etc., safe arrival and satisfaction guaranteed, larger by express or freight. Send for our elegant 168 page free catalogue and see what values we give for your money. 49 years, 44 greenhouses, 1,000 acres.

THE STORRS & HARRISON CO., Box 220, PAINESVILLE, OHIO.

Burpee's Seeds, Philadelphia

A postal addressed as above will bring you Burpee's Farm Annual for 1903,—if you intend to buy Burpee's Seeds,—otherwise the price is ten cents, which is less than cost per copy in quarter-million editions. It is an elegant book of 184 pages, besides beautiful colored plates, and tells the plain truth about the Best Seeds that Grow. Better write TO-DAY! Do not Delay!

ARTISTIC MONUMENTS

DUE respect for our departed loved ones demands that we erect ARTISTIC and ENDURING MEMORIALS

Marble has ever been an unfortunate failure. Weeds grow, flowers and trees flourish, and sticks appear everywhere. Some cemeteries look more like a neglected marble quarry. Granite, too, soon gets discolored, moss grows, cracks, crumbles and decays. Besides, it is very expensive.

WHITE BRONZE monuments are cheaper and . . . Infinitely Better. They are tried by everlasting Rust, corrosion and moss proof. They CANNOT crumble from the action of frost. WHITE BRONZE is far more artistic and expressive than any stone. Then why not investigate it? It has been on the market for over twenty-five years and has established success.

It has been adopted to more than a hundred public monuments and to thousands of dwellings in all parts of the country. Many granite dealers have used White Bronze in preference to granite for their own private use.

We have hundreds of beautiful designs of pieces from $1 to $1,000. We deal direct and deliver everywhere. Distance no obstacle. Write us at once for designs and information if you are interested. It costs nothing and puts you under no obligations whatever.

Special Inducements Offered on Winter Orders. Over $10,000 worth of work sold to Christian Herald readers in the last few years. AGENTS WANTED.

THE MONUMENTAL BRONZE CO.,
70-90 Howard Ave., Bridgeport, Conn.

RHEUMATISM
Relieved Without Medicine

9,000 Persons Permanently Relieved by Magic Foot Drafts Last Year. They Will Bring Comfort to YOU.

Trial Pair FREE on Approval to Anybody. Try Them.

Our new booklet on rheumatism, which is sent free with the trial Drafts, contains letters from the following persons, who have received permanent relief from rheumatism by using Magic Foot Drafts:

Mrs. W. D. Harriman, wife of Judge Harriman, of Ann Arbor, Mich.

Carl C. Pope, U. S. Commissioner at Black River Falls, Wis., who had Rheumatic Gout.

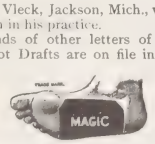
T. C. Pendleton, Jackson, Mich., who suffered with severe rheumatism of the arms, neck and back.

Mrs. Casper Yahrsdorfer, Jackson, Mich., 70 years old, after suffering for 30 years.

James Gilbert, Locomotive Dept., Mich. Cent. R. R., Jackson, Mich., after 27 years of pain.

Dr. Van Vleck, Jackson, Mich., who is now using them in his practice.

Thousands of other letters of praise for Magic Foot Drafts are on file in our office.



Send no money—we only ask your name—and we will send you prepaid a pair of Magic Foot Drafts. If you are satisfied with the relief they give you, then send us One Dollar. If not, don't send us a cent. We know there's comfort and happiness in every pair and we want you to have them; that's why we are willing to take our pay after the work is done.

The drafts are worn on the soles of the feet, but they relieve rheumatism in every part of the body by drawing out and absorbing the poison from the system besides greatly benefiting the general health. Try them—Free. Write today to Magic Foot Draft Co., R A 28 Oliver Building, Jackson, Mich.

A GRAND INVENTION!

Famous Puritan Water Still. Over 75,000 already sold. Placed over the kitchen stove, it purifies the foulest water. Removes every impurity. Furnishes delicious distilled Pure Water. Beats filters. Saves lives and Dr. bills. Prevents Typhoid Malaria, other fevers, sickness. Only safe water for children. Write for Booklet and testimonials free. Agents Wanted Men and Women —Big Wages.

Harrison Mfg. Co., 667 Harrison Bldg., Cincinnati, O.

QUAINT PSALMS for QUEER FOLK

By Rev. C. H. Yatman

PSALM LXI
Abiding Psalm

1. Hear my cry, O God; attend unto my prayer.
2. From the end of the earth will I cry unto thee, when my heart is overwhelmed: lead me to the rock that is higher than I.
3. For thou hast been a shelter for me, and a strong tower from the enemy.
4. I will abide in thy tabernacle for ever: I will trust in the covert of thy wings.

"IN THY TABERNACLE"

The Abiding Chapter and Abiding Psalm go together. The Vine of the first is the Lord of the second. The truth of both is exactly the same. Abiding saints are not few, but the world needs many more. "I will abide in thy tabernacle," and "He shall abide before God forever," is spoken of the one whose life is hid with Christ in God.

. . .

PSALM LXII
Expectation Psalm

5. My soul, wait thou only upon God; for my expectation is from him.
6. He only is my rock and my salvation: he is my defence; I shall not be moved.

"HE ONLY IS MY ROCK"

Both they who wait upon wealth and upon the world are often grievously disappointed, but never those who wait upon God and whose "expectation is from Him." Realization is far greater than expectation to all who make this Psalm their own. The surprises in store for redeemed sinners are beyond telling. The Expectation Psalm takes our eyes from men of high degree and low, and riches too, and puts them on God.

. . .

PSALM LXIII
Meditation Psalm

5. My soul shall be satisfied as with marrow and fatness; and my mouth shall praise thee with joyful lips:
6. When I remember thee upon my bed, and meditate on thee in the night watches.
7. Because thou hast been my help, therefore in the shadow of thy wings will I rejoice.

"WHEN I REMEMBER THEE"

This Psalm is intended to regain unto a host of queer folk the lost art of meditation. Satisfaction to the soul comes in this way. There is far too little thought now-a-days on the sufferings of Christ, and his death and resurrection. Deeper thought would produce a higher life. More meditation on God would bring more manifestation of God.

. . .

PSALM LXIV
Satanic Psalm

5. They encourage themselves in an evil matter: they commune of laying snares privily; they say, Who shall see them?
6. They search out iniquities; they accomplish a diligent search: both the inward thought of every one of them, and the heart, is deep.
7. But God shall shoot at them with an arrow.

. . .

David here turns painter, and gives us the portrait of a man or set of men who resemble Satan. It's the picture of the devil-filled sinner. One is reminded of the man of Gadara at once. Folk like this large enough evil spirits to set many thousand of swine running mad. Their actions at times set good folk nearly crazy.

"LAYING SNARES PRIVILY"

WHO HAS NOT HEARD OR READ OF THE MARVELOUS QUAKER RELIEFS WITHOUT DRUGS AFTER DOCTORS AND MEDICINES FAILED.

A GRAND INVENTION.—Physicians astonished and Thousands of Grateful Users Testify To The Marvelous Results Obtained From The

QUAKER HOT AIR AND VAPOR BATH TREATMENT

No disease can resist its marvelous power. Benefits every Man, Woman and Child

MARY L. WILLIS, of Cloverdale, Ala., testifies that it saved her life, relieved her of dropsy after doctors and medicines failed to benefit her.

JUDGE J. O. HUTCHINS, Haywards, Calif., testifies that it rescued him from the grave. Was a confirmed invalid for 15 years. Baffled best doctors. Thanks God the marvelous power of the Quaker relieved him of weak heart, sleeplessness, catarrh, rheumatism, and partial paralysis. Is to-day well and vigorous.

L. J. MORRISON, Pellville, Ky., afflicted 30 years, unable to walk, was relieved of rheumatism, and general debility after everything else failed.

REDUCED TO $3.50

JOHN C. PERRY, Norfolk, W. Va., wasted away until he was a mere skeleton on crutches. Afflicted with worst case of blood poison and rheumatism on record. Was relieved after doctors, medicines and everything failed by the Quaker Treatment. Improved after first trial.

JOHN H. SHAUCH, Marlboro, N. J., says: I doctored and doctored with no benefit. Physicians at Long Branch Hospital told me four years ago I had that deadly disease, Loco-Motor Ataxia and would never be well. Read of the wonderful benefits of the Quaker, sent for it and commenced at once to grow strong and well. No aches or pains. Took no medicine.

JOHN CURTIS, Box 321, Malone, N. Y., afflicted from head to foot with frightful eczema. Also impure blood and weak heart was relieved after doctors and all failed. Had despaired of life.

ELIZABETH COLEMAN, Bokoshe, I. T., testifies that her doctor told her two years ago she had deadly bright's disease. Could not live a month. He recommended the Quaker Treatment. She writes it saved her life. Now well and strong. Does her own housework.

REV. J. W. HENDERSON, Weston, La., writes: That his son 13 years old the doctors had given up to die. Badly blood poisoned. So terribly afflicted with dropsy, could not walk. Thank God the marvelous power of the Quaker Cabinet relieved him in two weeks.

D. P. SMITH, Greensburg, Kan. An old soldier. Never a well day since 1862. A mere wreck. 63 years old. After most eminent doctors failed to benefit, was relieved of heart failure, rheumatism and sore eyes. To-day is hale and hearty.

MRS. ANNA WOODRUM, Thurman, Iowa, afflicted for years, testifies that she was relieved of nervous prostration, headache, indigestion, with the Quaker Treatment after doctors and medicines failed. Has since sold many Cabinets to friends, and says everyone is delighted.

MRS. L. COEN, of Maysville, Mo., was relieved of pains, congestions, etc., and recommends the Quaker as a God-Send to all.

MRS. W. BLACKWELL, Birmingham, Miss., writes: "I hope that old chronic cases like mine that have been doctored half to death will not give up but take courage as I did, and try the wonderful Quaker Bath Cabinet Treatment. I had muscular paralysis 3 years. Was helpless. Doctors said I was a hopeless case. After three of the famous Quaker Treatments my improvement was wonderful, and now a year later I can walk as well as ever. Am fat and well."

WM. CORNET, Smithville, Miss., 72 years old. Terribly afflicted with lung trouble 16 years. Hardly able to walk. Testifies that it did him more good than all medicines and 7 doctors. Benefited his lungs. Relieved his neuralgia and rheumatism. After three treatments threw away his cane. Walked 7 miles.

REV. FRED. D. HAMILTON, Buffalo, says: "This Quaker Treatment did my wife more good in 5 weeks than 5 years doctoring and a fortune spent at Hot Springs and Health Resorts. Relieved her of nervousness and dropsy with which she had long suffered. It is a God-Sent blessing to humanity.

JULIAN F. TANNER, LaFayette, La., afflicted, testifies that this marvelous Treatment relieved him of a stroke of paralysis when the best doctors failed to benefit.

MISS M. SPARKS, Hatley, Miss., afflicted 2 years with acute indigestion, had not eaten solid food for 3 months. After six treatments could eat what she wanted. In a few months was completely well.

THE ATHENS SANITARIUM, Athens, Pa., writes: They find the Quaker Cabinet Treatment splendid for relieving Morphine, Cocaine, Opium, Cigarette, Tobacco and Liquor Habits. Hundreds of prominent people have been relieved there.

Thousands of other sufferers testify to the marvelous results of this Thermal Treatment.

EX-GOVERNOR ATKINSON, of W. Va.; U. S. SENATOR CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW, CONGRESSMAN JOHN J. LENTZ, RT. REV. BISHOP J. G. HARTZELL and hosts of other prominent people endorse it.

GROWING RICH ARE MEN AND WOMEN SELLING THIS GRAND INVENTION.

MR. VAN TASSEL made over $1,500.00 first five months selling these Cabinets. H. GLEASON made $1,777.00 first year. MRS. HOWARD, $59.00 one week. MISS NESNE, $205.00 profit. MRS. FLORA BEARD, $400.00 profit, ROBERT PEART sold 1,000 Cabinets first year, HAYWARD GARRETT took orders for 625 Cabinets in 3½ months.

Any honest lady or gentleman having spare time can get a good position at BIG PROFITS by writing us at once.

Let us send a Quaker on 30 days' trial

To be returned at our expense and your money refunded, if not as represented. Costs you nothing to try it. Our Quaker Cabinets have a National reputation for durability, convenience and healing properties. Over 300,000 Cabinets sold last year. Everybody needs it, men, women and children.

Our Cabinets are handsomely made, best materials, should last 20 years, guaranteed best on the market. Anyone can operate. Seated within the Cabinet, clouds of Hot Air and Vapor surround the entire body, giving a Hot Air and Vapor Bath, which opens the millions of skin pores, drawing out of the system all impure acids, salts and poisonous matter of the blood and internal organs which, if retained, overwork the vital organs and cause disease, debility and sluggishness. Keeps the body absolutely clean, inwardly and outwardly—vigorously and healthy without medicine. Clears the skin, beautifies the complexion. Safer than drugs. Cheaper than doctors and medicines. Wonderful blood purifier. Prevents disease. You enjoy one bath for 3 cents each all the cleansing, purifying and invigorating healing effects of the famous Turkish, Russian, Hot Air Sulphur or Medicated Baths, with no danger of taking cold afterward or weakening the system.

PRICES REDUCED For 60 DAYS. Our $5.00 Quaker Cabinet, rubber lined, complete with medicine and vaporizing pan, best alcohol heater, directions and 100 page "Health and Beauty Book," reduced to $3.50. Our $10.00 finest, best double-walled Quaker cabinet complete with fixtures as described above, reduced to $6.10. Our $1.00 Face and Head Steaming Attach., excellent for beautifying the complexion, relieving catarrh, asthma, bronchitis and throat troubles, reduced to 65 cents.

DON'T FAIL TO WRITE TO-DAY FOR VALUABLE "NEW BOOK" & SPECIAL OFFER FREE! Also testimonials from hundreds of users—Sent FREE, or, better still, order a Cabinet. Don't wait. You won't be disappointed or deceived, for we guarantee every Cabinet and cheerfully refund your money after 30 days' use, if not just as represented. We're reliable old Firm. Largest Mfrs. Capital $100,000.00. Ship immediately upon receipt of remittance. WRITE TO-DAY SURE.

AGENTS, SALESMEN AND MANAGERS WANTED

MEN AND WOMEN—Splendid chance. No experience. Write quick for new plan and Special 1903 proposition. Address, WRITE TO-DAY. THE WORLD M'F'G CO., 801 World Building, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

Cod Liver Oil is a Food and the greatest care should be exercised in its selection.

Peter Moller's Cod Liver Oil

is the best oil that over fifty years of continued scientific research has produced. By the process employed the oil is kept from contact with the atmosphere from the beginning of the process of manufacture until it is safely corked up in bottles, thus preventing contamination of any kind and excluding all impurities.

Ask for Peter Moller's Oil, and see that the bottle—a flat, oval one—bears our name as agents.

Schieffelin & Co., New York

DEAFNESS

The Morley Ear-Drum

is the most recent and most effective invisible device for the relief of DEAFNESS.

It is easily adjusted, comfortable and safe. Send for descriptive booklet.

The Morley Company,
Dept. E,
19 South 16th Street, Philadelphia.

The Natural Body Brace advertised in this paper in the first issue of this month is a delightful, certain remedy for ailments peculiar to women and girls. It makes walking and work easy; gives good figure and light step. Write the Natural Body Brace Co., Box 171, Salina, Kan. for free illustrated book.

MALTA-CERES

THE Health Food.

A Whole Year for 10 Cents

Once More this SPECIAL OFFER is made to the readers of Christian Herald

As a special offer from The Woman's Magazine of St. Louis, Mo., every reader of The Christian Herald who sends the small sum of 10 cents, will receive that beautifully illustrated monthly magazine every month for twelve months.

The Woman's Magazine is one of the largest and most beautifully illustrated monthly magazines published. Now has the largest paid subscription of any magazine in the world, having NEARLY ONE MILLION SUBSCRIBERS.

Each number contains from three to five splendid stories, ninety-six columns of special illustrated departments, telling all about Flowers, the Garden, Lacemaking and Embroidery (with new and beautiful patterns and designs each month), hundreds of new Cooking Receipts, How to Do Things, the Latest Fashions, Poultry and Pets, Household Decoration, Instruction in Dressmaking, Shorthand and Painting, Answers to Correspondents and Health and Beauty Columns.

Woman's Magazine

St. Louis Missouri

The Subscribers to The Woman's Magazine are now engaged in a contest on the attendance at the great St. Louis World's Fair, in which $75,000.00 IN GOLD will be distributed among those who are successful. You will have the same opportunity as any one else, if you will subscribe NOW.

The Readers of The Woman's Magazine Always Know How to Do Things. Their Gardens and Houses are the Wonder of Their Neighbors, because it contains Plain, Easily Understood Articles, telling More Good Things About Flowers and the Garden than regular Floral Papers and always seasonable. More Good Things About Fancy Work and Embroidery, with illustrated patterns, than Fashion Papers. More Good Things About Poultry and the Garden, and how to make money with them, than Poultry papers. More Good things about the Kitchen and Household than Household Papers.

Always Seasonable. Always Correct. Always Easily Understood.

Beautiful Photo Engravings 9 x 12 in. in each issue and THE BEST STORIES YOU EVER READ

This is the greatest opportunity you will ever get to secure one of the finest monthly magazines published, for a whole year for 10 cents, the price usually charged for a single copy of such a paper. DO NOT DELAY, but send 10 cents for the year's subscription, stating that you are a reader of The Christian Herald, to

THE WOMAN'S MAGAZINE, 107 N. 8th St., St. Louis, Mo.

NOTICE: If you wish to take advantage of this opportunity for your friends, you can send 10 cents each for as many subscriptions as you wish. You could not make a nicer present to your friends than one which will remind them each month for a year, of you, so pleasantly.

WOULDN'T YOU BUY A

$500 U.S. Bond for $10 Down

Then Balance at $6 per Month?

Wouldn't you at least be anxious to learn all the facts of such an unusual offer?

If the largest real estate firm in the world offered to sell you a $510 lot in Greater New York for $10 down and $6 a month—a lot that will likely be worth many times the value of a $500 Government bond within a few years—and the proposition was made by a firm just as reliable, just as substantial in financial circles as the United States Government is among the nations of the world,—a firm that has over 30,000 customers, in New York, in every State in the Union, in practically every country on the globe; a firm that has been entrusted with millions upon millions of dollars of these customers for investment and homes—we say, wouldn't the offer of such a firm be well worth investigating? Wouldn't you be just as anxious to hear their story?

During the past two seasons our advertisements have appeared in the leading magazines and religious publications of the country. In them we told you as convincingly as we knew how, of the extraordinary real estate conditions existing in New York City—how these conditions were due to the tremendous annual increase in population (over 100,000 a year)—the restricted territory in which New York can possibly expand—and the limited amount of land to be had in this Empire City of the World.

Thousands have taken advantage of our offer. Many have visited New York—confirmed every statement we have made—were convinced—and BOUGHT. In the past 4 years we have sold over seven million dollars' worth of New York property.

Doesn't it seem fair to presume that the same reasons which convinced so many thousands of practical, thinking men and women everywhere of the undoubted value of our proposition, would convince YOU? Isn't it worth the time at least to send us your name to-day—and learn how you may possibly make $5000 by paying $10 down and $6 a month until your payments amount to $510?

This may sound extravagant—yet every statement we make is based upon a fact—it is in evidence—it can be verified—it can be SEEN. Naturally we will be regarded as being biased in our opinions—as painting New York's future in too rosy colors—but what would you think

IF RUSSELL SAGE TOLD YOU

25% GUARANTEED INCREASE

For $10 down and $6 per month until paid for, we sell you a regular New York city lot, full size, subject to the following guarantees from us: If, at the expiration of the year 1903, this $510 lot is not worth $638—or 25 per cent. increase—based on the price at which our corps of salesmen will then be selling similar lots, we will refund all the money you have paid us with 6 per cent. interest additional. If you should die at any time before payments have been completed, we will give to your heirs a deed of the lot without further cost. If you should lose employment or be sick, you will not forfeit the land.

FREE TRIP TO NEW YORK

As a guarantee of good faith, we agree with all persons living East of Chicago, to pay you in cash the cost of your railroad fare to New York and return, if you visit our property and find one word of this advertisement a misrepresentation; or in case you buy, we will credit cost of the fare on your purchase; to those living farther away we will pay a proportion equal to round-trip Chicago ticket.

That You Could Make a Fortune in New York Real Estate—

(especially if it cost you only $10 down and $6 a month) wouldn't you be impressed? Well, listen! Here's just what Mr. Sage did say in the "New York World" of September 28, 1902:

"I do not think the future of New York can be depicted in terms any too glowing. The most fanciful writers cannot exaggerate the greatness of its future.

"A man who buys real estate in any of the five boroughs—of course exercising average good judgment—has a fortune before him. Brooklyn is growing at the rate of 75,000 people a year.

"Young man, buy real estate in the outlying boroughs, and then work hard at your usual avocation. Your real estate purchases will make your old age comfortable."

RUSSELL SAGE.

Our property is located in Brooklyn—it is therefore a very significant fact when Mr. Sage says Brooklyn is growing at the rate of 75,000 people a year." Think of it! That means three-fourths of all New York's enormous yearly increase of population.

REFERENCES: 20 National Banks, the Commercial Agencies, prominent magazines and religious periodicals, and the written testimony of thousands of satisfied customers whose addresses will be furnished upon application. Read this:—

"There is no doubt the property offered by Wood, Harmon & Co., in the 20th and 31st Wards, represents one of the best investments a man of limited income can possibly make within the corporate limits of Greater New York. It can be said without hesitancy that Wood, Harmon & Co. are perfectly reliable, and are worthy the fullest confidence of the investor, whether he resides in Greater New York or any other section of the United States. THE NASSAU NATIONAL BANK OF BROOKLYN."

Remember, your purchase is made with the distinct understanding that we will refund all money paid us, with 6% interest added if, after visiting New York within one year, it is found that we have misrepresented our proposition in the slightest particular. You will therefore run no risk whatever in sending $10, first payment, immediately, to secure earliest selection and share from the start in the increase in values. But write us in any case. That costs two cents and a minute's time. Isn't it worth while?

WOOD, HARMON & CO., Dept. B 14, 257 Broadway, New York

WOOD, HARMON & COMPANY
Dept. B 14, 257 Broadway, New York City

Gentlemen: Enclosed find $.....as first payment on.....lot..... on your New York property. Please send further information regarding your New York property.

(Leave order line blank if information only is desired.)

Name .....

Street and No. .....

City and State .....

Unusual opportunities for a limited number of energetic men of unquestioned reputation to act as our permanent representatives in their own community. Write us for particulars, addressing "Agency Dept. B 14," as above.

CHRISTIAN HERALD

SUBSCRIPTION, $1.50 PER ANNUM
Published 52 Times a Year

NEW YORK, FEBRUARY 4, 1903

VOL. 26—No. 5. PRICE 5 CENTS
Offices: Bible House, New York

SEE PAGE 95

The Splendor of India's Durbar—Lord and Lady Curzon on their State Elephant

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A S., Oakland, Calif. If a bank has a mortgage on a piece of property, and the owner cannot redeem same, it often is cheap to foreclose same, is a Christian justified in taking advantage of such a sale?

He must reconcile the matter with his own conscience. If his purchase does not operate to the disadvantage of the owner, it is hardly open to objection. There is, however, about such transactions, a disagreeable flavor of profiting by the misfortunes of others.

G. A., Waterbury, Conn. Can you not suggest some remedy by which the coal operators can be brought to justice? If we have arrived at a stage where there is no law to punish such doings, there is still left for you the thunderings of the old prophets on the oppressors of the poor, and the stronger words of Christ. It is reported in the newspapers that several deaths have occurred in Chicago, and doubtless many will occur in other cities, on account of the shortage of coal. Is there no responsibility, moral or otherwise, on those who have sidetracked hundreds of coal-laden trucks, and prevented them from being sent forward to market?

Our correspondent echoes the views of many others who have written us on the same subject. Chicago has taken a step which might be considered as a precedent, by lately securing the indictment by the local Grand Jury of some forty coal operators, on the charge of conspiring to deprive the public of fuel by holding it back for higher prices, to the great inconvenience and discomfort of the people and the danger of life and health. If other communities adopted a similar course, where it is justifiable, the end of the famine might soon be reached. It would be probably the shortest and most direct way of finding out who are actually responsible for the present condition of affairs.

In a communication from the Rev. R. B. Kimber, Superintendent of the P. E. City Mission Society, New York, the writer calls attention to the photograph of the Protestant Chapel in the new Tombs Prison (which appeared on this page recently) and says:

The note under the picture gives the credit of all the work in the prison among Protestants to the Gospel Mission. This is very misleading. The organ, the chancel furniture, doors, equipment of every sort, is the property of this Society, put in there at our expense, at the request of the Commissioner of Correction. The Gospel Mission to the Tombs does not possess one dollar's worth of furniture in that chapel. The lectern is the gift of an old friend and life-long contributor to this Society's work. This Society was organized in 1831, and has been at work in the Tombs from very early days.

In justice to Dr. Kimber and the worthy Society he represents, this explanation is due.

Mrs. L. G. H., Shingle House, Pa., writes:

I wish several people would mention some expressions, heard in sermons, which have helped them most. Once I heard these words, "Sanctified common sense," which have been a sermon to me ever since. The minister stated that that was what each Christian needed.

D. J. H., Cochran, Ga. Upon what grounds could Mr. Taft make any agreement with a representative of the Pope in the Philippines, as reported in the press dispatches? Was it not unconstitutional?

We believe the negotiations referred to related solely to the transfer of lands held by the Dominican monks, under old Spanish titles. We can express no opinion as to the constitutionality of the agreement, but we have never heard that it was regarded as unconstitutional. Our government, instead of taking by force, preferred to pay.

B. S., Trenton, N. J. The Oriental who calls himself "The Prophet Mirza Ghulam Ahmad," and who claims to be a Messiah (and takes the truth or falsity of his claim upon his confiding Piggott, the London fanatic, who recently announced himself as the Messiah) is very little known in India. As far as can be learned, he is one of those religious pretenders who have no special claim to distinction, and whose utterances are unworthy of serious attention.

N. A. W. H., Cresswell, Oreg. Has a person any right to expect a home in heaven, who does not, when opportunity offers, bear public testimony that he or she is on the Lord's side?

See Matt. 10: 32, 33, and Luke 12: 8, 9.

Mattie S. Why were the Hebrews called "Jews?"

Only those who were of the tribe of Judah were properly so called. The Israelites were called "Hebrews." During the captivity, however, the term "Jew" seems to have been extended to all people of Hebrew language and race without distinction. It was used in the latter sense in New Testament times and is still so used to-day.

Mrs. Gertrude P. Was President McKinley a member of the Methodist Church?

Yes; he joined the M. E. Church in Poland, Mahoning County, O., in 1859. He was afterward a member and frequent attendant of the First M. E. Church of Canton, O.

M. P. O., Reedville, Oreg. Give the exact pronunciation, phonetically, of our President's name, and state what it means.

It is generally pronounced in two syllables, viz., Roos-velt, although the President himself says the proper way is to pronounce the "e" as a third or middle syllable. It is of Dutch origin, and is equivalent to "Redfield" in English.

C. H. G., Gloversville, N. Y. Where was Paul when he wrote the Epistles to the Thessalonians?

It is difficult to credit the statement made in the Authorized Version that he was at Athens. The Revisers clearly attached no weight to it and dropped it. Referring to Acts 17, it will be seen that Paul made but a brief stay in Athens, and when he visited that city, it was so soon after leaving Thessalonica, that his remark (I. Thess. 2: 18) that he had tried to visit the Thessalonians again, but had been "hindered once and again," seems to imply a longer absence. Then, too, his words (I. Thess. 3: 1) about being left in Athens alone do not read like those of one writing from that city. It seems more probable that when Paul left Athens, he sent Timothy to Thessalonica, as he says, and himself went to Corinth, where Timothy took his report, on receiving which Paul wrote to the Thessalonians. Acts 18: 5 shows that it was to Corinth that Timothy went, and as he was with Paul when the epistles were written, as you see from the opening words of each, there is no logical reason for doubting that it was from Corinth that both epistles were written.

MILTON'S COTTAGE AT CHALFONT, ST. GILES, BUCKINGHAMSHIRE

At St. Giles, in Buckinghamshire, still stands the old home of John Milton, the famous poet. To reach the house from the main road, one must traverse the whole of the winding village street, at the end of which, on the left hand, stands the well-preserved cottage. A notice-board informs visitors that, on paying a fee of sixpence, they may inspect the interior, where the old ingle-nook, formed by a curious chimney, and other main features of the house are in the same condition as when the poet came there to escape the Plague of London. Here he finished his great work, the immortal Paradise Lost. The property is held in trust for the public, and will thus escape the hand of the spoiler.

L. G. H., Shingle House, Pa. What is the relation to God of feeble-minded or insane people? Are their sins forgiven, or is it held that they do not sin?

We may be quite sure that God will deal justly with all his creatures. He does not require of any man more than that man is capable of rendering. The insane person, having lost the power of controlling his actions, has died a mental and spiritual death. We can imagine his being held responsible for his actions prior to the time of his losing his reason; but not for what he does afterwards. To the idiot or imbecile, who has never had the use of his reason, we cannot see how responsibility can be imputed.

Emily G., Brooklyn, N. Y. The phrase, "Conspicuous by its absence," was used last Sunday by our pastor with much effect. Is it original with him or has it been used before?

It is at least as old as the days of Julius Cæsar. Lord John Russell, of England, made use of it in an address in 1850, and he afterward admitted that he had adopted the phrase verbatim from Tacitus, the Roman historian.

F. P., Stockport, N. Y. Is there any mode of finding out when the Jews ceased relying on tradition and began to keep a written record of events?

We have no certain knowledge; but it is inferred from the style and character of the words used, that certain parts of Exodus, notably the twentieth chapter, and probably the fourteenth to the sixteenth, were set down in writing during the wilderness wanderings. They were probably the earliest of the Bible records. It is likely that during the same period the traditions contained in the book of Genesis were reduced to writing, though the critics believe that they were woven into a connected narrative, as we have them, at a later period.

D. McL., Paterson, N. J. How old is the slot machine, and where did the idea originate—in this country or Europe?

In neither. The principle of the slot machine is very ancient. In the old Egyptian temples, the "holy water" was not free, but was kept in a closed vessel. When five drachmæ (small coins), were dropped into the top of the vessel, a valve opened and allowed the escape of a small quantity of the water, after which it closed again automatically. This was described in a publication of the seventeenth century, called Spiritalia.

Reader, Green Bay, Wis. What is meant by the Beast and his mark in Rev. 14: 9? Is it possible, as some people here contend, that the keeping of the Lord's Day instead of Saturday is the mark referred to?

The Seer of Revelation appears to have had his visions in the form of a series of scenes, as in a panorama. Almost at the close, he saw the beast you refer to. It is evidently identical with the beast described by Daniel (7: 7). It is representative of the power which is said to have throughout the world's history opposed God. It appears in John's narrative in a series of forms, and is sometimes identified with a persecuting church, and sometimes is the civil power. At the culmination of its career, John saw it as the great Antichrist, who is yet to arise, who would attain to such power in the world, that he would exclude any man from office and from even engaging in trade, who did not acknowledge him. Only those who bear the mark of the beast can buy or sell in that time. This mark is apparently a badge to be worn on forehead or hand, or as some scholars think, is merely the coins to be used in business, which will bear Antichrist's title symbolized by the number 666. By no logical interpretation can it be indicative of the observance of a day. If such an interpretation could be forced upon it, it would apply, not to people who in observing the Lord's day honor Christ, but to people who in going back to a Jewish custom really place themselves in an antichristian attitude. But, as we believe, the vision does not apply to Sabbath observance at all.

J. R., Covington, Ky. What is meant by the "Battle of the Nations?"

Among writers on prophecy it may mean the great battle of the nations of the earth at Armageddon—the final stand of the forces of sin against the armies of righteousness. In a secular sense, however, the "Battle of the Nations" was the famous engagement at Leipsic, in October, 1813, when Napoleon fought the allied powers of Russia, Prussia, Austria, Sweden, Denmark, and England.

G. W. R., Bridgeton, Me. Are we to understand that only few will be saved, as stated, Matt. 7: 14, or will there be a multitude so great that no man could number them as stated, Rev. 7: 9?

The one passage does not contradict the other. The number of God's people in any generation may be few, in proportion to the whole number of persons then living in the world at the time, and yet when brought together out of every generation at the close of the world's history, they might be more numerous than John or any other observer could count in a vision.

Mrs. H. S., Morristown, O. Lorenzo Dow died at Washington Feb. 2, 1834.

A Reader, Gustavus, O., of Kinsman, O., writes, that there is work in that dairy town for at least fifty men, but men cannot be had.

A. S., Fergus Falls, Minn. The scarcity in Sweden and Norway, as advices show, is very general, but nowhere so serious as in Finland.

Readers. The attitude of this journal on the liquor question is so well known, and has been repeatedly so clearly defined in its columns, that no reader need ever be in doubt on the subject.

W. E. McE., Almont, Ont., Can. Hypnotism is not yet recognized as a science, and as it is principally practised by charlatans and humbugs, it is wise to let it alone and to avoid those professing to teach it.

Who Love their Country

I write to acknowledge the receipt of the gems of art in the "Family Art Gallery," the Calendar and The Hall of Fame. They are all that you claim for them. I am specially interested in The Hall of Fame, in which Dr. Banks has conferred a favor upon all who love their country, by putting in this concise and attractive form the facts everybody will want to know. H. J. CLARK,

Principal Normal and Industrial Collegiate Institute, Joppa, Ala

This book, with THE CHRISTIAN HERALD one year, $2. The "Family Art Gallery" free to subscribers

A GREAT BOOK BARGAIN

We have a quantity of CONVERSATIONS WITH CHRIST, which was the last work of Bishop John P. Newman, and which he completed just before he was called to his reward. CONVERSATIONS WITH CHRIST is one of the most elevating and edifying volumes that has been published in many a year. Thousands have already been sold, and the few that we are offering to close out our stock will no doubt find a ready sale, considering the great discount at which they are offered.

"Conversations with Christ"

by Bishop JOHN P. NEWMAN, 268 pages, bound in cloth, regular price $1, postage ten cents extra; our price, postage prepaid by us, only fifty cents. As there are but a limited number of copies, act quickly if you expect to be fortunate enough to secure one. Address The Christian Herald Book Department, Bible House, New York City.

NEW YORK, FEBRUARY 4, 1903

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD

AN ILLUSTRATED FAMILY MAGAZINE

A GREAT WESTERN GOSPEL MISSION

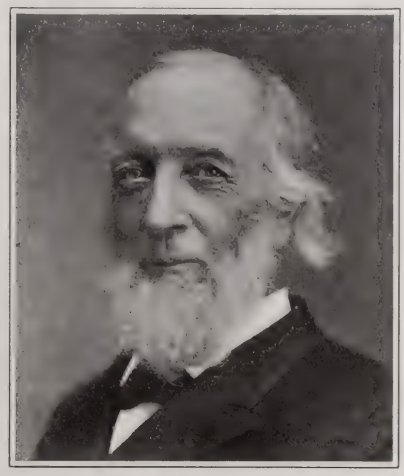
The Duluth Bethel Association and its Work Among Seamen, Lumbermen, Railroad Men and Laborers — Also a Rescue Work Among Women

FEW cities in the United States, with a population of 60,000 people, have a better equipped, or more aggressive mission work, than has Duluth, Minn., in the Work of the Bethel Association. This has grown to its present magnitude from a very small beginning, which dates back more than thirty years. At that time, Robt. Smith, representing the general Bethel interest, took up evangelistic work, spending a portion of his time on the upper Mississippi River. After the opening of the St. Paul and Duluth, and the Northern Pacific Railways, he extended his labors to the then small and spiritually destitute villages, which rapidly sprang up along their routes.

He made Duluth a special object of care. His first meetings were held in the open air, with a dry-goods box for a platform. The flame then kindled was kept alive during the years that followed by this earnest Gospel worker and his co-laborer, Capt. Kitwood, of the St. Louis Bethel, and their earnest words, both in open air services, public halls, and city churches, were an inspiration to mission development, and a power in leading souls to Christ. The annual visits of these brethren, and of Gen. Superintendent Benjamin Frankland, of the Western Seaman's Friend Society, were the means, after its organization, of preserving the corporate life of the Duluth Bethel Association, until the late Dr. C. C. Salter, founder of the First Congregational (Pilgrim) Church, of Duluth, became interested in the movement. Dr. Salter's tender of his services resulted in the purchase of property, and the erection of the Lake Avenue Bethel. Because of his untiring efforts and devotion to the cause, until the time of his death, on Dec. 19, 1897, Dr. Salter earned the title of the beloved "Founder of the Bethel."

In 1886, a small store, located on Lake Avenue, South, adjoining a saloon, was rented. Here the work was carried on for several months; but the singing of gospel songs was not pleasing to the saloon-keeper, and, at the end of the year, in order to force the Bethel to vacate, he secured a lease of the room. During the summer of 1887, the meetings were held in a tent, located near the room formerly used. In 1888 a new two-story building was erected on what is known as "the Point" of Duluth. There the work was carried on until 1893, when it became necessary to raise the building and add a story underneath. In February, last year, a call was extended to Charles F. Robel, of Canton, O., to become general superintendent of the work. The enlarged building was re-dedicated on Feb. 17, 1893. When Mr. Robel took charge of the work, there were, in addition to Dr. Salter and himself, two other persons who devoted all their time to the work. There are now about forty persons employed in the various departments. Three years ago, an additional story was added to the main Bethel. Within a stone's throw, on the street at the rear, are houses of sin and shame, occupied by more than two hundred women and girls. Saloons abound in this district, and amid such surroundings, the Bethel is, indeed, a light in a very dark place.

In what is popularly known as the "Bowery" of Duluth, a branch Bethel is located. Within a block, there are more than thirty saloons carrying on their deadly work almost night and day, without interruption,



REV. DR. C. C. SALTER
Founder of the Duluth Bethel Association

not even regarding the Sabbath. The branch Bethel was opened in May, 1895, and it has been more than self-sustaining. From several departments a revenue is derived. On the first floor is the restaurant, where well-prepared food is served at very moderate prices. The counter is the "bar" formerly used by a saloon, which occupied the building. In the evening, the tables and chairs are stowed away, and Gospel meetings are held every night. Cheap lodgings, and furnished rooms are provided, and there is a free reading room. In the old Bethel, similar departments of work are carried on, and are well patronized. Gospel meetings are also held nightly. The problem of how to support mission work has been largely solved by the introduction of the departments referred to.

A new and very important department has been added during the past year—the Bethel Rescue Home for Women. In a house containing eighteen rooms this work formally opened on Oct. 15th, the Christian Endeavor Union of the city of Duluth providing the larger part of the funds necessary for furnishing the Home. Within a radius of one hundred and fifty miles south, and five hundred miles north, east and west, there is no similar institution where unfortunate girls and women can be cared for. Since the opening of the Home fifteen girls and women have been admitted. It is the constant aim to keep the spiritual element in the forefront, and to make every department subordinate to it, and it is evident that because of this God's blessing is attending the work as a whole.

On the Sunday preceding Thanksgiving, the offering amounting to sixty dollars each year, has been sent regularly to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD for the support of four India Famine Orphans.

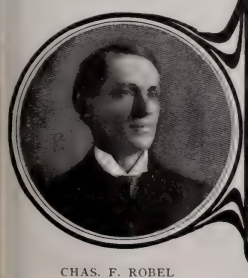
During the summer months, special attention is given to the holding of Gospel-tent meetings in different parts of the city and surrounding towns. One of the great features in connection with the work is the annual dinner served to the newsboys of the city, and the members of the Bethel Sunday Schools. At the last annual dinner, given at the Bethel, Mayor Hugo, and a number of other prominent persons were on the platform, and greatly enjoyed the event. The Mayor addressed the boys, congratulating them on the good friends they had fortunately found to help them in the hard battle of life. He gave them some excellent advice, which they seemed to heartily appreciate.

Total attendance in departments named in the Bethel and the Bethel Branch, Duluth, Minn., for a period of about nine and one-half years, from Feb. 17, 1893 to Aug. 31, 1902, was as follows:

Gospel meetings, 207,034; Sunday School, 117,536; Y. P. S. C. E., 21,442; Junior Y. P. S. C. E., 6,914; temperance meetings, 8,390; mothers' meetings, 683; reading-rooms, 1,156,109; gymnasium, 112,354; bath-rooms, 20,365; concerts, socials, etc., 17,241; Thanksgiving dinner, 8,700; lodgings, 101,855; meals served, 1,052,322; visits to families, 6,615; kindergarten, 10,086; sewing school, 15,770; Christmas entertainments, 6,575; general tent meetings, 13,068; total attendance at tent meetings, 13,617; total number of tent meetings, 54; total number of religious meetings, 7,604.

Duluth is destined to be more and more a centre of Gospel activity. The tens of thousands of miners, lumbermen and railroad men employed in that section appeal

CONTINUED ON PAGE 93



CHAS. F. ROBEL
General Superintendent and Secretary

AN EVENING GOSPEL MEETING AT THE DULUTH BETHEL

H. H. HANFORD
President

THE American Pulpit

...SERMON BY...

Rev. Frank De Witt Talmage, D.D.

of the Jefferson Park
Presbyterian Church, Chicago

The Elder Brother

LUKE 15: 28:
"And he was angry"

WHO was the prodigal son's elder brother? "I know who he is," answers some one. "I see him almost every day of my life. He is the honest, upright son, who stays at home, and gets no credit for being good. He is the respectable plodder of the family who does most of the hard work in the office, in the store, and on the farm, and then has the extreme pleasure of seeing all the young girls run after his dissolute younger brother, merely because that brother is driving fast horses, and sowing his 'wild oats.' The elder brother is the son who is always sober, and yet receives he not one extra dollar from his parents as a reward, while the drunken son of the family is continually receiving extra money to get his clothes out of pawn, so that he may have another start in life. The elder is the 'good boy,' upon whom the mother depends to help give his sisters new dresses for the winter parties, yet he never has a party given for him. He never had a fatted calf killed that he might entertain his friends, though for years he has cared for the cattle by day, and has seen that they were properly milked at night. He is the 'good boy' who never had a fine ring put on his finger. The folks laughed at his horny fingers, which were knotted from handling the plough, and wielding the hoe and the axe. His feet were never measured for dancing slippers, because his sandals were always soiled and dirt-begrimed. He was always working in the fields. The drunkards, the profligates, the midnight carousers, the libertines, and the associates of lewd companions, are the ones who, when they reform, have the smiles and the dancing parties given to them, not the elder brothers who have never done any wrong."

Some years ago, a young college classmate said to me, "It never pays to be good. When I am good and stay at home, then father and mother merely take my goodness as a matter of course. But if I only go off on a long carousal, then nothing is too good for me when I come back home. There's lots of fun in being a repentant prodigal. There is no fun in always being a goody, goody boy, who never gets the fatted calf killed for his benefit." "My sympathies have always been with the elder brother in the parable," once wrote John R. Paxton, the great New York preacher. And the popular sympathy of the world, from time immemorial, has been with the elder brother of my text, and not with the repentant herder of the swine, who returned in rags and as a beggar to his father's house.

But neither of the brothers is portrayed as an example. Both were bad, though in different ways. We easily see the faults of the younger brother; they were open and scandalous. But the faults of the elder brother, being decorously covered up by dutiful conduct, are not so easily recognized. In estimating character on God's lines, we have to ask not only what a man has done, but what he is. Meanness and unbrotherliness and cruelty in the heart deface a man's character as indelibly as open iniquity. They make men, as Christ said, like "whited sepulchres, which indeed appear beautiful outward, but are within full of dead men's bones and of all uncleanness." Therefore, I place my chief emphasis upon the sinful life of the elder brother, to show that the so-called respectable sins of self-righteousness are, of all sins, the most to be dreaded, and that it is the duty of the preacher to warn his hearers against them.

The elder brother is the modern Pharisee, who thanks God that he is not as other men. He complacently looks upon the drunkard and the social outcast, and the pauper, and says to his friends: "Just look at me. I never had any more advantages than those people have had. I was of a high-strung, impetuous nature, yet I never would let my evil desires get the better of me. I have never been drunk. I have never run up a bill I was unable to pay. I never was a frequenter of the clubs, nor a convivial associate of midnight carousers. Indeed, to be frank with you, I have just about as good opinion of my moral attainments as Prince Bismarck had of his skill in statesmanship. When some one asked the Iron Chancellor who he thought was the brainiest statesman in all Europe, Bismarck replied: 'Modesty forbids my stating who is the brainiest, because then I might have to mention my own name. But I am perfectly willing to state that Benjamin Disraeli is, without doubt, the second ablest statesman in all Europe.'" "Other saints," remarks the pharisaical elder brother, "may be my equal in moral attainments, but I am sure there is no superior in all the world to my humble self."

But, my pharisaical friend, though in one sense you may never have broken the criminal code of your State, yet there are more ways than one of breaking the moral and the spiritual laws. Shylock, the outraged Jew, may have been legally an honorable man; but in the sight of God, and of the community in which he lived, Shylock was a fiend and a murderer at heart. Like a panther crouching among the long grasses of the African prairie, waiting for the time he could spring upon a helpless antelope, Shylock was longing for the time when he could lay Antonio a corpse at his feet.

Elder brothers, you have no ground for pride, if the restraint that has kept you from prodigality is itself a defect of character. It is true that you have not gone off as a prodigal into a far country of sin. You have not given a midnight banquet and started your young friends on the path to a drunkard's grave by teaching them how to bury their lips in the red poison of the wine-cup. You may have been too stingy for that. You may have been so mean and stingy that there is no fear that you would drink a glass of wine, or smoke a cigar, unless some one else paid for it. It is not principle that saves some men from going to destruction by the broad highway of dissoluteness, but penuriousness. They hold on to every dollar they have, and are too stingy to spend a cent. They keep their money as long as they can, and never give a cent to a friend, unless they make that friend give them a first-class security, and pay full interest. But my so-called respectable and upright pharisaical friend, though you are not a prodigal, you may be a usurer, an extortioner and a slanderer. You may be a robber of the poor widow's mite, and a contemptible tyrant in your dealings with your debtors and your employees. You may be a pedler of evil reports, and a murderer of your neighbor's reputation. You may be one of those keen, cold automatons without one drop of human kindness in your heart. You may be so merciless in your dealings with mankind, that you will not stop for one moment to consider the sad causes which led your friends into sin, or into financial difficulty. And, elder brother, if your faults are meanness and avarice, though you may never have violated the criminal code of your State, you are at heart a sinful monster—a financial tyrant. You are at heart a merciless calumniator. God despises your unrepented sins just as much as he despises the sins of the prodigal in the far country.

THE PRODIGAL'S WELCOME AND THE ELDER BROTHER'S ANGER

Satan is no nearer being a Christian gentleman for dressing himself in broadcloth. The hangman's noose is no less fatal for being deftly placed about the doomed throat by white fingers, a-glitter with diamond rings. Because you, oh elder brother, stay at home and live under your father's roof, that is no reason why you may not be living ten thousand miles away from your father's love. I do not believe there is a more contemptible character painted in all the word-pictures of the Bible than this cold-blooded, unforgiving, sneering, carping elder brother, who was ready to take every advantage he could over his fellow-men, if he could only do so without disobeying the letter of the law. Instead of being drunk with wine, he was intoxicated with self-conceit and selfishness. Instead of being a beggar, or earning his bread by tending swine, he was ready to unkennel the bloodhounds of vindictive rancor, which would tear a repentant brother limb from limb.

The elder brother thinks that his Divine Father's house is not big enough to hold two sons. He feels that if his brother is allowed to come back, the returned prodigal will crowd him out of some room which rightfully belongs to him. He says to himself, "There is that drunken loafer of a boy. He has taken his one-half of the property. Now he is coming back to eat up part of my half. I know that father is so kind-hearted that he will give part of my rightful inheritance to this lazy spendthrift, this boon companion of dissolute characters. If he has spent his all, then let him starve. That is just what he deserves. He has no right coming back, to be a vampire upon my property." So the selfish elder brothers in many of our large churches refuse to let the prodigals come among them, and will not allow them to be received as equals in their Father's house. They seem to think that the advent of the poor and outcast means their own social extinction and their spiritual debasement.

Where can the despicable, pharisaical spirit of the elder brother be found more conspicuous than in some of your modern Sunday School classes? "Oh," say the well-dressed young girls of that class, "you are not going to put that poor girl in our class. Why, it will ruin the whole class! You can't expect the daughters of millionaires to associate with sewing girls, even in a Sunday School." Where can you find a more despicable, pharisaical spirit than in the missionary life of some of our large city churches. There are many large and wealthy churches that are supporting missions in the foul slums of the city, yet whose members would not for one instant allow the poor to sit in their own pews, or kneel at their communion tables. And, mark you, this pharisaical spirit of old is not only found among the rich, but also among the poor. Some years ago, the Avondale Church, of Cincinnati, of which the Rev. Charles F. Goss is pastor, tried to run a mission in the slums. Dr. Goss declared that that mission had to be abandoned, because of the pharisaical spirit which was to be found there among the poor. There, even among the rags and sins of poverty, he found there were classes. Sinful men and women would not associate with each other, because some of them thought their own rags were a little cleaner and better than their neighbor's rags. So all through the church and the world, you find this contemptible spirit of the elder brother. We find so-called Christian men and women, who protest against the prodigal's return, because they fear the younger brother's reformation might in some way injure their own social and spiritual standing.

The elder brother never longs to satisfy the divine cravings of his father's love. I have no sympathy with some of the excuses that are made for that prodigal son. I have no sympathy with those who declare that young men are led astray into the far country of sin, because they have generous impulses and abnormal affections, and therefore cannot say no to the tempter. That prodigal was an ingrate, every way you take him. He was a selfish, contemptible, dissolute rake. No man is large-hearted who will take a friend to a saloon, or open a bottle of wine at a club, when, in order to do it, he makes his own children go hungry and dress in rags.

No generous-hearted young man will go into the far country of sin and recklessly squander his money, when at the same time he knows that his old father is weeping at home, with his eyes a fountain of tears. But though that younger son was a selfish, despicable character, the elder was just as despicable. When the elder brother heard the music which signalled the parental joy over the repentant prodigal's return; when he saw the eyes of his father glistening with love, and his cheeks flushing with a holy thankfulness, he would have rejoiced for his father's sake, if he had not been selfish, and would not have tried to stab the old man to the heart. Did he not say, in effect, "Yes, we shall drive that dissolute, debauchee back to his swine trough? Then we can have the pleasure of seeing father again restlessly pacing the floor, through the long weary hours of the night." Did he not want to hear that dear, old, gentle, forgiving father again moan over his wayward boy, as David mourned over his dead son, Absalom?

If that elder brother had been the right kind of a son, he would have seen what joy came into the father's heart at the return of his repentant son. He would have immediately said, "What difference does money make, if I can only make father happy? Away with the question of dollars and cents, if my brother's return is only a true return." So every Christian to-day, if he is the right kind of a Christian, does not think about the social condition of his repentant fellow-man. He immediately says, when the publican bows at the Mercy Seat, "Oh, the joy and the rapture of heaven; oh, the look of triumphant love which is upon my Divine Father's face; oh, the celestial music which, in great tidal waves of sound, is rolling through the golden boulevards of the New Jerusalem; oh, the angelic voices in heaven which are everywhere shouting the glad tidings, 'The Prodigal has returned; the Prodigal has returned to his Father's house!'" There ought to be joy on earth as well as joy in heaven over one sinner that repenteth. There ought to be the same joy which the good shepherd felt when he found his sheep that was lost; the same joy which the once frantic wife experienced when she recovered the lost piece of silver, which was part of her wedding dowry.

The elder brother's conduct also shows a lack of faith in his father. He refuses to believe that his Divine Father's love is powerful enough to change a sinner into a saint. Infidelity often entrenches itself in the pew, and behind the church pulpit. Some church members, and some ministers of the Gospel, are only theorizing when they profess to believe that Jesus Christ can pardon sin. They profess to believe that Christ can transform the seven-deviled Marys, into the Marys who are willing to sit at his feet and worship; but these sceptical elder brothers go forth into the great, wide, sinful world, and by their practical behavior, scatter their ideal spiritual theories to the four winds.

When the reformed drunkard comes home, they cry out: "What is the good of letting that unprincipled loafer into the house? He is just like other drunkards. He is only repenting for a little while, so that he may get some money out of us, and go forth on another spree. Drive him out at once; let him go to the poor-house, where he belongs." When the young girl who has led a dissolute life, wants to lead a pure life, instead of finding the willing arms of forgiveness held out to her by her elder sisters, she finds only the shut doors of a contemptuous rebuke. Why? Because the cynical elder sisters do not believe that a prodigal woman with a black past can ever, even by Divine power, be changed into a sainted woman with a spotless future. The criminal has served his penitentiary term and is liberated from the stone cell. Is the great world at large ready to forgive him, and receive him back into honorable employment, if he repents? Oh, no! The elder brothers and elder sisters are so bitter against the ex-convicts, that many a repentant one has deliberately returned to his crimes because he could earn a living in no other way. When a visiting minister, some years ago, asked a convict if he would not like to be free, this answer was given: "Why should I want to be free? Is the honest world ready to receive me with an outstretched hand of love? No. In the world's eyes, the striped suit of the convict always covers a heart of total depravity. Because I have once done wrong, the world is never willing to believe that I am willing to do right. I must always live an outcast, I must die a criminal. My brothers and sisters, can it be possible that we do not believe that the love of God is powerful enough to save men? Can it be possible, that you and I, do not believe the omnipotent hand of Christ is able to lift the vilest of sinners out of their sins, if they will only reach up for that saving hand? Can we not have at heart as much faith in Christ's power to save a repentant white man, as Robert Moffat had in Christ's power to save a repentant black man? Would that we might all in our dealings with the prodigal son, be like that great African missionary, when he wrote upon the white leaf of a young girl's album, these suggestive words:

My album is in savage breasts,
Where passion reigns and darkness rests,
Without one ray of light;
To write the name of Jesus there,
To point to worlds, both bright and fair,
And see the pagans bow in prayer,
Is all my soul's delight.

The elder brother does not realize fully that his Divine Father is showing more magnanimity in bearing with his respectable meanness, than in welcoming back the repentant prodigal boy. I feel sorry for the wife who is married to a drunkard, or to a gambler, or to a dissolute clubman. That must be a crushing cross for a mother to carry for the sake of her children. To feel that for the baby's welfare she must associate with a man from whom the law courts of the land would give her a divorce, if she only presented her evidence. But though this may be true, I feel almost as sorry for a wife who has to live with one of those cross-grained, sneering, irritating, fault-finding, jealous husbands, who are wearing out and sapping away the life and happiness of many a home. I mean a wife who has to live with one of these heartless, brutal men, who go around with soft voices and smiling faces, and yet are as merciless as a hornet thrusting a sting. I mean a wife who has to live with a man who considers every day wasted unless he is able to overreach somebody, and yet will do the overreaching in such a polite and deferential way, that his victim can say nothing, and have no recourse to justice. But there is no need of my going on and further describing this hypocritical class. You have a representation of that class in the character of the elder brother. He is to be seen everywhere. He is to be seen inside the church as well as outside. And yet the good father, in the parable of the prodigal son, was ready to speak just as forgivingly to his elder son as to the younger.

The other day, a person asked me what I considered the most beautiful sentence in the parable? This was my answer: "It is not to be found in the good father's dealings with the younger, but with the elder son. When the servant came in and told the good father that his elder boy was acting unfilially and unbrotherly, the father did not lose his patience. He did not send a peremptory command to his elder son to come to him at once, as he had a right to do; but as a servant, he left the banquet hall. He went out into the darkness of the night and placed his arm gently about his sinful elder son's neck, as he answered in a pleading, yearning voice: "Son, thou art ever with me, and all that I have is thine." That is as much as to say, "My boy, my dear boy, I am not trying to do you any injustice. I shall not take away any of your inheritance. All that I have is yours. What I long for is for the love and the purity of my children. I want my own boys to be always by my side. Come, my child, come back to your father's love. Come back into the old homestead which I have prepared for you." Oh, that answer to me is beautiful! That answer is the sweetest, tenderest, most loving, and yet most pleading tribute ever spoken by the lips of any of the characters of the Bible. That is a Christ-love pleading for you and me to come into the Father's house, and nestle as a lamb in his bosom.

But, after all, the most impressive part of the elder brother's history is the abrupt way in which the parable ends. There is no doubt but that the younger son was forgiven. No doubt the repentant prodigal was able to enjoy the rest and the home pleasures of his father's house. But how about that cynical, self-satisfied, and complaining elder brother? Did he ask for forgiveness of his father? Did he go into the banquet where the feast was being celebrated? I do not know. I cannot tell. The parable ends with the earnest plea of the father. We must take the rest as we will. Personally, I have my doubts about the salvation of that elder brother. It is sometimes far easier for the sinner down in the slums to come to Christ, than for the rich son, living in a luxurious palace. A London missionary was one night called up to go to a dying girl. This wayward child at the time was living in a dissolute house. When the missionary entered the room, he found a sinful sister holding in her arms the head of the dying girl, and she was saying, "Jennie, it is all right; put your love and trust in Jesus. He died for just such sinful girls as we are. Jennie, put your faith in Jesus Christ." Yes, we can all feel that Christ died for the prodigal son, but it is awfully hard for some of the sinful elder brothers and sisters to feel that it was necessary for Jesus Christ to die for them, and their sins. My elder brother in sin, are you going to stay out of your Father's house? Are you going to refuse to put your faith in Christ, and come into the marriage banquet of the Lamb?

Mr. Moody tells the story of a soldier dying in one of the field hospitals of the Civil War. The soldier sent for his chaplain to come to help him in the hour of death. Mr. Moody said, "I wish I could help you die in peace, but Christ alone can help you do that." Then Mr. Moody read to him from his Bible, passage after passage, until he came to one of the sweetest verses of all: "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of Man be lifted up, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life." The dying man at that point cried, "Stop. Is that there? Oh I did not know that was in the Bible. Please read those few words again." Then the dying man just pillowed his head upon that promise and went to sleep in the arms of Christ, to wake amid the hosannas of heaven. Elder brothers, and elder sisters, will you look to that Cross to-day which I lift up? Will you hear the Gospel invitation which is given to you, to come into your Father's house? Will you here and now sit down by Christ, and by the side of your repentant prodigal brother?

A Shut-In's Comfort

I think the "Family Art Gallery" perfectly beautiful. This morning I received The Speaking Oak. I looked it through and read a few selections. I know I shall enjoy reading it. I am a shut-in from rheumatism; I can't get out to church. I enjoy the sermons in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD very much indeed. I would rather go without my dinner than THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, there is so much good reading in it. If I live till the twenty-fourth of next month I shall be eighty years old.

Wellsville, N. Y. MRS. E. B. PALMER.

This book, with THE CHRISTIAN HERALD one year, $2.00. The "Family Art Gallery" free to each subscriber.

A GREAT WESTERN GOSPEL MISSION

Continued from page 91

MISS MARY E. SHANNON — MISS J. MILLARD — MISS ANNA E. SMITH — T. S. THOMPSON — MRS. WM. ASHER — MISS FRANCES MCGIFFERT — MRS. C. H. HALL for better privileges and surroundings. Literature, free reading-rooms, Gospel privileges, are needed in a score of places near by. The cause represented by the Duluth Bethel Association is one worthy of the most cordial support. Should any reader desire to aid the work or to make further inquiries, any communication sent to the officers of the Association in Duluth, will be promptly answered.

Following is the list of officers and active workers of the Duluth Bethel Association at the present time: H. H. Hanford, president; L. A. Marvin, treasurer; Charles F. Robel, general superintendent and secretary; T. S. Thompson, Gospel work among children; William Asher, superintendent Bethel, Lake avenue; Mrs. William Asher, matron and Gospel singer, Bethel, Lake avenue; Miss Grace McKinsey, missionary and stenographer; Miss Frances McGiffert, Gospel singer; Chas. H. Hall, superintendent Branch Bethel; Mrs. Chas. H. Hall, missionary and matron, Branch Bethel; Miss Mary E. Shannon, superintendent Bethel Rescue Home for Women; Mrs. Emma E. Smith, matron; Miss Jean Fraser, missionary and visitor; Miss Anna E. Smith, evangelist; Miss Josephine Millard.

The buildings of the Association are: The Bethel, on Lake avenue south; the Branch Bethel, on Superior street; and the Bethel Rescue Home for Women on Sixth avenue.

SEAL-HUNTING IN THE FINLAND ICE-FIELDS

WINTER FISHING ON THE LAKES

IT IS A FOUR-FOLD FAMINE!

Not Only Finland, but Norway, Sweden and Lapland also Suffering—Progress of the Relief Work

ACCORDING to advices received by THE CHRISTIAN HERALD during the past week, the great famine in Northern Europe has spread to nearly all the Scandinavian countries. Norway, Northern Sweden and Lapland are now known to be suffering with an intensity scarcely less than that of Finland. Swedish residents of this country have for many weeks past been making heroic efforts to supply the needs of their famine-stricken relatives at home, but the distress is so widespread—especially in Northern Sweden, where 70,000 persons are reported to be actually destitute—that the help afforded has done little toward mitigating the affliction. The government at Stockholm is doing all in its power to help the distressed population. In all the countries mentioned, the causes of the famine are identical with those that brought about the awful visitation in Finland.

A second remittance of Five Thousand Dollars was this week cabled by THE CHRISTIAN HERALD Famine Relief Fund, to the Finnish Committee at Helsingfors, to be immediately applied in the relief work among the peasants of the interior. The Committee was asked, by cable, whether it preferred that grain or money be sent, and Dr. Saltzman, acting in behalf of the entire Committee, cabled back the reply that money was preferred. Doubtless, the Committee being on the ground, and fully conversant with the situation, saw that the delays incident to the shipment of a grain cargo, and the cost of freights by land and sea, would make relief by such a method slower and more expensive than that which lay nearer at hand in the available European markets.

The Skandinaven newspaper of Chicago, prints a touching incident of the famine in Finland. It is contained in a letter received by Rev. John Falkner, a Lutheran pastor in Chicago, from a brother pastor in Finland. The writer says:

"Today we buried four persons, all belonging to one family, and the only surviving, the family father, is now nursed and cared for in my home; but it is very doubtful if he can recover.

"The family lived in a remote place several miles away and was one of the poorest in the parish. The crops had failed completely, and for weeks the family had lived on bark bread and water. Going to the place, I came across a little boy in the street. I here was the body of a little girl seven years old, cold and stiff—she had gone out of this world, unable to tell to others of her misery and without leaving any of her dear ones nearer to her dying moments. Carefully I took the lifeless body, lifted it into the sled and drove to the children's home. But, oh! what a sight I beheld! On the table I found a small piece of bark—some were gnawed to bone. In one bed the lifeless body of the mother, and clasped in her arms and pressed to her bosom was the corpse of her young child, a little girl two and a half years old; in another bed the husband and father sick and helpless, more dead than alive, and by his side the dead body of the boy, four years old. Oh, what a sight!

"How I stood in the 'valley of death,' I was confused. My heart was heavy and I felt as if it would shatter, and while the tears were flowing on my cheeks. Oh, brother, the scene was so pitiable, so awful, so shocking, that it makes me shudder to think of it, and I am unable to write more on the subject now.

"In a little house in the woods, about sixty miles north from Ludvig, lives a family of five—man, wife and three children. A long time ago the last grain was used, and with many tears the poor mother looked the dreadful future in the face. As the hard winter months passed, all their belongings were sold for bread. The winter was a bitter cold one. The man, a regular type of the Finnish farmer, with his grave, quiet face, looks with deep sorrow on his pale wife and his starving children. He has been around asking for work, but in vain, and all hope is gone. One of the children—the oldest, a boy of about nine years, sits on a bench carving a piece of wood; the other two are lying on the big oven, covered with some straw.

"Conditions are about the same all over Finland," the writer adds. "Thousands must succumb if they are not helped."

I cannot come now, under the present mournful condition of affairs; for it is my sacred duty as a servant and follower of Christ to help and aid my poor, dear parishioners, and support and comfort them by word and deed, to suffer, yes even to die with them, if so be the will of God.

THE SUBURBS OF ULEABORG, CENTRE OF THE FAMINE

Mr. Nicolay Grevsted, Editor of the Skandinaven, has sent to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD $237.50—contributions received through his paper—to be added to the Famine Fund.

Rev. G. Blomberg, of New York, has this famine incident from the afflicted homeland:

"We have only a little piece of bark bread left," said the wife, her eyes full of tears.

"We will trust the Lord," said the farmer, solemnly. "He has been our Helper before, and he is the same merciful God as he has been before."

He took the Bible from a little shelf in a corner of the room and read the 46th Psalm. Then they knelt down and laid their great need before the Almighty.

Some hours later, two ladies came from Uleaborg to the lone farm-house with relief.

"Praise the Lord! He is the same—yesterday, to-day and forever!" came from the thankful farmer's lips. His wife joined in expressions of gratitude to the visitors. There were warm clothing for himself and his family and good rye bread and grain for oatmeal.

The Rev. George P. Clarke, of the British-American Church, St. Petersburg, writes to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD that his colleague, the Rev. Dr. Kilburn, is at present in the famine districts of Finland. The distress, he adds, is acute and widespread and becoming more so every day. The Finns themselves cannot cope unaided with the crisis.

It is hoped that the contributions to the Famine Fund from all sources will be so prompt and liberal that THE CHRISTIAN HERALD will be enabled to forward regular remittances, and to reach as wide an area in the famine districts as possible. Every dollar goes direct to the famine field, and every individual contribution finds its destination in the home of some poor Finnish peasant, bringing alleviation to the sufferings of his famished dear ones. Dr. Klopsch, proprietor of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, will probably visit Finland soon and make a tour of the famine districts, personally inspecting the relief operations. As was the case when he visited India, Russia, and Cuba, he will travel without expense to the Famine Fund. His reports of the progress of the relief work will be published in these pages.

Many letters have been received thanking THE CHRISTIAN HERALD for espousing the cause of the suffering Finns. Churches and religious organizations of all denominations are actively interesting themselves in the effort to rescue these deserving people, who have been overtaken by severe affliction. All are eager to have a share in the life-saving work.

. . .

All contributions for the Relief Fund should be addressed

FINLAND FAMINE FUND
THE CHRISTIAN HERALD
92 Bible House New York City

Contributions are acknowledged in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, and are regularly forwarded to the Finnish Committee in Helsingfors for the relief of the sufferers.

RAPIDS OF THE IMATRA, FINLAND, IN WINTER

THE WOLF at FINLAND'S DOOR

... By ...
H. MONTAGUE DONNER

FINLAND is so remote from us that Americans are little familiar with either the land itself or its inhabitants, and yet, were justice done to the country and the sturdy little nation inhabiting it, neither our histories nor our political geographies would fail to have many pages devoted to a study, however inadequate, of the Finnish people as well as Finnish institutions, progress, and achievement, for even the greatest nations can find much to learn from that highly civilized race of the far North, whose existence has been allowed by the rest of the world to be swallowed up by the more compelling claims of its great Muscovite and Scandinavian neighbors. Now, however, the eyes of the whole world are drawn to Finland by the moving tale of its pitiable plight, struggling as it is in the throes of the most awful famine that its checkered history of battle, devastation, and want has ever had to show.

The reports that have reached these shores of the terrible prospect confronting the rural population of halt the country are in no wise exaggerated, as I know only too well from letters that have reached me from some of the famine districts, painting appalling pictures of the universal destitution and misery, accompanied by pitiful personal appeals to contribute, in some or any way, to the alleviation of the present heart-rending lot of the Finnish peasantry.

I should, perhaps, state, in order to make matters clearer, that Finland is divided into eight governments, the most northerly of which, that of Uleaborg, comprises half the country, and it is in this huge territory, and, in a lesser degree, in the two governments immediately to the south of it—Vasa, to the west, with a long coast-line on the Gulf of Bothnia, and Kuopio, to the east, bordering on Russia, that the ravages of the famine are mainly felt. Uleaborg is the worst sufferer, lacking, as it does, even the moderate interior railway facilities of Vasa and the splendid lake system of Kuopio that render somewhat less burdensome the problem of the prompt distribution of supplies in those two governments.

The Finnish peasantry depend for sustenance very largely on their extensive annual crop of cereals, of which by far the most general is barley, which is grown as far north as Lake Inari, on the 69° of northern latitude. Rye is cultivated generally as far as latitude 67° north, while oats are grown plentifully in all the governments, except the eastern and northern portions of Uleaborg, where the land is higher in elevation, and where the people are also less enterprising than their more fortunate brethren established near the coast and along the railway line. Wheat cultivation is practically restricted to the comparatively small area comprised in the southwest corner of Finland, known as Finland Proper, where the climatic conditions are most favorable. And now that practically all the barley, rye, and oat crops have been destroyed by frost and flood, the inhabitants of Uleaborg government have not only been facing starvation on a diet of bread made of bark, straw, and husks, and even worse, of which samples have been mailed to me, but are now being decimated by the diseases that infallibly follow in its wake, till the pen hesitates to describe the horrors to which afflicted humanity in the north of Finland is now exposed.

In a letter received a few days ago from one of the municipal dignitaries of the town of Vasa, a piteous appeal is made to me, to aid in some degree, by some means, "this poor, sorely tried Finnish people, dying of starvation." The letter continues: "From the depths of my heart I beg you, and not only I, but all the warm, and generous-hearted persons associated with me, can you, will you not appeal to the generosity of the many rich Americans? Give, O give us something! There are many thousands of children, women, and men who come to us crying, 'Give us flour, or we perish!' The Finn says little, but these few words have a harrowing significance. They betoken a depth of suffering and misery that no words of mine can describe. Forgive me if I seem over bold and insistent, for I am speaking in the name of human beings actually dying of starvation, and I can only pray that the great God may bless these few lines."

By the mail immediately following this letter I received from the parish of Hyrynsalmi, in the government of Uleaborg, a small package containing specimens of the "bread" then being eaten in the famine districts, some representing barley bread, and the rest, much darker in color, rye bread, but both looking more like dried animal dung, and very unpalatable in the mouth. Yet such makeshift stuff was announced to be the food of the "more prosperous" among the peasantry!

Bad though this is, it is almost a delicacy compared with what thousands of the humbler peasantry are compelled to devour in order barely to keep body and soul in companionship. In many districts rye-bread, even of this unpleasant consistency, has given way to a tough, sticky dough, compounded of husks, straw, and black and barley husks, which, mixed with water, has now for three months formed the only sustenance of the great mass of the inhabitants of that same parish of Hyrynsalmi. It seems incredible that human beings in a civilized community should be reduced to eating such sorry refuse in order to keep the breath of life in their bodies.

And what stories, too, come from another south and ten parish, that of Simonsmalmi, also in eastern Uleaborg! Here several little farms exist close by side, with great numbers of children. In one of these farms, for instance, are no fewer than eleven boys and girls, of whom the oldest is eighteen. To such a depth of misery and want is the family sunk, that the mother has been reduced to the necessity of sewing old sacks together with which to cover the nakedness of her wretched offspring, whose bodies are covered with frightful sores. The poor creatures are not only without clothing since the summer they have been without bread, owing to the difficulty the father had in procuring seed. The whole parish, the fourth in point of population, by the way, in the government of Uleaborg, numbering in all some 6,000 souls, is, owing to the bad quality of the food, beginning to be a prey to the ravages of scurvy and other diseases, so that the present state of the parish beggars description; with men and women, emaciated, haggard, and covered with sores, dragging themselves along from house to house, with piteous appeals for a morsel of sustenance for their little ones at home, from whom these are themselves able to do more than keep alive on the scantiest of unsavory morsels.

From the parish of Pielisjarvi, on the lake of the same name in the extreme east of the government of Kuopio, comes the further distressing tidings of a sudden epidemic of scarlet fever, which is carrying off the poor, weakened children by the score.

Such tales of suffering and death as these might be multiplied by the score, but to what end? Enough is now known to make evident the awful plight in which this sober and industrious little nation is plunged, and the compelling necessity of generous financial aid to the body of enlightened and unselfish patriots who have formed the Central Relief Committee in Helsingfors, the capital, all influential citizens of high standing and unimpeachable integrity, who have appointed sub-committees all over the country through which to alleviate the distress promptly and efficaciously, distributing funds impartially wherever the need is most pressing, and rendering the strictest account of all sums received and all disbursements made. Of the manner in which this remedial work is done I shall probably have occasion to write further. Suffice it here to say that the Committee has, from the start, been alive to the danger of pauperization through indiscriminate giving, and has in one way or another made all assistance, beyond that imperatively needed on the instant in order to save life, dependent in greater or less degree upon work and self-help, to be pursued under expert supervision during a specified length of time. Such funds as have reached the Central Committee had, on receipt of latest advices, been nearly exhausted, through the establishment all over the country of soup-kitchens, workrooms and children's homes, in addition to the forwarding of vast quantities of meal, hemp, clothing, agricultural implements and medical supplies; and the generous contribution of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD readers last week must have lifted an immense burden from the hearts of those devoted workers in far Finland who have organized for the relief of their poverty-stricken and dying fellow-countrymen.

OFFICERS OF THE FINLANDER FAIR COMMITTEE

John Matinke Robert Rottomaa Peter Palmer Abr Savoline Matti Lintunen, Chairman
Victor Hall Marie H. Matinke, Secretary Abel Toivonen

THE New York City Finlander Fair Committee, numbering fifteen representative Finnish citizens, are very much in earnest about making the Finlander Fair, to be held in Marion Hall, 150 East 125th street, New York City, February 28, afternoon and evening, a success. All their spare time is devoted to working up features which they think will interest the Finns, Swedes and American friends expected. It will be a rare opportunity for Americans to study their Finnish fellow-citizens at close range. Americans have not nearly so familiar a knowledge of these silent, serious, intense people of the North, as of immigrants from other lands. It will be worth while to meet them face to face, see the things they make, and—above all—to aid them in their worthy efforts for the relief of their starving countrymen across the water. Pastors of Finnish and Swedish churches in Manhattan and Brooklyn, and the members of Finnish and Swedish temperance and sewing societies are doing all they can. No toiling Finn seems too poor to contribute his or her mite. The Finnish Singing Society, "Humu," and the Swedish, "Lyra" (all male voices), and the singing society (mixed voices) of the Star Temperance Association, will render Finnish and Swedish national songs as features of the evening's entertainment. Mrs. Margaret E. Sangster and other distinguished American speakers will be heard, and two prominent Finns will deliver addresses. Friends desiring to aid the Fair in any way will receive prompt attention by addressing Miss M. H. Matinke, 356 East Thirty-second street, New York City.

India's Splendid Pageant of the Durbar

SEE PICTURE ON FIRST PAGE

LATE mails bring further details, with photographs, of the imposing ceremony at Delhi, India, which was described in this journal on January 14. The cable showed that it was a scene of rare magnificence, but we now learn from the letters of persons who witnessed it, that it surpassed all pageants of modern times. Not the Coronation ceremony in London, nor the Jubilee processions in the late years of Queen Victoria, approached it in grandeur and quaint splendor.

The entry of Lord and Lady Curzon (formerly Miss Leiter, of Chicago) into Delhi was a pageant never to be forgotten. They were seated in a howdah of solid silver on the back of a huge elephant, whose body was covered by a finely embroidered saddle-cloth, the fringe of which touched the ground. Another mighty elephant, similarly caparisoned, followed, bearing the brother and sister-in-law of King Edward. Following, two abreast, came other elephants bearing fifty of the chief princes and rulers of India, all resplendent in jewels famous the world over. Still more elephants, on which lesser dignitaries of India were seated, and then a long line of carriages, conveying the governors of presidencies and other British representatives. The ancient city of Delhi has seen many magnificent pageants, but none to compare with the line of native and British officials who were gathered to acclaim the accession of the Emperor-King.

Ninety-eight princes in all paid homage to the British ruler. They rule over one-third of India, and though acknowledging British sovereignty, exercise complete control in their own dominions. It is gratifying to notice that the wife of one of them made practical evidence of her delight in the ceremony by presenting a lakh of rupees ($34,000) to the fund for the alleviation of suffering by famine. Many of them eloquently testified to the improved conditions in the Empire since the period when there was perpetual war among themselves, and hailed the rule which left them independent while protecting them from internecine conflict.

A PARALLEL

The Infidel	The Agnostic	The Christian
I am but naught:	I do not know.	My son I rest.
Life cannot nought:	May know we ge grow.	When sons contest,
All chance doth send:	I row discern	on Thee my I trust.
Death is the end'	All I can learn.	I trust Thy Word.

Oh, friend, weigh well this parallel,
And choose to-day—do not delay.

Baltimore, Md. THOMAS O. CLARK.

OUR EDITORIAL FORUM

B. J. FERNIE, ASSOCIATE EDITOR — LOUIS KLOPSCH, Editor and Proprietor — G. H. SANDISON, ASSOCIATE EDITOR

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD ... $1.50 ...

Foreign Postage. ... to be mailed outside the U. S., Canada, and Mexico, ... a year

Change of Date. It takes at least two weeks to change the date after your subscription is renewed.

Expiration of Subscriptions.—The date on the wrapper indicates when your subscription ends.

Change of Address.—Give both your old and your new address when you ask us to change your address.

Subscriptions may commence with any issue.

Letters should be addressed, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, Bible House, New York.

Entered at the Post-office, New York, as Second-class Matter

President Roosevelt Aids Finland

From the New York Herald, January 26.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S active sympathy has been aroused by the reports of the pitiful condition of the famine-stricken peasantry of Finland, more than four hundred thousand of whom are on the verge of starvation.

In a letter to Dr. Louis Klopsch, Secretary Cortelyou expresses the President's gratification at having an opportunity of contributing to the relief of the suffering in Finland, and encloses, as the President's contribution to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD Famine Fund, a check for $100. The fund already exceeds $20,000.

A Time to Keep Cool

THUS far, the attitude of the United States on the Venezuelan question, has been such as to command the respect and admiration of Europe. It has been dignified and conservative, yet without any concession affecting our vital national policy. We have impressed the monarchies with the strength of the American position.

Some strange things have happened lately in Venezuela—things that are difficult to reconcile with "bloodless blockades" and Hague arbitration. Nations under peace bonds or pledges might reasonably be expected to exercise a degree of forbearance, such as has not been shown by some of the allies. But it is well to know all the facts before passing judgment. Hence, we urge, this is a good time to keep cool. There is a disposition, in some quarters, to excite public opinion upon this question. Such a course is to be strongly deprecated. Venezuela, by assuming the initiative, is just as likely to have afforded the provocation in this latest disturbance as the allies; indeed, the German Commodore has declared that this was the cause of the San Carlos bombardment.

Let us keep cool, then. Nothing is to be gained by precipitancy, which would plunge the country into vexatious and probably serious complications that might be avoided. If, knowing the whole situation, Castro and the Germans or the English are still resolved to pepper each other, pending arbitration, instead of behaving like sensible, civilized beings, they will probably continue to do so.

Our line is drawn only at the seizure and occupation of American territory by a foreign power. When that line is crossed, it will be time enough for us to think of intervention—not before. This is perfectly well understood by the allies.

It is a fortunate thing for the American people that its Executive is not a Hotspur, but a cool, vigilant, level-headed, sagacious man, not apt to be swayed by mere passing excitement. Let us emulate his example—and keep cool.

In the Long Evenings

DARKNESS settles down early at this time of the year, and we have the long evenings. How cozy they are, especially when the storms beat outside, and the sleet and snow and rain dash against the pane, we appreciate the warmth and comfort of indoors. Don't encourage anybody to waste the pleasure of a good long evening in a nap on the sofa. When a man or a woman is too sleepy to take a part in the life of the family, bed is the place for that one to seek, and in the family itself there should be bright, wide-awake fellowship. Don't be selfishly absorbed in book or newspaper. In the long evenings let there be the delight of reading aloud, and of talk over the book. Every one should cultivate some skill in playing games; and if the group are musical, let the evening never pass without piano, violin, and a song or two.

Looking back over the vista of years, in our calm middle life, the pleasantest reminiscences of the early home, cluster about the long evenings. Then, when the supper table was cleared, the youngsters settled down to map-drawing, to sums, to geography and history and astronomy, and whatever else was to be prepared for the next day. There were nuts and apples on the shelf, and often before bed-time there would be a little feast. Did your mother make doughnuts, and were there plenty of them for hungry, growing children; a stone crock, perhaps, that, like the widow's cruse, was always miraculously refilled when the supply grew scanty? Were there buckwheat cakes all ready for breakfast, and when you left the wide, warm kitchen at ten o'clock, did you anticipate the comfort there would be for you when you came down in the frosty morning? Ah, you may live to-day in a home of much splendor, where the kitchen is a room you seldom see, presided over by servants, and strictly devoted to its own uses; where the dining-room is most ornate, and the drawing-rooms are stately; but in your dreamy moments you go back to mother's kitchen, and the beautiful long evenings of your early youth. We get away from simplicity and we get away from cheer.

In the long, winter evenings, we may find it profitable to cultivate more sedulously than ever the spirit of household fealty.

> Home, home, sweet, sweet home,
> Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home.

The Bible in the Schools

NOTABLE testimony is given by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction in New York, which deserves the attention of Principals of the Public Schools throughout the State. In his annual report to the Legislature, he says that although during the seventeen years of his connection with the Department, the Scriptures have been read daily in every school in New York City, he does not know of a single protest or appeal having been made against the practice by any inhabitant. He says further, that he will not stop the practice in other portions of the State, despite the fact that his predecessors held it to be unconstitutional. It is therefore open, under his administration, to any Principal to begin the reading of the Bible in the opening exercises, in any school in which it has not yet been done. There will be no interference from the State Superintendent, providing the reading is not accompanied by comment or religious propaganda. Doubtless there are many Principals who will welcome that assurance and will act upon it.

There can be no doubt that the children are the gainers by even so meagre a measure of religious teaching. It is a recognition of the need of moral, as well as intellectual, knowledge. We are liable to forget this fact in education. Without moral training, the child may become all the more formidable an enemy to society, by the educational facilities we place in his hands. It is not much that the reading of a chapter from the Bible in his hearing, once a day, can do for him, but it at least makes him aware that there is such a book and that it enjoins right living. More than this, if he is a bright, intelligent child, he cannot fail to be impressed with the literary beauty of the passages he hears, and may seek for himself a larger acquaintance with the book. Thus he may gain, if not the highest blessings that the Bible is capable of imparting, at least such a conception of his moral responsibility as will make him a better citizen.

Smoot, the Mormon

ONCE again, the Mormons have come knocking at the doors of Congress, demanding admission and recognition. Reed Smoot, an apostle of the Mormon Church, has been chosen as United States Senator from Utah, and his election is hailed as a great Mormon triumph. What the conservative element in Utah think of the choice may be gathered from the language of those who opposed Smoot's election in the State Legislature. Representative White said:

> If we send this man to Washington we dishonor the State, and if he goes to Washington, he, too, will be disgraced. Shall we insult our President by defying him in sending an apostle to the Senate? A great storm of public opinion or a benefaction of peace is about to be launched by the nation.. If we launch the storm, God pity poor Utah!

When Utah was admitted to statehood, it gave a sacred pledge, as an essential condition of admission, that it would suppress the vile system of plural marriages. That pledge it flagrantly violated. Polygamy was practised under cover, throughout the State, and is still practised there. There are many cases known where the offence is openly and defiantly avowed. It is flaunted contemptuously in the face of the American people.

We believe that no Mormon apostle should be permitted to sit in the halls of national legislation, or to take part in making laws for this moral and enlightened land. There is such a thing as decency in American public life. There is such a quality as self-respect in our highest legislative bodies. There is—and we are heartily thankful for it—a sturdy and resolute recognition of the moralities among those at the head of the nation. From the President down to the humblest citizen, we stand, as we have always stood from the foundation of this republic—for the purity of the home, the integrity of the family and the protection of American womanhood. Utah, which now for the second time will send a Mormon to Congress, is the sole offender in the sisterhood of States against the nation's code of morals. It is honeycombed with polygamy. It is dominated by the Mormon Church, which is unrepentant, unregenerate, unclean—the open sore, the one foul blot on our country. Notwithstanding all its protestations of reform, that church clings to-day to the same old lecheries that made it a nightmare in the days of Brigham Young and Joseph Smith.

Four years ago last month, the Hon. George F. Edmunds, the distinguished Senator from Vermont, author of the Anti-Polygamy Act and the leading constitutional authority in the country, reviewed for THE CHRISTIAN HERALD the case of Brigham H. Roberts, a notorious Mormon, who had been elected as representative from Utah, and pointed out the means at Congress' disposal for protecting the national honor. He recalled the fact that, in a Constitutional Convention assembled for the purpose of paving the way for Utah's admission to statehood, a formal ordinance was adopted, declaring that "polygamous or plural marriages are forever prohibited in Utah." He showed how Utah had broken that promise. The constitution of Utah, while prohibiting the ceremony of plural marriage, did not prohibit polygamous relationships. But Senator Edmunds pointed out that there is, in the hands of Congress, a reserve power which, when all other expedients fail, it may still use to rid itself of the presence of an undesirable member. Under the Constitution, and after a member has taken his seat, the House has the authority, with the concurrence of two-thirds, to expel a member. There is no limitation in the exercise of this right, and for sufficient reason it can be brought into operation at any time.

This applies equally to the Senate. Will that body purge itself of the reproach upon its dignity and its good name, by rejecting Reed Smoot, Mormon apostle, as the House of Representatives, in the exercise of its constitutional privilege, and in behalf of the honor of the nation, and for the protection of the American home, rose in its dignity and thrust forth the self-confessed Mormon and polygamist, Brigham H. Roberts?

GEMS FROM TALMAGE

The Many-Sided Bible

—GOD'S WAY is different from man's way, but it is always best. Take, for instance, the composition of the Bible. If we had the writing of the Bible, we would have said, "Let one man write it. If you have twenty or thirty men to write a poem or make a statute or write a history or make an argument there will be flaws and contradictions." But God says, "Let not one man do it, but forty men shall do it." And they did, differing enough to show there had been no collusion between them, but not contradicting each other on any important point, while they all wrote from their own standpoint and temperament; so that the matter-of-fact man has his Moses; the romantic nature his Ezekiel; the epigrammatic his Solomon; the warrior his Joshua; the sailor his Jonah; the loving his John; the logician his Paul. Instead of this Bible, which now I can lift in my hand; instead of the Bible that the child can carry to school this afternoon; instead of the little Bible the sailor can put in his jacket pocket when he goes to sea—if it had been left to men to write, it would have been a thousand volumes, judging from the amount of ecclesiastical controversy which has arisen. God's way is different from man's, but it is best, infinitely best.

THE BIBLE and the NEWSPAPER

A Fatal Fire

ONE of the most stubborn fires that the New York Fire Department has had to contend with, broke out on the morning of Jan. 18. It was in a seven-story building on the Bowery, almost opposite Cooper Union. The lower floors were occupied by an Excelsior Company, and the upper floors by an electrotyper and other business firms. Early in the morning a policeman noticed a lurid gleam on a transom above the gateway of a passage on the north of the building. He promptly sent in an alarm, and in quick time the engines were on the scene. It was discovered that the fire was in bales of excelsior, which were loaded on three double wagons in the passage-way. The entrance to the passage was protected by strong iron doors, which had to be forced. It took the firemen a long time to open the doors with their crowbars, and before that was done, the flames from the burning bales had set the whole building on fire. One alarm after another was sent in, and soon there were nineteen engines and a water-tower pouring streams of water into the various floors. Two of the wagons were dragged out into the street. The firemen were pulling at the third, when one of the floors in the building caved in, and a bale of burning jute fell upon them, pinning one of the firemen firmly against the wagon. The smoke from it was suffocating, but the brave men worked hard to liberate their comrade. He realized that there was no hope of their succeeding in time to save his life, and begged them to save themselves and leave him to his fate. They continued their efforts, however, but when he was at last released, he had been dead for several minutes. Several other firemen were hurt in the course of the fire, and many were temporarily prostrated by the suffocating smoke and almost blinded. For thirty-six hours they worked upon it, before it was finally extinguished. The chief difficulty was caused by the severe frost that prevailed. As the water from the engines fell upon the huge bales of burning excelsior, it was turned into ice, which became thicker with the continuous downpour. Meanwhile the fire in the centre of the bale smouldered, protected from the water by the icy-coating on the outside. Thus there was the strange spectacle of fire within ice, and the very means adopted to extinguish the fire became a barrier to its work. So strange a phenomenon is rarely witnessed in a fire, but the principle involved is no new thing to ministers and Christian workers. Even in the time of the Apostles, it was seen that the preaching designed to extinguish the fire of sin in the human heart was perversely turned by faithless or impenitent souls into a curse.

It had been better for them not to have known the way of righteousness, than, after they have known it, to turn from the holy commandment delivered unto them (II. Peter 2: 21).

An Unconscious Heir

An excited passenger left an asylum for the insane in Minnesota recently, to begin a lawsuit in England. A St. Paul journal says that among the patients in the asylum was a man of nearly sixty years of age, who had been there for several years. He had never been violent, and, of late, his illusions had disappeared, and he was practically sane. But he had no friends, and had lost his business, and as he was willing to make himself useful, he was allowed to remain in the asylum, especially as the doctors thought it wise he should remain for a time under surveillance. The man had always boasted of belonging to a prominent English family, but little attention was paid to his story, and as he admitted that he had not written to his relatives for more than a dozen years, his talk was set down as a delusion. But the old man wrote to England. In due time a reply came, stating that as nothing had been heard from him for so long, the courts had pronounced him dead, and authorized the executors of his father's estate to pay to other persons the large sum of money due him under his father's will. He has now gone to England to prove that he is alive, in spite of judicial decrees, and try to recover his fortune. It is very doubtful whether the courts will recognize him after having pronounced him dead. His task, in proving himself alive, is precisely the opposite of that of this Christian, whose glory is that he is dead to the world.

It is a faithful saying: For if we be dead with him, we shall also live with him (II. Timothy 2: 11).

Indignant Voyagers

The anxiety generally felt throughout this country and in Great Britain about the safety of the American Liner St. Louis was turning to despair, when news was flashed from Nantucket that she was slowly crawling into port. It had been thirteen days from the date of her leaving the English coast, and there was therefore good reason for anxiety. It proved, however, that there had never been any danger. The officers explained that the boiler tubes had become clogged and were leaky. It had been necessary to discontinue the use of some of them while they were cleaned, and repairs were made. With only a few of her boilers in use at one time, the steamer had made slow progress all the way across. The passengers on board were exasperated by the delay, and as some of them had made appointments which could not be kept, there was indignant denunciation of the Company, which had allowed the vessel to make the voyage in the circumstances. They held a mass meeting on board, and appointed a committee to frame resolutions expressing their opinion of the Company. The following extract from the document shows the character of the opinion: "Providence has been kind to us, and we are grateful that through his mercy we have thus far been spared a dreadful calamity. We cannot too severely condemn the recklessness of the management which would send such a crippled vessel loaded with human freight to contend with the storms and perils of an Atlantic winter. Your committee believes that our lives have been put in jeopardy, and certainly made our loved ones at home suffer great mental anguish, not to mention the severe financial losses many of us have incurred and are now incurring." Sometimes, in the voyage of life, men discover that those who undertake to bring them on their way, are similarly incapable, or negligent of their obligations. In some pulpits there is a lack of power that might come if the operation of the Spirit was not impeded by conceit and useless erudition.

Beware lest any man spoil you through philosophy and vain deceit after the traditions of men, after the rudiments of the world and not after Christ (Col. 2: 8).

England's New Primate

The chief office in the English Church, vacant by the death of Dr. Temple, has fallen to Dr. Randall T. Davidson, Bishop of Winchester. He is comparatively a young man for that high position, having been born in 1848. He is a native of Edinburgh, Scotland, and is the ninety-sixth Archbishop of Canterbury since St. Augustine. He studied at Oxford, and has held many important offices in the church. To his new duties he brings an intimate experience, probably more extended than any other man who could have been chosen. It was gained as private secretary to Archbishop Tait, whose daughter he married. He was also a close friend of Archbishop Benson, so that the work connected with the Archbishopric is familiar to him. It is doubtful whether the appointment will be popular with the bishops and clergy over whom he will rule. His name is usually associated with the Broad Church theory, but his sympathy with Evangelicals has been repeatedly shown. It is remembered with kindly spirit by Nonconformists, that he attended the funeral of Pastor C. H. Spurgeon and pronounced the benediction. His influence in the church will be enormous, and we may therefore hope that it will be exereised in the spirit of the apostolic injunction:

In all things showing thyself a pattern of good works: in doctrine showing uncorruptness, gravity, sincerity, sound speech, that cannot be condemned (Titus 2: 7).

DR. RANDALL T. DAVIDSON
The Newly Appointed Archbishop of Canterbury

THE ICE-COVERED RUINS OF THE BURNED BUILDING IN NEW YORK

Reported Gold Discovery

Press despatches from Seattle, Wash., report the discovery of a rich gold field in Alaska. It is said to be eighteen miles north of Tenana River, at a point three hundred miles from its source. The news of the discovery was carried to Dawson by a Japanese named Wada, who is known in the district as a reliable man of undoubted veracity. He says that the locality of the discovery resembles the Klondike in its chief physical features, but has a heavier growth of timber. Eight different creeks had been traced, he said, in which gold was found. A firm of prospectors had sunk holes to bed-rock and had found an even run of gold in each, with one distinct streak over eight feet deep. About a hundred men had staked claims and were at work when the Japanese left. His news caused an immense sensation at Dawson, and many at once prepared to leave for the new district. One town was entirely deserted, and miners from all the surrounding camps were hurrying to the region. No one is surprised at their doing so. The desire for wealth is so general and so intense, that when it is known that a place has been found where gold can be had by digging for it, a rush for it is sure to occur. We should see similar earnestness in the search after truth if men really believed the Psalmist's assurance:

The judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether; more to be desired are they than gold, yea than much fine gold (Ps. 19: 9).

BRIEF NOTES

By an inexcusable oversight an error was printed in a paragraph entitled, "A House on the Ice," in this journal on January 14. Instead of Willimantic, Ct., it should read Willamette, Mich.

Evangelist H. Stafford Smith, of England, is now on a visit to this country and will be glad to conduct evangelistic services during his stay. Mr. Smith's former visit in 1898 was greatly blessed to the conversion of many souls. His singing as well as his preaching had a wonderful power, and we hope that a similar blessing will attend this visit. Letters addressed to him at this office, or Bible House, New York, will be forwarded to him.

FOR THE SAKE OF OTHERS ✳

QUARTERLY Temperance Lesson

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR FEB 15. I CORINTHIANS 8: 4-13

By Dr. and Mrs. Wilbur F. Crafts

GOLDEN TEXT—"LET US THEREFORE FOLLOW AFTER THE THINGS THAT MAKE FOR PEACE." ROM. 14: 19.

THE GREEK THE JEW

THE Greek and the Jew we find yoked together in the church at Corinth. And how did they come to be yoke-fellows? Through the preaching of Paul, both had been brought to a knowledge of Christ. And what kind of yoke-fellows did they make? Did they pull together? Not always. Could it be expected that they would? The Greek had behind him centuries of idol-worshiping ancestors, the Jew, centuries of God-fearing ancestors. To the Greek, all who were not Greeks, were "barbarians." To the Jew, the Greeks were "Gentiles," which meant about the same.

How wide apart they were in their traditions and customs? The Jew ate meat, but not all kinds of meat, only that which was "clean," according to the law of Moses, the flesh of such animals as chewed the cud and parted the hoof. He was also forbidden to eat meat offered to idols. We see a striking example of the result of such teaching in the firm refusal of Daniel and his three boy companions, to eat the meat and drink the wine which was set before them in the king's school, when they were captives in Babylon (Daniel 1). On the other hand, the Greeks prized above any other kind of meat that which had been placed before idols, because it was regarded as "consecrated," and was also of the best quality. To the Christian Greeks in Corinth, idol meat had lost its sacredness, but as they counted an idol as "nothing," they saw no reason why they should not eat idol meat in company with their friends who had not yet broken away from their idolatries. Such eating, however, seemed to their Jewish fellow-Christians a great sin, and they had bitter words to say about it. The Apostle Paul was appealed to as arbitrator. It is likely that both Christian Jews and Greeks had agreed to abide by his decision. Paul was a Jew by birth and training—could he side with the Greeks? But he was broad minded, and could consider the Greek point of view as well as the Jewish. He did look at both sides of the question, and rendered a decision which has served Christians ever since in all the world concerning things doubtful, proclaiming the principle of self-denial for the good of others.

His advice on this subject is in a Bible letter we speak of as "First Corinthians." He was careful to tell the Greek Christians that all men had not risen to their point of view in considering an idol as nothing, and that to such the eating of meat that had been offered to idols could not but be confused with continued allegiance to idols, and that, therefore, they should not have anything to do with this meat. To put it into our modern way of speaking, Paul showed them that in order to be consistent Christians they must not have any association whatsoever with idols or their sacrifices. And Paul nobly wrote them that as for himself, if self indulgence on his part, in even an innocent way, would become a stumbling block to any brother, he would in that forever practice self denial. He therefore advised the Greeks not to partake again of the idol meat.

Paul's Jewish predilections seem not to have entered into the solution of the question. The matter was to be settled by considering only how the greatest good could be accomplished in the promotion of the peace of the church and in saving those who were still out of Christ. Of course Paul would not have advised that there should be any compromise on a question of right and wrong. The Bible rule is: "First pure, then peaceable." As it was only a question of privilege to the Greeks, they yielded and pulled together amicably with their Jewish yoke-fellows, brought into harmony by their desire to see the Name of the Lord Jesus glorified. Paul, in his wisdom had not said, "The Jews are right." He had decided the question on higher grounds, and in so doing there was no opportunity on the one hand for the bitterness of defeat, or on the other hand, for the self-gratulation of conquest. The church was really stronger for the difficulty that had arisen, having learned something of the privilege of giving up rights (not right) for the sake of others.

Illustration and Application

Why should I abstain from intoxicating beverages? (Let this lesson be kept close to the one question of beverages. The medicinal use of drink requires at least a whole lesson; so also the question of what liquor law is best.) I. Even though I feel sure that alcoholic beverages will do me no harm, yet if I see that my example might cause some human brother to be harmed, or to harm others, I am bound to abstain, inasmuch as the custom of drinking is, even to those who defend it, only a privilege, not a duty. In the words of Neal Dow, "No one has a right to do that which, if the whole world follows his example, as some are almost sure to do, will produce more harm than good. II. But in the Twentieth Century, when insurance tables prove that even moderate drinking injures health and shortens life, I am bound to abstain also for my own sake, in fulfilment of the command, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," which requires a proper self-love and self-regard. Suicide is wrong as well as murder. I have no more right to poison myself than others. No one in Corinth claimed that idol meat was per se harmful. It was only the associations that anyone objected to. But it is not alone the associations of the saloon that are bad; the alcohol itself is harmful to body, mind and soul. Insurance tables, insanity statistics, criminal records, all prove that. Anyone who drinks is liable to get drunk, and so to become a drunkard, and one who was never drunk may be diseased in every cell of his body through daily tippling. We need to repeat often, that Dr. Benjamin Ward Richardson, a London physician, has said, that daily tippling injures one's health and his children more than the monthly pay-day debauch.

1. Moderation, as a substitute for abstinence, was sincerely and thoroughly tried by temperance leaders and discarded as inadequate. 2. Substitution of wine and beer for whiskey and other distilled liquors was also sincerely tried by temperance societies, and found equally unavailing. 3. Abstinence was at last tried, and the doctors now declare it the way to health, and the athletes find it the way to strength. 4. Greely, Peary, Nansen, Kane, and other arctic explorers, proclaim abstinence the best plan for extreme cold, and Stanley, in his African annals, proves abstinence is also safest in the tropics. 5. The fact that fifty-one per cent. of the business establishments of the United States either require abstinence of employees or at least give abstainers the preference, shows that abstinence is the best plan for business success. 6. Jefferson declared for abstinence in public service, that is, in politics. 7. The churches have with nearly unanimous voice resolved in favor of abstinence as the only consistent attitude for the Christian.

No one claims that any evil consequences can come from abstaining altogether, and when one who has never allowed himself to form the habit, not even self-denial is required; but let others who have not acquired the dangerous liking for the drink, remember the profound saying that "self-denial is self-love living for the future." Therefore, let us insure our future by taking this pledge to-day:

> For my own sake, For the sake of others,
> For Christ's sake, and by His help,
> I will totally abstain from all intoxicating beverages.
> (Signed)

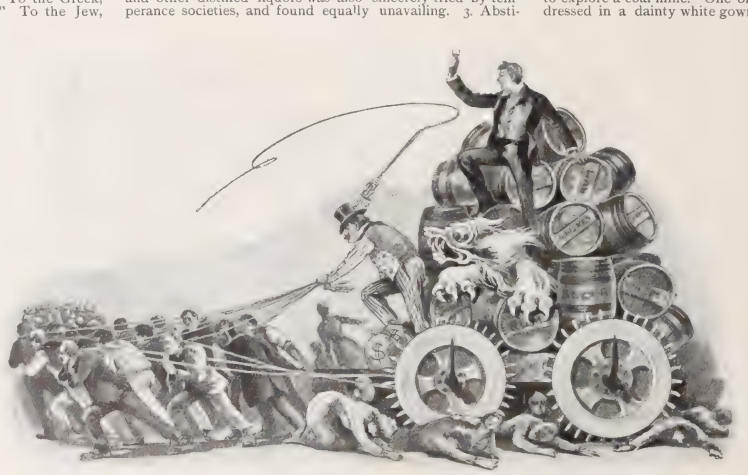
Two Stories for Boys

A bright boy, who had been taught the nature of strong drink and promised to shun it, one day visited a rich uncle. He offered the boy a glass of wine, which he declined. Wishing to see how far he could be tempted, he urged the boy to drink, and finally offered him the gift of a watch if he would drink. The boy declined, saying: "Please don't tempt me; if I keep a teetotaler I can some day buy a watch of m own, but if I drink and take your watch I may later on hav to pawn it to get bread." He had learned to abstain for th sake of his future.

"Mister, do you lend money here?" asked an earnest youn voice at the office-door. The lawyer turned away from hi desk, confronted a clear-eyed, poorly-dressed lad of twelv years, and studied him keenly for a minute. "Sometimes w do—on good security," he said gravely. The little fello explained that he had a chance "to buy out a boy that' cryin' papers." He had half the money required, but h needed to borrow the other fifteen cents. "What securit can you offer?" asked the lawyer. The boy's brown hand sought his pocket, and he drew out a paper carefully folded in a bit of calico. It was a cheaply-printed pledge agains the use of intoxicating liquor and tobacco. As respectfull as if it had been the deed to a farm, the lawyer examined it accepted it, and handed over the required sum. A friend wh had watched the transaction with silent amusement, laughe as the young borrower departed. "You think that I know nothing about him," smiled the lawyer. "I know that h came manfully, in what he supposed to be a business way and tried to negotiate a loan, instead of begging the money I know that he has been under good influences or he woul not have signed that pledge, and that he does not hold i lightly or he would not have cared for it so carefully. I agree with him that one who keeps himself from such things has a character to offer as security." The boy probably di not know that business firms require abstinence, but he knew by the clear instincts of boyhood that a boy who did no drink would be more reliable to do a job or pay a debt, an he supposed others would see that also.

"I think a Christian can go anywhere," said a young wom an, who was defending her continued attendance at some very doubtful places of amusement. "Certainly she can," rejoined her friend, "but I am re minded of a little incident that happened last summer, when I went with a party of friends to explore a coal mine. One of the young women appeared dressed in a dainty white gown. When her friends remon strated with her, she appealed to the old miner who was to act as guide of the party. 'Can't I wear a white dress down into the mine?' she asked, petulantly. 'Yes'm,' returned the old man, 'There's nothin' to keep you from wearin' a white frock down there, but there'll be considerable to keep you from wearin' one back.'" There is nothing to prevent the Christian wearing his white garments when he seeks the fellowship of that which is unclean, but there is a good deal to prevent him from wearing white garments afterward. No woman who would keep a spotless reputation can afford to drink anywhere, for drink dethrones modesty and strengthens passion.

A Story for the Girls



THE JUGGERNAUT OF CIVILIZATION

Many a father abstains for the sake of his child. Here are two stories that will help to increase the number. Two grave, quiet-looking men stood on the steps of a big house in Washington some years ago. They were watching four bright children get into a cart and drive down the street, throwing back kisses and "good-byes" to papa and papa's friend, the general.

Two Stories for Fathers

The father was General Phil Sheridan. The other general, an old friend, said: "Phil, how do you manage your little army of four?" "I don't manage; they are mischievous soldiers, but what good comrades! All the good there is in me they bring out. Their little mother is a wonderful woman, and worth a regiment of officers. I often think what pitfalls are in waiting for my small, brave soldiers all through life. I wish I could always help them over." "Phil, if you could choose for your little son from all the temptations which will beset him the one most to be feared, what would it be?" General Sheridan leaned his head against the doorway, and said, soberly: "It would be the curse of strong drink."

Senator Henry J. Coggleshall is a poet. He says, however, that he has only written one poem. "To tell you the truth," said the Senator one day at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, "that poem you have heard about was really inspired. One of my senatorial colleagues gave a dinner, and I was one of the guests." "Were you fined a poem for drinking seltzer?" asked the reporter. "No," replied Senator Coggleshall. "I refused to drink anything intoxicating, and my colleagues began to jibe me. I thought of a promise I had made to my little daughter, her last words to me when I left home for Albany being: 'Papa, be true to me.' I gave the poem that title." It is as follows:

What makes me refuse a social glass? Well, I'll tell you the reason why;
Because a bonnie, blue-eyed lass is ever standing by.
And I hear her, boys, above the noise of the jest and the merry glee,
As with baby grace she kisses my face and says, "Papa, be true to me."

The Gnawing of Hunger

WE have known the inconvenience, and, to some extent, the wretchedness of an insufficient coal supply this season, but relief has always been in sight, over here in this bountiful America. ar otherwise is the situation in Northern Europe, when amine, like a gaunt and ravening wolf stalks through ie land, when the larder is empty, when crops have ailed, when the cattle die for lack of sustenance, babes erish at the breast, and whole families lie down and ie. Nothing surpasses the agony of hunger, the slow asting pangs of it, the hope deferred, the terrible rain-wasting torture of a death that creeps steadily on, aving its skeleton hands in the pale faces of its victims.

We sent help to India, when famine-swept lands deanded it; we are now asked to send help to the poor own-trodden people of Finland, people of the Lutheran ith, and who still, amid all their misfor- nes, trust God.

Probably these Finnish people, than hom we could desire no better element, ill come to us in thousands bye and bye; migrants bringing with them honesty of urpose, sturdy valor, and keen intelli- nce. Now, they are perishing of want, thers, mothers and children. The hools are closed, the churches are empty, e homes are dark. The simple fact is at whole villages are starving. America n alleviate this dire suffering, change is frightful situation, if our people will ly, at once, without an instant's delay, ve as God has prospered them and send ead to these our friends, so that they ay be tided past the great trouble, and ieved from the gnawing pains of hunger. rmers, merchants, clerks, working men d working women, rich and poor, do t delay. Send help to Finland, quickly!

ne Women of Finland

Some years ago, I knew intimately a gentle- man from Finland, whose linguistic attain- nts and musical education were both re- rkable. She spoke and wrote with accuracy languages. She played piano and harp as se do who begin in babyhood, and practice, der stern tuition, until they are young men. From her I learned much of the nish women; of their austere virtue, their erential piety, and their versatile capability Finland, woman is, in most phases of life, equal of man. She competes with him usiness, she is as dominant in the house- d as her husband, and in marriage there is equitable division of finances. Divorce is e. Infidelity very uncommon. The women his northern nation are feminine in man- , not mannish, and their home and family is very orderly, beautiful and harmoni- . Staunch Protestants, they are, like the men of Puritan days, self-denying, faith- and incomparably truth-loving, and kind- s is on their lips. For the sake of the wo- n, something should be swiftly planned to eliorate the present intolerable situation. erican women will surely not remain in- erent to the needs of these far-off sisters r the sea.

Mayflower Bible

a citizen of Philadelphia has just presented aluable and interesting heirloom to the rim Society of Plymouth. Mr. Asa W. ters is a direct descendant of Governor dford, and this Bible, often read by this at ancestor, has been in the family for t generations. It was printed in London, 1592, taken by the Bradfords to Holland, early in the enteenth century, and brought over in the Mayflower in 0. From Joshua Bradford (son of the governor), it was ded to Elisha, his son; from Alice Bradford, daughter of sha, who married Zebulon Waters of Stoughton, Mass, to son, Captain Asa Waters, who fought in the revolution. nce it has come from father to son until the present day. e Bible is six by eight inches, bound in black leather. If go to Plymouth, Mass., next summer, you may see it ong the other relics gathered there by the Pilgrim Society.

w to Cure Diffidence friend and reader is greatly embarrassed by diffidence, longs to discover a remedy. Its foundation is usually in an inordinate self-consciousness, and this bane of existence has been fostered by the indiscretion of parents and teachers. An infant is never self-conscious, but always is superbly at ease. To the diffident person it is natural to say, "Stop thinking of yourself, of the way you are dressed, of the impression you are making," but the advice is not always easily adopted. My counsel is this: Seek out somebody who is even more modest and less at home than you are, and do what you can to make her enjoy the occasion. Have your dress as appropriate as you can, and think no more about it. If your hands are in your way, give them something to do.

A Level-Headed Lady

Among the teachers in a high school near New York, is a young lady who, the other day, came into $350,000 from the estate of an uncle. Far from losing her head over her good fortune, this level-headed woman has decided to keep on for the present with her teaching, which she enjoys, and in which she is successful. If she is a more than usually gifted teacher, the school is to be congratulated on her decision, but inevitably the question will be raised, whether or not she is justified in teaching, when she does not need the salary. Thus far, it has proved an impossibility to eradicate from the general mind, the notion that no wealthy woman should ever take pay for her work. The action of Boards of Education in discouraging the marriage of women teachers is founded on this same idea. If a woman has other means of support, a husband or a fortune, she must not herself earn money. The vital point in concern is, not is a woman rich or poor, married or single, but does she know how to teach, or to do other work to which she applies herself.

The lady who possesses private means will not less worthily adorn her profession on that account. If she has no care for bread and butter, she ought to adorn it even more worthily than if less agreeably placed in life.

AN ITALIAN STREET SCENE

There are quarters on the East Side, in New York, where much of the life depicted in this picture of an Italian city may be seen. A lady looking from a window out on a crowded block, the other day, exclaimed: "Why, this looks like Italy!" For all countries meet in our metropolis, and the pretty bambino is as lovely here as in its mother's arms across the ocean blue.

The Pendulum Swings Back

IN the early days of this country, shiploads of young women were brought to Virginia, that the planters might select wives from their number. This forms the basis of the romantic episode which Mary Johnston used to such good advantage in her novel To Have and to Hold. A dearth of women in a new country means much lack of home comfort for the hard-working men. Mrs. Custer, in one of her books, tells how a young army officer, returning from a long campaign on the plains, jumped from his horse, and kissed the white apron of a woman, as he saw it flying from the clothes-line in a village garden. But in our day, women do not usually deliberately start in a body for some place where possible husbands await them. Some weeks ago, a gentleman of Rugby, N. D., Mr. J. R. Walters by name, announced that the numerous bachelors in Rugby were in great need of wives, whereupon a hundred young women wrote to him, stating they would go to Rugby by speedy conveyances. Correspondences ensued, and the prospects are that there will be many marriages in this portion of North Dakota.

The wives of pioneers have no easy task. Life is hard, unromantic, and lonely. The women fade early under incessant drudgery. It would seem better for women to wait for wifehood until men could court them in the orthodox way. But doubtless some of these matter-of-fact couples will settle down on their quarter-sections, and capture some happiness.

Introductions

The etiquette of introductions puzzles some readers, yet there is nothing intricate in the subject. The rule is to present a gentleman to a lady thus, "Mrs. Jones, or Miss Warrener, allow me to present Mr. Bacon." The single exception is in a case where a man is of venerable age or exalted official position, when it may be proper to introduce a young woman to him. But a matron has the right to have every man introduced to her. In making introductions, names should be clearly spoken, or else they will not be understood. If one does not catch a name, one should courteously ask that it be repeated.

A Little Strip of White in the Neck

"Won't you relieve that dreary blackness, mother?" said a boy, surveying with disfavor the mourning garb his widowed mother wore. It was sheer night-black woful gloom from the neck to the hem, and I could not wonder at the lad's disapproval.

"Oh," sighed the lady, "I cannot bring myself to lighten my mourning. It expresses my feelings. I am heart-broken."

"Yet," urged a friend, "a little strip of white, hemstitched daintily, and turned over the neck-band would please your son, be more becoming to you, and conventionally satisfy the most fastidious. Black, not softened by any edge of white, is trying to the complexion. Dick, if he were here, would exclaim at the fright you are making of yourself, you, who are a pretty woman. And you do owe something to Dick's boy and yours, don't you?"

Sincere mourners are sometimes selfish. They overlook what they owe to the living, in their grief for the dead. Somewhere, the dead are alive, and perhaps they are very near us. It is no pleasure to them, if they see, to watch our absorption in sorrow and our fruitless tears. I plead for the little strip of white in the neck.

Aunt Prudence Payson's Catch-All

—JACK PRIMROSE. Evening dress is never worn until after six o'clock.

—MOLLIE. Teach your little girl table manners from the time she can hold a spoon.

—MARIAL. The fault of your disposition is an overweening jealousy. Pray overcome it.

—TIRED OUT. It may be hard to live with your husband's people, but since he can give you no other home, by all means make the best of it.

—JEAN. If married in your traveling dress, wear bonnet or hat and gloves. Wedding presents should be acknowledged as soon as received; in your maiden name before marriage, in your married name after it.

New Styles for Spring

Our Catalogue illustrates attractive Suits, $8 up; Etamine Costumes, $12 up, stylish Skirts of excellent fabrics, $4 up; Rainy-day and Walking Skirts, $5 up; new Walking Suits, $10 up; Jaunty Jackets in new Spring fabrics, $6 up.

Write to-day for our new Spring Catalogue and Samples; you will get them free by return mail.

NATIONAL CLOAK AND SUIT COMPANY,
119 and 121 West 23d St., New York.

WORSTED THE FLEISHER'S BEST YARNS

This Trade Mark is on every skein of the best Yarn made

Send 5 of these tickets and 2 cents for postage to the Manufacturers S. B. & W. Fleisher, Inc. Philadelphia, Pa. for their new Knitting & Crocheting Manual in women is heightened by a beautiful complexion. Women preserve your cherished charm!

LABLACHE FACE POWDER

LOVELINESS

LABLACHE

Face Powder produces a soft, velvety skin. It improves any complexion, preserves a beautiful one and restores one that has faded. The famous beauties of the world owe much to LABLACHE. White, Pink, Flesh, Cream Tints. 50c. a box. Druggists or by mail. Beware of all substitutes.

BEN LEVY & CO., French Perfumers, 125 Kingston St. Boston

Agents Wanted

No experience or capital necessary. We explain everything to you and if you have the "knack" you can make $40 a week. You are sure of a better income working for yourself than for others. Your customers are satisfied and you make big profit on our goods. Exclusive territory. Suits $9.00 up. Trousers, $2.50 up. Express prepaid. Everybody says "best line I ever saw." Complete pocket outfit for 2-cent stamp. Write today. Grasp this opportunity now.

PROGRESS TAILORING COMPANY,
Dept. J. S. E. cor. Market & Quincy, Chicago Ill.

Come Here! When in search of health and rest for mind and body. Your physician will agree. Booklet free.

STILLEN SANITARIUM, Hornellsville, N. Y.

MARGARET PARMALEE'S SPHERE

By Virginia R. Grundy

WHEN Miss Griggs left the church after the Saturday afternoon choir practice, she found Margaret Parmalee awaiting her at the gate. This was unusual, for the lighthouse keeper's daughter was a shy girl, and chary of advances toward any one. "She has been to college a year or two and she's stuck-up," the village folk said. Miss Griggs, who went beneath the surface of most things, thought otherwise.

"This is my first opportunity of speaking to you since your return, Margaret," she began, as they walked homeward in the pleasant autumn sunshine. "What have you been doing all summer, you quiet thing?"

Margaret smiled, but a shadow flitted over her fresh, young face. "Father has rheumatism quite frequently, you know, and lately mother's health has failed. I have to tend the light and do the housework. Sometimes I go fishing with father, or play and sing to mother. They seem to need me, but——"

"But what, Margaret?"

"O, Miss Griggs, I am ashamed to say it, but my duty is often irksome! It is not what I planned at all. I want to take a music-class in some city, and save my earnings to send mother to Florida for a while. She is homesick for her old friends down there, and the climate would do her a world of good. But now, since father is so often helpless, it is impossible for me to go away. The light is our main dependence."

"Yes, it would be folly to give up a sure thing for an uncertain one," agreed Miss Griggs. "Still, could you not get a class in this place?"

"I have tried; but they are too poor or too indifferent to send. Perhaps, they doubt my ability!"

"Nonsense! Several rough old tars have told me that they come to church mainly to hear you sing," said Miss Griggs kindly.

Margaret looked gratified.

"I know it is wrong to complain," she said; "but my parents have made sacrifices to keep me at school, and I feel that I ought to work and repay them."

"There are more ways of paying debts than with money, dear. Make the most of your limitations, and when the time comes for you to battle with the world, be sure, a way will be opened," comforted Miss Griggs, with her cheering smile. "'If you want a field of labor you can find it anywhere.'"

"I'll remember that," promised Margaret, and she tripped down to her boat with a lighter heart. A moment later she was dipping her oars to the accompaniment of a merry sailor's song.

On a high ledge, about a quarter of a mile from the pier, stood the lighthouse, the only home Margaret had known since her childhood.

Her father was sitting on some low rocks, assorting a collection of sea-shells, which he utilized in box and basket-making during his rheumatic spells, when the pain affected only his ankles. His odd little articles brought a ready sale in a near-by city.

"I heard ye singing, lass, and it made me glad," he said, coming stiffly to Margaret's assistance. "I feared ye might be growing tired of this dull spot and we two fussy old folks."

Margaret made some reassuring reply, but there were sudden tears in her soft eyes. She was wondering if she had been doing her duty ungraciously.

While she was setting the tea-table she talked cheerfully to the invalid mother, who was placidly knitting by the cozy fire. Afterward she went up to the tower to trim the huge lamp and brighten the window-panes. It was very peaceful up there. The sun was sinking beyond the golden waters, and distant sea-gulls flashed across the line of breakers far below. Margaret always felt nearer heaven at sunset. It was easy then to make good resolutions.

"I'll trim myself to fit my sphere," she promised herself that evening. "There is poor old Granny Brooks I could go to see, and maybe brighten her life a bit; and I'll get acquainted with other people, too."

"A nice plan, daughter," Mrs. Parmalee said, when Margaret asked her advice. "You stay at home too closely. I'm afraid you will make little headway with old Mrs Brooks, however. She is a queer character."

It was a real cross to timid Margaret to go visiting. She expected to have her ardor damped, but the village girls seemed glad to greet her after her long absence, and she was surprised to find some of them quite congenial acquaintances.

With Granny Brooks she was not so successful. She lived with one old colored servant in a dreary spot, apart from neighbors and just above the reach of the tide. The house, a plain two-room frame building, was set in a grove of untrimmed crape myrtles and cedars, and looked a fit abode for bats and other things uncanny. Margaret shivered as she went up the weedy walk and knocked at the door. While she waited a response, a black cat ran up the steps and rubbed against her dress.

Old Aunt Tildy ushered her into a clean but cheerless room, where Granny Brooks, as she was familiarly called, sat smoking a pipe in the chimney corner.

"Well, what do you want?" she demanded, eyeing her guest narrowly.

Margaret thought of evil fairies, and answered that she had merely come for a call.

"Humph! Ye are the first person that's been here in months without some selfish reason. Got tracts and a hymn-book, aint ye?"

"No, ma'am, but I will sing if you like," Margaret replied, ignoring the rebuff.

"No, ye would hurt my head, more'n likely. How's your folks?"

Margaret answered politely, and after a few desultory remarks, rose to go.

"I'll come again," she said, not liking to leave abruptly.

"Better wait till ye're asked," Granny answered, snappishly, but Margaret did not hear. She was hastening homeward with a feeling of relief.

When Miss Griggs heard the story she laughed heartily.

CONCLUDED ON PAGE 102

THE EDITOR'S BRAIN

Did Not Work Well Under Coffee.

A brain worker's health is often injured by coffee, badly selected food and sedentary habits. The experience of the Managing Editor of one of the most prosperous newspapers in the middle West, with Postum Food Coffee illustrates the necessity of proper feeding for the man who depends on his brain for living.

"Up to three years ago," writes this gentleman, "I was a heavy coffee drinker. I knew it was injuring me. It directly affected my stomach and I was threatened with chronic dyspepsia. It was then that my wife persuaded me to try Postum Food Coffee. The good results were so marked that I cannot say too much for it. When first prepared I did not fancy it, but inquiry developed the fact that cook had not boiled it long enough, so next time I had it properly made and was charmed with it. Since that time coffee has had no place on my table save for guests. Both myself and wife are fond of this new cup which 'cheers but does not inebriate' in a much truer and fitter sense than coffee. My stomach has resumed its normal functions and I am now well and strong again mentally and physically.

"I am confident that coffee is a poison to many stomachs, and I have recommended Postum with great success to a number of my friends who were suffering from the use of coffee." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Mellin's Food

makes a food that is like mother's milk.

Send for a free sample of Mellin's Food

Mellin's Food Co., Boston, Mass

$10 DRESSES ANY WOMAN COMPLETE FROM HEAD TO TOE IN LATEST STYLE.

Free Samples and Measurement Blanks.

To Introduce Direct to the Wearer our Ladies' Custom Tailoring we will make the first ten thousand suits absolutely to measure sent us for only $10 and give the following complete outfit FREE Actually $28 value for only $10 and nothing to pay till after you receive the suit and free outfit and find it just as represented. Send us your name and post-office address, and we will send you FREE SAMPLES OF CLOTH, 5-ft. tape line and measurement blank for size of Suit, Shirtwaist & Shoes. A genuine wool mixed repellant latest style, Tailor Made Blouse Suit, for such ladies' tailors charge $20.00

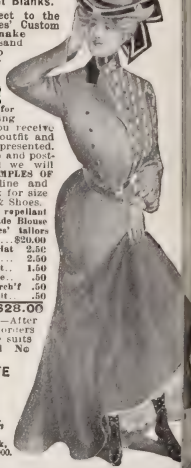
Mohair Felt Trimmed Hat	2.50
Pair Stylish Shoes	2.50
Flannelette Shirtwaist	1.50
Pair Lisle Thread Hose	.50
Lace Bordered Hndk'ch'f	.50
Handsome Leather Belt	.50

Ladies' pay daily for this $28.00

DON'T DELAY—After having filled 10,000 orders our prices for these suits will be $20.00 and No Free Articles.

GENTS' COMPLETE OUTFITTING CO.,
Ladies' Tailoring, Dept. 407
111 Adams Street, CHICAGO.

Reference: First Nat'l Bank, Chicago. Capital $12,000,000.



If the best you wish to buy,
Ask the clerk for YAMA-MAI.
Then the selvage scan with care,
For my name is printed there.

Yama-Mai

I am the best little priced silk ever made. My price is so tiny that really I'm ashamed to mention it. The merchant who wants to give you the most for your money will sell me to you every time. I am used for linings and pretty fancies in silk. Yours for economy and honesty, YAMA MAI.

DUNCAN & STENZ,
Makers for the Trade,
No. 466 Broome Street, New York.

$500 IN CASH PRIZES

No More Darning

Racine Feet

A New Pair Hose for It

Cut off ragged feet, attach "Racine Feet" to legs of hosiery by our new Stockinette Stitch, and you have a pair of hose as good as new. Cost only 10c. and a few moments' time. Racine Feet come in cotton, sizes 5 to 11, black and white. Price, 10 cents a pair, prepaid. Booklet tells everything. Sent free. Agents wanted.

RACINE KNITTING CO.
Department 3, Racine, Wisconsin

Send for a sample pair, and particulars of our competition

$500 IN CASH PRIZES

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS.

UNLIKE OTHER BELLS SWEETER, MORE DURABLE, LOWER PRICED OUR FREE CATALOGUE TELLS WHY.

Write to Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., Cincinnati.

Delicious Drinks and Dainty Dishes

ARE MADE FROM

BAKER'S BREAKFAST COCOA

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Unequaled for Smoothness, Delicacy, and Flavor

Examine the package you receive and make sure that it bears our trade-mark.

Under the decisions of the U. S. Courts no other Cocoa is entitled to be labeled or sold as "BAKER'S COCOA."

Walter Baker & Co. Ltd.

Established 1780 DORCHESTER, MASS.

$45 TOLMAN RANGES $21.75

reservoir and high closet. Great Foundry Sale ship range f r examination without a c nt in advance. I you lik it pay 75 and freight and take it for ot satisfactory we agree to refund your money. Tolman ges are made best wrought n. Oven 18x21 six 8 in. holes. t bakers and ters on earth. anything. stos lined flues.

30 Days FREE Trial.

uaranteed 5 years.

save their cost in fuel ne Year. Write to-day our new Catalogue.

JUDSON A. TOLMAN COMPANY, partment R 17, 66 Lake Street, Chicago.

SOLD! UNDER A Positive Guarantee

wash as clean as can be done on washboard, even to the stbands and collar of the best shirt, and with ch more ease. This plies to Terriff's erfect Washer, which l be sent on trial at olesale price. If not tisfactory, money will refunded. AGENTS ANTED. For exclu territory, terms and c., write se trade-mark crisscross lines on every package.

RTLAND MFG. CO., Box 231, Portland, Mich.

Gluten Grits AND BARLEY CRYSTALS,

erfect Breakfast and Dessert Health Cereals. NSY FLOUR for Bread, Cake and Pastry. like all other foods. Ask Grocers. For book of Sample, write RWELL & RHINES, Watertown, N. Y., U.S.A.

CORNS Won't you risk one cent—send a postal —for a trial box of A-CORN SALVE? We risk a lot more than that: because we know it'll do the work and you'll buy many 15c. boxes (at druggists or by mail).

ant Chemical Co., Philadelphia

OUR SUNDAY HOUR WITH THE LITTLE FOLKS

CHILDREN, we have a new plan for awarding prizes, which we think you will like. Our experience of the past few months suggests it as a fair and just innovation.

To our first competitions, published December 10, over 10,000 answers were received! Study of these and subsequent thousands, pouring into this Department, emphasize the fact that educational advantages are not equal in all sections. It does not seem entirely fair to judge a child of New England, where schools and libraries abound, with the child of less favored localities. Therefore, we will judge each State's letters by themselves. In awarding prizes for this week's competition, there will be one prize for each State and one for each Canadian Province. The child sending the best answer from Massachusetts will be prize-winner for that State; the child sending the best from Oklahoma will be prize-winner for Oklahoma; and so on. When the full complement of prize-winning answers have been chosen, the two best will be selected as deserving of the first prizes, the judges carefully weighing all considerations involved.

We cannot divert time and attention from the thousands of answers daily received, in order to reply to letters asking further information about puzzle competitions. We will, however, appreciate any suggestions sent—only do not enclose them with your competition answer. Enclose nothing else with that.

COMPETITION 17

What two places mentioned in Scripture do these pictures represent?

Write "Competition 17" plainly across the top of a postal card or sheet of paper; next, your name, age and address; then the answers. For each of the two answers employ but one word—the name of the place you think the picture represents. Don't quote Scripture passages; simply state the name of the place. Read the rules given below.

Competition 18
Curious Questions

1. The history of what royal child shows that God watches the deeds of children?
2. What child received death as reward?
3. Through what child's bereavement was a nation blessed?
4. Who was the youngest prophet?

Write "Competition 18" plainly across the top of your postal card or sheet of paper; next, your name, age, and address. Answer as many of the questions as you can, writing in each case the number of the question (not the question itself) before its answer. Answers to all four questions must not exceed fifty words in the aggregate. Read the following rules.

RULES AND PRIZES

Contests are not open to competitors over fourteen years of age. Only one weekly competition is open to any one person. If you answer both Competition 17 and 18 you forfeit your chances therefor. Do not send two solutions. There is no objection to asking the help of others, but each competitor must send in the answers in his or her own handwriting. Should you use paper instead of a postal card, be sure to write on the envelope in which you enclose your answer "Competition 17" or "Competition 18," as the case may be. Do not write on both sides of a sheet of paper.

Prizes are as follows: For the best answer to "Competition 17," a handsome silver watch, lady's or gentleman's; for each of the twenty-five next best answers, a beautiful book. For the best answer to "Competition 18," a handsome silver watch, lady's or gentleman's; for each of the twenty-five next best answers, a beautiful book.

All answers must be mailed not later than February 9, 1903. Address, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, Little Folks Department, Bible House, New York.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF PRIZE-WINNERS FOR JAN. 7, 1903

The Answers to Competitions in our issue of January 7, are: Picture Puzzle 1, Jericho. Picture Puzzle 2, Sinai. In "Curious Questions": 1. Bells, cornet, cymbal, dulcimer, flute, harp, horn, "instrument of ten strings," organ, pipe, psaltery, ram's horn, sackbut, trumpet, tabret or timbrel, viol. [In the titles of a number of psalms, certain words supposed to refer to musical instruments occur, as mahalath, meaning possibly a lute or guitar; gittith, a stringed instrument, strings of any instrument, a song composed for stringed instruments, and so on. Neginoth is a term for stringed instruments in general; nehiloth for wind instruments. In the Revised Version, castanets, bagpipe, triangle and lute are found. If an answer sent in contained all the plain English names given above, omission of the Hebrew names, or of names found in only the Revised Version, was not counted as an error.] . 2. Abraham, Gen. 22: 3. . 3. Moses, Ex. 34: 33. . 4. Rechabites, Jer. 35: 3, 6, 8; Nazarites, Numb. 6: 2-4.

For the best answer to "Picture Puzzles" of January 7, Walter G. Hill, Jamaica Plain, Mass., receives a silver watch; for best answers to "Curious Questions," January 7, Flossie de Jong, Zeeland, Mich., receives a silver watch. Each of the following receives a book:

Second best answers to Picture Puzzle Contest.

Barlow, DM, Wash.
Bergstrand, Ida, Oreg.
Beverley, J R, Tex.
Boynton, Marg'e, Okla.
Burditt, Margery, Vt.
Cass, Alice, Minn.
Chandler, A B, N. H.
Cook, W C, N. Y.
Eddy, K, Mont.
Fisher, Mary M, Pa.
Fordham, Hope L., N.Y.
Forney, Miss M., Ariz.
Gauer, M, Kans.
Geiger, F D, Pa.
Hoopes, R T, Del.
Keir, E R, Colo.
Kunkel, H, Mo.
Le Baron, K, Can.
McCall, Madge, Oreg.
McClellan, Miss C, Colo.
Marsh, H, N. C.
Marshall, J A, Mo.
Martens, Frieda, Ind.
Mitchell, Alfred, Mass.
Moffett, Ernest C, N. J.
Montgomery, R, Tenn.
Fatee, Lois E, Ark.
Pelton, Helen L, N. Y.
Phillips, Winnie, Mont.
Pierce, Rebecca, Neb.
Quillin, Floyd, Idaho
Reitzel, Frank G, Pa.
Revere, Leftwich, Va.
Robinson, Don H, N.H.
Rudy, Eva A, D. C.
Secrist, George, Ohio.
Shields, Mabel, Idaho
Smith, Bertha E, R. I.
Snare, Mary, Nevada
Strange, Tay, Delaware
Tobie, Edna, S. D.
Upshaw, Miss M, Ga.
Vandewall, Velma, Wis.
Vercler, Miss Y, Oreg.
Walker, Neva, Utah
Weaver, Clyde W, Ind.
Weidner, Maud R, Pa.
Welty, Lester W, Ark.
Whitcher, Walter, N.D.
Whitehouse, Lizzie, Tex.

Second best answers to "Curious Question."

Alber, E Ill.
Baker, R H, N.Y.
Bassette, E F, Conn.
Battlort, A L, Pa.
Beever, E, Cal.
Botwright, L, Pa.
Brooks, V C, La.
Buerstetta, O, Neb.
Cannon, I, H, Iowa
Clegg, M, Ill.
Cox, P J, Mo.
Crawford, C, Ohio
Dalrymple, E, Pa.
Everett, A J, Cal.
Fulwood, H A, Ga.
Godney, E, N.Y.
Gettle, M E, Neb.
Gibson, G, Can.
Glatfelter, G A, Pa
Hubble, F E, Va.
Hull, J, N.Y.
La Due, M., Ill.
Lamb, C E, Okla.
Le Baron, M A, Can.
Lee, H W, Ohio.
Logan, R R, Pa.
McKee, R, Mo.
Martin, R, Ky.
Millar, E, Can.
Parker, I, Pa.
Parson, B, Pa.
Pearson, G, Kan.
Roelse, R M, Neb.
Rood, W, Mich.
Replogle, H, Ohio.
Rover, H E, Mo.
Sampson, F, Can.
Schrader, E B, N.Y.
Shultz, L C, Pa.
Skill, P, Can.
Sperry, E A, Tex.
Stentaford, G, N. F.
Stitt, I, Ohio.
Summers, E, Ill.
Tinning, M E, N.Y.
Tyler, B F, Mass.
Wadsworth, E, Tex.
Wallace, W, Ohio.
Wilkinson, E, Can.
Wood, A, N.J.

Though You Labor by Day

You may still acquire a

Technical Education through Correspondence Courses in Engineering

Electrical	Ventilating
Mechanical	Plumbing
Stationary	Textile Manufacturing
Locomotive	Perspective Drawing
Navigation	Mechanical Drawing
Architecture	Sheet Metal Work
Heating	Marine

Instruction under members of faculty of Armour Institute of Technology.

Your work will receive credit at Armour Institute should you desire to enter as a resident student.

In addition to their regular instruction papers, students in full engineering courses are provided with a Technical Reference Library—an 18 vols. Java Bey's in their studies.

American School of Correspondence

AT

Armour Institute of Technology

CHICAGO, ILL.

Catalogue describing courses, methods and terms may be had upon request.

Main Building, Armour Institute of Technology

Deposits Earn 5%

Paid In Capital $1,000,000	DEPOSITS may be made or withdrawn at any time and bear earnings for every day invested. Paid quarterly by check. Read following extracts from letters of depositors:
Assets $1,600,000	"I know of no better investment for small institutions." "I have found the company very prompt in payment of interest." "I believe in your methods exactly."
Surplus $185,000	Under State Banking Dept. Supervision Our business is by correspondence. Write us for full particulars.

INDUSTRIAL SAVINGS & LOAN CO.
1131 Broadway, New York

Young People's Songs of Praise

"After examining and comparing it with a number of other books our Sunday School and young people unanimously agree that it is the best book and have accordingly sent you an order for 150 copies to be forwarded at once." CHARLES A. DAVIS, Atlanta, Ga.

Cloth Bound, 30 cents a copy, by Mail; $25 per 100.

Returnable copy for examination sent free.

THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., New York and Chicago

LORD'S PRAYER

Bangle Ring. Smallest Ever Coined. Of any initial engraved Free. Rolled Gold. Warranted 3 years. Send Size. 15c for either or 25c for both.

YOKES Mfg. Co., 46 Western Av., COVINGTON, KY.

ENTERTAINMENTS

For CHURCHES and SUNDAY SCHOOLS

Finest Magic Lanterns, Stereopticons and views all grades. Full particulars in 200 page illus. book, sent McALLISTER, Mfg. Opticians, 46 Nassau St., N. Y.

Song-Writers and Poets. A SUCCESSFUL SONG WILL MAKE YOU RICH. We write music to your words, arrange compositions and publish. Groom Music Co., Studio 925, Chicago.

SHORTHAND. Students of the Christian Herald [illegible] PITMAN & SONS, 33 Union Sq., New York.

UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT SOLD 200,000 Guns, Revolvers, Swords, etc., to FRANCIS BANNERMAN, 579 Broadway, New York. Catalog 1,000 illustrations, free.

BIBLE EDUCATION BY MAIL. Degrees conferred. Best testimonials. For free catalogue, write C. J. Richards, Pres. Iowa Christ. College, Oskaloosa, Ia.

When You are Fatigued

Highland Brand Evaporated Cream

Added to coffee, improved, it gives that delicious, delicate flavor never attained by dairy cream.

As a Baby Food

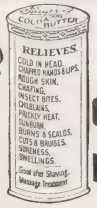
it has no equal. Produced "Where Model Dairy Farms Abound" under the most cleanly conditions, it is free from life-taking bacteria so common in city milk.

Highland Brand Makes Weak Babies Strong.

Ask your dealer. If he doesn't sell it, send us his name and we will send you a sample can FREE.

HELVETIA MILK CONDENSING COMPANY.
Dept. F, Highland, Ill.
"Where Model Dairy Farms Abound."

No Member of your Family should be without an Individual Stick of



PURE COCOA BUTTER

(10¢ POCKET TINS.)
Relieves Colds, Rough Skin, Bruises, Soreness &c
ALL DRUGGISTS,
OR BY MAIL
ON RECEIPT OF PRICE
IN SILVER OR STAMPS.
Hayler's
863 BROADWAY, N.Y.

Dr. Lyon's
PERFECT
Tooth Powder
Used by people of refinement for over a quarter of a century
PREPARED BY
J. W. Lyon, D.D.S.

The SUN Typewriter No. 2

Built on standard principles with superior advantages.
A revelation in every feature including
Price $40.00
Sun Typewriter Co.
239 Broadway
New York

The Improved Method of
FINISHING FLOORS

GRIFFIN MFG. CO.
Dept. 7, Newark, New York

MARGARET PARMALEE'S SPHERE

CONCLUDED FROM PAGE 100

"Don't feel discouraged," she said. "Why, she set her dog on me once. I'm glad you took my little sermon to heart. Mother and I have a plan. She is often lonely while I am busy with my kindergarten, and we want you to come and practice on my piano. She likes music. You mustn't let your talent rust."

"O, Miss Griggs, how kind you are," cried Margaret, gratefully. "My instrument is like an old tin pan, you know. I will certainly come."

That was a busy winter to Margaret. She had no time to repine, but with all her duties and pleasures she did not forget Granny Brooks. Often she would drop in on her way to her daily practice with a cluster of flowers from her window garden, or some delicacy made by her mother's skilful hands, and soon her coming grew to be expected. Old Mrs. Brooks grew less sour to her neighbors, and sometimes even went to divine service.

Margaret did not again offer to sing, but once Granny broached the subject herself.

"They tell me ye have a fine voice. Let me hear ye. My son used to sing, and I still have his guitar," she said.

She took out a case from her wardrobe, and handed Margaret the instrument. It was still in fine condition, and only needed tuning. Margaret sang her best, and felt rewarded by her listener's attention. When she started for home, Mrs. Brooks pressed the guitar into her hands.

"Keep it, child," she said huskily. "No, don't thank me. You need it, and I don't."

Late one March afternoon, as Margaret was returning from Miss Griggs', she was accosted by the village physician.

"Mrs. Brooks is very ill," he told her. "She wants you at once. Go on, and I will send your father word of your delay."

Margaret hurried to the cottage with a sinking heart, for she had become attached to the strange old woman.

The minister's wife was there, moving softly about, administering to the patient's simple needs. "It is simply the failure of old age," she told Margaret. "There is little to be done but to watch beside her through the night. I will stay with you."

Hearing Margaret's voice, Mrs. Brooks, roused from a half stupor, and beckoned her nearer.

"I'm going soon, child," she whispered. "My children are waiting for me—little Mary, and William who died at sea. You have been good to me—so good. There are some things I want you to have. Lift me higher."

They raised her head and she breathed easier.

"The house will go to Tildy," she continued. "She has been faithful to me for years. You will find a chest in that corner. It is full of trinkets and things that William used to collect on his voyages. I want you to have everything that is in it. Here is a key. Now—I'll go—to sleep." She turned over wearily and fell into a calm slumber. When the doctor came at twilight she had not roused.

"She has gone to join the little children of her past," he said, with his hand upon her placid brow.

They laid her away beneath the pines in the green churchyard.

A few days later, Miss Griggs and Margaret went to inspect the legacy, of which Margaret had scarcely thought until reminded by Aunt Tildy. When they examined the chest, Margaret was surprised to find a key in the rusty lock.

"I thought the key she gave me was to unlock it," she said.

"Let's look at the things," suggested practical Miss Griggs. "Why, you could stock a curio cabinet from these! Silks from the Orient, ivory and coral jewelry, shell ornaments, amber beads, and real pearls! You lucky girl!"

"Look at this queer, ugly idol!" cried Margaret, tugging at a large, richly carved object beneath a Cashmere shawl.

Miss Griggs came to her assistance, and, with much effort, they lifted it to a table, where it grinned at them leeringly. Suddenly, Miss Griggs cried out: "Give me your key, Margaret. I believe—yes—it really fits! O, look!"

She had found a keyhole in the carving, the whole back of the lignum-vitæ image swung open; and down at their feet poured a heap of shining gold. The two girls looked at each other in awe.

"Is it really mine?" faltered Margaret, at last.

"Every bit, and I'm so glad for you," cried Miss Griggs, with an impulsive hug. "It's bread upon the waters, Margaret."

"I never thought of a return. It is special Providence," said Margaret, humbly. "And to think I fretted, because I couldn't shape my own ends!"

A Strange Funeral at Sea

RECENTLY, there slept at the Sailors' Home, Carroll street, Brooklyn, thirteen men who had taken part in their own funeral service. Their story is a thrilling one:

The Norwegian S. S. Seggen, loaded with steel billets, sailing from Nova Scotia, was beaten by storms until her propeller broke. Having no sail, she drifted seaward. Five days she was pitched about at the mercy of wind and waves. The billets made holes in her sides and bottom. The crew worked night and day to keep her afloat. "We were nearly frozen, and three driving snowstorms in succession blinded us," said Captain Snevig. "Five steamers passed, some so close they must have seen our fire-rockets and other distress signals. Sunday a big vessel was so close that our lights must have been visible to her. Monday, another passed; then, none for three days." The Seggen was sinking. Her captain mustered the men aft on the lee side of the cabin. He took an old Bible, while the hopeless, rough sailors doffed their caps, taking part, as they thought, in their own funeral service. There was one young boy among them, and he cried piteously. The captain sorrowfully read through the service for the dying, and asked that all commend their souls to God. Suddenly from the young, fair-haired boy sailor a cry of joy escaped. Looking seaward, the men saw a big steamship heading toward them. It was the Hamburg-American liner Pennsylvania, Captain Spliedt commanding. In a few hours the crew of the Seggen were hoisted with their own boat to the deck of the steamer.

This is the third rescue of officers and crews from sinking vessels lately recorded of Captain Spliedt, to whom the title, "The Life-Saving Captain" has come to be applied. The lookout on his vessel seems to be particularly keen for signals of distress; anything that can be construed into an appeal for help is followed by the swinging of his big ship out of her course, in prompt response, the lowering of her lifeboats and their speeding over waters, however dangerous, to the rescue of them that are in peril of the deep.

"A Wonderful Collection"

The Speaking Oak, which I received as a premium with THE CHRISTIAN HERALD this year, is a book that any one would be proud to call theirs. I am very much pleased with mine. The Art Gallery is a wonderful collection of pictures. They are so beautiful that it would be very hard to pick out my favorite. And the Calendar is very pretty—the loveliest Calendar I ever saw.

N. Livermore, Me. LILLIAN E. GODING.

This book, with THE CHRISTIAN HERALD one year, $2. The "Family Art Gallery" free to each subscriber.

FED THE DOCTOR
How He Made Use of Food.

Sometimes it is the doctor himself who finds it wise to quit the medicines and aid himself by food.

"In looking around for a concentrated palatable prepared food I got hold of Grape-Nuts and immediately began using it four times a day, exclusively for breakfast with milk; for luncheon and dinner as dessert, and a cup on retiring," says a physician of Mt. Zion, Ill.

"I had nervous dyspepsia for over a year. My normal weight is 140 pounds but I have been steadily losing flesh until a month ago I only weighed 122 pounds. I concluded it was time to throw 'physic to the dogs' in my case. Twenty-four hours after starting the Grape-Nuts regime the fullness and distress after eating had ceased. The heartburn, waterbrash, palpitation of the heart and other symptoms that had reminded me for over a year that I had a stomach, soon disappeared and I can now eat a square meal and feel good afterwards.

"I weighed yesrerday and was surprised to find that I had gained 18 pounds in a month, and the end is not yet.

"The nervous symptoms have entirely disappeared and I am stronger than I have been for two years. I thank you for placing Grape-Nuts at the disposal of those suffering from nervous dyspepsia." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

I don't mak
all the lam chimneys; n trouble wit mine.

MACBETH

My name on every one.

If you'll send your address, I'll send the Index to Lamps and their Chimneys, tell you what number to get for your la

MACBETH, Pittsburgh

The KALAMAZO

All our cook st and Ranges equip with patent oven t mometer, which ma
baking a delight.

The only strictly high grade stoves and ran sold direct from factory to user at factory pric
They are sold on a
360 DAYS Approv
Test.
Don't buy until you have investigated our spe proposition. Send for FREE catalogue No.
KALAMAZOO STOVE CO.,
Manufacturers, Kalamazoo, Mic

BRIGHT AS THE SUN

About as cheap as air.
"SUN" Incandescent Gasoline Lamp
Ideal Light for home, hall, church or business. Conforms to insurance underwriters' rulings.
Branch supply depots in all larger cities. Write for catalogue.
AGENTS SECURE TERRITORY.
Sun Vapor Light Co.
Box 604, Canton, O.
(Licensee of the ground patents for vapor lamps.)

This Washing Machin

FREE To introd the Improv Favori
Washer in every home America, I will send a machi freight paid, to the first write from each county in U. S. I will send two machi Sell one and keep the ot Agents make $100 to $200 a mo selling my machines. You don't have to act as ag in order to get MACHINE FREE. No capital need Machine washes anything that can be washed by ha Tried for 16 years. Send postal card to-day.
R. M. BALL, Manufacturer,
Room 97 Ball Block, Muncie, Indian

$12.98 Gem Steel Ran
Six Holes, from factory, reservoir or shelf. $17.98 with Res.
Closed Oven 18x20x13 in. Top 46x28.
Height to top 29 in. Made of cold ro steel, asbestos lined, nickel trimm porcelained reservoir, heavy linings, duplex grate. Write catalogue stoves and furniture
AT FACTORY PRICE
Our bargains the greatest ever offe
MODERN STOVE MFG. CO.
288 Teutonic Bldg., Chicago,

HARTSHORN'S SELF-ACTING SHADE ROLLERS
NOTICE NAME THUS, ON LABEL
Stewart Hartshorn
AND SEE THAT YOU GET THE GENUINE
HARTSHORN

Agent's Outfit Free.—Delight, Biscuit, and Doughnut Cutter, Apple Corer, and Stea 5 articles in one. Sells on sight. Large Catalog RICHARDSON MFG. CO., Dept. 6, BATH,

CORNISH
PIANOS AND ORGANS
FREE IN YOUR HOME FOR A YEAR
Sold From Factory to Home Direct.
SAVING ONE-HALF.

ASH OR EASY PAYMENTS.
e want to prove to any intending purchasers of a Piano rgan that there is nothing better than a CORNISH. ything is just right. Appearance, Tone, Make-up, Terms price. We will ship any instrument on any reasonable of trial and will prepay freight if necessary, although cost of so doing is not added to our prices. Any honest n can own one of the Popular Cornish Pianos or Organs rms to suit themselves. No house in the Music Trade is r equipped than the Cornish, no firm has a better ding among its 250,000 customers than the Cornish and to find an organ or piano made such liberal propositions. s us send any intending purchaser our only salesman— rnish Souvenir Catalogue. Fifty styles of beautiful os and Organs to select from; and to give an exact idea the appearance of our latest styles we have prepared ature Pianos and Organs which reproduce in facsimile ctual instrument, color of wood, trimmings, etc., are rately shown. Catalogues and Miniatures FREE ON UEST. Charges paid by us. To every purchaser we nd a beautiful musical outfit, consisting of a Souvenir s containing 40 of the latest successes in Vocal and rumental Music; full size; bound. Cornish Pianos the finest attachment for correctly imitating all ged instruments, such as Harp, Mandolin, Banjo, etc. Cornish Organs can be fitted with our patent Orchestral ns, equal to a complete Orchestra in your home. talogue, Miniatures, and Prize Medal Special Offers for FREE. Mention this paper and write to-day.
RNISH CO., Washington, New Jersey.

bout 75% of the Men rcantile and professional life owe something of success to personal appearance. The leisure class still more to the same cause. The few genuine ses succeed in spite of it. Personal appearance rely a matter of dress. Dress is largely a matter Cravat. This was understood by some as far as the days of Beau Brummel, but it is only the section of the present generation of men who fully grasped it. The well-groomed man of to-ven when he must economize on other articles of el, buys ten Cravats where his daddy bought one. is a 36-page text book called

"THE CRAVAT"
ls of the What, Where, When and How of a Man's t—Its Names and Shapes, Its Tying, Its Care, lection, Its Various Forms for Special Occasions unctions, Its Color Scheme, Its Adjuncts: Pins, ners, etc., Its Don'ts, in fact LL ABOUT A MAN'S CRAVAT.
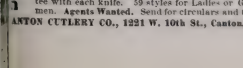
profusely and sumptuously illustrated by one of foremost artists of America. The first edition cost blishers over $15,000, but you can have a copy he asking, by sending this advertisement with address and 6 cents in stamps to the Publisher ES R. KEISER, 122-124 Fifth Avenue, York. If you prefer a bound copy, de Lux, send 15 cents in stamps.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD
CENTRAL SSISSIPPI VALLEY ROUTE
New Line.
Fine Service.
nneapolis and St. Paul
BEGINNING NOVEMBER 2.
"Limited" night train, with stateroom and section sleeping car, buffet-library car, and eclining chair car through without change. g car service.
. HANSON, G. P. A., - - CHICAGO.

ASH FOR YOUR
farm, home, business, or other property (no matter where located or how large or small) may be obtained through me. Send description, state price, and get full particulars free. Est'd 1896. Highest references. Offices in 14 cities, from Boston to San Francisco.
W. M. OSTRANDER
1417 N. A. Building, Philadelphia

Your Own Photo
Name and address, Lodge or other emblem in a transparent unbreakable handle. Blades Hand Forged Razor Steel. Guarantee with each knife. 59 styles for Ladies or Gentlemen. Agents Wanted. Send for circulars and terms.



No. 263 cut 1/2 size. Price $1.00
With your own photos, - $1.25
(Sent post-paid on receipt of price.)
ANTON CUTLERY CO., 1221 W. 10th St., Canton, Ohio

A LESSON FROM DEFEAT*

The Warning of the Downfall of the Ancient Syrian King Unheeded

SLOW is the world to learn the lessons of history. The old-time story which is to be considered to-day, by no means stands alone in the annals of war. If the historians of our own great crisis may be trusted, there were conflicts then in which intoxicating drink played a part as momentous as in this battle between Syria and Israel. In the English civil war there was a similar record, and doubtless, if the truth were fully told, we should learn that there have been many other battles decided by the drinking of one of the armies, or at least of the officers engaged.

Sad as it is to think of men being slaughtered because their leaders were incapable through drink, such events are only occasional. There are other battles lost through drink in time of peace, in which men lose their souls as well as their lives. Every man must struggle against his foes for his eternal life: sin menaces him, temptation assails him in one form or another and he must do battle for his life. The fight is going on everywhere and men are falling all around. Intoxicating liquor is still doing its fell work in that conflict, as it did in the Syrian camp.

"Oh, that a man should put an enemy into his mouth, to steal away his brains," says the great dramatist. Unhappily it is not brains alone that are stolen. Honor goes, purity goes, peace goes, the welfare of dependent wives and children goes, and the stalwart enemy marches on with a mocking laugh to reap other harvests. Is it not time that we learned the lesson, and while we, ourselves, refrain from touching it, that we strive to bring nearer the day when the whole world shall put away from it this prolific curse?

CHRISTIAN MOTIVES†

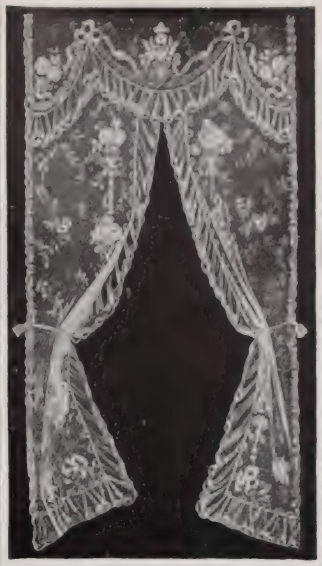
Selfish Ambition a Taint on the Service of Christ

MANY Christians have been puzzled by an apparent contradiction in God's relation to his people. On the one hand, are many promises of prosperity to the good, and assurances that God will care for them, and that his providence shall always be around them protecting them from evil; and on the other hand, are the warnings of Christ, that in this world his followers will have tribulation. Which are we to believe or expect? Our own experience and observation teach us that the Christian has no immunity from the sorrows and trials of life. We know that in a railroad accident, or in a wreck, or a fire, the Christian is as liable as a worldling to be killed, that he must bear suffering and poverty as do other men. It is not by wealth or physical safety that God rewards men for obeying and serving him. It may be that we have misread some of his promises and that what he really does promise is that it shall be well with his people, no matter what happens to them. We know that by natural law, goodness does tend to prosperity, because it removes from life the temptations and the vices that lead to ruin, and that goodness tends to health, as wickedness tends to disease and death; but that is a different principle from God's providential interference.

The main question for the Christian is one of motive. He ought never to serve God for the sake of the reward he expects to get, either in this world or the next. No father is pleased with his child who is continually expecting to be paid for being good and dutiful. He wants his child to be good, and he may encourage him by rewards, but he has no satisfaction in seeing a goodness which is practiced for the sake of the reward. It is a sign of cunning and craft. He wants his child to love him and be obedient because he loves him. We may be sure that God regards our behavior in the same way. The mercenary motive taints our service and conduct and renders it unacceptable to him. To do right because it is right without regard to consequences; to work in God's cause because we love him and are desirous of pleasing him—that should be our attitude.

*Topic of The Christian Endeavor Society and Baptist Young People's Union for February 15. 1 Kings 20: 12-20.

†Topic of the Epworth League for February 15. Mark 10: 35-45; Matt. 16: 24-26.



FREE
Two Pairs of Lambric Lace Curtains
like picture—furnish two windows: 6 inches wide, 3½ yards long, for using a few minutes of your time.
No Money Required
All we ask is that you send us your name and address and allow us to send you on 30 days trial
1 Dozen Hold-Fast Skirt Supporters
that retail at 25c each. Sell them to your friends, send us the money you get for them, and the curtains will be sent at once, express charges prepaid.
You take no risk—we take back any you do not sell. We offer over 100 premiums besides the curtains. Catalogue sent with each order. Over two million Hold-Fast Skirt Supporters have been sold by the ladies of the United States.
Every woman needs one. Send today and you will have these beautiful curtains in a few days. Be the first to order in your locality.
Also a bed set of two shams and lace spread to match—for selling one dozen.
THE COLVER CO., Dept. S, 811 Schiller Bldg., CHICAGO

THE EQUITABLE
HENRY B. HYDE, Founder
J.W. ALEXANDER PRESIDENT
STRONGEST IN THE WORLD
J.H. HYDE VICE PRESIDENT
WASHINGTON AND LINCOLN
defended and protected their country while they lived.
The Father of a family should defend and protect his family, not only while he lives but after he dies.
This can best be accomplished by Life Assurance. An Endowment policy in the Equitable will protect your family in the event of your death, and will provide for your own future if you live.
For full information fill out coupon below.
Vacancies in every State for men of character and energy to act as representatives. Apply to Gage E. Tarbell, 2d Vice-Pres.
THE EQUITABLE LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY OF THE UNITED STATES
120 Broadway, NEW YORK Dept. No. 60
Please send me information regarding an endowment for $.....
If issued at..... years of age.
Name.....
Address.....

THE "1900" FAMILY WASHER FREE.

Greatest Invention of the Age. Labor and Expense of Washing Clothes Cut in Two.

No More Stooping, Rubbing or Boiling of Clothes.

Every Household Needs One.

THE "1900" BALL-BEARING FAMILY WASHER SENT FREE to anyone answering this advertisement, without deposit or advance payment of any kind, freight paid, on 30 days' trial. The 1900 Ball-Bearing Washer is unquestionably the greatest labor-saving machine ever invented for family use. Entirely new principle. It is simplicity itself. There are no wheels, paddles, rockers, cranks or complicated machinery. It revolves on bicycle ball-bearings, making it by far the easiest running washer on the market. No strength required, a child can operate it.

No more stooping, rubbing, boiling of clothes. Hot water and soap all that is needed. It will wash large quantities of clothes (no matter how soiled) perfectly clean in 6 minutes. Impossible to injure the most delicate fabrics. As the Superintendent of the Savannah Yacht Club says: "It is a wonder. Our washing is very large and we have always had two women on Monday and one on Tuesday. Our cook and the yard boy now do the washing in four hours much better than before."

NEWMAN, Ill., July 5, 1900.

I can testify that the 1900 is the best washer and the easiest running machine. It will absolutely clean the clothes, cuffs, and bottoms of ladies' white skirts better than can be done by hand. The washings that took my wife from 5 to 7 hours to get out by hand, can easily be done in 2 hours.

R. A. SKINNER.

KENSEE, Ky., March 21, 1900.

I did a double washing for myself yesterday and made 65 cts. from my boarders, besides all my cooking, milking and housework. It takes less soap with your machine than in the old way. I have no need of the washboard any more. Mrs. L. A. BARTON.

ONALASKA, Wis., Jan. 4, 1901.

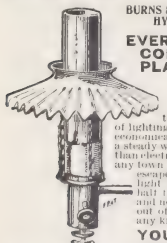
We are a family of 5 and as I had a 3 weeks wash it was an immense one. Had it all out in 3 hours and never had nicer looking clothes. I did not even put my hands into the water. I cannot too strongly recommend the "1900" washer. Mrs. J. M. WILSON.

Write at once for catalogue and full particulars to

"1900" WASHER CO.
33 H STATE ST., BINGHAMTON, N.Y.

"Its invention supersedes all other methods of House Lighting." SCIENTIFIC PRESS.

CLEVELAND HYDRO-CARBON LIGHT



BURNS 84% OF AIR AND 16% OF HYDRO-CARBON GAS.

EVERY LIGHT IS A COMPLETE GAS PLANT IN ITSELF.

Generating and Burning Its own Gas.

More light at less cost than any known system of lighting. For all houses wishing economical independence. Gives a steady white light, more brilliant than electricity and softer. Excels any town gas service; gas cannot escape. It gives ten times the light of a kerosene lamp at half the cost, with no smoke and no odor. Nothing to get out of order. No accident of any kind possible.

YOU CAN TEST BEFORE PAYING!

Knowing that if you give one of our lights a test you will at once recognize it as being far beyond anything in the line of house lighting, we will send you one of our Pendent Lights C. O. D. $5.00, express prepaid, with mantle, chimney and frosted porcelain shade, ready to light. Test it three nights and if not found satisfactory and most brilliant and inexpensive light you ever saw, return it to express agent, whom we instruct to refund your money and return light at our expense.

NOTE: If west of the Mississippi river enclose 50 cents for expressage. Height of Burner, 21.00.

A RARE CHANCE FOR AGENTS WRITE AT ONCE FOR TERRITORY

Write at once for our full descriptive and instructions on the new system of Cleveland Lights.

THE CLEVELAND VAPOR LIGHT CO.,
1809 E. Madison Ave., - - - CLEVELAND, OHIO.

References: Colonial National Bank (Capital Stock, $2,000,000) Cleveland, Ohio.

Write for particulars of our street lights, used in Chicago, Cleveland and other Cities

Are You Deaf?

We have 25 KINDS OF INSTRUMENTS TO ASSIST HEARING
Send on approval. Write for catalogue.
WM. V. WILLIS & CO., 134 South 11th Street, Philadelphia

CHEAP RATES

Colorado, Washington, Oregon, California, Montana, Utah, Idaho, Nevada, Wyoming, Alaska, Mexico, Japan, China, Philippines, Hawaii, Australia, Europe, Africa, Asia, South America, Mexico, Central America, Cuba, Porto Rico, West Indies, Hawaii, Philippines, Japan, China

$2000. in prizes

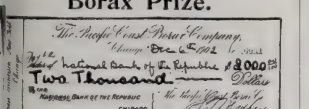
A simple contest with big prizes open to you.

$2000 in prizes will be distributed in our "20 Mule am Borax" contest, divided as follows: 1 prize of 00.00, 2 prizes of $100.00, 4 prizes of $50.00, 10 zes of $25.00, 10 prizes of $10.00, 100 prizes of .00, 250 prizes of $1.00.

We have given each letter in alphabetical order, a merical value, commencing with one and ending th twenty-six, as follows: A-1, B-2, C-3, D-4, E-5, 6, G-7, H-8, I-9, J-10, K-11, L-12, M-13, N-14, 15, P-16, Q-17, R-18, S-19, T-20, U-21, V-22, 23, X-24, Y-25, Z-26. Persons entering the con- t are to write out three reasons why Borax should used in the Toilet and three reasons why it should used in the Laundry. In no one of the reasons are re than thirty letters to be used. After the six rea- ns are written out, add up the numerical values of all letters used. (Some letters will be used a number of es. Add the numerical value every time.) The rson who submits the six reasons in which the sum the numerical values of all the letters used totals hest will receive first prize, and so on down. In case ties the prizes will be awarded on the merits of the sons submitted (to be judged by a committee of ree disinterested chemists).

When sending in your entry use one side of one sheet paper. Write your name and address at the bottom the sheet with your three reasons why BORAX ould be used in the Laundry immediately above. er them write your three reasons why BORAX ould be used in the Toilet and at the top of the sheet in in figures mark the sum of the numerical values of the letters you have used in your six reasons. Each ry must be accompanied by the top of a 1-lb. kage of "20 MULE TEAM BORAX," be had of your druggist or grocer. Please do write us for any further explanation. There is no ch. The contest is very clear and simple and the prize ners will get good returns for comparatively little rt. Below is shown the check which we have de- ited with the National Bank of the Republic, Chicago, division among the prize winners. We believe that worth trying for.

Borax Prize.



The following letter from Edward Gudeman, Ph.D., food and sanitary expert, will partially explain value of BORAX.

Chicago, November 26, 1902.

ific Coast Borax Company, Chicago.
Gentlemen: Replying to your inquiry, I have the fol- ing report to make: Water is said to be "hard" when ontains lime and magnesium salts, which retard the nfliction or lathering of soap and interfere with cleaning action and the solubility of the soap itself. natural waters contain a certain amount of this "hard- ss" which is eliminated by strong alkalies (soda, monia and other caustic materials) or by borax. The ng alkalies, used directly or as found in strong soaps, destroy organic tissue and are very harmful in their cts. Borax is harmless and even healing in its cts. A mid or neutral soap used with water softened borax will cleanse better than strong soap or washing pound (which is generally a mixture of soap and soda) without borax.

r toilet and bathing purposes, I would recommend only sufficient borax be used to counteract the hard- of the water so that the soap used will become soluble be readily rinsed from the skin and out of the pores. laundry purposes I would recommend that a larger portion of borax be used with a mild soap, as the borax if is an excellent and a harmless chemical as a water softener. I have examined Lake Michigan water for and find that it is not so "hard" as the average ural water. It contains only 7 to 9 grains of lime and nesium salts to the gallon. A quarter teaspoonful of ax will soften two quarts of Lake Michigan water, ercenting all the lime and magnesium salts therein ained. Harder water will require a proportionately er amount of borax.

(Signed) EDWARD GUDEMAN,
Chemist and Chemical Engineer.

e recommend that you send a two-cent stamp for booklet, "Borax—Come In," which will greatly you in preparing your reasons. All answers must n our office by MARCH 5, 1903. If neither your ggist nor your grocer can supply you with a pone- nd package of "20 MULE TEAM BORAX" 1 us their names with twenty-cents in stamps to r cost and postage and we will supply you direct. ress all communications bearing on this contest to PACIFIC COAST BORAX COMPANY, Dept. KX, Chicago.

For Years

have loaned for myself and my customers 5 per cent on good fertile lands in Mis- uri and never lost a dollar.

can do equally as well for you.

Send for my booklet and "35 Years perience" in Missouri Loans

one of my patrons. Proof furnished on plication that my loans

Have Been Tested

d found as represented.

WILLIAM R. COMPTON
Wardell Building Macon, Missouri

CHOICE INVESTMENTS.

rm just bought for $8,800, owner wants $3,500, 5% 1 for this loan. WILLIAM R. COMPTON, 5 Wardell Building, Macon, Mo.

THE PENIEL MISSIONS

No previous period in the history of the church has been so prolific as this in original and independent efforts for the salvation of souls. Such missions as the Bowery Mission in New York, the Central Union Mission in Washington, D.C., the Pacific Garden Mission in Chicago, and a host of others in our chief cities, have reached a class of persons who, for various reasons, remained aloof from the churches. Spiritually blind and halt and maimed, they do not go where the Gospel invitation is proclaimed, and can receive it only when Christ's command is obeyed to go out into the highways and hedges and compel them to come in.

REV. T. P. FERGUSON AND WIFE
Leaders of Peniel Missions

Among the agencies which have undertaken this work, the missions known as the Peniel Missions are conspicuous. There are twenty-six of them in American cities, and five others located in foreign countries. The name is taken from the thrilling narrative of Jacob's wrestling with the angel (Genesis 32: 30). It will be remembered that he called the place where the mystical conflict occurred Peniel, the face of God, because he had there seen the face of God. It was the hope of the founders of these missions, that in them many a poor wanderer might, like Jacob, see the loving, compassionate face of God and be redeemed from his sin.

The first Peniel Mission was opened at Los Angeles, Calif., in 1886. It originated in the earnest desire of Rev. T. P. Ferguson and his wife to reach the waifs and strays of humanity, who, while in most urgent need of the purifying and redeeming work of the Gospel, seldom came within sound of its invitation. Their effort was so successful, that they were encouraged to extend it. A few women and girls who had given their hearts to God, were longing to engage in his service, and these Mrs. Ferguson took into special training for this purpose. Gradually others, who had shown evidence of consecration were enlisted and sent forth to aid in the work. About one hundred of these, mostly young women, are now employed at the various missions, and are always busy in their respective spheres. They are expected to hold a Gospel meeting every evening, and, when practicable, a noon meeting, and these are always preceded by an open-air service of invitation.

The headquarters of the Mission are at 227 South Main street, Los Angeles, where there is a hall capable of accommodating one thousand persons. The work hitherto has been conducted on faith, and it is a strong evidence of the soundness of this principle, that about all of the branches are self-supporting. The doctrines preached are practically those of the Wesleyan Methodists, and marked emphasis is placed on their favorite doctrine of the Second Blessing, which declares the possibility of entire sanctification of believers. Mr. J. D. Leslie, of Pasadena, Calif., who furnishes the above story of these missions and the portraits, says that Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson devote themselves exclusively to their management, and that they have been wonderfully used in the salvation of a multitude of souls.

FAIRY SOAP

5¢ 5¢

Fits every hand Fit for any hand

A Complexion Reflection

FAIRY SOAP makes white hands and faces.

No other toilet and bath soap has the cleansing qualities, the handy shape, and the lasting purity of FAIRY SOAP.

It is pure white and remains so as long as it lasts. The price is but 5 cents—each cake wrapped and packed in a separate carton.

THE N. K. FAIRBANK COMPANY

Chicago New York Boston Philadelphia St. Louis Montreal
San Francisca New Orleans and other offices

EIGHT DOLLARS

AND TWENTY-FIVE CENTS buys our high grade, high arm, guaranteed, 5-drawer, solid oak, polished antique oak, drop head cabinet SEROCO sewing machine, exactly as illustrated, complete with all accessories, instruction book, etc.

$8.25

$15.20 Buys the HIGHEST GRADE, HIGH ARM 5-DRAWER, DROP CABINET SEWING MACHINE MADE, complete with all accessories, instruction book, etc.

Other high grade Sewing Machines in 5-drawer drop cabinet and other styles $10.45, $10.95, $11.95, $12.85, $14.75, etc. We sell nearly all the best known standard sewing machines, including the genuine Singer, Domestic, New Home, Wheeler & Wilson, White, Standard, Minnesota, Howard, Burdick and Edge, etc., and our low prices, etc., will simply astonish you. Every machine shipped on

THREE MONTH'S FREE TRIAL with the understanding, that if it doesn't prove perfectly satisfactory you do not pay us one cent. Write for our free Sewing Machine Catalogue, mention this paper, and we will give you the names of a number of your own neighbors to whom we have sold sewing machines, so that you can see and examine your neighbors' machines, learn how they are pleased with them and how much money we saved them. The Special Sewing Machine Catalogue will go to you by return mail, complete with large illustrations, full descriptions and most astonishingly low prices. You will receive the most wonderful price offerings ever heard of, our liberal three months' free trial proposition and the most extraordinary sewing machine offer ever made. Address,

WE CAN SURELY SAVE ONE-HALF ON ANY KIND of a MACHINE.

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., Chicago.

Lowest Prices Best Machines

$8.45 is the price of our Competition Sewing Machine. This is a lower price than other firms are asking for similar machines. Drop head style, will do nice work, is warranted for five years, and undoubtedly a good value at the price.

Send TODAY for Catalogue LA sent free, giving large pictures and descriptions of excellent machines at wholesale prices, also explaining our Free Trial Offer and Guarantee.

For $20.35 we offer a strictly high-grade attractively finished machine, equipped with latest improved automatic drop head, 7 drawers, ball bearings, eccentric system of mechanism, etc. This machine we guarantee to do as good or better work, to be as well made and finished and to give as long and satisfactory service as any machine on the market. A better machine cannot possibly be made. $20.35 for same machine with five drawers. Our prices are the lowest for dependable quality. Thirty-one years' reputation for honest values and fair dealing back of our guarantee.

$20.35

Montgomery Ward & Co., Michigan Ave. & Madison St., Chicago

$10 PREMIUMS GIVEN AWAY WITH $10 ASSORTMENT

Of Laundry and Toilet SOAPS and Perfumes. Our Premiums consist of Couches, Fine Toilet Sets, Morris Chairs, Beds, Tables, Desks, Stoves, Musical Instruments, etc. In fact, through the LOCKWOOD WAY you can furnish your entire home free. Send your name and address and we will mail you absolutely FREE our beautiful illustrated catalogue containing handsome and useful premiums, also full information in regard to our 30 days' FREE TRIAL order.

LOCKWOOD SOAP CO., Department 26, KANSAS CITY, MO.

THE PERFECT LIQUID DENTIFRICE

RUBIFOAM

THE PUREST AND BEST PREPARATION FOR THE TEETH THAT MODERN DENTAL SCIENCE CAN COMBINE. REFRESHING AND PLEASING TO THE TASTE. PRICE, 25 CENTS.

E.W. Hoyt & Co., Makers, Lowell, Mass.

Looks Just Like New.

ANY ONE CAN DO IT.

A Full 25-Cent Package Absolutely Free to Any Lady Who Will Send Name and Address.

This is a bona-fide offer. In order to quickly introduce Colorine and show its superiority over the old-style colors and dyes, every lady send ing her name and address will be mailed, prepaid, a regular 25-cent package of the famous Colorine to show how easy she can make anything faded look just like new. Women, as a rule, do not realize to what wonderful uses they can put Colorine. The trial will cost her nothing; the package we send will demonstrate that she can do just as well herself, at home, as the expert, high-priced city dyer, and for a few cents she can restore an old piece of silk, woolen or cotton goods to look equal in appearance to a brand new garment costing several dollars.

The colors are absolutely fast, and for feathers, ribbons, skirts, waists, capes, carpets, table covers, and the many odds and ends that can be re-colored, every lady will be surprised and delighted to find how simple and easy it is to brighten things up to look just like new. Send your name and address today and the package will be sent by mail, prepaid. Write to Dix Supply Co., 531 W. Sixty-Ninth St., Chicago, Ill. They feel certain that when ladies see Colorine, realize how easy it is to use it without soiling their hands, they will appreciate it highly. Only one package will be sent to one address, and the goods must be purchased from your dealer thereafter. Write for it to-day.

RELIABLE

is a word that stands for the best Incubators and Brooders in the world. For this special introductory offer, send 15c postage (coin No. 15 preferred, stamps accepted) for 144-page Poultry Guide and our Catalogue.

110 Yards Fine Poultry.

Reliable Incubator and Brooder Co., Box R 16 Quincy, Illinois.

LAWN FENCE

Many designs. Cheap as wood. 25 years' use. Catalogue free. Special Prices to Cemeteries and Churches. Address

COILED SPRING FENCE Co., Box 11, Winchester, Ind.

DON'T SET HENS the same old way while a 200 Egg Natural Hen Incubator Costs But $3, other than equally as low Cost Incubators and Brooders. Catalogue and Poultry Lesson. Our Patents prevent Inferior Machines. Agents Wanted. Correspondence solicited. Address nearest office. Don't delay. Send 4c. for Book and 25c Hen Formula FREE if you write today.

NATURAL HEN INCUBATOR CO., Box 52, Columbus, Nebraska.

ANOTHER DOVE IN CHURCH

An Experience Similar in Many Respects to the One Lately Published

IN a recent issue, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD published the account of a white dove's visit to a church during the forenoon service, and the beautiful object lesson its presence gave to both pastor and congregation. A similar experience, apparently well authenticated, is related in the following letter:

To the Editor of "The Christian Herald."

DEAR SIR: In your issue of December 24, I read with much interest the article, "A Dove in Church." I had a similar experience in November, 1887:

After five years' suffering with nervous prostration, I had so far recovered as to venture to supply the Methodist Episcopal pulpit in Nashville, Mich. The pastor had just died, after a short illness. On Sunday morning, I entered the pulpit, grateful for an opportunity of once more preaching the blessed Gospel, and yet fearful of the results, as the physician's warning was ringing in my ears.

Just before the service began, the young widow and four lovely children of the deceased pastor entered the church and were seated in their family pew. Many heads were bowed, and many eyes were moist with tears of sympathy as they entered.

Just as I arose to announce the first hymn, a dove lighted on the top sash of the window at my left, which was lowered for ventilation. It rested a moment, cooing softly. A thrill of astonishment ran through the large audience, and the mournful cooing of the dove added to the emotions awakened by the sight of the afflicted family. It was with difficulty the choir and people could sing. During the singing, the dove flew into the church and circled over the heads of the people, and alighted on the platform at the left of the pulpit, its continued cooing blending with the singing. Many thought it an omen.

My attention had been arrested by the beautiful design of a dove with outstretched wings, in the large colored glass window in the front of the church, and I referred to it while reading the scripture lesson of "Christ's baptism and the descent of the Holy Ghost." The presence and cooing of the dove added a new significance to the occasion and the reading, and I closed the reading with the remark: "May the Holy Spirit's brooding presence be enjoyed by each of us as emblemed in yonder window, and taught in this lesson, and illustrated by this living dove that soared about our head and abides in our midst."

During the remainder of the service the dove remained quietly on the platform, occasionally turning its head, to look up into my face. When the last hymn was announced, and the congregation arose to sing, the dove spread its wings and scared over the heads of the congregation and alighted on one of the pulpit chairs. After the hymn was finished, and while pronouncing the benediction, I felt the fanning of the dove's wings, as it gently flew and alighted on my shoulder. As I finished the benediction, and the people turned to leave the church, the dove sprang from my shoulder on to the pulpit Bible, and, softly cooing, watched the people pass out.

A little girl just entering for Sunday School came forward, and took the pet down in her arms and carried it away.

A lady present, possessing fine poetic gifts, made the incident the subject of a beautiful poem, embodying the main features and their lessons, which at the time was published in the local paper and extensively copied.

REV. WINFIELD SCOTT SLY.

Mr. Sly is now engaged in child-rescue work, in which he has been very successful. Any reader desiring to know more about this incident, or the pastor and his work, may address him at Lansing, Mich.

PLEASANT THINGS

PLEASANT thoughts are better
Than the wealth of May;
Pleasant smiles, like sunshine,
Drive dark clouds away.
Pleasant looks are better
Than a handsome face;
Kindly souls are blessings
To the human race.
Pleasant words are better
Than the shining gold;
Deeds of love will gladden
Hearts of young and old.

MARVIN L. PIPER.

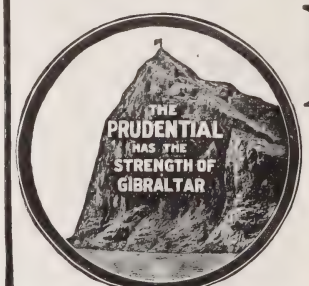
ORNAMENTAL FENCE

25 designs, all steel. Handsome, durable. Cheaper than a wood fence. Special inducements to church and cemeteries. Catalogue free.

KOKOMO FENCE MACHINE CO., 445 North St., Kokomo, Indiana.

You Love Your Family

How much do you love them? This question can be answered by an inspection of the amount of your Life Insurance policy. The Prudential policy is the ideal policy for you.



The Prudential

Insurance Company of America

JOHN F. DRYDEN, President. HOME OFFICE, Newark, N. J.

Write for Information—Dept. 70

"REVERSIBLE" Linene Collars & Cuffs.

MANY ADVANTAGES.

Perfect in fit, never ragged or uncomfortable. Very convenient, stylish, economical. Made of fine cloth and exactly resemble linen goods. Turn down collars are reversible and give double service.

NO LAUNDRY WORK

When soiled, discard. Ten collars or five pairs of cuffs, 25c. By mail, 30c. Send 6c. in U. S. stamps for sample collar or pair of cuffs. Name size and style.

REVERSIBLE COLLAR CO., Dept. P, Boston

A Turkish Bath for 3c

THIS CABINET IS SENT ON TRIAL

FREIGHT OR EXPRESS PREPAID

Complete with ALL NECESSARY ATTACHMENTS — Ready for Use.

Satisfaction guaranteed by a week's free trial before you decide to purchase. Ask for illustrated booklet SENT FREE.

RACINE BATH CABINET COMPANY
Box 240 Racine, Wisconsin

THE NATURAL BODY BRACE

10 Years of Demonstrated Success.

TRIAL FREE

A delightful, certain and quick remedy for the peculiarailments of women and girls.

Helpful to all women (not bedfast) whose health or strength is not good. Makes work easy and walking a pleasure. Simple in construction.

Absolutely comfortable. Adjustable to fit both thin and stout people of any size or figure. No metal springs around the body. Worn with or without corset. Our little illustrated book might save you hundreds of dollars and years of health. Write for it today. It is mailed FREE with full particulars. Address

THE NATURAL BODY BRACE CO.,
Howard C. Rash, Manager,
Box 171. Salina, Kansas.
Beware of imitators, copyists and infringers.

FINE VIOLIN OUTFIT $2

The violin possesses a rare, pow fulness of sweet, melodious qual equaling that of the famous Str various violin of which it's an ex copy. The body is old seasoned maple of beautiful flame, the is spruce wood, 80 to 100 years procured from the woodr black forests of Germany. The or is a rich reddish brown, h rubbed in oil to a high pi polish, and the trimmi such as pegs, fingerboa tail, etc., are fine ebony ished. Our $2.95 price cludes the Violin exactly described, a fine elastic b two sets of gut string big cake of rosin, fing board chart and a s teaching instruct book, all packed i neat violin-shaped m bleized case. Send deposit and we will se this fine violin outfit express, C. O. D., subj to examination, the L ance ($2.45 and expr charges) to be paid to express agent after it is found p fectly satisfactory and the counterpart of violin out sold regularly at $3.95 to $8.00, otherwise we will instan refund your 50c. Order to-day, or write for our free Ca log of Musical Instruments, displaying the best line the world of high-grade organs, pianos and musical goo of all kinds at prices that in cheapness are startli

JOHN M. SMYTH CO. 150-158 West Mad Street, CHICAGO, IL

The Greider Strains, fifty of them, are bred to make prize winners. Very low prices on birds and eggs, considering quality. Elegant 1903 catalogue sent postpaid for 10 cents. Write to-day.

B. H. GREIDER, RHEEMS, PA.

HIGH CARBON COILED SPRING STEEL WIRE FENCE

CATALOGUE FREE. INDIANA STEEL & WIRE CO. BOX 381 MUNCIE, INDIANA.

SHOEMAKER'S POULTRY BOOK ON and Almanac for 1903, contains 290 large pages, handsomely illustrated. Beautiful colored plates, true to life. It tells all about all kinds of fowls, their care, etc. All about INCUBATORS AND BROODERS and how to operate them. You can't well afford to be without it. Only 15 cts. C. C. SHOEMAKER, Box 546, Freeport, Ill.

LORAL BUTTERFLY PLANT

No plant possesses so many good points as do these o glorious new Commelinas. Of graceful trailing abit, superb for carpet bedding or for hanging pots. pots they bloom every day in the year. In the garden m May until frost, showing daily scores of large nged butterfly-like blossoms. Color (No. 1) the most autiful blue to be found in any flower. A shade so quisitely lovely as to baffle description. Thrives in n or shade, wet or dry, rich or poor soil; as easily ised as a weed from seed or cuttings, grows rapidly, wers at once, and propagates so easily that plants y very cheap. Blooms in 50 days from seed.

No. 1 – Exquisite Blue, like tropical Butterflies.

No. 2 – Rosy Pink, in other respects like No. 1.

rong plants for blooming at once, by mail guaran- ed to grow, 20c each; the 2 for 30c, 5 for 60c.

Seed of both colors mixed, 25 cts. per packet.

REE OUR GREAT CATALOGUE of Flower and Vegetable Seeds, Bulbs, Plants and Rare New ults, Profusely Illustrated. Large Colored Plates – 136 ges. Do not miss our great Novelties, Emperor Asparagus p in 11 months from Seed), Early Luna, Perpetual Rhu- b, Pineapple Onion, Climbing Currant and Blackberry, erblooming Wistaria, Tree, and Double Lilacs, etc. We e the finest Asters, Pansies, Peas, Stocks, Verbenas, Gera- ms, Azaleas, Roses, Palms, Ferns, Begonias, Gloxinias, dies, Phloxes, Gladiolus, Cannas, Dahlias, Lilies, Cala- ms, Shrubs, Vines, New Fruits, and all Vegetables.

HN LEWIS CHILDS, Floral Park, N.Y.

REPETITION

s the life of advertising—It is also the life of the largest mail-order seed trade n the world—

BURPEE'S!

Were it not for repeat-orders every year from satisfied planters we could not supply the Best Seeds that Grow

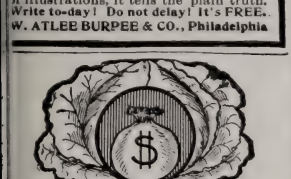
at such moderate prices. We want every one who appreciates quality to write for Burpee's Farm Annual for 1903. Long known as "The Leading American Seed Catalogue," it is better now than ever before. An elegant book of 184 pages, with beautiful colored plates and hundreds of illustrations, it tells the plain truth. Write to-day! Do not delay! It's FREE.

W. ATLEE BURPEE & CO., Philadelphia



MONEY IN GOOD CABBAGE

My elegant new book for seed growers is a store house of rare seed information. Tells about my famous varieties of money making cabbage.

WRITE TO-DAY FREE Mention this Paper, and I will send you a package of Buckbee's Gold Coin Cabbage, the best growing variety on earth together with a copy of my great Seed Book.

H. W. BUCKBEE

Dept. L–4. Rockford Seed Farms, Rockford, Illis.

CORNELL INCUBATORS and BROODERS ere of sufficient excellence to win Gold Medal— ighest award at the Pan-American Exposition). Cabinet construction; table top—regulator s, and fine adjustments out of danger. The ORNELL compound door makes it air-tight. old under positive guarantee.

PEEP O' DAY Brooders have stood the test r 10 years, and are used by leading poultrymen erywhere. Your name and address on a postal rd will get our 1903 Catalogue, with valuable formation to poultrymen, free.

Penrose, Pa., Aug. 30.

Gentlemen:—I got 73 chicks out of 87 eggs first, 5 out of 136 second, and 111 out of 0 third. Not a bit of trouble.

J. W. SWOPE.

Cornell Incubator Mfg. Co.

Box 31, Ithaca, N. Y.

POULTRY CATALOG FREE!

Has no rival. Lowest prices of fowls and eggs; 40 breeds Turkeys, Geese, Ducks and Chickens. The book tells all. Grandly Illustrated. 15 best hen house plans, how to breed, feed, treat disease, etc. Send 10c. for postage and mailing. J. H. Brabazon, Jr. & Co., Box 98, Delavan, Wis.

QUAINT PSALMS for QUEER FOLK

By Rev. C. H. Yatman

PSALM LXV
Harvest Psalm

9 Thou visitest the earth, and waterest it: thou greatly enrichest it with the river of God, which is full of water: thou preparest them corn, when thou hast so provided for it.

"THOU SETTLEST THE FURROWS"

10. Thou waterest the ridges thereof abundantly: thou settlest the furrows thereof: thou makest it soft with showers: thou blessest the springing thereof.

11. Thou crownest the year with thy goodness; and thy paths drop fatness.

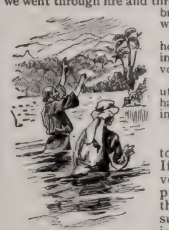
. . .

This Psalm gives one a walk over a country road in harvest time. The corn is ripe, the pastures are green and filled with fat cattle. The waving grain waiting for the harvester is a silent song of plenty. The raindrops of a shower are like diamonds, and verse eleven suggests a rainbow over it all as a crown set for sure promise of food for every one. This Psalm should be read every Thanksgiving Day, and no farmer should fail of its utterance when his crops are in.

. . .

PSALM LXVI
Psalm for Praise and Prayer

12. Thou hast caused men to ride over our heads; we went through fire and through water: but thou broughtest us out into a wealthy place.



"THROUGH FIRE AND WATER"

13. I will go into thy house with burnt offerings: I will pay thee my vows.

14. Which my lips have uttered, and my mouth hath spoken, when I was in trouble.

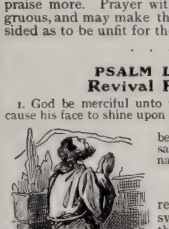
. . .

This is a fit Psalm to follow the LXV. If God's good harvests will not lead to praise and prayer, their ingratitude is the sum of our being. It is a Psalm of parts, unlike many people who pray much and praise more. Prayer without praise is inconguous, and may make the individual so one-sided as to be unfit for the presence of glory.

. . .

PSALM LXVII
Revival Psalm

1. God be merciful unto us and bless us; and cause his face to shine upon us.



"BE MERCIFUL UNTO US"

2. That thy way may be known upon earth, thy saving health among all nations.

. . .

This is a Psalm of revival, broad in its sweep. An answer to the Psalm would mean a revival of religion. Piety and prosperity go hand in hand.

If the harvest out of the seed of the kingdom in us is large, the soil, too, responds with its plenteous Amen. When the people of the earth fear God and love him, He will make the earth to serve them.

. . .

PSALM LXVIII
The Victor's Psalm

1. Let God arise, let his enemies be scattered: let them also that hate him flee before him.

2. As smoke is driven away, so drive them away: as wax melteth before the fire, so let the wicked perish at the presence of God.

3. But let the righteous be glad: let them rejoice before God: yea, let them exceedingly rejoice

. . .

Here is a song in the major key—a Psalm from the summit, a voice from the victor with his shout of triumph. It's for the inspiration of those yet in the battle. He brought David through to good success, so He will us. No power can stand before the Captain of our salvation—no scheme can checkmate His purpose to lead his followers into Canaan, and as they pass in it will be with loaded backs—loaded with benefits.

"LET THEM FLEE"

Sensational Flower Seed Novelty!

Everblooming Hollyhocks

Picturesque, luxuriant and healthy.
Flower the same season from Spring-sown seed.
Blooming in exuberance from July until frozen.
A riot of diversified colors and forms.
Doubles, semi-doubles and singles.

Every garden may now be enriched with this stately Queen of Flowers grown annually, and flowering as quickly as any garden annual.

Price of seed, grand combination mixture, 25c. per pkt., 5 pkts. for $1.00.

We illustrate in colors and describe these glorious Hollyhocks in our new catalogue of the largest and handsomest Seed and Plant Catalogue ever issued. A copy will be mailed free to every purchaser of above, and to others who mention this paper.

"Everything for the Garden,"

PETER HENDERSON & CO. 35 & 37 CORTLANDT ST. NEW YORK

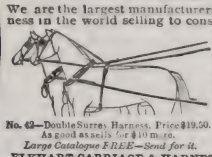
30 YEARS SELLING DIRECT

We are the largest manufacturers of vehicles and harness in the world selling to consumers exclusively.



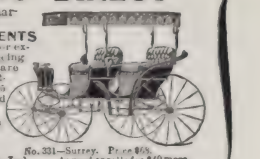
No. 42—Double Surrey, Harness. Price $119.50. As good as sells for $40 more.

Large Catalogue FREE—Send for it.

WE HAVE NO AGENTS

but ship anywhere for examination, guaranteeing safe delivery. You are out nothing if not satisfied. We make 195 styles of vehicles and 60 styles of harness.

Visitors are always welcome at our factory.



No. 331—Surrey. Price $68. As good as sells for $40 more.

ELKHART CARRIAGE & HARNESS MFG. CO, Elkhart, Ind.

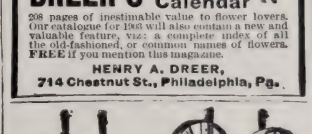
Flower Facts FREE

Just the information needed by all who wish to grow flowers and plants successfully, is contained in

DREER'S Garden Calendar

208 pages of inestimable value to flower lovers. Our catalogue for 1903 will also contain a new and valuable feature, viz: a complete index of all the old-fashioned, or common names of flowers. FREE if you mention this magazine.

HENRY A. DREER,
714 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.



ELECTRIC

Handy Farm Wagons

make the work easier for both the man and team. The tires being wide they do not cut into the ground; the labor of loading is reduced many times because of the short lift. They are equipped with our famous Electric Steel Wheels, either straight or stagger spokes. Wheels any height, from 24 to 60 inches. White hickory axles, steel bounds. Guaranteed to carry 4000 lbs. Why not get started right by putting in one of these wagons. We make our steel wheels to fit any wagon. Write for the catalog. It is free.

ELECTRIC WHEEL CO., BOX 136, QUINCY, ILL.

A PANSY PROPOSITION.

For 5 cents in stamps to pay the postage we will mail you a packet of 100 seeds of Templin's New Giant Pansies.

Giant Ruffled, Bronzed and Striped Varieties. Also our Flower Booklet which tells how to grow them. Will send you at the same time our large (64-page) Illustrated Catalogue of Ideal Seeds, Plants and Bulbs.

We give valuable premiums for club orders. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Templin & Sons, Box 105 Calla, O.

200 Egg Incubator

For $12.80

The simplest, most perfect incubator made in the world. This is a new one at a remarkably low price. It is an enlargement of the famous and made as thoroughly good as any incubator on the market. It will hatch every fertile egg, and stand up to regular usage as well as the most costly.

WOODEN HEN

Write for free catalogue with 14 colored views.

GEO. H. STAHL,
Quincy, Ill.

OUR SEEDS

Fruit and Ornamental Trees, Etc., have been the standard of excellence for nearly half a century. We send by mail postpaid, Seeds, Plants, Roses, Bulbs, Vines and Small Trees and guarantee safe arrival and satisfaction, larger by express or freight. Direct deal will insure you the best and save you money. Try us. Your address on a postal will bring you our elegant 168 page catalogue free. 49 years, 44 greenhouses, 1,000 acres.

THE STORRS & HARRISON CO.,
Box 221, PAINESVILLE, OHIO.

WHY NOT

Make some good money selling our lines of Economy Buggies and Harness in your neighborhood? You can do it easily as our goods and prices are world beaters. Do not delay but write at once for free catalog and agency plan. A cracking good Top Buggy for $27.50.

Economy Buggy Co.,
Box K, Cincinnati, O.

PETALUMA INCUBATORS

and Brooders are the oldest and most reliable machines on the market to-day. Besides purely automatic and sure. Catalogue FREE.

PETALUMA INCUBATOR CO.,
Box 64 Petaluma, Cal. Box 64 Indianapolis, Ind.

STARK TREES best by Test—78 Years LARGEST Nursery.

FRUIT BOOK free. We WANT MORE SALESMEN PAY CASH Weekly

STARK BROS, Louisiana, Mo.: Dansville, N. Y.; Etc

BARGAINS IN SEEDS

Choice kinds of Vegetable and Flower Seeds at 2 cents per Packet. Flower Plants, 5 cents each. Many choice novelties. Don't buy until you see our New Catalogue. Mailed FREE if you mention this paper.

IOWA SEED CO., DES MOINES, IOWA.

It was before the day of SAPOLIO They used to say "Woman's Work is never Done."

Immense Religious Book Sales

AT THE LOWEST PRICES EVER KNOWN! Another Great Edition of 15,000 Books to Supply the Demand—Thousands of Voluntary Testimonials Received From Grateful Bible Students

10 Books	The Greatest Religious Book Offer We Ever Made A Complete Standard Bible Reference Library	$10.00

Take Notice: Former Price $41.00
Now Only . . . $10.00
Choice of Six Vols., $6.50

Note to Christian Herald Readers

WE guarantee to The Christian Herald readers that these great books which we offer at such a marvelously low price are newly made, clearly printed, strongly and handsomely bound in cloth, and perfect in every way. We are an old established house of thirty-six years' experience, and have the reputation of furnishing standard religious works at the lowest prices ever known. We have sold thousands of these books to Christian Herald readers, and they are happy, grateful, and satisfied.

THE S. S. SCRANTON CO.

COMMENTARY ON THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS
BIBLE CYCLOPEDIA
HISTORY OF THE BIBLE
CRUDENS CONCORDANCE
DICTIONARY OF THE BIBLE
LIFE AND EPISTLES OF SAINT PAUL

1524 pages.	985 pages.	1055 pages.	1380 pages.	753 pages.	735 pages.	756 pages.	1024 pages.	1014 pages.
9¼ x 6½ x 3 in.	9⅜ x 7¼ x 2½ in.	10 x 7¾ x 2 in.	11 x 8 x 3 in.	10¼ x 7½ x 1⅝ in.	9¾ x 7 x 2 in.	9¾ x 7¼ x 1½ in.	9½ x 6½ x 2½ in.	9½ x 6½ x 2¼ in.

JAMIESON, FAUSSET & BROWN'S BIBLE COMMENTARY

By Robert Jamieson, D.D., St. Paul's, Glasgow; Rev. A. R. Fausset, A.M., St. Cuthbert's, York, and David Brown, D.D., Professor of Theology, Aberdeen.

A complete commentary, critical, explanatory and practical, on the Old and New Testaments, 1380 pages, bound in cloth. Former Price, $7.50. The body of the work consists of notes that are concise, learned, free from verbiage and easily understood, that elucidate and explain difficult passages of Scripture, of whose import is not readily apprehended. Far in advance of the older works now in use, it is also the most practical, suggestive and scientific.

Rev. H. Clay Trumbull, Editor of the Sunday School Times: "I do not know of its equal, within reasonable cost."

Rev. J. H. Vincent, Bishop M. E. Church: "It deserves a place on the table of every Bible student."

CRITICAL & EXPOSITORY BIBLE CYCLOPÆDIA

Compiled and written by Rev. A. R. Fausset, A.M., joint author of the Jamieson, Fausset & Brown Bible Commentary. It contains 750 three-column pages; 600 illustrations. Regular Price, cloth binding, $5.00.

This great work is the result of seven years of labor by the author, contains three thousand seven hundred articles and presents a completeness, conciseness and thoroughness, such as to make it a perfect Bible Cyclopedia. It sets forth briefly and suggestively those doctrinal and experimental truths which are contained in the Written Word itself.

J. W. Bashford, D.D., President Ohio Wesleyan University: "It is a most admirable aid. I hope ten thousand readers will use it inside the next six months."

The late Rev. Dr. T. De Witt Talmage: "It is in advance of all books in that line—unique, learned, accurate and valuable."

THE COMPLETE WORKS OF FLAVIUS JOSEPHUS

The celebrated Jewish Historian, translated from the Original Greek by William Whiston, A.M. Large Octavo Cloth, 1,056 pages, nearly 100 illustrations. Former Price $4.00.

In this great work is contained the History and Antiquities of the Jews, Destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans, also Dissertations concerning Jesus Christ, John the Baptist, James the Just, and the Sacrifice of Isaac.

ILLUSTRATED HISTORY OF THE BIBLE

By Rev. John Kitto, D.D., F.S.A. It contains 735 double-column pages, 220 engravings, printed from excellent plates, on good paper, strongly bound in cloth. Former Price $4.50.

No modern writer has contributed more largely to enrich the biblical literature of our time, or to clothe with a freshness and interest the men, personages and incidents in Bible History than John Kitto in this magnificent work. Intensely engaging and instructive, and abounding in striking pictorial illustrations, it should have a place in every home. Over fourteen copies of this popular work have been sold.

EDERSHEIM'S LIFE AND TIMES OF JESUS THE MESSIAH

(2 Vols.) The Authorized American Edition. By Alfred Edersheim, M.A., Oxon., D.D., Lecturer Oxford University.

Two Volumes. Former Price, $6.00. Royal 8vo, 1,524 pages, handsomely bound in silk cloth. Gives a full account of the society, life and development, intellectual and religious, in Palestine, to serve as a frame and background for the picture of Christ. The fresh study of the text of the Gospels makes the book a historical commentary on the Four Gospels.

The Sunday School Times recommends it: "It is positively refreshing to read a life of the Saviour which is critical in the best and truest sense of the word, and is biblical at the same time."

CONCISE CYCLOPÆDIA OF RELIGIOUS KNOWLEDGE

Biblical, Biographical, Theological, Historical, Geographical and Practical. Edited by Rev. E. B. Sanford, D.D., assisted by a brilliant galaxy of Biblical Scholars and Divines. Complete in one volume, nearly 1,000 pages, beautifully illustrated. Regular Price, cloth binding, $3.50.

To the seekers after knowledge this work will prove a surprising storehouse of information regarding Church History, Bible History, Bible Names, Places, Customs, Doctrines, Creeds, Denominations, the Early Church, The Story of the Reformation, the various Young People's Societies, Theologians, Scholars, Cathedrals, Churches, etc.

Christian Endeavor World, Boston: "Knowledge is here available for which many have not known just where to turn."

SMITH'S DICTIONARY OF THE BIBLE

Edited by William Smith, LL.D., Classical Examiner of University of London. It formerly sold for $4.50.

Contains 1,024 large octavo pages printed on excellent paper, finely illustrated and handsomely and strongly bound in cloth. An indispensable aid to ministers, teachers, families, Sunday School superintendents and Bible readers generally. This is, undoubtedly, the best work of its kind in the English language.

THE LIFE AND EPISTLES OF ST. PAUL

By the Rev. W. J. Conybeare, M.A., of Cambridge, and J. S. Howson, D.D., of Liverpool. Formerly sold for $4.50.

Contains 1,014 large octavo pages, many fine illustrations, maps, charts, etc., is printed on the same quality of paper and is the same in size as Smith's Dictionary of the Bible and bound in uniform style. There is no work that will compare with this in giving a life-like picture of the great apostle and the work which he did.

CRUDEN'S COMPLETE CONCORDANCE

By Alexander Cruden, M.A. Former Price $1.50.

Contains 756 large octavo pages, clearly printed and handsomely and strongly bound in cloth. Scripture is the best interpreter of Scripture, and, next to the Bible, no volume is of greater value to the Bible student than Cruden's Concordance.

DIRECTIONS FOR ORDERING

Send $10.00 and we will forward the ten books at once.
Send $2.00 and promise to pay $1.00 a month for ten months, making $12.00 as complete payment, and we will forward the ten books at once.
Send $6.50 and we will forward any six of the volumes you may select at once.
Send $2.00 and promise to pay $1.00 a month for six months, making $8.00 as complete payment, and we will forward your selections of six volumes at once.

You pay freight or express charges on above plans and we guarantee safe delivery to any station in the United States or Canada.

We will forward by prepaid express a selection of any Book in above list on receipt of... $2.50

In all cases where books are sent by mail or express we guarantee safe arrival at destination, and will make good any loss in transit.

Take Notice! We will take back any or all books that are not satisfactory in ten days after examination, and will return money, deducting only the return freight or express charges. This marvelous offer is limited, and money will be returned if the books are exhausted and we cannot fill your order. As to our responsibility, we refer to any commercial agency. Established 1866. Mention The Christian Herald when you order

The S. S. SCRANTON CO., Publishers, HARTFORD, CONN.

CHRISTIAN HERALD

SUBSCRIPTION, $1.50 PER ANNUM
Published 52 Times a Year

NEW YORK, FEBRUARY 11, 1903

VOL. 26 NO. 6. PRICE 5 CENTS
Offices: Bible House, New York

COPYRIGHT 1903 BY LOUIS KLOPSCH

Finnish Peasants Listening to the Soft, Sad Music of the "Kantele"

SEE PAGE 116

CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE CHRISTIAN HERALD FINLAND FAMINE FUND

RECEIVED PRIOR TO JANUARY 26, 1903

Connecticut

A—H L..... 1 00
A—M. d. P.... 1 00
Barnes, Fred..... 1 00
Barnes, I. A. Mrs.. 2 00
Bass, Mrs E. S.... 1 00
Bell, Mrs E. J..... 1 00
Benton, Mrs J. B.. 2 00
Bissell, Mrs J. W.. 1 00
Bradshaw, Mrs M.. 2 00
Brainard, A. S..... 1 00
Blake, C. L..... 2 01
Buckley, P. J..... 5 00
Butler, Frances H.. 5 00
Cox, Mr & Mrs P... 2 00
Carpenter, F. E & Mrs..... 1 00
Cowles, Mrs O. & Mrs. M. Cowles.. 5 00
Child, Mrs A. S.... 1 00
Deane, Mrs O. L.... 1 00
Dennison, Mrs G. L.... 1 00
Denison, Mrs H. L.... 1 00
Elwood, John..... 1 00
Everett, R. B..... 1 00
Eckardt, H. & C. H.. 4 00
Gillingham, Miss G.. 1 00
Donaldson, Jno..... 2 00
Dorsel, Mrs M. & Henrietta Field.. 1 00
Douglas, A. J..... 2 00
Dawley, A. H..... 5 00
Dinsmore, C. F..... 1 50
Dewey, Mrs E..... 2 00
Eaton, Alice M.... 1 00
Edgell, Susan E.... 2 00
Field, D. C. G..... 5 00
Farrar, Herbt W.... 1 00
Fish, W. & E..... 3 50
Fletcher, B. M & Mrs. Mrs E M F Lander, S Chelmsford..... 1 50
Fitzgerald, E. S.... 1 00
Foster, Mrs E. O.. 2 00
Francis, Rev F & fam & Chs of S Westport & Central Village of Westport..... 14 00
Frese, Fredk C.... 2 00
Fuller, Mrs S. E.... 1 00
Gates, John R..... 1 00
Geer, Jewett H.... 1 00
Gerring, Edith ... 50
Gordon, Mrs S. J.. 1 50
Hall, Mrs A. B.... 1 00
Hinman, C. W..... 5 00
Hinsdale, Miss..... 5 00
Hampton, Wm..... 1 00
Hodgkins, Mrs M. A.. 2 00
Jones, Mrs B. F & mother & J. P Blackinton 3 00
Johnson, J. 5 00
Jones, Thos 1 00
Kimball, Mrs N. G.. 2 00
Landers, Asenath.. 50
Landers, Lewis A.. 50
Leonard, Levi L.. 2 00
Lincoln, Rachel .. 1 00
McKay, Mrs A. D.. 1 00
Mander, Geo 2 00
McCrea, Isaac 1 00
Moore, A. L..... 1 00
Murray, Mrs. H..... 1 00
Nichols, J. R 1 00
Orne, John H..... 1 00
Park, Mrs J..... 1 00
Passell, F. N..... 1 00
Pease, C. W..... 1 00
Penney, Mrs W..... 1 00
Perry, M & Mrs.... 5 00
Pierce, G 2 00
Palmeter, Mrs J. W.. 5 00
Peabody, Dea. E.. 1 00
Porteous, Jno 5 00
Rowe, L. J..... 1 00
Rockway, Sarah M.. 1 00
Schubert, A. L..... 1 00
Sears, Bartlett.... 1 00
Smith, Sue T..... 1 00
Strang, Mrs Thos.. 2 00
Stetson, Mrs M. O.. 5 00
Sweezey, Wm A..... 1 00
Swift, O. F..... 1 00
Spafford, N. H.... 2 00
Stone, Miss Marie.. 1 00
Sumeni, L. A.... 2 00
Taylor, F. & B.... 2 00
Taylor, Mary H.... 1 00
Tolford, H. G..... 1 00
Thurston, Mrs H. S.. 1 00
Titcomb, W. O.... 2 00
Towne, Miss H R10 00
Ware, Miss E. C.. 1 00
Ware, Mrs G. F & H. J. Fuller 2 00
Ware, J. 2 00
Wentworth, Dorothy.. 50
Webb, Mrs C. H.... 2 00
Winslow, Mrs A. L.. 1 00
Wood, H. S..... 5 00
Woodin, Ralph.... 50
Wrightington, Mrs W. 2 00
Wilkins, J. 2 00
Yiloughby, M. C.. 1 00
A D S, Adams..... 1 00
E H F, Boston..... 1 00
H M, Boston..... 200 00
J. E. E. Canterbridge 2 00
H L. W. E Chatterbridge 2 00
C. M. L. North Bridgeford 2 00
E. B. 5 00
F S, Fall River.... 1 00
F M, Greenfield.... 5 00
S H A, Lynn..... 2 00
Mrs E. F. R & Miss M. L. Middlebury 2 00
E. H. Pittsfield.. 1 00
O. W. T, Shrewsbury 1 00
Mrs J. S. Hardley.. 1 00
Rev. Williamsburg.. 2 00
F. C. Winchester.. 1 00
Wm G. Amesbury.. 1 00
Mr. & Mrs. P. Cold Brook Springs..... 1 00
E. E. W. A friend to the suffering, Fall River 5 00
A. M. P. Florence.. 1 00
H. L. Mc. Hyde P'k 1 00
M. J. W. Newton Hr 2 00
K. M. R. Pittsfield.. 2 00
S. S. H. Princeton.. 2 00
L. H. L. & Mrs. Southbridge 2 00

Massachusetts

Adams, Mary F.... 1 00
Abel, Robert E.... 2 00
Ames, Eudine 1 00
Ames, Mrs L. D.... 1 00
Allen, Cornelius T. 2 00

MASS., Cont'd

Atkins, M. W..... 1 00
Ainsworth, Mrs C. N. 5 00
Bakeman, L. L.... 50
Bosworth, Mrs N. F. 1 00
Bliss, E. B. & wf.. 1 00
Bigelow, Everett.. 1 00
Bailey, A. E. & Mrs. 5 00
Boggs, Mrs Wm.... 2 00
Bowman, Mrs W. H.. 5 00
Colgate, S. S..... 1 00
Calligan, Mrs..... 2 00
Calligan, Mamie F.. 5 00
Cook, Mrs A. F.... 1 00
Carpenter, F. E & Mrs..... 1 00
Cowles, Mrs O. & Mrs. M. Cowles.. 5 00
Child, Mrs A. S.... 1 00
Deane, Mrs O. L.... 1 00
Dennison, Mrs G. L.... 1 00
Dennison, Mrs H. L.... 1 00
Elwood, John..... 1 00
Everett, R. B..... 1 00
Eckardt, H. & C. H.. 4 00
Gillingham, Miss G.. 1 00
Donaldson, Jno..... 2 00
Dorsel, Mrs M. & Henrietta Field.. 1 00
Douglas, A. J..... 2 00
Dawley, A. H..... 5 00
Dinsmore, C. F..... 1 50
Dewey, Mrs E..... 2 00
Eaton, Alice M.... 1 00
Edgell, Susan E.... 2 00
Field, D. C. G..... 5 00
Farrar, Herbt W.... 1 00
Fish, W. & E..... 3 50
Fletcher, B. M & Mrs. Mrs E M F Lander, S Chelmsford..... 1 50
Fitzgerald, E. S.... 1 00
Foster, Mrs E. O.. 2 00
Francis, Rev F & fam & Chs of S Westport & Central Village of Westport..... 14 00
Frese, Fredk C.... 2 00
Fuller, Mrs S. E.... 1 00
Gates, John R..... 1 00
Geer, Jewett H.... 1 00
Gerring, Edith ... 50
Gordon, Mrs S. J.. 1 50
Hall, Mrs A. B.... 1 00
Hinman, C. W..... 5 00
Hinsdale, Miss..... 5 00
Hampton, Wm..... 1 00
Hodgkins, Mrs M. A.. 2 00
Jones, Mrs B. F & mother & J. P Blackinton 3 00
Johnson, J. 5 00
Jones, Thos 1 00
Kimball, Mrs N. G.. 2 00
Landers, Asenath.. 50
Landers, Lewis A.. 50
Leonard, Levi L.. 2 00
Lincoln, Rachel .. 1 00
McKay, Mrs A. D.. 1 00
Mander, Geo 2 00
McCrea, Isaac 1 00
Moore, A. L..... 1 00
Murray, Mrs. H..... 1 00
Nichols, J. R 1 00
Orne, John H..... 1 00
Park, Mrs J..... 1 00
Passell, F. N..... 1 00
Pease, C. W..... 1 00
Penney, Mrs W..... 1 00
Perry, M & Mrs.... 5 00
Pierce, G 2 00
Palmeter, Mrs J. W.. 5 00
Peabody, Dea. E.. 1 00
Porteous, Jno 5 00
Rowe, L. J..... 1 00
Rockway, Sarah M.. 1 00
Schubert, A. L..... 1 00
Sears, Bartlett.... 1 00
Smith, Sue T..... 1 00
Strang, Mrs Thos.. 2 00
Stetson, Mrs M. O.. 5 00
Sweezey, Wm A..... 1 00
Swift, O. F..... 1 00
Spafford, N. H.... 2 00
Stone, Miss Marie.. 1 00
Sumeni, L. A.... 2 00
Taylor, F. & B.... 2 00
Taylor, Mary H.... 1 00
Tolford, H. G..... 1 00
Thurston, Mrs H. S.. 1 00
Titcomb, W. O.... 2 00
Towne, Miss H R10 00
Ware, Miss E. C.. 1 00
Ware, Mrs G. F & H. J. Fuller 2 00
Ware, J. 2 00
Wentworth, Dorothy.. 50
Webb, Mrs C. H.... 2 00
Winslow, Mrs A. L.. 1 00
Wood, H. S..... 5 00
Woodin, Ralph.... 50
Wrightington, Mrs W. 2 00
Wilkins, J. 2 00
Yiloughby, M. C.. 1 00
A D S, Adams..... 1 00
E H F, Boston..... 1 00
H M, Boston..... 200 00
J. E. E. Canterbridge 2 00
H L. W. E Chatterbridge 2 00
C. M. L. North Bridgeford 2 00
E. B. 5 00
F S, Fall River.... 1 00
F M, Greenfield.... 5 00
S H A, Lynn..... 2 00
Mrs E. F. R & Miss M. L. Middlebury 2 00
E. H. Pittsfield.. 1 00
O. W. T, Shrewsbury 1 00
Mrs J. S. Hardley.. 1 00
Rev. Williamsburg.. 2 00
F. C. Winchester.. 1 00
Wm G. Amesbury.. 1 00
Mr. & Mrs. P. Cold Brook Springs..... 1 00
E. E. W. A friend to the suffering, Fall River 5 00
A. M. P. Florence.. 1 00
H. L. Mc. Hyde P'k 1 00
M. J. W. Newton Hr 2 00
K. M. R. Pittsfield.. 2 00
S. S. H. Princeton.. 2 00
L. H. L. & Mrs. Southbridge 2 00
S. W. G. F. S. Westport 2 00
E. R. Three Rivers 2 00
A. W. G. Wellesley.. 1 00
C. D. Westfield. 1 00
Dudley 1 00
G. Barrington 2 00
Oxford 1 00
Salem 1 00
Southbridge .. 2 00
Van Deusen.. 1 00
Springfield .. 7 00
Middlefield .. 7 00
Friend, Marion 1 00
Friend, Marlboro' .. 1 00
Friend, Maynard.... 2 00
Friend, Monson 1 00
Friend, Newton Ctr 1 00
Friend, Plymouth.. 5 00
Friend, Waltham.... 5 00
Friend, Worcester Co 3 00
Friends, Littleton. 6 50
Friends, New Braintree 26 32
Friends, New Dorchester 10 00
Friends, Orange.... 1 00
Friend, Enfield 1 00
Friend, Hamilton. 2 00
Friend, Hubbardston 1 00
Friend, Swansea.. 5 00
Friend, Topsfield.. 2 00
Anon, Holyoke.... 1 00
A Friend, Dunstable 1 00
A Friend, New Bedford 1 00
A Friend, Westboro 1 00
Friends, Newburyport 1 10
Friends, Wakefield 4 00
Two Friends, Ludlow 2 00
Friends in Winthrop 1 00
For Christ, Essex.. 5 00
Helper, Dalton 2 00
Subr, Sheldonville. 1 00
A poor Widow in Foxboro.... 1 00
Mother & daughter, Easthampton 1 00
One of the Kings Sons, Springfield 1 00
The Golden Rule Co, Boston 20 00
From Two Friends, W. Brookfield 1 50
Reader of C H, L 1 00
Subr, Highlandville 1 00
Two Ladies, Stockbridge 2 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd

Hallock, J. Y..... 1 00
Blakeslee, Miss EA 1 00
Boad, Geo H..... 2 00
Brink, Miss Carrie 2 00
Brown, Mrs A. L.. 2 00
Brown, Mrs Jno.. 2 00
Brownell, E M..... 1 00
Bryant, L. Rose.... 1 00
Burdick, Mrs A. J 1 00
Caldwell, Mrs E C 1 00
Carver, S. M..... 1 00
Chadborn, L. A.... 1 00
Champion, W. D.... 1 00
Cheetham, R. M..10 00
Clark, J. 25
Coles, J. 3 00
Coley, F. A..... 1 00
Corwin, J. M & G S 1 00
Couch, Sarah 1 00
Cousins, Mrs H.... 1 00
Craig, D. S..... 1 00
Culver, Mrs Henry 5 00
Carter, M. H..... 1 00
Cass, Mrs E. A.... 3 00
Coggin, Mrs H. A.. 1 00
Chapin, J. S..... 2 00
Chase, Emma F.... 1 00
Christenson, M. F.. 1 00
Church, M. E..... 3 70
Clark, Mrs F. R.... 1 00
Colwell, M. A..... 1 00
Conlin, Miss Eliz.. 1 00
Cox, Elmer 50
Coon, Nelson D.... 50
Coomley, D. S..... 1 00
Cooley, Mrs H. L.. 1 00
Crane, C. 1 00
Craven, Mrs C. J.. 1 00
Curren, J. 1 00
Daisley, Thos 1 00
Darling, Mrs F.... 1 00
Davenport, Mrs G 1 00
Davey, G W..... 2 00
Davey, Mrs G W.. 50
Davis, Ira F..... 1 00
Day, Mrs S..... 2 00
Decker, Albert 1 00
DeCleeq Helen....10 00
Deglow, Chas 2 00
Dell Plain, E. G.. 1 00
Dengler, Mrs G.... 2 00
Denton, Jas H..... 5 00
Dernell, H F....25 00
Derrick, Chas B.. 3 00
Derrick, Mrs S. L.. 1 00
Dexter, E N..... 2 00
Douglass, A C, (M D) 1 00
Drummond, Edwin H.. 1 00
Dawly, Mrs H.... 25
Dawly, Mrs H.... 20
Dawly, Mrs W.... 50

NEW YORK—Cont'd

Hillman, Mrs C.... 1 00
Hodge, Mrs Jas.... 1 00
Holmes Brothers.. 10 00
Holloway, Mrs Mil 1 00
Houser, Mrs A. L.. 2 00
Howard, J. E..... 50
Hull, Mrs J D....10 00
Hunbly, Mrs W. S 2 00
Hudson, Mrs K.... 1 00
Hagaman, C. A.... 2 00
Haggart, D 50
Hamilton, H W.... 2 00
Hamm, Chas 10 00
Hann, Mrs C..... 5 00
Hardendor, O. L.. 1 00
Hardendorf, S. B.. 1 00
Harper, Mrs C.... 25
Hart, Joseph 1 00
Harwood, Dr W H & Mrs 1 75
Harwood, W B.... 25
Hill, Adelbert 3 00
Hill, Grace 1 00
Hilton, Jas C..... 5 00
Holmes, Mrs Wm.. 1 00
Hopper, Mr Wm.. 5 00
Hotaling, Mrs G... 2 00
Hudgeon, Mrs 1 00
Hubbard, H A..... 1 00
Hurt, John 5 00
Jackson, Miss H M 1 00
Janes, Miss C M.. 1 00
Jennings, Ed B.... 1 00
Jerome, Miss H McD 2 50
Jones, Carrie & L 1 00
Jones, E N..... 1 00
Kellogg, J M..... 1 00
Kelly, A F & Mrs 2 00
Kennedy, Mrs W A 1 00
Keys, R H 50
Kimble, Mary M... 2 00
Klotzer, Mary 2 00
Krom, A W..... 2 00
Kamerer, E & wf 2 00
Keen, Wm W..... 1 00
Keith, Miss Anna.. 1 00
Keith, Mrs S..... 2 00
Kerutz, Mrs Henry 2 00
King, L Belle.... 1 00
Kline, J V..... 1 00
Kline, Mrs C W.... 5 00
Knox, N L & Mrs, Nelson Brown, Mrs & C Chamberlain 2 10
Kyte, E T..... 1 00
Kyte, T L..... 1 00
Lake, Adelaide.... 1 00
Lathrop, Eliz H.. 1 00
Lloyd, Mrs M W.. 5 00
Lewis, George 1 00
Long, Geo & fam 3 00
Longrod, Mr & Mrs Abram 1 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd

Osborn, Mrs H T.. 1 00
Palmer, George... 5 00
Parker, B 1 00
Perdine, Mrs J F.. 1 00
Perdine, J F..... 1 00
Pierce, N & Mrs.. 2 00
Platt, Mrs O..... 50
Prentice, A M..... 1 00
Putnam, Mrs R A.. 2 00
Palmer, Mr sEliz.. 1 00
Parsons, Mrs C A.. 1 00
Parsons, Mrs F M.. 1 00
Peebles, F F..... 5 00
Peterson, C O..... 1 00
Pierce, D A..... 1 00
Pondal, Mrs Jane.. 1 00
Raynor, Mrs Sarah 1 00
Raynor, W A..... 2 00
Riddell, Frank G.. 5 00
Rieger, Mrs Chas.. 1 00
Rogers, Mrs A. N.. 1 00
Rogers, J L..... 3 00
Rogers, Mrs S.... 1 00
Rose, Mrs R..... 25
Rummel, Mrs R.... 1 00
Rutherord, Mrs J.. 25
Rake, Mrs E..... 60
Reed, C W..... 5 00
Reinhardt, C W... 2 50
Reynolds, F B.... 1 00
Reynolds, Mrs P E 1 00
Richardson, Thos.. 5 00
Rogers, Mrs G E.. 1 00
Rogers, I 1 00
Russell, R A..... 50
Santee, E O..... 5 00
Scheper, Jno G.... 1 00
Schureman, E R & wf 2 00
Shaver, M..... 5 00
Shaw, Mrs Theron. 2 00
Shorvernian, Mrs S 1 00
Simkin, J C..... 1 00
Simkin, M C..... 1 00
Slocum, Mrs H.... 1 00
Smith, Mrs C..... 1 00
Smith, Mrs Helen.. 2 00
Smith, Mrs P.... 5 00
Smith, M R..... 50
Smock, C V..... 1 00
Smurr, L J..... 1 00
Spelder, Geo..... 1 00
Starr, Miss & frds.12 50
Stevens, Edwin I. 2 00
Stevens, E P..... 1 00
Strachan, Mrs A.. 1 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd

Sweet, Mrs W B.. 1 00
Symes, Mrs T.... 1 00
Salone, F 25
Salone, Mrs J.... 30
Sammonds, Mrs A 25
Savage, A G & E P Keeler 2 00
Schiesser, G 2 00
Scare, Mrs J..... 25
Shafer, C..... 1 00
Shafer, Mrs J. C.. 50
Shanks, Mrs A E.. 1 00
Shannon, Mrs M... 1 00
Shaw, W H..... 1 00
Sheerar, Rev J. B.. 2 00
Sherman, Mrs G.. 50
Simmons, Mrs A.... 1 00
Slade, C A & ww 1 00
Slater, S 1 00
Smith, Mrs C S.... 2 00
Smith, J L M.... 1 00
Soper, F, (MD)... 1 00
Sparrowhawk, Mrs 25
Sparrowhawk, Mrs G 50
Stewart, Chas N.. 1 00
Stewart, W N..... 2 00
Stewart, Walter.. 1 00
Taggart, Chas A.. 1 00
Talbot, Christopher 5 00
Thayer, Sarah A.. 1 00
Tibbitts, Mrs M G 5 00
Tiffany, Albert .. 1 00
Tiffany, Grace 1 00
Timmerman, R. C.. 5 00
Tompkins, S R.... 1 00
Tremble, Mrs F G 1 00
Tremble, Mrs Geo.. 1 00
Truesdell, Miss L.. 1 00
Tagert, Mrs P..... 50
Tallman, J S..... 1 00
Thompson, J..... 25
Thompson, Mrs S.. 25
Ticknor, J N..... 1 00
Tisdell, Wm..... 5 00
Town Topics & E A Satterlee 2 00
Townsend, H L... 2 00
Townshend, H S & H L 2 00
Myers, Geo L..... 1 00
Newton, Mrs E J.. 2 00
Nillson, Agnes 1 00
Ogsbury, Mrs P J.. 1 00
Olbrich, F 5 00
Orton, Minnie A & mother 1 00
Ostrander, Mrs G W 1 00
Otis, Mr & Mrs.. 2 00
Ottman, E A..... 1 00
O'Neil, A 50
O'Neil, W..... 25
Orr, Margaret 1 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd

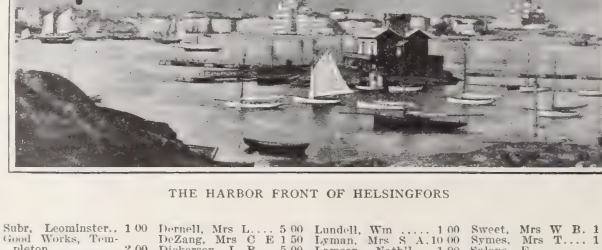
Walter, Mrs Chas.. 1 00
Wallran, Lucy A..10 00
Warren, C H..... 5 00
Webster, H N..... 2 00
Webster, Mrs H N 1 00
Wells, Mrs R F.. 1 00
Wendt, Chas 1 00
Wesleyan Meth S Sch, Odessa Chs.. 5 00
White, Mrs H H.. 1 50
Whitney, Hiram .. 2 00
Willinke, John H.. 50
Wisner, Mary N.... 1 00
Wood, Elton R.... 12
Wood, G F & Mrs 1 00
Woodhull, Miss P.. 1 00
Work, James 1 00
Wade, Mrs Edgar.. 1 00
Walker, G B..... 1 00
Washburn, F C.... 2 00
Weller, Charis L.. 1 00
Wells, Mrs E N.. 3 00
Wheeler, Mrs M M 1 00
Wilbur, Mrs P.... 1 00
Williamson, Mrs E 1 00
Wilson, Mr & Mrs 2 00
Wilson, H D..... 1 00
Wolfe, Louis..... 5 00
Wolly, Mrs R..... 25
Woodford, H 1 00
Wraight, Mrs S... 1 00
Wright, John H... 2 00
Young, Eliz'th.... 2 00
Young, Mrs Jane.. 1 00
Annetta, Long Isld 2 00
Selma, N Y C.... 1 00
A B, Bedord P'k.. 1 00
A B, Circleville.. 1 00
Richmond, N Y.... 1 00
A C K B, Hunterland 1 00
A R, Flushing.... 2 00
A C J, Schenectady 5 00
C H L, N Greenfield 5 00
C J, Poughkeepsie 1 00
E A B, Richmond Hill 1 00
D A S, Buffalo.... 1 00
E A G, Brooklyn.. 1 00
F D L, Schenevus.10 00
F N, River Spgs 1 00
G C & J, Skaneateles 1 00
M F, Utica 2 00
A R C, Watertown 2 50
A N, Watertown 1 00
M H M, J L, M R C L, M R C, S N W, C L & E L, Watertown.. 10 25
S E B, Wyomanock 1 00
——, Brooklyn 1 00
——, Clifton 1 00
——, Clifton Spgs.. 3 00
——, LaGrangeville. 1 00
——, Ottsville 5 00
——, Schenectady . 3 00
——, Syracuse 5 00
——, Warwick 60
——, Aquetuck 40
J O N, ——..... 2 00
A D S, ——..... 1 00
J F H, ——..... 1 00
T S, ——..... 1 00
S L S, ——..... 1 00
J T N, ——..... 1 00
A F S, Brighton.. 4 00
J, Middletown....10 00
M R B, Niagara on the Lake.... 1 00
——, Pittston 1 00
Friend, ——..... 1 00
Friends, ——..... 2 00
A Friend, X..... 5 00
Friend, ——..... 3 00
A Sincere Sympathizer, ——.... 2 00
F H N, ——.....10 00
In Jesus' Name, Church Hill 2 00
In Jesus' Name, Church Hill 1 00
Bread upon the waters..... 1 00
Widows Mite, Lodi. 1 00
Josephite..... 1 00
From Persia..... 5 00
One who wishes she could send more..... 32
——, ... 1 00
——, ... 1 00
——, ... 50
——, ... 2 00
——, ... 1 27
——, ... 1 00
——, ... 1 00
——, ... 1 00
——, ... 5 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd

Friend, Whitesboro 1 00
A Friend, E Patchogue 1 00
A Friend, E C B, Keuka Park 2 00
Friend & Reader of C H, Perry.. 50
Friend of the deshabille, Bridgehamton 1 00
Friends who sympathize, Patterson 2 00
Friends who sympathizes, Mannsville 1 00
Friends, Conquest 1 50
Friends, Ithaca.... 1 00
Two Friends of the C H, N Y C.. 2 00
I H N, Machias.. 5 00
I H N N Boylston 50
In His Name, Poughkeepsie 1 00
In His Name Clyde 1 00
I H N & in memy of H, Hudson... 2 50
Reader, Sandy Hill 50
Reader of C H, Ballston Ctr... 1 00
Reader of C H, Batavia 1 00
Herald Reader, Clarksville 70
Reader of C H, Knowlesville 1 00
C H Reader, Poplar Ridge 1 00
Subr, Hollis 1 00
One of your Subrs 1 00
Sympathizer, Amsterdam 3 00
Two sisters, T C & G O D, Boonsville 1 00
A Cup of Cold Water, Brooklyn 5 00
A Cheerful Giver, Brooklyn 1 00
Two deaconesses in Buffalo 4 00
Hoguil, Coopers-town 10 00
No Name, Garrettsville 1 00
In sympathy, Lockport 1 00
Servants of the Priory, Pelham M'r 5 00
Friend, Peekskill 5 00
Scotch Presby Ch, Chipman 60 00
1st Ft Edward B & S Sch, ... 7 65
Subr, Amagansett. 2 00
Subr, Fabius 2 00
A Sympathizer 2 00
Sympathy, Clifton Spring 1 00
Unknown Sympathizer, Marilla.... 1 00
Friends who sympathize, Centreville 2 00
Family of a new subr, Gardiner.. 8 00
One of the Lord's children, Rochester 2 00
Willing Workers Circle of K D, Norwich 20 00

Miscellaneous

Armstrong, Jas... 1 00
Belden, Mary W.. 1 00
Crawford, Mrs M L, Sterling 2 00
Daniels, Mrs C M & dau, Millis... 5 00
Gorr, Wm 50
Howe's Mrs, Cal.. 1 00
Huffman, S, Buck 2 00
Kjorvestad, Bessie. 10
Kjorvestad, C.... 25
Kjorvestad, ... 25
Kjorvestad, Henry 05
Kjorvestad, O.... 25
Kjorvestad, Julia.. 05
Kjorvestad, O. O, ... 50
Kjorvestad, Olev.. 25
Kjorvestad, Toll of Odell, Mrs Margt 2 00
Radcliffe, S..... 1 00
Xoolse, Benj 1 00
Van Wyck, Mrs A B 2 00
Warner, Mrs S H, ... 1 00
Wilber, Mrs 1 00
Williams, Mrs J, Waddington 1 00
Wolfe, E R & M A 2 00
M M S, ——..... 10 00
Y, ——..... 1 00
J O N, ——..... 2 00
A D S, ——..... 1 00
J F H, ——..... 1 00
T S, ——..... 1 00
S L S, ——..... 1 00
J T N, ——..... 1 00
A F S, Brighton.. 4 00
J, Middletown....10 00
M R B, Niagara on the Lake.... 1 00
——, Pittston 1 00
Friend, ——..... 1 00
Friends, ——..... 2 00
A Friend, X..... 5 00
Friend, ——..... 3 00
A Sincere Sympathizer, ——.... 2 00
F H N, ——.....10 00
In Jesus' Name, Church Hill 2 00
In Jesus' Name, Church Hill 1 00
Bread upon the waters..... 1 00
Widows Mite, Lodi. 1 00
Josephite..... 1 00
From Persia..... 5 00
One who wishes she could send more..... 32
——, ... 1 00
——, ... 1 00
——, ... 50
——, ... 2 00
——, ... 1 27
——, ... 1 00
——, ... 1 00
——, ... 1 00
——, ... 5 00



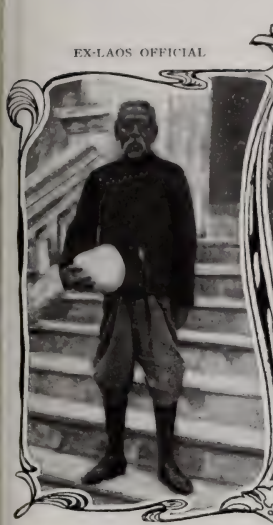
THE HARBOR FRONT OF HELSINGFORS

NEW YORK, FEBRUARY 11, 1903

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD

AN ILLUSTRATED FAMILY MAGAZINE

EX-LAOS OFFICIAL



WAT TEMPLE IN CHIENG MAI, SIAM

LAOS GENTLEMAN

FACING DEADLY PERILS IN SIAM

RECENT news from that strange and beautiful land in Southern Asia, inhabited by the Laos, is of thrilling interest. It not only gratifies American pride, in showing how American character has won the respect of factions bitterly opposed to one another, but it shows how heroic the servants of God can be in the presence of danger, and how wise and far-sighted they are in times of social trouble and unrest. Those writers who have been assailing the missionary, and representing him as a breeder of trouble and a source of social discord, would be astonished if they listened to the testimony of the Siamese, the Shans, the Chinese and other elements to be found among the Laos. The story of the recent troubles, which reaches this journal from a trustworthy source, indicates that the missionaries which the Christian churches of the United States and Canada have sent to that far-away land, from time to time, must have so lived and labored as to win the confidence of wild natures, which do not lightly put faith in any man.

Siam, of which the country of the Laos is the northern part, has had to suffer, as so many peoples in the Orient and Africa have done, from the greed and rapacity of civilized Powers. It will be remembered that a desolating war with France was narrowly averted about nine years ago, only by yielding to the European robber, portions of Siamese territory. Among other stipulations enforced by the unprincipled dictator, was that a neutral zone, about fifteen miles wide, should be established between Siamese and French territory, into which neither the soldiers nor the police of Siam should enter. The worst elements in Indo-China were not slow in perceiving what an advantage this zone might be to them. It is now the refuge of malcontents, dacoits and criminals of every description. They organize bands, descend on some quiet, unprotected town, and after a raid of murder or robbery, get back into the zone before the Siamese forces can intercept them.

A second cause of disorder is one incidental to times of transition. The Siamese are a more progressive race than the Laos, and have come into closer contact with Western civilization, deriving therefrom harm as well as good. Heretofore, the representatives of the Siamese government in the Laos country have been Laos gentlemen, who commanded the confidence of the people; but they were not energetic, nor favorable to modern methods. The Siamese Government has been superseding them, and putting in their places highly educated Siamese young men, some of whom are just out of college. They do not understand the Laos people, and they have shown arrogance and supercilious contempt toward them, as to an inferior race. Their rule has been beneficial, in so far as there are now better roads, stronger bridges and other improvements in the country. The Laos, however, complain that the taxes are greatly increased. They admit that by law they are required to perform certain service for the state, and this has been rendered; but they contend that under the new Siamese officials, they have had to perform three or four times as much work as the statute calls for. The result has been a sullen hostility toward the officials and the government they represent, which threatens to break forth into active rebellion.

Besides these disquieting causes, there is the chronic trouble of the depredations of the Shans, a kindred but more vigorous and warlike race living in the Burmese hills to the west of the Laos country. In July last, an event occurred which brought all these smouldering embers of discontent into a blaze. The Governor of Lakawn, an important city in the Laos country, ordered the arrest of five Shans. They were taken and examined, and their confessions implicated a number of Shans who were working in the precious-stone mines of Muang Lawng. The Governor immediately ordered that they, too, be arrested. A force of soldiers, sent to execute the order, met with fierce resistance, and had to return in ignominious flight to Lakawn without the prisoners.

TYPICAL WESTERN SHANS

The Shans, emboldened by their victory, assumed the offensive, and marched on Pre, a large city near to the mines. They killed a large number of the Siamese, seized the public funds and government property, established a temporary administration of their own, and forced the Governor to swear allegiance to it. The Shans notified American and European residents and the Laos people that they would not be molested, so long as they gave no assistance to the Siamese. Their property would be respected, and their persons protected, unless they organized resistance to the Shans. Several men had been wounded in the fight, and these were placed under the care of Dr. J. S. Thomas, an American medical missionary.

News of this startling feat was not slow in reaching Lakawn, and spreading throughout the Laos country. A state of panic ensued, which was not without reason, for the Shans were known to be ruthless when once aroused. Measures of defence were promptly taken, in view of the possibility of attack. At Lakawn, a strong guide was placed around the Governor's offices and the treasury. The Europeans collected all their people and goods in an open space, which they surrounded with earthworks, and fortified, and stocked with provisions. The period of suspense was short. The Shans soon reached the city, but were met by Captain Hansen, a military instructor in the Siamese employ, who, with a small force of Siamese, drove the Shans off. They were grievously disappointed, and vowing vengeance on the city, they left to collect reinforcements. The missionary ladies in the city were anxious to stay, but their male friends and relatives, fearing the return of the Shans, insisted on their leaving, and reluctantly yielding, part of them embarked in boats, and part started out overland, a thirty mile journey, to a place of safety. The Governor, also fearing for the safety of his family, escorted them to Chieng Mai, where they would be safe. Unhappily, news of his departure was circulated in the city, and immediately there was an outbreak of lawlessness that was almost as deplorable as would have been the capture of the city by the Shans. The lowest elements of the people gained control of the city. They entered the prison and slaughtered all the Shan prisoners, piling their heads in the road as a ghastly warning. Then they went through the city, robbing and burning in a horrible orgie, the full details of which are not yet known. Happily, the return of the Governor, with a strong force of Siamese soldiery, restored order two days later.

While these events were taking place at Lakawn, the people in other parts of the Laos

CONTINUED ON PAGE 113

THE AMERICAN PULPIT

OUR LIVES DIVINELY PLANNED

A Sermon by REV. G. CAMPBELL MORGAN

TEXT—Deut. 1: 6: "The Lord our God spake unto us in Horeb, saying, Ye have dwelt long enough in this mount"

THE sojourn of Israel, the ancient people of God, at Horeb, had been important and interesting. There they had received from God the words of the law, the pattern of the tabernacle, and the ritual of worship. They had there had revelations of the glory of God, and revelations of their own hearts; they had found themselves in rebellion and sin even in that brief time. They had also had revelations of the tenderness and compassion of their God.

At last the organization is complete; they are ready to move forward and to take possession of the land which God has given them, and the word comes to them suddenly, with a pertinence that reminds them that in actual practice they are a theocracy under the direct government of God. Every man of them holds to the theory of the divine government; but now a sudden order takes hold of the creed which they had professed and turns it into a fact to be put into practice. To these people, sojourning at the mount, in the place of revelation, in the place of wonderful blessing, the word comes swift and sudden and startling, "Ye have tarried long enough in this mount." This was a startling and urgent word, revealing certain great truths concerning this great government of God, which it is of the utmost importance that we should perpetually bear in mind.

This sudden command reveals to us, first of all, that the divine government is a fact. If it be a fact that God governs my life and your life, then he will disturb us; he will disturb us in order that we may make progress; and he will disturb us that we may make progress along certain definitely marked lines.

First of all, then, these words revealed the fact of the divine government. How easy it would have been for Israel to settle down there and say, "We believe in God and in the divine government." Had there been no voice speaking to them in actual leading, no word coming to disturb them, they might have come to hold the divine government merely as a theory. Then it would have passed out of their lives, and would have failed to be what it was intended to be to them.

The Right of Disturbance

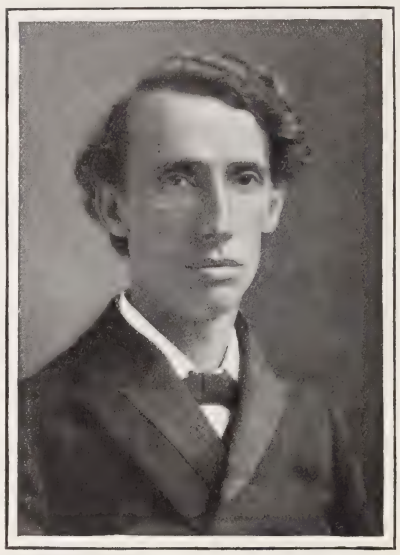
Let me remind you that the divine government is a very definite fact. God is absolute Monarch wherever he is King at all. His government is autocratic. He does not consult us as to what he shall do with us, where he shall send us, what he would have us to do. Moreover, his government is an imperative government. He never permits us to make compromises with him for a single moment. He speaks the word of authority. He marks the path without ever consulting us, and having done so, our only relationship to that government is that of implicit, unquestioning, immediate obedience.

Now, consider what this government means. Imagine the stir that must have been created in that camp when the word came, "Ye have tarried long enough in this mount." Imagine how tents would be struck and camels loaded throughout the whole of the camp. The people who had been living there for a little more than a year were suddenly rooted up and ordered to move away. Think how at the sudden proclamation of that word of God all social and family arrangements had to be set aside. That word touched every tent and touched every soul, and wherever families had arranged to meet together at a certain time for social intercourse, the whole plan was swept away. The divine voice has sounded, "Ye have tarried long enough," and no engagement is of sufficient importance to hinder the divine word. Tents must be struck immediately. All the minor arrangements of everyday life, important in their place, must be set on one side, because the word of the King is supreme, and is sufficient in itself to set aside every arrangement that these people have made. What a disturbing business! What a serious thing to be under the authority of some one who can upset everything in our lives without consulting us, and by a word can mark for us the moment of departure. That is the government of God. We may talk and sing about the kingdom, and pray about the kingdom, but until we face that fact we know nothing of what it is to be living in the kingdom of God and under the government of the Most High.

Spheres of Work Assigned

Human arrangements are constantly disturbed in the kingdom of God, and what is more remarkable still, divine plans seem to be changed, and orders that we have most definitely received from on high are countermanded, and the whole programme of life again and again is changed to the men and women who are in the kingdom of God, and are desirous of obeying only his will. To-day a man is in a sphere where God has put him, and on every hand God is graciously setting his seal upon the work that he has given him to do. But the divine voice comes, "Ye have tarried here long enough." That work must be dropped. All its hallowed associations must be left behind, and all the tender ties that have become entwined around the heart on account of that work must be snapped. The divine voice is heard—the only voice to which a man in the kingdom of God should pay any attention—and the sphere of work entered into because the divine finger pointed that way, must be left the moment that voice bids the man move forward.

God sometimes comes into our lives in strange, mysterious ways, when we are under his government. He may pluck away a loved one, and leave us with broken homes and almost desolate hearts for a time. Earthly friendships are often severed by divine government. Two souls knit together in the sacred bonds of friendship, seemingly created for mutual service in the kingdom of God, are taken by the divine government and separated by thousands of miles. Divine government is a disturbing element, breaking cherished plans, and associations, and hopes. The aspiration of our heart, centered upon a friend, upon a child, upon an event, suddenly crushed, and in a moment we find ourselves stranded in darkness. All this comes to men and women in the line of the divine government. It is a disturbing element in every human life. God has made his heroes and heroines by such dealings.



Copyright by F. Gutekunst

REV. G. CAMPBELL MORGAN

The friend and helper of the late Mr. D. L. Moody

In the twelfth chapter of the Gospel of Luke, verses thirty-five and thirty six, we have very clearly indicated the attitude of a Christian soul: "Let your loins be girded about, and your lamps burning: and be ye yourselves like unto men looking for their Lord, when he shall return from the marriage feast; that, when he cometh and knocketh, they may straightway open unto him." Here is the character of the Christian. The loins girded like a pilgrim; no settling down amid the things of the earth, but a continual waiting for the divine voice, ready to be disturbed when God would disturb; willing ever to respond to the expression of the divine will, and satisfied in obedience.*

But you ask: "Would you break down home life?" Of course I would not; but home is to be my lodging place, and if God orders me to strike my tent and move away, immediately the tent is to be struck, and I am to move. See how Abraham, the father of the faithful, lived. A tent and an altar, a tent and an altar. He pitched his tent and erected his altar. His altar was the mark of the fact that he lived in relationship to the divine. The tent marked the fact that he was only a sojourner, a stranger, and a pilgrim upon the road. The divine government is a disturbing element. My duty is so to live that I shall be ready to be disturbed at any moment when God pleases.

Now, turn to a second point, because that explains the first. The divine government is not only a disturbing element in human life, it is a progressive element. God disturbs a man. Why? To move him on to something better—never that there may be retrogression, never merely for the sake of disturbance. If God asks me to strike my tent to-day, and move out yonder, it is because yonder there is a higher possibility, a more glorious outlook, a more perfect sphere. I may not see the advantage at first, but God's eye is always on the consummation, and he moves his people step by step, at the right moment, in the right way, and ever, ever onward towards that glorious consummation. Progress is not necessarily pleasant. Notice how, years after, Moses speaks of the departure from Horeb. In the nineteenth verse of this chapter of Deuteronomy, he says: "And when we departed from Horeb, we went through all that great and terrible wilderness, which ye saw by the way of the mountain of the Amorites, as the Lord our God commanded us, and we came to Kadeshbarnea." That was the movement. But how? Through that great and terrible wilderness. It was not a pleasant experience, but it was progress; it was moving onward. It was the further march into the purposes of God.

Progress Always Intended

Now, if the divine government is a disturbing element, to be undisturbed is to be God-forsaken. If we know nothing of the voice calling us to alter plans and set aside arrangements and simply step out upon the divine word in faith as Abraham did, then we are God-forsaken men and women. Beyond that, to be God-forsaken is to settle to failure. "Oh," you say, "let me stay here; my home is so comfortable, I am so happy." God says, "Move from this place and go yonder." You say, "I cannot. Let me remain where I am." What are you asking? You are asking for your own breakdown and failure. God's plan for you is progress, growth, and you are asking for arrested development and for failure. "Oh, no," you say, "I am only asking not to be disturbed." They are the same things. When you and I pray, in our foolishness, that God will not disturb us, we ask him to give us no more progress, but to let us settle where we are and pass down to failure.

There is no more exquisite figure, I think, in the whole Book of God of the disturbing element of divine government and its issue, than that in the thirty-second chapter of Deuteronomy. It is a beautiful picture. Read from the ninth verse, "For the Lord's portion is his people." Here is what I want you to notice The Lord's portion is his people; where do we find them? "In the waste howling wilderness, and he compassed them about." Then comes the verse that reveals the disturbing and the progressive elements of divine government, "As an eagle that stirreth up her nest, that fluttereth over her young, he spread abroad his wings, he took them, he bare them on his pinions." That picture is full of poetry, full of life and truth and beauty. Mark it. Have you ever seen an eagle stir up her nest? You know what happens. There in the nest, right upon the rocky height, are the eaglets; the mother eagle comes and, taking hold of them, flings them out of their nest. They were so comfortable there, but she flings them right out of the nest high above the earth. They begin to fall straightway. They have never been in air before; they have always been in the nest. Is not that mother bird cruel? Why does she disturb the eaglets? Watch her and you will understand. As long as you look upon the struggling eaglets in the air you miss the point. Watch the eagle.

Developed Powers

Having stirred up her nest, "she spreadeth abroad her pinions," the pinions that beat the air behind her as she rises superior to it. Where are the eaglets? Struggling, falling; she superior; they are falling. Then what does she do? "She beareth them on her pinions." She swoops beneath them, catches them on her wings, and bears them up. What is she doing? Teaching them to fly. She drops them again, and again they struggle in the air, but this time not so helplessly. They are finding out what she means. She spreads her pinions to show them how to fly and as they fall again, she catches them again. That is how God deals with you and with me. Has he been stirring up your nest? Has he flung you out until you felt lost in an element that is new and strange? Look at him. He is not lost in that element. He spreads out the wings of his omnipotence to teach us how to soar. What then? He comes beneath us and catches us on his wings. We thought when he flung us out of the nest it was unkind. No; he was teaching us to fly that we might enter into the spirit of the promise, "They shall mount up with wings as eagles." He would teach us how to use the gifts which he has bestowed on us, and which we cannot use as long as we are in the nest. Fancy keeping eaglets in

* Of course, the ultimate issue of this is the waiting for the Master himself to come, but if I am living with my loins girded, waiting for the last summons, that calls me to fellowship in the ages beyond, then am I ready for every call that precedes, whether it be to suffer, or to service, or to waiting.—G. C. M.

the nest. It is contrary to their nature, contrary to the purposes for which they are framed and fitted.

There is a purpose in the eagle. What is it? Flight sunward. There is a purpose in your life, newborn child of God. What is it? Flight Godward, sunward, heavenward. If you stop in the nest, you will never get there. God comes into your life and disturbs you, breaks up your plans, and extinguishes your hopes, the lights that have lured you on. He spoils everything; what for? That he may get you on his wings and teach you the secret forces of your own life, and lead you to higher development and higher purposes. This government of God is a disturbing element, but, praise his name, it is a progressive element.

A Methodical Plan

Now take a third point. Not only is the divine government disturbing and progressive, but it is methodical. Strike your tents, get away from this mountain; where to? The land! That is the ultimate issue—possession of the land. Now notice, that not only is there an ultimate issue in the mind of God when he disturbs his people, but there is clearly marked direction. We see this in the seventh verse of this chapter, "Turn you, and take your journey, and go to the hill country of the Amorites, and unto all the places nigh thereunto, in the Arabah, in the hill country, and in the lowland, and in the south and by the seashore, the land of the Canaanites, and Lebanon, as far as the great river, the river Euphrates." There is direction towards possession.

But the most exquisite verse of all that marks the divine arrangement for the journey is the thirty-third verse: "Yet in this thing ye did not believe the Lord your God, who went before you in the way, to seek you out a place to pitch your tents in, in fire by night, to show you by what way ye should go, and in the cloud by day." Did you ever read anything more beautiful that that? It is one of those things that absolutely master me. God going in front; what for? Choosing them a place in which to pitch their tent. They have struck their tents, and given up their plans, obedient to the disturbing voice of his government. Then what does he do? He goes in front and shows them the next place. At nightfall the cloud stands still and changes into a pillar of fire, giving them light. There is nothing haphazard or accidental in such a life. God's people move in a plainly marked pathway, step by step. The government of God not only disturbs them and disturbs them for progress, but every inch of the way he has arranged for them.

Now, what is my relation to this government of God? I can put it in very few words. First, I should be always ready; and second, I should move the instant the word comes. That marks the line of wisdom. Ready to be disturbed if God disturbs; immediate obedience when he calls.

Now, I do not think that any one can possibly say, "But that is very hard." It would be hard if we did not know God, and if we did not know that the disturbance is for progress, and that the progress is along lines definitely marked and divinely arranged. Oh, the inexpressible comfort, the absolute rest of life to men and women who say, "If God disturb me to-morrow, in being disturbed is my chief rest, because I know that when he moves it is to higher reaches of life, to better positions beyond; and though the ultimate issue of this present disturbance may be far on, every mile of the journey he has chosen, and every place where I pitch my tent he has selected for me." That is the kingdom in which I want to live: that is where I want to abide more and more.

And, beloved, how may we mark our folly? By doing just what Israel did. They were characterized by wisdom at first. They struck their tents and moved, but at last they came up to the borders of this land that God had told them to go in and possess, and then they began to doubt the King; they began to wonder whether he knew his business. When they reached the borders of the land, they said, "We will send men in to spy out this land," and when the men came back with the report that there were giants and walled cities, those who up to that point had been responsive to the divine government said: "Ah, well, you see God did not understand this when he sent us here. We cannot go on. He did not know that there were walled cities: he had no idea of the giants." Did they not say that? They said, "We had no idea," which is the same thing. If they had believed that God knew and had been moving before them, choosing the place, what would they have cared for walled cities and giants?

Obstacles Overcome

Some of you have obeyed thus far. God has said to you, "Ye have tarried long enough in this mount." He has broken up your nest somewhere. You strike your tent and start; you say, "But somebody tells me that ahead are giants and walled cities." So there are: it is quite true; but the giants are for you to slay, and the walled cities are for you to live in. The God who disturbed you did it in order that you might come into possession of that very land; and if you live in his government, rest assured that for every step of the way that lies ahead he will move before you and choose the place and equip you for life and for service.

But it was a very sad business for these people. They disobeyed God, and were sent back. What then? They thought they would go and try by themselves. They were defeated and driven back, and for nearly forty years they had to stay in that wilderness instead of possessing the land straightway.

Now, in conclusion, I want to ask this one pointed question of my own heart and of yours: "Where do we stand in relation to this government of God?" You may have just heard the voice saying, "Ye have tarried long enough in this mount," and he marks for you a new course of life. It is as clear as the sunlight in the blue. Wherever there are hearts waiting for the voice of God, that voice is to be heard. You know what God wants you to do. Now what are you going to do? I beseech you for your own sake, as well as for the glory of the kingdom of God, that you do not stop to count the cost of obedience, but that you say, "He bids me go, and I go." That is the spirit which has brought men into the places of heroism and victory. If you begin to count the cost, you are in the place of peril. It is the man who says to the King, "At thy word, O King, in the face of what seems to be an absolute combination of circumstances that must wreck me completely, I will go." You need have no fear, but be earth before you to choose you out a place in which to pitch your tent, and the life abandoned to God is in perfect safety forever.

The Way of the Wilderness

But perhaps you heard that voice speaking to you years ago, and you disobeyed, and you have been in the wilderness ever since. You have been away from the land, toward which God was sending you forward to possess it. Thank God, he is full of tender compassion and graciousness, and all he asks is that you go back to the point of disobedience, and obey. God's path led that way, and you turned from it; go back. You know how you got off the definitely marked pathway, and missed the place that God had chosen for you to pitch your tent. Go back, man, and go along that path. But you say, "That path is thorny and rough." Tramp it; for, mark you, you will find that whenever you put your foot upon a thorn, another foot has been there first and taken off the sharpness; and whenever you begin to tramp a rough piece of road in obedience to the divine voice, another by your side will take the roughness from it, and you will simply walk in perfect harmony with him who is your perpetual companion in the way of his own marking out. God not only goes before me to choose me a place; he walks with me along the pathway, and leaning on his strength, then am I strong.

One word more. There may be some to whom all this is as a foreign tongue. You have never heard the voice of God, and say: "The day of miracles is past. I am never disturbed. I make my own plans and live where I please, and do as I like. What do you mean by a disturbing element?" Beloved, you are living still among the fleshpots and the garlic of Egypt. You are still in slavery. Oh, if men could but see themselves! The man who does as he likes is the biggest slave. The man who never does as he likes is God's free man. You know no disturbing voice? God never points out for you a pathway altogether different from the one you had planned? Then, my brother, you are living still in the land of slavery, in the land of darkness. Back to your King! In his government alone lies safety, in his government alone is the place of life, and light, and liberty, and love. Any man who livest outside this government of God is in the place of dust and ashes and emptiness. Oh, back to your King!

O men, O women, my brethren, my sisters in Christ, those of you who have never yet submitted to him, come under his control actually and positively. Fling away your theories, and get into the actuality of this business, and let God govern your life, disturb you, mark for you your progress, and prepare for you your sphere of service.

FACING DEADLY PERILS IN SIAM

Continued From Page 111

country were in a state of terrible suspense. In towns, in the north of the country, the wildest rumors were current. As the Shans had cut the telegraph wires, the true facts were not known, and native runners brought disturbing and menacing reports. It was said that Lakawn had fallen, and that the Shans, in enormous numbers, were marching northward. In the panic that prevailed, the Siamese officials, being new men, did not know how to meet the emergency. Distrusting every one else, they turned to the missionaries for advice. In one instance, they summoned to their council, Dr. W. A. Briggs, a medical missionary at Chieng Rai, and respectfully requested him to scheme a plan of defence. With far-seeing diplomacy he counselled moderation and just treatment of the people. It is gratifying to learn that his counsel was heeded, and large concessions were made. The situation was rendered more menacing, by the fact that the agricultural population was summoned from their farms to defend the cities, and that just at a time when the rain was falling and their prospects of harvest depended on the autumn sowing. They were uneasy at being away from their fields, and were with great difficulty prevented attacking the Siamese.

In all this excitement the native Christians behaved with wonderful heroism. Two of them voluntarily agreed to go to Lakawn and find out the actual situation, though to do so they must traverse a country infested by the Shans, who, finding them, would assuredly have put them to death. The intrepidity of Dr. Briggs was praised on all hands. He continued his medical and surgical work, treating friend and foe alike, and received from all factions the most flattering proofs of confidence in his skill and discretion. He was in a point of extreme danger, for his station is near the junction of the three territories of the region, being in the Laos country, and having the French on the east and the Shans on the west. At one time the Shans were so numerous in the neighborhood, and their attitude so menacing, that he barricaded his house, and piling high a number of trunks, filled with clothing and household effects, hid his wife and children behind them. But, providentially, the danger passed and God protected his servants from harm. It is hoped now that matters will quiet down, but the need for caution and tact is generally realized.

PALACE AND MONASTERY IN THE LAOS COUNTRY

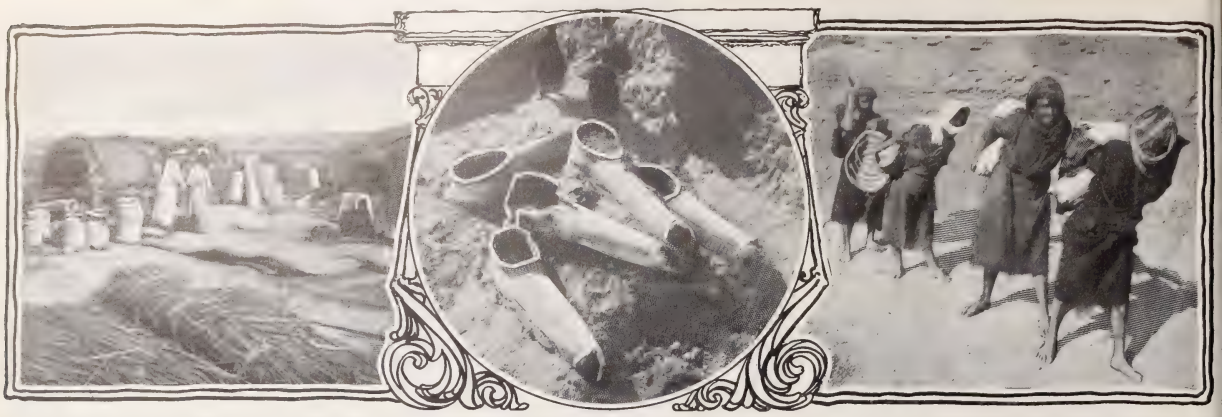
LIEUTENANT IN THE SIAMESE ARMY

LAOS MILITARY HEADQUARTERS

Professor Hilprecht's Discoveries

He Finds in Bel's Temple, Thousands of Brick Literary Tablets Earlier than Abraham's Time

By REV. A. T. CLAY, Ph.D., Assistant Curator of Babylonian Antiquities, University of Pennsylvania



BUILDING ARAB HUTS FOR PROF. HILPRECHT'S WORKERS — SLIPPER-SHAPED COFFINS OF LATER PERIOD, 200 B. C. — ARAB WORKMEN EMPLOYED IN THE EXCAVATIONS

THE first complete account of the excavations at Nippur is offered to Biblical students, as well as to those of general history, in a volume entitled Explorations in Bible Lands during the Nineteenth Century, by Prof. Hilprecht, of the University of Pennsylvania. In the preparation of his large volume, he has had the co-operation of four well-known distinguished German scholars. Professor Hommel, of the University of Munich, has written the section on "Arabia"; Dr. Benzinger, of Berlin, on "Palestine"; Professor Steindorff, of Leipzig, on "Egypt"; and Professor Jensen, of Marburg, on "The Hittites." The volume, the price of which is three dollars, secured through the Babylonian Section of the University of Pennsylvania, contains four specially-prepared maps, nearly 200 illustrations and about 900 pages, nearly 300 of which are devoted to the history and epoch making discoveries of the recent excavations at Nippur. This forms one of the special features of the work.

Among the most important results achieved on the last campaign, as referred to by Professor Hilprecht, besides the hundreds of important discoveries of antiquities, can be said to be the determination of the character of the Babylonian Temple and its storied-tower, or ziggurrat. His understanding of the tower of the Temple of Bel is especially interesting to Biblical students, as it offers the first reasonable interpretation of the passage in Genesis concerning the erection of the Tower of Babel. The expression "whose top may be in the heavens" is found to have been commonly used on building inscriptions concerning these towers. The Professor has shown that most of the names of the Babylonian temples express a cosmic idea. Anu was god of the upper or heavenly ocean, or "the waters which were above the firmament." Ea's region was the under world, the terrestrial ocean, or "the waters which were below the firmament." Bel's sphere of influence embraced the world, and was not only between that of Anu and Ea, but it extended into them. Professor Hilprecht now shows that the ziggurrat of Bel, Duranki, "the link of heaven and earth," as it is called, is the local representation of the great mythological mountain of the world, the summit of which reaches into the heavens, and the foundation of which is laid in the subterranean ocean.

Contrary to the view that these storied-towers had been introduced by Ur-Gur, 2700 B.C., the Professor has shown that they had their origin prior to the fourth millennium B.C. in the early Sumerian period. Four feet behind Ur-Gur's facing wall of the Nippur tower, were found the facing bricks of another. These were characteristic of the period of Naram-Sin, 3750 B.C. Ten feet within the latter, was found the smooth and plastered surface of a ziggurrat of the early Sumerian days.

Prof. Hilprecht's investigations led to the conclusion that the early inhabitants of Nippur cremated their dead and buried the remains after incineration, which, in many cases, was not complete, in jars or funeral vases about the ziggurrat. Dr. Haynes, during the third campaign, unearthed what was then called an altar. This, Professor Hilprecht now suggests, was one of the crematoriums on which the bodies of the dead were reduced to ashes. These ash graves, being within the sacred enclosure and around the base of the ziggurrat—the same having been found by Koldewey at El-Hibba—led Professor Hilprecht to connect them with the ziggurrat itself; and he shows that, like the step pyramids of Medum and Saqqara in Egypt, these towers must have been regarded originally as tombs; that the temple of Bel was a "place of residence for the gods, as a place of worship for man, and as a place of rest for the dead"—a conception expressed by churches of to-day, which contain tombs within their confines, or are surrounded by graveyards.

The locating and partial excavating of the famous temple library and priest school of Nippur, which has been pronounced "one of the most far-reaching Assyriological discoveries of the whole of last century," is fully treated in Professor Hilprecht's volume. He tells us that the mound covering the library rises on an average of twenty-five feet above the plain, and covers an area of about thirteen acres. Only about the twelfth part of the library has thus far been excavated, out of which over twenty thousand cuneiform tablets and fragments, mostly belonging to the third millennium B.C., prior to the birth of Abraham, were taken. The contents of the library, as far as examined, proved to be quite varied. There are mathematical, astronomical, medical, historical, linguistical and religious inscriptions. The tablets recovered clearly indicated that at least two periods are to be distinguished in the history of the temple library. On the one hand, the great mass of unbaked literary tablets belong to the third millennium before Christ. Besides these, were found, in a later stratum, a number belonging to the Cassite and the Neo-Babylonian periods.

The great library of the temple of Bel was not only a repository for all kinds of learning, but it was the school or college of Nippur, as well as a store-house for valuable literary records. In a number of rooms of the educational quarter were found hundreds of school-books and students' exercises. Rudely-fashioned tablets, inscribed in a "naive and clumsy manner with old Babylonian characters," indicated that they were the first attempts at writing by unskilled hands. "There are also grammatical exercises, exhibiting how the student was instructed in analyzing Sumerian verbal forms, in joining the personal pronouns to different substantives, etc., etc." Special attention in the College of Nippur was paid to counting and calculating, as determined from the multiplication tables discovered.

The excavations at Nippur revealed not only the oldest sanctuary, library and school known up to the present time, but also the most ancient archæological museum. In an upper stratum of the library mound, the first museum known in history was unearthed. The collection was preserved in an earthen jar, and consisted of nineteen very choice specimens of antiquities. An archæologist of the present day, after handling many thousands of objects from the ruin-hills of Babylonia, is naturally able to judge concerning the real merits of antiquities discovered. This little museum illustrates the fact that the collector—who lived about the time of Belshazzar in the sixth century B.C.—had the same high regard for that which would be considered especially valuable by a modern collector.

The earliest inscription in the collection, though somewhat fragmentary, contains the titles of Sargon I., 3800 B.C., most of which were hitherto unknown. A black stone votive tablet, belonging to Ur-Gur, 2700 B.C., is the next in chronological order, which informs us that the king built the wall of Nippur. The section of the wall excavated revealed bricks with this king's name and titles. Then follows a terra-cotta brick stamp of Bur-Sin, the first found of this Babylonian ruler; an excellently-preserved tablet stating that the great hall of the temple was called Emakh, and also, to Professor Hilprecht's surprise, that there were twenty-four shrines of other gods within the precincts of the temple, besides Bel and his consort Beltis. Tablets dated in the reigns of Marduk-nadin-akhi, a contemporary of Tiglath-peliser I., and Adad-apaliddina 1060 B.C., the first thus far known; two tablets of great chronological importance inscribed by Ashur-etil-ilani 625 B.C., and Sin-shar-ishkun: an astronomical tablet giving observations concerning Virgo and Scorpion, and a large fragmentary plan of Nippur, which will prove of great value in the reconstruction of the ancient cities. Professor Hilprecht is now in Constantinople, making arrangements for the fifth expedition in September.

EXCAVATIONS IN THE PARTHIAN LOCUS — EXCAVATIONS, TEMPLE OF BEL—LOWEST STRATA 6500 B.C. — DIFFERENT STRATA IN THE EXCAVATIONS

Our Newly Beautified White House

ANY change in the White House, the centre of our national social life and hospitality, is matter of moment to all Americans, and the illustrations on this page, showing some important effects of recent renovations, will interest readers of this journal.

Even little boys and girls trudging along to school, have a sense of proprietary pride in that historic mansion, usually connected in thought with Washington, who laid its corner-stone, but never lived in it, John Adams being its first master. Our country has grown greatly with the years, and the present enlargement and modifications are not the first by any means. A partial reconstruction in 1817 was necessary, because the British fired the building in 1814. Mrs. Madison and her guests were just sitting down to a grand dinner when news came that the red-coats were at the capital; they fled, and the British regaled themselves at a fine feast in our State dining-room. Before her flight, Mrs. Madison cut Washington's portrait out of its frame in the East Room, and had it carried away for safe-keeping. Interior improvements were made in the White House during President Arthur's administration and extensive alterations were planned by Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Roosevelt, and doubtless Miss Alice Roosevelt have taken active interest in recent modifications. Through all changes, however, effort has been made to preserve the original character of the place. The most notable of present innovations are the extension affording rooms for official business, the new entrances, providing against the crush incident heretofore to public receptions; the conversion of the basement into a reception apartment and cloak-rooms; the broad stairway leading from this to the floor above; the wide, long hall, and the general refitting and refurnishing throughout the establishment. The recent estimate sent to Congress by Col. Bingham, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds, places the cost of changes at about $200,000; and the annual cost of maintaining the establishment at $119,283 against $59,764 last year. These seem large expenditures, but this is a large and growing country and demands—business, social and political—upon our Executive's home are great, and constantly increasing.

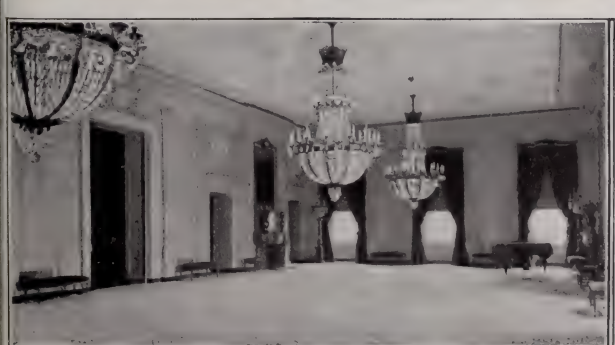
THE WHITE HOUSE, SHOWING THE NEW OFFICE EXTENSION

THE RENOVATED AND DECORATED GREEN ROOM

THE GRAND DINING-ROOM, BARONIAL IN STYLE

THE BEAUTIFUL RED ROOM—IT IS THE COZY FAMILY PARLOR

THE GRAND CORRIDOR, CHASTE AND DIGNIFIED IN APPEARANCE



THE LARGEST APARTMENT OF ALL—THE FAMOUS EAST ROOM

A CORNER IN MRS. ROOSEVELT'S KITCHEN

These photographs are copyrighted, 1903, by Clinedinst

OUR EDITORIAL FORUM

B. J. FERNIE, ASSOCIATE EDITOR — LOUIS KLOPSCH, Editor and Proprietor — G. H. SANDISON, ASSOCIATE EDITOR

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD ... $1.50 ... Foreign Postage ... Expiration of Subscriptions.—The date on the wrapper indicates when your subscription ends. Subscriptions may commence with any issue. Letters should be addressed, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, Bible House, New York. Entered at the Postoffice, New York, as Second-class Matter. Remittances ... Change of Fate ... Change of Address.—Give both your old and your new address when you ask us to change your address.

A Mission of Personal Service

WHEN this issue of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD reaches the hands of its readers, Dr. Klopsch will be far on his way to Finland. He goes on a mission of personal service, in behalf of the readers of this journal and of those who have contributed to the Relief Fund. While there, he will investigate peasant conditions in that afflicted country, and co-operate with the Finnish Central Committee in such measures as may be necessary to save human life and alleviate suffering. He will visit the famine centres in north and east Finland, and will inspect the relief operations, reporting his observations and impressions in a series of letters which will appear in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD.

Dr. Klopsch undertakes this midwinter mission, in pursuance of his fixed policy of personally carrying out, as far as possible, the wishes of those who have undertaken, through this journal, any special humanitarian or benevolent work. As when he went to India, to Cuba, and to other lands on similar missions, so now he makes the journey at his own charges, and without a dollar of expense to the Fund. We ask for him the prayers and the cordial co-operation of our readers. His letters from the famine field will soon disclose all that can be known about Finland and the famine. God grant that the movement he represents may be blessed in the saving of many precious lives and in averting much suffering!

All the recent letters and cablegrams from Finland indicate that the famine in that unhappy country is still raging with undiminished intensity. It is the saddest winter Finland has ever known. Although her perishing people have doubtless the sympathy of the civilized world, it is to us alone that they have appealed for help. Simultaneous famines in Lapland, in Sweden, in Norway, a double famine in Russia, and short crops throughout northern Europe, have destroyed any hope that might have been entertained by the Finns of receiving aid from neighboring countries. They look to us. They are our brothers and sisters of the Christian faith. Let us not disappoint them. Let us reach out and help them, ere the opportunity be past.

Illogical Assailants

TWO recent utterances, almost simultaneous, one on this side the Atlantic and one on the other, have occasioned disquiet in some Christian minds. Coming, as they do, from men of undoubted scholarship, they are liable to have greater weight with people who reverence erudition, than properly belongs to them. We have again to recall the words of Christ, which are as applicable to this generation as to every generation since his time: "Thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent." The spiritual leaders of men in all periods have been men of spiritual insight, sometimes unlettered men, sometimes men of education, but seldom men in the very highest ranks of erudition. It will therefore be wise to maintain our equanimity and hold fast our faith, in spite of the assaults of these two champions.

The American speaker, addressing a Chicago audience, made his attack on Sunday School literature, which he declared should be labeled "Poison." He denounced the literary style of the books, their morality and their theology. We are not concerned about the first ground of offence, though if the reports of his address that have been published are accurate, we should doubt his qualification to be a judge of good English, whatever he may be of German or Yiddish. The morality and theology, however, are clearly, from his description, above reproach. They inculcate honesty, virtue, and all-round righteousness, and they certainly uphold the doctrine of Christ and his apostles. A tree is known by its fruits. If any Christian assembly were polled, it would be found that a large majority were converted in their youth, and were nurtured on just such literature as the censor condemns. Judging by results, we see no reason yet to discard the books that have been so beneficial, nor to label as poisonous literature which experience has proved to be spiritually nutritious.

The European assailant takes a higher flight. In a lecture delivered before the Emperor of Germany, he attacked the Bible, which he declared could not be regarded as a personal revelation from God, but was in fact a collection of the remnants of Jewish literature, much of which had been derived from the Babylonians. It does not appear to have occurred to the learned professor that it is at all extraordinary that a medley such as this should have survived to this late period, and should in this century of vigorous intellectual life, be wielding an influence infinitely greater than any other book ancient or modern. With all respect to the learning of the professor, we may be permitted to doubt whether his logical faculties are in working order. He makes too great a demand on our credulity. The divine origin of the Bible accounts satisfactorily for the influence it exerts and for the effects it produces, wherever it is studied and obeyed; but it is asking too much of us to believe that such results could have come from a book originating in the sources he mentions.

The Spell of Sin

THERE is no impossibility of making a man better, if he believes he can be made better, and wishes to become better.

The old story connected with the wanderings of Ulysses is in point. A number of the companions of Ulysses fell into the hands of the sorceress, Circe, and were turned into swine. If in that condition they could have remembered that they were once men; if they could have remembered their homes, the wars in which they fought, the ambitions and the strivings of their manhood; if they could have desired to return to their country and become again something more than occupants of a pen and a bed of straw, then there would have been hope for them; they might some day have been delivered from the power of the sorceress. But they were content to be nothing more than swine, and hence their case was hopeless.

Christ offers to break the spell of sin which robs men of the consciousness of what they are and may be. Let him come in, and he will show us the child of God that may be in every one of us. He will teach us our possibilities. He will give us the true ideal of a true life. He will show us large things, and inspire us to work towards them. He will help us to believe in ourselves, and aspire for ourselves through his gracious aid. By his working and power in us wonderful things will be produced, if only we will let him and will not hinder.

Activity Purifying the Life

WE know how, in the natural world, action purifies —how the heaving, foaming sea keeps everything in it alive; how the impure stream clarifies itself as it runs on; how the storm that masses the clouds, and drives them with the wind and rends them with the lightning, breaks up the germ-filled atmosphere, and charges it with life and sweetness; how the animal that is alert and agile in its movements escapes the attacks of parasites and other enemies that prey upon the sluggish beast; how the indolent man is apt to be the victim, in mind and body, of diseases and morbid moods that fasten upon things that are still, just as the fungus fastens on a decaying tree.

So in the spiritual life, the more active it is the more bright and beautiful it becomes; the more does it throw off and keep at bay the temptations and evils of a world lying in wickedness. We get purity, as Christ got his own spotless holiness, by the power of a loving life continually doing good. The only way we can preserve our garments unspotted from the world is, not by negations and proscriptions, but by positive acts of goodness; not by being afraid of doing wrong, but by resolutely doing all the right. We are least in danger from the sins of others when we are helping them to get rid of them. We purify our own natures most when we seek to purify others. Whiter shall our own robes be, not when in Pharisaic pride we hold them back lest they should be defiled by contact with impurity, but when we gird them round us to wash the feet that have trodden deepest the miry ways of the world.

The purity of God's saints is not the purity of the snow crystals, but of the snowdrop, preserving along with the beauty of the snow all the graces and activities of life.

The Famine in Finland

The Finns Appeal to Us

Chicago Tribune

Appeals for help have been made from all these famine-stricken localities. It is probable that the French Government can take care of its Bretons, and it has already begun to send assistance, but in Finland and Sweden the case is different. The Russian empire is so vast, it has so many different races of people, and it embraces so many different climatic conditions, that there hardly is a year when some portion of it is not suffering from insufficient food supply. Its railroad mileage is too small, and the famine districts are too remote for it to grapple successfully with the famine problem. Sweden is essentially in the same condition with reference to its famine area, which practically is in the arctic region. We are prosperous here. We are living in a region where, in all probability, famine never can come. All the more reason is it that every movement for helping these famine sufferers should be generously encouraged.

* * *

A Field for Widest Charity

Chicago Interior

Dr. Louis Klopsch, of New York, famous for the vast sums he has raised hitherto through the medium of his paper THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, for the relief of distress in other nations, announces now the opening of a fund for the succor of the starving in Finland. Tales coming to this country of the suffering of the Finns in the northern districts of the grand duchy are harrowing. There was a general failure of crops in that territory last summer, and now in the midst of the rigors of a sub-arctic winter destitution is most pitiful. About half a million people are computed to be on the verge of starvation. Undoubtedly the international sweep of American charity will in these circumstances be manifest anew.

* * *

America Can Save Them

Sioux City (Ia.) Tribune

This is an appeal that should meet quick response in the United States. It is distressing that such a famine has to exist in any part of the world, when another part has storehouses full of provisions and is able to feed all those who hunger. The 400,000 starving people of Finland could be saved by the United States alone, if prompt action should be taken, and an act of the kind would reflect more glory upon this great nation than any conquest. While we are talking of our hundreds of millions of property; while there is stored vast quantities of food that we can never eat ourselves, and which would otherwise be useful only to add to the surplus of wealth good only to gloat over and luxuriate in, it would be something akin to disgrace, and certainly a display of ingratitude for good fortune, to neglect this cry of distress.

* * *

Reach Out Hands of Help

Philadelphia Telegraph

Is it not time for us in prosperous America to reach out our hands to these our brethren starving in stricken Finland? What good and worthy work can more rightfully command our practical sympathy than the work of saving these suffering thousands from the pangs of hunger and the danger of death? And where in our country can such a work be so promptly and effectively inaugurated as right here in this "city of brotherly love?"

* * *

Dare We Hesitate?

Boston Transcript

Can a rich and freedom-loving country turn a deaf ear to such an appeal? If Finland's liberties cannot be restored to her, and the stain of the censor's paw be removed, she can be saved from starvation. But help must come soon. Relief must be organized at once on a large scale. Russia cannot if she would save her own hungering Moujiks, let alone the Finnish peasants. Moreover, she has given her pittance. It is for a free people to give the rest." Let our response be as generous as the measure in which we love our own liberties.

The Finnish "Kantele" Player

(See picture on first page)

The "Kantele" is the old-fashioned musical instrument of the peasantry of Finland. It is little known in the cities, but in the remote rural districts it may still be found in the cottages of the peasantry. Its music is weird and mournful. The player, generally an old man, as he touches the strings recites "the joys and sorrows of vanished generations," accompanying his voice with the soft, sad music which seems specially suited to such a theme.

THE BIBLE and the NEWSPAPER

A Quaint Ceremony

BOUT this season of the year, or a few weeks earlier, as the ecclesiastical calendar may dictate, there is a feast prescribed by the Russo-Greek Church. In Russia, Roumania, Bulgaria, and erever that church has its people, the y of the blessing of the water is observ- with feasting and rejoicing. Masts are cted, from which fly flags and ribbons. long line of decorations marks the ite which the priests must traverse m the church to the place, usually on river bank, or on the frozen surface of river, where the ceremony is to take ce. Straw is laid down as a carpet for ir feet. Every one in the neighbor- od, and from distant villages, makes a int of witnessing the procession. Sleighs l vehicles of all kinds arrive early, filled h people in their gayest attire. Even horses must have their bits of finery, l no peasant, howsoever poor he be, fails provide a bright worsted tassel or two for steed's bridle. The weather is bitterly d, and the icy winds whistle about the ay or river bank where the ceremony to take place. Two hours before noon priests have assembled in the church, l a guard of honor on horseback stands tside. Every banner and cross, and re- ious emblem is brought out, and then me the priests, chanting as they march. matter how severe the weather, the emony takes place in the open air. A rrel of water, set directly in front of the iciating priest, receives the full force of blessing, which is supposed to pass o to the river and all waters. It is often cessary that a man should stir the water the barrel continually, to keep it from ezing. After the ceremony, every one ks a little of the water from the barrel; d the less educated of the peasants asure the few drops that fall to their are, the year round, as a charm to pro- t them from the evil eye and other tcheries. It is pathetic to see how much th they put in its virtues. Well would be if they could be led to put their faith Him who promised to give to all who me to Him, the living water which satis- s every need.

n the last day, that great day of the feast, Jesus od and cried, saying, If any man thirst, let him ne unto me, and drink (John 7: 37).

ved by Confession

A strange story of heroic confession is ported by a journal of Raleigh, N. C. "blockade still" was discovered in the ighborhood, and the owner could not found. Eventually, suspicion pointed ongly to a man who had previously rne a good character. The man was rested, and was kept in prison a long ne while the Government agents worked the case. When at last the prisoner as put on trial before the United States ourt, he indignantly repudiated the harge. The evidence, however, was rong against him. Every one in court lt sure that the jury would convict him, id in his defense he had no proof to rnish nor any witnesses except those to s good character. The case was near s close, and nothing remained but to onounce the prisoner guilty, when a an arose in court and asked to be sworn. o the amazement of all, he declared mself the owner of the still, and swore at the prisoner knew nothing whatever bout it. The prisoner accordingly was quitted and the self-confessed culprit as indicted. He was convicted on his vn statement and sentenced to a year's prisonment. He said he was quite wil- ng to serve his term, though he would t have confessed if he had not seen an nocent man about to be condemned for s wrongdoing. Some men, even then, ight have been mean enough to let him ar the penalty. How thankful the isoner must have been that the guilty man was not of that kind. How infinitely more thankful ought we to be who, though guilty and under condemnation, may be saved through Christ, who died that we might live.

Who his own self bare our sins in his own body on the tree, that we, being dead to sins, should live unto righteousness: by whose stripes ye were healed (1 Peter 2: 24).

A Sinking Mansion

Reports published by a New York daily journal, indicate that one of the most famous mansions in the State is in serious danger of collapse. It was erected only a short time ago at Oakdale, L. I., on the site of a former edifice which was burned in 1899. The multi-millionaire who owns it, mortified by the destruction of that beautiful home, specially cautioned the architects whom he employed to build the new house, against the possibility of a repetition of the disaster. "Build this house," he said, "so that it cannot burn." His instructions were obeyed, and tons of steel and stone were brought to raise a mansion, on which fire would have no effect. Caissons were sunk to get a firm foundation, and then the stately pile was raised which evokes the admiration of every beholder. But the very means taken to prevent its destruction by fire, appear, according to this report, to have exposed it to another danger. Its immense weight is too great for the sandy foundation on which it is built. Cracks have appeared in the walls, in the roof and in the ceilings, showing that the building is settling, and also that it is settling unevenly. Repairs have been made, in the hope that the movement may not continue, but grave fears are entertained that nothing can save it from ruin. It is astonishing that the owner did not foresee this danger, and that his architects did not warn him of it. Usually men are careful in matters, where so large an outlay is involved, about their security; though it is only too common to see them reckless in their eternal interests in spite of the warning of our Lord.

Everyone that heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man who built his house upon the sand (Matt. 7: 26).

Art Treasures at Auction

During the sale of a famous art collection in New York, recently, much surprise was expressed at the extraordinary prices realized for some of the articles. People of wealth and culture came from long distances to attend the sale, and when the rare bronzes, exquisite tapestries, and all the collectors' treasures of ancient vases, Oriental temple jars, mediæval carvings in silver and gold, Venetian hangings, precious intaglios, and enamels, lacquers, antique silver, paintings, engravings and miscellaneous curios, were brought to the hammer, there was such an enthusiasm of rivalry and such lavish bidding as is seldom witnessed at an auction anywhere. Prices ran from the hundreds up to the thousands of dollars, some few articles of marvelous workmanship bringing as high as $20,000. Yet at no time was there more than a comparatively small gathering of bidders present. To the outside multitudes, the sale would have meant nothing more than the disposing of a lot of jars, screens, plates and knicknacks, but to those who, having art themselves, were quick to discern the soul of the artist in his workmanship, it was a spiritual treasure and a revelation and a message. They could understand the thought of the maker as he interpreted it in the beautiful work which he finished centuries ago. So it is with the devout student of nature, who sees in the universe above and around him, an expression of the wisdom and love of God.

The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament showeth his handiwork. Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night showeth knowledge (Ps. 19: 1, 2).

THE RUSSO-GREEK CEREMONY OF BLESSING THE ICY WATERS

To Eradicate Leprosy

One of our consuls in China has forwarded a remarkable document to the Department of State at Washington, and it is understood that copies have been sent to other Governments. The document emanates from Dr. Adolph Razlag, a physician who has been studying leprosy. It contains a plan for completely eradicating leprosy from the world. The doctor wants to have three islands placed at his disposal somewhere in the Tropics. To the one island he would take every male leper wheresoever found and place him under treatment; to the second island, every female leper. The mild cases, those that are not far developed, and those which improve under treatment, he would remove to a third island. He has a method of treatment, which, if it does not cure the disease, arrests its progress, and he claims that if applied in the early stages of the disease, it will effect an absolute cure. Isolation, however, is essential, and, therefore, the necessity of having islands for the experiment. There are, according to the doctor's estimate, half a million lepers in the world; and, he contends, if these were isolated as soon as discovered and compelled to undergo treatment, there would soon not be a single case of leprosy on earth. This, of course, assumes that every leper contracts the disease by infection, which is a theory not universally accepted. In the malady of sin, of which leprosy is a type, infection would certainly not account for all the cases. Every parent has to admit that the element of sin manifests itself in children too early to justify any other theory than that of natural depravity.

The imagination of man's heart is evil from his youth (Gen. 8: 21).

BRIEF NOTES

Dr. Torrey and Mr. Alexander, the eminent American evangelists, returning from Australia and India, have reached England, and were given an enthusiastic welcome in London, at a popular meeting held in Exeter Hall.

Isabel Rogers Edgar, the well known missionary, will arrange with churches and religious societies to deliver her illustrated lectures on "Labrador and its People." She may be addressed to No. 643 Madison Avenue, New York.

Rev. W. B. Brown, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Hays City, Kans., writes us that a most hopeful revival has commenced there under the preaching of Evangelist Hermiston. The church is crowded at every service.

A scene unprecedented at Bellefontaine, O., was witnessed on January 29, when business men closed their stores, the work in factories was suspended, and many professional men closed their offices, in order that their employees might attend the United Revival services at the M. E. Church, conducted by Dr. L. W. Munhall. The Examiner of that city says the meetings that day were the most wonderful ever held in Bellefontaine.

The Third Annual Conference of the National Federation of Churches was held in the Bible House, New York, on February 5. The programme of the conference included addresses by Mr. J. Cleveland Cady, Dr. Wm. C. Wilkinson, Dr. C. C. Albertson, Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman and Dr. Charles L. Goodell. Dr. Amory H. Bradford presided, and Dr. E. B. Sanford, Secretary of the Federation, presented his report.

A Young Men's Christian Association building has been opened at Treadwell, Alaska. The three mining companies operating in the neighborhood have given the movement generous support. Heretofore the only resorts in the district have been saloons and houses of evil association. The mines have been canvassed by Mr. W. A. Reed, formerly of Kalamazoo, Mich., and he has secured pledges of membership from eighty per cent. of the miners. The saloon-keepers, fearful that their interests are threatened, are agitating against the work.

International S. S. Lesson for Feb. 22
I. Corinthians 13
Golden Text. I. Corinthians 13: 13

CHRISTIAN LOVE

... By ...
DR. and MRS. WILBUR F. CRAFTS

"I HAVE GIVEN YOU AN EXAMPLE, THAT YE SHOULD DO AS I HAVE DONE TO YOU"

OUR lesson is the greatest word picture of the greatest thing in all worlds, Godlike love, which we are to-day to (1) define, (2) analyze, (3) embody.

We must recall again the distinction, often explained but not yet generally apprehended, between the three kinds of love: the love of esteem, that looks up reverently to God and all the great and good; the love of sympathy, that goes out almost spontaneously to kindred and congenial associates; the love of compassion, or pity, that looks down to lift up, which is the "charity" of this chapter, the "love divine, all love excelling," the distinctive "Christian love," that loves according to needs and not according to merits, as God loves. It is little credit to us to love Christ, the altogether lovely. "And if ye love them that love you, what reward have ye?" "The love of God shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Spirit," "Joy of heaven to earth come down," is not love, but love "like God's" for the unlovely, the unholy, the unfriendly.

"Charity" defined

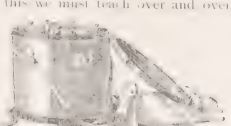
A dying Christian was giving a last embrace to her daughter. "My child," she said, "I have loved you because of what you are; my heavenly Father, to whom I go, has loved me in spite of what I am." The word "love" has been substituted for "charity" in the Revised Version, because "charity" has been narrowed in popular thought to mere almsgiving, whereas if we really love the poor we shall study to preserve their manhood by undertaking the more difficult task of helping them to help themselves. The love or charity of this chapter is God's love for man imparted to Christians, making them true brothers of all men, even as he is Father of all. This is conversion, whether slow or swift, to love as God loves, counting every human brother the neighbor we are not alone to help when in need, but to love as ourselves. Race and class prejudice is displaced by regeneration. To the Christian heart there is neither Jew nor Greek, bond nor free. And as God's love cannot live with hate, personal grudges proclaim an unsaved heart. As God is love, so godliness is love.

Love in its higher meanings is almost an unknown word outside of Christianity. Classic Greece and Rome are called by those who knew them best "a world without love." Turning to the uncultivated savages, we have a sample in the Algonquins, who had no word for love, so that the translator of the Bible had to invent one.

Having thus defined distinctive Christian love, of which Paul writes, we are now prepared to study his analysis of it, as he unravels it, even as the prism unravels the perfect white light into the seven colors. We shall use the American Revised Version for fresh light on this familiar chapter.

Love Analyzed

If I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, but have not love, I am become sounding brass or a clanging cymbal. In modern phrase we would say there is no more merit in preaching or teaching or prayer that has no heart in it, or when there is hate in the heart, than if it was uttered by a phonograph. "If thou bring thy gift to the altar and there rememberest that thy brother hath aught against thee, first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift" (Matt. 5: 24). Ah, this we must teach over and over again to our hearts, that daily need to be forgiven, but find it hard to forgive, though instinctively admiring such forgiveness of bitter foes as we see in Isaac and Joseph and Stephen.



And if I have the gift of prophecy, and know all mysteries and all knowledge, and if I have all faith so as to remove mountains, but have not love, I am nothing.—Paul does not say a man could have an effectual faith without love, but only that if he had, it would be as "nothing," as a cipher separated from the figure which gives all its value, and to which it gives increased value. Faith without love would be a zero, but with love at its right side both are multiplied. In Paul's teaching elsewhere as to faith and works, he shows that in order to have faithfulness in outward life there must be faith in the soul, and in this chapter he goes back into the holy of holies, and shows that back of even faith in the soul there must be love in the heart. With love for motor power, faith and knowledge and eloquence and music move effectively for the transformation of the soul and of the world. But lips and brain are "sounding brass" when heartless.

It is not the deed we do,
Though the deed be never so fair,
But the love that the dear Lord looketh for,
Hidden with lowly care
In the heart of the deed so fair.—ROSETTI.

And if I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and if I give my body to be burned, but have not love, it profiteth me nothing. What more could Paul say to prove that faith is friendship? He reminds us that a man may be very generous to the unfortunate, and even very courageous for the right, and still lack the soul of religion, personal love for Christ and for the souls for whom he died. "Lovest thou me?" said Christ to Peter three times over, and each time when an affirmative answer had been given, he said in substance, "If you really love me, show it by helping your little brothers and older ones, my lambs and my sheep" (John 21: 15-17). John, the great apostle, had also learned the supremacy of love, when he called a church of sound creed and useful deeds, which lacked love, to "repent" (Rev. 2: 1-7).

And now we come to Paul's wonderful picture of love, which we have before spoken of as "the most perfect picture of a gentleman," but some of us will prefer to write below it, "My Mother's Picture," or "My Father's Picture."

Love suffereth long and is kind; love envieth not: love vaunteth not itself: is not puffed up: doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not its own, is not provoked, taketh not account of evil; rejoiceth not in unrighteousness, but rejoiceth with the truth; beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things. Love never faileth.

A mother having read this to her child, he said earnestly: "Charlie would be like charity, who suffered long and was kind, and did not envy or boast or misbehave or act selfish or speak unkindly; who was not easily provoked, but patient and gladsome."

Some will say that Paul has here pictured an impracticable ideal, but we shall now show that this chapter has often been a "living epistle."

I am a herdsman; I am very rich in cattle, for my father before had much cattle, and they became my inheritance. I also inherited wells, and in a land where there was little water, wells were considered a rich possession. Others became envious of me, and they filled my wells with rubbish and made them useless. I did not go to battle with them, but moved to another place and digged another well. My enemies followed me, and disputed and fought against my herdsmen. But instead of asserting my rights, I moved on and dug another well. They followed me again and claimed the well. Rather than engage in strife, I moved on again and dug another well, and there we rested in peace. What is my name? (See Gen. 26: 1-6; 12-32.)

Personations

I have ten big brothers who are shepherds, and a little brother too young to leave home. I was fed when my father sent me to the fields to inquire after their welfare, and to take them food. Little did I think that I was never to return to my home alive, but that my bones would be brought there after a hundred years. Instead of receiving me kindly, my brothers fell on me with murderous intent, but on second thought they sold me into a far-away land. When next I saw my brothers, they were in a half-starving condition, and I was in charge of the king's granaries. I could have revenged myself and denied them food, but I would not. At first they did not recognize me, but when I told them that I was their brother whom they had sold, they trembled greatly. Their fear of me made me weep. I comforted them, and sent them home to bring their families, and their dear old father and mine, and I gave them homes and plenty to eat. What is my name? (Gen. chaps. 38-47.)

Naturally, I have a hasty spirit. Born a slave, I was living in childhood in the king's palace, as the adopted son of the king's daughter. When I was a young man, my spirit betrayed me into killing a man who had wronged my people. Even when I became a great leader by appointment of God my hasty spirit would flash out when the people were wicked and rebellious against the great God who was their Helper. But at length I came to love my people. So changed was I by the grace of God, that my name became a synonym of meekness. Who am I? (Ex. 32: 32; Num. 12: 3.)

I am a man who saw the Lord Jesus going about doing good. Everywhere I noticed his gentle, loving spirit. On the day of his crucifixion I heard him pray for his enemies: "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." And I was so taught of him that when I came to the hour of my own death by the hands of those who cast stones at me, I could pray: "Lord, lay not this sin to their charge." What is my name? (Acts chap. 7.)

I am a man whom Jesus once called a "Son of thunder," because of my rash temper. But the example and influence of Jesus helped me to conquer it, so that I was often spoken of as "the Apostle whom Jesus loved." His love to me made me more loving, and so when he was about to die upon the Cross, he gave his precious mother into my keeping. Even after Jesus went back to heaven, he gave me visions of himself. He so enriched me with his love that when I grew to be nearly one hundred years old, all the people of the churches seemed to be "my little children," and I so addressed them. What is my name? (John 19: 26; John 21: 12, 13, 18, 28.)

I am a man whose early training made him hard and unrelenting. I saw a man stoned to death who was considered an enemy of the church. I even assisted to the extent of caring for the garments of those who did the stoning. I saw a strange light in the dying man's face that I did not then understand. I know now that it was the reflection of love from the face of Jesus. I heard his dying cry that God would not punish those who were killing him. But what I saw and heard that day did not hinder me from becoming myself a most persistent persecutor of Christians. I was stayed in my course by the voice of the Lord himself, speaking to me from the opened heavens. From that hour love became the ruling passion of my life. Men talk of my logic, but it is love by which I seek to draw men to Christ, especially my own people, the Jews. I could wish myself accursed from Christ, for my brethren and companions' sake, according to the flesh. What is my name? (Acts 7: 9; Rom. 9: 3.)

The Bible tells us that its stories of noble deeds are written "as examples" for us (I. Cor. 10: 11). Even what Jesus did except his miracles, we are called to do (John 13: 15). What was done by the wholly human heroes of the Bible, who were "men of like passions with us," we surely can do. But in this case we can also point to those who, even in our own times, have lived our beautiful lesson in their beautiful lives.

ANCIENT WRITING MATERIALS

One of these lives was that of George Washington, which not Americans only but many more recall on this, his birthday. He shared the faults of his time as to slaves and lotteries, and no doubt had other faults and sins, but his life was influenced by faith in God and love for his fellow-man, to a degree seldom seen in the fields of war and politics. He risked the penalties of treason, to serve without financial reward what he regarded as the cause of liberty and humanity.

TREES HIDDEN BY THE DRIFTS IN THE "FISH HARBOR" OF HELSINGFORS IN THE SNOW-LAID FINNISH FORESTS

Rushing Aid to Starving Finland

HE CHRISTIAN HERALD Cables $10,000 More to Helsingfors — Growth of the Fund — Dr. Klopsch Goes to Finland

ALREADY the results of the relief movement begun by the benevolent-hearted people of America through this journal, in behalf of famine-stricken Finland, are beginning to be felt. Food, purchased with the contributions of our CHRISTIAN HERALD aders, is now being eaten in the cabins of famished innish peasants, and prayers of gratitude and blessing e ascending from many homes, where hunger has gnaw- l at the heart-strings during the long winter weeks.

But it is only the fringe of the famine districts that is been reached, thus far; the great work of relieving e multitude of sufferers in the interior must now be ndertaken. Owing to the urgency of the need, last eek's remittance of $5,000 from THE CHRISTIAN ERALD Famine Fund was doubled, and $10,000 was nbled instead to the Finnish Relief Committee at elsingfors, making $15,000 sent to the famine field date. We are indebted to Thomas Cook & Son, of ew York, for their aid rendered to the relief work, cabling the money without expense to the Fund.

Dr. Klopsch, proprietor of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, as gone to Finland, where he will personally visit the mine centres, inspect the relief operations, and co- perate with the Finnish Central Relief Committee at elsingfors, in the adoption of such measures as may e needed to make the work more thorough, expeditious nd effective. He hopes to visit Abo, Vasa, Uleaborg, nd the northern and northeastern districts of the Grand uchy, where the greatest suffering is now reported. e is accompanied by Mr. Gilson Willets, a well-known riter, who was with him when he visited India a few ears ago, during the great famine in that country. This ourney is undertaken wholly at his own expense, and ithout any charge upon the Fund.

During the past week, contributions to the Relief und have continued to flow in from all parts of the nion. Almost all of the letters received show how eeply the cause of the Finns has touched the hearts of ne American people. We give extracts from a few of ne letters:

J. H. Jargenson, Bertram, Ia., writes:

When I read of your advancing the sum of $5,000, with the expectation of some one helping you, I at once saw the necessity of doing my part of this great and noble work. May God bless you! If each friend would only give a small part of what we have, how many people would be gladdened, and how much more God would bless them who contribute. Accept my small gift, and may God's blessing go with it.

Harmon L. S. Wift, manager of the Beulah Land Farm for Boys, says:

Dear Friends of Humanity:—Enclosed please find Post-office Order for $4. The entire amount is contributed by orphan boys and street waifs, who have never known the comforts of a home, until rescued by the Beulah Land Academy for homeless boys at Bay Springs, Mich. The boys have earned this money by many little acts of self-denial, and it means more perhaps than a large sum contributed by those in better circumstances. If this contribution proves as great a blessing to those who receive it as it has to those who gave it, it is all I ask.

Levi and Jennie Hiatt, of Amboy, Ind., write:

We see you are again on the "War Path," to conquer starvation in Finland. With a prayer that God will bless abundantly and give an early victory, we enclose our small sum.

"I know and realize that Christ will bless even the cup of cold water. May this mite be the means of saving some precious life is my prayer," writes Mrs. Isaac S. Wallace, Nyack, N. Y.

"How my heart goes out in sympathy for a Christian people that will suffer and die before they will appeal for aid. How much like the spirit of our Saviour, who came, suffered and died that we might inherit eternal life," writes Mrs. Leila Ward, Fort Worth, Tex.

Miss Ellen N. Allen, Cedaredge, Colo., writes:

The enclosed amount ($13.50) goes with the prayers of the brethren and sisters of Cedaredge Church, that it may help some poor sufferers in their time of need. Trusting to our All-wise Father to speedily send relief in opening the hearts of the rich.

J. W. Buchanan, Lowell, Mass.

Please find inclosed five-dollar order for the Finland sufferers. May God bless your grand efforts in always remembering those in trouble. You surely act the part of the Good Samaritan.

George and Nellie Whistom, of the Soldier's Home, Ind., write:

Inclosed is $1, in the name of Jesus. Our prayers ascend to God every day, that he may touch the hearts of every one able to give in His name, to help his suffering children.

Mrs. Theresor Mahr, of New York Mills, N. Y., writes:

I pray God that he who fed the 5,000 on five barley loaves and two small fishes, will multiply my little offering, and bless it for His Name's sake.

Mr. John G. Toepper, Washington, D. C., writes:

I am pleased to notice that you so generously have advanced a goodly portion of your own funds to help the sufferers speedily. May God bless you for your prompt act. God is good—God is love. Please find check enclosed.

Victor Viervin, Orange, N. J., writes:

Looking over the names of contributors to the fund to help the sufferers by the famine in Finland, I see your name, as usual, heading the list, to which please add the modest amount of enclosed check, and my prayer to God to open the heart of every subscriber to your most excellent paper to contribute liberally.

Mr. John J. Moe, Duluth, Minn., writes:

My heart is filled with sympathy for the poor famine-stricken Finns, and it is with gratitude to the Lord for his wonderful goodness toward us that I enclose check ($5.00) toward the relief fund you so nobly have started.

Mrs. H. R. Garner, Columbus, Miss., writes:

Enclosed find $5.00 for Finland's suffering ones. Your untiring generosity has been a great inspiration to me, and has more than once reminded me that I, too, can furnish a drink of cold water, in His Name.

These are examples of many hundreds of letters of the same character that are received daily at THE CHRISTIAN HERALD offices. They show that a multitude of hearts have been stirred, and that the Christian people of this land are resolved, with God's help, to save the Finns. Surely a shower of blessing must follow these gifts, so hallowed by prayer.

Address all contributions to the Fund:

FINLAND FAMINE FUND
THE CHRISTIAN HERALD
92 Bible House New York City

Every contribution, great or small, will be duly acknowledged in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD.

FINNISH MOURNERS AT A GRAVE A FINNISH GIRL ON "SKIS" TRAVELING ON SNOW-SHOES

In Case you Soil or Tear this Blank, an Ordinary Sheet of Paper May be Substituted.

To the Finland Famine Relief Fund

BIBLE HOUSE, NEW YORK CITY

Every Contribution will be Acknowledged in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD.

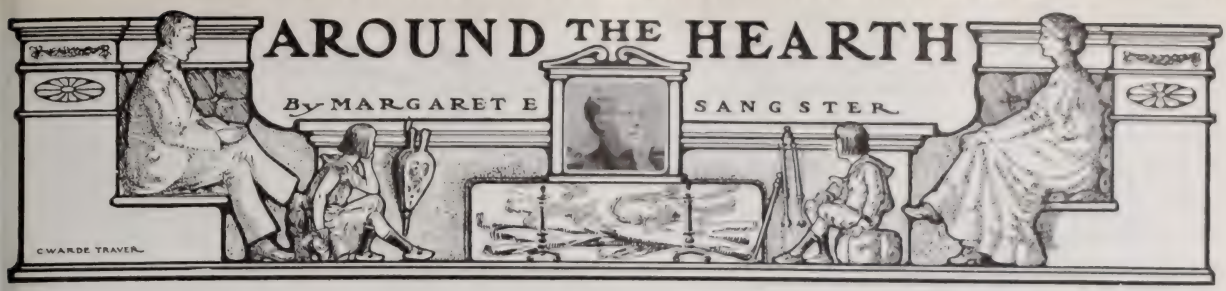
The undersigned have contributed for the Relief of the Famine Sufferers in Finland the amounts entered opposite their respective names, and are entitled to be credited accordingly in the colums of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD:

Title—Mr., Mrs., Miss, Dr. or Rev.	FULL NAME	STREET ADDRESS	POST-OFFICE	COUNTY	STATE	DOLLARS	CENTS
1			1
2			2
3			3
4			4
5			5
6			6
7			7
8			8
9			9
10			10
11			11
12			12
13			13
14			14
15			15
16			16
17			17
18			18
19			19
20			20
21			21
22			22
23			23
24			24
25			25

"WHATSOEVER THOU DOEST, DO QUICKLY."

This List is Sent by .....

GIVE FULL NAME AND FULL POST-OFFICE ADDRESS



Sylvia and William John

WHEN Sylvia goes tripping down the street, with a smile here, a wave of her hand there, and a bow to William John, I wonder if she fancies at all, how very much she influences him. She is so busy with her own affairs, with what she is going to be, now that she has left school, she doesn't care much about that clumsy boy worshiping her in his dumb, inarticulate way. Sylvia probably means to earn her living; most ambitious young woman take that point of view now, and she may be almost what she chooses—artist, journalist, typewritist, or doctor; she may learn architecture or telegraphy, become an expert accountant, or take up nursing. The doors fly wide open to-day at Sylvia's touch. All girls are not called upon, however they may long to do so, to put their talents to use outside the home. "My mother needs me to help her," is a claim that Sylvia must never ignore. Often the young daughter will learn the most valuable lessons she can have, lessons of domestic education, by assisting for a time in her mother's kitchen. Sylvia may combine this service of love with a series of cooking-class demonstrations, and thus bring to the home-table, the results of the latest modern improvements. When Sylvia is free from school she should not wholly abandon study. I strongly advise her to take up some department of nature-study; birds, bees, flowers, stones, or whatever other phase of outdoor activity attracts her, and pursue it regularly. Sylvia and two or three girls, who have been fellow-classmates, may very profitably form a club, and have their hours for outdoor walks and excursions, and for indoor meetings over books. All the culture is not confined to colleges. We may have it for the seeking, if we will but try faithfully and earnestly.

* * *

Having reached the age of eighteen, Sylvia should ask herself what sort of a woman she means to be. As a rule, she puts uppermost what she means to do; but it can never be said too often or too emphatically, that being is of greater consequence than doing. What you and I really are in our own personality is what tells upon the home, the society we mingle with, and the church. A girl at eighteen has her men friends as well as her girl friends, and these should be comrades in the best meaning of the word. More than she knows, a young girl impresses herself on the boys who come to her house. Our Sylvia should be dignified, this dear young maiden, not at the easy beck and call of every lad she knows. "I am dreadfully worried about my daughter," said a mother once to me. "Her father and I don't want her to go with Bennie H., as he is not a good companion for her; but Bennie comes to our gate and whistles, and Mary is off to meet him like a shot." Poor Mary! No girl should suffer a boy to summon her with a whistle. He should come to her door, hat in hand, and be admitted openly, and then talk to her in the presence of her parents and the family. If Sylvia and her friends frown on cigarette smoking and similar indulgences, William John and his friends will be careful how they fall into such habits of folly. Girls cannot keep their standard too high, for the sake of their brothers, and of those who are their friends.

* * *

Should Sylvia find it necessary to go to business soon after leaving school, there are one or two points which she should observe. Not long ago, a lady was trying to secure a position in an office for a young girl of really bright disposition and good capacity. But she found herself face to face with a difficulty. "L— is too assertive, too ready to give her opinion, too much in the habit of presenting her views," said a man who was influential, and had noticed this girl in an evening class at a Settlement. "She will never succeed down-town. A girl must efface herself and be merely a cog in the machinery, there." Remember this, dear Sylvia; you are not to think of how you look, or make comments on the looks of others; you are not to volunteer advice or state your convictions unasked. Confine yourself to the strictest line of duty. And, another thing, accept no favors or attentions from your employers or business associates, who have their duty to do just as you have.

For the rest, I would have my Sylvia scatter sunshine over life's path, by dwelling in the blessed sunlight of Christ's love all the while. "Whose I am, and whom I serve," is a good motto, if Jesus Christ be the one to whose service you are pledged. Begin every day with a prayer, and you will end it with a song.

WAITING FOR PAPA

The little maid is tired of play,
And oft as falls the sunset ray,
In the sweet far end of the day,
She watches here for father.

Dear father, who, to win her bread,
Must toil with heart and hands and head
(For little maidens must be fed),
Where crowds of people gather.

Aunt Prudence Payson's Catch-All

—SUSIE. A man's visiting card is much smaller than a woman's.

—MARIA. Mrs. Amelia E. Barr is the author of The Bow of Orange Ribbon.

—CHARLOTTE. Economize if you must, but cut off your luxuries first. Necessities last.

—LOUISE. Do not relieve a man of his hat and stick, or offer to help him on with his overcoat. In the latter case, an exception is made if he is crippled, or old and infirm.

THY SONGS

O! sing in the day dawn, and sing in the night!
Oh! sing as the star gleams emerge into light!
Oh! sing in thy sorrow and sing in thy mirth,
Evermore may thy music ennoble the earth.

No marked is waiting for tears or for sighs;
Go stifle thy moanings; Go dry thy wet eyes!
Go bury thy troubles, deep hide them with care,
The world will not question if any be there.

Fling free on the ether thy happiest strains;
Thy harps on the willows gone but delightful remains.
Chanting only of blessings go journey along—
And the world will be sweeter for hearing thy song.

EMMA B. VAN DEUSEN

Gifts You Cannot Use

When Christmas has well behind you, some months back, look over your Christmas gifts, and, instead of keeping the pretty cards and souvenirs that gave you so sweet a momentary pleasure, where they must gather dust and grow faded and dingy, till finally they go into the waste basket, do this. Wrap them carefully up in folds of tissue paper, and treat your sacred them on a mission of pleasure giving some where else. The little children in Porto Rico or the Philippines, or India, love our beautiful Christmas cards, and their teachers can use them to fine advantage for rewards. Or, among your own home acquaintance there may be invalids, or people with very few friends, or young girls in lonesome country places, who will enjoy these remembrances another year as much as you have enjoyed them this season.

In sending away such cards at the Easter time, donors should write no inscription on the card: this leaves it free to be passed along.

Don't Be Too Fidgety

Fidgety women are the bane of peace at home or on the road. Watch one when she sits down, presumably to take her ease. She sees a blur on the pane, and darts at it to rub it off. A book on the table is not where she left it, up she jumps and sets that straight. A fly, that ought to have died with his friends of last summer, appears, sunning himself in the window. Madame nearly has a fit over that fly! If she is on the cars, she fusses every time there is a stop. She worries about the speed or the slowness; she piles her bundles up like an abatis; she interferes with her husband's newspaper a dozen times an hour, to say "Oh, do you suppose Fred will meet us? What shall we do if he isn't there?" Good ladies, do not be fidgets. Nobody has any use for fidgety women. Fidget rhymes with idget, if you know what that means.

A Lover of the Helpless

Brooklyn people have long known Dr. Susan Fray, who died there in January. Doctor Fray befriended cats and dogs, and all poor vagrants in fur or feathers, found in her home a refuge. As an active member of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, she once suffered a horse to be maltreated in her presence, and often in the summer she took no fee for, because at that season pet animals were most often neglected and in need of her ministrations. Her favorite dog and cat will miss her sorely, and wonder where their kind guardian and friend has gone.

A Hint from Abroad

The Church of England has in its wide boundaries room for many excellent organizations. Among others is a "Church Society for the Promotion of Kindness to Animals." Queen Alexandra is the patron, and the Archbishop of York the President. An animal sermon is preached on the general subject on the fourth Sunday after Trinity in all churches. Not long since, a letter came as follows:

The Bishop of Barking has written to the Secretary of the Church Society for the Promotion of Kindness to Animals, as follows: "Kindness to animals is so clearly a duty binding on all Christian people, that one cannot but welcome some organization within the church which specially impresses on the clergy the duty of speaking plainly from time to time to their people, and particularly to children, on this important matter."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

W. C. J., Beaufort, N. C. Is the famine likely to result in prolonged suffering to the Finns? How long will it be before they are self-supporting?

Our object is to relieve their immediate needs and save them from starvation, until the hard winter is past. In the spring they will doubtless be able, with such aid in seed and planting as they will receive, to go on with renewed hope.

J. F., Gladstone, N. J. Recently I asked the official chemist of the U. S. "What is the effect of alcohol on the iron in the blood?" He replied: "In so far as I know, there have been no scientific determinations made in regard to the effect of intoxicants upon the iron in the blood. I am therefore unable to answer your question." With about one and one-half billions of gallons of intoxicants passing through the corpuscles of the blood of our people yearly, and over $70,500,000 revenue collected from nicotine consumption of 19,00,000 cigars consumed each day of the year, with 2,658,176,430 cigarettes consumed last year, and 315,719,475 pounds of tobacco and snuff in their pipes and snuff-boxes (as given by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1902), can it be possible that we are so much in the dark concerning the effects of alcohol and nicotine? Are there any books giving such information?

Your question was too specific. Any physician or analytical chemist can tell you of the deteriorating effects of alcoholic indulgence on the system generally. Write to the National Temperance Society, 3 West Eighteenth street, New York.

J. R. S., New Baltimore, N. Y. Out of the population of the United States, what proportion is Christian?

It is impossible to answer with any degree of certainty. Nominally a Christian nation, we have no right to claim as absolute Christians those who do not accept Christ or follow in his footsteps.

J. K., Galton, Ill. Is a Christian justified in investing in railroad stock, when he knows that his money is used in desecrating the Sabbath?

The only work that is justifiable on the Sabbath is such as is either a work of necessity or of mercy. If, in the present condition of affairs, he considers that railroads should not be operated at all on Sunday, then he would not be justified; but if he believes that to a certain extent Sunday travel by rail is essential to the needs of the community, he might then reconcile his conscience with the investment. If the person in question rigidly applies the test of conscience to the matter, he will not go wrong.

Subscriber, Friars Hill, W. Va. What is known of the parents of the Apostle Paul?

Nothing but the few facts that may be gleaned from his speeches and epistles. There is not the slightest clue to their names. The family, though living in Tarsus when Paul was born, had evidently been careful to preserve their Jewish nationality. Paul said (Acts 23: 6) that he was "the son of a Pharisee," and elsewhere he speaks of his forefathers, as if they, too, belonged to the same sect. The father was exact in obedience to the law (see Phil. 3: 5). Either he or his ancestors had rendered some service to the Roman government, the reward for which had been the conferring of citizenship, which, in those times, was a very valuable possession (see Acts 22: 28). It has been assumed that because Paul was a tentmaker his father was poor; but that does not prove the fact, as every Jew was enjoined to have his son taught a trade. On the other hand, the fact that Paul was sent to Jerusalem to be a pupil of Gamaliel implies some degree of wealth. The only other personal reference (Acts 23: 16) shows that Paul had a sister.

Schoolboy, Titusville, Va. Since the Finnish famine has caused so much talk about Finland, I have heard of and read a poem, as wonderful as Homer's Iliad, was written long ago by a Finnish poet. Who was he, and what was the poem?

The national epic of Finland, the Kalevala (meaning Land of Heroes) was rated as "the fifth national epic of the world" by Miss Michler, who ranked it with the Iliad, the Nibelungenlied, the Song of Roland, the Kalevala of India, the Shahnameh of Persia, and the Nibelungenlied of Germany. Other authorities have given it the same high consideration. "By language masters," says F. M. Crawford, who translated the Kalevala into English, "this epic descended unwritten from the mythical age to the present day, kept alive from generation to generation by minstrels or song men." The runes (mystic songs) of the Kalevala date back three thousand years. To Doctors Jopelino and Lounrot, two great Finnish scholars of the nineteenth century, belongs the honor of collecting the Kalevala proper; they "gleaned these songs of the lips of the people, sitting by the fireside of the aged, rowing on the lakes with the fishermen, following the flocks with the shepherds."

Mrs. A. B. S., Oxford, Mass. Why are the rainbow colors reversed in winter in a glass prism, set in a sunny window, from what they are in summer? Now, the colors reflected are, first, red, orange, yellow, green, purple, violet, and blue last?

We have submitted this question to Astronomer Garrett P. Serviss, who sends this answer:

There is no difference in the law of refraction of light between summer and winter, and the reversal of colors spoken of must be due either to a change in the position of the prism, or to a change in the direction in which the beam of light traverses the prism. If the point of the prism is uppermost, then the arrangement of the colors will always be—red at the top and violet at the bottom. But if the base of the prism is uppermost, then the colors will be violet at the top and red at the bottom. It may be that this change could be brought about by the simple alteration in the height of the sun between summer and winter. Suppose, for instance, that the prism is set in the window; then, with the summer sun high in the sky, the ray of light would traverse the prism in such a direction that it would issue from the lower face, and in that case blue would appear at the top of the spectrum. But in winter, with the sun low, the ray would penetrate in such a direction as to issue from the right hand side of the prism, and then red would be at the top.

H. O., Hartford, Ind. (1) Is it right to feel that one would give his soul to save that of another, who is capable of accomplishing greater good? (2) Is it possible for one to so live that his life may be an atonement for another?

(1) We can imagine one person loving another so intensely and being so ardently desirous to see that other serving Christ, that if the end could be achieved only in that way, he would sacrifice his soul to attain it. The Apostle Paul had that feeling in respect to his brethren (see Rom. 9: 3). It is simply an exaggerated case of love, and as such, having no practical outcome, is not wrong. (2) If you mean an atonement to God, it is not possible. No one can have his good deeds counted as merit to another. Every one must give account of himself to God. The sinner may plead Christ's atonement, which is sufficient for all; but if he has not accepted that, his plea that some person has made atonement for him would be rejected. To accept it would be an indignity to Christ. But if you mean atonement to another person, that is sometimes possible. A son, for example, may atone, in some cases, to a person whom his father has injured, for the injury his father inflicted.

Frank F., Barton, Oreg. Does conversion change a person's temper?

It sweetens not only the temper, but the whole life, giving us kindlier views of others, and more charitable ideas concerning even our enemies. When we realize the fullness of Christ's love and sacrifice for us, we experience a feeling of sympathy and helpfulness for all the world.

S. E. Y., Midland, Ga. There is a wide difference between legitimate and speculative trading—the latter being practically gambling. You send what you raise or produce to the best market, or you hold it until the most profitable season for selling, and you are justified in doing this in the ordinary course of trade, provided you do not oppress or take undue advantage of some one's necessity. Trading that forces up prices to the point of pinching or injuring others, or which makes any commodity so dear as to be almost inaccessible to many who need it, is immoral trading. The motto of the honorable trader is not "skin my neighbor," yet that is apparently the idea of the average speculative trader, who exults over being able to take advantage of another's need.

Mrs. A. M. H., Inland, O. What Scriptural grounds has a minister to refuse to vote at State or national elections, his church not forbidding him to cast a vote? What Scriptural grounds that he should vote? What would become of our country if all Christians would refuse to take part in governmental affairs?

None that we know of, either way. There are many pastors who are averse to taking an active part in political affairs, and this is commendable enough, since practical politics is a sorry business at best; but their repugnance should not lead them to become entirely indifferent to the government of the nation, the State, or the community in which they live. In a quiet and unostentatious way, every minister should be the advocate of good, upright government, just as he would uphe morality in business and in the commun generally. An electioneering preacher is offense to most people; but one who can, the right time and place, speak a word in half of official purity and national, State civic righteousness, can wield a powerful fluence. As to the minister's personal vc we can believe that there may be cases which he would not care to identify hims with any local party or faction; but secrecy of the ballot should give him perf freedom to vote as he pleases in State or tional elections.

S. V., Schenectady, N. Y. I have been told t St. Peter's, at Rome, was not a cathedral, though visiting it last summer, I was not a to verify the truth of the statement. Baedec spoke of it always as "The church of St. Pet while in Florence and Milan the word "cat dral" is applied to the noted churches.

The church of St. Peter's is a cathed church, being the chief or ruling church o diocese and containing the cathedra, or bi op's chair. It is equally correct to call either church or cathedral.

Jess, Plainfield, N. J. Robert Stephens printer, is said to have been the first to div the Bible into verses. This he did about 15 His system was followed in nearly all sut quent editions of the Scriptures.

C. A. B., Moline, Kan., writes:

Referring to question of "Subscriber," Hotchk Colo., "Is the second work of grace instantane as in conversion?" If by "the second work," grace of sanctification is meant, I will answer t in most of the Bible truths and doctrines, there two sides or points of view—the divine and hun In this grace, man's part is to consecrate, whic instantaneous. God's part is to cleanse and pu which he does by the Holy Spirit through Word, which latter part is a life-long process. made man in his own image and likeness. Sin faced this image. Jesus came to restore it, kn ing that it is impossible for us to do this of selves or in our own strength, therefore we t ourselves completely and entirely over to Jesu a perfect consecration, for him to "will and to d his good pleasure" in us, thus restoring the di image.

H. E. B., Central City, Colo. Can a Chris practice hypnotism on people for gain, and be a Christian? What injurious effect doe have upon those practised on? Will it ruin health, or not?

Hypnotism is not an accepted science. present it is practised mainly by quacks charlatans. Better let it alone. Any practising it is under the ban of suspicion.

L. C. D., Auburn, N. Y. The fee against the marriage of divorced person steadily growing in the churches and e where. In the case you mentioned, the serted wife, legally divorced, certainly has right to marry, but society looks askanc such unions and gives them a wide berth.

Virginia Subscriber. We have heard nothin the traveler, since the start.

Waiting Reader, New London, Mo. The st engine, steam harvester, telephone, X-ray and v less telegraph.

Mrs. S. S. T., Las Vegas, N. M. The histor the Moravians was briefly outlined in a recent i of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD.

Mrs. S. P. A., New York City. In respons our inquiries by cable, the Central Finnish R Committee in Helsingfors desired that the reli sent in the form of money. Possibly it ma practicable to send foodstuffs later.

E. H. S. W., Stafford, Conn. We suppose journey a wheel from Springfield, Mass., to Den Colo., could be made safely enough, but we k nothing of the dangers you might encounter on way. Write to the railroad companies about f

O. L. H., Vista, Va. 1. In a School of Mi Metallurgy, Mineralogy and the approved mo methods of mining are taught, involving, to s degree, applied chemistry, hydraulics, etc. "Salty" is an adjective, implying that the sub under discussion has a saltish taste or flavor— it is impregnated with salt. "Salt" is the t itself. Thus, it is not strictly accurate to say sea is salt," but "the sea is salty," "the bay is ish" or "brackish," etc.

M. H. McG., Des Moines, Ia. The questio often asked, "In what collection of hymns is verse to be found?"

When we've been there ten thousand years,
Bright shining as the sun;
We've no less days to sing God's praise,
Than when we first begun.

I was visiting my sister, Mrs. M. A. Bige Buffalo, Kan., some time ago, and in looking some of my father's old books, I found a collec of hymns (compiled by Alexander Campbell Scott, B. W. Stone and J. P. Johnson, of Beth Va., in 1837), and found the verse. The hymn gins, "Our souls are in the Saviour's hands."

HOW JERUSALEM WILL APPEAR AT ST. LOUIS IN 1904

THE reproductions at the St. Louis World's Fair of the "City of Jerusalem" promises to be one of the most attractive and instructive of all exhibits planned for the great Exposition of 1904. The Exposition directors have allotted to it ten acres in the heart of the grounds—a site which will make it the apex of the whole Exposition scheme. The surface will conform to the topography of Jerusalem; walls like those encircling the ancient city will enclose buildings, shops, bazaars, and homes faithfully reproduced; and hundreds of transplanted inhabitants of the real Jerusalem will walk the streets, following their usual avocations, and living their daily life here as there. The Bible reader will behold the hills, valleys, pools and streams he has known in sacred history. Here will be seen the Mosque of Omar, and underneath, the vaults known as Solomon's Stables; the Golden Gate, two of whose columns tradition says Sheba's Queen brought Solomon; the Via Dolorosa, along which it is said the Master bore his cross; the Mount of Olives, the Garden of Gethsemane, and the Jews' Wailing Place. At least three hundred natives of Jerusalem will be brought over to populate the city. The Jewish rabbi in his synagogue, the Moslem priest in his mosque, will conduct no imitation ceremonial, but actual services, each with his own people in attendance; and great festivals will be observed here as in the Orient. Everything possible will be done to give an educational and inspirational value to the exhibit. The President of the Advisory Board is Rev. Dr. W. B. Palmore; Mr. Alex. Konta is General Manager. Plans and arrangements are already being made by Sunday Schools to visit "Jerusalem" in a body. Interested readers may address Rev. Samuel I. Lindsay, Secretary Jerusalem Exhibit, St. Louis, Mo.

Our Complete Course in Shorthand
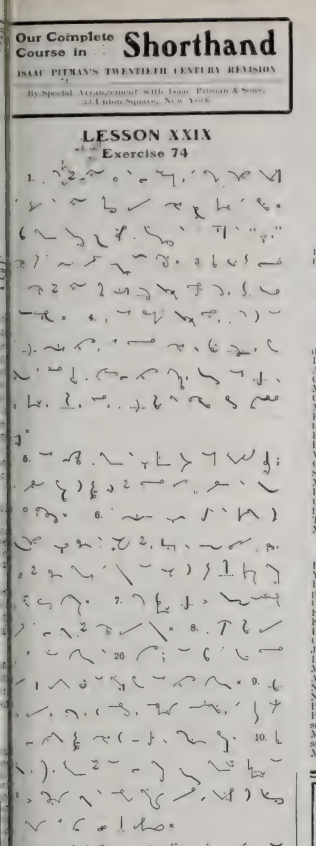
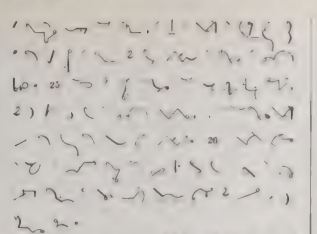
ISAAC PITMAN'S TWENTIETH CENTURY REVISION
By Special Arrangement with Isaac Pitman & Sons, 33 Union Square, New York

LESSON XXIX
Exercise 74





☞ The next lesson, No. XXX, will appear in the issue of Feb. 18, and will be entirely devoted to short hand reading practice.

Announcement of Prize-Winners

SEE ARTICLE ON PAGE 124

Second best answers to Picture Puzzle Contest

Aarons, Florence J., Jamaica: Adams, A. E., Calif.: Anderson, E., Minn.; Arendt, Georgia M., Neb.; Beckett, Leslie M., N. J.; Bishop, Harold M., Minn.; Bishop, J. Arnet, Pa.; Brenner, Robert, Oreg.; Brewer, R., N. J.; Campbell, Emma L., Ill.; Casteel, Julia, Vt.; Cass, Alta, Minn.; Chamberlain, Alice, S. D.; Chapple, R., Mass.; Cook, Rosalind, Ia.; Davis, Grace L., Can.; Dodds, Mary A., Colo.; Eells, R. W., Wash.; Earl, G., Ind.; Frazell, Ray, Okla.; Fosdick, Maud H., Kan.; Frankenberg, L., Wis.; Fullenwider, Malcolm, Kan.; Goodall, Elsie N., D. C.; Guest, Dorothy, H., Vt.; Hartney, R., N. J.; Hickey, Louise, Ariz.; Hughes, Mae, Okla.; Johnson, W. W., Mont.; Logan, Lena B., N. Y.; McDowell, Olivia, Calif.; McPoland, W., Wash.; Matteru, G., O.; Meade, S. A., Tex.; Parker, Alice, Mich.; Pierce, Florence, Minn.; Potter, Vera L., Mich.; Rechten, C. H., N. J.; Russell, R., Tenn.; Saunders, H., Can.; Smart, Bessie, Can.; South, Katie, Miss.; Spicer, Florence, N. Y.; Stafford, H., O.; Swarts, Elsie, Neb.; Tobey, A. A., Oreg.; Torrence, Mary, N. D.; Vance, Bessie, Idaho; Wilkin, Mary R., N. D.; Winger, F. D., Ill., O.

Second best answers to "Curious Questions":

Adams, Irene, Can.; Ainslie, Charles, Minn.; Albright, Leland, Can.; Austin, Edith, S. C.; Baleh, Marjorie, N. Y.; Barton, Harold C., Vt.; Braidsford, Mayste, S. C.; Brisbin, William J., N. Y.; Carter, Emma, Cal.; Davenport, Harry, Pa.; Donaldson, Vera, Mich.; Edgar, Gladys, Neb.; Ellis, Ethel, N. J.; Ellis, Robert, N. J.; Felt, Dorothy L., Ohio; Fitch, Ruth, Pa.; Gastman, Florence J., Ills.; Getman, Margaurite, N. J.; Gregory, Bertha L., N. Y.; Gutlick, P., S., N. J.; Hampton, Ethel Co., Pa.; Hathaway, Clara, N. Y.; Hickey, Rose, Ariz.; Johnson, Fay, Mich.; Keeler, Edna E., Conn.; Kendall, Lloyd, Ia.; Kiskaddon, Walter, Pa.; McKee, Maud, O.; Mendenhall, L., Ia.; Merrill, C., Me.; Morrison, Ama, N. H.; Murray, Grace E., N. Y.; Myer, W., Kans.; Nisley, Olive A., Ore.; Nold, Myra M., O.; Norton, L. D., Neb.; Paddock, Frances M., Minn.; Parker, Bessie, Pa.; Potter, L. A., Jr., D. C.; Perkins, Esther, Conn.; Perkins, Kenneth, Cal.; Pickett, L. F., Wis.; Ross, Josephine, Ill.; Smith, Clara, N. Y.; Rickey, Maude, Myrtle, Mo.; Thompson, Jessie, N. Y.; Treat, Mabel, O.; Watson, Edward F., N. Y.; Wilson, Robert, O.; Zahner, Mamie C., O.

SEND US 25c. to cover cost of packing and postage, and receive this grand "Sunshine" collection of Beautiful Flowers, our new catalogue containing the most liberal offers ever made, and a CASH CHECK for 25c., giving you your money back.

20 PACKETS SEED

1 Pkt Evening Primrose	1 Pkt Giant Daisy
1 Pkt Kudzu Vine	1 Pkt Aster
1 Pkt Balloon Vine	1 Pkt Begonia
1 Pkt Baby Rose	1 Pkt Cal. Poppy
1 Pkt Blue Bells	1 Pkt Love Lies Bleeding
1 Pkt Star Flower	2 Pkts Pansy (named)
1 Pkt Double Carnation	1 Pkt Chrysanthemum
1 Pkt Petunia, white	1 Pkt Double Portulacca
	1 Pkt Sweet Pea
	1 Pkt Cypress Vine
	1 Pkt Wild Flower, garden

20 Bulbs 1 Calla, 1 Madeira Vine, 2 Gladiolus, 2 Cinnamon Vine, 1 Anemone, 2 Hyacinth, 1 Montbretia. Suitable for Edging or Hanging Basket. 20 Pkts. Seed, 20 Bulbs, Cash Check and Catalogue all for the price of the packing and postage 25c.

J. ROSCOE FULLER & CO., Floral Park, N. Y.

Peerless Steam Cooker and SANITARY WATER STILL

Combines two valuable articles in one. Cooks a whole dinner over one burner. Emits no odors. Cheap meat made nutritious and tender. Reduces fuel Bills. Whistles for water, and can be used as a Perfect Water Still for making the best distilled water. Imitated by others but never equaled. Agents wanted.

Peerless Cooker Co., Buffalo N. Y.

D. and C. Roses

are the best. Always on their own roots. Plants sent to any point in the United States. Safe arrival guaranteed. 50 years' experience. Flower and Vegetable Seeds a specialty. Write for for 1903—the leading rose catalogue of America. 172 pages. Mailed Free. Nearly 1,000 varieties. Tells how to grow them and all other desirable flowers. Est. 1850. 70 greenhouses.

Guide to Rose Culture

THE DINGEE & CONARD CO., West Grove, P.

CASH for Your PROPERTY

We can sell your farm, residence, factory, lots or business quickly for cash, no matter where you are. Send description and learn how. Money to loan on good mortgages. Established in 1885. Offices in principal cities. Highest references. A. N. ROTTVEH & CO.,
934 Real Estate Trust Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa.

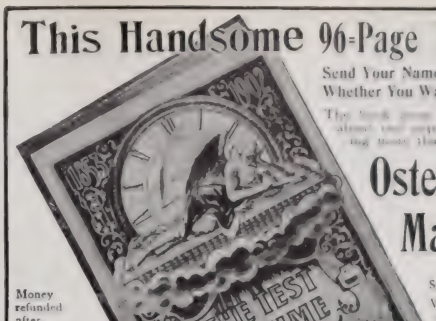
We Want Women Workers to be Independent

by selling to the best families in your locality our Toilet Preparations, Flavoring Extracts, Teas, Spices, Baking Powder, Fine Soaps, and our Famous Pickstone Rolling Crystal Hardware Sample Case Free. Write to-day for full details and exclusive agency.

THE KLINKER-BROOKE MFG. CO., - Dept. D, Cleveland, O.

This Handsome 96-Page Book FREE!

Send Your Name on a Postal
Whether You Want a Mattress or Not



The book gives strong letters and tells about our unparalleled success in selling more than a thousand of them

Ostermoor Patent Elastic Felt Mattress, $15.

Express Charges Prepaid.
Smaller Sizes at Smaller Prices.

Why sleep on a hair mattress any longer? You can't turn hair, for there's too long a staple in it. It is a bag stuffed with hundred haired dead animals and it sags and lumps and bags so you have to have it made over every now and then. It costs more money to keep the best hair mattress in order than to buy an Ostermoor mattress which is its superior. The Ostermoor will not bag or sag—not in fifty years. It keeps its shape, and is always in condition to give you sound, invigorating sleep.

Money refunded after Thirty Nights' Free Trial if not all you even hoped for.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS trading on the name of "felt." It's not FELT if it's not an OSTERMOOR. Our name and guarantee on every genuine mattress.

OSTERMOOR & COMPANY, 115 Elizabeth St., New York

We have cushioned 25,000 churches. Send for our book "Church Cushions."

43 Flowers only 30 cents

Worth $1.25

A SPECIAL OFFER made to introduce our goods. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

20 Pkts. SEEDS

1 Pkt. Rambler Rose 3 colors mixed.	1 Pkt. Diamond Flower.
" Pansies, Bloders mixed.	" California Sweet Peas.
" Washington Weeping Palm.	" Double Chinese Pink.
" Mary Semple Asters, 4 colors.	" Carnation Marguerite.
" Alyssum, Little Gem, mixed.	" Heliotrope mixed.
" Bouquet Chrysanthemum.	" Poppy—New Shirley.
" Forget-me-not Victoria.	" Umbrella Plant.
" Hibiscus Crimson Eye.	" Giant Verbena, mixed
" Lovely Butterfly Flower.	" Japan Morning Glory.
" Phlox Drummondii.	" Petunia Hybrid, mixed

23 BULBS

1 New Red Calla Lily, 1 Summer Flowering Hyacinth, 1 Double Pearl Tuberose, 2 Butterfly and 2 Hybrid Gladiolus, 8 Fine Mixed Oxalis, 2 Rainbow Lilies, 2 Handy Wind Flowers, 2 Lovely Cinnamon Vines, 3 Splendid New Canna Lilies—1 crimson, 1 golden.

A Return Check Good for 25 Cents on next $1.00 order; also our

New Floral Guide, all above postpaid, only 30c.

THE CONARD & JONES CO.
Growers of the "Best Roses in America."
Box 0, WEST GROVE, PA.

Ferry's Seeds

Seeds the Kind that Leads cost more—yield more. sold by all dealers.

1903 Seed Annual postpaid free to all applicants.

D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich.

Kitchen Utensils HAVING THIS TRADE MARK

ARE SAFE.

NO POISON
Has Ever Been Found in the Enamel of Agate Nickel-Steel Ware.

The BLUE LABEL
Protected by Decision of United States Court, pasted on every piece

PROVES IT.

If substitutes are offered, write us. New Booklet Free.

Agate Nickel-Steel Ware is sold by the leading Department and Housefurnishing Stores.

Lalance & Grosjean Mfg. Co., New York, Boston, Chicago.

Reduces Your Fuel Bill 50%

WHEN YOU USE OUR

PERFECT STEAM COOKER WITH DOORS

Steam-cooked foods are healthier and more digestible than cooked or baked. Large meat cooked over one burner. Wonderful saving of time and labor. Book free. Used on any kind of stove. AGENTS WANTED. $90 to $40 a week can be made.

Also makers of Vapor Bath Cabinets. Write for Catalogue.

OHIO STEAM COOKER CO.,
27 Ontario Building. - - TOLEDO, OHIO

ARTISTIC MONUMENTS

DUE respect for our departed loved ones demands that we erect

ARTISTIC and ENDURING MEMORIALS

Marble has proved an unfortunate failure. Moss-grown, broken and tumbled-down slabs appear everywhere. Some cemeteries now prohibit marble entirely. Granite, too, soon gets discolored, moss-grown, cracks, crumbles and decays. Bronze, if it is very expensive.

WHITE BRONZE

monuments are cheaper and

Infinitely Better.

They are strictly everlasting. Rust, corrosion, frost and cracks, growth are IMPOSSIBILITIES. They CANNOT crumble from the action of frost. WHITE BRONZE is far more artistic and expressive than any stone. Then why not investigate it? It has been on the market for over twenty-five years and is an established success.

It has been adopted for more than a hundred prominent monuments now by thousands of delighted users in all parts of the country. Many granite dealers have used White Bronze in preference to granite for their own burial plots.

We have hundreds of beautiful designs at prices from $4 to $4,000. We deal direct and deliver everywhere. Distance is no obstacle. Write us at once for designs and information if you are interested. It costs nothing and puts you under no obligations whatever.

☞ Special Inducements Offered on Winter Orders.

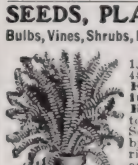
Over $80,000 worth of work sold to Christian Herald readers in the last few years. AGENTS WANTED.

THE MONUMENTAL BRONZE CO.,
70-90 Howard Ave., Bridgeport, Conn.

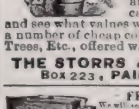
SEEDS, PLANTS, ROSES,

Bulbs, Vines, Shrubs, Fruit and Ornamental Trees



The best by 49 years test, 1,000 acres, 40 in hardy roses, 44 greenhouses of Palms, Ferns, Ficus, Geraniums, Everblooming Roses and other things too numerous to mention. Seeds, Plants, Roses, Etc., by mail postpaid, safe arrival and satisfaction guaranteed. Elegant 168 page catalogue free, send for it and see what values we give for a little money; a number of cheap collections of Seeds, Plants, Trees, Etc., offered which will interest you.

THE STORRS & HARRISON CO.,
Box 223, PAINESVILLE, OHIO.



FREE FOR 30 DAYS.

We will send our grand new book "HOW TO MAKE MONEY WITH POULTRY AND INCUBATORS" free, postpaid, for the next 30 days to those who mention this paper in writing for it. It's the best we ever published. 9x11 ins. 196 pages. Handsome original illustrations. Expensive chapters on vital poultry subjects. Write us now as we offer for it.

Cyphers Incubator Co.,
Buffalo, N. Y. Chicago, Ill. Boston, Mass. New York, N. Y.

POULTRY CATALOG FREE!

Has formed. Lowest prices of hens and eggs. Poultry Papers, Books, Poultry Supplies. Tells all. Greatest Hatcher. 11 best new Stamps. Book 10 cents. Book, Brooder, 2 Stamps. Knowledge and success. J. R. Brabazon, Jr. & Co., Box 98, Delavan, Wis.

STARK TREES best by Test—78 Years LARGEST Nursery. Fruit Book free. We PAY CASH WANT MORE SALESMEN Weekly STARK BROS, Louisiana, Mo.; Dansville, N. Y.; Et

Boys who make Money after School Hours

Over 3000 Boys in various parts of the country are making money in their spare time selling The Saturday Evening Post. Some make as much as $10.00 and $15.00 a week. Any boy who reads this can do the same.

IN A DAINTY little booklet, which we will send to any boy free, the most successful of our boy agents tell in their own way just how they have made a success of selling

The Saturday Evening Post

There are many stories of real business tact. Pictures of the boys are given. Send for this booklet and we will forward with it full information how you can begin this work. No money required to start. We will send Ten Copies of the magazine the first week free. Write to-day.

The Curtis Publishing Company
Philadelphia, Pa.

TO SUIT EVERYBODY! JUST OUT!
For Sunday Schools,
Young People's Societies,
Revival Meetings, etc.
100 New Songs.
256 Pages.
Bound in cloth.

Young People's Songs of Praise

4 EDITIONS:
REGULAR,
EPWORTH LEAGUE,
CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR,
BAPTIST Y. P. UNION.
25c. per copy. RETURNABLE SAMPLE FREE
THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., New York-Chicago.

ONE YEAR'S FREE TRIAL

Kenwood ORGANS $21.75 to $78.50

Shipped on approval anywhere in the U. S. NO MONEY IN ADVANCE. Guaranteed for 25 years.

Magnificent exclusive designs, unexcelled action, sweetest tone. Kenwood Model Grand, as illustrated, a masterpiece of organ building, $48.75. Thousands in use. Testimonials from every state. Send for our big illustrated Piano and Organ Catalogue FREE.

The renowned Kenwood Pianos and Organs cost less than half what dealers and agents charge for inferior makes. Cash Buyers' Union, Dept. 0-18 Chicago.

The why some shopkeepers do not sell President Suspenders is they make more money on imitations. Fifty cents and a dollar.

Name of favorite shop, or post paid from

C. A. EDGARTON MFG. CO.
Box 2909-L, Shirley, Mass.
Send for booklet—mailed free

Near-Brussels Art-Rugs, $3.00

Sizes and Prices
9by6 ft. - $3.00
9by7½ ft. 3.50
9by9 ft. - 4.00
9by10½ ft. 4.50
9by12 ft. 5.00

Oriental Importing Co., 687 I Bourse Building, Philadelphia

CORRESPONDENCE COURSES in Drawing, Photography, Engineering, Penmanship, Bookkeeping, Catalogue free. W. L. Carl, Principal, Pres., Iowa Christian College, Oskaloosa, Ia.

OUR SUNDAY HOUR WITH THE LITTLE FOLKS

CHILDREN, the answers to "Curious Questions" take up so much space this week, that our talk, except as referring to these, must be confined simply to the greeting: "Welcome." "Curious Questions," Dec. 14, were given you, not as "brain teasers," but as a sort of "kindness to animals" exercise. Not one of you, we believe, is ever intentionally cruel to bird or beast; nay, you are gentle and merciful to them. But do you not sometimes forget them? Has no little pet ever gone hungry because your memory failed to carry its needs? Your recent researches have shown you God takes thought for the lowliest of his creatures.

Perhaps, you have acquired a good deal of information about the natural history of the Bible, too. You have learned, for instance, that a bat is a beast, not a bird; and many other interesting things. Your answers show intelligent research. Not one is perfect, and to such questions perfect answers were not expected.

Infallibility is not claimed for the answers given below, but they are based upon the best authorities at command, Wood's Animals of the Bible being among these; and you will doubtless find the lists and classification instructive. You were not held to standards out of your reach, but simply to the Authorized Version of the Bible, found in every home. In that, names of beasts and birds, as given below, occur, some exceptions being noted.

COMPETITION 19

What two proper names in Scripture do these pictures represent?

Write "Competition 19" plainly across the top of a postal card or sheet of paper; next, your name, age and address; then the answers. For each of the two answers employ but one word—the name which you think the picture represents. Don't quote Scripture passages; simply state the name—no more. Read the rules given below.

Competition 20
Curious Questions

1. Who is first mentioned as shedding tears?
2. When did men begin to pray?
3. What was God's first command?
4. What was Christ's corresponding command?

Write "Competition 20" plainly across the top of your postal card or sheet of paper; next, your name, age, and address. Answer as many of the questions as you can, writing in each case the number of the question (not the question itself) before its answer. Answers to all four questions must not exceed fifty words in the aggregate. Read the following rules.

RULES AND PRIZES

Contests are not open to competitors over fourteen years of age. Only one weekly competition is open to any one person. If you answer both Competition 19 and 20 you forfeit your chances therefor. Do not send two solutions. There is no objection to asking the help of others, but each competitor must send in the answers in his or her own handwriting. Should you use paper instead of a postal card, be sure to write on the envelope in which you enclose your answer "Competition 19" or "Competition 20," as the case may be. Do not write on both sides of a sheet of paper.

Prizes are as follows: For the best answer to "Competition 19," a handsome silver watch, lady's or gentleman's; for each of the twenty-five next best answers, a beautiful book. For the best answer to "Competition 20," a handsome silver watch, lady's or gentleman's, for each of the twenty-five next best answers, a beautiful book.

All answers must be mailed not later than February 16, 1903. Address, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, Little Folks Department, Bible House, New York.

ANSWERS TO COMPETITIONS OF JAN. 14, 1903

Picture Puzzle. 1. Babylon; 2. Canaan. Curious Questions. 1. Texts showing God's merciful remembrance of animals: Gen. 1: 30; 8: 1; Ex. 23: 4-5; 34: 26; Lev. 22: 28; 25: 7; Num. 20: 8; 22: 32; Deut. 22: 1-4; 22: 6, 10; 25: 4; II. Kings 3: 17; Job 38: 41; 39 (almost entire chapter); Ps. 36: 6; 50: 11; 84: 3; 104 (almost entire chapter); 145-10; 147: 9; Prov. 12: 10; Ezek. 17: 23; Hos. 2: 18; Joel 2: 22; Jon. 4: 11; Matt. 6: 26; 10: 29; 12: 11; Luke 12: 6, 24; 14: 5. Frequent comparison of Christ to a good shepherd, as Ps. 23; Isa. 40: 11; Ezek. 34; John 10: 11-16; I. Peter 5: 4, is the highest Divine endorsement of one who is merciful to and watchful over the beasts in his care. In the Fourth Commandment (Ex. 20: 10; Deut. 5: 14), rest for beasts was ordered, as also in the Sabbatical year, when their food was provided for.

Beasts of the Bible.—Ape, ass, wild ass, badger, bat, bear, behemoth, camel, dromedary; cattle, including kine, bulls, oxen, bullock, heifer, calf, sheep, lamb, ram, ewe, goats, kid; chamois, coney; dog, greyhound; elephant (marginal reading), fox or jackal; fallow deer, hart, hind, roe, roebuck, wild ox, gazelle (R. V.); antelope (R. V.); wild goat, pygarg, hare, horse, leopard, lion, mule, mouse, mule, swine, wild boar, wild bull; wild ox, chesnut; weasel, wolf. Cats are not mentioned, but, as cats were held in high esteem in Egypt before the Exodus, they must not have been unknown to the Hebrews. There were also hyenas and basilisks, but they are not mentioned.

Birds.—Bittern; chicken, hen, cock; cormorant, crane, dove, duck, fowl, hawk; eagle, sea eagle; gier eagle; night hawk, kite; heron, lapwing, ossifrage; ostrich; owl, great owl, little owl, horned owl, partridge, peacock, pelican, pigeon, quail, raven, sparrow, stork, swallow, swan, vulture.

Types of Christ. All the animals used in sacrifice by reason of sacrifice; the lamb by reason of [illegible] Doves and pigeons as used in sacrifice; the hen hovering over her brood. The eagle, given by a number of little readers, was a type of Jehovah, and can be said only to have applied to Christ in that he and the Father are one.

The roe and the hart in the Song of Songs are said to have been used by Solomon to typify Christ. The brazen serpent, lifted up in the wilderness, was given by many little readers. The brazen serpent was a type of Christ, but it was not a living creature, and had it been, as a serpent it would be classed among reptiles and not among beasts.

Great care and pains have been spent upon selection of texts. We would be glad if our children would read them over in the order in which they are given. It is suggested to Sunday School teachers that great and lasting good might result from having their pupils write the texts out and bring them to Sunday School; the lives of thousands of dumb creatures might in the future be guarded from unnecessary pain because of the impression made. The search for these texts of mercy might be more extensive than the limits of this department permits.

Announcement of Prize-Winners

For the best answer to "Picture Puzzles" of January 14, Edith Rowley, Southbridge, Mass., receives our Smith-Pebodget Bible Dictionary. Raymond C. Hopkins, Shamrock, R. I., receives the illustrated book, Wild Animals I Have Known, by Ernest Seton Thompson; for best answers to "Curious Questions," January 14, each of the following receives the beautiful calendar, Sunshine and her Pets:

CONTINUED ON PAGE 123

The Mother's Friend

when nature's supply fails, is Borden's Eagle Brand Condensed Milk. It is a cow's milk adapted to infants, according to the highest scientific methods. An infant fed on Eagle Brand will show a steady gain in weight.

Oldsmobile

"Built to run and does it"

A practical realization of the ideal—man's masterpiece of mechanical simplicity.

The Oldsmobile is the child of necessity, amply filling the demand for a reliable, speedy and safe Automobile at a popular price.

Its advantages are evidenced by the satisfaction of its 7000 drivers. Imitations always lack the perfection of the original—the pioneer runabout is The Best Thing on Wheels.

Price $650.00.

Write for illustrated book to Dept. O

Olds Motor Works
Detroit, Mich.

A CANADIAN LANDMARK

Over 67% of all typewriters bought by the Canadian Government during last fiscal year were Smith Premiers

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE FREE.
THE SMITH PREMIER TYPEWRITER CO.
SYRACUSE, N.Y. U.S.A.

Absolute Range Perfection

Sold for Cash or on Monthly Payments.

$10 to $20 Saved.

Freight paid east of the Mississippi River and north of the Tennessee Line; equalized beyond.

Your money refunded after six months' trial if not satisfactory.

Clapp's Ideal Steel Range is not 50 per cent. better than others. My superior location on Lake Erie, where iron, steel, coal, freights and skilled labor are cheaper and best, enables me to furnish a TOP NOTCH Steel Range at a clean saving of $10 to $20. Send for free catalogues of all styles and sizes, with or without reservoir, for city, town or country use.

CHESTER D. CLAPP, 620 Summit Street, Toledo, Ohio.
(PRACTICAL STOVE AND RANGE MAN.)

ORNAMENTAL FENCING

Made of steel. Best workmanship. Handsomest in design. Perfect yard protection. LOWEST IN PRICE. Fully Guaranteed. Special prices to Churches and cemeteries. Catalogue FREE.
KITSELMAN BROTHERS,
136 Oak St. Muncie, Indiana.

Mellin's Food

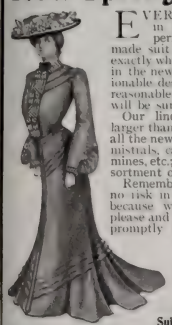
is nourishing and comforting.

Send for a free sample of Mellin's Food.

Mellin's Food Co., Boston, Mass.

We have no agents or branch stores.

New Spring Styles.



EVERY woman delights in a well-made and perfect-fitting tailor-made suit or skirt. This is exactly what we can offer you in the newest and most fashionable designs, and at such reasonable prices that you will be surprised.

Our line of materials is larger than ever, and includes all the newest fabrics, such as mistrals, canvas weaves, etamines, etc.; also a splendid assortment of staple materials.

Remember this—you take no risk in ordering from us because whatever does not please and fit may be returned promptly and your money will be refunded.

We pay express charges everywhere.

Our Catalogue illustrates fashionable Suits, $5 up; Etamine Costumes, $12 up; stylish Skirts in the new French cut, $4 up; Rainy-day and Walking Skirts of splendid serviceable materials, $5 up; some entirely new things in Walking Suits, $10 up; jaunty Jackets of the new Spring coating fabrics, $6 up.

Write to-day for our new Spring Catalogue and Samples; we will send them free by return mail.

NATIONAL CLOAK AND SUIT COMPANY,
119 and 121 West 23d St., New York.

THE INGERSOLL Dollar Watch IS THE KING OF WATCHES

The Ingersoll is the King of all so-called cheap watches because it is the only one of this class having quality added to low price.

The quality is proven by the strongest guarantee given with any watch.

Ask for an Ingersoll and see that you get it.

If you don't, send us a dollar and you will receive one by mail prepaid.

BOOKLET FREE

Address Dept. 61

ROBT. H. INGERSOLL & BRO.
53 Maiden Lane, NEW YORK

NOTHING AS GOOD ADVERTISED ANYWHERE.

ewing Machines

7.25 TO 26.50 Shipped on approval where in U.S. No money in advance. All kinds, all ses; direct from factories. iding salesmen's expenses l dealers or agents exorbi- t profits saves you from $10 45. Estab. 1885. 250,000 sold. timonials from every state. erence: First Nat'l Bank, cago. Send for big illustrated catalogue showing al es and samples of work.

SH BUYER'S UNION, Dept. K 18 Chicago

The "Best" Light

is a portable 100 candle power light costing only 2cts. per week. Makes and burns its own gas. Brighter than electricity or acetylene and cheaper than kerosene. No Dirt. No Grease. No Odor. Over 100 styles. Lighted instantly with a match. Every lamp warranted. Agents Wanted Everywhere.

THE "BEST" LIGHT CO.
3—70 E. 5th Street, CANTON, OHIO.

QUAINT PSALMS for QUEER FOLK

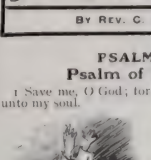
By Rev. C. H. Yatman

PSALM LXIX
Psalm of Sackcloth

1 Save me, O God; for the waters are come in unto my soul.

2 I sink in deep mire, where there is no standing: I am come into deep waters, where the floods overflow me.

3 I am weary of my crying: my throat is dried: mine eyes fail while I wait for my God.



"INTO DEEP WATERS"

Were it not that in Christ we are promised "beauty for ashes" this Psalm would seldom get a reading. 'Tis here we hear the groan and feel the agony of a King crucified—the gall of bitterness tasted by so many is here analyzed. Oh, ye who are dressed in sackcloth, read this Psalm through to its end. If it begins by "I sink in deep mire," it ends by giving him a dwelling-place in Zion.

PSALM LXX
Psalm for the Poor and Needy

5 I am poor and needy: make haste unto me, O God: thou art my help and my deliverer; O Lord, make no tarrying.

"I AM POOR AND NEEDY"

Some folks can wait for help, but the poor and needy want God to make haste. The only place in Scripture where God is represented as in a hurry is when he runs to meet the Prodigal son. Many are like that younger son, in deep poverty and distress. A starving man does not want homily but hominy. The poor need less Latin and Greek, and more of love and warm-hearted goodness.

PSALM LXXI
Old Folk's Psalm

5 For thou art my hope, O Lord God: thou art my trust from my youth.

"IN THE TIME OF OLD AGE"

6 By thee have I been holden up from the womb: thou art he that took me out of my mother's bowels: my praise shall be continually of thee.

7 I am as a wonder unto many; but thou art my strong refuge.

8 Let my mouth be filled with thy praise and with thy honor all the day.

9 Cast me not off in the time of old age; forsake me not when my strength faileth.

This Psalm is not a "home for the aged," but a palace for the pilgrim, where he may rest before the last mile of life's journey is undertaken. They who serve God in youth will find in age God serving them. Childhood is sweet, youth is beautiful, manhood is magnificent—but a hoary head is a crown of glory. I'd like to fight sin until after eighty—Rest is all the sweeter after a long march.

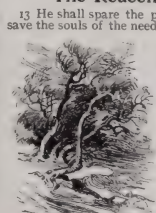
PSALM LXXII
The Redeemer's Psalm

13 He shall spare the poor and needy, and shall save the souls of the needy.

14 He shall redeem their soul from deceit and violence: and precious shall their blood be in his sight.

16 There shall be a handful of corn in the earth upon the top of the mountains; the fruit thereof shall shake like Lebanon: and they of the city shall flourish like grass of the earth.

17 His name shall endure forever: his name shall be continued as long as the sun: and men shall be blessed in him: all nations shall call him blessed.



"SHALL SHAKE LIKE LEBANON"

David wrote this Psalm for Solomon, but God wrote it for his Son, for there is but one Redeemer for the soul. All the Psalms are his, for all truth is his—for he is the truth. Solomon gave us wisdom. The Redeemer gives us life—one gave us Proverbs, the other gives us principles—Solomon sinned, the Saviour, never.

THE LUNCH QUESTION.

How a Big Chicago Firm Solved It.

So many employes "bolt the lunch" and eat what they should not, that they soon show the effect in nervousness and disappears. This has attracted the attention of managers of big stores and shops. In one Chicago firm an experiment on some of the girls resulted in a complete solution of the question.

The woman that made the experiment tells the tale as follows: "About a year ago I became alarmed at the state of my daughter's health. She was employed by a big firm here and for some reason or other had lost flesh, got a very nervous, had no appetite and could not sleep.

"Questioning her I found she ate but little lunch, for at that busy hour she was seldom served promptly and the time being short she just 'bolted' the food and rushed back. She ate very light breakfasts and I could see she suffered from lack of nourishment. I felt responsible for this and finally got her some Grape-Nuts for breakfast.

"I also got a neat leather case holding two pint flasks. One I filled with milk, the other with cold Postum Coffee which had been properly made. She also carried a package of Grape-Nuts. The Postum she drank iced with a dash of lemon. She followed the Grape-Nuts with some fruit and this made up her lunch.

"In spite of the warm weather she improved greatly in two weeks' time. She gained in flesh, her nerves were steady and she slept sweetly at night. She never felt the old weakness from hunger.

"In a short time a few other girls in the office tried it and the effect was so marked upon all that still others were persuaded. Finally a room was cleared out and the one hundred and odd girls were served daily with Grape-Nuts and hot Postum. It was a revolution, but the manager saw the good result and adopted the plan, greatly to the benefit of the health of the employees and at a saving in expense." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Life is a Fight in which the Best Boy Wins

A clear brain, a strong body and pure blood are necessary to success.

MALTA-CERES

THE Health Food.

gives health to brain, muscles and blood—makes life worth living. MALTA-CERES is pre-digested, easily assimilated by the weakest stomach and supplies perfect food to the body.

Also served with Fish, Oysters, Fruit, etc.

It's Ready to Eat
Delicious—Unequaled

Sample Package Sent free for your Grocer's Name.

THE TWIN CITY NUT FOOD CO.,
2838 Bryant Avenue Minneapolis, Minn.

PAIR of KIDS FREE

and They are Good Ones, Too. Usual retail price is $1.50. To help introduce our New Flavoring Extracts among your friends we will give you a pair of real good kid gloves for selling only one dozen extracts at 50 cents each. They sell readily and once bought are always asked for again so you can make a permanent and growing business. We sell only 3 dozen for a Dress Skirt, Rug or Mackintosh.

No Money Required—We Trust You.

Lay This Magazine Down And Write Us Now.

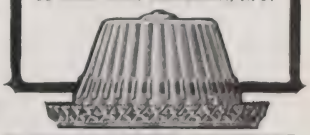
We will send you at once one dozen assorted Flavoring Extracts to commence with, all charges paid, also our Catalogue, showing many articles you can easily and quickly earn by selling one dozen up to thirty dozen. We guarantee our extracts to give satisfaction. If you can't sell them we will take them back, but there's NO CAN'T about it. YOU CAN. PETERSON & CO.,
1340 Belmont Ave., Dept. 44, CHICAGO, ILL.

KNOX'S GELATINE

It's Not Like Pie, It's Healthy. Why? Send for Free book

"Dainty Desserts for Dainty People." Send your grocer's name. He can supply the pure and full quantity packages to fit you. A package of Knox's will make a quart (a gallon if you like)—enough for ten large portions.

CHAS. B. KNOX,
55 Knox Ave., Johnstown, N.Y.



PLEASES MISTRESS AND MAID.

Ox Fibre Scrub Brush

Hub Brand.

They take the backache out of cleaning, last many times as long and do the work twice as easily. The fibres never break off or fall out and they never matt or become water soaked. Ox Fibre Scrub Brushes save time, work and money.

Insist on Ox Fibre, and see that you get the Hub Brand. Price 25 cents. For sale by dealers or will be sent direct from the makers, postpaid, on receipt of price.

OX FIBRE BRUSH CO., Cincinnati, O., U. S. A.

Trustworthy men and women find

PROFITABLE EMPLOYMENT

Selling Aluminum Cooking Utensils, 100 different styles. Highest grade made. Cannot rust, crack or scale. Handsome as silver and 4 times lighter. Last a lifetime.

Our new method makes work easy, pleasant and profitable. Best offer you ever had. Write to-day.

ALUMINUM COOKING UTENSIL CO.
District 3, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Made their mark

Dixon's Pencils

Write for illustrated booklet V free.

JOSEPH DIXON CRUCIBLE CO.,
Jersey City, N. J.

CLEAN CUT CAKE TIN

FREE TO AGENTS

Outfit free Exp. prepaid. Dept. T

HOUSEHOLD NOVELTY WORKS, Chicago, Ill., or Buffalo, N.Y.

The Redemption of Fairlee

By MRS. SUSAN M. GRIFFITH

IN years they were not old, for Miss Fanny had but just stepped over into the borderland of forty, and Miss Serepta was not yet forty-three; but, alas! their hearts were wrinkled, shriveled and gray. They had kept them so securely locked away from the world for so many, many years, that they had missed the warm sunshine of its love, the breezy, healthful currents of its thought, and the sweet springs of its sympathy; and the result was the blight of time instead of the flowers of eternity.

The sisters Fairlee really knew very little and cared less for all the splendid movements going on all around them for the amelioration of the suffering, the relief of the poor, the systematic and prayerful efforts to "help a fallen brother rise;" these things in no wise concerned them. Their business was to live becomingly in the one fine mansion house of the town, ride in their stately manner in their stately carriage, dress in silk attire, and, in other ways, keep up the dignity of the family name and do honor to their inherited wealth. And so it came to pass, that, while around them there was abounding life, untiring energy, and immortal youth, they were fast fading into what they were really considered, "The two old ladies of Warwick."

Across the road from them lived Mrs. Browning, their exact opposite. Mrs. Browning was, really, an old lady, having stepped beyond her three-score years and ten, but no one ever thought of age as connected with her. She had a genial nature, whose cordiality was habitual and whose sunshine warmed the world; a face in which smiles lingered lovingly, and a crown of glory was her silvery hair. Her brisk energy and bright intelligence, awake to every good thing going on in the world, was contagious, and there was a charm in her manner that always brought the boys and girls around her like bees. She was the instigator and leader in all their plans for useful work or innocent recreation; the very centre of their Young People's Meetings, the wisdom of their social life, the chairman of their committees. Why, they would have been utterly lost without Mrs. Browning. Warwick would hardly have been Warwick, and certainly the church would not have been the church it was without the presence and influence of this old lady with an evergreen heart. How different from the Fairlee sisters!

A boy couldn't so much as peek through the fence at the fruit trees in the Fairlee orchard, but he was immediately accused of the crime of theft, at least in intention, and ordered off with threatening gestures; a little girl dared not, the second time, pause to admire the wealth of roses and other rare flowers blooming so luxuriously in the front yard, and, in the innocency of her heart, breathe a timid wish for one upon the fragrant air; she was at once given to understand that "loiterers were always meddlers and were never encouraged at Fairlee Place." The stray little waif of a kitty that found its way to the back door of the big house, and pitifully mewed for a drop of milk or a crumb of bread from the hand of sweet charity, found nothing better than "scat," and a basin of hot water for its portion. So, though it was not one bit nice in the children, it is scarcely to be wondered at that they turned up their little noses at the sisters Fairlee, and introduced them thus: "There goes the two old maid Fairlees, Miss Fan and Miss Srepty. Ugh! they're the stingiest, meanest old things you ever seen! Nobody likes 'em. They're always and forever looking for meanness in people, when it's theirselves it's in all the whole time."

When Mrs. Browning first came to Warwick, she at once became interested in the Fairlee sisters. Of course, Mrs. Browning always made it a point of Christian duty to be interested in everybody, but these two ladies held an additional claim upon her attention; they were her neighbors, in a local sense, and her desire was to be neighborly with them; but, oh, dear me!—she found it quite impossible to break through their stately reserve and become friends. They kept their house shut up; received very little company, and made few visits. An insurmountable wall of selfishness surrounded the citadel of their hearts, the gates were locked and barred, and written on them were the cold, forbidding words: "No admittance." Poor Mrs. Browning was "cast down but not destroyed;" she called together her boys and girls of the Endeavor Society, and consulted them as to ways and means to take the stronghold.

"It is not right," she protested, "for them to shut themselves away from the world like this. It is unnatural and unchristian. We need their help, and they need our sympathy and love. 'He loves God best who loves his fellow-men,' and they need to get out among people—get in touch with them, get into the current of their religious and social life, and become one of us. They must be induced to reach out and take the world by the hand. How shall we get them to do it?"

"That is the problem for you to solve, dear Mrs. Browning," was the universal reply, "for we cannot. We have tried everything we can think of. They will not stir out of their shells for anybody, and what are you going to do with people who won't?"

"Carry them on our hearts to the Throne of Grace; pray for them," said Mrs. Browning, promptly; "with God all things are possible."

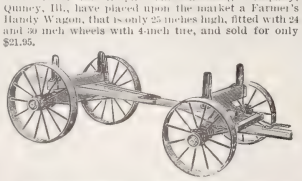
Evidently this is the course Mrs. Browning took, for God did make immortal youth possible to the "two old ladies of Warwick." It was in this wise:

There was a grand international convention at Nashville, and Mrs. Browning, always alive to her opportunities, took advantage of its being within easy access, and of the low rates, and went to the feast. At her boarding-place she came in contact with two individuals who greatly interested her—a wan-looking man, seemingly nearing the border-land of the eternal world, and his child, a delicate little boy of singular beauty, a mere baby of three years of age, with a shy, sweet, heavenly face, eyes of cloudless blue, and a cloud of golden hair. The woman and the child became friends at once, and

CONCLUDED ON PAGE 127

Farm Wagon only $21.95.

In order to introduce their Low Metal Wheels with Wide Tires, the Empire Manufacturing Company, Quincy, Ill., have placed upon the market a Farmer's Handy Wagon, that is only 25 inches high, fitted with 24 and 30 inch wheels with 4-inch tire, and sold for only $21.95.



This wagon is made of the best material throughout, and really costs but a little more than a set of new wheels and fully guaranteed for one year. Catalogue giving a full description will be mailed upon application by the Empire Manufacturing Co., Quincy, Ill., who also will furnish metal wheels at low prices made any size and width of tire to fit any axle.

Don't pour the Pearline on the clothes—dissolve it in the water before putting them in. Pearline is harmless but there is a right and a wrong way for everything—Read the Directions (on every package) and get the best results. Use Pearline Without Rubbing. and Without other Soap or help of any sort.

ELECTRIC LIGHT ONE CENT. S.121

The Watch of the Period

THE ELGIN

With ordinary care and usage—anywhere, at any time—

Through heat and cold, or jar and jolt—

The Elgin Watch will never fail in its faithful performance of perfect timekeeping. Guaranteed against original defect.

Every Elgin Watch has "Elgin" engraved on the works. Booklet free.

ELGIN NATIONAL WATCH CO., Elgin, Illinois.

EIGHT DOLLARS AND TWENTY-FIVE CENTS buys our high grade, high arm, guaranteed, 5-drawer, solid polished antique oak, drop head cabinet SEROCO sewing machine, exactly as illustrated, complete with all accessories, instruction book, etc.

$8.25

$15.20 buys the HIGHEST GRADE, HIGH ARM 5-DRAWER, DROP CABINET SEWING MACHINE MADE, complete with all accessories, instruction book, etc.

Other high grade Sewing Machines in 5-drawer drop cabinet and other styles $10.45, $10.95, $11.95, $12.85, $14.75, etc. We sell nearly all the best known standard sewing machines, including the genuine Singer, Domestic, New Home, Wheeler & Wilson, White, Standard, Minnesota, Howard, Burdick and Edgemere, and our low prices, etc., will simply astonish you. Every machine shipped on

THREE MONTH'S FREE TRIAL with the understanding, that if it doesn't prove perfectly satisfactory you do not pay us one cent. Write for our free Sewing Machine Catalogue, mention this paper, and we will give you the names of a number of your own neighbors to whom we have sold sewing machines, so that you can see and examine your neighbors' machines, learn how they are pleased with them and how much money we saved them. The Special Sewing Machine Catalogue will go to you by return mail, complete with large illustrations, full descriptions and most astonishingly low prices. You will receive the most wonderful price offerings ever heard of, our liberal three months' free trial proposition and the most extraordinary sewing machine offer ever made. Address,

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., Chicago.

GREATEST Labor saving device ever invented, worth three closets, prevents waste, saves time, trouble, space and labor. Convenient places for baking utensils, cereal products, spices, table linen, etc. We make 20 styles, all sizes, price $2.50 and up. Following bargain catalogues FREE.

Get our wholesale factory prices.

E.H. Stafford & Bros. Chicago

Kitchen Cabinets and Furniture No.630 A
Sewing Machines and Organs No.630 B
General Merchandise - - - - No.630 Q
Office Furniture - - - - - No.630

SALESMEN AN AGENTS WANTE

BIG WAGES—Our Famous Pu Itan Water Still, a wonderful inve tion—beats Filters. 22,000 already so Demand enormous. Everybody bu Over the kitchen stove it furnis plenty of distilled, aerated, delicio Pure Water. Only method—sa lives and Dr. Bills; prevents typho malaria fevers. Write for Boo let, New Plan, Terms, Et FREE. Address,

Harrison Mfg. Co., 668 Harrison Bldg., Cincinnati,

MEN'S HAT NO. 1

In soft, rough finish. Colors: Gray Mix, Brown Mix, and Black Mix.

A 50-Cent Hat by Mail

Either of these hats sent, postpaid, on receipt of 50 cents in cash, postal order or stamps. Money back if not satisfactory. We refer to The First National Bank of Middletown, N. Y. We are hat manufacturers and make to following offer to introduce these hats and our other lines of Men's, Boys', and Women's Hats in every town in the United States. Send for catalogue.

MEN'S HAT NO. 2

In smooth finish. Colors: Black Brown, Maple, Steel, and Pearl.

MIDDLETOWN HAT COMPANY, 44 Mill St., Middletown, N.

The Burpee Quality in Seeds

Best that can be Grown! The new "Silent Salesman" of the largest mail-order seed trade in the world will be sent with 184 pages of useful information and hundreds of true illustrations,—if you mail a postal to

W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Seed Farmers, Philadelphia

The Redemption of Fairlee

CONTINUED FROM PRECEDING PAGE

through the child it was easy to reach the man's heart.

"You are missing a foretaste of heaven in not attending the meetings in the Auditorium," she said pleasantly. "Come and go; it will do you good."

"There is nothing, now, that will do me good," said the man, despondently. "I am nearing the end of life very fast."

"Oh, no; you mistake," said Mrs. Browning. "You are only entering into life if you are a friend of Christ, as I trust you are."

"I am not," said the man sadly, "I have never been. I have lived alone for self all my life, and as I have sown, so must I reap. If the sins of the fathers did not descend to their children, if my little one could find a home in some benevolent heart, I believe I could die satisfied."

Then, coming close to Mrs. Browning's side, he said earnestly, "I heard you say that you are from Warwick?"

Mrs. Browning nodded, and lifted the baby to her lap.

"Do you know two ladies by the name of Fairlee?"

Mrs. Browning knew them by sight very well.

"I am their brother," said the dying man. "We have not been very friendly for many years; there was a question of property that divided us; but I believe my sisters love me still, and I have felt of late that I should like to leave my boy to them. Mrs. Browning, you are a good woman; I feel that I can trust you. Will you take little Carrol to them? I shall, probably, never have so good an opportunity. The parting must come very soon, anyway; I am growing weaker steadily; I will write them a farewell letter, and send them this ring, so they will know of a surety that the child is their brother Will's. Will you undertake the charge, Mrs Browning?"

"I shall be glad to; I believe the Lord's hand is in it. And, I will promise further, that if your sisters should refuse to receive the boy, I will open my own home to him. And now, let me entreat you to open your heart to the Christ."

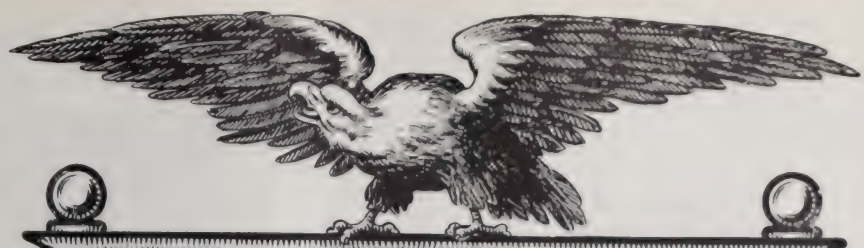
Whether he did or not remains hidden, for suddenly, at midnight, he received his call, and passed away with no friend near.

Mrs. Browning telegraphed at once for the Fairlee sisters, though this had not been a part of her commission, and had the real pleasure of seeing the fountain of their hearts broken up at last. They took the body of the brother whom they had never ceased to love, back to Warwick, and laid him in the family vault, and they opened their home and their hearts to the beautiful child.

* * *

You would hardly have known Fairlee Place in six months' time. The wide halls resounded with childish laughter, playthings were strewn about everywhere—a little express wagon in the front yard, a ball and box of scattered blocks on the porch steps, picture-books lying open on the parlor floor—just think of it, that sacred parlor!—and a sunny-haired, sweet-voiced little boy racing up and down the livelong day. The house was no longer kept shut; Carrol wanted to let the sunshine in, and see people passing. He liked folks; the children peeking through the fence were no longer driven away, for Carrol invited them in and made much of them. Through Carrol, the two old ladies of Warwick became acquainted with their neighbors, learned the lesson of kindness and good-will, and finally launched out upon the deep seas of God's love. And then they began to grow young. Their eyes filled with light, their faces rounded out with smiles, and their manners became so charming that people flocked to make their acquaintance. And before them walked the little golden-haired child, leading them into those paths of light where hearts grow tender and put on forever the garb of youth.

And Mrs. Browning watched it all with a smiling face. "Except ye become as little children ye cannot see the kingdom of God," she said, adding softly, "Little Carrol is God's little missionary, 'a carol unto the King.' It is blessed to know that 'a little child shall lead them.'"



William Allen White

Will write a series of articles on the political situation at Washington as he sees it from week to week. Exclusively in

THE SATURDAY EVENING POST

There are perhaps three or four men in the length and breadth of the country who can write on political topics as sanely, shrewdly and clearly as Mr. White; but not one of them possesses in like degree his fine native humor or his ability to wring the last drop of human interest out of his subject and into his writing. Mr. White has also the rare gift for stripping a complex theme of its non-essentials and showing it forth in its simplest terms.

How the Cabinet Does Business

By Charles Emory Smith

Former Postmaster-General. A very general ignorance of the inner workings of the Cabinet room prevails, and yet the Cabinet is the least formal, the most active, of the arms of the Government. Mr. Smith will illustrate with anecdotes of actual occurrence how the assembly handles grave questions.

A Congressman's Wife

A regular letter from one of the brightest women in Washington, giving us all the social gossip of the Capital, telling us the good things said at the social functions; bright, sparkling, full of life—the social life of Washington.

The Saturday Evening Post will be sent to any address every week from now to July 1st, 1903, on trial, on receipt of only 50 cents.

It is the handsomest weekly magazine you ever saw

The Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia, Pa.

GOLD and SILVER

The wonderful new Gold and Silver Flower is the best floral novelty for 1903. Never before offered in the U. S. and cannot be obtained elsewhere. Large silvery white, intensely double flower with center of gold. Must be seen to be appreciated. Price 25 cents per packet, but if you will send us before March 15, the addresses of three persons who cultivate flowers, and two 2 cent stamps, we will send you a full sized packet to pay you for your trouble. Also a copy of our large, beautiful catalog containing hundreds of illustrations, many choice novelties and bargain prices on seeds, plants and bulbs, mailed free if you mention this paper.

FREE

IOWA SEED CO., DES MOINES, IOWA.

LEARN PROOFREADING

If you possess a fair education, why not utilize it at a genteel and uncrowded profession paying $15 to $25 weekly. Situations always obtainable. We are the original instructors by mail.

HOME CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOL PHILADELPHIA

DUPLEX MACHINE

The only successful field fence maker. Ball Bearing, Automatic, simple, life-lasting.

A Child Can Operate It.

A level headed boy can take it apart and put it together. It makes most perfect Fence at Cost of Wire.

Machine sent on Trial. Plain and Barbed Wire at Wholesale Prices. Catalogue Free.

KITSELMAN BROTHERS, Box D 54 Muncie, Indiana.

30 Days Free Trial

The Royal Incubator

is so good and works so well that we don't ask you to buy it before you try it. Entirely automatic; certain in results. May we send you one on trial? Catalogue free.

ROYAL INCUBATOR COMPANY, Dep. 71, Des Moines, Ia.

STEEL ROOFING

FREIGHT CHARGES PAID BY US

Strictly new, perfect, Semi-Hardened Steel Sheets, 8 feet wide, 6 feet long. The best Roofing, Siding or ceiling you can use. No experience necessary to lay it. An ordinary hammer or hatchet the only tools you need. We furnish nails free and paint roofing two sides. Comes either flat, corrugated or V crimped. Delivered free of all charges to all points in the U. S. east of the Mississippi River and North of the Ohio River

AT $2.25 PER SQUARE

Prices to other points on application. A square means 100 square feet. Write for free Catalogue No. 369

CHICAGO HOUSE WRECKING CO., W. 35th and Iron Sts., Chicago

SELF REGULATING AND AUTOMATIC MOISTURE | INCUBATORS AT CUT PRICES | 2 YEAR GUARANTEE

$4.45 50 EGG 50 SIZE | $7.95 100 EGG 100 SIZE | $13.95 200 EGG 200 SIZE | WHY PAY MORE

INVINCIBLE HATCHER CO. | NO CAT FREE ESTD. 1893 | SPRINGFIELD, OHIO.

ONE WEEK.

Postum Coffee Remade the Dominie in a Week.

When a person has no troubles excepting those caused by coffee, Postum Food Coffee if faithfully used will usually act with remarkable quickness. Here is an example even where the coffee habit has been one of long standing.

"I had been a coffee drinker for 20 years and until recently regarded it as one of the 'stays of life,'" writes a Tennessee clergyman.

"About a year ago an attack of malaria impaired my digestion and I began to use more coffee than usual thinking it would help my system throw off the malady. During that year I suffered indescribable agonies of nervous indigestion. Finally I noticed that every time I drank coffee for dinner or supper I was much worse. I told my wife I thought it was coffee and that I would quit it and use hot water. Then I thought I would try the Postum we had heard so much about.

"From the very day I left off coffee and introduced Postum I began to improve and at the end of one single week I did not have even the slightest symptom of nervousness and dyspepsia left. It is many weeks now since then and I have not only gained in flesh but am entirely free from indigestion and am strong and happy. My wife had been nervous and her stomach in bad condition and when she saw the change wrought in me followed my example and after using Postum a short time extremely beneficial results followed.

"I am a Methodist minister in charge of a church at Graysville, Tenn." Name furnished by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

VOSE PIANOS

Are receiving more favorable comments to-day from an artistic standpoint than ALL OTHER MAKES COMBINED

We Challenge Comparisons

By our easy payment plan, every family in moderate circumstances can own a fine piano. We allow a liberal price for old instruments in exchange, and deliver the piano in your house free of expense. You can deal with us at a distant point the same as in Boston. Send for descriptive catalogue H and full information.

VOSE & SONS PIANO CO.
161 BOYLSTON STREET, BOSTON, MASS.

"Standard of Highest Merit"

FISCHER PIANOS.

THE NEW SCALE Fischer yields a wonderfully pure quality of Tone, combined with great power and durability; it stamps the Fischer Piano with an individuality that no other Piano possesses.

63 Years Established

Over 110,000 Sold

BY OUR NEW METHOD of Easy Payments, every home at once enables its possessor to enjoy a High Grade Piano. Pianos delivered to all parts of the United States. Write for catalogue, terms and all particulars.

J. & C. FISCHER
164 Fifth Ave. New York, N. Y.

MAKE MONEY EVENINGS. Men can learn Watch Engraving and Jewelry Repairing at home; only system of the kind. MAGIC LANTERNS or STEREOPTICON. Latest improved. Catalogue free. Write to-day. Mention this paper. McMillen Mfg. Opticians, 49 Nassau St., N. Y.

6th & 7th Book of Moses Dark secrets by mail best issue. Address Pastime Pub. Co., Station S, Brooklyn, N. Y.

WORKINGMEN'S NEW HOME

Opened by Salvation Army

THE opening of the Braveman building, corner East Broadway and Chatham Square, as a model home for working men, by the Salvation Army, was an occasion of exceptional interest in Army circles, and of exceptional interest in that community where such an institution is much needed. In the absence of Commander Booth-Tucker, who is touring the West with General Booth, Consul Booth-Tucker offered the prayer of dedication; the Consul, just returning from a 15,000-mile journey with her father, was too weary to deliver the address expected, her secretary and aide, Mrs. Johnson, explained that it had been her privilege to attend the opening of many such "Homes" in other parts of the world, and she testified that hundreds of men had been saved through their instrumentality.

Colonel Higgins explained the plan of the work, and spoke of its prospects. While at present the building is only rented, he expected that means would be providentially provided, so that the Army own it. The nominal sum of twelve cents a night is the charge for a bed in one of the dormitories, and twenty cents for a single room. They believed the building in time would pay expenses. He answered the question, "Would any be turned away, because of having no money," by telling of their Industrial Home in Thirtieth street, where men, though freely received, were required to do some work, to show their gratitude. "We do not propose to pauperize, but to help," he continued. "Five hundred men can be accommodated nightly. We provide a reading-room, a shower bath, and all the comforts of a lodging house. We hold a religious service every night in our main hall. Competent Salvation Army men will always be present to conduct the religious side of the work."

Already contributions have been received from friends of the Army—they were needed to make the venture successful. Reading matter was solicited for the men.

The National Staff brass band supplied the music. At the close of the exercises, tea, coffee and cake were served, and a pleasant informal reception was held. A number of prominent gentlemen were present, and a large representation of the intelligent officers and members of the Salvation Army. MARY B. COOKMAN.

The Christian in Public Life*

Christian Patriotism an Obligation on All Believers

CAN politics and religion be associated? The question is often answered in the negative, and truly politics so often involves association with things that are corrupt and debasing, that we do not wonder at the answer. But all the more on that account should the effort be made. Evil cannot be reformed by being let alone. It becomes all the worse for losing contact with good. American politics would never have become so vile and polluted as they are, if good men had not held aloof from them. It is a disgrace and a shame when good men have allowed the management of our affairs to drift into the hands of the worst men in the community. The spirit of Washington and the great and good men who founded the Republic, must be humiliated and indignant if they know how municipal, State and national politics are now controlled. They would not blame the bosses, nor the wire-pullers, but the Christian men who have not patriotism enough to take time and trouble to claim their rights.

We have had in the course of our history enough examples of the Christian man in high political office, to prove that there is no incongruity in the spectacle. In theory, we contend that our national policy is righteous. Why, then, may we not demand that it be controlled by a righteous man? There is nothing in the essential principles of our government that would require an office-holder to do anything inconsistent with a Christian profession. Indeed, low as is the moral tone of the press and of political society, a man would be applauded for a right and conscientious performance of his duty. Senators, such as now disgrace some of our greatest States by having been elected, might and would denounce a God-fearing President, and might thwart him in his policy; but the heart of the country loves a man and would stand by him in any struggle in which he engaged for righteousness.

*Topic of the Epworth League for February 22. II Chron. 17: 3, 4; 19: 2c, 3; 31: 20, 21. Rom. 13: 3, 4.

ONE YEAR'S TRIAL FREE PIANO or ORGAN

It's one thing to offer a Piano or an Organ at a low price. It's another thing to get a

First-Class High Grade PIANO or ORGAN

at a low price. We have a proposition to make you. Will you let us make it? It cannot be explained here. It outdoes any offer we have ever made. Drop us a postal card or letter, and ask to send you our catalogue for 1903 with our Special Proposition to New Customers. State whether Piano or Organ is wanted.

ONE YEAR'S FREE TRIAL TO ALL.

We ask no advance payment and sell on terms to suit any purchaser. NO AGENTS. NO STORES. NO MIDDLEMEN. Only one way: from our big factory right into your own home at lower than WHOLESALE PRICES.

BEETHOVEN PIANO AND ORGAN CO. BOX. No. 741 WASHINGTON NEW JERSEY.

STALL'S BOOKS

DR. STALL

A Man with a Message

Millions of people always await the man with a real message. Dr. Stall has found it so. His books are already circulated in every land.

275th thousand in English.

They are being translated into several languages in Europe and two in Asia.

THE SELF AND SEX SERIES

has the unqualified endorsement of

Dr. Joseph Cook	Bishop Vincent
Rev. C. M. Sheldon	Anthony Comstock
Rev. F. B. Meyer	"Pansy"
Dr. Theodore L. Cuyler	Frances E. Willard
Dr. Francis E. Clark	Lady H. Somerset

Eminent physicians and hundreds of others.

4 BOOKS TO MEN. By Sylvanus Stall, D.D.
WHAT A YOUNG BOY OUGHT TO KNOW.
WHAT A YOUNG MAN OUGHT TO KNOW.
WHAT A YOUNG HUSBAND OUGHT TO KNOW.
WHAT A MAN OF 45 OUGHT TO KNOW.

4 BOOKS TO WOMEN. By Mrs. Mary Wood-Allen, M.D., and Mrs. Emma F. A. Drake, M.D.
WHAT A YOUNG GIRL OUGHT TO KNOW.
WHAT A YOUNG WOMAN OUGHT TO KNOW.
WHAT A YOUNG WIFE OUGHT TO KNOW.
WHAT A WOMAN OF 45 OUGHT TO KNOW.

$1 per copy, post free. Send for table of contents.

Vir Publishing Co. 1163 Real Estate Trust Building, Philadelphia

5% Per Annum on your deposits

Deposits may be made or withdrawn at any time and bear earnings for every day invested

Your money safely invested, earning 5 per cent. yearly. Dividends paid quarterly by check.

THE INDUSTRIAL is thoroughly reliable, living up to every agreement. Business non-speculative. Established 11 years. Under supervision of State Banking Department. Write for full particulars, also endorsement of many of this country's most prominent clergymen and professional men.

Paid in Capital	Assets	Surplus
$1 000.000	$1,600.000	$185.000

INDUSTRIAL SAVINGS AND LOAN CO.
1131 Broadway, New York

MUSIC TAUGHT BY MAIL, Piano, Organ, Guitar, Banjo, Mandolin, Violin and Cornet. Send for free Catalogue and Testimonials. Address, Box 130, U. S. School of Music, 19 Union Square, New York, N. Y.

Individual Communion Outfits. Send for FREE catalogue and list of users. Sanitary Communion Outfit Co., Box 7, Rochester, N. Y.

ABSOLUTELY FREE our handsomely illustrated book on Lace Making, teaching how to make the most beautiful Valenciennes and Torchon Laces; never done in America before. A refined, lucrative occupation for any lady. Torchon Lace Co., Dept. 14, St. Louis, Mo.

The Natural Body Brace advertised in this paper in the first issue of this month is a delightful, certain remedy for ailments peculiar to women and girls. It makes walking and work easy; gives good figure and light step. Write the Natural Body Brace Co., Box 171, Salina, Kan., for free illustrated book.

FREE HAVE YOU A PHOTO of some dear one which you would like reproduced in an artistic manner? If so, send your name and address and we will send you our illustrated catalogue and premium list for club-raisers. also a beautiful hand-painted sample of our PHOTO-BUTTON WORK FREE. Address, SUNBEAM STUDIO 1532 Third Ave., New York.

MISSOURI Let me send you my book. WM. R. COMPTON, 5% INVESTMENTS. Farm Mortgages. Unquestioned Security. 5 Wardell Bldg., Macon, Mo.

RHEUMATISM

Relieved Without Medicine

9,000 Persons Permanently Relieved by Magic Foot Drafts Last Year. They Will Bring Comfort to YOU.

Trial Pair FREE on Approval to Anybody. Try Them.

Our new booklet on rheumatism, which is sent free with the trial Drafts, contains letters from the following persons, who have received permanent relief from rheumatism by using Magic Foot Drafts:

Mrs. W. D. Harriman, wife of Judge Harriman, of Ann Arbor, Mich.

Carl C. Pope, U. S. Commissioner at Black River Falls, Wis., who had Rheumatic Gout.

T. C. Pendleton, Jackson, Mich., who suffered with severe rheumatism of the arm, neck and back.

Mrs. Casper Yahrsdorfer, Jackson, Mich., 70 years old, after suffering for 30 years.

James Gilbert, Locomotive Dept., Mich. Cent. R. R., Jackson, Mich., after 27 years of pain.

Dr. Van Vleck, Jackson, Mich., who is now using them in his practice.

Thousands of other letters of praise for Magic Foot Drafts are on file in our office.

Send no money—we only ask your name—and we will send you prepaid, a pair of Magic Foot Drafts. If you are satisfied with the relief they give you then send us One Dollar. If not, don't send us a cent. We know there's comfort and happiness in every pair, and we want you to have them: that's why we are willing to take our pay after the work is done.

The drafts are worn on the soles of the feet, and they relieve rheumatism in every part of the body by drawing out and absorbing the poison from the system besides greatly benefiting the general health. Try them—Free. Write to-day to Magic Foot Draft Co., R A 11 Oliver Building, Jackson, Mich.

OUR FURNITURE CATALOGUE

represents the largest and most complete assortment of high-grade reliable furniture in the world. Our Catalog. quotes prices that you to buy furniture for less money than you ever thought possible. To illustrate: PARLOR SUITES AT $18. 5-piece parlor suites at $15.00 up, fine upholstered couches at $4.20 up, solid oak sideboards at $9.75 up, oak dining tables at $4.75 up, hardwood dining chairs 63c up, and every known article of furniture are made at proportionately low prices. We furnish homes complete not only with furniture but with carpets, curtains, tables, stoves, etc., at factory prices. Write us stating what you wanted and we will send free a catalog representing the goods desired. JOHN M. SMYTH CO. 150-159 W. Madison St., Chicago.

IF YOU WANT TO SELL any kind of property anywhere, quick for cash send us description and Price today. I can save you time and money. FRANK P. CLEVELAND. Real Estate Expert, 1654 Adams Express Building, Chicago.

HOME MISSIONS*

An Opportunity for All to Engage in Christian Work

AFTER a man is converted, there is frequently a longing to separate himself from the world. The Roman Catholic Church knew what it was doing when it established monasteries and nunneries. They answer for a time the deepest desires of human nature. But it is only for a time. Inevitably, a soul that has come into the light, becomes dissatisfied with absorbing the light; it longs to impart it. The outer life of the city is incongruous; it strikes a chill to the heart of the man living near to Christ. The maxims and principles of the world are so utterly alien to the spirit of Christianity, that we shrink from contact that is necessarily painful. But all the more is there necessity for the contact. "Ye are the salt of the world." How can the salt fulfil its function without contact? So, if we are to fulfil the purpose for which we have been converted, we must go into society, and carry with us the power and light we have received.

The words, "Home Mission" convey the idea of men going into the slums and tenement houses, getting into conversation with the poor, persuading them to attend services in the mission buildings, and providing them there with sermons and addresses adapted to their lot. All honor to the men engaged in that work! Theirs is a beneficent life, which surely the Master will reward with richest blessing. But is that all there is in the title, Home Missions? Does it not rather imply a service in the home, an effort to win for Christ the children, the servants, and all included in the domestic relation? It will be a grievous thing if at the end, it is found that people closely connected with us have not been invited to Christ. Nor should our efforts end there. That is only the beginning. The people of our neighborhood are our charge: the people of our city are within the circle. What can be done for them? How many there are whom we meet in business, or travel with in the cars, who do not know what Christianity really is and what it might do for them! To this end of opening their eyes, we ought to aid and encourage the Home missionary in his work both by word and money.

*Topic of The Christian Endeavor Society and Baptist Young People's Union for February 22. Acts 1: 6-8.

For Young People

DEAR DR. KLOPSCH:—The "Family Art Gallery" and The Hall of Fame are highly appreciated. Where all the pictures are so good, it is hard to say which I like best. The Hall of Fame is just the book I like to have lying on my sitting-room table, for young people to take up and read. Many good wishes for your success in doing so nobly for Christ within your sphere of usefulness.

Baltimore, Md. MRS. JANE MOORE.

The Maule Seed Book

for 1903 is free to all interested in gardening who mention this paper. If you want an up-to-date garden you ought to have it, the best seed catalogue I have ever published. The first edition alone costs over $37,000. Address

WM. HENRY MAULE,
1711 Filbert Street,
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

To California Through Colorado

By all odds the most intensely interesting way to California is through Denver and Salt Lake City, past all the magnificent Colorado scenery by daylight, and around Cape Horn on the Sierra Nevadas. Another thing about this route is its peculiar freedom from severe storms and washouts which cause vexatious delays. Generally the sun shines clear and bright all the way. Our Personally Conducted Excursion parties from Chicago and St. Louis go that way every week. Ask your nearest ticket agent about them, or send to me for one of our folders describing the trip.

P. S. EUSTIS, Passenger Tramc Manager C. B. & Q. Ry. Co., 209 Adams St., Chicago.
687

"Union" TEAM and FARM HARNESS for $16.95. Strong plump stock. Perfect in size, shape and finish. Traces, 1½ in. double & stitched. Pads, hook and barrel. Lines, ¾ in. 18 ft. A GREAT LEADER because it gives satisfaction first, last, and always. Our "Union" Harness will please you in price and quality. Special, two heavy whole leather team collars $3 EVERY HARNESS A BARGAIN.

"Union" IDEAL BUGGY for $39.95 Has no equal for comfort, style and wear at the price. We guarantee its excellence for two years. The price means quality. Has genuine leather trimming & leather quarter top. Long distance, self oiling axles. Silver trimmings. 1903 style "UNION" BUGGY STANDS THE TEST OF TIME. We guarantee safe delivery and satisfaction. NEW CATALOG free on request, the largest vehicle and harness catalog issued. Contains the choicest line of carts, runabouts, road wagons, delivery and express wagons, spring wagons, trucks, farm wagons, buggies, phaetons, stanhopes, surreys. Also single buggy, truck and surrey harness, express, spring wagon, farm, team and lumber harness. We make all styles of harness.

Send for Free Catalog

CASH BUYERS' UNION, Manufacturers of Harness and Vehicles, Dept. F 18 • CHICAGO, ILL.

Counting Chicks Before Hatching is not safe unless you have an

IOWA ROUND INCUBATOR

R. C. Bauerminster, Norwood, Minn., got 493 chicks from 503 eggs. He followed directions, the machine did the work, because it was built on right principles and by good workmen. The IOWA has fiber-board case, does not shrink, swell, warp or crack. Regulation and ventilation perfect. Our free book gives more testimonials and full particulars. Everything about incubation free.

IOWA INCUBATOR COMPANY, BOX 246 DES MOINES, IOWA

DON'T DO A THING

About buying a buggy or harness until you have our 1903 FREE Catalog. It tells all about our celebrated Split Hickory Vehicles sold direct from factory at factory prices. It tells all about this SPLIT HICKORY RUMMER TOP BUGGY for $40 On Trial. The catalog is free for a postal.

Ohio Carriage Mfg. Co.
Station 54
Cincinnati, Ohio.

I Print My Own Cards

Circulars, Newspaper, Press $5. Larger size, $18. Money saver. Big profits printing for others. Type-setting easy, rules sent. Write for catalog, presses, type, paper, etc., to factory.

THE PRESS CO., Meriden, Conn.

You Can Succeed

in the poultry business just as we have if you follow the same plans. We tell all about what we have done and how we did it, in our new year book,

"Poultry for Profit."

Gives cuts of every variety of fowl, together with prices for singles, pairs, trios and pens, and eggs for hatching, in season. Cuts and plans for poultry houses. It cost too much money and time to be given away, but is sent for 10 cents.

THE J. W. MILLER CO., Box 179 Freeport, Ill.

Vapo-Cresolene

AN INHALATION FOR

Whooping Cough, Croup, Bronchitis, Coughs, Grip, Hay Fever, Diphtheria, Scarlet Fever,

Don't fail to use CRESOLENE for the distressing and often fatal affections for which it is recommended. For more than twenty years we have had the most conclusive assurances that there is nothing better. Ask your physician about it.

An interesting descriptive booklet is sent free, which gives testimonials from [illegible]

ALL DRUGGISTS.

VAPO-CRESOLENE CO., 180 Fulton Street, New York.

Peter Moller's Cod Liver Oil

now prepared by an improved process, the result of years of scientific investigation, may be confidently relied upon as being of

Absolute Purity and Free from Disagreeable Taste and Odor

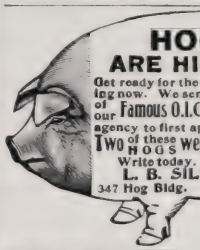
MOLLER'S OIL always gives satisfactory results because of its perfect digestibility and the fact that it may be taken continuously without causing gastric disturbance.

In flat, oval bottles only. See that our name appears on bottle as agents. Explanatory pamphlets mailed FREE.

Schieffelin & Co., New York

HOGS ARE HIGHER!

Get ready for the boom by breeding now. We send a sample pair of Famous O.I.C. Hogs and give agency to first applicant.



Two of these weighed 2806 lbs.

Write today.

L. B. SILVER CO.
347 Hog Bldg. Cleveland, O.

FENCE! STRONGEST MADE. Bull Strong, Chicken-Tight. Sold to the Farmer at Wholesale Prices. Fully Warranted. Catalog Free. COILED SPRING FENCE CO. Box 47 Winchester, Indiana, U. S. A.

Chicago is the place to buy your supplies for least money; also quickest shipments.

Buy at Wholesale Prices

We Sell better goods at lower prices and make quicker shipments than any other firm.

and save 15 to 40 per cent on everything you use. It can be done. Over 375,000 wide-awake, careful buyers sent us their orders last month and got high-grade, honest merchandise—the kind it pays to buy—at a big saving over usual prices. They were the people who knew the value of a dollar saved. You, too, can do it. A FEW SPECIMEN VALUES are here shown, selected from our 1100-page catalogue, which contains pictures and prices on 70,000 articles of everyday use.

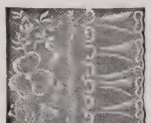
MORRIS CHAIR

Made of golden oak or in mahogany or weathered oak finish. Massive, heavy carved and well-finished frame; reversible cushions covered with imported figured velour plush; adjustable back. An exceedingly comfortable chair.

Retailers charge $8.00 to $10.00. Order No. R72. Our Price $4.50

KITCHEN TABLE

A very handy time, space and labor saver; hardwood; top white and frame finished in the golden color. 2 drawers, 2 bins holding 50 lbs. of flour or sugar each, and 2 baking or meat boards. 26x46 in. Weight, 90 lbs. One of the greatest genuine bargains ever offered. Dealers ask $4.50 to $5.50. Order No. R491. Our Price $2.95



LACE CURTAINS

Made in imitation of and look like imported, and high-priced goods. Center has beautiful detached design, handsome ribbon and floral border, and edge woven to have the effect of the real ruffle. 48½ inches wide; 4 yards long. Exceptional value for the price. Order Number P122 ..... $1.34

SEWING Machine

Our very latest drop-head style. Strongly made, well finished in solid oak, does nice work, is guaranteed for 5 years and is a most wonderful machine for the price. This is positively the lowest price that any warranted machine is being sold for. Order No. L4350. Price, $8.45

We have everything in all grades, from the cheapest that's good to the best that's made. Write for catalogue at once, enclosing 15 cents to help pay the postage.

Our 2 Million Customers are the best endorsement of our goods, prices and methods.

Montgomery Ward & Co., Michigan Ave. & Madison Street, Chicago.

THE RESURRECTION

Ezekiel's Vision of the Valley of Dry Bones*

By Mrs. M. Baxter

THE indwelling Spirit will be the power by whom the millennial Jews will walk in the statutes of their God, and keep his judgments. But, in Ezek. 37, we have a picture, the explanation of which immediately follows; and which therefore cannot allude to what precedes it. The quickening of the dry bones cannot signify the spiritual resurrection of Israel, which, having been literally foretold in chapter 36, needs no parable to bring it home.

"The hand of Jehovah was upon me, and he carried me out in the Spirit of the Lord, and set me down in the midst of the valley (3: 22, marg.); and it was full of bones, and behold there were very many in the open valley; and lo, they were very dry." What could he find in these bones to consider? They had belonged to living men. But now they told, not only of death, but of utter dissolution; they were not even whole skeletons, but separated, scattered bones; so that it would be impossible to find out which of them had belonged to the same body. "And he said unto me, son of man, can these bones live?" [lit. become alive.] This man of God had seen, by the Word of the Lord, what he could do, and what he would do, for fallen, judged, scattered Israel, as a nation; that their heart, which for hundreds of years had only brought forth sin and corruption should be re-created. If God could and would give a new heart to Israel, what could he not do for these dry bones?

"Again he said unto me, Prophesy over these bones, and say unto them, O ye dry bones, hear the Word of the Lord. Thus saith the Lord God unto these bones: Behold I will cause breath to enter into you, and ye shall live. So I prophesied as I was commanded; and as I prophesied there was a noise [or rustling], and behold an earthquake, and the bones came together, bone to his bone."

Nationally considered, we see in the present state of Israel much which answers to this coming together of bone to his bone; a scattered people is beginning to gain form and being as a nation once again. And those who study the Word of God can trace that this is in fulfilment of Scripture, however little it may seem to be so instrumentally; for we cannot see that the reading or preaching of the prophecies concerning Israel has been the direct cause of the Zionist movement under the leadership of Dr. Herzl.

Is this to be literally accomplished? Let us search the Word of God, and see if we can find anything which corresponds to such a physical resurrection as is here foretold; and whether we find anywhere else that men, risen from the dead as here described, are represented as living upon the earth in the time of the millennium. In Rev. 20, at the end of the three-and-a-half years' great tribulation, we read of "thrones" (perhaps those mentioned in Matt. 19: 28) "and judgment was given" by those who sat on them to such as, during the reign of the Antichrist, had been beheaded because they had not worshiped the beast nor his image, "and received not the mark (Rev. 13: 16) upon their forehead, and upon their hand; and they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years." (Rev. 20: 1-6), and this is called "the first resurrection" in relation to the second resurrection to judgment after the thousand years (vers. 11-15; Dan. 12: 2).

Here then are men who have died, been beheaded, who rise again, and who live and reign with Christ, who reigns "in Mount Zion, and in Jerusalem before his ancients gloriously" (Isa. 24: 23.) These probably are Jews, and may form part of the "exceeding great army" of Ezek. 37: 10. We read also in Luke 14: 14; 20: 34-36, of recompense in "the resurrection of the just" for good works done in the present age, and of a necessary worthiness to attain that age and the resurrection from the dead. It would seem from this passage that only the godly Jews who have died, the true "house of Israel," will be raised again before the millennium, not to become part of the Church of Christ, which he will take away to be for ever with him, but to inherit the land, and the position in the world during the reign of Christ, which would have been theirs in their earthly lifetime, had not they people refused the Father by denying a king (1 Sam. 8: 7), the Son by rejecting their Messiah, and the Holy Ghost by resisting him at Pentecost.

It is to his own people that he makes the promises: "Thy dead shall live; my dead bodies shall arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in the dust, for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead."

In God's people are to dwell righteousness in the millennium (Isa. 45: 21); all saved (Romans 11: 26); it must be that those who reject God wilfully must have been purged out from among them. And of those who have died and are raised again brought up out of their graves to live again with the millennium, only those who shall be accounted worthy shall be of the number; and such cannot die any more, and will not marry, but live to be a blessing to the world of that day.

*From her new work entitled, "Ezekiel, Son of Man: his life and ministry."

AN OHIOAN'S GOOD LUCK.

Invents a Device that Insures Health, Strength and Beauty to Every User, and Relieves Without Drugs the Most Obstinate Diseases by Nature's Method of Steaming the Poisons Out of the Blood.

Enormous Sales of Vapor Bath Cabinets—Getting Rich are Hundreds of Men and Women Selling Them.

A Special Money-Making Offer—Will Be Sent on 30 Days' Trial.

(From N. Y. World).

It has remained for a prominent business man of Cincinnati to discover that in the application of Hot Air to the skin and its resultant perspiration lies the secret of good health, vigor, freedom from disease and beauty. He proved beyond the question of a doubt that the Romans and Greeks had

No Physicians for 500 Years

but Hot Air and Vapor Baths, and that they owed their splendid health, fine physique, strength and beauty to vaporized air or "sweat baths," and so he set to work to invent a method by which the American people could secure all the marvelous benefits of these baths without expensive apparatus, bath rooms and at smallest expense.

The now famous Quaker Bath Cabinet was the result of his efforts.

Reduced to $3.50 for 30 Days.

An Enormous Business.

Invented and patented six years ago—the demand has been so great that over 300,000 Cabinets were sold during the past year, and hundreds of men and women are growing rich selling them, as the makers offer splendid inducements to hustlers.

It is an air-tight enclosure, a rubber-walled room in which one comfortably rests on a chair, and with only the head outside, enjoys at home, for 3 cents, all the marvelous, cleansing, curative and invigorating effects of the famous Turkish, Russian, Hot Air Vapor Baths, medicated or perfumed, if desired, with no possibility of taking cold afterward, or in any way weakening the system.

Clouds of Hot Air or Vapor surround the entire body, opening the millions of sweat pores, causing profuse perspiration, drawing out of the blood and system all the impure acids, salts and effete matter, which, if retained, cause sickness, debility and affliction.

Astonishing is the Immediate improvement in your health, fe[e]l and complexion. There is not a single [l]iving who should not possess one of these Ca[b].

Famous Physicians Believe in it.

Many well-known physicians have given up their practice to sell these Cabinets, and to-day over 27,000 physicians use and recommend them, and every well-equipped hospital and sanitarium in the world use these Cabinets with the most wonderful and beneficial effects—relieving even the worst chronic cases. It beats a trip to Hot Springs.

Thousands of remarkable letters have been written the makers from users, some referring to Rheumatism and La Grippe, will be interesting to those who suffer from these dread maladies.

Mrs. Anna Woodrum, Thurman, Iowa, afflicted for years, testifies that it has relieved her of nervous prostration, headache and indigestion, after doctors and medicines failed.

Judge J. O. Hutchins, Hayward, Cal., writes that it rescued him from the grave. Was a confirmed invalid 15 years. Thank God, the marvelous power of the Quaker relieved him of weak heart, sleeplessness, catarrh, rheumatism, and partial paralysis.

John H. Shauch, Marlboro, N. J., says physicians at Long Branch Hospital told him four years ago that he had that deadly disease, Locomotor Ataxia, and he would never be well. He read of the wonderful benefits of the Quaker, sent for it and commenced to grow better at once.

John Curtis, Box 32, Malone, N. Y., afflicted from head to foot with frightful eczema, impure blood and weak heart, was relieved after doctors had failed.

L. J. Morrison, Pellville, Ky., afflicted 30 years, unable to walk, was relieved of rheumatism and general debility.

D. P. Smith, Greenburg, Kansas, an old soldier, a mere wreck 63 years old, never a well day since 1862, was relieved of heart failure, rheumatism, etc.

Mary L. Willis, Cloverdale, Ala., writes that it saved her life. Relieved her of dropsy.

Hundreds of Ministers write praising this Cabinet.

Rev. J. W. Henderson, Weston, La., writes that this Cabinet relieved his son 13 years old of dropsy, after the doctors had given him up to die.

Rev. Fred D. Hamilton, Buffalo, says this Quaker treatment did his wife more good in three weeks than three years doctoring and a fortune spent at Hot Springs. Relieved her of nervousness and dropsy of which she had long suffered. U. S. Senator, Hon. Chauncey M. Depew, Congressman John J. Lentz, John T. Brown, Editor "Christian Guide," Rev. C. M. Keith, Editor "Holiness Advocate," as well as hundreds of influential people recommend it.

Physicians are unanimous in claiming that colds, lagrippe, fevers, bright's disease, cancer; in fact, such has this Cabinet that no disease can gain a foothold in your body if you take these hot Thermal Baths weekly. Scientific reasons are brought out in a very instructive little book issued by the makers. Write for it. To relieve blood and skin diseases this Cabinet has marvelous power. Dr. Shepard, of Brooklyn, states that he has never failed to draw out the deadly poison of snake bites, hydrophobia, blood poison, etc., by this Vapor Bath, proving that it is the most wonderful blood purifier known. If people instead of filling their systems with more poisons by taking drugs and nostrums, would get into a Vapor Bath Cabinet and steam out these poisons, and assist Nature to act, they would have pure blood, and a skin as clear and smooth as the most fastidious could desire.

Marvelous Eliminative Power

Another Important Feature is the astonishing benefit in diseases of women and children. It removes the inflammation and congestion which causes much of the pain to which women are slaves. Heat is the greatest known relief for these ailments, if rightly applied. Dr. Williams, one of New York's most celebrated physicians says: "The best remedy for the prevention of all troubles peculiar to the female sex is Hot Air Baths. Your Cabinet is truly a God-send to women." Thousands of children's lives have been saved, as it is invaluable for breaking up colds, fever, croup, congestions, etc.

With the Cabinet if desired, is a Head and Complexion Steamer, in which the face, head and neck are given the same vapor treatment as the body, producing a bright, pure, brilliant complexion, removing pimples, blackheads, skin eruptions; relieves catarrh, asthma and bronchitis.

O. C. Smith, Mt. Healthy, Ohio, says: "Since using this Cabinet my catarrh, asthma and hay fever, with which I have been afflicted since childhood, has not returned. Worth $1,000 to me. Have sold hundreds of these Cabinets. Everyone was delighted. My wife finds it excellent for her ills and our children."

Whatever Will Hasten Profuse Perspiration

everyone knows is beneficial, but other methods of resorting to stimulants and poisonous drugs are dangerous to health. Nature's own method is provided by the convenient, safe and marvelous power of this Quaker Cabinet.

You will find it to be a genuine Cabinet, with a real door, opening wide. When closed it is air-tight, handsomely made of best durable goods, rubber lined. A heavy steel frame supports it making it a strong and substantial bath-room within itself. Has the latest improvements.

A splendid stove for heating is furnished with each Cabinet, also medicine and vaporizing pan, valuable recipes and formulas for medicated baths and ailments, plain directions, and a 100-page "Guide Book to Health and Beauty." Cabinet folds flat in 1 inch space when not in use. Easily carried. Weighs 10 lbs.

After investigation you will say this Quaker Cabinet, made by the Cincinnati firm, is the only practical article of its kind. Will last for years. Seems to satisfy and delight every user, and the Makers Guarantee Results.

They assert positively, and their statements are backed by thousands of letters from persons of influence, that this Cabinet will relieve nervous troubles, debility, rheumatism, purify the blood and beautify the skin—(they offer $50.00 reward for case that can not be relieved). Relieves the most obstinate cases of lagrippe, sleeplessness, neuralgia, malaria, headaches, gout, sciatica, eczema, scrofula, blood and skin diseases.

It Will Relieve a Hard Cold often with one bath, and for breaking up symptoms of lagrippe, fevers, pneumonia, congestion, etc., is invaluable—really a household necessity. Gives the most

Cleansing and Refreshing Bath Known and even those enjoying the best of health should use it at least once or twice a week, for its great value lies in its marvelous power to draw out of the system impurities that cause disease, and it is truly proving a God-send to humanity.

How to Get One.

All the readers who want to enjoy perfect health, prevent disease or are afflicted, should have one of these remarkable Cabinets. Space prevents a detailed description, but it will bear out the most exacting demand for durability.

Write the only makers, The World Mfg. Co., [illegible] World Building, Cincinnati, Ohio, and ask them to send you their valuable illustrated booklet, describing this invention and these remarkable baths. The price of these Cabinets has always been $5.00, but the makers offer to the readers for 60 days the Cabinet for $3.50 complete, or their $10.00 finer and best double-walled Cabinet for $6.10. Face and Head Steaming Attachment, if desired, 65 cents extra, and it is indeed difficult to imagine what that amount of money could be invested in anything else that would bring so much good health, strength and vigor.

30 Days' Trial—Don't Fail to Write To-day for full information; or, better still, order a Cabinet; you won't be disappointed, as the makers guarantee every Cabinet, and agree to refund you money after 30 days' use if not just as represented.

We are a reliable concern. Capital, $100,000.00.

The Cabinet is just as represented, and will be promptly shipped upon receipt of Money Order, Bank Draft, Certified Check or Registered Letter. Don't fail to write at once for booklet, whether you intend to buy or not, for you will receive great benefit by doing so.

Getting Rich

are men and women selling this grand invention. Ira Gleason made $1,777.00 first year. Mr. Van Tassel made over $1,500.00 the first 5 months selling these Cabinets. Mrs. Howard, $59.00 one week. Miss Nesne, $205.00 profit. Miss Flora Beard, $400.00 profit. Robert Peart sold over 1,000 Cabinets first year. Hayward Garrett took orders for 625 Cabinets in 3½ months.

Any energetic lady or gentleman having spare time can get a good position at big profits.

Write at once.

DEAFNESS

The Morley Ear-Drum

is the most recent and most effective invisible device for the relief of DEAFNESS. It is easily adjusted, comfortable and safe. Send for descriptive booklet.

The Morley Company,
Dept. E,
19 South 16th Street, Philadelphia.

VIGOROUS CHICKS from Petaluma Incubators.

They are made Nature's way. Catalogue free.
PETALUMA INCUBATOR COMPANY,
Box 94 Petaluma, Cal.

THE IDEAL SIGHT RESTORER

RESTORES THE SIGHT
WEAK EYES MADE STRONG.
SPECTACLES ARE A NUISANCE. NECESSITY ONLY MAKES ONE WEAR THEM.

PREVENTS FAILING SIGHT
DULL EYES MADE BRIGHT.
Write for ILLUSTRATED TREATISE ON THE EYE, Mailed Free.
THE IDEAL COMPANY,
239 BROADWAY,
NEW YORK.

THE VERY LATEST

Don't buy an incubator until you see the new regulator on the Sure Hatch. Greatest improvement ever made. Catalog free.
SURE HATCH INCUBATOR CO.,
Clay Center, Neb., or Columbus, Ohio.

DON'T SET HENS the same old way while a 200 Egg Natural Hen Incubator Costs But $3, other also equally as low. Over 125,000 in use. Indispensable to anyone who keeps a hen. Our Patents protect against Infringements. Agents wanted everywhere, either sex, no experience necessary. Catalogue telling all about and 25c Lice Formula FREE. If you write today
NATURAL HEN INCUBATOR CO., B54, Columbus, Nebraska

If You Want Cash

For Your Farm, Home or Business,

I CAN GET IT

No Matter Where Your Property is Located or What it is Worth . . . .

IF I did not have the ability and facilities to sell your property, I certainly could not afford to pay for this advertisement. This "ad." (like all of my other "ads.") is practically sure to place on my list a number of new properties, and I am just as sure to sell these properties, and make enough money in commissions to pay for the cost of the "ad." and make a good profit besides. That is why I have the largest real estate business in the world to-day.

Why not put your property among the number that will be sold as a result of this "ad."?

I will not only be able to sell it---sometime---but will be able to sell it quickly. I am a specialist in quick sales. I have the most complete and up-to-date equipment in the world. I have branch offices throughout the country and a field force of 2500 men to find buyers.

I do not handle any of the side lines usually carried by the ordinary real estate agent. I do not make any money through renting, conveyancing, mortgages, insurance, etc. I MUST SELL real estate---and lots of it, or go out of business. I can assure you I am not going out of business. On the contrary, I expect to find, at the close of the year 1903, that I have sold twice as many properties as I did in 1902, but it will first be necessary for me to "list" more properties. I want to list YOURS and SELL it. It doesn't matter whether you have a farm, a home without any land, or a business; it doesn't matter what it is worth or where it is located. If you will fill out the blank letter of inquiry below and mail it to me to-day, I will tell you how and why I can quickly convert your property into cash, and will give you my complete plan (free) and terms for handling it. The information I will give you will be of great value to you even if you should decide not to sell. You had better write to-day before you forget it.

If you want to buy any kind of a Farm, Home, or Business, in any part of the country, tell me your requirements. I will guarantee to fill them promptly and satisfactorily.

W. M. OSTRANDER

Suite 1417, North American Building, Philadelphia

If You Want to SELL, Fill Out, Cut Out, and Mail this Coupon to me To-day.

.....1903

W. M. OSTRANDER,

1417 North American Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

Please send without cost to me, a plan for finding a cash buyer for my property, which consists of.....

.....

in the town or city of.....

County of.....and State of.....

and which I desire to sell for $.....

The plan is to be based upon the following brief description of the property.....

.....

.....

.....

Name.....

Address.....

If You Want to BUY, Fill Out, Cut Out, and Mail this Coupon to me To-day.

1903

W. M. OSTRANDER,

1417 North American Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

With a view of buying, I desire information about properties which correspond approximately with the following specifications:

Kind of property.....

Size.....State.....

City or County or part of State preferred.....

The price must be between $.....and $.....

I will pay.....down, and the balance.....

.....

.....

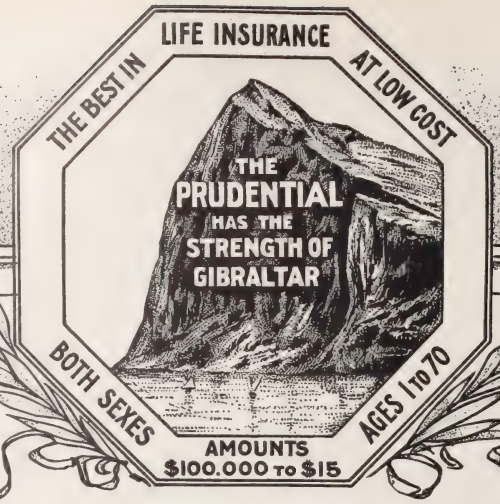
.....

.....

Name.....

Address.....

1875



1902

Greatest Record

in the History of this Giant Company

LIFE INSURANCE ISSUED AND PAID FOR during 1902, including Ordinary Insurance ($87,000,000), over	272	Millions
ASSETS, end of 1902, over	60	Millions
INCOME, during 1902, over	33	Millions
PAID POLICY-HOLDERS, during 1902, over	9	Millions
SURPLUS, over	9	Millions
POLICIES IN FORCE, nearly	5	Millions
INCREASE IN PAID-FOR INSURANCE in Force, over	108	Millions

MAKING THE GRAND TOTAL OF

Paid-for Insurance in Force over 800 Millions

Paid Policy-holders in 27 Years, nearly 68 Millions

Features of the Year's Administration were Marked Reduction in Expense Rate. Increased Dividends to Policy-Holders.

The Progressive Management and the Judicious Care of, and Liberality in Dealing with, Policy-holders' Interests, have made this

ONE OF THE GREAT LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES OF THE WORLD

Write for Information of Policies or Agencies, Dept. 70

THE PRUDENTIAL

Home Office: Newark, N. J.

INSURANCE CO. OF AMERICA.

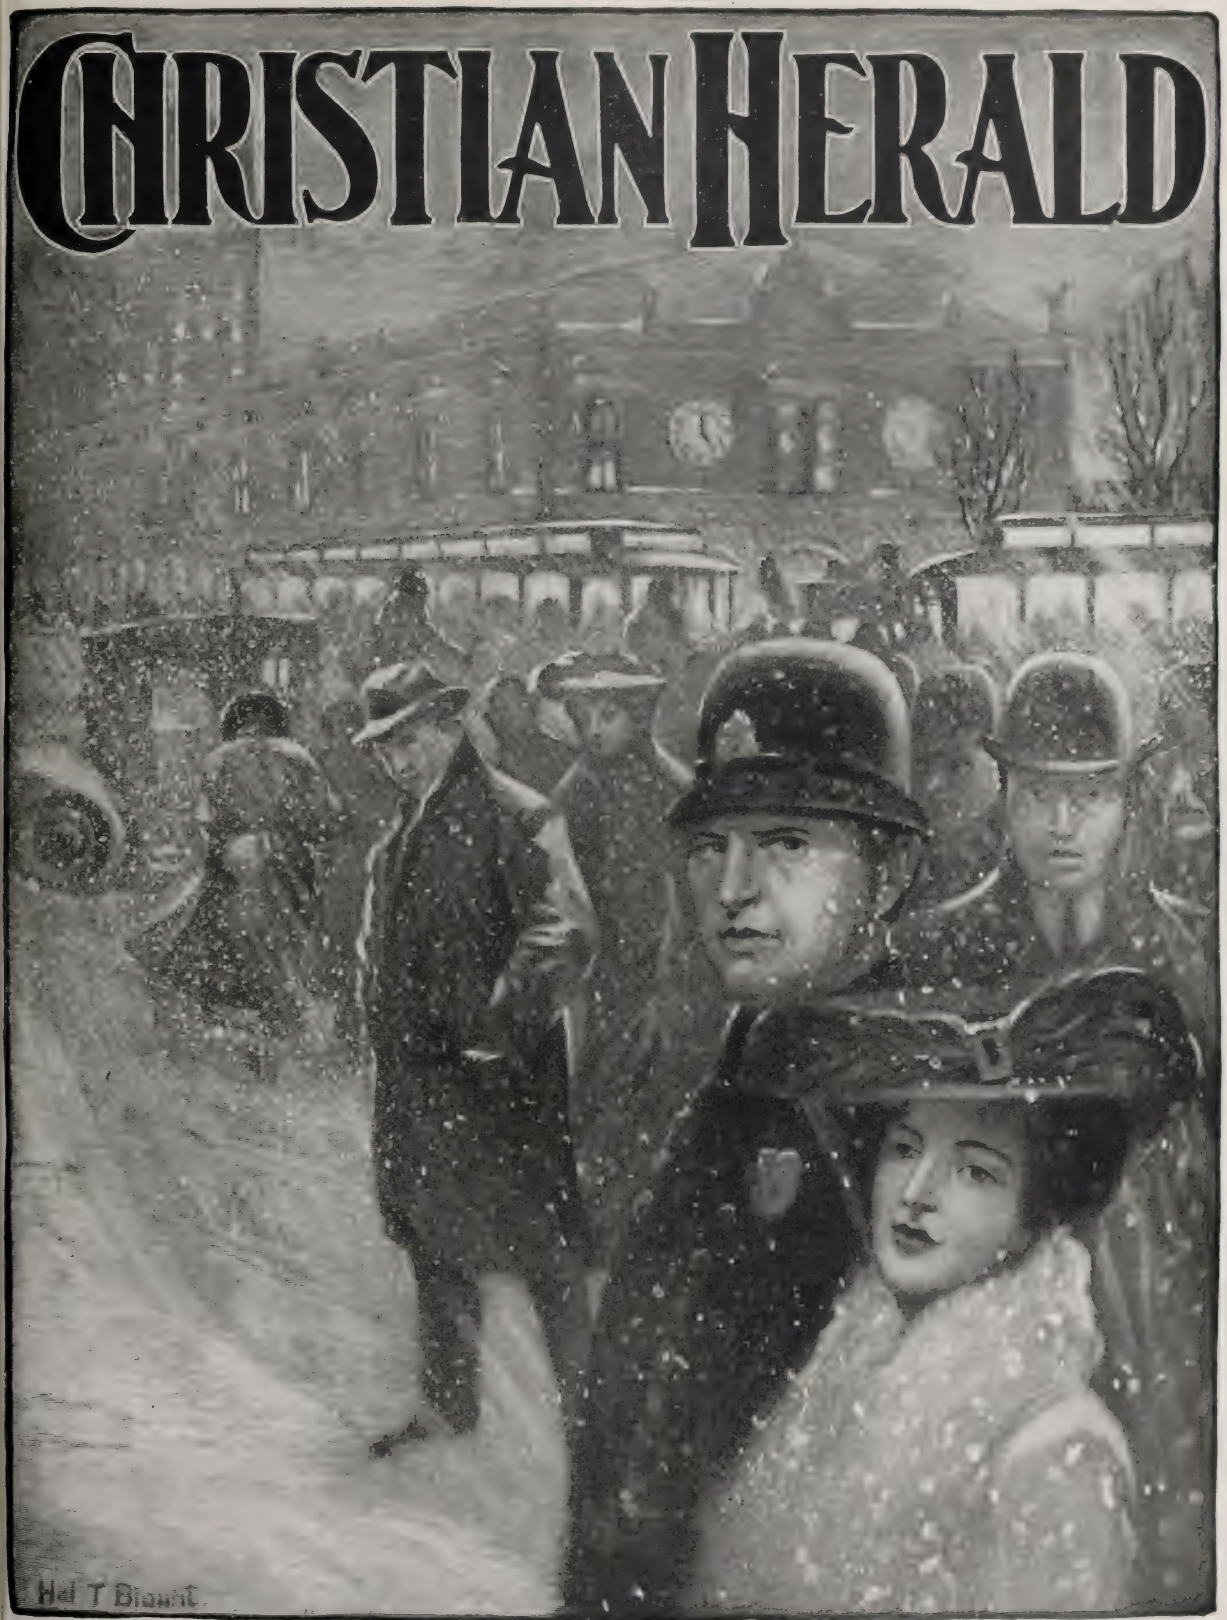
JOHN F. DRYDEN, President.

SUBSCRIPTION, $1.50 PER ANNUM
Published 52 Times a Year

NEW YORK, FEBRUARY 18, 1903

VOL. 26 No. 7. PRICE 5 CENTS
Offices: Bible House, New York

CHRISTIAN HERALD



DRAWN FROM LIFE FOR THE CHRISTIAN HERALD BY HAL BLOUNT

NEW YORK STREETS IN THE SWIRL OF A FEBRUARY SNOW-STORM

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

R. P. Decker, Crispie, Ia. How many cubic inches did the Ark of the Covenant contain? What was put in it?

As the thickness of the wood of which the ark was made is not given, nor the thickness of the gold lining, it would be impossible to calculate the exact dimensions. The exterior measure, assuming the cubit to have been nineteen inches and a twentieth, would give about 38,873 cubic inches. The statement is made in I. Kings 8:9, that nothing was kept in it besides the tables of the law, but the writer of the Epistle to the Hebrews says (Heb. 9:4) that there were also in it, a golden pot of manna and Aaron's rod that budded.

J. T. C., Topeka, Kan. If there is such scarcity of food in Finland, not enough to keep the people from starving, what good does the money we send them do?

In Denmark, Germany, and other parts of Europe, they can buy food at reasonable rates, and thus save ocean freights and the delay which would be involved in sending food from the United States.

Constant Reader, Michigan. There seems to be a defect about the teaching of theology as it is ordinarily given. Take, as an illustration, the eternal future of three persons: a wicked man dying impenitent; a suicide crazed by trouble; and a murderer who repents after the commission of his crime, having had the advantage of time for preparation, which he did not allow his victim. According to the ordinary teaching, the only one saved would be the murderer, who is the worst of the four.

It is always unwise to pronounce positively about the fate of any person. The judgment is in God's hands, and we know that he will do right. Our duty is in every case to warn the wicked, as God instructs us to do, of the awful consequences of sin, and urge him to seek salvation through Christ, lest death come upon him in his impenitence. It is no part of our duty to declare what God will decide in any case, and still less to criticise the principles on which he proceeds. We infer from the Bible teaching that judgment is based on the condition of the soul. In the cases you cite, it is conceivable that the murderer might be so changed by conversion as to be, not by any means, the worst of the four. You must have known instances of men of good moral character, who live clean lives, and are a blessing to all about them, who were once very bad men. The victim of the murderer might be so bad as to be unfit for heaven, and by his own character and nature to exclude himself. Speculation in all such matters is useless. It is our own duty that should be our concern.

Chas. R., Junean, Wis. Do deer shed their horns every year or not? Some say they do. If they do, is it possible for such a horn to grow up in one year, as I have seen on old animals?

The authorities at the Central Park Zoo, New York, say the deer shed their horns every year. Writers on the subject state that the antlers appear on the frontal bone in the spring, and grow with marvelous rapidity, the antlers on a full grown stag being produced in ten weeks.

W. C. O., Ashton, Ill. What church is referred to in the creed by the title of the Holy Catholic Church?

The church universal. That is believers in Christ of all names and denominations who look to him as their Saviour. The word, catholic, means comprehensive. To believe in the catholic church is to believe that Christ has a body of followers in this world who are his, whom he redeemed by his blood and whom he is preparing to be with himself in glory. The Roman Catholic Church arrogates to itself the word catholic as embracing its adherents in all lands, but in the creed to which you refer, the word is used in its broader sense of all true Christians.

J. C. VanG., Avilla, Ind. What was the name of Jephthah's daughter, as mentioned in Judges 11:34?

Her name is nowhere recorded in the Bible, nor can it be found in any of the known traditions?

C. K., Sparta, Mich. How can a wrongdoer, who has sincerely repented, obtain assurance in his soul that he is forgiven and will be saved?

How does a child, who has done wrong, obtain assurance? Does he not go to his father and tell him how sorry he is for what he has done, and beg to be forgiven? What father is there who will resist such an appeal? God is represented to us as loving, compassionate, merciful, welcoming the prodigal, receiving the repentant sinner. The Bible is full of such teaching. Besides this, God draws very near to us in the person of his Son, and assures us that by him any man may come to him and find pardon and peace. It is not his pleasure, as he declares again and again, that any man should perish, but that he turn from his evil way and live. He could not do more than he has done to encourage the penitent wrongdoer to return. The wrongdoer should read these passages of the Bible, and, pleading them in prayer, ask God, for Christ's sake, to forgive him. If a man joined a conspiracy against a king, and the king issued a proclamation that all rebels laying down their arms and becoming obedient would be pardoned, there would be no question for any repentant rebel than the one whether the king would keep his word. That question could not arise about God, so the way to assurance seems plain.

Mrs. E. L. Conant, Worcester, Mass., writes: I was interested in reading the item in your paper concerning aged people. My husband's mother (Mrs. Ruhamah G. Conant) will be ninety years old, February 5. A. N. Conant came over in the Mayflower. Roger Conant was the first Conant to come across the ocean to the United States. In the poem, "Paul Revere's Ride," there is a line:

He said to his friend, if the British march,
By land or sea, to the town to-night,
Hang a lantern aloft in the belfry arch
Of the north church tower, as a signal light,
One if by land, and two if by sea.

The "friend" was a Mr. Conant. Hon. Hezekiah Conant, who recently died, invented the sidereal clock, the ticketing machine, etc. He spent a million dollars in presenting to his native town, Dudley, Mass., the church, academy, observatory and library of two thousand volumes. He left $50,000 to keep the church in repair for all time.

E. S., Brandon, Manitoba. Is it possible for a person to be truly converted, and live an active Christian life in every respect, yet drink whisky or brandy in secret to excess, though he has taken "pledges" and "preventatives," and yet it would appear that he cannot live without drink? Would it be consistent to say that drunkenness is a disease, and yet believe the Bible true?

Such a person would be either a backslider or a hypocrite. He might be sincere in his desire to lead a Christian life, but it is incompatible with drunkenness. We believe that if drunkenness be a disease, it is a disease of the morals and the will power, just as stealing, gambling, or other forms of vice. Tonics will not quicken the conscience nor purify the heart. Experience has shown that nothing but the grace of God will thoroughly reform the drunkard. If the poor victim of this terrible vice gets that grace in his soul, and accepts Christ, and asks earnestly to be relieved from his bondage, he will be rescued. (See I. Cor. 6:10.)

F. A. H., Spencertown, N. Y. Will you please tell me, through your paper, how, and what, is the proper way to ring the church bell. That is—how should I ring the first bell? Ring two strokes and then a pause, or more, and how long the time between the pauses?

We submit this question to our readers for answer. There are many different ways of ringing the church bell, and possibly some bell-ringer or other authority on such matters, may be able to give the information desired.

W. F. McC., Ashtabula, O. In dealing with human suffering, it has been the invariable rule of this journal and its readers, to leave to others the adjustment of political and other causes that may have contributed to such suffering. We find that we have enough urgent work to do, on simple and direct lines, without involving it in the inextricable and embarrassing maze of international politics.

A PEASANT WEDDING IN BRITTANY

A wedding in Brittany is always quaint and picturesque, but the artist who produced this photograph seems to have caught a scene particularly unique, inasmuch as the bride and her attendants are in costume thoroughly typical of Finisterre, that oddest of Breton villages, while the groom and his friends have adopted fashions of the outside world; possibly he and they are not natives of the little fisher village, but visitors from more modern towns — many folk seek Finisterre as a pleasure resort in season. Finisterre ladies carry their umbrellas abroad feast days and Sundays; and, of course, would not omit this finishing touch of gala costume at a wedding.

Mrs. McL., Arlington, N. J., sends this pretty little acrostic to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD:

Thanks to God, for this good helper,
How so well, without its aid,
Even though our hearts were willing,

Could our little gifts be made?
How the burdens have been lifted,
Russia's millions know full well,
Into weary hearts have drifted
Sunshine coming home to dwell.
Then, across the great wide ocean,
India called to us for bread,
And the good ship, heavy laden,
Ne'er came back 'till all were fed.

How the little children gather
Every year in Mont-Lawn's Home,
Rendered happy by the bounty,
And the thought of friends your own.
Love and help to Finland send,
D CHRISTIAN HERALD, sufferers' friend.

Rev. J. R. Schaffer, Westport, N.Y., writes: Alpheus Haynes, deacon of the Baptist Church at Middletown Springs, Vt., of which I was pastor, was ninety-five years old, July 29, 1902. He was converted at the age of twelve. He has a record of continuous church attendance for eighty-three years as a member, and sixty-five years as a deacon in the church militant. This, too, with residence two and one-half miles from church. His presence was an inspiration to the pastor; his experience was of the old-fashioned deep-seated type, developed from an uninterrupted consecration to God's service. He is still adding to this record, steadfast in faith, constant in love, increasing in hope of heaven.

R. W. Chapman, Hartford, Conn. What was the forbidden fruit mentioned in Gen. 2:17, of which Adam and Eve ate in the Garden of Eden?

We have no information other than that contained in the Bible. Is it important that we should know? The command was a test of obedience. The result was typical of disobedience and sin in all times. A man who commits sin, obtains a knowledge of good and evil, which marks a transition in his life. He learns by bitter experience what evil really is, and realizes how precious was the good that he has lost. He is excluded from a condition of purity, like the Garden of Eden, which he can never re-enter, even though his sin may be forgiven through Christ. Compare a good, pure girl, who has been carefully trained in a Christian home, with a dissolute, fallen girl, of the same age. The latter has a knowledge of good and evil, of which the former has no conception. The fallen girl may be saved, and it is the glory of Christianity that many such have been saved, but the purity of nature cannot be restored. The garden of innocence is closed against her by her own act, and she becomes fit for the Kingdom only by being pardoned and sanctified. That, it seems to us, is the teaching of the passage you refer to.

E. P. M. C. C., Gowanda, N. Y. What is the "bubonic plague" and how does it affect man?

It is a malignant fever, with many of the symptoms of typhus. It is believed to result from the absorption of a poison generated by decaying animal matter operating on constitutions enfeebled by lack of proper food or by eating improper food. The conditions favorable to its development are heat, moisture, and the absence of ventilation. The period of incubation is seldom more than a few hours. It attacks the glands of the neck, the armholes and groin and the mesenteric glands, producing buboes (hence its name), boils and carbuncles. Its first symptom is restlessness, followed by exhaustion; the skin becomes livid, insensibility speedily supervenes and death within twenty-four hours.

W. R. B., Bound Brook, N. Y. There is no slavery in Cuba.

S. S. H., Peyton, Colo. We believe Miss Stone is still in this country.

Reader, Grand Rapids, Mich. Write to Civil Service Bureau, Washington, D. C.

I. C. E., Garrattsville, N. Y. Pronounce all the letters except the "c," which is silent.

E. M. B., Burkett, Ind. It breaks out in boils all over the body; fever ensues, and death follows in a few hours.

John O. B., Raymond, Calif. We have no opinion in the matter, not knowing the publications in question.

Miss S. M. M., Englewood, Ill. "Kuopio" and "Vasa" are correct. The latter is frequently spelled and pronounced "Wasa."

Reader, Harrisburg, Pa. In the tables of marriages which, on the ground of kindred and affinity, are forbidden by Scripture and by law, the marriage of a man with his sister's daughter is included. It cannot be done either morally or legally, being forbidden by the laws of nature and of man, and by the revealed word of God.

E. S., Star Lime Works, Ky. My pen refuses to keep still when I read of the minister in Bay City, Mich., who tells boys "they can play cards if they do not play for money." O! brother! brother! In God's name, take it back! Go to those boys and beg them to forgive you for the wrong you have done them! It will never do to monkey with the devil's tools. Temptation is too great already for the vast majority of our young men; don't make it any greater. My oldest brother learned to handle the vile things, and we younger ones "followed suit." Our mother discouraged the practice; but still we indulged. One evening a gentleman from the city was helping us with a fine game of poker, when she expressed her disapprobation. He declared there was "no harm, if we did not play for money." Though she went to her rest many, many years ago, I never will forget the sad, pleading expression of her face, as she said: "True enough; but when one becomes proficient, the temptation will be too great, when you get among those who are playing for money." I have never touched one of the vile things since; and, God being my helper, I never will. If that eldest brother had adopted the same resolution, how much unhappiness would have been avoided.

NEW YORK, FEBRUARY 18, 1903

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD

AN ILLUSTRATED FAMILY MAGAZINE

A PALACE FOR HOMELESS CHILDREN

THE beautiful new Home for the Friendless, crowning Woody Crest heights, in the Bronx, and overlooking the Harlem River, might not inaptly be called the "Children's Palace," so stately and handsome a dwelling it is within and without, and so perfect in its appointments. This is not to say that there is evidence of wasteful extravagance, or of county misapplied. There is something very beautiful in the thought that the Home for the Friendless is a beautiful home; and that men and women, blessed with abundance and with many friends, have made it so. In its construction, the best materials were used, and good architectural standards followed. The furnishings are not elaborate, but they are well chosen and serve the end in view. Tiled floors, marble steps, wrought-iron balusters, porcelain bath-tubs, delightful playrooms, a thoroughly equipped gymnasium, up-to-date kindergarten and school appliances—all these have values in point of endurance, sanitation, and educational development of children that make the original investment, where means are at hand, an economy in the end, apart from any æsthetic considerations—though these in themselves have weight, for beautiful and refined surroundings are reformatory, constructive and elevating.

The rooms in the house are furnished by friends who have been interested for years in the work of the American Female Guardian Society and Home for the Friendless. In nearly every case, the generous gift is a memorial to a beloved one passed away. The three playrooms—two for boys and one for girls—were fitted up by Miss Helen Miller Gould in memory of her father and mother, and she spared no pains or expense to make them all childish hearts could well desire. There are cases filled with picture and story books; there are ping-pong tables, a graphophone, hobby-horse, doll-houses, dollies of all sorts and sizes, a large music box, a wee piano, a cuckoo clock, and other luxuries—all for friendless little folks. The kindergarten is furnished by her as a memorial to her parents; and her generous gift of $20,000 towards the completion of the Home was bestowed in the same way. A brass tablet on a wall records a gift of $10,000 by Theodore B. Starr, in memory of his mother; the chapel was furnished by the Misses Stokes in memory of theirs; and so on. Every way one turns there is evidence that bereaved ones, out of love for the dead, have sought to make glad the lives of the living. The little white beds in the big dormitories have a downy look, as if small people must surely find pleasant ways thereon to the Land of Nod. On the walls of one of the playrooms, the writer observed a scroll with Bible texts on it for the day. There are daily services in the chapel, and Sunday School every Sabbath.

A VISITOR TO THE CARPENTRY CLASS

The opportunities for outdoor recreation are unusual. There is a yard around the house; a fine playground, and wide iron balconies and steps of the fire-escapes afford pleasant places for taking the sunshine and air during recess hours and after school. The big gymnasium is very bright and sunny, and here the classes in basket weaving and carpenter work are held during hours when the place is not in requisition for fun and physical culture. The total cost of the ground, buildings and equipments is about $250,000. A great difference there is between this Home and the old one, in the crowded part of the city.

Some 200 children, ages ranging from two to twelve years, constitute the maximum juvenile population. Little figures in checked aprons flitting here and there, the sound of a childish voice laughing, chattering or softly singing, contribute to the general impression of cheerfulness. Their friends take a warm personal interest in these little ones. The lady who gave the playrooms is one of those who make them frequent visits. The wee inhabitants of the place are homeless and neglected children, drawn from the poor and congested sections of the city through the medium of the Gerry Society, the City Missions, the Children's Court, and other agencies. Some parents pay a small sum towards the keep of their children who are living there, but the large proportion are charity cases, able to pay nothing and with nobody to pay for them. There is no endowment, and the work is dependent upon voluntary contributions. The President is Mrs. Francis M. Weeks; a large number of benevolent ladies constitute the official board. The Society was organized in 1854, when it was the first agency of its kind in the country. Twelve industrial schools, scattered through the city, are under its management. One of the pleasantest features about the splendid Home described is provision of work for the aged: the clothes for the children are cut out in the establishment, and then distributed among elderly sewing women, who are paid for their labor. This excellent work does not limit its beneficiaries to the young, or only to those under its immediate charge. It carries comfort and cheer to tenement homes, and helps the poor of all ages.

DOWN THE FIRE ESCAPES TO THE TILED PLAYGROUND

GOOD TIMES IN THE PLAYROOM

THE American Pulpit
...SERMON BY...
Rev. Frank De Witt Talmage, D.D.
of the Jefferson Park
Presbyterian Church, Chicago

Destroying Debt

ROMANS 13: 8:
"Owe no man anything"

ONE day a famous scholastic clergyman was talking to a noted practical preacher. "How is it," said he, "that you can collect such great audiences to hear you preach? I have one of the best private libraries in the world. I spend at least ten hours a day in my study, with my books. And yet the people prefer to hear you preach, instead of me. They want to hear your sermons, although you do not work a third as hard upon them as I do. Half of your days are spent in calling, and in wandering about the streets and in the stores." "Ah," answered the practical minister to his scholastic friend, "the difference between us is that you read books, while I study the stuff out of which books are made; you breathe the atmosphere of musty tomes; I, by close association, study the hearts of the men and women with whom I come in contact. You translate epitaphs of dead men; I analyze the troubles and temptations and sins of living men. I sit with them at the table. I go with them into their stores. Then, when I begin to discuss their trials and temptations, they naturally want to come and hear me preach."

Paul was a practical minister, and not one famed for mere intellectual attainments. His rostrum was more often the rope-maker's bench than the synagogue's pulpit. As a practical Gospel physician, he, in my text, to-day diagnoses one of the most distressing moral diseases of the human race. He saw that the men and women of his time were living beyond their means, and struggling in the quicksand of debt, just as many people are doing in the twentieth century; therefore, he gave in his Roman epistle the same advice that Horace Greeley once wrote: "Never run into debt. Hunger, cold, rags, hard work, suspicion, unjust reproach, are disagreeable, but debt is infinitely worse than them all. Avoid pecuniary obligation as you would a pestilence or famine. If you have not more than fifty cents, and can get no more for a week, buy a peck of corn, parch it, and live on it, rather than owe any man a dollar." "Owe no man anything"—that means, in John Randolph's interpretation of the philosopher's stone, "pay as you go." That means that if you have no money with which to satisfy your personal desires, then let them be unsatisfied. Allow no creditor, as a jailer, to rivet a heavy iron ball of financial obligation to your limbs. Do not buy a feathered singer, unless at the same time you have money to purchase a cage in which to let your songster abide.

The Genesis of Debt

Debt is generally the offspring of pride. The bare necessaries of life are very small. Nearly every man can make enough money to provide for these necessaries if he will only work hard, do his best, and not waste his income on useless extravagances. Henry Ward Beecher once made the declaration that a man could feed himself and wife, and a family of growing children upon $1.50 per week. For making this statement, Mr. Beecher was sharply arraigned by thousands of critics. Many newspaper editorials affirmed that the Plymouth pastor was advocating the reduction of the laborers' salaries to twenty-five cents a day. He was not attempting any such thing. What Mr. Beecher tried to prove was this: The bare necessaries of life are very small; therefore, most people can provide for their actual needs if they will only be energetic, and at the same time be frugal.

But this frugality, in many cases, pride will not permit them to practice. Pride, with the smiling, supercilious face, and bediamonded finger, usually comes to the young man's home with such insinuating words as these, "My friend, you have no right to rear your family as you are doing. You should not allow your wife to stand behind a counter, or to live in the back room of the store with her two babies, as your mother once did. This is a different age from that in which your father started out. If you do not let your children grow up in a respectable neighborhood, and go to refined and expensive private schools, then their youthful associates will be bad, and refined people will have nothing to do with them." So the young man, who was making a humble income, and was on the high road to ultimate financial success, hires a private home on the boulevard. He moves his family away from the neighborhood of his store. He hires a clerk to do the work formerly done by his wife, while he himself is visiting the wholesale departments. The income, small before, becomes less and less. The expenses of the family maintenance are doubled and quadrupled. A haunted, worried, anxious look comes over the young man's face. Instead of there being a balance in the bank, now there is a debit. Instead of the wholesale stores allowing the young man all the credit he wishes, now they begin to push him. And one day, debt, the offspring of pride, calls at the store to see how the young man is getting along. But instead of debt now coming with the obsequiousness of a visitor, he strides into that young man's store and home with the mien and the heavy step of a tyrant and a master.

Then I see Debt call out to a veiled figure who is standing in the doorway. He says, "Come in, mother; come in. You need not be afraid; come in." Then the female figure throws back the veil from off her head and I see that she is the old hag, Pride, with a painted, withered, sneering, scornful face. Then Debt takes mother Pride through the aisles of the store, and through the rooms of the young man's home, as he says, "Mother, these goods—they will soon all be mine. These pictures upon the walls, and those carpets upon the floor, those dishes in the closets—they shall soon all be mine. And I will make the young man drop his life insurance policy when he dies. I will literally strip his widow of everything. Aha, that young man did not realize what a keen, shrewd, far-seeing, satanic planner I could be, when I told him to increase his outgo over his financial income. I am well worthy to be called thy child, mother; I carry misery and woe wherever I go." Such is nearly always the outcome of every man's life, when pride and debt go hand in hand, and are allowed to sit down by the domestic fireside.

Wealthy Victims

This tyranny of debt, which is the offspring of false pride, makes its conquests over those who have large incomes, as well as those with small. Only the other day, there was buried in one of Chicago's cemeteries, a man who for ten years had a salary of over $9,000 per year. Yet that man was always in debt. While he had an income of $2,500, he was trying to live on the scale of those who had a $5,000 income. When he was appointed a general superintendent of a large corporation, at $650 per month salary, he immediately moved his family into a new neighborhood, and tried to associate with Chicago's millionaires. That man, when he died, did not own the home he lived in: he did not even own the bed on which he died. Every particle of real estate held in his name was plastered over with mortgages. Last fall, he even allowed his life insurance policy to lapse, because he could not afford to pay the few hundred dollars necessary to keep it up, though he had a salary of $9,000 per year. So we find to-day, that many a man who lives in a fine mansion is in the merciless clutch of debt. The financial curse of this age is that multitudes of people, on account of false pride and pernicious extravagance, are eking out a miserable existence. These people may move in the best society, so-called, yet, they are far poorer than the humble clerk with a paltry salary of ten dollars a week, who saves at least one-tenth of his income.

Debt is not only the offspring of Pride, but is often the parent of a large family of criminal children. The study of genealogical tables is among the most interesting of studies. Certain families nearly always have good children; you can trace them down from generation to generation. Other families nearly always have bad children; there is apparently something in their blood that is diseased and contaminated. As the waters, falling down the cascades near Duluth, show the discolorations contracted in passing through forests of cedar and tamarack miles away, so the blood of some children is tainted with criminal tendencies, inherited even before they are born. They are born with a propensity for lying, for stealing, for inebriety, which they are seldom able to eradicate. But though those children may not be able to overcome their evil tendencies in their own strength, they can overcome them by the help of a supernatural power, which is offered to all who are tempted.

Insidious Temptation

Wilful debt is that kind of debt into which many allow themselves to run, through useless and sinful extravagances. While the young man is being financially ground to pieces by the upper and nether millstones of this kind of debt, what is often the most natural thing for him to do? Ask that young collector who is taking some of his employer's money to win, as he foolishly thinks, a fortune at the gambler's wheel. He is not at heart a bad young man. He intends to pay that money back. He expects to use it only for a little while and then return it with interest, after he has escaped from the clutches of merciless debt. Ask that young embezzler, who has just felt the heavy hand of the law placed upon his shoulder. Did he ever expect that the late suppers, the theatre tickets, and the attendance at the races would yet end in a prison cell? No! No! He was led as a lamb to the slaughter by the evil worryings of debt—accumulating debt. Ask that wild-cat speculator in Wall Street. Did he ever think for one moment that he would lose the estate confided to him in trustee form, when he began to run into debt? No! No! These men are being destroyed by debt in the same way that the learned Lord Bacon was led to accept bribes. They are being lured to destruction as Benedict Arnold was lured when his debts drove him to embark in the plot to destroy West Point. The blood hounds of debt had barked at his heels ever since his Philadelphia extravagances, and his debts not only made him a traitor against his creditors, but at the last they made him a traitor against his country.

Progenitor of Mendacity

Crookedness, gambling, wild-cat speculation, and betrayal of one's best friends, are often found among the malformed offspring of a hideous parent debt. But without doubt, the greater number of the children of this infamous progenitor, are those with the fatal marks of perjury stamped, Cain-like, upon their brow. "Lying always rides upon Debt's back," once wrote Benjamin Franklin. "The second vice is lying; the first is running into debt." When a man needlessly and wilfully runs into debt, he opens the sluice-gates of falsehood. He professes his willingness to clasp hands with deception and deceit. The debtor says to his creditor: "I have no money this morning, but I will pay you next week." His words are false; he has no intention of paying next week. The debtor says: "I am now trying to sell some land. The deal is almost closed. Then I will send you a check." The debtor knows he is a falsifier; he has no land to sell.

One of the dearest friends I ever had, by this curse of running into debt, became a moral degenerate. He went to another friend and borrowed six hundred dollars, and gave as security some cattle which he professed to own at that time in Kansas. In fact, he did not own a horn or a hoof in all the world. So the perjury habit, which is often the offspring of debt, will creep into a man's heart as a worm tunnels its way into the heart of a great tree, and leaves there nothing but death and corruption and filth. "All liars shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone, which is the second death." Beware, oh man, how you nourish this destroying child of perjury, which is often the offspring of accursed debt.

Wilful debt is the fiend who cares not how many helpless and innocent victims he may destroy in his own annihilation. The pirates of old, used to raise the black flags and prey upon the ancient shipping. The robbers of Scotland used to place false lights upon the shores, so that the ships would be decoyed upon the rocks, and the wreckers could collect the broken cargoes. The man who wilfully runs into debt, is who is greedily sucking the life's blood out of his butcher and baker, his tailor and landlord, his friend and his enemy alike. He cares not how he gets money as long as he gets it. He cares not who has to suffer as long as his present desires are satisfied. What is the natural and inevitable result? There have been thousands of small retail merchants driven into bankruptcy, because their customers, supposed to be honorable men, would not pay their bills. There have been hundreds and thousands of poor widows, and orphan and aged, and helpless depositors of small sums in the banks, who have lost all, merely because the cashier have become defaulters, and cared not whom they dragged down with them in their own moral and spiritual destruction. It is a contemptible act for a man to steal from a millionaire. It is infinitely meaner for a woman to steal from her poor dressmaker, her cook or her washerwoman; or for a man to rob his groceryman of iceman, or his coachman, or the gardener, who sells to him his flowers. It is meaner, because those who are robbed under such circumstances, must, perhaps, lose their all, and be driven to starve and die.

A Human Vampire

But if it is fiend-like for the wilful debtor to steal from his butcher and baker, how much more criminal is it for him to destroy the spiritual and moral life of his own children? There is many a man who is rearing his children after the exalted style of a millionaire's children who, when he dies, will leave to them not one cent. In other words, he is instilling into the hearts of his boys and girls unnatural desires, and then when he is gone those boys and girls, in order to gratify those desires may be led to plunge into a life of dissoluteness and crime. To illustrate: I would introduce to you a young man who was once a companion of my youth. He was the son of the president of a large life insurance company in the East. He came to my home sometime ago

"Why Joe," I said to him, "I have not seen you for years. Where did you come from?" "From poverty and want, and drunkenness and from nowhere," he answered, gloomily. "I have come to you for help. Will you help me?" What was the cause of that young man's downfall? The extravagant life his father led and the life he allowed his children to lead. While that boy was growing up, he could have anything he wanted that money could buy. His father sent him on pleasure trips across the sea, and willingly paid all his bills. Then, when his father died, Joe and his sisters were helplessly stranded. They had the tastes and desires of millionaires. They had the empty pockets of paupers. Preparations for such tragedies are being enacted to-day by selfish men all round the world. As long as these wickedly foolish fathers can satisfy their present wants, they care not what may become of their children after they are gone. Every wise father should teach his children that the red-breasted oriole of gold has wings swifter than the winds. When it is gone, it is very hard to overtake, and to bring back. He should train each child to be able to earn a livelihood, independent of any money he may bequeath to that child.

Wilful debt is often a well-dressed villain who pretends to be an honest man. In olden times, if a man could not pay his debts, he was looked upon in the same sense as a thief, and sent to jail. Under the old Roman law, after spending a certain time in jail, if he was still unable to pay his creditors, he was sold into slavery, and had to pass his life as a serf. Someone might say that such a condition is very hard and unjust, and so it is. But, in many cases, when a man will deliberately enter a store and run up a heavy bill, which he has no intention of paying, he is just as much a robber as the sneak thief who rushes into the bakery and steals a loaf of bread, and he should have little mercy shown to him. The debtor not only steals the groceryman's goods, but he steals his time and his service.

Many a man who for years has deliberately run up all the debts he can, is to-day walking around our streets, claiming that in the sight of the law he is honest. After deliberately swindling all the men he could, he puts the little money he had left in his wife's name. Then he enters the bankruptcy court and asks the judge to free him from all these financial obligations. Now, I care not what the bankruptcy court may say in such cases, no honest man, in the sight of God or man, can ever be morally freed from a financial debt until that debt is paid. It is a man's business to pay what he owes, no matter how the bill was contracted. One of the first signs of Zaccheus' real conversion was when he turned to the Saviour and said: "Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor, and if I have taken anything from any man by false accusation, I restore to him four-fold." In other words, he said: "If I have cheated any man out of his just dues, I am ready not only to restore to him the full amount of money taken, but I will restore to him double and treble and quadruple that which I have taken." And no man, in the sight of God, can be a Christian until he first signifies his intention to repay to the utmost of his ability, all the money borrowed by him, and to cancel his full obligations to every one of his financial creditors. You cannot love God and at the same time signify a willingness to cheat your fellow-men.

It is told of Daniel Webster, that James T. Field, the famous publisher, when a young clerk, was sent to collect a bill from the great constitutional lawyer. Mr. Webster turned to him and said, "Young man, I have no money. I never can pay my debts. What is the good of your coming around and bothering me? See, here is my money-drawer; there is nothing in it." With that, Mr. Webster opened the drawer, and lo, revealed within was a big roll of bank notes. Mr Webster's face lighted up with a look of great surprise. "Well, well," he said. "There is some money. I wonder where it came from. Young man, help yourself." With that, Mr. Webster turned his back upon young Field, and buried his face in a law book. Mr. Field helped himself. Signed a receipt and left the room, and Mr. Webster did not look up for one moment to see what he was doing. Daniel Webster may have been a great statesman, but he was not a business man. He had no more right to ignore his creditors like that, than he had to sell his vote in the United States Senate. And before God and man, we have no right to run up a lot of bills which we have no intention of cancelling. "Owe no man anything," wrote the greatest preacher who ever lived. That means, pay your butcher and baker bills and rent just as faithfully as you ought to pay for your church pew or your dues into the missionary societies.

In closing, I would like to ask my readers a pertinent question. Is not the chief reason why you are unwilling to publicly profess Christ because you have not been living right with your fellowmen, and trying to pay your honest debts? Dr. Wilbur Chapman, I think it was, once told this incident in a great evangelistic meeting. For some weeks, there was among the audience to whom he had been preaching a man who would not confess Christ. Dr. Chapman could not understand why. But one night, this man came to his hotel room, and said: "Doctor, is there help for me? I am a defaulter. I stole so many thousand dollars from my employers many years ago. They have never found it out. What shall I do?" Dr. Chapman told the man to go back to his old employers and to confess, and fully confess, what he had done. Then Dr. Chapman told that man to give up all his property to liquidate part of the debt, and to pledge himself to pay back the balance as soon as he could. The man did as he advised. In trying to undo the past wrong, he removed the obstacle which had kept him from realizing that Christ was ready to forgive him. My friends, is the awful realization that you have been financially unjust to your fellowmen keeping you away from the love of Christ? Will you not try to undo that wrong? Will you not follow the command of Paul, who tells us to "owe no man anything," the same Paul who tells us to "press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus?"

It may only take a small speck of dust in the eye to blind the sight and shut out the light of the noon-tide sun. It may only take one bill which we refuse to pay to our neighbor, to shut out all the glories of heaven. Paul does not ask of us an impossibility. But he does demand that we, one and all, should not only love God with all our souls, but also love our fellow-men enough to be financially just to them as well as merciful.

IN THE LAND OF THE BREAD-FRUIT TREE

REV. MR. SOBEY AND WIFE

FROM Limon, chief port of entry on the Atlantic seaboard of Costa Rica, a letter just received at this office announces the arrival of Rev. Mr. J. H. Sobey and wife, returning to their work after a visit to the United States. Mr. Sobey writes: "I find my CHRISTIAN HERALD here awaiting me like a kind friend from the States, to remind us that we are not forgotten there. The five hundred copies Dr. Klopsch so generously sent us free are eagerly being sought after, but I must take two hundred and fifty with me to Colombia next week. The paper is always an interesting, edifying and most welcome visitor; and it aids me in my work."

Mr. Sobey's is a most interesting work. He is Costa Rica's pioneer Protestant missionary. "When I first went there," he says, "as the representative of the Baptist Missionary Society of Jamaica, I believe that I did not find twelve Protestants. Now there are 8,000. The little church I planted at Port Limon was the first organized Christian work of the Protestant faith in the whole republic. There was a little Protestant church in the interior, but it had no minister. I will always remember the first services I held under a bread-fruit tree. We sang some of Moody and Sankey's hymns and the people gathered around. There, under the bread-fruit tree, was the beginning of the Protestant church in Limon. There were thousands of English-speaking people in Costa Rica; they came from England and the States, many refugees seeking escape from consequences of their own wrong-doing being among the number. About a year after that meeting we built our little church; since then, we have built eight mission churches. The Word of God was almost unknown in the homes when we first went there; but soon after I was able to get a colporteur through the English Bible Society to aid me in distributing Bibles and Testaments; now, the agents of that organization and of the American Bible Society are at work throughout Central America. There are some three or four million Roman Catholics in that country, and about two million pagans—Indians and others, who have no knowledge of Christianity.

"Limon, 'the place where the bananas come from,' and coffee and cocoa, has greatly changed since I saw it first. It is now a thriving, progressive town, with modern improvements. The interior has changed also. Costa Rica is the centre of a great banana industry; thousands of people from the West Indies are employed on banana plantations. We longed to do a great work among them, but lacked means.

"The majority of the members of the Jamaica Baptist Missionary Society are black people; the average wage of the Jamaica laborer is twenty-five cents a day. They support their own institutions, and have hitherto been responsible for the support of their missionaries outside of their own island, but in consequence of the failure of the sugar industry, it has been difficult for the Society to do any more aggressive work. Three years ago, a gentleman approaching me at Limon, proposed that, as God had greatly blessed me in pioneer work, I should undertake it again; and I was enabled to carry the Gospel to the banana plantations, as my heart was set to do, he promising to stand by me. Since then, I have been supported by two Methodists and a Presbyterian: and my work is evangelical, and not denominational, though I am still the recognized agent of the Jamaica Baptist Missionary Society; I journey about preaching and teaching the Word of God as the Spirit leads me. Often the place of worship is a camp on a banana plantation, where I have stumbled upon the men when some are washing their clothes, others smoking, some playing cards. I have a young volunteer assistant in Mr. Reinhardt: he is ready to go long journeys afoot through the bush to carry the Gospel to his fellows: funds are needed to enable him and others to give themselves to this work, for there are many in Costa Rica who must feel that no man careth for their souls."

BEER GIRL

AMONG COFFEE BLOOMS SORTING COFFEE A NATIVE'S HUT

MISSIONARIES IN MOROCCO SAFE

MR. AND MRS. CURRALL

THE CHILDREN OF MISSIONARIES CURRALL AND WEISS

MISSIONARY FRED WEISS

IT will be welcome news to all who are interested in Gospel work in foreign lands, to know that the imperiled missionaries in Morocco are safe. All the missionaries of the North African Mission at Fez and Mequinez, have arrived at Tangier, where they are with the independent missionaries who had preceded them there, protected by the foreign war-ships. There was a perilous time in Fez before the missionary exodus. European women were insulted by natives. There has been much inter-tribal fighting lately, the Sultan's troops were victorious, and Bu Hamara, the Pretender, is reported to have been captured.

In a letter to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD from Missionary Fred Weiss, from Tangier, Jan. 3 (sent before the defeat of the Pretender), the writer says:

"We hear all sorts of rumors from the interior. One was that the Sultan had been killed, and that Fez was in the hands of the rebels and all foreigners had been killed; but the actual state of things is known to few.

"The missionaries are all safe inside the city walls and there has been no loss of life among the foreigners, but only among the rebels and the Sultan's soldiers, in all about four hundred being killed. Mr. Harris, a special friend of the Sultan, and the correspondent of the London Times, had been warned to leave Fez by a certain day or his life would be taken. Upon hearing this, Mr. Harris went to the Sultan and told him what he had heard. Mr. Harris, who is in Tangier now, said that when he told the Sultan, the Sultan laughed and hoped Mr. Harris had 'given the man a half dollar for his trouble.' But Mr. Harris took it seriously, and left the Sultan's palace and came to Tangier. He rode from Fez to Tangier in four days, and it usually takes travelers ten for this journey. The last news from Fez is that the missionaries are in the Sultan's palace, being cared for by him.

"There is a political side, as some think, to this disturbance. English subjects here think that the French are behind the trouble. The present Sultan has had English advisers, and the French are trying to dethrone the Sultan and elevate a ruler who will favor the French. The city of Ouezan is a 'holy city' and no white man is allowed to enter it. From this city the Sultans are chosen. The governor of Ouezan is a French-protected subject. From a native, we learn that in this 'holy city' there is a white horse being carefully groomed and fed. He is decked with jewels and incense is burned around him. It is said, that as soon as the present Sultan has been got rid of, the coming ruler will ride forth on this white horse, and will take the throne, and that he will favor the French, and the English will lose their hold.

"Several countries have already sent gunboats to this port and others are arriving daily. They are anchored in the bay of Tangier. The foreign legations are all in Tangier. At the capital, Fez, the Sultan remains most of the time, but his court moves at times to Rabat, Morocco City, or Mequinez. FRED WEISS."

The "Bucket-and-Basket" Brigade

MRS. S. E. TEWKSBURY

WAY down South, on the banks of the Chattahoochee River, is situated what is perhaps one of the most unique missions of our time, and the writer, to whose attention it was recently brought, feels that others of the readers of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD might be interested to learn a little of the history of this most unusual work.

Columbus, Ga., is the Lowell of the South. Like its sister New England town, it is a large factory centre, but in many ways the operators do not have the advantages of the northern town. In the factory districts are hundreds of children who, of necessity, are compelled to help earn the living for the family. The only way in which they can do this is by carrying lunches or dinners to the workers in the factories, for which they receive as compensation fifty cents per month, one child sometimes carrying as many as twelve lunches a day. This gave it the name of The "Bucket-and-Basket" Brigade. This work naturally prevents the children from attending the public schools, consequently they form a wild, untaught, and ignorant class.

The crying need for someone to help these children led Mrs. S. E. Tewksbury, shortly after the death of her little daughter in the Fall of 1897, to devote her life to the amelioration of the condition of these poor little white lunch-carriers. For two years, from her own means, she maintained a school for them, and the marvelous way in which the Heavenly Father answered the prayers of both teacher and scholars is proof that the work is one of real merit and blessing.

When the children learned that they were to have a school, their enthusiasm knew no bounds. It mattered little to them how unpretentious was the room, or how meagre the furnishings. Indeed, the first seats were boxes, proudly carried in by the children themselves. The sessions are so arranged as not to interfere with the work of the children, and yet for five hours each day they receive instruction in the Bible, and the common English branches. The average attendance is about sixty boys and girls, ranging from six to fourteen years. Every Thursday evening a prayer meeting is held. The children call this their meeting, and it is quite a common occurrence for a little tot to say, "Please, tan we have some sentence prayers?" when, one after another, the little ones will voice the petition uppermost in their hearts. The Sunday School is attended by some eighty children, and the leader is assisted by earnest young Christian workers.

The leader and founder of this unpretentious mission is a woman of strong faith, and it is quite natural that association with her at such an impressionable age should bring out to the fullest extent the faith and trust of the children. Some time ago, when winter was coming on, it became necessary for the mission to move to another building. There was apparently no place for them to go; but teachers and scholars prayed that a door might be opened, and soon a building along the banks of the river was offered to them. There was no heater, no coal, and no money to buy either; but they moved in, trusting God to furnish the wherewithal. On the first morning they found there a brand new heater, and fuel sufficient for a day or two. When that was gone, they prayed for more. All winter long the fuel came in small quantities, sometimes only enough for a day. Most of the time neither teacher nor pupils knew the donors.

Some of these children are orphans, and many have invalid parents. I wish I could draw you a picture of them, as they are gathered in from the streets, knowing nothing of God, but so bright and anxious to learn—little diamonds in the rough! Through these children the parents are reached. In many a home the prayer learned at the mission and lisped by childish lips is the first that has been heard. "A little child shall lead them."

God has used many of these little children to lead parents to Christ. It is not an uncommon sight for mothers to come to the mission, and ask for prayer that God would help them to do right, and to brighten their lowly lives.

The mission needs and asks the help and the prayers of earnest Christians. Further information will be gladly given to any who may be interested to know more of this mission, by Mrs. S. E. Tewksbury, 11 W. 17th St. Columbus, Ga.

L. C. MYERS

THE BRIGADE IN FRONT OF THE LITTLE MISSION HOUSE

The Whole Nation Helping Finland

Another Remittance of $10,000 Cabled to Helsingfors for Relief, by THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, and $5,000 to Sweden

IN A FINNISH FISHING VILLAGE — A LAPLAND FAMILY AT HOME — A FINLAND FARM HOMESTEAD

AMERICA'S great heart has been melted by the story of the widespread famine and suffering in the Northland, and contributions for the relief of the starving Finlanders continue to pour in from many States. A third remittance of $10,000 was cabled last week by THE CHRISTIAN HERALD Famine Fund to the Finnish Relief Committee at Helsingfors for immediate use in the work, making $25,000 cabled to Finland thus far. On the same day $5,000 was cabled by THE CHRISTIAN HERALD to the Swedish Relief Committee in Stockholm, to be used in the northern districts.

In a letter from the Rev. J. D. Kilburn, of the American Church, St. Petersburg, to Dr. Klopsch (written from Kajaira, Finland), the writer says:

Pastor Wayrynen (of Kajaira) showed me your letter of 3d ulto. I am glad that you think of helping these poor, suffering, hardworking people. . . . Pastor Wayrynen has done much for the poor people, both in the last famine and also in this. Things are so hard now that to me they seem to be almost hopeless.

Kajaira is the centre from which nearly all help goes to the greater part of this whole district. The district extends over 12,000 square kilometres, and contains over 39,000 inhabitants —hardworking, sober and remarkably honest. Cases have been known of men being sent with food to others, and dying of hunger as they were taking it to them. In the parish of Kajaira, with over 4,000 inhabitants, there are only two policemen. In the whole district, with its 39,000 population, there is only one place where strong drink is sold.

Those who are suffering most are the small farmers. They are face to face with ruin and death. Most of them have already had to kill a great part of their cattle.

During his tour of the famine field, Dr. Kilburn made copious notes of his personal observations. Some of these notes he has forwarded to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. He writes:

Wherever possible, work is being found for those who are able to work, cutting wood, making roads, draining marshes, etc.

K. H. cultivates a small farm. His wife has died and left him with five young children. Last year he only obtained ten hectolitres of potatoes and three hectolitres of rye, and no corn. He and his children must starve unless helped.

Many widows are left with three and four or even more children, utterly unable to find work of any kind. They and their children must die if not helped.

The state of the children is particularly sad. Many have nothing more than a single garment. Some walk long distances to school, in the cold, with insufficient clothing. Most of them have had hardly anything to eat before leaving home, and will get little or nothing after returning. An effort is made in some parishes to raise means to give these children a piece of black bread daily.

In Inonussalmi, eighty miles north of Kajaira, the hay, oats and rye failed. Many people have hardly anything. The potatoes that were gathered were little larger than berries. Many sought to make bread from the rye, but it is scarcely like bread, being quite green. It hardly holds together, and is so bitter that one cannot well swallow it. Yet it is all many have to live on. There are places where the people have not even such bread, but have to live on tree-bark.

Those who visit the little homes, and see the sad faces of the mothers and the white faces of the almost naked children and hear their vain cries for bread, realize how great is the need.

A cable dispatch from Lulea to the Chicago News, gives some pitiful details of the famine in North Sweden. In the parish of Korpilombo, the entire population of two thousand, except twelve families, is famine-stricken. Similar conditions prevail in Hietianeni, Mattrengi, Pello, Pajala, Kalix, Tarendo, Ullatti, Kumpilisvarra and Vittanga—a territory of some 15,000 square miles. Children are in rags, and sickness is spreading. Families have eaten the carcasses of horses that have died of starvation. When a traveler passes through any of these places, the whole population surrounds him and begs for food. People formerly prosperous, are now glad to be able to share crumbs with the poorest. Peasants weep with gratitude at the sight of food. At Gellivare and Kirmia, the Lapps are suffering terribly. They are fast being exterminated by the famine. In Juckasjtrvi village, 300 Lapps are literally starving to death. They lie on their ovens, stoically tightening their belts, and each day getting thinner and weaker.

In a letter from Lulea to the Chicago Tribune, the correspondent describes, with startling realism, an 800-mile ride through the famine districts of North Sweden. He estimates that in that region alone not less than 100,000 persons are on the verge of starvation. Thousands of families, with eleven to fourteen children in each, are looking vainly to the future, with no prospect except privation and suffering. Many families live in the depths of the pine woods, many miles from the rugged roadways. Scores of starving villages can only be reached by roads that wind through forests, along frozen rivers. The famine is worst in "Norboltens lau" —the northern governmental division, which has 138,630 population. Over 1,000 carloads of relief have already been sent into this territory from the relief committee in Stockholm. The peasants have been compelled to use everything that was edible, in order to stay hunger's cravings—ground birch bark, unmatured barley, and pine branches cut up and boiled (this last for cattle). As there is no hay, thousands of horses and cattle have been killed and eaten.

There are, in all, six Swedish districts affected by the famine, with an aggregate population of 1,225,566, and the actual sufferers are estimated at 215,668, distributed through sixty villages. The Government may be compelled to turn the Swedish army into a distributing and relieving corps. The famine is mostly north of the Arctic circle, and the people have had snow and ice since early last September. Many instances are cited showing the terrible suffering. One man in Korpilombo had killed more than half his cattle and given the carcasses to the poor. An aged woman walked twenty miles over the snow to get a handful of barley scales (dust). In Vittangi, dogs have been killed and eaten. In a hut that resembled a pig-pen, was found an emaciated woman, pale and ragged, baking bread of birch bark, barley dust and leaves. At her feet, on the floor, lay a ragged, wasted child. Both were wolfish with hunger.

Long lines of sledges may be seen in the neighborhood of the few relief stations, the occupants hoping to get food for their starving ones at home. Some drive two hundred miles. Enteric fever has already broken out in some villages, owing to the famine.

The pastor of the Swedish Lutheran Gustavus Adolphus Church, New York, writes as follows concerning the famine in Sweden:

To the Editor of "The Christian Herald" —Regarding the famine in Sweden, I can state, having a letter from one of the King's Court chaplains, that 200,000 people in the north part of that country alone (including the province which is called Lapland), are in great peril of starvation. Since the years of war, 1808-1809, no one has witnessed anything like the present condition in Sweden. To this horror is added the pestilence, as a result of the unnatural food. Please hearken to the appeal of the stricken people. Wherever Swedes are to be found, they do their utmost to alleviate the condition of their suffering countrymen.

MAURITZ STOLPE.

Among the Scandinavian people of our Western States, the movement for the relief of the sufferers in Finland and Sweden is making great headway. Governor Van Zandt has appointed a State Relief Committee for Minnesota, and Mr. Peterson is organizing the work in Minneapolis. In Illinois, Michigan, and other States, Dr. C. J. Sorsen's Committee is doing excellent work.

Address all contributions for the Finnish Relief to

FINLAND FAMINE FUND
THE CHRISTIAN HERALD
BIBLE HOUSE, NEW YORK

Contributions intended for the work in Sweden should be so designated. Every contribution, great or small, will be duly acknowledged in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD.

FINNISH LABORERS SHIPPING TAR

Copyright 1909, by Underwood & Underwood

PEASANT GIRLS OF MORO, SWEDEN

OUR EDITORIAL FORUM

B. J. FERNIE, ASSOCIATE EDITOR — LOUIS KLOPSCH, Editor and Proprietor — G. H. SANDISON, ASSOCIATE EDITOR

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD ... $1.50 a year. Remittances ... Foreign Postage. ... Change of Date. ... Expiration of Subscriptions.—The date on the wrapper indicates when your subscription ends. Change of Address.—Give both your old and your new address when you ask us to change your address. Subscriptions may commence with any issue. Letters should be addressed, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, Bible House, New York. Entered at the Post-office, New York, as Second-class Matter

A Suggestion to Ministers

ONE of our contemporaries, which has been wrestling with the problem of the decline of church attendance, prints a letter from a layman which, we think, deserves more prominence and attention than it has received. He says briefly, speaking from his own experience, that he believes that people who do not go to church, stay away because they are not interested in the topics handled by their pastors.

If this statement is true to any great extent, it may be a pointer to the long-sought solution of the problem. Why should not the minister make an experiment with a view of ascertaining how far the charge holds in his case. He could easily test it by mingling freely and without ministerial manner, with the people of his town. If he talked with them in an easy, companionable way, without any attempt at teaching, or preaching, but with an effort to elicit their own opinions and thoughts on general topics, as well as on religion, he would find out in what subjects they do take an interest, the kind of questions which are perplexing them, and the character of the troubles that are pressing upon them. Perhaps if a minister talked with a storekeeper, who was beginning to fear that he must sacrifice principle in order to meet the tactics of an unscrupulous competitor on the next block, he might decide to preach a sermon on righteousness in business, instead of one on the personality of Melchizedec, or of one on the symbolism of the Tabernacle. If he had a talk with a man who was struggling against the temptation of strong drink, he might prepare a sermon on some such text as, "He that overcometh shall inherit all things."

An experiment of this kind was made some years ago, by a city minister, who bore the common name of "Brown." He was a member of several working-men's clubs, the other members of which thought he was a mechanic, and were quite ready to discuss politics, or sociology with him. It was only when the practical character of his sermons attracted the working men of the city by hundreds to his church, that his identity was discovered, and then his popularity by no means diminished. It might not be possible for every minister to test the matter in this particular way; but he can surely find some way of getting in touch with people, and then in his study see in what way Christianity applied to our rent topics. The experiment seems to be worth making.

The Rich Young Man Again

WE have received from readers of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD in various States, a number of letters concerning the case of young Mr. Rockefeller, "the rich young man" referred to in a recent editorial in this paper. It is interesting and instructive to note the different "points of view" in these communications. One reader—Dr. Frank L. Rose, a trustee of the Garfield M. E. Church, Chicago, Ill.—takes issue with our liberal conclusions. He can discover no good quality in this "rich young man," and, though conceding his sincerity, contends that only by stripping himself of the greater part of his wealth—returning it to those from whom it originally came—can he hope to be regarded as one who is a genuine Christian. Dr. Rose believes that if he would make public restitution, and follow this by reducing the price of oil, "so as to leave a net profit of 4 per cent. on actual investment, or to literally follow the advice of our Saviour" to the other rich young man, adverse criticism of his actions would cease.

Another reader—and one no doubt equally earnest—is Mrs. M. M. Stead, of Sandoval, Ill., who represents, probably, the opinions of the larger class on this matter. This lady, writing from a generous, rather than a critical heart, pronounces it "a grand thing to have a rich young man interested in the salvation of young men . . . Few, in his position, would do as he does. Those who are blessed with riches, can do much for the advancement of the Kingdom."

It seems to us, that the true position for the fair-minded critic to assume in this matter, lies between these two. Society draws the line of distinction horizontally—the rich above, the poor beneath. Christ draws the line perpendicularly, from top to bottom; on one side the righteous, on the other the unrighteous. Wealth or poverty count for nothing in this determination; the rich man is not excluded by reason of his wealth, nor is the poor admitted because of his poverty. He looks at the heart, not at the purse—at what a man is, not at what he possesses. Accepting Mr. Rockefeller's profession as genuine, we have no just ground for condemning him. He is still a very young man. His life and career lie before him. As he grows in years and experience, and, let us hope, in grace, he may yet be a blessing to many, and a potent factor in Christian work. Carnegie is giving his millions to education, and Pearson, his to theological schools; Vanderbilt gave much to Y. M. C. A. and other uplifting work among his employees; and Miss Helen Gould has won golden opinions by her liberal gifts to many Christian and benevolent enterprises. Armour, Huntington, Drew and many others might be mentioned in the same category. Our various denominations, our individual churches, and a host of different institutions have benefited by the gifts of men who made their money in the world's way, and who selected this method of disposing of it. We have no idea what Mr. Rockefeller's intentions are, nor are we at all concerned about them. The essential point in his case is, that he has had the courage to come out openly in confessing Christ, and that he is now working for him. By and by, he may work better and more effectively; his views of Christian duties may broaden, and he may come to the conclusion—if, indeed, he has not done so already—that all wealth is simply a trusteeship, to be accounted for with rigorous exactness hereafter. We believe that his future will yet disclose just how true and how comprehensive his Christianity is, and whether he takes the right view of his riches and of his duty as to their use. Meanwhile, we repeat, no true Christian will stoop to censure him for the progress he has made in the right direction, but will rather encourage him to go forward.

The Finland Famine Fund

AMONG the many letters received last week by THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, dealing with the Finland famine, was the following from Cincinnati:

To the Editor: Will you please tell me how much money Dr Klopsch is going to distribute, while he is among the famine sufferers in Finland? A. G. McC.

He will distribute no money at all. No one connected with THE CHRISTIAN HERALD ever undertakes the distribution of funds entrusted to its care for use in any benevolent or missionary field. In every instance—in Cuba, Russia, China, Porto Rico, Armenia and India, as well as now in Finland—the money is invariably administered by representative local resident committees, under the supervision of a Resident General or Central Committee, which is charged with the relief of suffering.

Experience in humanitarian work in many lands, has convinced THE CHRISTIAN HERALD that the reputable, intelligent, Christian residents of the country where such work is needed, and where relief moneys are to be distributed, are far better qualified to administer such a trust than any outsiders, resident in a distant country. They know the field and the people, and are familiar with their needs; consequently they are in a position to conduct the distribution of relief in a far more judicious and effective manner than could be possible for the management of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, located thousands of miles away from the scenes of suffering.

While in Finland, therefore, Dr. Klopsch will inspect the relief work in operation, and aid the Central Committee by every means in his power, but that Committee, and the representative Finnish business men, professional men and Lutheran pastors who compose it, is the sole channel through which the Famine Fund, contributed by our readers, will be used to rescue the starving peasants of Finland.

How Two People Choose

"The ten handsome pictures are appreciated. If I had to choose from the number, I should take 'The Horse Fair,' and 'Arabs on the March,' because I am particularly fond of horses," writes one member of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD family who had just received the "Family Art Gallery." A little boy who is fond of dogs, writes that he and his wee sister admire "The Two Families." "I wisht," he painfully indites, "I was there to help that weenty one get to the pan of milk." The collection of ten magnificent pictures, panels and ovals, is a free gift from the Publisher of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD to every subscriber.

Facts Concerning the Canteen

EDITOR THE CHRISTIAN HERALD:

No doubt, sir, many of your readers are at a loss to kno what, or who, to believe concerning the army canteen. S many conflicting and contradictory stories have been circ lated through the daily papers, that many good men are wo dering if Congress did not make a mistake in prohibiting th sale of intoxicating beverages in post exchanges and barrack

Major L. I. Seaman, late surgeon United States Volu teers, in an article in The North American Review, says:

Had the canteen been called the soldiers' club, or post exchang it never would have been abolished by Congress.

The post exchange has not been abolished, but simply th sale of intoxicating drinks, which the Root-Corbin combi seem so anxious to restore.

During the passage of the Anti-Canteen bill through Co gress, dire prophecies were uttered as to the fearful increa there would be of court-martials for drunkenness; how vi resorts would spring up in the vicinity of every barracks how disease and vice would increase, etc.; but in spite these doleful prophecies, Congress passed the Anti-Cantee bill, and Feb. 3, 1901, an order was sent out from the W Department prohibiting the sale of intoxicating drinks in th post exchanges and barracks, but not closing said exchange Before three months passed after the closing of the cantee frightful stories began to appear in the daily press. Murd was reported at Fort Presidio, Cal., rioting at Forts Mye Sheridan, Snelling, and Wadsworth, and all this was said t be the result of closing the canteen.

The National Temperance Society of No. 3 E. Fourteent street, New York City, began an investigation to find out th facts. A committee of ministers and business men visited th forts and post exchanges and barracks, where the rioting an murder were said to have taken place. Here is what we found Fact No. 1. That the murder at Fort Presidio, Cal., was comm ted two years and six months before the act was passed abolishi the canteen.

Fact No. 2. That the stories concerning rioting were, to use t language of one of the officers in charge, "a tissue of falsehoods."

Fact No. 3. That recruiting has not fallen off, but, on the contrar increased, and that a better class of young men were entering the arm

Then, in order to find out about court-martials, etc., reso was had to headquarters in Washington, and this is what th Society found:

First: That from 1898 to the passing of the Anti-Canteen la which went into effect Feb. 3, 1901, trials for court-martial increase 58.2, or more than doubled. This while the canteen was open.

Second: That from June 30, 1900, to June 30, 1901, there was decrease of over 600 cases of court-martials from the previous year, t Anti-Canteen law having been in effect only five months out of twelv

That from June 30, 1901, to June 30, 1902, there was a decrease 754 over the year previous, so that in one year and five months und no canteen, there was a decrease of 1,354 court martials.

These facts, Mr. Editor, are copied from the report of th Judge Advocate General U. S. A. for the years 1901 and 190 and previous years, and printed on first page of his repor Your readers can get a copy by writing to Washington, an verify them for themselves. The writer, who was Chairma of the Committee of Investigation concerning the reporte increase of crime, has come to the conclusion that somebod is doing some tall misrepresentation about our brave boys blue and the officers of the U. S. Army.

Congressman Parker, of New Jersey, introduced a b Jan. 5th, of this year, providing for the re-establishment of th Army beer saloon.

In conclusion, let me say that the National Temperanc Society has secured from Lord Roberts, of England, an Generals Miles, Daggett, Wheeler, and others, of the U. S Army, facts that cannot be gainsaid; that the evidence gath ered has been printed, in cheap form, for general distribu tion, and ought to be scattered by the million.

HERVEY WOOD, Field Secretary.
National Temperance Society 3 East 14th St., New Yor

Among the Workers

—AT THE ANNUAL MEETING of the United Evangelic Sunday School of Lititz, Lancaster Co., Pa., the report the Secretary showed that D. L. Bowman has been prese at every session of the school during the past twenty-fo years: Harry Gingrich during fourteen years; J. B. Youn twelve years; John Gingrich, nine years; Della Gingric five years, and John Kissinger, three years.

—MRS. ALMA P. NORWOOD writes from Bucaramang Colombia, S. A., that the Home for Native Children, opene by Mr. Norwood and herself, has now twenty-five inmate The war has left many hundreds of orphans. Mrs. Norwoo writes that an American dollar will purchase three times much food in Colombia as in New York.

—AT A REVIVAL MEETING held in Wa-Keeney, Kan lately, where the services were conducted by Evangelist E. I Hermiston, over one hundred signed pledges to live th Christian life.

THE BIBLE and the NEWSPAPER

India's Great Durbar

THE magnificent ceremonies with which the coronation of King Edward VII. was celebrated in India, have already been described in these columns; but our readers will be glad to see the photographs on this page which were taken specially for THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, and have just been received from India. They give an idea of the marvellous spectacle, which probably has no precedent in modern times. Even in the days of India's independence, there could have been no such demonstration. The small principalities of which it was composed were usually at enmity with one another,

LORD AND LADY CURZON IN DELHI

THE DUKE AND DUCHESS OF CONNAUGHT

From photographs specially taken for THE CHRISTIAN HERALD

ROYAL PROCESSION OF ELEPHANTS AT THE RECENT DURBAR IN INDIA

and no conceivable event could have drawn together so enormous an assemblage of rulers, as that which was witnessed in the ancient city of Delhi, at the Great Durbar. A writer who was present, said had seen many great pageants, says: "It surpassed anything I ever saw. The vast crowds, the buildings, everything was of the East. The spectators looked down not from stereotyped sash windows, but from bizarre balconies and Oriental arches of all descriptions. The houses were packed to the roofs, and presented an interesting sight in themselves. The long procession of gorgeously caparisoned elephants, alone made the spectacle one never to be forgotten. During all the fourteen days of splendor, 'My Lord the Elephant' was clothed in the robes of his kingship. His tusks were mounted with gold and jewels, and his back covered with the costliest embroidered silken wrappings. When we consider how unimportant to India is the fact that King Edward has succeeded his mother as the supreme ruler of the country, it seems strange that it should have been acclaimed with so much pomp and splendor. How infinitely more momentous for those teeming millions it would be, if He whose right it is to reign were acknowledged with the homage of the heart.

His kingdom is an everlasting kingdom and his dominion is from generation to generation (Dan. 4:3)

A Poisoned Eye

An official in New York has been obliged to have one of his eyes removed owing to blood poisoning. It is part of his duty to handle large numbers of bills, and one day lately, while he was at his work, he rubbed his eye a great deal. He had caught cold in it and it itched, and irritated him. The next day it was terribly inflamed and he consulted his doctor about it. The physician said he must have gotten some injurious microbes from the money and put them into his eye while rubbing it. As the condition of the eye rapidly became worse and the other eye was sympathetically affected, the physician decided that in order to save the sight of the other eye, the one affected must be removed. It is not often that the physical eyesight is lost through the handling of money, but we hear of many cases in which money, put secretly in a man's hand, will make him blind to the evildoing of the man who gives the money.

A gift doth blind the eyes of the wise, and perverts the words of the righteous (Deut. 16:19).

A Painter of Character

In the course of a discussion in a society of artists recently, a singular fact was mentioned about a well-known painter. It is that he paints beyond the "skin deep" beauty and expression of his sitters, and where the character has warranted it, he has brought out all of the latent beauty and portrayed almost the very soul of the person. He sometimes has made enemies of his sitters because of his conscientious efforts to portray character. There is a story of a Boston beauty, who, when she received her portrait from this artist, took it to her room, studied it for a while, recognized the fact that the artist had laid bare her true character on the canvas, and in a moment of fury, cut out the face and destroyed it. She did not want that peculiar nature of hers staring her in the face from the walls of her room all the time. Yet an unerring portrait of character is really being painted of every one, and it will at the last be exposed.

God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil (Eccles. 12:14).

An Eccentric Will

The Supreme Court of Minnesota has been called on to determine the disposition of a large estate, which was placed in doubt by the eccentricity of the will left by the deceased owner. He had a large number of relatives, to whom he bequeathed small legacies. The remainder, constituting the great bulk of his property, he left to the trustees of the county in which he lived. Later, however, he changed his mind, and made a codicil that none of the residue should go to the county, and, to make sure that it would not, he added that it must be burned by his executor. The court of first instance decided that money could not legally be destroyed, and that the residue must be divided among the first heirs. The County Commissioners appealed to the Supreme Court, saying that if the money contained in the residue fund were not destroyed, it should go to the county. The Supreme Court says: "The bequest to the county was expressly and unconditionally revoked by the codicil, though the new disposition of it may be void." It therefore confirms the decision that it shall be distributed among the relatives. It is well that the court has thwarted so heartless an intention as the testator had. He must have been an unsympathetic kind of man to wish the money destroyed, which so many people sorely need.

Whoso hath this world's goods, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him? (1 John 3:17).

BRIEF NOTES

DR. J. W. Marshall is holding services at Kenton, O. The services at Bellefontaine resulted in large accessions to all the churches and the pastors are continuing evangelistic work with increased enthusiasm.

Rev. C. H. Yatman has been holding meetings at Grand Island, Neb., in the First Methodist Episcopal Church, of which Rev. W. W. Hunt is pastor. The Independent, of that city, says that the church has been crowded at every service by most attentive congregations.

An estate of 2,500 acres has been acquired by the Salvation Army in East Griqualand, South Africa, for training native officers for mission work in Cape Colony, Transvaal and the Orange Free State.

The Tenth Annual Conference of Foreign Mission Boards of the United States and Canada, was held in the Bible House, New York, Jan. 14, 15. About thirty societies and boards, representing different branches of the Congregational, Presbyterian, Reformed, Episcopal, Methodist, and Baptist bodies sent delegates.

Rev. H. G. Underwood writes: "A peculiar feature of the work in Korea is that it is self-supporting. The natives carry on this work, and the foreign missionaries have to superintend and direct these natives and train up at the same time those who are to be leaders, as many of them are to-day acting as the heads of large forces."

The Zeit, a Vienna paper, states that since April 1, 1902, twenty-two new places of evangelical worship have been opened, as follows: nine in Bohemia, five in Lower Austria, four in Styria, and one each in the provinces of Moravia, Karinthia, Carniole and the Tyrol. In sixteen places that are named, it has been decided to build churches. In Vienna a new station, the third, has been opened.

"HAVE YOU FELT THE SPIRIT'S POWER?"

✠ Paul and Apollos...

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR MARCH 1
ACTS 18: 24, 19: 6

By Dr. and Mrs. Wilbur F. Crafts

GOLDEN TEXT: If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him? LUKE 11: 13

PRISCILLA speaks: "The apostle Paul was in our home in Corinth a year and a half. It was the daily delight of my husband, Aquila, and myself to be in his company while we toiled together in tent-making as a means of support. This association gave us opportunity to hear our great fellow-worker tell what he knew about the Lord Jesus, and about the Comforter, the Holy Spirit. What enlightenment, what comfort, what peace his teachings brought to us! At last the day came when Paul said he must leave Corinth, and go elsewhere to preach the Gospel. Quite a congregation of Christians had grown up in Corinth under Paul's teaching. The capacity of the house of Crispus, our meeting place, was often tested to its limit. 'How can we part with our teacher?' was a question which Aquila and I often asked each other, and we determined that we would not part with him; and so when he took ship for Ephesus we were his fellow-passengers. We set up a home in Ephesus. Just a few days Paul tarried with us before making a necessary journey to Jerusalem, from which he was soon to return to Ephesus. Before his departure a few services were held by him in the synagogue of the Jews. This made them all the more eager for Paul's return to dwell with them. They seemed to be of an unusually teachable spirit. The occasion of Paul's going to Jerusalem was that he might discharge a duty he had taken upon himself as a thank-offering for his deliverance from the mobs which had threatened his life.

"Eagerly we watched for his return. In the meantime a most learned Jew named Apollos came to Ephesus. As a Jew he had a wonderful knowledge of the Old Testament Scriptures. We went into the synagogue to hear him and were rejoiced, as he declared to the Jews, that Jesus was their long-expected Messiah. And he called on the people to repent of their sins and be baptized, as he had heard and seen John the Baptist do. And then he stopped. Aquila and I looked in amazement at each other, that so wise a teacher should say nothing about the baptism of the Holy Spirit, which was promised to all the followers of Jesus. Apollos seemed to us like a beautiful lamp that lacked oil and light, needed to fulfil its mission. 'Dare we ask this great teacher to our home that we may tell him what Paul has taught us?' I whispered to Aquila. 'We will do it,' answered Aquila. And he came at our invitation, knowing that Paul's home was with us.

"Our tent work was laid aside, and we devoted ourselves to him. We recalled what Paul had told us of his own experience, when the great Light had shone down upon him from heaven, from which time he had been guided into all truth. We told him how Peter, and James, and John, and the other apostles had waited in the upper room at Jerusalem until they should receive the Holy Spirit, whom Jesus had promised to send them, to be their guide and helper. We told him how the Holy Spirit came as tongues of fire, enabling them to preach about Jesus in many languages, and how thousands were brought in one day to become the friends of Jesus. And we told Apollos how the Holy Spirit afterwards came upon the Gentiles, in the house of the Roman soldier, Cornelius, when Peter was preaching to them, and they, too, received the gift of tongues. And even while we were telling these things, the Spirit's power came upon Apollos, and he went out from us a wiser teacher than he had ever been before. He shortly left Ephesus, and went to Corinth. Aquila and I rejoiced that we had had the opportunity to expound to him the way of God more perfectly, for otherwise the growth of the Christian Church at Corinth might have been hindered.

"After many days our friend Paul returned to us, having made a circuit, after leaving Jerusalem, of the churches which he had established in Asia Minor. We told him of our experience with Apollos. He was greatly rejoiced. After this came wonderful days in Ephesus, for when Paul himself began to teach the people about the Holy Spirit, the same people whom Apollos had been telling about Jesus, the Holy Spirit came upon them as upon the apostles and upon Cornelius, and they, too, were able to preach in many tongues."

THE CITY OF EPHESUS

Illustration and Application

Knowing only the baptism of John. Of the four chief uses of water—for power, for irrigation, for thirst, for cleansing—power was first in nature; but in religion, the baptism of power is last, and only cleansing or repentance is commonly thought of in the first baptism. Before there was any plant-needing irrigation, before there was any animal thirst, God used water in glacier chisels to plane down the mountains and groove out the valleys; and with the ocean in the hollow of his hand he shaped the shores of the continents. When men came, water power was the first great power they learned to use in fitting the world for human abode. At last, even Niagara is harnessed, and proves a mightier force than any that man has invented in all the centuries. The street cars and industries of three cities are supplied from Niagara with the electric power. Thus water and fire prove to be but varied forms of one great power that God has given to man. What a picture we have here of the baptism of power, the second baptism, that came to Apollos and his disciples at Ephesus! He had learned from John the Baptist, or from some of his disciples, that Jesus Christ was the true Messiah, and this he eloquently proclaimed to the Jews, using all the light he had. To him baptism was a sign of cleansing only, of repentance, as were the Old Testament lavers of Tabernacle and Temple and the many washings of the Jewish ritual. There are some, even among Protestants, to whom baptism does not even mean repentance, but is only a magic use of "holy water," through which salvation is expected regardless of character. When the writer was crossing the Red Sea, a storm arose which called for the utmost efforts of the two Mohammedan boatmen, but when the hour came for ablutions and prayer, one, and then the other, dropped his oar while he dipped his dirty toes in the sea, and then threw down his coat for a prayer rug in the bottom of the boat and went through his form of prayer, all of which was as soulless as a phonograph, and as devoid of utility for either physical or spiritual cleansing.

The familiar story is pertinent of the Sunday School child who, being asked if she was ever baptized, replied, "Twice; but the first time it didn't take." When vaccination does not take, it may be because it is not needed, but there is no human soul that does not need the baptism of repentance. And here we may well repeat another familiar but pertinent story of a thoughtful child, who said to her teacher, "Mother calls me good, but I ain't good. When I don't dare to say bad things, I think them. How can I be clean inside of me?" That is just what the baptism of repentance means. It is a symbolic prayer and promise of cleansing.

Until that negative cleansing is received the soul does not commonly think much of positive duties and so does not yet feel its weakness, and so its need of power. Therefore a second baptism for service is often sought and received. Apollos, with all his learning, was glad to learn from a working woman and her husband—Priscilla is named first, doubtless because more spiritual—of the baptism which John had promised when he said, "One cometh after me, mightier than I; he shall baptize you with the Holy Spirit and with fire." This baptism of "fire" means not only power and enthusiasm, but also a completer cleansing, as fire purifies more thoroughly than water. Christ's baptism was not of fire but of dovelike light.

* * *

The Holy Spirit came on them.—In the case of Apollos we see an individual rising into a "higher life," receiving a "second blessing." But in the later verses of the lesson it is the whole church at Ephesus that receives a spiritual baptism for testimony and service. It should, therefore, be said here, even though the illustration may have been used before, that every church should be a "power house," making its invisible influence felt in "forward movements" in every street of the city, in business and politics and pleasures, as well as in homes and schools. "What church is this?" the writer asked, pointing to a churchlike building of large dimensions. The answer was, "That is a power house. It was a church, but they couldn't make things go." No doubt the reason was lack of spiritual power. There ought to be power not alone in the preaching, but power also in the singing of choir and people; power in the listening, power in the living. But power will not come if it is sought only to give selfish personal joy, or to increase the pew rents. If power is desired that one or all may testify effectively of Christ by lips and life, God is more willing to give the Holy Spirit than parents to give good gifts to their children. When a distinguished evangelist ha spoken of how to bring the Holy Spirit into the huma spirit, the writer followed with a word on how to keep th power of the Holy Spirit: "You'll lose it if you don't use it.

It is passing strange that any one should oppose wit technical theological debate any sane effort to promote th much-needed increase of spiritual power in the church. Th debate is mostly about words to no profit. No sane perso claims "perfection" in conduct or in judgment, nor any pe fection inconsistent with progress—only "perfection in love in the sense required by the command—which implies powe to obey: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all th heart." This means supreme loyalty, so that when love c sin, or love of money, or love of ease, or love of fame, cor flicts with any duty to God, his will shall ever triumph in ou final decision. And, in order that love may be thus er throned above sin and selfishness, we must also obey th command, "Be filled with the Spirit." Surely we can be an do whatever God commands. "All God's biddings are er ablings." How much better praying is than debating whe the "higher life" is in view, was illustrated one day when th writer, in traveling, heard a preacher argue bitterly in de fense of "sanctification" in a Sunday morning service, wir ning no one surely by his unwinsome, unsanctified spirit and then in the afternoon heard a church that made n theological profession of sanctification sing with a yearnin that seemed to win a divine response:

Lord Jesus, I long to be pe fectly whole;
I pray thee, forever, to dwe
in my soul;
Break down every idol, ca
out every foe;
Oh, wash me, and I shall b whiter than snow!

Certainly, one can be fre from the guilt of sin—"Blessed is he to whom th
Lord imputeth not iniqu ty." One can also triump over the power of sin—"I shall not have dominio over me." One can als be delivered from the lov
of sin—"The law of th spirit of life have made m free from the law of sin an death." But when one i victor over all known sin he will to the end need t pray. "Cleanse thou m from hidden faults," tha is, from unconsciou wrong doing or wrong fee
ing. And, however, muc of love and of the Hol Spirit one receives, he wi never be at the end c growth.

Have you felt the Spirit's power?
Yet there's more to follow.

Indeed, Christian perfec tion—and it is a Bible wor and not to be discarde because abused—is th perfection of a young an growing plant, which when it breaks the sod, i as perfect as when full grown. Holiness is whole ness, the whole heart given loyally to the power of our divin King. And may we add fragments of two hymns that cam out of the writer's own heart at times of spiritual uplift, on at Hamilton Campground, the other at Northfield:

I stand all bewildered with wonder
And gaze on the ocean of love,
While over its waves to my spirit
Comes peace like a heavenly dove.
The Cross now covers my sins,
The past is all under the blood;
I'm trusting in Jesus for all,
My will is the will of my God.

The world, I thought, belonged to me—
Goods, gold and people, land and sea;
Where'er I walked beneath God's sky,
In those old days, my word was "I."

Years passed; there flashed my pathway near
The fragment of a vision clear;
My former word no more sufficed,
And what I said was, "I and Christ."

But, O, the more I looked on Him
His glory grew, while mine grew dim;
I shrank so small, He towered so high,
All I dared say was, "Christ and I."

Years more the vision held its place
And looked me steadily in the face;
I speak now in a humbler tone,
And what I say is, "Christ alone."

A Song of Degrees.—S. V. COLE.

One of Frances Ridley Havergal's poems tells of an Æolian harp which a friend sent with a letter describing the wonderful sweetness of its tones. Miss Havergal took the harp and thrummed its seven strings, but there were no thrilling strains only common music. She then read the letter again, and found instructions which she had overlooked at first. Then she raised the window and put the harp under the sash. Now the wind swept over the strings and the room was filled with melodious strains which no fingers of man could have produced. Only when the breath of heaven blew upon the harp could its marvelous music be brought out. The human soul is such a harp. Human fingers call out much that is lovely and sweet, but it is only when its chords are swept by the breath of heaven, by the Holy Spirit, that its noblest music is called out.

WHERE DID THE ISRAELITES CROSS THE RED SEA?

THERE is no event in Biblical history which possesses a deeper interest for the human race than the miraculous passage of the Red Sea by the Children of Israel. This miracle has rightly been called "the turning-point of sacred history."

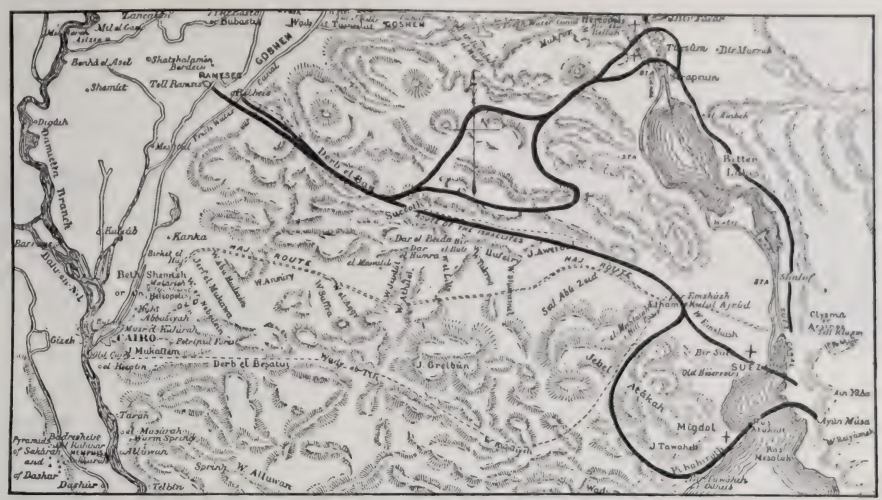
Where did it take place? Is it possible, at this distant date, to locate the true site of the passage? Is all the wisdom of the ages unequal to the task of indicating the exact locality where the host of the exiles—600,000 adults, besides children, with their flocks and herds and all the impedimenta of so great a multitude—passed over safely, while the great army of Pharaoh–Menephthah, with its thousands of chariots, its cavalrymen and footmen, were all engulfed by the wall of waters? In the Biblical account, it is clearly set forth that by the divine command the Israelites were to encamp before "Pi-hahiroth between Migdol and the sea, over against Baal-Zephon" (Exod. 14: 2 and 9). But in the passage of the generations, the very names of these localities have changed, and in many cases all points of identification have vanished. Pi-hahiroth, some travelers have identified with Tuarek, the salt springs on the plain called Baideah, south of Mount Atakah, and the mountain itself the same travelers have identified with Baal-Zephon. Others claim that Migdol and Jebel Atakah are one, and that either of two other mountains (Deraj or Kulaleh) may be identical with the ancient Baal-Zephon. All conjectures on this particular line have led to practically the same point as the place of crossing, viz., a narrow pass between Mount Atakah and the sea. Sicard, Raumer, Ritter and many later writers have adopted this view.

Brugsch Bey and a few other Egyptologists have held that the scene of passage—the grandest miracle in history—was not the Red Sea at all, but a noted morass, known as the Sabaket Bardawal, bordering on Palestine. Still another class of investigators claims that the passage took place at the "Bitter Lakes," a number of shallow pools or ponds of brackish water, near the head of the Gulf of Suez. These lakes are supposed to have anciently formed a continuous water connection between the Mediterranean and the Red Sea. The claim that the scene of the passage was near Suez is supported by a great array of eminent names, including Niebhuhr, Heron, Laborde, Dr. Robinson, and others. The country in the immediate neighborhood is also regarded as bearing out the Bible description, even to the identifying of the tower of Migdol, in the mountain range now known as the Jebel Atakah.

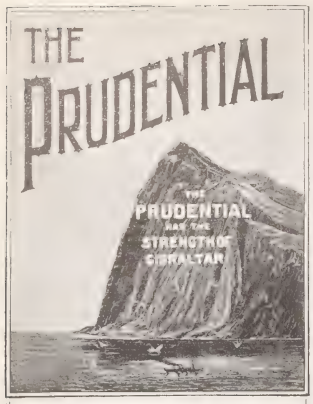
These conflicting claims have been the subject of much discussion among learned authorities. A fourth class of commentators suggests that the passage may have taken place at Ras Atakah, a point six miles south of Suez, and due east of the Jebel Atakah, and the fortress of Migdol. Pococke, Bruce, Bonar, Bartlett, and other equally eminent writers on Biblical topics, also favor Ras Atakah, which is a tongue of land projecting into the sea fully a mile beyond the shore line, and beyond which the water is unusually shoal at intervals. If the Israelites chose this passage, they must have emerged near the point now known as Ayun Musa (Wells of Moses), on the further shore.

In order to ascertain the opinion of the most eminent Egyptologists and students of Bible history on the subject, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD addressed a letter of inquiry to the gentlemen whose names are given below, stating the problem, and asking which of these four routes, in their opinion, was the one chosen by the Israelites:

1. Between the Bitter Lakes and Lake Timsah, near head of Gulf of Suez;
2. Near Jebel Atakah, at a point near present site of Suez;
3. At Ras Atakah, six miles south of Suez;
4. Sabaket Bardawal, a lake or morass on northeastern border of Egypt.



GOSHEN
Succoth
Pithom
Ramses
Tell Rameses
Heliopolis
Bubastis
Migdol
Baal Zephon
Pi-hahiroth
Bitter Lakes
Lake Timsah
Suez
Ayun Musa
Jebel Atakah
Ras Atakah
Gebel Ataka
Gebel Geneffeh
Gebel Attaka
Gebel Gharib
Gebel Ataka
Gebel Ataka
Gebel Ataka



None But The Thrifty

deserve the Fair, the old proverb should read. After all, Life Insurance is a good test of a man's love and foresight for his family. Thrift wears better than mere bravery.

The Prudential

Insurance Co. of America

Write for Information to Dept. 70

Home Office: Newark, N. J.

JOHN F. DRYDEN, President.

Where did the Israelites Cross the Red Sea?

CONTINUED FROM PRECEDING PAGE

state those conclusions without entering into the arguments for and against my view as over against other views.

Ancient Egypt was known as the "Two Lands," or the "Two Egypts"—Upper Egypt and Lower Egypt. The entrance from the east, whether from the desert or from Canaan and beyond at the north or east, was through the land separating what is now called the Mediterranean Sea and the Gulf of Suez. Inside of this is what is spoken of in the Bible as the Land of Goshen, and what is now called the Nile Delta. That gateway to the foreign world had to be guarded carefully from invading enemies; and in order to secure this, a wall or fortification was built along its entire front, with several gates.

This great wall of Egypt is frequently mentioned in ancient history, sacred and secular. It is spoken of in the Bible by the Hebrew term "Shur," and by the Hebraized Egyptian term "Etham." Thus Shur is the border, or wall, of Lower Egypt. Through this wall were three roads, each closed by a gate. These roads were severally known as the northern, or "Philistia Road"; the central, or "Wilderness Road," and the southern, or "Red Sea Road." Traces of all three roads are to be found to-day, and all three of them find frequent mention in ancient history.

After the Israelites had gathered from all parts of Lower Egypt at Succoth, or the Place of Booths, their first thought, when they started, was to go by the northernmost or the Philistia Road, as that was the shorter and more direct route to Canaan. But by Jehovah's command they were made to turn back southerly, and move along inside the Great Wall to the Red Sea Road. This road is now the Haji route, or the pilgrim route to Mekkeh. In front of that gate there was a halt. And then there came the unexpected pursuit of the emigrants by the Egyptian army, and the consequent fright of the Israelites. This was at the point where the Great Wall came to the Red Sea or the Gulf of Suez. The Bible narrative makes that clear; and all study of the subject from outside sources confirms the truth of the sacred record.

As to the locality, it must have been not far from where is modern Suez. The Bible description and the existing facts would seem to indicate this. An illustration in modern history goes to confirm this. During his Egyptian campaign, the great Napoleon was riding on horseback in this vicinity. A strong east wind had bared a shoal across the Gulf of Suez. While Napoleon was crossing, the wind suddenly changed, and the waters returned. By rapid riding, Napoleon escaped to the shore. Referring afterwards to it, he said, "If I had been drowned, I should have been the text of a thousand sermons." H. CLAY TRUMBULL.

Letters were also received from the Rev. L. W. Batters, Professor of Hebrew, Protestant Episcopal Divinity School, Philadelphia, and the Rev. John Skinner, D.D., of the Presbyterian College, London. Neither of these gentlemen were prepared to advance any fixed opinion on the subject.

The answers received reveal the fact that the ablest scholars and Bible students of the present day, although they may have traveled over the route of the Exodus from Goshen to the eastern shores of the Arabian Gulf, and followed the line of the Israelites' march along the Sinaitic peninsula, are still far from unanimous concerning the identification of the actual point of crossing.

If the topography of the district has undergone any very material change, positive identification can only be secured by other means. Geographers tell us that an examination of the country north of Suez, shows that the sea has receded many miles, and that its ancient bed may have extended to Lake Timsah or the Bitter Lakes. To crown the confusion of the investigators, there is now no apparent possibility of identifying Baal-Zephon, Migdol or Pi-hahiroth, mentioned in the Biblical account.

All the standard authorities on the subject, and the distinguished scholars and Orientalists who have made a close personal investigation, afford little light that is valuable as leading to a solution. Josephus, the celebrated Jewish historian, says: "On the third day, they came to a place called Baal-Zephon, on the Red Sea."

In the haze of the centuries, the true location is obscured. The sacred narrative (Exodus 14: 2), "that they turn and encamp before Pi-hahiroth (the place of the sedges, or marsh reeds) between Migdol (the group of hills or many hills) and the sea, were against Baal-Zephon (variously interpreted as "the sanctuary of Typhon," and "a watch-tower") is now more than ever difficult of interpretation, owing to the inability of investigators in this late age, to identify any one of the three.

Here is a question for our Egyptologists and excavators of the future. What a field for exploration lies untouched in that little strip of land and water between Mount Atakah and the Bitter Lakes! Who can tell whether, at some future day, the great secret of the resting-place of Pharaoh's mighty host, which passed under the waves, may not be wrested from oblivion? Or it may prove to be one of those mysteries which the Divine wisdom will preserve, and is closed till that day when "the sea gives up its dead."

THE BEATITUDES*

Christ's Conception of the Best and Happiest Men

ONE of the most remarkable features of the Sermon on the Mount is the emphasis Christ placed on character and conduct. There is nothing in the sermon to justify the reproach often brought against Christianity, that it is a religion of doctrine and theory. The imputed righteousness which is so very precious a doctrine to those professing Christians whose lives are corrupt, is not introduced in this discourse. In reading it, one is impressed rather with the lofty ideal of character, the high standard set for those who are to make up the kingdom of God. It is the glory of Christianity that the worst men, and men who have spent their forty or fifty years of sin, may come to Christ and find a welcome, even then, if they are sincere and put faith in him; but clearly that is not Christ's ideal. The righteousness he wishes to see in his people is a righteousness exceeding that of the Scribes and Pharisees.

Every one has an ideal of the happy or fortunate man. This is Christ's ideal. He gives us eight characters whom he regarded as specially blessed. They deserve careful attention, because he who knew what was in men singled them out from the great mass of men as being of extraordinary worth. It is worthy of notice, that Christ disregards utterly the characteristic which is commonly set first in order—that of wealth. We esteem that man the happiest who has a large fortune. Wealth does not enter into the estimate Christ makes in this instance. The man may have little or much; the thing that determines his condition is not what he has, but what he is.

The first man whom Christ holds up for our admiration is he who is poor in spirit. This is he who is conscious of his need, who does not plume himself on his attainments. A second, is he who mourns. The fruit of sorrow is a chastened spirit, which is kind and sympathetic. Thirdly, the meek. Not those who are arrogant and contentious. Fourth, they who hunger after righteousness. In this world of unsatisfied longings, it is something to know that there is one longing that will be satisfied. Fifth, the merciful. The sweet compassion for the erring, the kindly, forgiving disposition, is especially commended. Sixth, the pure in heart. They are sure to be pure in life. Seventh, the peacemakers. Those who are not busy stirring up strife, but trying to bring enemies into accord. Eighth, those who are persecuted, always providing that they are persecuted for righteousness' sake. These are brought near to God, and their sufferings sanctify and ennoble them. These are the eight types of character which Christ pronounces blessed.

*Topic of The Christian Endeavor Society and Baptist Young People's Union for March 1. Matt. 5: 1-12.

Ordinary Deposits Can Fairly Earn 5%

Write For The Facts In Detail

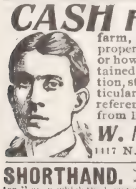
INVESTING only in gilt edge real estate securities, this Company has every year increased its surplus after paying depositors 5 per cent.

5 per cent. per annum guaranteed and paid quarterly by check. Withdrawals at pleasure without loss of interest. Under supervision of State Banking Department.

Capital and Surplus . . $1,100,000
Assets $1,600,000

INDUSTRIAL SAVINGS & LOAN CO.
1131 Broadway, New York

CASH FOR YOUR farm, home, business, or other property (no matter where located or how large or small) may be obtained through me. Send description, state price, and get full particulars free. Est'd 1865. Highest references. Offices in 14 cities, from Boston to San Francisco.



W. M. OSTRANDER
1117 N. A. Building, Philadelphia

SHORTHAND. Students of the Christian Herald should get the "Shorthand Instructor," upon which the lessons are based. 276 pp., $1.50. ISAAC PITMAN & SONS, 33 Union Sq., New York. "Reasons Why" free.

We Start BOYS in Business

We have started over three thousand boys in various parts of the country in a profitable business on their own account. We want a boy to represent

The Saturday Evening Post

In every town. The work can be done after school hours and on Saturdays. It is pleasant, as well as profitable. The magazines are sold among neighbors and friends in offices, stores, as well as in homes.

No Money Required to Begin

The first week's supply is sent free. These are sold at five cents a copy and provide the money to order the following week at wholesale prices.

$225.00 IN EXTRA CASH PRIZES will be distributed among boys who sell five or more copies.

Our FREE booklet gives portraits of some of our most successful boy agents and their methods.

The Curtis Publishing Co.
Philadelphia

4% INTEREST ON SAVINGS ACCOUNTS

INTEREST compounded twice yearly. Deposits may be made at any time and in any amount from One Dollar up. Our system of Banking by Mail brings our bank to your Postoffice. Used by thousands residing in all parts of the world. Absolutely safe. This bank, established 1862, has Assets in excess of $13,500,000.00—37,000 depositors.

Write for booklet 18, "The Story of a Savings Bank"—tells how to bank by mail.

PITTSBURGH BANK FOR SAVINGS
PITTSBURGH, PA., U.S.A.

Young People's Songs of Praise

"After examining and comparing it with a number of other books, our Sunday School and young people unanimously agree that it is the best book and have accordingly sent you an order for 420 copies to be forwarded at once." CHARLES A. DAVIS, Atlanta, Ga.

Cloth Bound, 30 cents a copy, by Mail; $25 per 100

Returnable copy for examination sent free.

THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., New York and Chicago

You Can Get it

Money Making Education

By the famous HEEB SYSTEM of Teaching by Mail. LEARN AT HOME. Illustrating, Cartooning, Law, Pharmacy, Medicine, Nursing, Book-keeping, Banking, Shorthand, Penmanship, Letter Writing, Mechanical Drawing, &c. Special inducements to those who write now mentioning choice of course.

National Correspondence Schools, (Inc.)
E. J. Heeb, Pres., 19 N. Penn. St., Indianapolis, U. S. A.

The Parker "Lucky Curve" FOUNTAIN PEN.

Prices $1.50, $2.00, $2.50 to $10.00

FREE. A six-inch Aluminum Rule and Paper Cutter sent on receipt of stamp for Postage to any intending purchaser of a Fountain Pen answering this advertisement. Ask for Catalogue. PARKER PEN CO., 77 Mill St., Janesville, Wis.

MISSOURI 5% INVESTMENTS

Let me send you my book. Farm Mortgages. Unquestioned Security. 5 Wardell Bldg., Macon, Mo.

WM. R. COMPTON,

COLLEGE EDUCATION BY MAIL. Course leading to diploma and degree. Catalogue free. Write C. J. BURTON, Pres. Iowa Chris. College, Oskaloosa.

Rubifoam

Every drop is refreshing as a summer shower.

Every drop soothes and cools the mouth and gums.

Every drop preserves and beautifies the teeth.

Rubifoam, the fragrant, healthful dentifrice.

Price, 25 cts. at Druggists.

Put up by E. W. HOYT & CO., Lowell, Mass.

Garland's Garments

) EVERYWHERE
IR SPRING CATALOG
a complete Fashion
ok of the latest styles,
h in quality gives the t bargains ever off-
d. The following is a mple.

$5.95

dies' Street Suit
EW SPRING STYLE
lo. 800. Made of wflake Meridian Suit-
,blue and black; blouse ket, lined with good lity Hallene cloth, med in front with ored straps, back find with three tailor-ps, new Bishop
ves, fancy cuffs.
lined skirt with llored
ps, kilt ct at om,
to for mples.
pring
alog now ready.
mmer Catalog to
ow. Write for ) of them.

Garlands
LADIES' CLOTHING STORE
DEPT. F ST. LOUIS, MO.

10 DRESSES ANY MAN

mplete from HEAD
TOE in latest Style
EE SAMPLES
Measurement Blanks.
O INTRODUCE DIRECT TO E WEARER OUR CUSTOM
LORING we will make the first thousand suits absolutely to asures sent us for only $10 and the following com-
outh FREE. Act
$28 value for only
5 and nothing to pay
after you receive the and free outfit and it just as represented.
us your name and office address, and we send you FREE SAM.
OF CLOTH, 5-foot tape a measurement blank size of Suit, Hat, and Shoes.
ENUINE CHEVIOT
it made to measure in the st English Sack style, well made durably trimmed, such a suit

ome tailors charge	$20.00
unlap block, Derby or Fedora Hat	2.50
air of stylish Lace Shoes, the new queen last	2.50
ercale Shirt, with Collar and Cuffs attached	1.25
eat Silk Four-in-hand Necktie or Bow	.50
air of fancy Web Elastic Suspenders	.50
apanese Silk Handkerchief	.50
air of fancy Lisle Thread Socks	.25
sands of American citizens pay daily for this	$28.00

N'T DELAY—After having filled 10,000 orders our es for these suits will be $20 and NO FREE ARTICLES.
ENTS' COMPLETE OUTFITTING CO.,
pt. 36—111 Adams Street, Chicago, Ill.
erence: First Nat'l Bank, Chicago; Capital $12,000,000.

INTERTAINMENTS

or CHURCHES and SUNDAY SCHOOLS st Magic Lanterns, Stereopticons and views, eries. Full particulars in 260 page illus. book; free
ALLISTER, Mfg. Optician, 46 Nassau St., N. Y.

OUR SUNDAY HOUR WITH THE LITTLE FOLKS

CHILDREN, dear, your answers are masterpieces, and we frankly and proudly state that we believe no brighter children than ours can be found anywhere. We wish we could give every one of you a watch and a book. Your papers on the "Musical Instruments of the Bible" and the "Animals of the Bible" were so learned, that a committee of ministers and rabbis might well be puzzled to pass on the answers, which, in many cases, were good enough to have been the work of ministers and rabbis.

There is more labor and responsibility in conducting this department than any one, who has not patiently studied thousands of puzzle-letters, can readily comprehend. We make rules and instructions as plain as possible, and spare no pains in reading and grading everything received, and in rendering awards. Now, dear little friends, if any of you are not entirely willing to accept conditions and decisions cheerfully, do not enter the contests. This Department is for your entertainment and mental profit. We do not wish you to consider the winning of a prize as the one benefit to be obtained from it. Many letters not winning prizes, interest us as much as those that win, but because of that interest and of tender regard for the little writer, we cannot divert a prize from a perfect to an imperfect answer. Not one answer is overlooked; all are treated with equal fairness. Our little people seem to be enjoying the puzzles; and to hold courageously to the good old maxim: "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again." It is pleasing to note improvements in answers from the same child. You see, we are watching. Please observe that we say in "Rules and Prizes" the "best" answer. Many points besides correctness, such as neatness, legibility and adherence to rules determine our choices of the "best" out of the many that are good.

COMPETITION 21

What two proper names mentioned in Scripture do these pictures represent?

Write "Competition 21" plainly across the top of a postal card or sheet of paper; next, your name, age and address; then the answers. For each of the two answers employ but one word—the proper name which you think the picture represents. Don't quote Scripture passages, simply state the name. Read the rules given below.

Competition 22
Curious Questions

1. What splendid edifice was raised on a spot that marked an act of supreme submission and of lowly industry?
2. In what tremendous battle did the victors, though given royal permission, withhold their hands from taking any property from their enemies?
3. Can you name any Bible texts saying angels have wings?
4. In how many and what signal ways did God impress on man the observance of the Sabbath?

Write "Competition 22" plainly across the top of your postal card or sheet of paper, next, your name, age, and address. Answer as many of the questions as you can, writing in each case the number of the question (not the question itself) before its answer. Answers to all four questions must not exceed fifty words in the aggregate. Read the following rules.

RULES AND PRIZES

Contests are not open to competitors over fourteen years of age. Only one weekly competition is open to any one person. If you answer both Competition 21 and 22 you forfeit your chances therefor. Do not send two solutions. There is no objection to asking the help of others, but each competitor must send in the answers in his or her own handwriting. Should you use paper instead of a postal card, be sure to write on the envelope in which you enclose your answer "Competition 21" or "Competition 22," as the case may be. Do not write on both sides of a sheet of paper.

Prizes are as follows: For the best answer to "Competition 21," a handsome silver watch, lady's or gentleman's; for each of the twenty-five next best answers, a beautiful book. For the best answer to "Competition 22," a handsome silver watch, lady's or gentleman's; for each of the twenty-five next best answers, a beautiful book.

All answers must be mailed not later than Feb. 23, 1903. Address, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, Little Folks Department, Bible House, New York.

ANSWERS TO COMPETITIONS OF JAN. 21, 1903

Answers to Picture Puzzles in Competition 13, in our issue of Jan. 21, are: 1. Ramoth. 2. Tyre. To Curious Questions, Competition 14: 1. Only at the Feast of Tabernacles, in the Sabbatical year, or year of release, were women and children as well as the men assembled by command at the reading of the law. Women and children were permitted, but not required, to formally present themselves in the sanctuary at other festivals. Deut. 31: 10-13. 2. Rachel is the first shepherdess mentioned in Scripture. Gen. 29: 6. 3. Rebekah is the first mentioned as wearing a bridal veil. Gen. 24: 65. 4. The first use made of "current money," according to Scripture, was the purchase of a burial-place. Gen. 23: 16. Abraham bought the field and cave of Machpelah for 400 shekels of silver, and buried Sarah there. "Money," with which slaves were purchased, is mentioned in Gen. 17: 27 and Gen. 20: 16; "pieces of silver," both thought to be metal in the form of rings, with value determined by weight: but in the purchase of Machpelah, the first recorded act of commerce, is the first clear indication of the employment of a currency, that is, of a generally accepted and established medium of exchange.

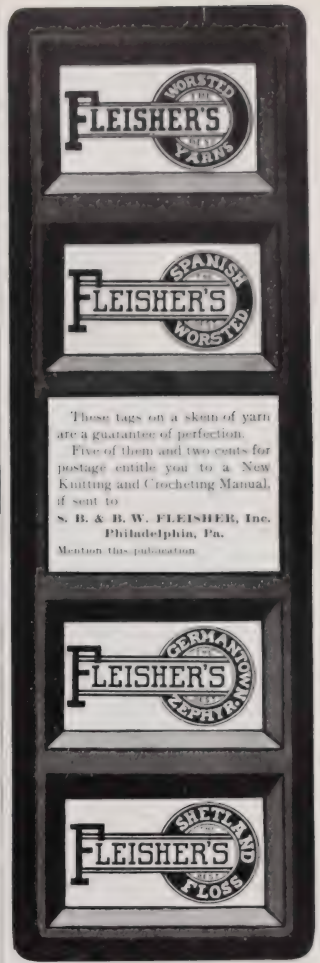
Philip W. Whitcomb, Kan., receives the first prize of a silver watch, for the best description of the picture, "Scripture Problem No. 13," Jan. 21; Everett M. Vannah, Me., a silver watch, as first prize for best answer to "Curious Questions" in that issue. The following each receive a beautiful book.

Second best answers to Picture Puzzle Contest:

Bishop, Helen M., Conn.; Baker, Gladys, Can.; Cannon, P. H., Calif.; Cushing, Grace E., Mass.; Dyke, A. J., W. Va.; Gallaher, Charlotte, Mo.; Geist, Leah S., Pa.; Harmon, Jr., S. B., Miss.; Hobbs, Thorstate, Utah; Kost, Rosa, La.; Long, S., O.; Mason, S. S., N. H.; McCague, Lula S., Pa.; Olmstead, Lottie E., Jr., N. Y.; Parker, Stella, Colo.; Sanders, D., Tex.; Smith, Kathryn Long; Stout, Vinnie R., Calif.; Swartz, J. S., Wis.; Todd, R., Okla.; Walker, M. B., Mich.; Waring, H. E., Mass.; Williams, C., Minn.; Wilson, Lillian, Calif.; Wooten, Elvira, Ind.

Second best answers to "Curious Questions":

Atwater, Ruth M., Conn.; Baker, Arlie, Mich.; Bement, Edith M., S. D.; Cornell, Lila B., N. Y.; Davidson, Hoyler G., Pa.; Davis, Leroy, Ia.; Dornon, Bessie, Ia.; Elkins, Edgar M., N. H.; Hall, Edith B., Walnsley, Mass.; Hargrave, Eva, Tex.; Jones, Annie, Pa.; Lammers, Mabelle, Wis.; McKay, Arnold A., S. C.; McLaren, Alexander, N. Y.; Mcquaters, Eva C., Pa.; Montgomery, J., N. Y.; Newbecker, Cecil G., Neb.; Palmer, Mary, Ohio; Rogers, T. B., S. C.; Shaw, Alnedi, Me.; Shuner, Russell M., Pa.; South, Anne B., Miss.; Waring, T. H., Mass.; Weden, Myrtie, N. D.; Witner, A., Ohio.



These tags on a skein of yarn are a guarantee of perfection.

Five of them and two cents for postage entitle you to a New Knitting and Crocheting Manual, if sent to

S. B. & B. W. FLEISHER, Inc.
Philadelphia, Pa.

Mention this publication.

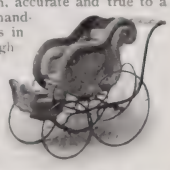
THE NAME BLOCH ON GO-CARTS stands for quality and perfection: made with the care of a watch, accurate and true to a degree; their rich, handsome appearance is in keeping with this high Standard.



They have the advantage of being light and easy to run, adjustable to any angle, affording years of comfort to the growing child, and serving the purpose of a Crib, Baby Carriage or a Reclining Chair. Endorsed by Physicians.

Illustrated Catalog showing latest styles mailed Free.

We pay freight on Go-Carts and Baby Carriages to any point in the United States.

PHILADELPHIA BABY CARRIAGE FACTORY
717 Spring Garden Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Dr. Lyon's
PERFECT
Tooth Powder

Used by people of refinement for over a quarter of a century

PREPARED BY

J. W. Lyon, D.D.S.

CORNISH
PIANOS AND ORGANS
FREE IN YOUR HOME FOR A YEAR

Sold From Factory to Home Direct.
SAVING ONE-HALF.

YOUR MUSICAL EDUCATION FREE.

We will present to every purchaser of a Cornish Piano or Organ a Certificate entitling the holder to a Two Years' Scholarship in the United States School of Music. Tuition to commence immediately instrument is purchased. Pupils can commence at any stage of their studies. The most satisfactory plan of Home Education ever conceived. Success Absolutely Guaranteed. Full Particulars With Every Cornish Catalogue. You Can be Taught in Your Own Home, Taking Your Own Time and for two years you will receive Absolutely Free Tuition from the best professors of music. A Cornish Piano or Organ at Factory Cost and a Free Musical Education is a Combination Unparalleled. Take advantage of it NOW. Write to-day.

CORNISH CO., Washington, New Jersey.

72 Pieces of New Sheet Music FREE

A Chance to Join a Club That Will Make and Save Money for You.

Everybody should join the Mutual Literary Music Club of America. There is nothing else like it anywhere. It costs almost nothing to join and the benefits it gives are wonderful. It enables you to purchase books and periodicals, music and musical instruments at special cut prices. It secures reduced rates at many hotels. It answers questions free of charge. It offers scholarships and valuable cash prizes to members. It maintains club rooms in many cities for its members. In addition, every member receives the official magazine entitled "EVERY MONTH," a publication in a class by itself, including 9 pieces of high-class vocal and instrumental music, full size, each month without extra charge; 72 pieces in one year in all. YOU CAN GET ALL OF THESE BENEFITS for almost nothing.

The full yearly membership fee is One Dollar for which you get all above, and you may withdraw any time within three months if you want to do so and get your dollar back. If you don't care to spend $1.00, see 4 25 cents for three months membership. Nobody can afford to pass this offer by. You will get your money back in value many times over. Full particulars will be sent free of charge, but if you are wise you will send in your request for membership with the per-per fee at once. The 25cts. three months membership offer will not be held open long. Write at once addressing your letter and enclosing $1.00 or for full year's membership or twenty-five cents for three months to

MUTUAL LITERARY MUSIC CLUB,
Secty 63 No. 150 Nassau St., N. Y. City.

ENTERTAIN YOURSELF!

The Home Entertainment Society will furnish TALKING MACHINE FREE, you with a Send three dollars for six fifty cent records. Your own choice from stock of over 50,000. Without any further cost we will send the six records, also A $10 Graphophone Free. The use of the machine COSTS YOU NOTHING. You are required to buy from us only two new records a week. Nothing more. Get a friend to join our society, we will PAY YOU!

B. H. Mason, Mgr., 237 B'way, N.Y.

HAPPYFOOT HAIR INSOLES

Keep feet warm and dry. Make walking a pleasure. Relieve Rheumatism, Callous, Tender and Perspiring Feet. Do not crowd the shoe. At all drug and shoestores or sent by mail, 3 pair 25c., postage paid. Send size of shoe

The WM. H. WILEY & SON CO., Box D Hartford, Conn.

PARKER'S ARCTIC SOCKS

Trade Mark Registered.

Heavy bleached cream and light tan fingers. Knitted fabric, soft cotton, where wool heels and toes for rubber boots. Cannot rip, ravel or run. Unequaled for health, comfort and durability. All sizes 7 to 12, inclusive, by the pair. Pocket size catalogue. Sent free.

J. H. PARKER, Dept. K., 102 Bedford St., Boston, Mass.

MUSIC TAUGHT BY MAIL, Piano, Organ, Guitar, Banjo, Mandolin, Violin and Cornet. Send for free Catalogue and Testimonials. Address, Box 130, U. S. School of Music, 19 Union Square, New York, N. Y.

MRS. ANTHONY

...By...
Margaret E. Sangster

"YOU surely won't lend that woman your lace shawl, Dorothy?"

Dorothy Milburn was taking a folded shawl out of a box. The shawl had tissue-paper wrapped around it. A quaint perfume, something like sandal-wood, was diffused through the room, as she shook the soft folds out, and looked lovingly at the shawl, her most cherished article of dress.

"I don't want to lend it, Matty. I hate lending my things. They never seem so nice after somebody else has worn them. And Mrs. Anthony is so careless, and will let it trail in the dirt, and perhaps keep it a week, yet I've got to let her have it. I simply haven't the moral courage to deny her anything she wishes to borrow."

"Well, I would. She's hypnotized you. If I thought as much of my clothes as you do. I'd see a neighbor farther than next door before I'd let her go into society in my finery. She's spoiling the Egyptians for fair, Dorothy, and you are her chief victim."

Meanwhile, Dorothy, with a rueful glance at her lace shawl, folded it again, and carried it out on the porch, where a little girl was waiting.

"Here, Ellen, tell your Aunt Hannah she is welcome, but that I shall need this myself to-morrow, so please bring it back early."

"Yes'm," said the child, flitting down the garden walk. Next neighbors though the Milburns and the Anthonys were, there was a wide space of lawn and orchard and garden between them. It was in the far South, and while winter was still holding the North in its icy grasp, Florida was basking in the warm sunshine, mocking-birds were singing in the boughs, oranges were golden globes of luscious honey, while the blossoms on some of the trees scented the air with their heavenly perfume, and roses were blooming everywhere. The Milburns were strangers in the land, renting their cottage for a season. Mrs. Anthony owned the estate, and received a generous monthly rent for this house from her Northern tenants. Incidentally, she owned them, too, borrowing from their pantry and refrigerator whatever she needed for her table, and shamelessly annexing, under the guise of a loan, anything in Dorothy's wardrobe that suited her fancy. Small wares she did not trouble herself to return. Big things now and then came back, in more or less disorder and disrepair.

Mattie Deane was Dorothy's cousin from Vermont, paying her a month's visit. She was frankly aghast at the impositions to which Mrs. Milburn continually submitted, and could hardly persuade herself to be even civil to the persistent borrower when she called, as she frequently did, as ingenuous and innocent as any child.

Black lace shawls are at present used chiefly for flounces and drapery; but a few years ago they were worn with pride by many fastidious women. On a tall, graceful figure, over a delicate toilette, they were elegant additions to costume. A dumpy bantam-sort of woman could not carry such a garment to advantage, and Mrs. Anthony was of that type, short, stout, puffing, panting, a little steam-tug of a woman, poor as a church mouse, and vain as a peacock. Fine feathers she must have, and she never minded at all if they happened to be borrowed plumes.

The lace shawl went into a boat that evening, and an end of it, falling over the side, was dipped in the water, and drenched.

"Hannah, you are ruining that pretty shawl of yours!" said a friend sitting opposite her. "It is half over the edge of the boat."

"Mighty glad you told me!" cried Mrs. Anthony. Her brother Jim, a gruff old fellow, who made mal apropos speeches from sheer bluntness and rough honesty, called out as he bent to the oars.

"Whose is it anyhow, Hannah? 'Tisn't yours, is it?"

The lady made no reply. She was annoyed that Jim "gave her away," as she phrased it, and vexed that she had injured the shawl by wetting it. Why had she worn the thing at all? A warm wrap would have been more to the purpose, for, though the day had been sultry, the night was growing chill. She shivered.

"Here, Nan," and her brother's voice was decisive. "Take that cobweb off directly, and slip your arms into this peajacket. First thing you know you'll have a chill, and then a spell of break-bone fever. We can't afford that."

She took the jacket, folding up the shawl and laying it on her lap. She wished the hateful thing were safe where it belonged. Presently they were all talking and laughing again, and somebody had a mandolin and they sang. By the time they came back to the wharf, Mrs. Anthony had entirely forgotten Mrs. Milburn's shawl, and as she stepped to the landing, it slipped away unperceived and fell down, down, down, spreading out like seaweed at last at the bottom of the St. John's River. Mrs. Anthony never gave it a second thought. Until she reached home and was ready for bed, it did not come into her head. Then she began to wonder how she should explain the catastrophe to Dorothy Milburn. For it was an expensive article and its owner would be angry at its loss.

"But probably it's in the boat," she reflected, and resolved to see about it early in the morning. She slept the tranquil sleep of the just.

Breakfast time came. The Milburns had passed the fruit and the cereal stages, and were sipping coffee and eating rolls, when a messenger came from Mrs. Anthony.

"Please, Mrs. Milburn, Aunt Hannah says she hopes you found your shawl safe."

"No, dear. Did your aunt return it last evening?"

"She didn't say. She said she thought it couldn't get lost out on the veranda, under the blue sofa pillow."

"Is it possible," exclaimed Mattie, "that she is so wretchedly irresponsible as to return a valuable garment in that makeshift of a way? Under the blue sofa pillow indeed! It's good luck if it hasn't been stolen."

Word was sent that the shawl was missing. Mrs. Anthony returned a note of the deepest regret and apology, and refrained from borrowing anything for a week. Miss Mattie passed her on the street with a cold nod, but she looked so grieved and embarrassed that Dorothy's gentle heart was touched, and she stopped and consoled her.

"Never mind, Mrs. Anthony," said the unfortunate owner-of-pretty-things-that-were-lendable, "accidents will happen. Think no more about it." In her heart Dorothy knew that her pleasure in the shawl would never have been quite the same, once it had been trailed around by her neighbor. Its loss was the reward of her weakness.

A few days passed. Sunday morning came. Dorothy was dressing for church.

Mrs. Anthony's little niece appeared.

"Please Mrs. Milburn, will you kindly lend Aunt Hannah your prayer-book?"

Dorothy frowned.

Mattie Deane laughed.

"Unless you are an absolute heathen, Dorothy, you cannot refuse the loan of a prayer-book."

"I loathe lending my devotional books."

"I loathe lending any books, but when it comes to a Bible or a prayer-book, I conquer my aversion. Here, let the little damsel take this to her relative."

She picked up a worn and dingy prayer-book and hymnal combined. But Dorothy flew to its rescue.

"Not that, Mattie, I use that every day myself, and it was once my dear mother's. Tell your aunty, my child, that I have no prayer-book that I can possibly lend her. I am sorry."

CONTINUED ON NEXT PAGE

FLORAL BUTTERFLY PLAN

No plant possesses so many good points as do the two glorious new Commelinas. Of graceful trailing habit, superb for carpet bedding or for hanging po In pots they bloom every day in the year. In the gard from May until frost, showing daily scores of lar winged butterfly-like blossoms. Color (No. 1) the m beautiful blue to be found in any flower. A shade exquisitely lovely as to baffle description. Thrives sun or shade, wet or dry, rich or poor soil; as eas raised as a weed from seed or cuttings, grows rapid flowers at once, and propagates so easily that plan are very cheap. Blooms in 50 days from seed.

No. 1—Exquisite Blue, like tropical Butterflies.
No. 2—Rosy Pink, in other respects like No. 1.
Strong plants for blooming at once, by mail guar teed to grow, 20c each; the 2 for 30c, 5 for 60c.
Seed of both colors mixed, 25 cts. per packet.

FREE OUR GREAT CATALOGUE of Flower Vegetable Seeds, Bulbs, Plants and Rare N Fruits, Profusely Illustrated, Large Colored Plates pages. Do not miss our great Novelties, Emperor Aspara (crop in 11 months from seed), Early Luna, Perpetual K barb, Pineapple Onion, Climbing Currant and Blackber Everblooming Wistaria, Tree, and Double Lilacs, etc. have the finest Asters, Pansies, Peas, Stocks, Verbenas, G niums, Azaleas, Roses, Palms, Ferns, Begonias, Gloxin Violets, Phloxes, Gladiolus, Cannas, Dahlias, Lilies, C diums, Shrubs, Vines, New Fruits, and all Vegetables.

JOHN LEWIS CHILDS, Floral Park, N.

Burpee's Seeds Grow

Probably you have heard of this famous motto for many years but have you proved for yourself that Burpee's Seeds are the BEST that Grow?

If not, write to-day for Burpee's Farm Annua for 1903—so well-known as "The Leading Amer ican Seed Catalogue." It is an elegant book o 184 pages, with beautiful colored plates and will be sent FREE to planters everywhere —to others upon receipt of 10 cents, which i less than cost per copy in quarter-million editions. Write TO-DAY. Do not delay It is sufficient to address simply

BURPEE, Philadelphia

Flower Facts FREE

Just the information needed by all who wish to grow flowers and plants successfully, is contained in

DREER'S Garden Calendar

208 pages of inestimable value to flower lovers Our catalogue for 1903 will also contain a new and valuable feature, viz: a complete index of al the old-fashioned, or common names of flowers FREE if you mention this magazine.

HENRY A. DREER,
714 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Help Your Garde

to produce better results. Let us send you our Gard and Floral Guide for 1903. of information about Flowers, Se Fruits and Vegetables. Tells how cultivate the ground and when how to plant for best results. will help you whether you pl much or little. It is FRE have been the favorites for more t 50 years—the most profitable because productive. Write to-day.

VICK'S SEEDS

JAMES VICK'S SON
Box 1510, Rochester, N. Y.

SHOEMAKER'S POULTR BOOK ON and Almanac for 1903, contains 200 pages, handsomely illustrated. Beautifu ored plates, true to life. It tells all a all kinds of fowls, their care, etc. All ab INCUBATORS AND BROODERS how to operate them. You well afford to be without it. Only 1 C. C. SHOEMAKER, Box 596, Freeport

MRS. ANTHONY

CONTINUED FROM PRECEDING PAGE

"You have a beautiful white prayer-book," said the child. "Aunty means that, I think."

"Tell your aunt what I say. I cannot find her a prayer-book. One would suppose," she added to Mattie, "that she could use the book she found in the pen. Any person should have Bibles and prayer-books of her own."

"But, dear Dorothy, your neighbor has nothing of her own, so far as I can see. Her borrowing is endless, I wonder what she will want next."

The wonder was soon satisfied. In the twinkling of an eye, the little messenger came flying across the lawn, her dimples flashing, as she smilingly proffered a new request.

"Aunty is awfully sorry you haven't a

"I DON'T KNOW HOW TO 'SPLAIN," SAID MELISS, EXCITEDLY

prayer book to oblige her with, but she'll forgive you if you'll accommodate her with a silk parasol and a little teeny-weeny bottle of violet essence."

The perfume and the parasol were dispatched and Dorothy laughed as she set out to church, where she was sure of meeting Mrs. Anthony, as cool and unperturbed as if she had not carried the finer sunshade, while Dorothy was contented with the plainer one.

"Have you any paregoric?" was the question that evening, as the family sat on the veranda. "Aunty has a touch of colic." Paregoric was of course at the lady's service.

A few days passed and Mrs. Milburn was anticipating guests, and thought she could make some peculiarly delicate cream puffs after a receipt that had been in use in her family for years. This receipt was written, and in a cook-book which Dorothy was very fond of, many of the formulas not being in print. When she looked for her book it was not to be found. On investigation, it transpired that the maid, a former servant of Mrs. Anthony, had loaned her the book. Dorothy, indignant, went to reclaim it in person, stopping at the kitchen-door, to direct Melliss to have everything ready for her cooking on her return. The kitchen was in a building by itself across the yard.

"Miss Dorothy, I'm that flustrated, I don't know how to splain," said Meliss: "but fact is, Miss Hannah's done took away yo pie-board, and yo rollin' pin, and yo flour, and yo sugar, and yo eggs. She hab friens comin' to-day, too."

Even a worm will turn: Dorothy rebelled. She had patiently, if not joyfully, endured the spoiling of her goods up to this point. Patience now ceased to be a virtue. With head up, and eyes lit with a steady purpose, she marched upon her pleasant enemy. She found her agreeably occupied in baking—the old New England cook-book on the table, the place redolent of delightful domesticity.

"Do, dear Mrs. Milburn," she exclaimed, "sit down and try my fresh cookies. Jean, bring Mrs. Milburn a fan and a glass of milk: I meant to finish with your things, dear, before you got round to them, but I've been hindered. I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll go straight back with you and help you out with those troublesome cream-puffs Meliss said you planned to make. That'll be a real neighborly act, on my part, as I've had to hurry so, and am right tired. Besides, it will leave Miss Matty free to give the last touches to your table. You know I have friends coming, too, but they'll be here later than yours, and I shall be so much obliged if you'll let Meliss make ice cream enough for both parties, while she is about it."

Dorothy picked up her cook-book. She felt faint. Her triumphant neighbor accompanied her home. After that morning, Dorothy surrendered. So long as she lived in Florida, she made no stand whatever against the incessant borrowing of the amiable Mrs. Hannah Anthony.

"Expert Opinion"

DEAR DR. KTOPSCH:—My opinion ought to be expert, as I am over three-score and ten and have been a job printer and editor nearly all my life. I know something of the labor and expense represented by such premiums as yours. I do not see how you can afford to give The Speaking Oak, the "Family Art Gallery," and the beautiful and useful CHRISTIAN HERALD for $2. A. DAVISON.
Washington, D. C.

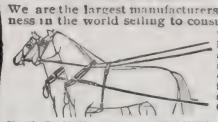
Sensational Flower Seed Novelty!
Everblooming Hollyhocks
Picturesque, luxuriant and healthy
Flower the same season from Spring-sown seed.
Blooming in exuberance from July until frozen.
A riot of decorative colors and forms.
Doubles, semi-doubles and singles.
Every garden must now be crowded with this stately Queen of Flowers, grown instead, and flowering exquisitely as any garden material.
Price of seed, grand combination mixture, 25c. per pkt., 5 pkts. for $1.00.
"Everything for the Garden."
PETER HENDERSON & CO. 35 & 37 CORTLANDT ST. NEW YORK

30 YEARS SELLING DIRECT

We are the largest manufacturers of vehicles and harness in the world selling to consumers exclusively.

WE HAVE NO AGENTS

but ship anywhere for examination, guaranteeing safe delivery. You are out nothing if not satisfied. We make 195 styles of vehicles and 60 styles of harness. Visitors are always welcome at our factory.



No. 42—Double Surrey Harness. Price $19.50. As good as sells for $40 more. Large Catalogue FREE—Send for it.

No. 331—Surrey. Price $[illegible]. As good as sells for $40 more.

ELKHART CARRIAGE & HARNESS MFG. CO., Elkhart, Ind.

DEAL DIRECT WITH THE FACTORY

Don't pay retail price for carriages or harness. Write for our catalogue and learn about our system of selling direct from factory to customer. Two profits are saved to you. Satisfaction is guaranteed, or you can return the purchase and we will pay freight charges both ways. We have the largest assortment of buggies, surreys, phatons, carriages, and other high grade vehicles, as well as harness and horse accessories, in America. Write for the catalogue to-day.

THE COLUMBUS CARRIAGE & HARNESS COMPANY, Factory and General Office, COLUMBUS, O. } Write to nearest office.
Western Office and Distributing House, ST. LOUIS, MO. }

Wise Man's Wagon.

The man who has had experience in running a wagon knows that it is the wheels that determine the life of the wagon itself. Our have given a new lease of life to thousands of old wagons. They can be had in any desired height and any width of tire up to 8 inches. With a set of these wheels you can in a few minutes have either a high or a low down wagon. The Electric Handy Wagon is made by skilled workmen, of best selected material—white hickory axles, steel wheels, steel hounds, etc. Guaranteed to carry 4000 lbs. Here is the wagon that will save money for you, as it lasts almost forever. Our catalog describing the uses of these wheels and wagons sent free. Write for it.

ELECTRIC STEEL WHEELS

ELECTRIC WHEEL CO., BOX 136 QUINCY, ILLINOIS.

$25,000 PROFIT FROM ½ ACRE OF GINSENG was made in one year by a Missouri man. Demand is increasing. Wild supply is nearly exhausted. Hardy everywhere in the United States. Can be grown in small gardens as well as on farms. Most profitable crop known. Send 25 cents and get our complete book telling all about this wonderful Ginseng and "The Ginseng Garden" for a whole year. Circulars free.

CHINESE-AMERICAN GINSENG CO.
Department C Joplin, Mo.

LAWNS

Nothing adds more to the beauty and value of a home place than a nice lawn. Our Lawn Book tells how to make and keep a beautiful velvety lawn. Of great interest and worth dollars to every one who has even a small place, but we will be glad to furnish you a copy of same free if you mention this paper. Our large catalogue of Seeds, Plants, Shrubs, etc., would also be of value to you. Better ask for it.
IOWA SEED CO., Des Moines, Iowa.

245 Styles Vehicles and Harness

CUT THIS AD OUT and send to us and we will mail you Free our 1903 special vehicle and harness catalogue. It has always been the most complete book printed, and for 1903 it is more complete than ever. It is the standard from which other catalogues—so-called—take others follow. Top Buggies $27.00. The greatest buggy offer ever made at $61.70 Top Buggies with guaranteed rubber tires at $45.00. 40 styles to select from. Surreys with canopy and extension tops $46.70 to $132. Phaetons, Runabouts, Spring Wagons, Spring Wagons, etc. 145 styles vehicles, 98 styles harness to select from. WE GUARANTEE every vehicle for 2 years and guarantee safe delivery. We will ship you any vehicle without any money with order. Don't buy until you get our catalog and see our wonderful offers.
MALVIN SMITH CO., 55-57-59 North Jefferson Street, Chicago, Illinois.

Almost one hundred years of fair dealing has given our products that prominence which merit deserves. We still offer everything of the best for sent by mail postpaid, larger by express or freight, safe arrival and satisfaction guaranteed. Elegant 168 page catalogue free, send for it and see what values we give for a little money. 49 years. 14 greenhouses. 1,000 acres.

Orchard, Vineyard, Lawn, Street, Garden and Greenhouse. Seeds, Plants, Roses, Bulbs, Small Trees, Etc.,

THE STORRS & HARRISON CO., Box 224 Painesville, Ohio.

"The more you say the less people remember." One word with you, SAPOLIO

Mellin's Infants' Food

can be adapted to the needs of different children.

Send for a free sample of Mellin's Food.

Mellin's Food Company, Boston, Mass

When You are Fatigued

try a glass of milk instantly prepared by mixing three-fourths of a glass of water with one-fourth of a glass of

Highland Brand Evaporated Cream

Added to coffee, undiluted, it gives it a richness and elegant flavor never attained by dairy cream.

As a Baby Food

it has no equal. Produced "Where Model Dairy Farms Abound" under the most cleanly conditions, it is free from life-taking bacteria so common in city milk.

Highland Brand Makes Weak Babies Strong.

Ask your dealer. If he doesn't sell it, send us his name and we will send you a sample can FREE.

HELVETIA MILK CONDENSING COMPANY,
Dept. F. Highland, Ill.
"Where Model Dairy Farms Abound."

The KALAMAZOO

All our cook stoves and Ranges equipped with patent oven thermometer, which makes baking a delight.

The only strictly high grade stoves and ranges sold direct from factory to user at factory prices.

They are sold on a

360 DAYS Approval Test.

Don't buy until you have investigated our special proposition. Send for FREE catalogue. No. 103

KALAMAZOO STOVE CO.
Manufacturers, Kalamazoo, Mich.

"SUN"
Incandescent Gasoline Lamp.
Agents make $25 to $75 per week.
Branch Supply Depots in all larger cities.
Sun Vapor Light Co.
Box 604, Canton, O.
Licensee of the original patents for vapor lights.
The "Sun" Outshines Them All.

$12.98 Gem Steel Range

Six Holes, from factory, with reservoir as shown, $12.98; No. 8 Six Holes, Closet, Oven 18x20x12 in. Top 6x6 in. Heavy cast fire-box, duplex grate, 8-in. flue, extension hood, nickel-trimmed, polished reservoir, heavy cast frames, duplex grate. Write for catalogue of stoves and furnaces.

AT FACTORY PRICES.

Our bargains the greatest ever offered.

MODERN STOVE MFG. CO.,
228 Tenth Ave. Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Bread Cast Upon the Waters

How a School Social in So. Dakota Helped the Starving Finns

AMONG the many touching incidents of the relief movement for famine-stricken Finland, few will be read with greater interest than the following, which appears in the columns of the Sioux City Tribune. A letter to the Tribune from Dalesburg, S. Dak., dated January 26, was as follows:

Editor Tribune: A very successful basket social was held by the Dalesburg school of Clay county, South Dakota, on the evening of January 24. During the programme, decorated baskets in the most beautiful designs came pouring in, and the school-room resembled more Lincoln Park in June than a schoolroom in midwinter.

The object of the social was to raise funds for a new organ for the school, but soon a more noble cause took its place, as the one who had in charge the sale of the baskets ascended the platform, drew from his pocket a copy of the Tribune, and read an article of the great suffering of the people of Finland, and in a few remarks pictured the distress of a defenseless people, who were dying by the score for want of food. A resolution was offered that the receipts from the sale of the baskets should go to the relief fund for the suffering Finlanders. The resolution was well taken, and adopted by a unanimous vote. It seemed to strike the hearts of all present, as was shown by the liberal bidding on the baskets. After the sale was over and the total of the receipts were made known, a middle-aged man from the rear walked up to the platform and remarked to the salesman: "I bought no basket, but here is $2 that I wish you would also send to the suffering people." The receipts of the evening amounted to $45.75, which amount I hereby inclose for the Tribune relief fund for the suffering people of Finland.

"So much for the generosity of the Dalesburg school (we quote from the Sioux City Tribune). Now for the story of how bread cast on the waters promptly returned. This morning's mail brought to the Tribune a letter from the W. A. Dean Music Company, donating a new Farrand school organ to the Dalesburg school. Mr. Dean acknowledges himself much interested in the unfortunates of Finland, and, aside from this, he believes firmly that the kind of generosity which the Clay county people have shown ought to be encouraged. 'I would have given the organ's value directly to the relief fund,' said Mr. Dean this morning, 'but it struck me as peculiarly appropriate to promptly reward the school's generosity. The W. A. Dean Company will be proud of having one of its good instruments in that school. I believe, anyhow, that this method will arouse more interest, and in the end raise more money, than would a direct contribution. A Tribune reporter was shown the handsome organ, of one of the best makes, built especially for school uses. It is a Farrand, with sawed oak case, handsome and latest style finish."

It was learned that the organ is worth considerably more than the amount of the contribution, so the Dalesburg school comes out better off than if it had kept its organ fund. Surely the bread it cast upon the waters returned to it quickly with increase and blessing!

The incident would not be complete without the following letter from the Manager of the Sioux City Tribune to Dr. Klopsch:

DEAR SIR:—Herewith please find a draft, No. 27,544, Northwestern National Bank, Sioux City, Ia., to Hanover National Bank, New York, for $70.22. This money is contributed by readers of the Sioux City Tribune to the famine sufferers of Finland. The Tribune printed first a letter from Rev. John Falkner, of Chicago, making an appeal for funds. I am sending the remittance to you, that the purpose of the donors may be carried out as expeditiously as possible. Please acknowledge receipt of draft.

In connection with it I enclose two clippings from the Tribune, showing how the receipts of a school social, designed for the purchase of an organ, were converted to this Fund, upon the destitute condition of the Finns being brought to the notice of the people at the social, through the reading of an article in the Sioux City Tribune.

JNO. C. KELLY, Manager

Young People's Forward Movement

THE Forward Movement, inaugurated by the Foreign Christian Missionary Society, for the especial benefit of the young people among the Disciples of Christ, is meeting with great success. President McLean and Secretary Rains are asking ministers, the churches, the Sunday Schools and the Christian Endeavor Societies among the Disciples to co-operate with them in establishing and maintaining mission study classes. Many are beginning to respond, and the indications are favorable for the enterprise.

The movement will be led through a course of study by Prof. C. T. Paul, of Hiram College. Prof. Paul's suggestions for the opening month's study are good, four in number: (1) Early missions in Africa. (2) The coming of the Mohammedans; (3) Raymond Lul and the Medieval Missionaries; (4) The church's lost opportunity and its redemption through martyrdom. On all sides the new enterprise for the missionary education of the young is assuming interdenominational proportions.

The Forward Movement, as such, had its origin in the great convention of the Student Volunteers at Toronto last, in the address of Luther D. Wishard, in which he emphasized three classic words of David Livingston: "A way is provided it be forward." Already the Methodists, the Baptists, and the Disciples of Christ have well-laid plans of procedure. Text-books are being written, many classes are forming, secretaries are traveling among the churches and societies, fostering the interests of the movement.

This new organization was unanimously endorsed by the recent convention of Disciples—10,000 strong—at Omaha. S. T. WILLIS.

A PRAYER

TAKE my hand, O Heavenly Friend,
Lead me to my journey's end.
Holy Spirit, be my guide;
Ever with me, Lord, abide.

Keep me from sin, O Heavenly Friend,
Beloved Saviour, condescend
To hear me as I humbly pray,
For love and peace and joy this day.

I thank thee, best beloved Friend,
For every blessing thou dost send;
With them, dear Saviour, give to me
A heart that worships only thee.

—H. W. V.

A CORKER

But Not Much of a Pastor.

There was an old clergyman in Central New York State some years ago, who was a very powerful speaker, but whose private life was by no means exemplary. Some of the more outspoken of his parishioners were in the habit of remonstrating with him regularly about this, and his reply invariably was "Don't do as I do, do as I tell you to do."

It is so with a great many physicians. There are hundreds of medical men who fully understand the folly of drinking coffee and tea, who tell their patients not to drink either, yet who use one or the other themselves. But sometimes it knocks even the doctor out, and he has to quit Old King Coffee. A physician of Wasioja, Minn., says: "I was a liberal user of coffee from my youth, and my health broke down while at college in 1880, at 25 years of age, but I continued to use coffee until 1898, although I was nervous, and suffered constantly from a condition known as diabetes insipidus, a condition that is well known to be due to nervousness. My weight was below par, and no diet or tonic medicines were sufficient to restore my vitality and strength.

"In 1898 I became suspicious of coffee, and I broke off the habit by taking up Postum. Since that time my nerves have become strong and well, and my weight has increased about 30 pounds. Well boiled, it is a delicious, healthful drink, heavy with strength and muscle making qualities." Name furnished by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Even if your physician does drink coffee, you had better do as he tells you to do. Give Postum a trial. That's the easiest way to shake off coffee and get well and keep well.

Operators of writing machines, especially skilled operators, prefer the REMINGTON, and for very good reasons.

The Best Results

in the Amount and Quality of work done, and the Ease and Speed with which it is done, are attained only through the use of the

Remington Typewriter

REMINGTON TYPEWRITER COMPANY
327 Broadway, New York.

THIS AUTOGRAPH IS NEVER ON A POOR SHADE-ROLLER AND NEVER ABSENT FROM A GOOD ONE.

Stewart Hartshorn

GET THE GENUINE HARTSHORN

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS.

UNLIKE OTHER BELLS SWEETER, MORE DURABLE, LOWER PRICE. OUR FREE CATALOGUE TELLS WHY.

Write to Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., Cincinnati, O.

FREE HAVE YOU A PHOTO of some dear one which you would like reproduced in an artistic manner? If so, send your name and address and we will send you our illustrated catalogue and premium list for disbursers, also a beautiful hand-painted sample of our PHOTO-BUTTON WORK FREE. Address,

SUNBEAM STUDIO, 1532 Third Ave., New York.

Delicious Drink and Dainty Dishes

ARE MADE FROM

BAKER'S BREAKFAST COCOA

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Unequaled for Smoothness, Delicacy, and Flavor

Examine the package you receive and make sure that it bears our trade-mark.

Under the decisions of the U. S. Courts no other Cocoa is entitled to be labeled or sold as "BAKER'S COCOA."

Walter Baker & Co. Ltd.

Established 1780 DORCHESTER, MASS.

$48 TOLMAN RANGES $25.7

with high closet and white enamel lined reservoir (or water front.) Great Foundry Sale. We simply ask for examination without cent in advance. If like it pay $25.75 freight and take range.

30 Days FREE Trial.

If not satisfactory we agree to refund your money. Tolman Ranges are made of best wrought steel. Oven 20 inches. Six 8-inch holes. Perfect bakers and roasters. Fire earth, flue lining, anything, asbestos lined throughout.

Guaranteed 5 years.

Will save their cost in fuel in one year. Write to-day for our catalog.

JUDSON A. TOLMAN COMPANY,
Dept. B 17, 66 Lake Street, Chicago

The Improved Method of

FINISHING FLOORS

Filling cracks with Griggin's Filler and Patent Applier old or new, for rugs or otherwise, with GRIPPIN Wood Crack and Cushion FILLER and FINISH. SPECIALTIES, is very simple and economical, requiring skilled labor though the highest degree of perfection is attained. We give full instruction for treating all surfaces. Write to-day for our descriptive matter to GRIPPIN MFG. CO.,

Dept. 7, Newark, New York

We Carpet Your Floor for $

To introduce our new, serviceable and healthful

BRUSSELETTE ART RUG

Attractive and artistic patterns, woven both sides and in all colors and sizes. Easily kept clean and warranted to wear higher-priced carpets. Sent prepaid to any point east of the Rocky Mountains. Money refunded if not satisfactory. Illustrated catalogue showing rugs in actual colors sent free.

Sanitary Mfg. Co. (Inc.) Dept. B, 228 & 5th & Phinadelphia, Pa.

LORD'S PRAYER

Bangle Ring. Smallest Ever Colored Or any Initial engraved Free. Rolled Gold. Warranted 3 years. Send Size. 10c for either or 15c for both.

VOKES Mfg. Co., 46 Western Av., COVINGTON, KY.

QUAINT PSALMS for QUEER FOLK

By Rev C H. Yatman

PSALM LXXIII
Psalm for Tempted People

2 But as for me, my feet were almost gone; my eps had well nigh slipped.

3 For I was envious at the foolish, when I saw the prosperity of the wicked.

4 For there are no bands in their death: but their strength is firm.

5 They are not in trouble as other men; neither are they plagued like other men.

"ENVIOUS AT THE FOOLISH"

"My feet were almost gone; my steps had well nigh slipped." Poor, tired, tempted souls, here is your experience written before you were born. To look about you is to be distracted; to hear about you is orse—the only safe place for a sinner in this orld is to be hid in the cleft of the Rock, d if he ventures therefrom, the shield of th must be a little larger than himself, or ry darts will pierce him through.

PSALM LXXIV
Psalm for Folk in the Dark

6 The day is thine, the night also is thine: thou t prepared the light and the sun.

HE NIGHT IS THINE"

17 Thou hast set all the borders of the earth: thou hast made summer and winter.

18 Remember this, that the enemy hath reproached, O Lord, and that the foolish people have blasphemed thy name.

19 O deliver not the soul of thy turtledove unto the multitude of the wicked: forget not the congregation of thy poor for ever. . . .

Desolation Psalm would be as good a name. This scripture and Isaiah 42: 16, go hand in hand. Day and night are alike to God. If we cannot see in the dark, he n. It is a dark hour when the wicked are ed and the righteous cast down.

PSALM LXXV
Psalm for Stiff-Necked Folk

I said unto the fools, Deal not foolishly: and the wicked, Lift not up the horn:

IFT NOT UP THE HORN"

5 Lift not up your horn on high: speak not with a stiff neck.

8 For in the hand of the Lord there is a cup, and the wine is red; it is full of mixture; and he poureth out of the same: but the dregs thereof, all the wicked of the earth shall wring them out, and drink them. . . .

Righteous judgment will tire of the stiff-necked people in every congregation; they are a sore trial not only to the preacher, but the pious people of the church. They bow ther knee nor neck to God or godliness. ueer folk to so act, for the Lord will put them wn.

PSALM LXXVI
"God of Battles" Psalm

At thy rebuke, O God of Jacob, both the chariot horse are cast into a dead sleep.

CHARIOT AND HORSE"

7 Thou, even thou, art to be feared: and who may stand in thy sight when once thou art angry?

8 Thou didst cause judgment to be heard from heaven; the earth feared, and was still,

9 When God arose to judgment, to save all the meek of the earth.

10 Surely the wrath of man shall praise thee: the remainder of wrath shalt thou restrain. . . .

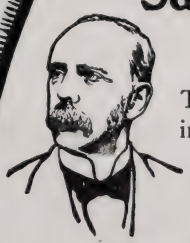
Queer World this; often nations as well as individuals have to fight for peace. The ristian's warfare is as real as the Christian's pe. Above all is God—the God of battles, o deals out death to horse and chariot; the w and battle-ax are nothing to him. Kings d princes fall when he rises to save the eek.

THE SATURDAY EVENING POST
FROM NOW UNTIL JULY 1st FOR 50¢

Americans of To-Day and To-Morrow
By Senator Albert J. Beveridge

A set of brilliant personal articles outlining some distinctively American types of to-day and forecasting future types that will be the product of present conditions.

Salaries and Savings
By Hon. Leslie M. Shaw
Secretary of the Treasury



This is the first of a series of papers in which some successful business men will tell how to save money and to invest it safely.

Papers by Mr. Cleveland

Hon. Grover Cleveland will continue to be a regular contributor on great political questions of the day.

Try the NEW POST to July

New features, more of them, greatly improved. A handsomely printed and beautifully illustrated weekly magazine. Established 175 years and circulating nearly half a million copies every week.

THE CURTIS PUBLISHING COMPANY
Philadelphia, Pa.

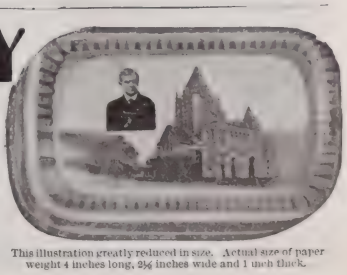
THE SATURDAY EVENING POST
FROM NOW UNTIL JULY 1st FOR 50¢

CHURCH MONEY

COMES EASY for Young People's Societies, Sunday Schools or Classes by Using Our Beautiful Souvenir Glass PAPER WEIGHTS.

Mail us a photograph of your church and pastor (Cabinet size preferred. Either together or separately. We will reproduce them together in one gross (144) solid glass paper weights, similar to accompanying cut, which is greatly reduced in size (or if you prefer we will make them half with church alone and half with pastor alone), actual size 4 inches long, 2¼ inches wide and 1 inch thick. These beautiful weights will readily sell at sight for 25 cents each to church members and business men in your locality, many of whom will buy several, as they make a beautiful souvenir, and are an ornament on any desk. We charge you 12½ cents each in gross lots. You make $18.00 on each gross. We guarantee freight will not exceed $1 to any point east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio River. You are at no risk, as we give you twenty days' time to examine and sell them, enabling you to dispose of most of them before remitting to us. Send us your order at once, enclosing photograph of your church and pastor, giving us full directions for shipping, and be the first to take up this plan in your vicinity. State whether or not you want name of church and pastor under picture. Sample stock weight, prepaid, for 25 cents. Write for booklet and further particulars if desired. Address,

WILFRED SMITH & CO., 988 American Tract Building, New York



This illustration greatly reduced in size. Actual size of paper weight 4 inches long, 2¼ inches wide and 1 inch thick.

My name is on my lamp chimney.
Nobody else's name is on his chimneys.
MACBETH.

If you'll send your address, I'll send you the Index to Lamps and their Chimneys, to tell you what number to get for your lamp.
MACBETH, Pittsburgh.

PEEP O'DAY BROODERS AND SPECIALTIES
in the hands of leading poultrymen everywhere give best satisfaction. Leo J. Riggs, of Grand Rapids, says "I lost three chicks out of 130 in two brooders. They were snowed under for three days."
CORNELL INCUBATORS
stand at the head. Valuable poultry information free for your name and address on postal card.
Cornell Incubator Mfg. Co.,
Box 31 Ithaca, N. Y.

The WOODEN HEN
A high-class self-regulating incubator on a small scale. Fifty egg capacity. Heat, moisture and ventilation automatically and perfectly controlled. Price only $6.80.
Send for the Wooden Hen Book; mailed free, together with a book containing 14 colored views and telling all about the EXCELSIOR INCUBATOR, if you name this paper.
GEO. H. STAHL, Quincy, Illinois.

STEEL ROOFING
FREIGHT CHARGES PAID BY US
Strictly new, perfect, Semi-Hardened Steel Sheets, 2 feet wide, 6 feet long. The best Roofing, Siding or Ceiling you can use. No experience necessary to lay it. An ordinary hammer or hatchet the only tools you need. We furnish nails free and paint roofing two sides. Comes either flat, corrugated or "V" crimped. Delivered free of all charges to all points in the U. S., east of the Mississippi River and North of the Ohio River
AT $2.25 PER SQUARE
Prices to other points on application. A square means 100 square feet. Write for free Catalogue No. 373
CHICAGO HOUSE WRECKING CO., W. 35th and Iron Sts., Chicago

FARMER BOYS
You can make good money selling our Economy Buggies and Harness to your neighbors. We beat the world on quality and prices and pay liberal commissions. Write at once for catalogue and agency plan. A crackerjack Top Buggy for $40
Economy Buggy Co., Box K Cincinnati, Ohio

IT COSTS YOU NOTHING to make a trial on your own premises and find out what the Reliable Incubator can do. Both the reverse we propose. It's the same special hatched hatching, brooding, colonizing, and rearing, etc. Poultry book, No. 16, free to anyone. Reliable Incub. and Brooder Co., Box R-16, Quincy, Ill.
110 Yards Fine Poultry.

LAWN FENCE
Many designs. Cheap as wood. 32 page Catalogue free. Special Prices to Cemeteries and Churches. Address
COILED SPRING FENCE CO.,
Box D. Winchester, Ind.

Are You Deaf?
We have 25 KINDS OF INSTRUMENTS TO ASSIST HEARING. Sent on approval. Write for catalogue.
WM. V. WILLIS & CO. 134 South 11th Street, Philadelphia

Total Abstinence*

Experience is Daily Proving the Danger of a Moderate use of Intoxicants

HOW many ruined lives, how many disgraceful deaths every year, prove that total abstinence is the only safe rule to adopt in reference to intoxicating drink! No one sets out with the intention of becoming a drunkard; but the habit of drinking is insidious, and before the victim knows that he is in its power it becomes too strong to be broken.

Dr. Talmage used to tell the story of a business man in Philadelphia, which illustrates this fact. Dr. Talmage knew him well, and when he heard stories of his drinking, went to him to caution him. The man replied lightly that he was in no danger of drinking to excess. As a matter of fact, he said, he cared very little about drink, and could stop drinking at any time, if he chose. Dr. Talmage urged him to do so, and the man promised that if ever he found himself in danger he would stop altogether. Two years passed, and the story was current that the man had been seen on the street in an intoxicated condition. Dr. Talmage visited him again, and again urged total abstinence. He made a similar reply. The one case of intoxication he admitted, but said it was an accident, and he could stop drinking altogether whenever he chose. The next interview was only a year later, and then the man declared that he could not stop; he must have it. After that the downward course to delirium tremens and a drunkard's grave was very rapid.

Gough used an illustration that vividly pictured the same truth. It was that of an Englishman who brought home from India a tiger's cub, which he tamed. The animal became quite a pet, and played around as harmlessly as a dog. But one day, when it became a big, powerful creature, it tasted blood, and then it was wild. Only by a timely shot did its owner save his own life. Unhappily, the drink habit, when it becomes powerful, cannot be slain—it slays. It is appalling to think, as one looks around at the bright little boys growing up in ignorance of their danger, that some of them will inevitably fall victims to the habit. The pledge of moderation affords no protection; it is too elastic. Only in absolutely letting it alone is there safety. As one of our prominent writers has well said: "He who can abstain without an effort, should do so for the sake of others; he who could not abstain without making an effort, should abstain for his own sake." This principle covers the whole ground. It makes the duty of total abstinence incumbent on all.

Dr. Torrey in England

THE visit of Dr. Torrey and Mr. Charles Alexander, fresh from the experiences of the remarkable revival in Australia, has awakened considerable interest in England. It is about thirty years ago since that country was set aflame by the zeal of Moody and Sankey, and on all hands there has been a readiness to encourage anything like a revival of religious fervor. A census undertaken by a London daily newspaper is revealing every week the exceedingly small proportion of the population which attends religious services on Sunday. The reports which have reached England of the great success which attended the work of Dr. Torrey and Mr. Alexander in Melbourne, Sydney, Ballarat, and other Australasian cities, prepared the way for an enthusiastic greeting to the evangelists when they were welcomed in historic Exeter Hall, on January 9th. Presiding over 1,400 people was Mr. T. A. Denny, and near him were many of the "Old Guard," who had aided Moody and Sankey in past years. Among those who spoke were: Lord Kinnaird, Dr. A. T. Pierson, Rev. F. B. Meyer, Rev. Thomas Spurgeon, Prebendary Webb-Peploe, and Henry Varley. Dr. Torrey delivered a most impressive address, acknowledging his entire reliance on God for the success of his work. Mr. Alexander led the audience with enthusiasm in Gospel songs.

For three weeks the evangelists have been holding two services a day and three on Sundays in the great Conference Hall at Mildmay. It accommodates two or three thousand persons, and has been filled with attentive audiences all the time. Scores of people have testified to the blessing which they have received, and a large number of definite conversions are reported.

The evangelists will return to London next October.

Dr. Torrey and Mr. Alexander are now going to Edinburgh, Glasgow, Dundee, Belfast and other large cities.

*Topic of the Epworth League for March 1. Daniel 1: 8-15; I. Thess. 5: 22; I. Peter 2: 11.

The Cost of Repairs is reduced to a minimum when a Jas. Boss Watch Case protects the works of the watch from dust and dampness, jolt and jar.
JAS. BOSS Stiffened GOLD Watch Cases are far stronger than solid gold cases, absolutely close fitting, do not get out of shape, or lose their rigidity. Fully guaranteed for 25 years. No matter how much you pay for a movement, be sure to have it protected with a Jas. Boss Case. The original gold filled case and the only one proved by 50 years of service. Write us for a booklet.
This Mark is Stamped in Every Boss Case.
THE KEYSTONE WATCH CASE COMPANY, Philadelphia.

A Perfect Form
WRITE FOR "Standard Chart of Physical Culture."
HANG it on your wall. It shows by carefully prepared illustrations and instructions our scientific methods by which you can easily develop each and every part of your body to the ideal of perfection. Sent on receipt of 10 cents (stamps or coin). State sex and occupation.
Fifth Avenue School of Physical Culture, 114 1 Fifth Avenue, New York.

ORNAMENTAL FENCE
25 designs, all steel. Handsome, durable.—Cheaper than a wood fence. Special inducements to church and cemeteries. Catalogue free.
KOKOMO FENCE MACHINE CO., 445 North St., Kokomo, Indiana.

Squabs Pay Best Has
Easier, need attention only part of time, bring big prices. Raised in one month. Attractive for poultrymen, farmers, women. Send for FREE BOOKLET and learn this immensely rich home industry.
PLYMOUTH ROCK SQUAB CO.
8 Friend Street, Boston, Mass.

FREE FOR 30 DAYS.
We will send our grand new book "HOW TO MAKE MONEY WITH POULTRY AND INCUBATORS" free, postpaid, for the next 30 days to all who mention this paper in writing for it. It's the best we ever published. 224 ills. 196 pp. Handsome original illustrations. 12 special chapters on vital poultry subjects. Write to our nearest office for it.
Self Supplied Moisture
Cyphers Incubator Co., Buffalo, N. Y.; Chicago, Ill.; Boston, Mass.; New York, N. Y.

2nd CHICK SIZE $9.50 FOR 100 EGGS $5.00 FOR 50 EGGS
THERE IS ONLY ONE BANTAM INCUBATOR
SELF REGULATING
SATISFIES EVERY GOOD EGG
SEND 2 CENTS FOR NO COST AND PREMIUM LIST
BUCKEYE INCUBATOR CO. SPRINGFIELD OHIO.

HIGH CARBON COILED SPRING STEEL WIRE FENCE
INDIANA STEEL & WIRE CO.
CATALOGUE FREE. BOX 581 MUNCIE, INDIANA.

PETALUMA INCUBATORS
and Brooders are the oldest and most reliable machines on the market to-day. They are purely automatic and sure. Catalogue FREE.
PETALUMA INCUBATOR CO.,
Box 64 Petaluma, Cal. Box 64 Indianapolis, Ind.

POULTRY CATALOG FREE!
Has no rival. Lowest prices of fowls and eggs; 46 breeds Turkeys, Geese, Ducks and Chickens. The book tells all. Grandly illustrated. 15 best hen house plans, how to breed, feed, treat disease, etc. Send 10c. for postage and mailing. J. R. Brabazon, Jr. & Co., Box 98, Rehan, Wis.

GREAT POULTRY BOOK
My 1903 catalogue. Elegant in illustration, full of practical hints, describes 56 breeds of prize winners. Low prices for fowls and eggs. 100th postpaid, 10 cents. Calendar for 1903 on cover.
B. H. GREIDER, RHEEMS, PA.

DON'T SET HENS the same old way while a 200 Egg Natural Hen Incubator Costs But $3, otherwise equally as low. Over 125,000 in use. Indispensable to anyone who keeps a hen. Our Patents protected against infringements. Agents wanted everywhere, either sex, no experience necessary. Catalogue tells all about and 25c Idee Formula FREE if you write today.
NATURAL HEN INCUBATOR CO., Box 8 Columbus, Nebraska.

STARK TREES best by Test—78 Years LARGEST Nursery
FRUIT BOOK free. We WANT MORE SALESMEN PAY CASH Weekly
STARK BRO'S, Louisiana, Mo.; Dansville, N. Y.; Etc

CHEAP RATES California, Washington, Oregon, Colorado. We secure reduced rates on household goods of intending settlers to the above States. Write for rates. Map of California, FREE.
TRANS-CONTINENTAL FREIGHT CO., 353 Dearborn St., Chicago

RHEUMATISM
Relieved Without Medicine
Trial Pair of Magic Foot Drafts FREE ON APPROVAL to anybody.
TRY THEM.
Don't take drugs—most medicine isn't for the stomach—but try a modern adaptation of a very old principle, and treat yourself.
Almost everyone has soaked his feet in hot water for a cold in the head. Magic Foot Drafts open the pores of the feet, the largest in the body, in the same way stimulating the excretory functions of the skin and enabling it to throw off the acid impurities from the system through these large pores.
Magic Foot Drafts relieve rheumatism in every part of the body. Here is the reason.
Every drop of blood in the body passes ever so often through the feet, where the circulatory and nervous systems are exceedingly susceptible.
The Drafts have great power to absorb acid poisons from the blood. Each time a contaminated drop of blood passes through the foot the Drafts absorb a portion of the acid poison, gradually but surely purifying the blood—the only way to permanently relieve rheumatism.
TRADE MARK. MAGIC
If you have rheumatism write us to-day and we will send you a pair of Magic Foot Drafts on free trial. If they relieve you send us One Dollar. If they don't, keep your money—the risk is ours. We know that they give permanent relief. Write to-day to the MAGIC FOOT DRAFT COMPANY, R A 18 Oliver Bldg., Jackson, Mich. Send no money—only your name.

ROBINSON'S BATH CABINET
Guaranteed to Overcome Rheumatism.
Gives new life and vigor to every organ of the human body. Thousands of people are daily suferers because they continue to clog the circulation with poison in place of eliminating the uric acid from the blood by Hot Air Baths. Every intelligent person ought to know by this time the heat is the only relief for disease.
Write for descriptive matter and special 19th proposition. Excellent commission and salary offered to reliable men and women.
Factory prices made to one person in each town where we have no agent.
ROBINSON THERMAL BATH CO., 901-917 Jefferson St. Toledo, O.

The Natural Body Brace advertised in this paper in the first issue of this month is a delightful, certain remedy for ailments peculiar to women and girls. It makes walking and work easy; gives good figure and light step. Write the Natural Body Brace Co., Box 171, Salina, Kan., for free illustrated book.

APPETITE COAXING

ot Necessary When Proper Food is Used

Coaxing up an appetite is hard work and necessary when a little thought is given to ientific feeding.

Fill the stomach with the wrong stuff and it not long before the palate too is affected d even the sight of food is nauseating. omach and nervous ills of all kinds soon me and the body is left without nourish- nt.

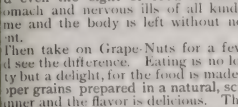
Then take on Grape-Nuts for a few days d see the difference. Eating is no longer a ty but a delight, for the food is made of the per grains prepared in a natural, scientific nner and the flavor is delicious. The case a schoolma'am of Cedar Mills, Minn., is in- esting. She writes: "I used to go without ch many a day, not finding it tasty. In sequence I usually had a severe headache ore the afternoon session was over and t nervous and cross.

I had almost concluded to give up teach- on this account when a friend induced me try Grape-Nuts. I will say frankly I did care for it at first, but tried it two or three es and then found myself beginning to oy the crisp, nutty flavor.

The food has changed the order of my . I carry it for lunch every day now. The or has come back to my cheeks and lips I have no more headaches or nervous lls.

My body is full of energy and new life, and seems worth the living, now that I have nd the proper food." Name given by Pos- Company, Battle Creek, Mich.

l Clear Saving



$10 TO $25

n a Sewing Machine.

"Young" HOW DO D

We don't ask you to accept statement on our bare assertion—we want to ve it. We have just issued what is undoubtedly the t thorough and comprehensive book ever published it Sewing Machines. This book tells you what con- tes a really high grade machine—how to detect the e points—the right price to pay, etc. The book is lusively printed in colors, with photographs and ches, and includes samples of the work done with attachments upon cloth—stitching, binding, braid- purfling, tucking, quilting, hemming, etc. You ld have this book and these samples whether you from us or not. The book is free to you for the ng. Send for samples and booklet No. B 702 e Homer Young Co. Ltd., TOLEDO, OHIO.

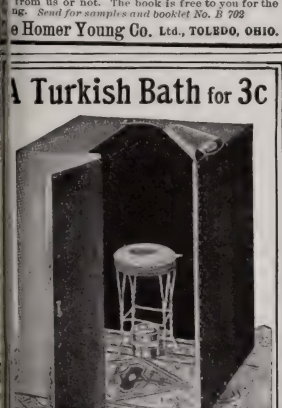
A Turkish Bath for 3c



THIS CABINET IS SENT ON TRIAL

FREIGHT OR EXPRESS PREPAID

Complete with ALL NECESSARY ATTACHMENTS — Ready for Use.

Satisfaction guaranteed by a week's free rial before you decide to purchase. Ask for illustrated booklet SENT FREE.

RACINE BATH CABINET COMPANY
Box 240 Racine, Wisconsin

The trade-mark crisscross lines on every package.

GLUTEN FLOUR For DYSPEPSIA.
SPECIAL DIABETIC FLOUR.
W. C. WHOLE WHEAT FLOUR.
Unlike all other foods. Ask Grocers.
For book or sample write
Fowell & Rhines, Watertown, N.Y., U.S.A.

THE MINISTRY OF THE SPIRIT

How the Preaching of Apollos Became Effective

BY MRS M BAXTER

WORTHY of notice is the description given in the Acts (18: 24) of Apollos, as a man "mighty in the Scriptures." This is the kind of man needed for missionary work: one who not only has the Scripture at his fingers' ends, but also, and more especially, has entered into and made his own, in heart and life, the blessed Word of God, not bits of it, but the entire Word of God. The Spirit of God has something to work on, and something to use, in one who has made his home in the Word of God.

This man had been interested and taught by word of mouth in the way of the Lord—i. e., about the Lord Jesus. He was "fervent in spirit," mighty in the Scriptures, instructed in the way of the Lord, fervent in spirit: and yet he lacked the greatest thing of all! He did his best, and he did it well: "he taught and spake carefully the things concerning Jesus." But we hear of no converts as the result of his preaching. He longed for men to know of the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world; but yet there was something lacking. What was it? He knew only John's baptism of repentance for the remissions of sins" (Mark 1: 4), but he did not know Christ as he which baptizeth with the Holy Ghost and with fire (Luke 3: 16, 17). When, on the day of Pentecost, the large assemblage of Jews who heard Peter preach, were pricked to the heart, and cried, "Men and brethren, what shall we do?" Peter answered them, "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ, unto the remission of your sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost" (Acts 2: 38). This baptism Apollos did not know.

He began to speak boldly in the synagogue. But when Priscilla and Aquila heard him, they "took him unto them, and expounded unto him the way of God more carefully." Undoubtedly he was brought to understand and receive the Holy Spirit. Then, as in Eph. 1: 13, 14, having heard the word of the truth, the gospel of his salvation, and having also believed, he must have been sealed by God with the Holy Spirit of promise, sealed by God as his own purchased possession. We can believe that Apollos did not stop at having the earnest of the Spirit, but yielded himself to be filled with the Spirit. This can only be when we yield our will unreservedly and forever to God. There can be no limited monarchy in the government of God; he must be supreme over all that belongs to him, and the filling of his people with his Spirit is his own enthronement in their being, as possessor and ruler, as life, and power, and light.

A man who is filled with the Spirit must be a power for God. The power may be exercised in many different ways, as he wills, according to the gifts of the Spirit which he gives, and which he works (1. Cor. 12: 4-11). But every man, woman or child, so filled, has that presence of God, which makes him through them a reality to others. It was so with Apollos. When he was minded to pass over into Achaia, the brethren encouraged him, and wrote to the disciples to receive him, and when he was come he helped them much who had believed through grace. But the help was not from himself; it was the Holy Ghost who, filling him, used his surrendered powers in the truths which he brought out.

But Apollos not only helped believers; the Spirit spoke through him also to the unsaved; he powerfully confuted the Jews, and that publicly, showing by the Scriptures that Jesus was the Christ. He brought them to the place where they must refuse to believe their own Scriptures if they did not believe Christ. They could resist the Spirit—many of them did so—but no longer with their eyes closed; and so Apollos could say, as Paul did, "I am pure from the blood of all men, for I shrank not from declaring unto you the whole counsel of God."

While Apollos was thus following up his work in Europe, Paul came to Ephesus, and found certain disciples; and he said unto them, "Did ye receive the Holy Ghost when ye believed?" And they said unto him, "Nay, we did not so much as hear whether the Holy Ghost was given." In John's baptism the Holy Ghost was promised for the future, and these disciples were ignorant that that promise was redeemed on the day of Pentecost, and from that time forth. They were much in the same condition as was Apollos before Priscilla and Aquila had so taught him and helped him that he received the filling of the Holy Spirit. Is it too much to say that the majority of believers are in the same condition now? How few there are who are really filled with the Spirit! The churches are held together, not by a Spirit-filled ministry, mighty in the Scriptures, but by enticing words of man's wisdom, by music, which is adapted to please the senses, by bazaars, entertainments, etc., things which the Spirit of God cannot endorse nor tolerate, and which grieves the Holy Spirit away from the churches. And all because preacher and members have not got beyond the baptism of repentance unto the remission of sins, and they have not received the Holy Ghost to be the power and the ruler in their lives.

FREE

A Smyrna Rug (Size: 30 X 60)

In handsome colors, both sides alike. This is a great offer. If you don't believe it, ask your local carpet dealer the price of a 30x60 Smyrna rug.

NO MONEY REQUIRED

All we ask is that you send us your name and address and allow us to send you on 30 days' trial that retail at 25c each. Sell them to your friends, send us the money you get for them, and the Smyrna rug will be sent at once, express charges prepaid.

1 DOZEN HOLD-FAST SKIRT SUPPORTERS

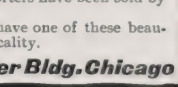
You take no risk—we take back any you do not sell. We offer over 100 premiums besides the Smyrna rug. Catalogues sent with each order. Over two million Hold-Fast Skirt Supporters have been sold by the ladies of the United States.

Every woman needs one. Send to-day and you will have one of these beautiful Rugs in a few days. Be the first to order in your locality.

THE COLVER CO., Dept. 43, 811 Schiller Bldg. Chicago

EIGHT DOLLARS AND TWENTY-FIVE CENTS

buys our high grade, high arm, guaranteed, 5-drawer, solid polished antique oak, drop head cabinet SEROCO sewing machine, exactly as illustrated, complete with all accessories, instruction book, etc.

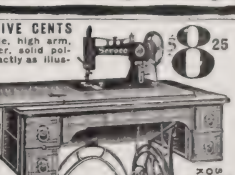


$8.25

$15.20 buys the HIGHEST GRADE, HIGH ARM 5-DRAWER, DROP CABINET SEWING MACHINE MADE, complete with all accessories, instruction book, etc.

Other high grade Sewing Machines in 5-drawer drop cabinet and other styles $10.45, $10.95, $11.95, $12.85, $14.75, etc. We sell nearly all the best known standard sewing machines, including the genuine Singer, Domestic, New Home, Wheeler & Wilson, White, Standard, Minnesota, Howard, Burdick and Edgemere, and our low prices, etc., will simply astonish you. Every machine shipped on

THREE MONTH'S FREE TRIAL with the understanding, that if it doesn't prove perfectly satisfactory you do not pay us one cent. Write for our free Sewing Machine Catalogue, mention this paper, and we will give you the names of a number of your own neighbors to whom we have sold sewing machines, so that you can see and examine your neighbors' machines, learn how they are pleased with them and how much money we saved them. The Special Sewing Machine Catalogue will go to you by return mail, complete with large illustrations, full descriptions and most astonishingly low prices. You will receive the most wonderful price offerings ever heard of, our liberal three months' free trial proposition and the most extraordinary sewing machine offer ever made. Address,



SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., Chicago.

WE WILL SAVE YOU FROM $10 TO $45 on almost any kind or style of machine.

Sold direct from factory saving all salesmen's expenses and dealers or agents exhorbitant profits. Our machines have modern features not possessed by any others. Ball-Bearing Stand, finest attachments FREE. Latest design woodwork, the stylish swell front, polished oak. Guaranteed to be better than machines sold for twice the price. SHIPPED ON APPROVAL, anywhere in U. S. Guaranteed 20 years.

ARLINGTON GEM $25.00 Regular 5 drawer Drop Head Including all attachments. $11.25

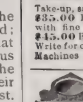
ARLINGTON QUEEN Flat Tension and Needle Bar Take-up, same as New Home, Domestic and White. $35.00 Regular 5 Drawer Drop Head with fine Marquetry Decorations, $14.75 $45.00 Beautiful Door Desk Cabinet $16.45.

ARLINGTON Highest arm made, Disc Tension, Independent Take-up, same as Singer, Wheeler & Wilson and Standard. $55.00 Regular 5 Drawer Drop Head $17.75 $65.00 Automatic Lift, Drop Cabinet $19.75 $75.00 Beautiful 2 Door Desk Cabinet $28.75

Write for our Catalogue, 64 pages beautifully illustrated. Contains all points about buying Sewing Machines right—FREE

CASH BUYERS' UNION, Dept. B 18, CHICAGO.



1 of 100 Premium

$10 PREMIUMS GIVEN AWAY WITH $10 ASSORTMENT

Of Laundry and Fine Toilet SOAPS and Perfumes. Our Premiums consist of Couches, Morris Chairs, Beds, Tables, Desks, Stoves, Musical Instruments, etc. In fact, through the LOCKWOOD WAY you can furnish your entire home free. Send your name and address and we will mail you absolutely FREE our beautiful illustrated catalogue containing handsome and useful premiums, also full information in regard to our 30 days' FREE TRIAL order.

LOCKWOOD SOAP CO., Department 26, KANSAS CITY, MO.

PRICES REDUCED FOR 60 DAYS.

$4.00 Vapor Bath Cabinet $2.25 each
$5.00 Quaker " " 3.50 each
$10.00 " " " 6.10 each
$3.00 Face & Head Steam Attch. 65c

Quality best. Guaranteed. $2. Book Free with all "Quakers." Write for our New Catalogue, special 60-Day offer. Don't miss it. Your last chance. New plan, new prices to agents, salesmen, managers. Wonderful sellers. Hustlers getting rich. Plenty territory.

World M'f'g Co., 675 World Bldg., Cincinnati, O.

GRAY HAIR RESTORED

"WALNUTTA" HAIR STAIN is prepared from the juice of the Philippine Islands walnut, and restores Gray, Streaked, Faded or Bleached Hair, Eyebrows, Beard or Moustache to its original color, instantaneously. Gives any shade from Light Brown to Black. Does not wash off or rub off. Contains no poisons, and is not sticky or greasy. "Walnutta" Hair Stain will give more satisfactory results in one minute than all the hair restorers and hair dyes sold in a lifetime. Price 60 cents a bottle, postpaid. To convince you of its merits we will send a sample bottle postpaid for 20c.

PACIFIC TRADING CO., Dist. Office 66, St. Louis, Mo.

Agent's Outfit Free.—Rub Strainer, fits any pan. Agents make 3 to 5 dollars per day. Large catalogue new goods free.

RICHARDSON MFG. CO. Dept. 6, BATH, N.Y.

DENT'S Toothache Gum

A SWELL AFFAIR

Is the acknowledged remedy for toothache. Apply to cavity or surface. Instant relief. Why suffer? Insist upon DENT'S; substitutes are worthless. All druggists, or by mail, 15 cents.

C. S. DENT & CO., Detroit, Mich.

CORNS REMOVED BY A-CORN SALVE

Trial box free. A postal buys it. Full-size box 15c at druggists or by mail

Giant Chemical Co., Philadelphia

FOUR THOUSAND INVESTORS

BOUGHT $3,461,000 WORTH

Of our New York Lots During the Past Year

Nearly three and a half million dollars!—that's the forceful story of our real estate sales during the year just ended. We ask you to dwell on these figures long enough to realize—to understand what they really mean. These three and a half million dollars actually represent the confidence which the thousands who have invested in our New York City lots have in us. You, perhaps, have not yet invested—not even investigated our wonderful proposition:

"$10 Secures a $510 Lot in Greater New York"

Within 35 Minutes of City Hall and Brooklyn Bridge, by Trolley, 5c.

Five Hundred Dollars, invested for a child may put him through college; $500 invested for a young married couple will go far toward making them independent in their old years; $500 invested by a young man or a young woman will, in our opinion, pay them better than any life insurance they can possibly take out, and this $500 can be invested at $6 a month.

This is a high-class and strictly honest proposition, or you may be sure The Christian Herald would not permit our announcement to appear. Nor would we have the privilege of referring to twenty-odd National Banks, the Commercial Agencies, and over 30,000 customers all over the United States.

Doesn't it seem fair to presume that the same reasons which convinced so many thousands of practical thinking men and women everywhere of the undoubted value of our proposition, would convince YOU? Isn't it worth the time at least to send us your name to-day—and learn how you make thousands by paying $10 down and $6 a month until your payments amount to $510, and in the meantime own the safest form of investment in the world.

This may sound extravagant—yet every statement we make is based upon a fact. It is in evidence—it can be verified—it can be SEEN. Naturally we will be accused of being biased in our opinions—of painting New York's future in too rosy colors—but listen!

The Brooklyn Bridge entrance is seen to the right of the Metropolitan Realty Building; then follow the homes of the New York World, Sun, Journal and American, Tribune, American Tract Society and New York Times, while the immediate foreground is occupied by the City Hall (side view) in front of which will be the main entrance to the Rapid Transit Subway system, to upper New York and Brooklyn.

HERE'S THE OPINION AND ADVICE of one of the World's Greatest Investors and Financiers, RUSSELL SAGE, Whose reputed wealth is One Hundred Millions

(From the New York World of September 28, 1902).

"I do not think the future of New York can be depicted in terms any too glowing. The most fanciful writers cannot exaggerate the greatness of its future.

"A man who buys real estate in any of the five boroughs—of course exercising average good judgment—has a fortune before him. Brooklyn is growing at the rate of 75,000 people a year.

"Young man, buy real estate in the outlying boroughs, and then work hard at your usual avocation. Your real estate purchases will make your old age comfortable." RUSSELL SAGE.

Our property is located in Brooklyn—it is therefore a very significant fact when Mr. Sage says "Brooklyn is growing at the rate of 75,000 people a year." Think of it! That means three-fourths of all New York's enormous yearly increase of population.

FREE TRIP TO NEW YORK

As a guarantee of good faith, we agree with all persons living east of Chicago to pay you in cash the cost of your railroad fare to New York and return, if you visit our property and find one word of this advertisement a misrepresentation; or in case you buy, we will credit cost of the fare on your purchase; to those living farther away we will pay a proportion equal to round trip Chicago ticket—$36.

Remember: If you should die at any time before payments have been completed, we will give to your heirs a deed of the lot without further cost. If you should lose employment or be sick, you will not forfeit the land. Remember also, you have absolutely nothing to lose by writing at once for full particulars, or better still—mail us $10, the first payment on a lot, with the distinct understanding that we must return it to you if we have misrepresented our proposition in the slightest particular. But write under all circumstances. You would not be fair to yourself if you failed to look into this matter. Fill out the coupon and mail it to us to-day. That costs but 2 cents and a minute's time. Isn't it worth while?

WOOD, HARMON & CO., Dept. B 15, 257 Broadway, New York

..... 1903

Messrs. WOOD, HARMON & CO.,
Dept. B 15, New York City

Enclosed find $ as first payment on..... .....of your New York lots.

[Leave order line blank if information only is desired.]

Please send me full particulars in regard to your lots:

Name.....

Street and No. .....

City and State .....

UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY for a number of energetic men of unquestioned reputation to act as our representatives in their own community. Write us for particulars, addressing "Agency Dept. B 15." as above

Published 52 Times a Year NEW YORK—MAGAZINE NUMBER—FEBRUARY 25, 1903 Offices: Bible House, N. Y.

CHRISTIAN HERALD

SUBSCRIPTION $1.50 PER ANNUM LOUIS KLOPSCH, Editor and Proprietor VOL. 26 - NO. 8. PRICE 5 CENTS

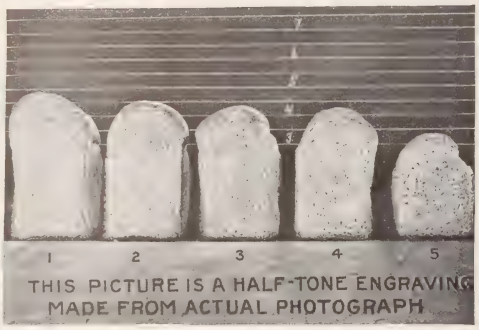
OPYRIGHT, 1903, BY LOUIS KLOPSCH

PAINTED BY NEOGRADY SPECIALLY FOR THE CHRISTIAN HERALD

"Old Mammy" and the Promises — A City Missionary's Experience

THE SAME QUANTITY OF FLOUR

was used in making each of these loaves.



THIS PICTURE IS A HALF-TONE ENGRAVING MADE FROM ACTUAL PHOTOGRAPH

WASHBURN-CROSBY'S GOLD MEDAL FLOUR

made Loaf No.1. It is as far superior in economy and in every way, to other flour, as Loaf No.1 is superior to the other loaves.

BE SURE YOU ARE NOT USING — — — THE FLOUR THAT MADE LOAF NO. 5.

COOK BOOK FREE except cost of mailing. We will send our splendid GOLD MEDAL COOK BOOK containing over 1000 carefully prepared recipes to any lady who will send us 8¢ in stamps and the names and addresses of two housewives who would also like one of these books. Address WASHBURN-CROSBY CO., Minneapolis, Minn.

MENTION THIS PAPER

THOMAS CARLYLE

SIR WALTER SCOTT

CHARLES DICKENS

JOHN RUSKIN

Special 30-Day Offer

TO CHRISTIAN HERALD READERS

STANDARD AUTHORS

AT HALF PRICE AND SMALL PAYMENTS

This is an exceptional opportunity to fill up your library with the Best Editions of the Best Authors on the most favorable terms possible. Elegantly bound in half leather. Fully illustrated.

SENT FREE FOR EXAMINATION

Only $1.00 Required until you have examined the books at your home and found them satisfactory, then you pay $1.50 per month—no more. If not satisfactory you return them at our expense and the $1 is at once refunded.

GUIZOT'S HISTORY OF FRANCE. Eight volumes. To know France one must know Guizot, the most readable and interesting of all her historians.

EDGAR ALLAN POE'S WORKS. Edited by Prof. James A. Harrison. Eleven volumes. The only complete and the most satisfactory edition yet published of this fascinating author.

SHAKESPEARE'S WORKS. The International Edition. Every reader of Shakespeare should own this edition, which is pronounced by scholars the best in existence to-day.

HONORE DE BALZAC'S WORKS. Sixteen volumes. The authoritative edition of the "Comedie Humaine," comprising all the masterpieces of this great Frenchman.

WORKS OF THOMAS CARLYLE. in ten volumes.

GIBBON'S DECLINE AND FALL OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE. in five volumes.

RUSKIN'S WORKS. in thirteen handsome volumes.

WORKS OF ALEXANDRE DUMAS. in ten volumes.

CHARLES DICKENS WORKS. in fifteen volumes.

WORKS OF VICTOR HUGO. in eight volumes.

NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE'S WORKS. in seven volumes.

SCOTT'S WAVERLEY NOVELS. in twelve volumes.

WASHINGTON IRVING'S WORKS. complete in ten volumes.

OUR OFFER: The regular prices of these works run from $3.50 to $4.00 per volume. We offer any of them, bound elegantly and durably in half leather, at $2.00 per volume, with a special discount from this price to CHRISTIAN HERALD readers who order at once. The sets will be sent, express paid, on five days' examination, returnable if not satisfactory at our expense. Monthly payments, $1.50.

Copy or Cut Out This Coupon:

HENRY G. ALLEN & CO., 150 Fifth Avenue, New York:

I accept your special offer of Standard Authors, and enclose $1 as first payment; send full particulars, and if found satisfactory I will order from them and shall expect the extra discount offered CHRISTIAN HERALD readers, otherwise the $1 to be returned to me.

Name .....

Address .....

HENRY G. ALLEN & CO., Pubs., 150 Fifth Avenue, New York

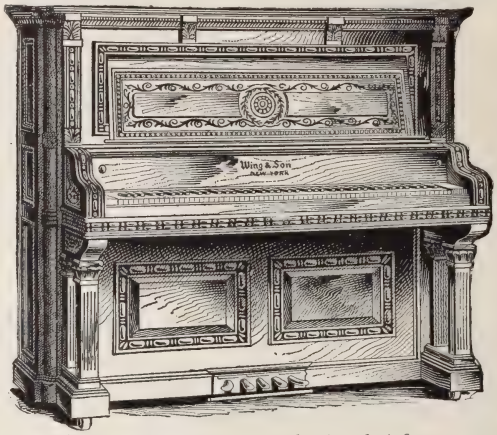
"FOR 35 YEARS A STANDARD PIANO."

The Wing Piano

You Can Save from $100 to $200

By buying directly from the Manufacturers. The WING PIANOS are known the world over and thousands of them are in the homes of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD readers.

The Christian Endeavor World, Boston, says: "The Wing has become a household word. But a standard instrument made by a standard concern is not the only attraction offered. You can actually have the piano in your home on twenty days' trial without expense, and pay for it in installments if you desire. Scores of our readers have taken advantage of this offer."



A Wing style—45 other styles to select from

No other Piano made equals this in Style and Design of Case.

A First-Class Piano at Manufacturers' Prices

We make the WING PIANO and sell it ourselves. It goes direct from our factory to your home. We do not employ any agents or salesmen. When you buy the WING PIANO you pay the actual cost of construction and our very small wholesale profit. This profit is small because we sell thousands of pianos yearly.

SENT ON TRIAL

We Pay Freight. No Money in Advance

We will send any WING PIANO to any part of the United States on trial. We pay freight in advance and do not ask for any advance payment or deposit. If the piano is not satisfactory after twenty days' trial in your home, we take it back entirely at our expense. You pay us nothing unless you keep the piano. There is absolutely no risk or expense to you.

Old and Unsatisfactory Instruments Taken in Exchange.

Easy Monthly Payments

You Need This Book

IF YOU INTEND TO BUY A PIANO. A Book—not a catalogue—that gives you all the information possessed by experts. It makes the selection of a piano easy. If read carefully it will make you a judge of tone, action, workmanship, and finish; will tell you how to know good from bad. It describes the materials used; gives pictures of all the different parts, and tells how they should be made and put together. It is the only book of its kind ever published. It contains 116 large pages, and is named "The Book of Complete Information About Pianos." We send it FREE to any one wishing to buy a piano. Write for it.

WING PIANOS are guaranteed for 12 years against any defect in tone, action, workmanship or material. In 35 years over 36,000 pianos have been sold to satisfied customers in every part of the United States.

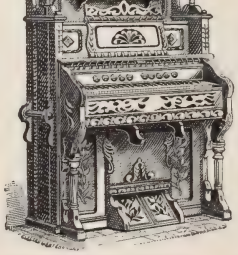
INSTRUMENTAL ATTACHMENT



A special feature of the Wing Piano; it imitates perfectly the tones of the mandolin, guitar, harp, zither, and banjo. Music written for these instruments, with and without piano accompaniment, can be played just as perfectly by a single player on the piano as though rendered by an entire orchestra. The original instrumental attachment has been patented by us, and it cannot be had in any other piano, although there are several imitations of it. This attachment does not interfere with the ordinary use of the piano.

WING ORGANS

are just as carefully made as Wing Pianos. They have a sweet, powerful, lasting tone, easy action, very handsome appearance, need no tuning. Wing Organs are sold direct from the factory, sent on trial; are sold on easy monthly payments. For catalogue and prices write to

WING & SON

205-207 East 12th St., NEW YORK

1868—35th Year—1903

NEW YORK, FEBRUARY 25, 1903

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD

AN ILLUSTRATED FAMILY MAGAZINE

THE "STEENBECK HOME" FOR WOMEN

QUEEN WILHELMINA

"ROSA SUMMA," ONE OF THE SMALLER HOMES

THE RESCUE HOMES OF HOLLAND

The Heldring Institutions, and their Christlike Work Among the Poor and the Fallen

BY BARONNE SUZETTE DE ZUYLEN DE NYEVELT

ON the 7th of February, 1901, while the marriage ceremony of the young Queen of the Netherlands was taking place at the Hague, amid pomp and splendor, a touching scene was enacted in a corner of her kingdom by a group of happy children, in unison with the general rejoicings. In a Home for those hapless little ones—who can never know a real home, because no father claims them as his own—a little girl and boy, clad in their Sunday best, stood under an arch erected for the occasion, in the gayly decorated playroom of the institution, and, as little "Queen," Anna and "Prince" William, received the "homage" of their tiny subjects, who marched past to the sound of gay music.

In the Netherlands are several institutions which are called, after their founder, the "Heldring" institutions. These institutions at Zetten, in the province of Gelderland, have just been particularly brought to the notice of the Christian public in Holland, by the fact that their honored head, the Rev. H. Pierson, lately celebrated the twenty fifth anniversary of his directorship. Mr. Pierson has devoted the last quarter of a century almost exclusively to the work of reclaiming the fallen and rescuing those in grave moral danger. He is a man of great powers of mind, of good social position, a member of a family whose name is almost synonymous with intellectual distinction (one brother was Secretary of State for Finance in two Cabinets, another was an eminent professor at the University of Heidelberg, and a noted writer on history and philosophy), and Mr. Pierson himself would certainly have achieved success in almost any career which he had cared to follow. To hear him preach in the Cathedral at the Hague, and hold 2,000 people spellbound by his eloquence, or speak on a literary subject before a town audience, and then to know that his usual audience, Sunday after Sunday, is composed of a few hundred women and children in the chapel connected with the institution, and that his chosen life work is among the outcasts of humanity, is to realize that worldly ambition has been conquered by a higher motive power, which must ever puzzle the sceptic and the agnostic.

Mr. Pierson's attitude towards those who form his habitual audience may be gathered from the following anecdote: A friend, whom he had asked to preach for him in his chapel, refused, on the plea that the sermon must certainly be quite different from that preached to an ordinary audience. Mr. Pierson then preached himself, and took the subject of Simon, the Pharisee, and the woman who was a sinner. On leaving the chapel his friend remarked: "It is very strange, I sat just opposite the poor women from Steenbeck (the home for the worst class of women), and at the end of the service, it suddenly struck me that I had not once thought of them. How did you manage it?" The answer was: "It is a simple matter. I preached to you and to myself, that is all, and I am glad you felt it."

The institutions presided over by Mr. Pierson almost all owe their origin to his predecessor, Heldring, a very remarkable man. He was the minister of a remote country parish situated in the island called Betinoe. His warm, Christian zeal and active disposition, early led him to take up what are now called "social questions." "Steenbeck" was founded in 1848, and has since received 1,774 unfortunate women, each of whom is kept, if possible, for two years. There is room for fifty-one, besides matrons. Care is taken never to admit any woman or girl who has not forfeited her good name.

Heldring soon felt the need of a shelter for little girls growing up among vicious surroundings. First a small home was started for them; in 1856 the present house, which was named "Talitha Kumi," and is known as the "Talitha," was built. It has room for 170 children, and has already received 1,602. Most of these girls are not lost sight of when they leave, and it is claimed that ninety-five per cent. have become respectable members of society. Some of their lives are very remarkable. A number of girls from "Talitha" recently formed a "Pinafore Guild," and engaged to send a number of pinafores every Christmas to their old homes. The first year, 1899, fifty-six were received.

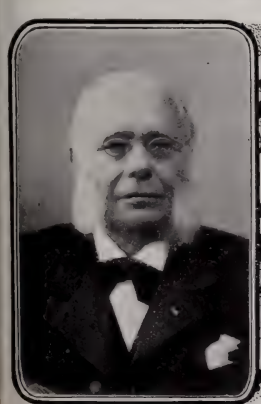
"Bethel" is an offshoot of "Talitha." It was founded in 1861, and is intended for girls between sixteen and twenty-three, who are in grave moral danger. It has room for fifty inmates, and has had 1,157 within its walls. As a rule, the girls are idle, restless, excitable, often in low physical condition. Country air, good food, and the discipline of regular habits and a variety of household work are important factors in training them for a life of usefulness. Two years' residence is considered necessary to obtain any result.

In 1863, circumstances led Heldring to establish a training school for teachers, the daughters of clergymen and schoolmasters, quite independently of the other institutions. It is now a thriving school for fifty girls, 502 having been admitted since its foundation. In 1870, a special chapel was built for the institutions. It was erected on a height, to serve as a refuge in case of inundation, for the peasantry living on lower levels. Their houses are flooded whenever the dykes burst in winter, as sometimes happens when the river is blocked with ice.

Heldring died in 1876, and was succeeded the following year by Mr. Pierson, both as head and chaplain of all the institutions. He realized an unfulfilled idea of his predecessor in founding two small homes for children, on a slightly higher social level than those admitted at "Talitha," but equally in need of being removed from undesirable surroundings. These girls are trained to be teachers in elementary or infant schools, or for similar employments, but not for domestic service. There is room for about twenty girls in each of the homes.

In 1882, the "Magdalene House" was opened for young, unmarried mothers. It need not be said that Mr. Pierson uses the wisest precaution in admitting them only when they are absolutely friendless. The

CONTINUED ON PAGE 169



PASTOR PIERSON, DIRECTOR

THE "TALITHA KUMI"

DR. HELDRING, FOUNDER

THE American Pulpit

...SERMON BY...

Rev. Frank De Witt Talmage, D.D.
of the Jefferson Park
Presbyterian Church, Chicago

Father Washington

GENESIS 17: 4:
"Thou shalt be a father of many nations"

AMONG the monarchs of Europe, there is only one whose lot I consider enviable. Justin McCarthy once wrote that the princes who were born to thrones ought to be the most pitied of all men. The kings and queens of Europe, as a rule, are doomed to lives of oppressive and circumscribed servitude. The would-be assassins are always skulking around, ready to dig their graves. Kings cannot marry those with whom they fall in love, as other men are allowed to do. When they wed, considerations of state policy and of international alliance govern the choice of a partner, and they must not marry simply to satisfy the cravings of their own hearts. They must breathe, for the most part, the tainted atmosphere of sycophantal praise and insincere adulation. Royalty has its drawbacks as well as its dangers; but there is one conspicuous example of their being overcome. Even a free-born American citizen can afford to admire the domestic relations of the German Emperor. The six bright, healthy, intelligent boys and the lovely little girl who compose his family circle, are a group to make a father's heart glad. To be the head of such a family is more gratifying than to be the head of the German Empire.

The Father of his Country

It was so that the beautiful Cornelia felt when she declared that no wealth was comparable to being the mother of the Gracchi. What, then, must be the joy of that man who is told that he is to be "the father of many nations." For that reason, the Hebrew people honor the name of Father Abraham. For that reason, the American people ought to honor the name of George Washington. As the Hebrews, to this day, venerate the man from whom their race sprang, so we have in the leader and founder of our commonwealth a man whose character is worthy of all our honor and veneration. Thousands upon thousands of pilgrims have journeyed to the shrines of Machpelah, in which are supposed to be buried Father Abraham and Sarah, his wife. On this national holiday, in imagination we should be willing to journey to the Mount Vernon tombs in which slumber the mouldering bodies of Father Washington, and Martha, his wife. We should, on this Washington's birthday, be glad to give up at least one service to the study of the life and the character of this great and good man, whose name not only towers above all other names in American history, but whose life has won the admiration of other nations as well as of our own.

George Washington was a well-rounded man. His was not the brilliant genius of a Napoleon, or a Richelieu, or a Mazzarin, or a Cardinal Wolsey. His military career was not spectacular, like that of Arnold, or Greene, or Morgan, or Light Horse Harry Lee, or Mad Anthony Wayne. His pen was not facile, like that of Hamilton or Jefferson. He had no oratorical gifts, like those of Henry, or Adams, or William Pinkney. But as he had not the dazzling talents of such men, neither did he have the moral weaknesses which marred their characters.

The Genius of Character

Wherever we touch the life and character of Washington, there we find that if he had any genius, "his," as David Gregg wrote, "was the genius of character," and of character alone. As a boy, he was not a brilliant boy, but a good boy; a noble, high-principled boy. We do not have to refer to the fabled hatchet story to prove this. There are still preserved in his own boyish handwriting, the famous rules he made to govern his future life, which he wrote out at thirteen. Among those rules are these words: "Endeavor to keep alive in your bosom that little divine spark called conscience." As a young man, we do not find him a brilliant young man, but a conscientious and painstaking young man. He was appointed public surveyor by Lord Fairfax. Why? Because Lord Fairfax knew that when the plodder, George Washington, recorded a measurement, there would never be a doubt of the one fact, that that measurement was right. As a matured man, we cannot portray the well-roundedness of Washington's life better, than by quoting these words written by Mr Lear, his private secretary, who lived with him as a member of his family, in Mount Vernon: "General Washington is, I believe, almost the only man of exalted character who does not lose some part of his respectability by an intimate acquaintance. I have never found a single thing that could lessen my respect for him. A complete knowledge of his honesty, uprightness and candor in all his private transactions, has sometimes led me to think him more than a man."

Washington's character was not the grandeur of a snow-capped mountain, full of crevasses and fatal precipices. It was that of a well-chiselled piece of marble, over which the sculptor's hand has gone again and again. His character was not developed in an instant, as a comet leaps into existence, and then disappears. But his character growth can aptly be compared to the sunrise, which grows brighter and brighter, and sheds forth a more refulgent light, until at last that light sinks away into the twilight after the glowing sunset has covered the clouds with garments of gold.

What the world most needs to-day is not brilliant men, but good men; not men with the scintillating genius of Aaron Burr, but men with the goodness of a Father Washington. The world does not need an orator who can make a brilliant speech, and then with a dissolute private life repudiate all the noble sentiments he enunciated in that speech. But the world does need good men. Men who are honorable in their homes; men who are honorable in their business dealings; men who are conscientiously faithful in every duty of life which confronts them. When the tidings of Bunker Hill were carried to Washington, he anxiously asked the courier this question, "Did the militia fight well?" When told that they did, he replied, "Then the liberties of the country are safe." That principle is our ground of hope to-day. On this national birthday we re-echo Washington's words, and declare that "the liberties of the country are safe," when its citizens, from the humblest to the greatest, are good men doing their respective duties well. It was in Washington's "genius of character" that we find his greatest element of strength. George Washington was a well-rounded man. That means, in ordinary, everyday language, he was a good man in every relation of life wherever you study him.

A Life of Self-Sacrifice

George Washington was ready to sacrifice his all for American liberty. I do not suppose he was any more willing to sacrifice his all than thousands and tens of thousands of other men. But the simple fact was that George Washington had more to sacrifice than almost any other man of his day. First, he was a homebody. He had to give up all the endearments of his Virginia plantation life. The glory of war and the pride of statesmanship never appealed to him, as they often do to the selfish ambition of the modern politician. "How pitiful," he once wrote to a friend, "in this age of reason and religion, is that false ambition which desolates the world with fire and sword for the purpose of conquest and fame. I hope to spend the remainder of my life in cultivating the affections of good men, and in the practice of domestic virtues." But though George Washington was essentially a home man, and loved his own fireside above all throne-rooms, yet at the call of duty he sacrificed his life's desire, and drew his sword as the Commander of the American armies.

The sacrifice of his ease and comfort was not the only sacrifice he was willing to make. When he became Commander of the American armies, he placed his head and life in jeopardy in more ways than one. When the Declaration of Independence was being signed in Independence Hall, Benjamin Franklin, I think it was, turned to some of his colleagues and said: "We must all hang together now, or else we shall all hang separately." That was a figure of speech that may not have been true of every signer of the Declaration, but it would certainly have been true of the man who was rightly regarded as the head and front of the revolt. If the revolution of 1776 had failed, whosoever escaped, George Washington, as the leader of the American armies, would have been shot, or hung, or decapitated. As the greatest leader of that time, he would have had to lay down his life as a warning to all future conspirators. Washington not only ran the risk of the battlefield, but also the risk of the executioner's axe.

George Washington placed his property also in jeopardy. His wife was not only rich in her own right, but Washington himself was considered one of the wealthiest men in all America. I have seen it stated that he was worth at the time of his death over $750,000. That of course was a fabulous fortune in his day. Yet Washington was ready to sacrifice all he owned as well as his peace of mind, and his head, upon the altar of principle, if America could only be free.

Ever True to Principle

When a great crisis comes, are you and I similarly ready to make a sacrifice for principle's sake? When we see might triumph over right, and injustice over justice, are we ready to say, "Here is my life, here is my property, here is the property of my loved ones, I stake everything in the struggle which I wage to make all men free." Have we the same faith in a Divine providence as George Washington had? Are we as true to principle as he, as ready as he to put liberty, property, and life itself in peril for the sake of right? Do we feel it is better to die right than to live wrong?

George Washington was also steadfast, though he had to battle against and overcome the mismanagement of the American statesmen, and the jealousies of his own generals. Some people think that the only battles Washington had to fight were those against the English and the Hessian soldiers. George Washington was not always "first in the hearts of his countrymen," as he was first in war, and first in peace. No sooner was he placed in command, than his enemies at home began to conspire against him. After the capture of Fort Washington by the British, these home enemies tried to wrest the Commander's sword out of George Washington's hand, and give it to Major-General Charles Lee. When Burgoyne surrendered to Horatio Gates, at Saratoga, the "Conway Cabal" tried to supplant the old leader with this new conqueror from the north.

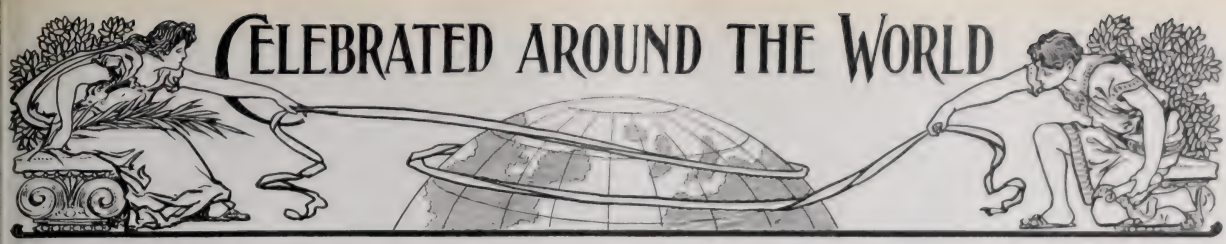
Assailed by Jealous Foes

Not only did Washington have to contend with his jealous army officers, but he had to fight his enemies who were working against his plans in Congress. Instead of giving to him an army recruited from men who had enlisted for two or three years, or for the war, these enemies voted to him an army made up of men who had enlisted for a few months, or a year. No sooner would Washington plan a battle or a campaign, than he would find that a large part of his soldiers discovered that their terms of service had expired, and that they were entitled to pack up their things and go home. "It is impossible for me in the compass of a letter," he wrote to his brother in 1776, "to give you any idea of our situation and of my difficulties, and of the constant perplexities I meet with, derived from the unhappy policy of short enlistments, and delaying them too long. I am worried almost to death with the retrograde motion of things, and I solemnly protest that a pecuniary reward of twenty thousand pounds a year would not induce me to undergo what I do, and after all, perhaps, to lose my character." Yes, yes, some of the mightiest battles George Washington had to wage, were against his enemies at home, and not against his enemies from abroad. So, my brother, if you are ever going to accomplish anything for God, and the world's betterment, you will find that some of the people who ought to help the most are those who will try to undermine you; that the man who should be pushing you ahead, will often be the man who is trying to stab you in the back.

Here, for instance, is a true Gospel minister trying to preach Jesus Christ in the village or the city church. Who is the greatest enemy he has to fight? The saloon-keeper? The proprietor who runs the low playhouse? The infidel who never sets foot inside of a church? Oh, no. The greatest retardment of an average minister's work is not to be found outside but inside the church. It is perhaps the church member who refuses to be reconciled to the minister, because the congregation called him, instead of another man, to the pastorate. What is the greatest obstacle that mother has in the right development of her children? Is it the bad example set by her son's classmates, or her boy's employer? Oh no. It is the bad example set by the boy's own father that does the most effective damage. And so, wherever we go, we find that our greatest struggles must often be waged against those people who ought to help us instead of trying to destroy us. And one of the chief reasons why we honor George Washington's memory to-day, is because he went forth bravely and faithfully to do his work, and did not swerve one inch from the right path, no matter what his enemies at home might do or say.

A Conscientious Statesman

George Washington knew that the duties of peace are of vital importance, and far-reaching in their results. As President-elect, he lifted his hand over the opened Bible, and promised to uphold the Constitution of the United States, with as solemn a consecration and reverence as when he drew his sword as the Commander of the Revolutionary armies. He knew that the work of the pen was just as important as the work of the sword. On his way to inauguration, he made this suggestive entry in his diary. "April 16, 1789: About ten o'clock I bade adieu to Mount Vernon. With a mind oppressed with more anxious and painful sensations than I have words to express, I set out for New York with the best disposition to render service to my country, but with less hope of answering its expectations." As he stood taking a last farewell of his beloved Potomac, and with anxious eyes tried to look into the future, George Washington fully realized that his acts as First President of the United States would make or destroy a nation. And yet some people suppose that the only great work



"The Gospel of Hope and Triumphant Endeavor," on the Organization's 22d Birthday

By JOHN WILLIS BAER, Sec'y World's Union of Christian Endeavor

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD readers have been cheered by the practical co-operation of President Roosevelt, in relieving dire distress in Finland. The Christian Endeavorers of the world, also, while celebrating, during the last few days, their twenty-second birthday, have also been cheered by receiving a personal greeting from President Roosevelt. The President's message was read in connection with many societies during their Christian Endeavor Day celebrations. It was as follows:

JOHN WILLIS BAER

I greet you and wish you well. Your body stands prominent among the organizations which strive toward a realization of interdenominational and international Christian fellowship, as well as among those which stand for ideals of true citizenship; that is, for the cultivation, not alone of a high standard of civic and social righteousness, but of the strength, courage and common sense necessary for living up to such a standard.

Our President can be counted upon to stimulate many kinds of good work, such as relieving famine-stricken Finland, and at the same time to encourage the great host of young people to rally around the principles of the Christian Endeavor movement with increasing zeal. In his last message to Congress, President Roosevelt incorporated this noble sentence: "Ours is a gospel of hope and triumphant endeavor."

I have taken these words for the title of my article, for they fit the spirit of the twenty and more years of Christian Endeavor.

It is several months since I gave up the privilege of official work with the National Christian Endeavor organization, and looking at the movement from my viewpoint, I can say most enthusiastically, that there never was a time when Christian Endeavor was deepening the life of the church, relieving distress, and giving the sweet comfort of the Gospel, more definitely and in the Master's spirit than to-day. The twenty-second birthday was celebrated around the world. The more than sixty-two thousand societies and nearly four million members, figuratively speaking, were marking the organization of the first society by definite hand-to-hand work for Christ, as through the grace given to individual members, they reached out for the souls of those of their own number who had not at that time decided for Christ. Many a pastor and many a church will look back upon the last week with deep gratitude, because of the fact that "Decision Day," as celebrated by the Christian Endeavorers, marking their twenty-second birthday, was also the spiritual birthday of many a young Christian. Many more, that day, were born into the Kingdom than on the day of Pentecost. Christian Endeavor was born in a revival, and the blessed flame of evangelistic work has been its life all these twenty-two years.

In all the splendid history of the remarkable numerical growth, President Clark and his loyal associates have brought well to the front the slogan, "Loyalty to the Church." The thousands of young people for twenty years and more have had this bed-rock principle brought before them in conventions, conferences and meetings, and I want to suggest again, as I have recently, that while we will continue to urge the young people to remember in the future, as in the past, that loyalty to the church is the cardinal principle which gives the movement its claim to permanent life, I want to bring into this twenty-second year of Christian Endeavor another slogan, which I should put before the whole church. It is: "Let the Church be loyal to its young people."

* * *

And I raise my voice to say, that at this time, quite as much as at any time in the history of the movement, self-sacrificing leadership is needed on the part of pastors. All the battles of Christian citizenship and civic righteousness cannot be won except as the pastors guide and conserve the young. Over sixty thousand young men in Christian Endeavor Societies cast their first ballot last year. There will be at least sixty thousand more walking to the voters' booths to deposit their first ballot this year. What a responsibility for them, and what a responsibility for the church!

Then there is to be, in the coming days, a greater evangelistic work than the church has ever known, as young people, and the older ones, too, in their existing organizations, are inspired to do the work of an evangelist. Let the Master's cry be heard, the young people for young people. And if these young people are able to win their associates, much of the inspiration for this service must come through the pastor, and from the leaders in the church. I plead for leadership.

President Clark, with characteristic energy and consecration, has outlined a "forward movement." The young people are accepting the privilege and enlisting for work with enthusiasm. If, however, this "forward movement" is to be the success that God wants it to be, it will largely depend upon the definite leadership given to it by the pastors of the local societies. Again I plead for leadership.

* * *

Notwithstanding, I rejoice more and more in the increased fellowship made possible by Christian Endeavor, whereby Presbyterians, Baptists, Methodists, Congregationalists, and others, in forty and more evangelical denominations, are brought together, shoulder to shoulder, and, notwithstanding, I rejoice that the last year has seen greater growth in Europe and other countries for Christian Endeavor, thus making the movement more than ever a great inter-racial and international peace and arbitration society; yet, beyond all this, I thank God, in this twenty-second year of Christian Endeavor, that there is a spirit in the rank and file that is impatient with anything less than the winning for Christ of those who do not yet know him. As I look back over this week of "Endeavor Day" celebrations, and from my new view point, outside of the official connection with Christian Endeavor, my soul is filled with more hope than ever for the future of the movement, at the same time I tremble when I see, as I do see here and there, indifference to the spirit of Christian Endeavor displayed by some pastors. The apathy, easily discovered in certain quarters, will, in the end, prove disastrous to the cause of Jesus Christ, and upon the shoulders of the pastors and officers of the churches rests to-day, more than it ever did, the responsibility of the success of this great "forward movement" proposed by Christian Endeavor leaders, and into which the young people have thrown themselves with their customary zeal, energy, and consecration. Christian Endeavor, instead of devoting the time of its birthday celebration in recounting past achievements, has marked the day upon its knees, getting inspiration for new service from the Master, whom Christian Endeavor serves. There are to be many hundreds of new societies organized; there are to be many thousands of dollars given; there are to be many battles for Christian citizenship; there are to be many missionaries supported; there are to be many famine-stricken homes in Finland and elsewhere relieved; there are to be many thousand souls won to Christ—because, on Christian Endeavor Day, the young people, celebrating their twenty-second birthday, caught a new spirit of service and a deeper consecration.

* * *

True, here and there—and we must face the truth—we hear discouraging notes; but as compared with the triumphant tones coming up from the larger company, these discordant notes only slightly break into the great harmony which prevails. Some feel that the movement has reached its height: but those of us who are careful students, and who believe in appealing to the heroic in young people, who know that the young people have enlisted for the whole war and not for a skirmish, know full well that the coming days will be fraught with even greater blessing than any one year in the past. Verily, I believe that if there is any church with any kind of a Young People's Society, and that Young People's Society is lagging, that society can be revived by a hearty, earnest, self-sacrificing leadership on the part of the leaders in the church. As the memories of the twenty-second Christian Endeavor birthday are still fresh in the minds of the young, I urge the older people in the churches, and particularly the pastors and church officers, to take up the spirit of my suggestion, namely, "let the church be loyal to the young people." Indeed, again let me remind my readers, that our President has given us a sentence from his last message to Congress, which well expresses the life of Christian Endeavor in its twenty-second year—"Ours is the gospel of hope and triumphant endeavor."

Father Washington — Sermon by Rev. Frank DeWitt Talmage — Continued

George Washington did for his country, was as a soldier, and not as a statesman; as a leader of armies, and not as a leader in the greater work of the initiation and administration of laws.

As George Washington's memory is cherished for what he did as the First President of the United States, so may our memory be honored for the bravest deeds of heroism accomplished by us in times of peace. We may often be able to serve our country and people in the store and the home, as unselfishly and bravely and nobly as if we donned a soldier's uniform and marched to the cannon's mouth. We may be heroes and heroines in civilian's garb. George Washington upholding the financial policy of the Secretary of the Treasury, Alexander Hamilton, just as important to American history as George Washington leading his troops across the Delaware. George Washington in the political councils of State, just as important for American success as George Washington under the famous elm of Cambridge. George Washington lived and died a Christian gentleman. If you knew nothing of the principles of navigation, and should see a ship sail up New York harbor, you might be surprised. You might say to the commander of the ship, "Captain, how was it possible for you to steer your ship through the trackless deep? Miles and miles away is England, and yet you have pointed your ship's prow straight into the narrows of New York Harbor." Then the captain would take you to the box in which trembles the magnetic needle. He would explain to you all the laws of the compass. He would tell you that no matter which way the ship's prow turns, that magnetic needle always points toward the north pole. Then the passage of that ship over the trackless deep can be made to you very simple and plain. When we attempt to explain George Washington's career without the aid of a divine compass, all is inexplicable. I see in him, a great mind and heart, but I see God in that mind and heart, using him to win supernatural triumphs. I see George Washington able to overcome the greatest obstacles of the Revolutionary War. Why? Because I see George Washington on his knees in the snows of Valley Forge. I see George Washington overcoming the besetting difficulties of his Presidential life. Why? Because I see George Washington as soon as he had taken the oath of office, going to the Sacred Chancel. There, as a humble supplicant, he begged the protection of him who was King of kings, and Lord of all. I hear George Washington turn to his old friend, Dr. Craik, and say: "I die hard, but I am not afraid to die." Why? Because the Christ who had been his guide through life, was his comforter in death. Oh, my brothers and sisters, would that we might, one and all, have the same divine reinforcement in life's struggles as George Washington had. Would that we might be able to use the Cross as a magnetic compass to guide us over the troubled sea of time, into the smooth, unruffled sea of Eternity.

Thus, we draw near to the close of the earthly career of this greatest of all Americans. His life, and death, in one sense, shall in all probability be just the same as our life and death. He longed—earnestly and intensely longed for the time when he could return to the beautiful fields of his dearly-beloved Mount Vernon. When that delightful day at last seemed near, he wrote those happy words: "I have retired from all public employments, and shall tread the paths of private satisfaction. Envious of none, I am determined to be pleased with all, and this, my dear friend, being the order of my march, I will move gently down the stream of life until I sleep with my fathers." But alas, alas, less than three years after George Washington returned to his beautiful Mount Vernon, there was heard a rustle in the air. The Death Angel flew down and knocked at his door, and within a few hours he was gone. So with our lives. We may look forward to a happy and glorious earthly twilight; but in all probability, life for all of us means continued work to the close. It will mean hard work clear up to the end. Then when our work is done, whether well or poorly done, God will call us and we must go. We shall go in all probability as George Washington went: quickly, unexpectedly, without hardly a warning.

May we one and all live as he lived. Be able to die as he died. Live in the hearts of those with whom we have come in contact. Live as Washington has been a blessed "father of many nations."

MRS. TYLER AS A YOUNG WIFE
From an Early Portrait

THE OLD "WHITE HOUSE"

MRS. SEMPLE
While Mistress of the White House

MISS MARY TYLER
Pres. Tyler's Second Daughter

THE LIFE STORY OF A PRESIDENT'S FAMILY

PERHAPS no President of the United States ever had a more eventful career than did the tenth incumbent of that high office, John Tyler, of Virginia. Mr. Tyler was of distinguished lineage; his mother was an Armistead, and through her, as well as through his father, he was connected with many of the notable families of the Old Dominion. He was born at the ancestral homestead in Greenway, Charles City County, Virginia, on the 29th of March, 1790, and was given the education and advantages of an aristocratic Virginian gentleman's son of that day. In 1807, he was graduated from William and Mary College, the alma mater of such men as Thomas Jefferson, James Monroe, Peyton Randolph, and others whose names have long been famous in American history.

Before leaving college, young Tyler had met the beautiful Letitia Christian, the daughter of a wealthy planter, Colonel Robert Christian. She is said to have greatly resembled the Empress Josephine. Mr. Tyler fell desperately in love with her, but his courtship was of a most austere description. They were almost of an age, and were engaged for over four years, yet during that entire time he seldom saw her alone, and long after their marriage he told a friend that he never mustered up courage to even kiss her hand until three weeks before their wedding! They were married on his twenty-third birthday, and for thirty-one years their life was an ideally happy one, despite the political troubles in which he was continually embroiled.

By this marriage, President Tyler had four daughters and three sons. The eldest son, Robert, was his father's secretary during the first year of his administration, but at that time the secretaryship was an unofficial, unsalaried post, and his son left it to go to Philadelphia, where, in 1843, he became Prothonotary of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. At the outbreak of the Civil War he went to Richmond, where he was appointed Register of the Treasury. He died at Montgomery, Alabama, in 1877. The other sons were, John Tyler, Jr., who died in Washington three years ago, and Tazwell Tyler, who was an army surgeon, and who died in California while on duty there. Mrs. Tyler's health was very frail when she went with her husband into the White House, and during the year that Robert acted as his father's secretary, his wife assumed the duties of hostess for her. The daughters of the family, Letitia, Mary, Alice and Elizabeth, spent the greater part of their time with their parents at the White House, and Elizabeth was married there in January, 1842, a few months before her mother's death. Her wedding, which was solemnized in the East Room, was one of the most brilliant affairs that the young capital had ever seen. Upon her mother's death, in September, of the same year, Letitia, the eldest daughter (who was the wife of Captain Semple, a navy officer), became the Mistress of the Executive Mansion, and remained so until her father's second marriage, two years later. During these two years, Mrs. Semple admirably filled the unusually trying position of "first lady."

MRS. SEMPLE (as she now is)

"It seemed as though the events of a lifetime were crowded into those four years we spent in the President's House," said Mrs. Semple recently, in talking over those events. "Joy and sorrow followed each other in quick succession. Mother was never very strong, and she failed rapidly after we went there, but she always retained an active interest in everything, although she turned over many of her official duties to Robert's wife. She planned Elizabeth's magnificent wedding, but it all seemed a hollow mockery when, within a few months, we laid her a corpse in the same stately room where the ceremony had been performed. Then I succeeded her as hostess, and next winter, sister Mary's youngest child, Robert Tyler Jones, who, twenty years later, carried the Confederate flag up the heights at Gettysburg, was born in the historic mansion. A birth, a wedding, a death, within such a little time!

PRESIDENT TYLER AND MRS. TYLER (nee Julia Gardiner)

"The duties of the Mistress of the White House have always been onerous, but they were not as heavy when I was there as they are now. She did not have to assume so many official cares then. Twice every week, my father dined and entertained the different members of Congress, but the only official dinings where the wives were invited were the Cabinet and the Diplomatic banquets. The house was always more or less full of visitors. While I was its mistress, the Prince de Joinville of France came as the guest of the nation, and was entertained at the President's House.

"The incidents surrounding the accident on the ill-fated Princeton come back to me as vividly as though it were but yesterday when they happened," continued Mrs. Semple"; "I remember how enthusiastic Captain Stockton was in inviting us to go on the excursion to see the new gun, 'Peacemaker,' tested. I had arranged to go to our home in Virginia on the morning of the excursion, and as our carriages and horses were engaged for the entire trip, I did not feel that I could change my plans. Captain Stockton was having tea with us, and, turning to my father, said:

"'Mr. President, can't you compel this young lady to alter her arrangements and go with us down the river?'

"How well I recall my father's laugh as he replied, 'I can veto bank bills but I cannot veto a young lady's will.' How little we all dreamed then of the horrible tragedy of the next day!

"I left early in the morning, and when we reached home that evening we were mystified by the booming of the cannon in Richmond, nor did we know for two days what the ominous sounds announced. As you know, the party, including the President's household, Mr. Gardiner and his two daughters, beside the members of the Cabinet, went down the river, and on the return trip, the test of the gun which wrought the fearful havoc took place. It was only a merciful intervention of Providence that my father was not killed. The party was in the salon lunching, when Captain Stockton came down and begged them to go on deck to see the final test. Several of the Cabinet members left, and my father turned to go also, when pretty Mary Wycliffe, the daughter of the Postmaster-General, who was so soon to be fatherless, called out, 'Oh, wait! Mr. President, wait! I have a toast I want to give.'

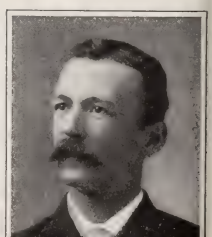
"The President good-naturedly signalled the others to go on without him and turned back to the table. When order was restored, the girl gave the toast: 'The flag, the flag of our country! The only thing that is American that bears a stripe!' A shout of laughter greeted this sally, but it was drowned in the awful roar on deck, and the scene was soon turned into one of mourning."

As will be readily recalled, Mr. Gardiner was among the victims of the tragedy, and his body, with those of the fallen Cabinet ministers, was taken to the White House, where the funeral services were subsequently held. Miss Gardiner and her sister were prostrated with grief and remained at the mansion for some weeks.

It was during this time that President Tyler began the suit for the hand of the elder sister, Miss Julia. It was a short courtship, and on the 26th day of June, they were married at the Church of the Ascension in New York City The youth and beauty of the bride caused much favorable comment. She was more than thirty years the junior of her distinguished husband.

The President's daughters returned to their homes in Virginia, and, during the remaining eight months of Mr. Tyler's administration, the young bride made a most popular mistress. After Mr. Tyler's death, in 1863, Mrs. Tyler applied to Congress for a pension, which she received. This was the first pension ever granted a President's widow. Her death occurred at Richmond, in 1889.

Mrs. Semple, who, as its mistress, graced the White House with so much dignity, is still living. Years ago, she lost her husband and children, and later, her fortune also. Bereft and alone, she availed herself of the shelter of the gentle charity of the Louise Home at Washington, where she is now spending her declining years. ABBEY G. BAKER.



PROF. LYON G. TYLER

VIEW OF MUONIO, IN THE FAMINE DISTRICT OF FINLAND

FROM PAINTING BY S. TOYRA, A NATIVE ARTIST, IN JUNE LAST, WHEN NEARLY ALL VEGETATION HAD FAILED

THE FAMINE IN THE NORTHLAND

Energetic Relief Work by the Helsingfors' Committee --- Sympathetic Gifts Still Pouring in

IT will be pleasant news for those who have sympathized with the famine sufferers in Finland and Sweden, to learn that the most energetic measures are now under way for their relief. From the Central Committee at Helsingfors, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD has received the assurance that all the machinery of the government is being employed to aid the sufferers. Liberal grants have been made for the undertaking of public works, and large sums have been appropriated for direct relief. In addition to the Central Committee at Helsingfors, Provincial Relief Committees have been formed in the distressed provinces, and these, together with the local committees in the various parishes, are working hand-in-hand with each other. The Central Committee has made it a leading principle to give relief as a reward for work done, except in the case of the aged, the sick, and women and children. Children's homes have been established in the distressed parishes, and cook-houses have been opened where the school children are fed. By these and similar means it is hoped to avoid the most serious consequences. The Committee highly appreciates the sympathy it has received from the United States.

DR. C. J. SORSEN

From Pastor J. D. Kilburn, of the Anglo-American Church in St. Petersburg, we have received a letter written during his tour of the Finnish famine field, in which he writes:

KAJANA, January 23

It is deeply sad to see the number of poor and really deserving people who come daily to Pastor Wayrynen seeking help. Yesterday evening a nice looking, neat man was here, who lives in the woods, more than twenty miles away. He has never had to seek help before, but now all he has had is gone, and all he can earn, working as hard as he can, is nine pence per day. You can think how utterly insufficient this is for himself, wife, and five children, when I mention the fact that we are paying at the rate of three and-a-half pence per day for feeding every child we are keeping in the schools.

This morning a respectable-looking peasant came in from Kuhmoniemi, more than sixty miles. He had had a little work, but had got next to nothing for it. He and his son and horse had worked hard seven days, and had only earned m. 24, or less than £1. If he did not get help, he was in danger of losing his farm and everything. He has a wife and seven children. It seems to me that the need will be so great here that it is almost hopeless to try and help all.

Those who live in the famine districts say that if free help is not to be given to the sick and aged, then it will be impossible to keep them alive. Some go further, and say that the earnings of nearly all will be too small to keep them alive amid the terrible need and the famine prices all around. This I can well understand, and in this opinion I fully agree.

The Nuzi Suometar, the leading Finnish paper, has just arrived, containing Dr. Rilander's official statement of his visit to this and the adjoining parish. I am glad to see it. I fear that, from interested motives, many have been trying to make it appear that the need was not so great, and that the people were idle and did not want to work. In this way they could force them to work for a mere trifle, and sell their woods and farms for almost nothing.

Dr. Rilander says: "The need grows greater and greater. Even those who have been in good circumstances are anxiously asking, 'How shall we get through?' They have sold their goods, and almost everything they have, only to get food. They cry out for work, but get no reply. I have traveled round, and seen how great is the need. I have been in many houses, and have met people who are half dead. I have seen many who have had no bread for several days, only a little milk. It is going beyond bounds; they must have free gifts. If they do not get free gifts, they will die. The farmers cannot give work. They are in want themselves. Bread gets dearer and dearer; and the wages for men and horses working for the wood companies get less and less, so that when men and horses are fed, nothing remains for the family at home. One cannot doubt longer and cannot hesitate longer. One must do quickly what can be done."

I hope that your readers will pray for all those whom they are seeking, by their gifts, to help. The poor people have to work so hard and live so far away from any church, and have so few good books, and so few advantages of any kind, that we can deeply sympathize with them in their deep spiritual poverty, and can wonder that so many of them are such true and earnest Christians. The more I learn of their sad and trying circumstances the more I wonder that they are spiritually and morally and intellectually what they are.

J. D. KILBURN.

One of the most energetic workers in this country for the Finnish famine sufferers is Dr. C. J. Sorsen, President of the Finnish Central Relief Committee for the Western States. Dr. Sorsen, who was in New York a few days ago, visited the offices of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. He said:

"During the last two weeks I have been working in the cities of New York, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Minneapolis in behalf of my unfortunate brothers and sisters in the northern part of Finland, and it is with joy that I have observed that the great American heart has been in sympathy with those unfortunates, whose only means of subsistence has been wiped out by the cold, continued rains and floods of last summer.

"The prayers of the Finnish Americans have been heard by the benevolent public through the press. Especially has our cause been advocated by THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, whose editor, Dr. Klopsch, has made the sad condition of Northern Finland so widely known through his paper, that quick relief has been sent to these people, amounting already to over $25,000. May God bless the noble work done by THE CHRISTIAN HERALD to this stricken people; and may God bless all who have helped us to aid our brothers and sisters, mothers and fathers, during this terrible crisis."

In an article contributed to Skandinaven, Dr. Sorsen recalls the horrors of the famine of 1867, when 100,000 perished. Unless adequate help is quickly sent, that grim tragedy will be re-enacted. As a result of trying to sustain life on the repulsive "famine bread," thousands in the district of Kajana are already sick with typhoid and dysentery. Dr. Rilander, of Uleaborg, has organized the relief work in that district, and has installed physicians and nurses to care for the sick. One hundred and thirty-four parishes are famine-stricken, and the existence of 400,000 persons is wholly dependent upon charity. Every official in Finland is regularly contributing a portion of his salary for the benefit of his starving kinsmen. Up to the present time, all the relief afforded, both from native and foreign sources, has proved inadequate.

From the Port of Hango according to official report 26 000 people left for America before November, 1902. From other ports, through Sweden and Norway, far greater numbers have left the country. Since the freezing of the Gulf of Finland, thousands of young men have crossed to Sweden on skis and skates, to escape service at home. This migration of those who are able to work, makes the situation still worse.

Dr. Sorsen estimates that $2 per month will keep a Finn from starvation. The sufferers will have to be carried through till the next harvest.

In these districts, where the famine now prevails, and where, in thousands of homes at this moment, children emaciated from hunger, are crying for bread, which their mothers are unable to give—I mean in Kianta, Knusamo, Suomussalmi, Kolari, Kittila, Sodankyla, etc., etc.—there, as far as Finnish history knows, the farmer has never been able to lay aside any part of the year's harvest for the next year. Indeed, every year the peasants of these districts depend upon the forest products for a part of the annual crop used for sustenance.

A very vivid and realistic picture of the condition in the deep forests is presented by the fact that thousands of young lynxes and rabbits died last summer for lack of food in the forest. Flowers of the wild berries were nipped in the bud. The ptarmigan has disappeared entirely. Wolves and even the northern fox, which so carefully avoid human dwellings, have been forced to seek food among farmhouses because of the impoverished condition of the forests.

Here are two sample cases quoted by Dr. Sorsen:

Rev. Heikkell, from Kolari, district of Uleaborg, writes as follows:

I can assure you, in the name of God, that quick relief is enormously necessary. Need and misery are very acute. Committee of investigation has just been back from Kuttakko, and they are shocked at the almost misery of those people. Committee reports on the condition of fourteen families visited, not one of these families had any food or clothing, but sickness prevailed in every house. There were a few men able to work, but no one had any means of hiring help.

From Pallasto, Erick Kalgren writes:

It is heartrending to see the pale emaciated children wabbling to school. We have tried to provide a bowl of bean soup and a slice of bread twice daily to each one. In the name of God, try to extend your helping hand.

"From nearly a hundred other places," Dr. Sorsen writes, "equally shocking news has been received. Thousands of families are reduced to eating bark-bread or roots." He declares that the stricken people of Finland are "in every way worthy of the assistance of the great, free, and generous hearted people of America." They are deeply grateful for the help already received.

FROM PAINTING BY JOHN STALL

WELL-TO-DO FINNISH FARM HOME IN KALAJAKI

In many parts of the United States, natives of Sweden, through the Swedish churches and other organizations, are taking active steps for the relief of their fellow-countrymen at home. It is probable that a very substantial relief fund will be raised. A Royal Commission has been appointed to conduct the work in Sweden, which is under the direction of Karl G. Bergstrom, Governor of Norbotten Province, where the famine is most severe. At last reports, some 100,000 men, women, and children were dependent upon the Commission for food, all their means being exhausted.

Address all Famine Fund contributions for Finland or Sweden to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, 92 Bible House, New York City.

Contributions To The Christian Herald Finland Famine Fund

RECEIVED PRIOR TO FEBRUARY 1, 1903

Connecticut

A—, A. R. 2 50
Allen, M. 1 00
Bantiness, M. C. F. 1 00
Bassford, J. M. 1 00
Bedford, Walter 1 00
Bissell, Thomas 2 00
Bissell, Thomas 2 00
Bissell, Thomas 2 00
Bissell, Miss Mary 2 00
Bissell, Miss Mary 2 00
Bissell, Miss Mary

A HOME IN THE CORDILLERA MOUNTAINS, S. A.

TEKANIKA, THE MOST SOUTHERLY MISSION IN SOUTH AMERICA

A TOUR

AMONG THE BARBARIAN YAHGANS

By EMILIO OLSSON

I HAVE now safely reached my home in Adroque, Buenos Ayres, after my long Bible tour in the far South to Patagonia, and Tierra del Fuego or "Fireland." During 105 days I have traveled about 4,000 miles and disposed of over six boxes of American made Bibles, Testaments and Gospels, mostly in Spanish. My first visit to Fireland has been full of interest; it has afforded me valuable information on the subject of Missions among the Indian tribes dwelling in that far-away land near wild Cape Horn.

Tierra del Fuego is an archipelago adjoining the Southern extremity of the great Western hemisphere South between Lat. 50 deg. to 56 deg. There are four principal Islands—Onisin, Southland, Yhoste and Navarin Islands, besides the land of Desolation, with many other small islands.

We find three distinct tribes of Indians in Tierra del Fuego, speaking different languages. The entire number of Indians some thirty years ago exceeded 10,000, but at the present time there are hardly more than from 2,000 to 3,000 remaining.

The habits of the Indians have not altered much in one hundred years, except where they have been under the direct influence of the missionaries.

Their food mainly consists of fungus food, seals or shellfish and otters. The Indians on the coast are well supplied with seals-skins and otter. The natives also use the skins of the guanaco (or South American camel), but of a coarse kind, not like those fine skins used by the Patagonians.

The canoe is a real treasure to the Indian, for by it he travels to and fro, hunting for food from island to island.

The canoes are under the charge of the women, who paddle them from place to place, in order to fish or gather shellfish. When the canoe arrives at its destination, it is the husband and children who first land and enter the wigwam, while the woman makes fast the canoe; she then jumps overboard and swims for the shore. In Fireland the women can swim, but the men, never. If the journey is continued the next morning, the woman of the party swims off to the canoe, gets into it, and paddles it ashore, while the rest of the family collect their property at the landing place. The property generally consists of a basket used for gathering fungus and shellfish, of skins, of a wing bone of the albatross, which is used for drinking purposes, of different kinds of spears, of whalebone nooses, which they employ to catch birds, of some bladders filled with oil or fat, which they use to grease their bodies with, and use also as sauce with berries.

In their skin bags the Indians carry different kinds of colored clays, with which they at times bedaub their heads.

The women must do a good deal of work. They not only clean and paddle the canoes, but they kindle the fires and cook for their husbands. The men, on their part, make the canoes and the spears and do the hunting for supplies. The Indians in Tierra del Fuego, like those in the great interior of the continent, are very fond of their dogs. I remember reading of a voyager who inquired of a boy belonging to one of the savage tribes of Tierra del Fuego, why the Indians, in time of famine, secretly killed and ate their old women, when there were dogs they could eat instead. The boy answered in his smattering English, "Dogs catch otter; old women, no."

The Yahgans generally practice polygamy. The marriage of two or three sisters by the same man is a common practice. Sons-in-law are expected, either by gifts or work, to purchase their wives. There are few single women.

As soon as a man dies, his wives are married to others. The education and discipline of children are almost neglected, and they are allowed to grow up wild. But when lads are about thirteen years old, they are subject to hard discipline and a sort of teaching.

The instruction given is something like this:

"You must not kill people, or you yourself will soon be killed."

"You must not take another man's wife."

"You must share the treasures you find."

"You must not be idle."

For several years the youths are to abstain from certain kinds of fish and parts of whales, and even fasting is prescribed for the lads.

The wigwam, called "keena," is set apart for superstitious ceremonies. Here the lads are kept at work to gather much fuel to keep the "keena" fire going. No women enter, or even go near to the "keena." At times the boys are made to lie with their faces to the ground, when an evil monster, called "Liacakeepa," is said to be coming out of the sea. The poor boys are very much frightened; they dare not turn their heads to look at this cruel being. At last, "Liacakeepa" goes away, and the boys are allowed to sit up again. Young children are frequently buried alive. The dead are generally burnt, and their fellows seek to forget their names, although incantation and mourning for the dead is long continued among them.

Geographically, the Fireland is hilly and mountainous, with snow-clad peaks. The land is thickly covered with forest and abundance of evergreen and deciduous trees. There is a variety of birds, and fish is very plentiful. Guanaco is also found in various parts of Tierra del Fuego, and another animal as large as a sheep, which the Indians call "saapoim." Otter and seals are plentiful on the coast. The shores are very steep in parts. There are no rivers worthy of the name. Lakes are numerous, but few contain fish.

July is the winter season in Tierra del Fuego, and January the summer. The summers are usually cool and the winters not too rigorous. The skies are constantly overcast, fogs, mists, rains, snows and high winds prevail throughout the year, and render the Archipelago one of the dreariest places on the globe.

UNCIVILIZED INDIANS OF TIERRA DEL FUEGO, IN THEIR NATIVE DRESS OF SKINS

INTERIOR OF A NATIVE HUT IN SOUTH AMERICA

CIVILIZED INDIANS OF TIERRA DEL FUEGO IN MODERN COSTUMES

OUR EDITORIAL FORUM

B. J. FERNIE, ASSOCIATE EDITOR — LOUIS KLOPSCH, Editor and Proprietor — G. H. SANDISON, ASSOCIATE EDITOR

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD is published weekly. Subscription price, $1.50 a year, in advance.

Remittances should always be made in the safest manner available in the locality. Register cash remittances.

Foreign Postage.—For each copy to be mailed outside the U. S., Canada, and Mexico, add one dollar a year.

Change of Date.—It takes at least two weeks to change the date, after your subscription is renewed.

Expiration of Subscriptions.—The date on the wrapper indicates when your subscription ends.

Change of Address.—Give both your old and your new address when you ask us to change your address.

Subscriptions may commence with any issue.

Letters should be addressed, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, Bible House, New York.

Entered at the Post-office, New York, as Second-class Matter

Idols from America

HOW far will our merchants and manufacturers go in developing American trade? A press dispatch from Tacoma, Wash., announces the arrival there of a Korean merchant, who comes to purchase idols for the worship of his people. He explains that a few years ago, an American firm sent a few idols as a gift to one of the sacred Orders in Korea, and they were so much admired, that the enterprising firm he represents wishes to place contracts for a further supply. He is, therefore, on his way to New York and Philadelphia to arrange terms of purchase.

That such a contract can be made in those, or other cities, there is, unhappily, no reason to doubt. Merchants who send rum and other intoxicating liquors to heathen lands, are little likely to have any compunction of conscience about sending idols. When the greed of money takes full possession of a man's soul, he is ready to supply almost any demand that has the promise of profit in it. Yet what a horrible situation it is, that the men who are pandering to the degradation of their countrymen, should be able to obtain the means of doing so from a civilized, not to say a Christian, country! It would be interesting to learn what account they give of the origin of these idols. The image that the Ephesians worshiped was said to have fallen from Jupiter, and similar supernatural origins are assigned for other objects of worship; but what will be the account given of these American idols? Will they say that they are the gods that are worshiped in the great nation beyond the sea? How it will puzzle the people who have listened to the Christian missionaries whom America has sent to Korea, to reconcile such a statement with the Christian message! It will be embarrassing to the missionaries, too, to have the idolatrous worship they are laboring so hard to destroy galvanized into new life by such importations. For the credit of our country, we could wish that the origin of the images might be kept a secret, for it is a disgrace that we should have among us men who would aid in perpetuating the superstition and degradation of a simple people. We can but wonder whether conscience and principle are not dead in men who, in this age of the world, can make images to be worshiped; and so the Psalmist have been right when he compared the idols to the idol-makers: "They that make them, are like unto them."

A National Danger

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT is known as a man who has the courage of his opinions. He has a habit of free expression on topics of vital interest, that is in sharp contrast with the conservatism which usually characterizes utterances from one occupying so high a position. In a letter written to an American authoress, Mrs. John Van Vorst, he has this to say concerning the latest evolution of womanly independence, and the desire of a large proportion of the sex to avoid marriage and to rely for maintenance upon the fruits of their own individual labor:

> An easy, good-natured kindliness and a desire to be "independent"—that is, to live one's life purely according to one's own desires—are in no sense substitutes for the fundamental virtues, for the practice of the strong racial qualities, without which there can be no strong races—the qualities of courage and resolution in both men and women, of scorn of what is mean, base and selfish, of eager desire to work or fight or suffer, as the case may be, provided the end to be gained is great enough, and the contemptuous putting aside of mere ease, mere vapid pleasure, mere avoidance of toil and worry.
>
> I do not know whether I most pity or most despise the foolish and selfish man or woman who does not understand that the only things really worth having in life, are those the acquirement of which normally means cost and effort. If a man or woman, through no fault of his or hers, goes through life denied those highest of all joys, which spring only from home life, from the having and bringing up of many healthy children, I feel for them deep and respectful sympathy—the sympathy one extends to the gallant fellow killed at the beginning of a campaign, or the man who toils hard and is brought to ruin by the fault of others. But the man or woman who deliberately avoids marriage, and has a heart so cold as to know no passion, and a brain so shallow and selfish as to dislike having children, is in effect a criminal against the race, and should be an object of contemptuous abhorrence by all healthy people.
>
> Of course no one quality makes a good citizen, and no one quality will save a nation. But there are certain great qualities for the lack of which no amount of intellectual brilliancy, or of material prosperity, or of easiness of life can atone, and which show decadence and corruption in the nation just as much as if they are produced by selfishness and coldness and ease-loving laziness among comparatively poor people, as if they are produced by vicious or frivolous luxury in the rich.

No stronger sermon than this has ever been penned against the selfish indulgence of the rich, many of whom live for their own individual pleasure, finding their chief occupation in "killing time" and indulging foolish vanity, instead of bravely bearing their proper share of the burdens of life. Indulgence in this shallow, purposeless, and unnatural method of living has smitten more than one modern nation with moral and physical leprosy, and has marked it for decay.

In these sturdy words—written in the full knowledge of the fact that our native population is decreasing, and that the only increase is that which is represented by immigration—Mr. Roosevelt sounds a note of salutary warning that should be echoed far and wide. It is for the good of the nation that he should be clearly understood. No mistaken delicacy should blind us to the importance of a question which is so vital to the moral and material welfare of the nation. When honorable marriage falls into disrepute in any country, that land becomes an object of pity, and ultimately brings upon itself both divine and human condemnation.

Sabbath Observance

DURING the present month, two events have occurred which have a significant interest for all who are striving for the preservation of the Christian Sabbath. These two events form a remarkable contrast.

In the first instance: Congress having much urgent and unfinished work on hand, the Lower House extended its session into Sunday, Feb. 8, and transacted some current business. On the following day, Feb. 9, an outspoken member arose in his seat, and quickly convinced the House that its Sunday work was reprehensible, and, to say the least, of doubtful legality; and the House promptly responded, rescinding all legislative action that had been taken during the hours of its session on the Lord's Day.

The second instance occurred in New York, where, under the new police regime, instructions had been issued to the captains of precincts to enforce the laws against gambling, dives, disorderly houses, evaders of liquor tax, suspicious places and Sunday violation. In a downtown east-side district, the captain had closed a number of workshops where Hebrews were employed, and for this act he was disciplined, the Mayor and Chief of Police interpreting the Penal Code to mean that those who "keep another day of the week as holy time and do not labor on that day" may do as they please about working on the Christian Sabbath.

Mayor Hewitt, years ago, interpreted the Sunday law of New York State as permitting work on that day by those who observed a different day as "holy time." The laws of the land prescribe the observance of the Christian Sabbath, outwardly at least. Foreign religionists who come here are expected to obey the law, as far as refraining from open traffic and trading are concerned; but if they duly observe a different Sabbath from ours, the law, in most cases, does not prohibit them from working on the Christian Sabbath. There are, however, among the Hebrews and other religionists a very considerable number who are gradually coming into line in the observance of our Sabbath as a day of rest. If Christian communities in the large American cities purged themselves of those evils that are specifically condemned by law, and which are demoralizing the young by making the Sabbath a day of revelry and dissipation, foreign religionists who come here would have more respect for our "holy day," and might reasonably be expected in time to adopt it as their own.

FROM FIELDS OF CHRISTIAN LABOR

India Missionaries Grateful

Extract from a letter by Rev. R. A. Hume, of Ahmednagar.

AHMEDNAGAR, January 8, 1903.

Editor Christian Herald:

MY DEAR DR. KLOPSCH:—Once more I want to express to you and to all those who, through you and THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, help to support famine children in our Mission, that you have to the last penny most promptly and most honorably fulfilled every engagement, and more.

Without the help of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, some of the most important and most helpful work of American missionaries in India would have fallen through, and we should not have reaped the legitimate fruit of long and difficult famine relief work, because we could not have continued to care for the army of famine children which Providence placed in our care; whereas, till now, we have been able to care for most of them.

Forty famine girls in my wife's and my care have joined the church. All these girls have done wonderfully well, physically, mentally and spiritually. Four famine boys in my brother's orphanage in Bombay were sent, at Government expense, to help in decorating the Delhi Durbar! Think of it! Wealthy people in high position could not go to that Durbar. But famine children had been so wisely trained to do decorating work that some of these children—who, but for such training and but for such support as THE CHRISTIAN HERALD has given, would have died, or been wandering ignorant beggars—were sent, at Government expense, to help in the most wonderful decorations that even gorgeous India ever saw. And, best of all, they are becoming good Christians. Well may you and THE CHRISTIAN HERALD donors rejoice and feel rewarded. R. A. HUME.

Wyoming Finns Take Action

ROCK SPRINGS, WYOMING.

At a meeting of the Finn Temperance Society (members numbering about 150) resolutions were passed thanking you for the good work you are doing and have already done, in behalf of the poor downtrodden people of Finland. With tears in their eyes, millions of Finnish people will thank you and the great American nation for the help you have given them, and they will pray that God will ever bless and protect this great American nation.

We Finlanders in America have already subscribed and sent several thousand dollars to Finland, but the greater part of us belong to the working class, and we have not been able to make such great strides as you have.

The Finnish people, and the Finnish nation, have been under a remarkable test of late years. Within the last few years God has punished the people of Finland by the failure of crops, and consequently poor times, but the Finns are used to this; thanking God, they take both good and bad times. If the frost takes the bread from them, they go to the tree, take the bark, grind it fine, mix it with a little flour. So they have done before, so they will do again.

The Finlanders of this place have already sent sums of money to Finland to help relieve the distress, and we have a big fair the 21st of February, the proceeds of this fair will be sent to relieve the distress of our countrymen across the sea.

FINN TEMPERANCE SOCIETY,
WALON LAHDE.

A. W. Havela, president; Matt Lahti, secretary; J. A. Kiviaho, past president.

The Swedes Grateful for Help

SWEDISH LUTHERAN GUSTAVUS ADOLPHUS CHURCH,
NEW YORK CITY, February 11, 1903.

Editor "The Christian Herald":

Allow me to thank you most cordially for your courtesy and the very kind response in sending so soon to the Relief Committee at Stockholm, Sweden, the amount of $5,000. I hope the good work now going on will increase the donations, both to Finland and Sweden. I will continually take great interest in your noble undertaking for those two sisterlands, which have been united in the past, for more than six hundred years, and whose sons have fought many bloody battles for the cause of Protestantism, even under the command of their mutual king, Gustavus Adolphus, who fell, victorious, on the battlefield of Lutzen.

May the whole Protestant world to-day, when the sons and daughters of those heroes of the past are suffering from famine and pestilence, come to their rescue!

(REV.) MAURITZ STOLPE.

The Negro and the Gospel

(See picture on first page)

It is a part of the missionary's work in perhaps every American city to carry God's message of hope and consolation to such aged saints of the African race as are seen in our first page picture.

Following their children who journeyed away from the old cabin in the Southland, many old negroes have found new homes in their declining years in the West and North; and in their lowly abodes, Christian workers seek them out and serve them in gentle ministry. So, this picture will appeal to kindly friends on both sides of Mason's and Dixon's line, who have sat and read the precious Word of God to such as these. They know without the telling, how eagerly and believingly these gray-headed saints with the ebony faces listen as the blessed promises fall upon their ears.

Few deserve more fully the comfort of these promises than the venerable negroes to whom the Master's words, "And whosoever of you will be the chiefest, shall be servant of all," often most fitly apply. Many little white children, as well as black, have learned sacred truths at their knees. No race is of more deeply religious temperament than the negro. They are seeking of themselves religious enlightenment and progression, and their white brethren should lend them every aid.

THE BIBLE and the NEWSPAPER

A Marine Disaster

ON this page are reproductions of photographs which have a sad interest for many people in this country. They show the funeral and the memorial services held on board the United States warship Massachusetts, for the victims of the recent disaster off Porto Rico. It will be remembered that while the Massachusetts was at Culebra, engaged in target practice, an explosion occurred, causing the death of nine men. The details now received show that the fatality was due to the accidental ignition of eighty pounds of brown powder, which was in one of the turrets of the vessel. Powder of this kind explodes with enormous energy when it is in a confined space like the barrel of a gun; but when it is in a larger space like the interior of a turret, burns with sudden and intense heat, and gives out suffocating gases. Not one of the nine men in the turret when the powder caught fire had time to make his escape. All were fatally burned, and five of them died within a few hours, and the other four lingered only a few days. Chaplain Wright was constant in attendance on the injured men as long as they lived, and a Roman Catholic priest visited two of them, who were Catholics. All realized that there was no hope of their recovery, and listened intently to the chaplain as he pointed them to Christ as the Saviour able to save to the uttermost. The bodies were temporarily buried in the cemetery at Santurce, but will be brought home on a Government ship at an early opportunity. The funeral service was commenced on board the Massachusetts, and concluded in the cemetery, and on Sunday, January 25, a solemn memorial service was held by order of the admiral on four vessels simultaneously. The disaster threw a gloom over the whole fleet. In time of war, the sudden death of nine men would have made little impression, but that they should have been hurried into eternity by such a catastrophe in time of peace, was shocking. Well would it be if the calamity led their comrades to heed the advice that they and so many other men are disposed to neglect.

Be ye also ready, for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh (Matt. 24: 44).

MEMORIAL SERVICE ON BOARD THE "MASSACHUSETTS"

BURIAL IN PORTO RICO OF THE VICTIMS OF THE DISASTER ON THE "MASSACHUSETTS"

The Speaking Violin

In a court of justice a number of violins were lying on the table. The ownership of one of them was in question. It did not differ in appearance from the others, but one of the witnesses, an old man, declared he would know it among a thousand. "I would know it," he said, "even if I were blind." "How?" asked the astonished judge. "By its voice," replied the old man. "It would speak to me as no other violin can speak. It is speaking to me now." And, listening, he bent low until his ear almost touched the instrument. Then he grasped another that lay beside it, and with his right hand swung the bow across the strings. A low, deep, throbbing, pulsing note broke the stillness of the court-room. When it ceased, with hand uplifted and with bow pointing to the table where the other instruments still lay, the old player waited expectantly. Across the room, faint yet clearly audible, came the same sweet, low, throbbing note, yet far richer, sweeter and purer, as though some celestial master-player had swept the strings. "That," said the old man, "was the voice of the violin. It has a soul and it has speech. But a false note, rude sounds, or mere discords will not open its lips. So whenever I strike a true note, if the old violin be in the room or near at hand, it will always answer." There are among us some with rare, hidden qualities, that do not appear on the surface. From them comes to the listening ear words like the music of the spheres. It is their delicately attuned souls responding to the voice of the Infinite.

The Lord hath given me the tongue of them that are taught: he wakeneth morning by morning, he wakeneth my ear to hear (Isa. 50: 4).

Death Discloses Romance

A strange story is told of a man who died last week in New York. He had been in business as a coal-dealer, and had accumulated a small fortune; but since the death of his wife a year ago, he had become melancholy and had lost all his customers. When his death was discovered, some days after it occurred, the only man with whom he had been intimate, told the secret of his life. He said that when the Franco-German war broke out the dead man was a student of chemistry at Gottingen. He was ordered to join the army, but was strongly averse to doing so. He had a needy friend who liked military life, and with him he made arrangements, for a stipulated sum of money, to join the army in his place. Both men quitted Gottingen, the wife of the substitute being provided with the funds for her support, by the man whose place he took. The substitute was killed in the first battle of the war. The other man immediately sailed for New York, assuming the name of his substitute and eventually marrying his wife. So closely was the secret kept, that even his nearest relatives had no idea that he was alive, but believed he had died in the war. In marrying his substitute's wife and taking his name, he evidently sought to make up, as far as he could, for the death that had been incurred in his place. This is the principle that the Christian is expected to follow. His life ought to be patterned on the life of Christ, who died in his stead.

He died for all that they who live, should not henceforth live unto themselves, but unto him who died for them (II. Cor. 5: 15).

Back to Prison

A remarkable instance of wasted clemency is now before the New York Courts. Twelve years ago, a man of highly respectable family was convicted of conspiring to wreck a bank. Strong efforts were made on account of his connections to secure his acquittal, but the evidence was too strong. He was convicted and sentenced to a long term in Sing Sing. His friends, however, continued their efforts in his behalf, and at last the Governor, yielding to their persuasion, pardoned him. He was helped to start in business and was apparently doing well, but a month ago he was again arrested charged with swindling a client. As before, an eloquent counsel was engaged and preparations made for a strong defense, but when the man was confronted with the proofs of his guilt he concluded to plead guilty, in the hope of having his sentence mitigated. His acknowledgment of guilt has amazed his friends, who hoped that his previous experience would have been such a lesson to him as to lead to his permanent reformation. There are some men so set on evil that neither severity nor mercy can turn them from their ways. The prophet expresses the belief that even if such men were admitted to heaven, they would not change their habits.

Let favor be shown to the wicked, yet will he not learn righteousness; in the land of uprightness will he deal unjustly (Isa. 26: 10).

Traced by Thumb-Prints

The detective bureaus in many of our cities are now adopting a system, which is also being employed in Europe for the detection of criminals. It is based on the discovery that the markings of the thumb and finger-tips are not exactly alike in any number of persons. In a recent test case, it was found that in one hundred persons there were no two alike. The first use made of the discovery was in India, where, in one of the prisons, every prisoner had his thumb and fingers smeared with ink and then pressed on paper, on which his name and offence was recorded. The system had been operated about two years, when a murder was committed under circumstances that furnished absolutely no clue to the perpetrator, save the fact that in his search for money the criminal had grasped a piece of paper on which his moist thumb and fingers had left marks. They were compared with the prison records, and at once identified. The guilty man thus indicated was traced and arrested, and confessed his guilt. A recent case is that of a burglar who happened to place his hand on a freshly-painted window sash, leaving an impression which, when compared with the records, furnished the clue which has led to his conviction. It is astonishing that there should be so much diversity in a matter where one would have expected similarity. The patriarch seems to have had a prevision of the fact in his consciousness that God was cognizant of all his ways:

Thou settest a print on the heels of my feet (Job 13: 27).

BRIEF NOTES

The Bible has been read through ninety times by Mrs. O. M. Fitz Gerald, mother of Bishop Fitz Gerald, who celebrated her ninetieth birthday on Feb. 13.

The Winona Assembly and Summer School at Winona Lake, Ind., has issued a most attractive programme for this year. More than fifty instructors are now on the faculty.

The Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, D.D., says that the great work now in progress in the States of the Middle West, is characteristically marked by the arousing of the lay element in all the cities.

The Presbyterian Church at Minden, Neb., Rev. A. Vander Upper, pastor, has just closed a two weeks' revival under the efficient leadership of the Rev. C. T. Schaeffer, of New York, the General Assembly's Evangelist for Nebraska.

In all Europe, the finest home that any Young Men's Christian Association possesses is that at Stockholm. It was built in 1896, at a cost of nearly £40,000. Its lecture-hall will hold 500 persons, and its library contains 6,000 volumes.

Rev. Dr. Arthur T. Pierson has commenced a series of ten Bible lectures in connection with the School of Bible Study, at Exeter Hall, Strand, London.

A young man able to sing, and desirous of engaging in evangelistic work, may hear of an opportunity by communicating with missionary A. A. Silva, 124 Federal Street, Portland, Me.

The National Bible Society of Scotland reports a record circulation in 1902, no fewer than 1,118,530 Scriptures having been issued by its agents at home and abroad, or 428,125 more than in the previous year. In China alone upwards of half a million copies were circulated.

The Oliver brothers, evangelists, have found it necessary to enlarge the Tabernacle at Topeka, Kans., in which they are holding meetings. The Methodist, Congregational, Baptist, Presbyterian and Christian churches are all receiving additions to their membership from converts at the meetings.

A meeting for Sunday School teachers is held at Union Theological Seminary, 700 Park Ave., New York, every Saturday afternoon at 3.30, for the study of the Sunday School Lesson. On Tuesday and Thursday evenings, at eight o'clock, classes are held for lay workers. They are conducted by Dr. Richard Morse Hodge.

Evangelist H. Stafford Smith has been holding services at the First Reformed Church of Philadelphia, of which Dr. Milliken is pastor. Mr. Smith has pleasant memories of this church, having labored there with much success during his former visit five years ago. Dr. F. B. Meyer, whose words count for much in all the churches, has sent a cordial commendation of Mr. Smith's services in London and hearty good wishes for his success in America. Letters sent to him at the office of this journal, Bible House, New York, will be forwarded to him.

BURNING BOOKS

PAUL AT EPHESUS

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR MARCH 8. ACTS 19: 13-20

By Dr. and Mrs. Wilbur F. Crafts

GOLDEN TEXT: -- ACTS 19: 17: "THE NAME OF THE LORD JESUS WAS MAGNIFIED"

A FIRE in Ephesus! And it was no common fire. It was made to burn up something that had been very precious, which had suddenly become hateful. The fire was fed not with logs, but with books that had been copied by hand, and so were expensive, many of them having been copied by ancestors, and so having the added value of being heirlooms. The books destroyed were worth a sum equivalent to at least $50,000 in our time.

It was an uncommon fire also because love had kindled it, love for Jesus, a new passion in hearts that had hitherto been devoted to Diana, the false goddess. The Apostle Paul had come to dwell in their city, and he had not only preached the name of Jesus in public places, but had also gone from home to home, telling the people of the true God. And as the hearts of fathers, and mothers, and children were turned from Diana to Jesus, they came to desire the destruction of the books which taught them things which they could not practice as Christians. In the wonderful miracles performed by Paul, such as the healing of sick through handkerchiefs and aprons, they had come to recognize a greater power in him than in the dark art of magic, which many of the books described. Nothing remained for them in their hitherto precious books. The evil they once loved, they had learned to hate.

It was an uncommon fire, because it represented the co-operation of the whole body of Christians in Ephesus. It might have been easier for each family to destroy their books in private, but the name of Jesus was magnified in Ephesus by the general burning of the books.

It was an uncommon fire, because of the great fire of covetousness which it revealed in the hearts of those who had found the worship of Diana a profitable element in their trade, as they were silversmiths, and made small images of Diana to sell.

Sometimes there are casualties at fires—severe injuries are received, or lives are lost. Closely connected with the fire in Ephesus, but just preceding it, was a casualty in which seven sons of Sceva, a Jewish priest, had come to grief. They were exorcists, dealers, so to speak, in evil spirits. They had seen the wonders of healing which Paul had wrought in the Name of Jesus. It was blasphemy for them to undertake similar work "in His Name," but they tried it upon a demoniac. The evil spirit, which was in possession of the man, leaped upon the pretenders, saying: "Jesus I know, and Paul I know, but who are ye?" And the evil spirit tore their clothes in fragments and wounded their bodies; and great fear came upon all who were eye-witnesses of the scene. And their fear increased as they saw the burning of the books, and heard the cry new to Ephesus, "In the Name of the Lord Jesus Christ."

As they looked toward the image of Diana, they hardly felt the usual impulse to cry out, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians," for they saw that she stirred not to avenge herself, but continued resting upon the two metal bars, one under each hand. Her painted eyes flashed back no fire of indignation; her dark body remained inert, though her worship was being overthrown. "So mightily grew the Word of God and prevailed."

Illustration and Application

This lesson contrasts: 1. Two kinds of deeds, vers. 11-18. 2. Two kinds of words, vers. 19-21.

Paul's miracles, prompted by brotherly love, and wrought in the power of God, are here set in contrast with the attempted miracles of the selfish sons of Sceva, by whom the Name of Jesus was also used, but from whom his spirit was absent, so that the very devils were disgusted by the hypocrisy involved. The contrast is between two efforts to do the same thing and under the same religious professions, but with a different motive. The devils and their dupes have no fear of those who use religious words and forms from selfish motives of greed or ambition. He who attempts a religious act to make a show or to make money, if not unmasked by devils, will be known in all his black hypocrisy to God, and his use of the sacred Name will be accounted, not as a prayer, but as profane. On the other hand, there are men whose very presence reminds us of Christ, even when they do not speak his Name, and whose coming brings help and health to body, mind and soul. The devils that possess us flee at their coming, as night flees at the rising of the sun.

How heartily we all honor those who dare some risk or hardship save imperilled lives! The papers, not long since, told of Mary Peden, fifteen years old, who saw a bridge on fire on the Northern Pacific Railway. Knowing that a passenger train was almost due, she ran to the stable, mounted a horse and swiftly rode to the station, just in time to hold the incoming train. O that we might be as eager to act and speak so as to save those near and far, whose souls are in peril!

That incident reminds us of the power of words as well as deeds. This lesson might well be devoted chiefly to considering "words that burn" and words that should be burned, that is, good and evil uses of the wonderful gift of language. The power to express thought in words is one of the special distinctions between man and beast. Parrots speak words, but only as a phonograph echoes, without thought, what it hears. Expressing thought in intelligent language is one of God's great gifts to man, for which we should render devout thanks and which we should use as a sacred trust.

Alas, in every age there are words that ought to be burned. At Ephesus, apparently without any specific appeal from Paul, the new converts proved the genuineness of their conversion—and some who read this should take the hint—by burning books which their unregenerate hearts enjoyed.

Words to be Burned

Heathen religions in Paul's day and to-day usually invite their worshipers to buy in the temples as a sacred thing, those vile indulgences which God condemns both in his Word and by their natural consequences. It was a lot of books that kindled the fires of passion in the name of religion that the quickened consciences of the Ephesian converts led them to burn.

They were also in part books of magic, akin to the modern literature of spiritism, which is also closely allied to "free love." The closest parallel to the burning of bad books in Ephesus, under Paul's preaching, is the case of Savonarola, who called on the people of Florence to burn their so-called "art," that which had rotted Greece and Rome, and which the Renaissance had brought back, after Christianity had buried it for centuries from sight, the art that put beauty above duty, and cares nothing for moral effects. France is to-day a "dying nation," largely because of its corrupting pictures, plays, and books.

Would that we could gather up the gossip, and scandal, and the very propensity to it, when we have begun a Christian life at any rate, and burn it up forever! Printed words we may burn, but spoken words, and even words we have read, are beyond the reach of fire.

"The boneless tongue so small and weak,
Can crush and kill," declared the Greek

"The tongue destroys a greater horde,"
The Turk asserts, "than does the sword."

The Persian proverb wisely saith,
"A lengthy tongue—an early death."

Or sometimes takes this form instead:
"Don't let your tongue cut off your head."

"The tongue can speak a word whose speed,"
Says the Chinese, "outstrips the steed."

While Arab sage doth this impart:
"The tongue's great storehouse is the heart"

From Hebrew wit the maxim sprung,
"Tho' feet should slip, ne'er let the tongue."

The sacred writer crowns the whole,
"Who keeps his tongue doth keep his soul."

PHILIP B. STRONG.

"BROUGHT THEIR BOOKS TOGETHER AND BURNED THEM BEFORE ALL MEN"

But let us turn to the glad, right uses of words, even as the lesson turns from the bonfire of bad books, to say, "So mightily grew the Word of the Lord and prevailed." What a contrast to that burning up of bad books in Ephesus, are the frequent efforts made in after years to burn up the Bible! On the mail boxes are the words "Pull down," and "Lift up." Let our words be the "lift up" kind. What uplifts to men and nations the Word of God has proved! Heathen sacred books have filled men with fears. They have crowded the air with devils and with gods, that inspire fear rather than love. Where the Bible is not known men walk in fear of witchcraft, and hoodoos, and other mysterious and imaginary perils. The Word of God scatters these ghosts. More wonderful still, the Bible shows how we can be saved from real evils, even when they are entrenched by habit in our own lives, as was done in the case of many at Ephesus (Eph. 5: 1-8).

THE SITE OF ANCIENT EPHESUS

One day there came a Chinaman into a mission chapel at Foochow, China, while Rev. S. L. Binkley was preaching, who said to him after the sermon: "I never heard of Jesus Christ before. Are you sure he could save me from my sins?" "Yes," said the preacher. "But you don't know that I have been a gambler, a sorcerer, an opium smoker—all this for twenty years." "Jesus Christ can save you, nevertheless." The Chinaman turned away, as if it was too good to believe, but came again and again to hear more of this wonderful Saviour. One morning he came to the missionary saying: "You are quite right—he can save me, for he has done it." Opium smoking was the hardest sin he had to conquer, but he said one day to the missionary, "I don't want to do any of the things I used to love so, but I do want to go to Hok-chiang to tell the people there that Jesus can save them from their sins, as you told me." His friends told him that the fierce people to whom he proposed to go would soon stop his preaching by cutting off his head. He went nevertheless. Enemies of Christianity had him arrested on false charges, and the heathen official ordered 2,000 stripes, which were inflicted with the bamboo on his bare back. Nearly dead he was then carried to the nearest mission station where he was tenderly cared for. "Teacher," he said, "this poor body is in great pain just now, but my inside heart has great peace. If I get well again, teacher, you'll let me go back to Hok-chiang, won't you?" To the surprise of everybody he recovered and went back to preach again to his persecutors, some of whom were converted. Fourteen years later the doctors told him he could not live much longer because of some disease that was culminating. "Then I must go back to Tengtiong. I have still a little time to tell of Jesus' love and I want to die at my post." And he did. Oh, the great privilege that we cannot only read and hear the word of God but pass it on, warmed with our heart's love to others!

Two little Indian boys were once talking of what they would like to do. They had been impressed with the good work of a missionary, going back and forth across the plains on his errands of love. Thinking of him, one exclaimed: "I wish to be a preacher. Then I'd go and tell everybody all the good things I know."

The other hesitated for a while. It seemed to him the very best had been wished. But suddenly his face brightened, and his shrill little voice rang out with a note of triumph: "I wish I could be a horse and buggy; I'd carry the preacher to tell the good things."

If one cannot preach himself he can help to send the preacher on his mission. And all of us can be "witnesses" in deed and word of the power of Christ to save.

The most wonderful of all uses of words is prayer, by which we speak to God, in order that what we speak for God may not be in vain. Little Polly put two pennies on the missionary plate, and then every night, after her other prayers were said, she added, "God bless my two pennies."

Here is a fitting prayer with which to close this lesson:

O that mine eyes may closed be to what concerns me not to see;
That deafness might possess mine ear to what concerns me not to hear;
That truth my tongue might always tie from ever speaking foolishly.
That no vain thought might ever rest, or be conceived in my breast.
That by each deed, and word and thought, glory may to my God be brought!
But what are wishes? Lord, mine eye on thee is fixed; to thee I cry.
Wash, Lord, and purify my heart, and make it clean in every part;
And when 'tis clean, Lord, keep it, too, for that is more than I can do.

THOMAS ELWOOD.

The Heart of the Home

"YOU may say what you will," said the tired little schoolma'am, sinking into the comfortable, chintz-covered rocker, "the kitchen is the heart of the home."

Her mother, of whom she was a replica, looked up from the socks she was darning, and smiled as mothers do. Both women had brown eyes and brown hair, but the older face had lost its bloom, and was thin and worn. It had in it the sweetness of an invincible patience; while the other, still round and softly colored, was apt to be marked now and then with a frown. It is never easy for youth to accept interruptions and postponements with serenity; the talent for that must be cultivated, as the habit of thankfulness must. Patience and thankfulness are never far apart.

. . .

The little schoolma'am glanced about her at the big, bright kitchen, all smoothed out in its afternoon peace. The day's work had an air of being done and out of the way. Her mother was a good manager. She never had things cluttered about, and her system was her servant, not her ruler. Nobody ever heard her talk about it; nobody ever saw her fuss; she simply went so calmly on about her affairs, that the routine was like Divine Providence; without irreverence, it might be said that the mother's rule in that home, was like the ordering of the Lord. Indeed, was she not his delegate, doing his will, while his spirit illumined her countenance.

"Mother," said the daughter, lying back in the rocker and resting after her long day in the little red schoolhouse, "I'm glad to teach near home. It's like heaven to come back to you and be where you are. And the moment I put my foot inside this kitchen I forget every mite of trouble, and begin to be happy. The reason the kitchen is the heart of the home is this, it's the place where you stay. Any place where mother is, has something about it warmer and dearer than any other place; don't you think so, dear?"

And again, the mother's tender smile, was a sufficient answer.

. . .

Houses are of many varieties. There are sumptuous mansions furnished with rare elegance; there are cozy cottages which make no attempt at show, but are, nevertheless, very pleasant backgrounds for people who love one another; and houses there are in plenty, that are only slices of bigger ones—tenements, flats, apartments, what you will—and off on the mountains, there are cabins, a window, a door, a loft, a chimney, a fire on the hearth, and little more, but from palace to hovel, it is the mother who makes the home. If she be a dawdler and a trifler, there is small probability that her family will rise much above her level. If she be morbid and miserable, low in her mind, or fretchedly fagged out in her body, gloom will envelop the atmosphere about her, gloom as impenetrable as a London fog. If she be wise, self-controlled, even-tempered and courageous, the home will move on easily, and the home people have influence and honor beyond its gates.

"I shall devote the coming winter," said mother of my acquaintance, "to Katherine and Sophy."

"Explain yourself," I entreated. "You seem to me to be entirely devoted to the whole household, from your good man down to the baby."

"I suppose, I am," she agreed thoughtfully. "But what I mean, is this. I try especially, at certain seasons, to give something of myself to the one, or the two in the family, who seem to be most in need of a molding touch. Last year I read a great deal with Mary, whose eyes were troubling her, so that she had to give up a term at college. Mary and I had been drifting a little apart, we grew well acquainted, intimate, confidential, as mother and daughter ought to be, before the spring came round, and she could go out doors and potter in the garden. Now, I observe, the younger girls are where they want some special mothering; they require guiding by suggestion; not fault finding or criticism; and while I spend more time than usual in their company, I shall get hold of my girls."

THE LITTLE BROTHER

THE stork flew down when Madge and May
Were fast asleep last night.
And somewhere near the early day,
Before the sky was light,
He left a darling brother here.
'Twas tucked beneath his wing,
The wondrous, very beautiful,
And most surprising thing.

"Just let us look," the children cry.
"Just let us touch his cheek,
He'd tell us all about the sky
If only he could speak.
O little brother, we are glad,
That we have got you here;
You are the sweetest gift of God,
And we will love you, dear."

Chapped Hands

Rough hands are very uncomfortable. The woman who must often have her hands in hot water, should wear rubber gloves in winter. They are easily pulled on and off, are never in the way, and save the hands from redness and roughness. Hands that are thoroughly dried whenever they are washed are seldom chapped. Tepid water, good soap, thorough rinsing and thorough drying, will keep any hands smooth in the coldest weather. A little glycerine and rosewater, or cold cream, applied at night, and the wearing of an old, loose pair of gloves will promote whiteness and smoothness.

The Necktie

Men have so few really nice points about their rough, serviceable clothing, that they cannot be indifferent to the style of their neckties. A man's tie indicates his social position. A loud tie, in glaring colors or pronounced pattern, is the outward and visible sign of the man who never had a fastidious mother or sister to watch over his childhood. He came up as best he could. Most men would do well to let their wives select their ties. Women know the correct thing and seldom make a blunder.

Why the Country Boy Succeeds

IT is no secret that a good many of our greatest men began life as country boys. I think the farm sends more graduates to the Senate, and to the Stock Exchange, than any other school in the land. Statesmen, millionaires, bankers, brokers, lawyers, judges, ministers and merchants start out from good, plain, country homes. First an exceptionally clever, gifted, all-round man in a place of emergency, and five times out of six you will discover that as a lad he was trained in a rural community, and lived his first formative years somewhere away from a town. The ordinary city boy may be sharper and shrewder, may get on faster in school than his country cousin, but the latter has definite advantages all his own.

For one thing, he usually has work to do with his hands. About a farm there is a good deal that a boy can do. Chores morning and evening, wood to split for kindling and wood boxes to fill, cows to go after up the road and along to the hillside or the valley pasture, gardens to weed, ploughing, hoeing, reaping, sowing; whatever the season may be, it surely brings its task. I suppose the farmer's son fancies his lot is hard, as he works in the barn or the stables, takes care of the animals, and learns early that priceless lesson for life—responsibility. It is a hardness that makes for future success; it brings out capability that but for its wholesome discipline would never develop. Because of this very hardness, when any peril threatens the nation, when the great municipalities give majorities for greed and corruption, the men of the farming districts give the answer at the ballot-box that means salvation.

. . .

Another thing that I find a blessing to the country boy, is that he learns the real use of books. Very likely he has not too many of them, and for that reason he prizes more those he has. One good book is far more educational to the youth who masters it by the evening lamp, than a dozen skimmed through and forgotten, because read merely for amusement. Even the multiplicity of daily newspapers, hastily scanned by city boys, may tend away from intelligence and mental growth; whereas the weekly or semi-weekly paper taken in the country, brought home from the post-office as a precious thing, and devoured from first to last page, is a source of information and instruction to the whole family.

Let nobody despise the small school, the district school, that standing by the lonely road, is a real outpost of learning and civilization. There may be no possibility of teaching—as teaching is understood in the large graded school—to which hundreds of pupils go in the big cities, but here is individual teaching, and the bright boy who chooses to apply himself will not fail to secure something worth much in the race of life.

. . .

If I were asked to give as a finality my thought of the crowning advantage which the country boy possesses over his brother of the town, I would it was this: He has very little money to spend, and few places to tempt him to expenditure. The lavish way in which heedless young people dispose of pennies and dimes, easily procured from foolish parents, easily wasted on trifling indulgences, forecasts the life-long penury, the hand-to-mouth existence, which eats like rust into the happiness of too many lives. A boy is the better for having little pocket money, and, better still, if he may early acquire habits of earning and saving.

Aunt Prudence Payson's Catch-All

—WILHELMINA. Control your speech. You may if you will.

—JOHN. You can get a good grammatical knowledge of a foreign language from books and for speech, you must hear it and have a teacher.

—NELLIE. As a rule, a housekeeper who does her own work and cares for her children cannot earn much money outside, nor should she try to, if she has a husband.

—AMANDA. Nothing is required in acknowledgment of announcement cards, unless they give an "at home" date and address. In that case, call as early as you can.

—ESSIE. Your doubts that you are saved, when you have given yourself to Christ, reflect upon his faithfulness. Stop thinking about yourself and think more about him.

—BACHELOR. In ancient Rome, your class was considered inferior to that of the married man. It ought to be so still. Bachelors if they can afford to marry are selfish, don't you think?

—MRS. B. Should you take lodgers, you will be expected to keep their rooms in order. As you live in a neighborhood where people can obtain table board, you may, perhaps, add to your income by letting rooms.

SHIRT WAIST SUIT

AN UNPARALLED OFFER

$1.65

PREPAID EVERYWHERE

No. 9. This Stylish Shirt Waist Suit is made of Fine Washable Dress Penang, in large variety of colors and patterns. Waist has Gibson tucked front, with similar tucks in the back; shirt waist sleeves with cuffs of same material. New three-piece skirt, Paquin flounce headed with bias fold; inverted pleat back.

Indicate your preference of color, of figure, or stripe pattern, and we will select for you.

You will do well to order at once, for they will all be sold in a few days and you will not get such a bargain again.

Sizes 32 to 42 bust measure.

We do not send samples of this suit.

$1.65 PREPAID ANYWHERE

Our Spring and Summer Catalogs contain the latest fashions for Spring and Summer, literally running over with good bargains. You should have them both. Write for them.

Garlands

LADIES' CLOTHING STORE

DEPT. F ST. LOUIS, MO.

YOUNG LADIES FULLY APPRECIATE

It's the Hair—not the Hat

That makes a woman attractive

Therefore thoughtful misses begin early to carefully cultivate their hair, so that beautiful, soft and lustrous hair may be enjoyed all through life.

Seven Sutherland Sisters' Hair Grower and Scalp Cleaner

Are ideal hair preparations. The "Scalp Cleaner" makes a perfect shampoo, while the "Grower" keeps the scalp in perfect health. No better can be found.

Sold by Dealers Everywhere

HOW DO YOU WASH

No matter how you do it now, we can make the work easier and save wear and tear on your back as well as on the clothes. The washes fast and is not tiresome, cleans everything, suds and rinses—no rubbing; washes, scalds and bleaches at one operation. Above all it is easy. Made of steel-galvanized, on rollers. New principle—washes by air pressure.

SYRACUSE EASY WASHER

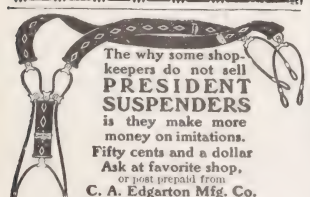
Would you like to try it for 30 days, wash anything and everything with it and then return it if you wish? We pay freight both ways. Write for free book of modern laundry formulas.

DODGE & ZUILL, 540 S. Clinton St., Syracuse, N. Y.



The why some shop keepers do not sell PRESIDENT SUSPENDERS is they make more money on imitations.

Fifty cents and a dollar

Ask at favorite shop, or post prepaid from

C. A. Edgarton Mfg. Co.
Box 209-I, Shirley, Mass.

Send 6 cents for catalogue.

I Print My Own Cards

Circulars, Newspaper, Press $5. Larger size, $18. Money saves. Big profits printing for others. Type-setting easy, rules sent. Write for catalog, presses, type, paper, &c., to factory.

THE PRESS CO., Meriden, Conn.

PHARISEE

A Tale of the Cumberlands

THE first term of the little mission school in the heart of the Cumberlands was nearly half gone, when, one Monday morning, a new pupil entered, a girl about eighteen, and above the average in appearance. She had a wealth of chestnut brown hair, that persistently refused to stay in place despite the big thorn pins with which she had sought to secure it; and honest, sweet, inquiring eyes, that seemed sometimes blue and sometimes black. The children all appeared greatly surprised to see her, and plied her with numerous questions, to all of which she gave little heed. Even before "books," or study hour, she went off in a corner by herself, and bent over her spelling-book as though she would devour it.

After roll call, I approached her, and asked her name.

"Pharisee Grigsby."

"How do you spell the first name?"

"You'uns air the teacher," (as if I ought to be able to spell anything).

"But your name is a peculiar one. I don't think I ever heard it before."

"Ain't you'uns got arry Bible?"

"Certainly."

"Wel, hits spellt in thar, mammy tole me 'fore she died. I's a little fellar then. I ain't seed arry Bible, an' I cain't read nohow, an' I disremember how hits spellt; but folks mos'ly calls me Fairy; mebby you'uns knows how that's spellt?"

At the noon play-hour the children went off to their games, and I went down to the spring to eat my lunch. Fairy was there before me. She was sitting upon a rock, her sunbonnet drawn over her face, which was diligently bent above her spelling-book.

When I had finished my lunch, she came and sat beside me, and carefully taking from her bosom a piece of cotton cloth, untied it, and produced a silver dollar. "Will you'uns larn me t' read an' write fer this?" she asked.

"I will teach you to read and write for nothing, Fairy, if you are not able to pay. The money will pay for a month's schooling, if that is what you mean."

"I've jes' got t' larn. Mis' Riley over't the stashin 'ud larn me fer nuthin', but I cain't go, kase there ain' nobody but me now, sence Marth's married, fer t' cook fer Gran'pap. I cooked dinner an' lef' the pots stan' on the hathe keepin' warm fer 'im t' day, but I ain' no idy he'll lemme come arry nuther d'y of a mornin'. But he eats dinner plum arly, an' then goes t' sleep an' sleeps all evenin'. I 'lowed I might git a plum arly dinner, an' then light out fer here; hit ain' more'n a mile ef y' take a nigh cut. I'd git home 'fore he needed nuthin', an I thort mebby ef I studied right hard I'd larn readin' an' writin'."

"I am sure you can, if you are so anxious."

"I'm powerful anxious, shore." Then, after a short, embarrassed pause: "I'm a mighty notion t' tell you'uns; only you'uns won't tell Gran'pap ner none o' them, will you'uns?"

"I will tell no one, Fairy, if you choose to tell me."

"Hits so's t' I kin read Abe's letter myself."

"Is Abe an absent brother?"

"Lansy, no! Ain't you'uns never heerd o' Abe Hamby? He's gone off now to a big school. He ust t' help Mr. Riley over t' the stashin. He larnt readin' an' writin' long time ago. He larnt telegraftin' too, an' he's workin' fer the man as runs the big school, an' don't pay no money. Me an' Abe we's bean sweethearts ever sence we's little fellars, an' Gran'pap ner none of 'em never said nuthin' till one day, Marth, she run off an' got married, an' then Gran'pap knowed thurd be nobody fer t' stay with him ef me an' Abe married, an' he tolt Abe ef he ever come nigh the place arry nuther time he'd shoot 'im. Abe felt powerful bad, but he said hit weren't no use contraryin' Gran'pap, fer he's ole an' finnicky, an' he'd sech a heap o' trouble. So Abe he went away like I tol' y', an' he writes t' Mis' Riley an' sen's letters t' me, an' she reads 'em fer me. But I'm powerful anxious t' larn readin' an' writin' so's't I kin read 'em myself, an' so's't I kin write, fer heap o' times seems like I want t' say things t' Abe I don't want nobody else t' know. The las' time he wrote, he said soon's ever he got larnin' 'nough so's't he could arn more money, he 'lowed t' sen' fer me, an' hev me brung thar, an' we'd both larn a heap o' things. That air another reason I'm so anxious to larn. I'd hate t' go thar knowin' nuthin', when Abe, he knowed so much."

Of course I took great interest in teaching Fairy, and she learned rapidly.

She often lingered to walk with me after school was dismissed.

One afternoon, the other children had gone and I was practicing some new songs. She sat watching and listening for some time, and then she asked: "Do you'uns reckin', I'll ever larn t' do anything like that?"

"Oh, yes, Fairy, I expect you to do many more difficult things than playing simple hymns upon the organ."

"Hones'ly!"

"Yes, honestly and truly."

"But hit takes a long time, an' sech a heap o' money t' larn so many things."

"It takes the desire and the determination above either, and you have both. I mean, Fairy, that you want to do it and you are bound to do it. Do you understand?"

"Yes'm, I un'erstan', an' all that, but I know ef I hed the money, I'd do all them things a heap easier an' sooner."

She went and looked out of the windows, first on one side of the room then on the other, and then she went and stood in the doorway. She came back walking stealthily on her tiptoes. I thought she was afraid of disturbing me; but when I looked, and saw her face, I was frightened.

"Child, what's the matter? Are you sick?"

"No'm, only faintly like. I allus git that a-way when I think 'bout them things."

"What things?"

"The money an' all that. I'm boun' t' tell you'uns. Hit seems like I caint live, if I don't tell somebody. I've been knowin' fer more'n two year where 'tis—heaps an' heaps o' money, more'n hit 'ud take t' do me an' Abe all our lives. An' hit jes' a layin thar doin' nobody no good ner never will! An' I don't durst t' tech it, kase hit ain't mine. When I sees purty things, an' want 'em, an' when I think 'bout how bad me an' Abe wants larnin', I wisht I did durst. I wisht hit wer'n't wrong. Sometimes I wisht mammy hadn't never tole me not to tech things as wer'n't mine."

It almost gave me a chill to hear the girl talk, and to look into her white, scared face. I hardly knew whether or not I ought to question her, but as she had chosen to make a confidant of me, I asked:

"Whose is it, the money of which you speak?"

"Hit's Gran'pap's, an' hit could ever' piece be tuck, an' he'd never know it. He'll never look at it again whilst he lives, an' more'n likely he'll die thouten ever tellin' me er Marth' a word 'bouten it. I follered an' seed 'im put it thar, an' I could go, the darkes' night, plum t' the spot an' dig it up!

"Hit's pay for a lot o' lan', as hez them big coal mines over on yan side. Gran'pap owned a heap o' land over thar. Some fellars come over some several times an' talked t' Gran'pap, an' finely, one fellar come onct atter night. I's up in the loft, an' Gran'pap thort I's asleep, though but I wasn't. They talked low an' I couldn't hear, but I's a sleepin' on a pallet, an' they's powerful big cracks in the loft floor, an' I jes' nachally rollt over an' lookt down an' seed 'em. They hed a heap o' little sacks, an' the man em'tied 'em all out keerful like, an' counted 'em, an' then he said, 'Hit's all here, six thousant dollars. Nobody knows 'bout it, but you's best put it in a safe place.' An' then he went away.

CONTINUED ON NEXT PAGE

We have no agents or branch stores. All orders should be sent direct to us.

New Spring Costumes

Never before have we offered such dainty and attractive costumes and skirts as we are showing this season. Our Spring Catalogue should be in the hands of every lady who wishes to dress well at moderate cost. It illustrates styles which are distinctly new and exclusive. We keep no ready-made goods but make every garment to order; that is why our goods are renowned for their perfect fit and finish. No matter where you live, we pay express charges.

Our Catalogue illustrates:

New Suits, well-tailored, in the newest fashions, $8 up.

Etamine Costumes in models to prevail during the coming Season, $12 up.

The latest designs in Spring and Summer Skirts, $4 up.

Rainy-Day and Walking Skirts, $5 up.

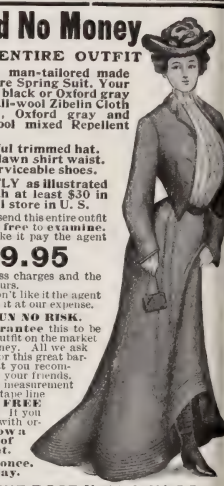
Jaunty Jackets, Rainy-Day and Walking Suits, Traveling Dresses, etc.

The Catalogue and samples will tell you the rest—they will be sent free by return mail. Every garment you choose will be made to measure and guaranteed to fit and please you. If it does not, send it back promptly and we will refund your money. It's your good will we want most.

NATIONAL CLOAK AND SUIT COMPANY, 119 and 121 West 23d St., New York.

Send No Money

THIS ENTIRE OUTFIT



Ladies' man-tailored made to measure Spring Suit. Your choice of black or Oxford gray strictly all-wool Zibelin Cloth or black, Oxford gray and Navy wool mixed Repellent Cloth.

Beautiful trimmed hat.
White lawn shirt waist.
Pair serviceable shoes.

EXACTLY as illustrated and worth at least $30 in any retail store in U. S.

We will send this entire outfit by express free to examine.

If you like it pay the agent only and express charges and the outfit is yours.

$9.95

If you don't like it the agent will return it at our expense.

YOU RUN NO RISK.

We guarantee this to be the finest outfit on the market for the money. All we ask in return for this great bargain is that you recommend us to your friends.

Samples, measurement blank and tape line MAILED FREE on request. If you send cash with order we allow a discount of 5 per cent.

Write at once. Don't delay.

EUGENE ROSE NOVELTY CO., Givers of Honest Bargains, Dept. D, 300 Wabash Ave. (Giles Building) Chicago. Reference: Commercial National Bank, Chicago.

Young men and women in search of Permanent, Profitable Employment, will appreciate our new, easy method of selling

ALUMINUM COOKING UTENSILS

Takes away all objectionable features of canvassing and adds greatly to the profit. Over 100 different utensils. Very highest grade. Do not burn food, cannot rust, crack or scale. Last a lifetime.

Write to-day for our plan. It's the best thing you ever saw.

THE ALUMINUM COOKING UTENSIL CO. District 3, Pittsburgh, Pa.

DROP US A POSTAL—IT WILL SAVE YOU $10.00

A BIG BOOK FREE

Our Sewing Machine Book is the agents' terror. It explains the ins and outs of the business—how machines are made from the ground up, the different styles, what they cost to make, systems of selling, etc., etc.

It will save you from $10 to $45 by giving you practical pointers in purchasing any kind or style of machine. Written by a sewing machine man—a close associate of Elias Howe the inventor of the sewing machine. Drop us a postal and the book is yours free. Handsomest illustrations showing all styles and samples of work. CASH BUYERS' UNION, (Inc.) 0 18 Chicago

NEW-SKIN
TRADE MARK
REGISTERED WATERPROOF
LIQUID COURT PLASTER

Heals Cuts, Abrasions, Hang-Nails, Chapped or Split Lips or Fingers, Burns, Blisters, etc. Instantly Relieves Chilblains, Frosted Ears, Stings of Insects, Chafed or Blistered Feet, Callous Spots, etc., etc.

A coating on the sensitive parts will protect the feet from being chafed or blistered by new or heavy shoes.

Applied with a brush and immediately dries, forming a tough, transparent, colorless waterproof sealing.

Mechanics, Sportsmen, Bicyclists, Golfers, Etc. are all liable to bruise, scratch or scrape their skin. "NEW-SKIN" will heal these injuries, will not wash off, and after it is applied the injury is forgotten, as "NEW-SKIN" makes a temporary new skin until the broken skin is healed under it.

EACH
Pocket Size - -	10c.
(Size of Illustration)
Family Size - -	25c.
2 oz. Bottles - -	50c.

For Surgeons and Hospitals

At the Druggists, or we will mail a package anywhere in the United States on receipt of price.

DOUGLAS MFG. CO.
Dept. 33
107 Fulton St., New York

ENGINEERING
TAUGHT BY MAIL.

Main Building, Armour Institute of Technology.

An opportunity to gain, at home, many of the educational advantages of a resident technical school.

INSTRUCTION UNDER SUPERVISION OF MEMBERS OF FACULTY OF ARMOUR INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY

COURSES IN

Electrical, Mechanical, Civil, Locomotive, Stationary, Marine and Sanitary Engineering; Navigation, Architecture, Mechanical and Perspective Drawing, Sheet Metal Work, Textile Manufacturing, also 40 short Engineering Courses.

In addition to their regular instruction papers, students in full Engineering courses are furnished a technical Reference Library (in ten volumes) as a help in their studies.

American School of Correspondence
AT
ARMOUR INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY
Chicago, Ill.

TO SUIT EVERYBODY! JUST OUT!
For Sunday Schools,
Young People's Societies,
Revival Meetings, etc.
100 New Songs,
256 Pages,
Bound in Cloth.

Young People's Songs of Praise

4 EDITIONS:
REGULAR,
EPWORTH LEAGUE,
CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR,
BAPTIST Y. P. UNION.

25c. per copy. RETURNABLE SAMPLE FREE
THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., New York-Chicago.

LEARN

Engravers earn $5 to $15 daily.
WE WILL SEND YOU OUR COMPLETE COURSE OF INSTRUCTION IN ENGRAVING, with full set of tools and practice materials for $5.00
enabling any man or woman to quickly learn engraving initials, names & monograms on jewelry, silverware, door plates, etc.
Booklet Free by Mail.
American School of Engraving,
30 E. 14th St., New York City.

ENGRAVING

THE OMNIGRAPH Will Teach Telegraphy
Absolutely correct in the shortest possible time at a total cost of four dollars. TRANSMITTER, Key and Sounder. Expert operator with you all the time. Circular free.
THE OMNIGRAPH MFG. CO. Dept. C 39 Cortlandt St., New York

MALTA-CERES
THE Health Food.

PHARISEE

A Tale of the Cumberlands

CONTINUED FROM PRECEDING PAGE

"I lay thar right smart, bit a watchin' of Gran'pap, an' a wonderin' what he'd do. An' ef he'd tell me. D'rec'ly, he put some in one o' the leas' sacks, an' put hit down un'er the floor, where a loose plank is, an' the balance he put back in the sacks an' tied 'em up. An' then he tuck a big oven an' went out. I heerd 'im go in the smoke house, an I knowed he's atter the pick. Soon's ever he's outen hearin' I went down, an' went flyin', for I knowed the place he 'lowed to bury it at.

"Hit were the place whar the ole still-house ust t' be at, an' whar Granny died, an' her hant hes been seed. Nobody ever goes nigh thar now, no more'n hit were the bad place. I knowed I could go t'other way, an' git up in the clift an' look down an' watch 'im. I's feared ef he seed Granny he might git fainty an' tumble over thar by hisself, an' I wanted t' be clost. Hits a right smart furder 'roun' that away, an' I hed t' git down an' crawl a heap whar the laurel bushes is so thick nobody caint walk, but he's ole an' he's a totin a powerful heavy load, so's't I got thar right smart bit 'fore he did.

"I ain't never bean the leas' feard o' hants, an' I jes nachally wisht I could a' seed Granny though, but I didn't. Atter while Gran'pap got thar, an' he set down on the big rock where we found Granny dead. D'rec'ly he got up an' tuck the pick an' began t' dig. Ever little bit he'd hafter rest, fer he's got mighty little stren'th. Finely he got the hole ez big ez he 'lowed t' need, an' then he brung the oven an' put hit in an' kivered 't all up, an' drug a big rock an' put over 't, an' atter he'd rested a bit, he tuck the pick an' started back, an' I heerd 'im say:

"'More'n likely you'll stay thar till the jedgment.'

"I know'd then that he hadn't no notion o' tellin' me ner Marth' nuthin. One day not long atter that, he's punyin roun' an' he says t' me:

"'If I die, thar's money in a sack un'er the stills, an' they tole Uncle Joe he orter pay er quit 'stillin'. Uncle Joe 'lowed hit weren't nobody's business what he done with his corn an' apples, an' he jes went on like he'd bean a doin'.

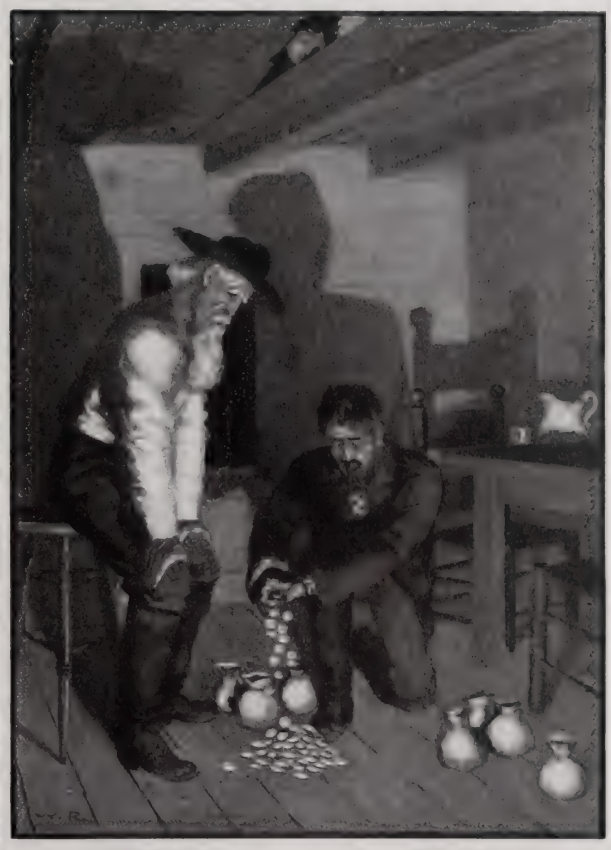
"One day Uncle Ike, he came a ridin' over in a powerful hurry, an' axed fer Uncle Joe, an Granny tole 'im he's at the still-house. He went hurryin' down thar fast ez his nag ud take 'im, an' he weren't much more'n outer sight when here come Uncle Dan'l, an' he says, 'They're atter Joe,' an' rid by like lightnin'. But when they got thar, the men was thar too, an' Uncle Joe allus said they'd never take him, an' him a-livin'.

"I don't know how 'twas—none of them they hurd o' men bein' sent out t' take all the stills, an' they tole Uncle Joe he orter pay er quit 'stillin'. Uncle Joe 'lowed hit weren't nobody's business what he done with his corn an' apples, an' he jes went on like he'd bean a doin'.

"One day Uncle Ike, he came a ridin' over in a powerful hurry, an' axed fer Uncle Joe, an Granny tole 'im he's at the still-house. He went hurryin' down thar fast ez his nag ud take 'im, an' he weren't much more'n outer sight when here come Uncle Dan'l, an' he says, 'They're atter Joe,' an' rid by like lightnin'. But when they got thar, the men was thar too, an' Uncle Joe allus said they'd never take him, an' him a-livin'.

"I don't know how 'twas—none of them

CONCLUDED ON PAGE 171



"THEY TALKED LOW, AND I COULDN'T HEAR"

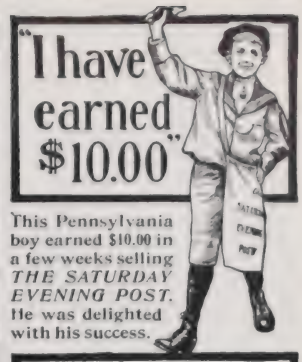
"Not One Mouthful of table food should be given a child before it is one year old," says Dr. Holt. What substitute then? Borden's Eagle Brand Condensed Milk is absolutely the safest and best infant food obtainable. Avoid unknown brands. Send for "Baby's Diary."



This Pennsylvania boy earned $10.00 in a few weeks selling THE SATURDAY EVENING POST. He was delighted with his success.

HUNDREDS of other boys all over the country are making as much money as this boy—some make more. Any bright boy who reads this notice can do the same. It will not interfere with school hours. No money required to start. We will send Ten Copies the first week free, which you can sell for 5 cents each. This will provide you with capital to order the next week's supply at wholesale rates.

The Saturday Evening Post

Almost sells itself. You can get your relatives and friends to promise to take it, and all you have to do is to deliver the magazines each week.

$225 IN EXTRA CASH PRIZES NEXT MONTH

Write for booklet to-day.

The Curtis Publishing Company
Philadelphia, Pa.

STALL'S BOOKS

DR. STALL

A Man with a Message

Millions of people always await the man with a real message. Dr. Stall has found it so. His books are already circulated in every land.

275th thousand in English.

They are being translated into several languages in Europe and two in Asia.

THE SELF AND SEX SERIES
has the unqualified endorsement of

Dr. Joseph Cook	Bishop Vincent
Rev. C. M. Sheldon	Anthony Comstock
Rev. F. B. Meyer	"Pansy"
Dr. Theodore L. Cuyler	Frances E. Willard
Dr. Francis E. Clark	Lady H. Somerset

Eminent physicians and hundreds of others.

4 BOOKS TO MEN. By Sylvanus Stall, D.D.
What a Young Boy Ought to Know.
What a Young Man Ought to Know.
What a Young Husband Ought to Know.
What a Man of 45 Ought to Know.

4 BOOKS TO WOMEN. By Mrs. Mary Wood-Allen, M.D., and Mrs. Emma F. A. Drake, M.D.
What a Young Girl Ought to Know.
What a Young Woman Ought to Know.
What a Young Wife Ought to Know.
What a Woman of 45 Ought to Know.

$1 per copy, post free. Send for table of contents.

Vir Publishing Co. 1216 Real Estate Trust Building, Philadelphia

Pilgrims Going to Church

Send Six Cents in Stamps and get our beautiful
Story of Plymouth Rock

A handsome book of 40 pages—all About the Pilgrims. Profusely illustrated, including scenes and incidents from Famous Paintings. Also a large collection of elegant Recipes for preparing delicious Desserts, and enough to make a pint of jelly; or send 15 cents and we will send of the only PLYMOUTH ROCK

PLYMOUTH ROCK PHOSPHATED GELATINE

Book and Full-sized Package PHOSPHATED GELATINE. Address DEPT. Q, Plymouth Rock Gelatine Co., Boston, Mass.

DECREE BIBLE COURSE
by mail covering the whole Bible. Terms easy. Catalog free. Write C. J. BURTON, Pres. Iowa Chris. College, Oskaloosa, Iowa.

YOUR REAL ESTATE OR BUSINESS sold quickly for cash, no matter where located. Don't wait. Write quick, send price and description. Established 20 years. Bank references. Free. FRANK P. CLEVELAND, Real Estate Expert, 1654 Adams Express Building, Chicago.

When Weaning Baby there is one "DO" and many "DON'TS"

Don't use cow's milk alone. Baby cannot thoroughly digest it. Add Imperial Granum.

Don't think of using a so-called "breakfast" or ready-to-serve food. They are not intended for that purpose.

Don't give baby "tastes" from the table.

Don't give regular table diet too soon.

Don't use too much sugar or any malt, but "DO" use the

STANDARD FOOD

IMPERIAL GRANUM

It is all nourishment, with no waste, is unsweetened, and builds hard, firm flesh, good bone and muscle.

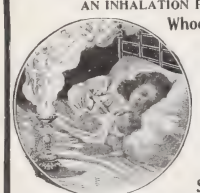
A very generous sample is free if you send your druggist's name with your own; also our weight chart and descriptive book.

Jno. Carle & Sons, Dept. F, 153 Water St., New York

New Trial size Imperial Granum, 25c. of your druggist or direct from us.

Vapo-Cresolene

AN INHALATION FOR



Whooping Cough, Croup, Bronchitis, Coughs, Grip, Hay Fever, Diphtheria, Scarlet Fever,

Don't fail to use CRESOLENE for the distressing and often fatal affections for which it is recommended. For more than twenty years we have had the most conclusive assurances that there is nothing better. Ask your physician about it.

An interesting descriptive booklet is sent free, which gives the highest testimonials as to its value.

ALL DRUGGISTS.

VAPO-CRESOLENE CO., 180 Fulton Street, New York.

Kitchen Utensils HAVING THIS TRADE MARK

AGATE NICKEL-STEEL WARE I. M. G. & Co.

WE MAKE 1520 KINDS

ARE SAFE.

NO POISON

Has Ever Been Found in the Enamel of Agate Nickel-Steel Ware.

The BLUE LABEL Protected by Decision of United States Court, pasted on every piece.

PROVES IT.

If satisfactory articles others sell, write us. New Booklet Free.

Agate Nickel-Steel Ware is sold by the leading Department and Housefurnishing Stores.

Lalance & Grosjean Mfg. Co., New York, Boston, Chicago.

We Carpet Your Floor for $3

To introduce our new, up-to-date and beautiful

BRUSSELETTE ART RUGS

Attractive and artistic patterns. Woven on both sides, cut in all sizes and shapes. Extra heavy, clean and warranted to outwear higher priced carpet. Sent prepaid to any point west of the Rocky Mountains. Money refunded if not satisfactory. Illustrated catalogue showing rugs in actual colors sent free.

Sanitary Mfg. Co. (Inc.) Dept. S, 258 S. 5th St. Philadelphia, Pa.

ABSOLUTELY FREE our handsome illustrated book on Lace Making, teaching how to make the most beautiful Valenciennes and Torchon Laces, never done in America before. A refined, lucrative occupation for any lady. Torchon Lace Co., Dept. 11, St. Louis, Mo.

The Natural Body Brace advertised in this paper in the first issue of this month is a delightful, certain remedy for ailments peculiar to women and girls. It makes walking and work easy, gives good figure and light step. Write the Natural Body Brace Co., Box 171, Salina, Kan., for free illustrated book.

Our Mail-Bag

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

L. D., Brooklyn, N. Y. Is a man or woman justified, for the sake of achieving what the world calls "a successful career," in renouncing marriage, and avoiding the cares and responsibilities, as well as the joys and the dignities of home life?

[We submit this question for answer to our readers. We shall be pleased to hear from as many as possible a frank expression of opinion. The answers should not exceed 200 words each.]

Mary D., Scranton, Pa. What is the original legend of the man in the moon?

It is difficult to indicate the original legend. In Germany, one legend says there are two persons—a man and a woman—in the moon, the latter having been placed there as a punishment for churning on Sunday. A Jewish legend says it is Jacob who is in the moon. Dante quotes a legend which declares that Cain is the man. The Ceylonese say it is a hare, the Chinese a rabbit, and a familiar English version is that it is a man, who was sent there for gathering sticks on Sunday. All these are variants of the same folk-lore legend.

Mrs. J. W. W., McDonald's Mill, Va. 1. When, where, and by whom was the first Sunday School organized? 2. What was the design of its organization? 3. Are Sunday Schools a Scriptural injunction?

1. It is generally conceded that the first Sunday School was organized by Robert Raikes, a printer, in Gloucester, England, in 1784. 2. It was simply a class of children, gathered under the auspices of the Church of England, for religious instruction, from ten to twelve o'clock Sunday forenoons, and for one hour in the afternoon after church. 3. Not specifically, but in many places the religious instruction of the young is enjoined upon parents and elders.

L. E. G. In South Beaver Valley, near Rainier, Oreg., is a willow bush, whose bark was pecked full of holes by a "sap-sucker." During warm weather fermentation set in, and birds and squirrels visited this tree, drank of the sap, and became so helplessly drunk, that passers-by could pick them up. Does this show that man is not above the lower animals in this respect?

Instances are related of cattle having a similar experience with grain or apples, and recent press dispatches told of a similar experience with bears, who had access to a cider barrel. It shows that the brutes—or some of them, at least—are attracted by the smell and taste of fermenting juices, and that they revel in the drunken exhilaration which follows indulgence. Men who yield to the same fascination, place themselves on the level of the brutes.

B. S. D. 1. Is it neighborly and Christian for a church always to say in its public invitations to services, "Everybody is invited?" 2. Would the Church grow spiritually and in numbers, if she would ask the members only for offerings for the work of the Lord, and no one else?

1. It is in harmony with the spirit of Christ and of the invitation, "Whosever will." 2. It would be worth while trying the experiment. We believe that deep spirituality and great numbers do not necessarily go together. The more real spirituality there is in a church, the more willing will its members be to give liberally toward the propagation of the Gospel.

A number of letters have been received lately from readers, calling attention to a report that a scientific journal had offered a substantial reward to any one who could devise an effective method of eradicating the prickly pear, which is giving great trouble to agriculturists in Australia. From at least half a dozen sources we have letters suggesting an application of unadulterated kerosene, poured or sprayed on the budding plants. Our Australian friends can take the suggestion for what it is worth.

T. C., Worcester, Mass. Was Archbishop Ireland justified in informing the French Government that "The dispersal of the Passionist Fathers will be viewed with sympathy and horror by the American people?" Also, that it "would do much to alter the esteem and respect mutually existing between the two countries"?

We suppose there are Americans who feel in that way, and the Archbishop probably is better acquainted with them than with others; but he overestimates their number and influence when he speaks of them as the American people. It is a common error of people who feel strongly on a question, and are surrounded with men of like feelings, to suppose that all others, or the great majority, are in sympathy with them. Our own opinion is that the great bulk of the American people, including large numbers of Roman Catholics, will recognize the right of the French Government to deal with the religious Orders in its own way. If the work was being done by a king or emperor, we would understand the protest; but it is being done by a government elected by the people, who have specifically endorsed the policy. As thirty-seven millions of the thirty-nine millions in France are nominally Roman Catholics, we must conclude that it is not a religious persecution. The Passionists, we presume, might have been left unmolested if they had complied with the law, which apparently merely required registration and inspection. It is the old question whether the priest and the monk are above the law. The French Government says they are not, and proposes to prove it. The horror of the American people with which the Archbishop tries to scare the French minister, exists chiefly in his own imagination.

Apropos of the controversy over the case of Smoot, the Mormon, who has been elected Senator from Utah, Wm. E. Clark, of Bow, Washington, writes that—

The church Brigham Young founded or led in Utah was not, and is not, the "Church of Christ" as restored to the earth in 1830, on April 6, through Joseph Smith. Joseph Smith taught that "there shall not a man among you have save it be one wife, and concubines he shall have none." If you can find anywhere in any copy of this book any teaching of polygamy, please publish it.

Mrs. Cannon, Middletown, Calif. What is the origin and authority of the American Revision of the Bible?

When the Revision was undertaken in England in 1870, the English scholars to whom the duty was intrusted, were authorized to take counsel with American scholars, and they did so. Many changes were suggested by the Americans which the English scholars could not accept. They were printed, however, at the end of the book. The demand for a Bible in which the American changes should be incorporated in the text has increased, and now, after eighteen years, it is in the hands of the people. Its merit consists in the fact that it is a more accurate translation of the Original than was the Authorized Version.

J. M. S., Newport, R. I. While reading of the terrible suffering in Finland, it occurred to me that a large amount might be raised to augment the relief fund by a dime collection in the churches. If such a proposition was published in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, it would come under the eyes of thousands of church members, who would be glad of the opportunity of contributing.

We give space to our correspondent's suggestion, and hope that many churches may be stirred to help Finland in the way he indicates.

D. H., Martin's Ferry, O. I am asked by an unbeliever to explain how it is that God is represented, on the one hand, as being more merciful than earthly parents; yet, on the other hand, that he casts into hell those who disobey his commands. Can you help me to reconcile the statements?

We do not think there would be inconsistency in the statements, even put in the way you give them. It would, however, be more consistent with the Bible method to say that God offers to all men eternal life and happiness, but that some will not accept them. If you had a son whom you tenderly loved, and had carefully educated and had endowed with all the money you could spare, who persistently

CONTINUED ON NEXT PAGE

AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

What Postum Did There.

A well-known figure at the National Capital is that of an attorney-at-law and solicitor of patents, who has been practicing before the courts and the Department of the Interior at Washington for more than 25 years. The experience of this gentleman with coffee is unusually interesting, for it proves that although the ill results from coffee are slow, they are sure. He says: "I have consumed coffee at my meals for many years, but of late years have been annoyed by deranged stomach and sleeplessness, pains in my head, nervousness and confusion of the mind. About 18 months ago I quit coffee and commenced to use Postum Food Coffee, and have experienced the most pleasing and beneficial results therefrom.

"It has aided my digestion, increased my appetite for healthy food, appeased my stomach, invigorated my brain, cleared and quieted nerves and mind, and enabled me to sleep soundly eight hours out of the twenty-four. It has imparted buoyancy and cheerfulness to my daily life, and caused me to look on the bright side of things in general. It has fitted me to do more brain work than ever before, and I would consider it a calamity to be deprived of its use.

"I look upon Postum as an absolute remedy for the ills that coffee causes. It not only eradicates the ravages of coffee, but stimulates to vigor and healthy action the brain and all the organs of the human body. It has with me and with many of my friends, and this is my authority for the statement." Name furnished by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Mellin's Food

Many a mother has found relief and comfort in the health and happiness of her babe when it was fed with Mellin's Food and fresh milk.

SEND A POSTAL FOR A FREE SAMPLE OF MELLIN'S FOOD.

Mellin's Food Co., Boston, Mass.

When you remodel or build

Make certain of a healthful, perfectly controlled atmosphere throughout the house by installing

Hot Water Heating

the greatest producer of home comfort and convenience. There is freedom from ashes, dirt and coal gases in the living rooms. Makes your house easier to rent or sell, if necessary.

The apparatus is now simply and cheaply erected in old homes. Need not be connected to waterworks system. Write today for valuable information.

AMERICAN RADIATOR COMPANY

Makers of IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators

Dept. E CHICAGO

IDEAL IDEAL IDEAL IDEAL IDEAL IDEAL IDEAL

ONE YEAR'S FREE TRIAL

Kenwood PIANOS

High-grade artistic instruments of unsurpassed musical merit. Sold direct from factory

Saving You from $175 to $375

KENWOOD Concert Grand, as illustrated $175. Cabinet Grand, a regular $250 piano for $115. Shipped anywhere in U. S. on one year's free trial

Guaranteed for 25 years.

A masterpiece of piano construction; perfection in tone. Write for Big Illustrated PIANO and ORGAN CATALOGUE FREE. Kenwood Pianos and Organs cost less than half what dealers and agents charge for inferior instruments.

CASH BUYERS' UNION, Dept. P-18 Chicago, Ill.

Reduces Your Fuel Bill 50

WHEN YOU USE OUR

PERFECT STEAM COOKER WITH DOO

Steam-cooked foods are healthier and more digestible than boiled or baked. Large meals cooked over one burner. Wonderful saving of fuel and labor. Book free. Used on any kind of stove. AGENTS WANTED. $50 to $40 per week can be made.

Also makers of Vapor Bath Cabinets. Write for Catalogue.

OHIO STEAM COOKER CO., 27 Ontario Building, - - TOLEDO, OH

Peerless Steam Cooke and SANITARY WATER STIL

Combines two valuable articles in one. Cooks a whole dinner over one burner. Limits no odors. Cheap meat made juicy and tender. Reduces fuel bill. Whistles for water, and can be used as a Perfect Water Still for making the best germ proof drinking water. Imitated by others but never equaled. Agents wanted.

Peerless Cooker Co., Buffalo N.

MAKE MONEY EVENINGS

Men employed during the day can make money evenings giving public exhibitions with MAGIC LANTERN STEREOPTICON. Little capital needed. Write for particulars. 200-page catalogue FREE. McAllister, Mfg. Optician, 49 Nassau St., N. Y.

MALTA-CERE

THE Health Food.

Our Mail-Bag

CONTINUED FROM PRECEDING PAGE

lrank to excess, used foul and profane language, and associated with the vilest people—would there not come a time when, for the sake of your wife and daughters, you would say to him, "You cannot live in my home, shocking and disgusting your mother and sisters"? He would probably say he did not want to live there; he would be happier elsewhere—as he would. No matter how merciful you may be, you would have to assign him some other home, unless he would quit his evil ways and behave. You might follow him with entreaties and warnings, as God by his servants, does sinners, and with assurances, such as God gives, that if he will only give up his evil ways, all the past shall be forgiven—but you would have to make that condition, that he should repent and reform. What can you do? What can God do more than this? Where, then, is the inconsistency?

G. K., Winamac, Ind., writes:

In regard to problem of squaring circle: Diameter of any circle multiplied by the decimal .886227, will equal side of square containing same area. This will be found more nearly correct than modern rules for finding dimensions of circles.

No. 1. Required side of square? Diameter of circle being 80 ft. .886227 x 80 = 70.88816 ft. Proof: 70.8 x 80 x .7854 = 502.65600 sq. ft. Square root of 502.5600 = 70.868 ft.

No. 2. What is side of square? Diameter of circle being 55 ft. .886227 x 55 = 48.742485 ft. Proof: 48.7 x 55 x .7854 = 2375.8350 sq. ft. Square root of 2375.8350 = 48.742 ft.

Abbie C., Jamestown, N. Dak. I am isolated from church, and no words can tell what the sermons in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD are to me. I enjoy them all.

We are always pleased to receive letters of this kind (which is a sample of many that reach us every week) because they show that the readers who live in lonely localities, many miles from the nearest church, find in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, with its sermons, Sunday School, and other religious features, the material at hand for a simple and profitable Home Religious Service. We know that this is now done in very many homes in neighborhoods where there are no church privileges.

J. W. M., Rockvale, Mont. Is there any ground for the contention of certain persons who are preaching here, that we should observe Saturday instead of Sunday as the Sabbath?

The best advice we can give you is that which the Apostle Paul gave his church when it was being similarly worried by literalists, who tried to bring the people back under Jewish law: "Let no man therefore judge you in meat or in drink, or in respect of a holy day, or of the new moon, or of the Sabbath" (Col. 2: 16). In observing Sunday as "the Lord's day," we honor Christ by showing that we have entered into the new covenant. It would be impossible for the preachers you refer to, to prove that Saturday was the original Sabbath, or to tell a Hawaiian when his Sabbath should be observed, in his longitude. Do not suppose that God is concerned with such trivialities. He regards the spirit and motive, and you may be sure is well pleased that we set apart for his service the day on which we believe his Son rose from the dead, and placed the seal on our redemption.

M. G., Binghamton, N. Y. How much money was spent in the years of 1901 and 1902 for drink?

The nation's drink bill in 1900 was $1,059,563,787. We have not the figures for later years.

M. J. S., Iberia, Mo. Is it true, as I have heard it affirmed, that intelligent people of today are becoming more and more of the opinion that religion and dancing may go hand in hand, if properly indulged?

We believe there is no such tendency on the part of earnest Christian people anywhere. They still regard dancing, and its evil of promiscuous acquaintanceship, as a snare to the feet of innocence, and the ballroom as objectionable both on moral and hygienic grounds. "Time-killing amusements" should not be allowed to invade the Christian life. Worldly people will talk of "liberal views" and will tell you that there is no harm in the dance, and that those who are striving to follow Christ are not "up to date;" but they are deceivers. Send to the Bible Institute Colportage Association, Chicago, for a little book on Popular Amusements.

Mr. H. P. Main, of the firm of Biglow & Main, music publishers, New York, writes:

I notice a reference in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD regarding the verse:

When we've been there ten thousand years,
Bright shining as the sun, etc.

I have this in Hymns and Spiritual Songs, etc., compiled by John C. Totten, New York, 1817, ninth edition (first edition, 1815). The first stanza of hymn containing above, is:

Jerusalem my happy home,
O how I long for thee,
When will my sorrows have an end,
Thy joys when shall I see.

There are eight stanzas. In Zion Songster, by Thomas Mason, 1831, there are twelve stanzas, and the above is the eleventh. Totten omits the sixth, ninth, tenth and twelfth stanzas, also the chorus. I have not found the verse named in any English collection, and presume it was composed and added to the old hymn by some of our early camp-meeting writers.

Rev. D. C. T., West Rupert, Vt., writes: In current issue (Feb. 11) in response to query from Jess, Plainfield, N. J., you ascribe the division of the Bible into verses, to Robert Stephens. May I suggest that this is only in part correct. The entire Bible was divided into chapters by Cardinal Hugo, 1240. The Old Testament into verses by Rabbi Nathan in 1445, and the New Testament only was added by Robert Stephens in the sixteenth century.

Forrest H. B., Waterville, Me. I hear much said about the North Pole, but do not hear anything said about the South Pole. Why is there no attraction for explorers there?

There have been several exploring expeditions to the Antarctic and some excellent work has been accomplished, but no party has reached the South Pole, thus far.

W. A. N., South Haven, Mich. What is the place of the short story in literature?

It occupies a very important place. It is the best vehicle for the single episode or incident, and by far the best for a quick, dramatic climax. At the same time, it is the most difficult. Many writers of fiction are too diffuse to excel in the short story. Frank Stockton, Bret Harte, Edward Everett Hale, and Octave Thanet, have written some of the best short stories in American literature.

The RESCUE HOMES OF HOLLAND

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 155

bject of the house, and of the children's home attached to it, is not only to rescue the mothers, but, if necessary, to provide for the children. As far as possible, the with respectable families. The secretary of the institution, in a recent report, puts a question to which surely only one answer is possible: "Is it not the duty

"MAGDALENE HOME" AND HOME FOR INFANTS

others are made to contribute to their children's maintenance. On a recent date, here were twenty-five mothers and sixty-one children in the house. After early childhood is over, the children are passed to the other institutions or boarded of every Christian to shield these delicate plants from rough weather, to nurture and train them?"

BARONNE SUZETTE DE ZUYLEN DE NYEVELT

The Hague, Netherlands.

CORNISH PIANOS and ORGANS

Free in Your Home for a Year.

For over 50 years the people's favorite instruments. Unexcelled in appearance. Unequaled in tone and touch. Sold exclusively to the general public direct from the Cornish factories at first cost, saving one-half.

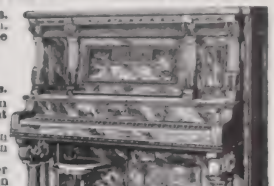
250,000 IN USE.

You advance no money.
You shoulder no risk.
We guarantee satisfaction.

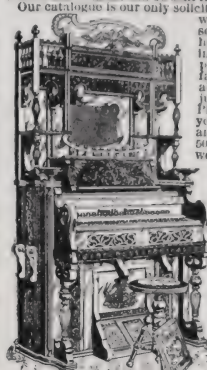
An offer from maker to buyer which is unequaled in generosity of terms and which puts a fine instrument within the reach of every purse.

Our Souvenir Catalogue, containing a full description of all the fifty different styles of Cornish American Pianos and Organs, will be sent free.

Our catalogue is our only solicitor; no agent or dealer will worry you; you can see exactly what we have for sale and every instrument is marked in plain figures at lowest factory cost, no humbug about prices; you know just what a Cornish Piano or Organ will cost you for Cash or Credit and we have a scale to suit all pockets and any circumstances. For 50 years the people have bought Cornish Pianos and Organs and we have a Quarter of a Million satisfied customers.



CASH OR INSTALLMENTS.



CASH OR INSTALLMENTS.

FREE YOUR MUSICAL EDUCATION, A PRICELESS GIFT.

We will present to every purchaser of a Cornish Piano or Organ a certificate entitling the holder to a two years' scholarship in the United States School of Music. Tuition to begin immediately instrument is purchased. Pupils can commence at any stage of their studies. The most satisfactory plan of Home Education ever conceived. Success absolutely guaranteed.

Full particulars with every Cornish Catalogue.

You can be taught in your own home, taking your own time and for two years you will receive absolutely free tuition from the best professors of music. A Cornish Piano or Organ at factory cost and a Free Musical Education is a combination unparalleled. Take advantage of it now. Remember the Cornish Plan gives you One Year's Free Trial and Two Years' Free Tuition.

CORNISH CO., Washington, New Jersey.

VOSE PIANOS

Have been Established over 51 Years

Through half a century they have stood for purity of Tone and accuracy of Construction.

All the knowledge and skill acquired by fifty years of research and experience are put into the Tone and Construction of the Vose to-day.

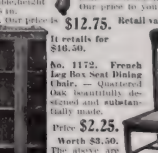
By our easy payment plan, every family in moderate circumstances can own a fine piano. We allow a liberal price for old instruments in exchange, and deliver the piano in your house free of expense. You can deal with us at a distant point the same as in Boston. Send for our descriptive catalogue H, which gives full information.

VOSE & SONS PIANO CO.
161 BOYLSTON STREET, BOSTON, MASS.

Bishop Furniture is shipped anywhere on approval, allowed in your home five days to be returned at our expense and money refunded if not all you expect. We prepay freight to all points east of the Mississippi River and north of Tennessee line, allowing freight that far toward points beyond.

No. 1800. Quartered Oak China Closet. The ends are double strength carved glass, shelves adjustable height 59 in., width 36 in. Strongly made. Our price is $12.75. Retail value, $18.50. It retails for $40.50.

No. 1801. Oak Dining Table. Seats 8 extended. Our price to you is $7.50. Retail value, $12.00.



No. 1172. French Leg Box Seat Dining Chair. — Quartered Oak beautifully decorated and substantially made. Price $2.25. Worth $3.50. The above are made in Golden, Flemish, Weathered or Antwerp finish.

One of 40 Styles

OUR BIG CATALOGUE FREE.
BISHOP FURNITURE CO.
23-35 Ionia St., Grand Rapids, Mich.

The Wonderful Mission of the Internal Bath.

Do you know that many of the greatest physicians endorse and prescribe this treatment? Also that the following distinguished people are among its patrons: Governor Pingree, of Michigan, ex-Governor Goodell, of Vermont, U. S. Senator A. P. Gorman, of Maryland, General T. S. Peck, G. A. R., Vermont, Miles Devine, ex-City Attorney, Chicago, Ill., Rev. J. Lowery, St. Mary's Church, Troy, N. Y., Rev. A. N. Keigwin, 1025 Park Place, Wilmington, Del., Rev. Dr. John Potts, Victoria College, Toronto, Canada, Rev. W. L. Strange, New Plymouth, Idaho, and hosts of others? Do you know that it goes to the root of and eradicates scores of the most troublesome and dangerous diseases that afflict mankind? Do you know that an occasional Internal Bath is a better preventive of illness and preserver of health than any other single means?

The record of its benefits reads like a revelation to those hitherto unacquainted with it. It is used by means of the "J. B. L. Cascade," the only scientific appliance for this purpose by hundreds of the best known people in New York and by innumerable ministers, lawyers, and other persons whose intelligence gives unequivocal weight to their testimony.

It is known that seven-tenths of all disease arises from the retention of foreign matter in the human system; also that the greatest part of this waste is held in the colon, which is Nature's sewer. Hence, the flushing of this sewer removes the greatest cause of disease. While immeasurably the best treatment for constipation, indigestion, etc., there is scarcely any known disease for which the "J. B. L. Cascade" may not be confidently prescribed.

We want to send free to every person, sick or well, a simple statement setting forth this treatment. It contains matter which must interest every thinking person. If you live in New York you are earnestly invited to call, but if you can not call, write for our pamphlet "The What, The Why, The Way," which will be sent free on application, together with our Great Special Offer for this month only.

TYRRELL'S HYGIENIC INSTITUTE,
Clerk 10-A, 1562 Broadway, New York.
(Between 46th and 47th Streets.)

CASH for Your PROPERTY

We can sell your farm, residence, factory, lots or business quickly for cash, no matter where located. Send description and learn how. Money to loan on good mortgages. Established in 1885. Offices in principal cities. Highest references. A. A. ROTTKER & CO., 934 Real Estate Trust Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa.

FENCE! STRONGEST MADE. Bull Strong, Chicken-Tight. Sold to the Farmer at Wholesale Prices. Fully Warranted. Catalog Free. COILED SPRING FENCE CO. Box 47 Winchester, Indiana, U. S. A.

MALTA-CERES
THE Health Food.

OUR SUNDAY HOUR WITH THE LITTLE FOLKS

CHILDREN, we wish you could know how certain letters received from small friends, who are not prize-winners, are valued in this office. We give extracts from a few of many which show that members of our congregation of little folks really have an interest in this Department, and in the efforts made to profitably entertain them, apart from the winning of prizes:

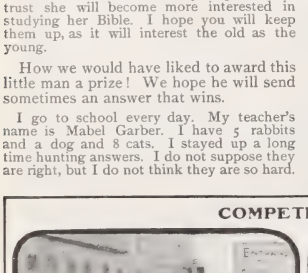
Winifred Burdrick, Oregon. My grandma gives us "Curious Questions," besides those we see in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. I think this an interesting way to study the Scriptures—you find out so many more things than the answers. I am going to put all my questions and answers in a book. I want to see how many I can answer in a year.—Mattie A. Dexter, Nova Scotia. I have enjoyed the Children's Page very much.—Mrs. A. C. Matthews, Pittsfield, Ills. My little grandchild is much interested in your puzzles. I trust she will become more interested in studying her Bible. I hope you will keep them up, as it will interest the old as the young.

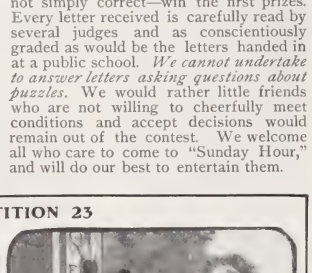
How we would have liked to award this little man a prize! We hope he will send sometimes an answer that wins.

I go to school every day. My teacher's name is Mabel Garber. I have 5 rabbits and a dog and 8 cats. I stayed up a long time hunting answers. I do not suppose they are right, but I do not think they are so hard. Well, I guess I must go to bed. Charles Whisler.—P. S. I have 4 brothers and three sisters. I have 2 nephews and six nieces. I go to Sunday School.

This week we add to the Picture Puzzles a test more intellectual and profitable than simply guessing the names. We remind our little readers, too, of the announcement made February 4, that, in awarding consolation prizes, each child will be in competition only with children of his or her own State, territory or province. In doing this, we follow suggestions made by many who thought the plan fairer, educational advantages being unequal in different sections. We would be glad to observe the same plan in awarding first prizes, but it is manifestly out of the question for us to give each week as many watches as there are States, territories and provinces. Hence, the best answers—please observe we say best, not simply correct—win the first prizes. Every letter received is carefully read by several judges and as conscientiously graded as would be the letters handed in at a public school. We cannot undertake to answer letters asking questions about puzzles. We would rather little friends who are not willing to cheerfully meet conditions and accept decisions would remain out of the contest. We welcome all who care to come to "Sunday Hour," and will do our best to entertain them.

COMPETITION 23





What two proper names mentioned in Scripture do these pictures represent?

Write "Competition 23" plainly across the top of a postal card or sheet of paper; next, your name, age and address; then the answers. For each of the two answers employ but one word—the proper name which you think the pictures represent. Don't quote Scripture passages; simply state the name. Below the answer, write, in not over twenty words, what, in your judgment, are the most important facts concerning the subjects of these pictures? Read the rules given below.

Competition 24

Curious Questions

1. What country had a king without knowing it, and who was the king?

2. What event, in a time of peace, was hailed by a nation with evidences of great joy and great anguish?

3. What biscuit of modern use is mentioned in the Bible?

4. What people sold themselves and their homes to their king?

Write "Competition 24" plainly across the top of your postal card or sheet of paper; next, your name, age, and address. Answer as many of the questions as you can, writing in each case the number of the question (not the question itself) before its answer. Answers to all four questions must not exceed fifty words in the aggregate. Read the following rules.

RULES AND PRIZES

Contests are not open to competitors over fourteen years of age. Only one weekly competition is open to any one person. If you answer both Competition 23 and 24 you forfeit your chances therefor. Do not send two solutions. There is no objection to asking the help of others, but each competitor must send in the answers in his or her own handwriting. Should you use paper instead of a postal card, be sure to write on the envelope on which you enclose your answer "Competition 23" or "Competition 24," as the case may be. Do not write on both sides of a sheet of paper.

All answers must be mailed not later than March 2, 1903. Address, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, Little Folks' Department, Bible House, New York.

Prizes—For the best answer to Competition 23, a handsome silver watch, lady's or gentleman's. For the best answer to Competition 24, a handsome silver watch, lady's or gentleman's. For the next best answer from each State, territory and Canadian province sending responses to competitions, a beautiful book as consolation prize.

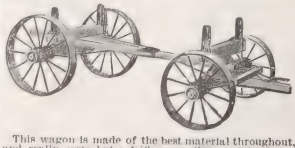
Answers to Competition of Jan. 28

The answers to Competition 15, published January 28, are: Picture Puzzle—1. Achor. 2. Kedesh. Answers to Curious Questions, Competition 16, are: 1. Ahaz owned the first timepiece mentioned in Scripture. II. Kings 20: 11, and Isa. 38: 8. 2. The first jeweler

CONTINUED ON PAGE 172

Farm Wagon only $21.95.

In order to introduce their Low Metal Wheels with Wide Tires, the Empire Manufacturing Company, Quincy, Ills., have placed upon the market a Farmer's Handy Wagon, that is only 25 inches high, fitted with 24 and 30 inch wheels with 4-inch tire, and sold for only $21.95.



This wagon is made of the best material throughout, and really costs but a trifle more than a set of new wheels and fully guaranteed for one year. Catalogue giving a full description will be mailed upon application by the Empire Manufacturing Co., Quincy, Ills., who also will furnish metal wheels at low prices made any size and width of tire to fit any axle.

The Comfort Age

Comes to every woman—the day when she longs for the perfect ease and comfort afforded by the EQUIPOISE WAIST. A soft, hygienic garment in keeping with the laws of nature; that supports the body and bust without pressure, and forms a pleasing outline for the dress. Every mother should send for the free book giving sizes, prices and description of the

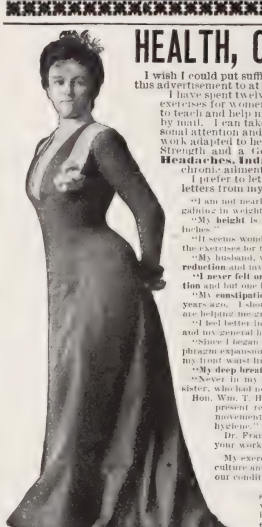
Equipoise Waist

The reading of this book is the first step toward the perfect health of womanhood.

The Equipoise Waist is sold by leading retailers or will be sent prepaid BY MAIL.

Made of fine wash material that will last for years. Send your corset size and bust measurement when ordering.

THE FERRIS BROS. COMPANY,
341 Broadway, New York



HEALTH, CLEAR SKIN AND A GOOD FIGURE

I wish I could put sufficient emphasis into these words to induce every woman who sees this advertisement to at least write to me.

I have spent twelve years in prescribing reducing, developing and curative exercises for women in person and my marvelous success in my work and my desire to teach and help more women induced me to take up the course of physical culture by mail. I can take only a limited number of pupils because I give each one my personal attention and no two lessons are exactly alike; each woman receives just the work adapted to her individual needs no more. I know that I can give you Health, Strength and a Good Figure; relieve you from Nervousness, Constipation, Headaches, Indigestion, Torpid Liver, Obesity, Leanness, and all so-called chronic ailments, and build up women who are run down.

I prefer to let my students speak for me and the following extracts are from letters from my pupils:

"I am not nearly so nervous. My chest expansion is four inches and the best of all I am gaining in weight."

"My height is increased a good inch. My hip measurement has reduced from 44 to 38 inches."

"It seems wonderful that that the exercises could have helped me so much in a short time—the exercises for the eyes are so good as are all your other exercises."

"My husband, who has been away for six weeks, was so surprised and delighted over my reduction and my improved figure."

"I never felt or looked as well as at the present time. I have not had an attack of indigestion and but one headache in six weeks and compared with the previous weeks it is a miracle."

"My constipation is entirely relieved. I only wish I had known of your physical culture years ago. I should have been saved 10 or 12 years of suffering. Your breathing exercises are helping me greatly."

"I feel better in every way—lighter, brighter and a desire to live. My nerves are better and my general health improved. My carriage is very materially better."

"Since I began working with you I have increased my chest expansion 3 inches, my diaphragm expansion from 2 to 5 inches, my bust measurement from 32 to 36. I have lengthened my front waist line 3 inches."

"My deep breathing has given my skin a new life and color."

"Never in my life have I been as well as I am now, and I am indeed grateful to you. My sister, who had not seen me for three months, was surprised at my changed appearance."

Hon. Wm. T. Harris, LL. D., U. S. Commissioner of Education, says: "It is the glory of the present revival of physical exercises that it is led by educated physicians. It is a new movement of the highest importance. It means the end of the era of quackery in hygiene."

Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus, D.D., LL.D., writes me: "Your thorough preparation for your work and your high aim must surely give you a worthy success."

My exercises cultivate the distinguished carriage and bearing which at once bespeaks culture and refinement. They cannot do this work for women. They do not understand our conditions nor limitations.

Write to me. For 10 cents I will send you full information regarding my system and testimonial letters from numbers of women who have worked with me; an instructive and interesting booklet, and a card for your dressing-table showing the correct line of the woman's figure. Yours for a body expressing perfect health, perfect grace and perfect womanhood.

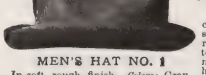
Susanna Cocroft, Dept. 171 Washington St., Chicago.

NOTE: Miss Cocroft is President of the Physical Culture Extension work in America. She needs no further introduction to the Public.

Write for Free Sewing Machine Catalog.

AT $8.65 to $26.75 we offer for sale the largest assortment in the world of light running and noiseless, pivot and ball-bearing sewing machines that do perfect work. We have drop-head, drop-desk, upright and automatic styles in plain or richly carved cabinets, all fitted with our famous "Faultless" extra high and extra long arm heads, which possess all improvements of $40 to $60 machines and many valuable improvements controlled exclusively by us. OUR FREE SEWING MACHINE CATALOG illustrates and describes our machines in detail, tells all about the mechanism and woodwork, gives hundreds of testimonials from people using our machines and demonstrates decisively that our machines at $8.65 to $26.75 equal any other machines at $40 to $60, no matter what the name may be. We guarantee our machines 20 years, ship on easy terms, C. O. D., subject to examination and allow 30 days' free trial in your home. For your own good you should not buy a machine anywhere before seeing our catalog. JOHN M. SMYTH CO. 150 to 159 W. Madison St., CHICAGO, ILL. Write to-day.

A 50-Cent Hat by Mail



MEN'S HAT NO. 1

In soft, rough finish. Colors: Gray Mix, Brown Mix, and Black Mix.

Either of these hats sent, postpaid, on receipt of 50 cents in cash, postal order or stamps. Money back if not satisfactory. We refer to The First National Bank of Middletown, N. Y. We are hat manufacturers and make the following offer to introduce these hats and our other lines of Men's, Boys', and Women's Hats in every town in the United States. Send for catalogue.

MEN'S HAT NO. 2

In smooth finish. Colors: Black, Brown, Maple, Steel, and Pearl.

MIDDLETOWN HAT COMPANY, 44 Mill St., Middletown, N. Y.

INDIVIDUAL Communion Cups

SEND FOR OUR FREE BOOK

Why do you permit a custom at the communion table which you would not tolerate in your own home? We will send a list of over 1500 churches where our Individual Communion Cups are used. Trial outfit free to any church.

SANITARY COMMUNION OUTFIT CO., Dept. 7, Rochester, N. Y.

Come Here! When in search of health and rest for mind and body. Your physician will agree. Booklet free.

STEUBEN SANITARIUM, Hornellsville, N. Y.

FREE HAVE YOU A PHOTO of some dear one which you would like reproduced in an artistic manner? If so, send your name and address and we will send you our illustrated catalogue and premium list, for club-raisers. also a beautiful hand-painted sample of our PHOTO-BUTTON WORK FREE. Address, SUNBEAM STUDIO, 1532 Third Ave., New York.

PHARISEE

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 167

eren't thar. Course though we uns all ent runnin' soon's we heerd the shootin'. ncle Dan'l an' Uncle Ike they tried t' t Uncle Joe t' give up, but he wouldn't, ' when the men begun t' try t' take 'im, begun t' fight, an' Uncle Ike an Uncle an'l they nachally wanted t' help Uncle e an' theys all killt: an' the men that me atter 'em too, an' the hosses the men d got skeert at the shootin' an' they oke loose an' went back to the stashin, ' some men come out t' see what the atter was, an' they brung Uncle Joe an' ncle Ike an' Uncle Dan'l up to the big use, an' laid 'em on the beds, an' there t Gran'pap by the hath—never littin' his ad ner sayin' narry word—an' Granny in' from one bed t' tother, an' Aunt ary Ellen an' Aunt Lucindy an' the ungsters all a takin' on. Hit mighty gh put Marth' an' me crazy.

"Nex' mornin', we couldn't find Granny owhurs. Hit rained in the night an' was uddy. So me an' Marth' went out an' icked 'er. We follered 'er plum t' the 'still-house, an' thar we found 'er sorter ll over on a big rock—dead. They's all ryit at onct, an' Gran'pap ain't never an at hissef sence."

Shortly after Fairy had thus unburdened herself, she was absent from school for veral days.

On Saturday, I went over to learn the use, and she said her Gran'pap wasn't ll. "He ain't sey sick, jes' punnyin' un', an' gitten weaker ever' day an' eat mighty nigh nuthin' till I hate t' go off leave 'im; an' 'pears like, too, he hates hev me go, so I 'lowed I'd stay here an' nd Gran'pap, an' larn my book whilst 's sleepin'."

I assured her that she did exactly right, d bade her come to me at any time if I uld help her in any way. A few days er she came in great haste to the school use, asking one of the older boys to go the station for the doctor, and begging to go home with her.

"Gran'pap acts so quare, 'pears like I l skeery t' go back alone," she exined.

As we were going through the woods she pped suddenly, pushed back her sunnet, and exclaimed: "Gran'pap's done e me bouten the money an' all that. He s half of 't b'longs t'me, an' t'other f t' Marth'. I whist Marth' had a an thar, he talked plum purty. I'd ne sent Bud Hendricks down in the e arter 'er, but they ain' come yit."

When we got to the house, Gran'pap emed to be quietly sleeping. The doctor on came, and a little later the grandughter and other friends; but he never ised again, and before morning passed er the river.

* * *

Ten years have passed. A neat buildg, that serves as schoolhouse and urch, stands upon the site of the old schoolhouse. Nearby is a cozy cot e from which, as the bell rings, a stalrt man with books under his arm, om you instinctively know to be the ster, comes forth. The mistress of the ttage has come out for a parting word, l as he turns for a last good-bye, we ognize our old friends — Abe and Larisee.

ANNA ELIZABETH SCOTT DROKE.

CHASTENED

What I do, thou knowest not now, but thou s't know hereafter."

CAN we not trust the Almighty God,
The giver of all good,
To scourge us with his chastening rod?
If we had faith, we could.
He took his own begotten Son,
From walking in the light
Of heaven supernal, where are none
But spirits pure and bright.

We know not why this priceless gift
Should be the only way;
'Tis simply ours our souls to lift,
In meek, adoring lay.
Could our imagination paint
The joy of being with God,
We would not doubt, or sink, or faint,
But kiss the chastening rod.

We do not want to give our best—
Care not to suffer pain—
Have mercy on us, Father, lest
We miss the future gain!
Methinks, triumphant over pain
And loss, He'd love to see
Our faith march blindfold, and thus gain
A grand eternity. A. W.

We will mail you
THE SATURDAY EVENING POST
Every Week from the time your subscription is received
TO JULY 1, 1903
For Only 50c

STORIES OF AMERICAN LIFE
By OWEN WISTER

SKOOKUM SMITH AND FRISCO BALDY is the title of the next story in the series that Mr. Wister is now writing for this magazine. Skookum and Frisco are friends of The Virginian, and are the heroes of some surprising adventures.

By WILL PAYNE

TALES OF BLUE RIDGE: Six independent stories, which follow the rising fortunes of a printer's devil, and show how success and fame were won in the early days of the West.

By GEORGE ADE

TALES OF A COUNTRY TOWN: Only a humorist like George Ade could find a village boasting six characters with histories as plausible, and yet as absurdly funny, as those told in this series.

By EMERSON HOUGH

THE LAW AT HEART'S DESIRE: Tells how Justice first got a foothold in a little mining town and how her champion, Dan Anderson, secured the acquittal of his friend Curly, at whose door was laid the sudden death of a pig.

By F. Hopkinson Smith

Another popular contributor to the magazine is Mr. F. Hopkinson Smith. His next tale, entitled A POINT OF HONOR, is a clever, humorous story, which centres around a French duel over an absurd misunderstanding.

THE SATURDAY EVENING POST
Is a Superbly Illustrated Weekly Magazine.
Half a million copies sold every week. Everybody is reading it. The regular subscription price is $2.00 a year. In clubs of 4 or more, $1.25 each. All newsdealers have it at 5 cents the copy.
The Curtis Publishing Company
Philadelphia, Pa.

The "Best" Light
is a portable 100 candle power light costing only 2cts per week. Makes and burns its own gas. Brighter than electricity or acetylene and cheaper than kerosene. No Dirt. No Grease. No Odor. Over 100 styles. Lighted instantly with a match. Every lamp warranted. Agents Wanted Everywhere
THE "BEST" LIGHT CO.
3-70 E. 5th Street, CANTON, OHIO.

A Flying Machine at Last
Scientific kite-flying within the reach of all. A marvel of simplicity. Any boy or girl can fly it. Tandems delight both young and old.
Special Introductory Size by mail, 10c., 3 for 25c.
Agents wanted everywhere
Zimmerman Flying Machine Co.
26 Wood Street, Fremont, Ohio.

ZOBO
The Musical Wonder
Solid metal reeds (each)
Sample sent prepaid for 25c.
You Can Play it Without Being Taught
Entertains Everybody Everywhere
For Church, Sunday-School or Home Assemblies. Illustrated catalogue of Amusing Home Entertainments, free.
Strauss Mfg. Co., 150 W. 14th St., Dept. 18 New York

$33.00
California, Oregon, Washington.
From Chicago via the Chicago and North-Western Ry. every day to Ogden, Salt Lake City, Los Angeles and San Francisco. Daily tourist sleeping cars Chicago to San Francisco via Omaha and Portland (Ore.). Personally conducted excursions every week. Choice of routes. Have through sleeping car ready for occupancy at Chicago Union Depot at 9 P.M. every Tuesday and Thursday. Time and rates via K. railway to the Missouri River. All agents sell tickets via The North-Western Line. For full particulars address W. B. KNISKERN, Passenger Traffic Manager, 22 5th Ave., Chicago, Ill.

BUILDING BONES.

Of Great Importance That Children Have Proper Food.

A child will grow up with weak and small bones or strong and sturdy frame, depending on the kind of food given.

That's why feeding the youngsters is of such great importance. The children do not select the food—the responsibility rests with the parent or guardian, or with you if you select the food for a boy or girl.

The scientific selection of this food should begin as early as possible. That's when the delicate little plant needs the tenderest care. A well known lady of Calistoga, Calif., says: "About two years ago my little niece was taken sick. When medical aid was called one physician pronounced the case curvature of the spine; another called it softening of the bones and gave but little hope of her recovery. For weeks she had been failing before her parents thought it anything but trouble from her teething.

"She had been fed on mushes and soft foods of different kinds, but at last her stomach could retain scarcely anything. At this time she had become a weak little skeleton of humanity that could not much more than stand alone.

"The doctors changed her food several times until finally she was put on Grape-Nuts, which she relished from the first and ate at almost every meal, and her recovery has been wonderful. She has been gaining ever since in strength and weight.

"She has eaten dozens of packages of Grape-Nuts in the last year and a half and the child is now a rosy-cheeked and healthy little girl, still clinging to her Grape-Nuts.

"It is plain the food has saved her life by giving her body the needed material to keep it well and the bone material to build with. Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

A LITERARY LANDMARK

The Smith Premier Typewriter is used exclusively for cataloging & indexing purposes in the Great Carnegie Library at Pittsburg Pa.

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE FREE

THE SMITH PREMIER TYPEWRITER CO.
SYRACUSE, N.Y., U.S.A.

MONEY SAVED!

Your savings should secure for you a rate of interest as high as absolute safety of the principal permits.

5 per Cent. Guaranteed to our depositors by the earnings of an investment business strictly supervised by the New York Banking Department.

Prominent Clergymen and professional men publicly endorse our methods.

Inquiry will bring you prompt and satisfying particulars.

Capital and Surplus - - $1,100,000.
Assets - - - - - - - $1,600,000.

INDUSTRIAL SAVINGS & LOAN CO.,
1131 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

We Want Women Workers to be Independent

by selling to the best families in your locality our Toilet Preparations, Flavoring Extracts, Teas, Spices, Baking Powder, Lemon Syrup, Coffee, Patent Pickle Dish, Washing Crystal, Handsome Sample Case Free. Write to-day for full details and exclusive agency.
THE KENKER-BROOKE MFG. CO., - Dept. D, Cleveland, O.

GEMS FROM NEW BOOKS

A Story of Bible Times*

VIVID pictures of Jewish life, as it was in the time of Ahaz and Hezekiah, are contained in a story by Abraham Mappu, which has been translated into English by B. A. M. Schapiro, editor of The People, the Land and the Book. Mappu's stories have attained widespread popularity in Jewish homes, and Mr. Schapiro's translation of this one will prove whether they will be as congenial to the taste of the larger public. Mappu was evidently a diligent student of the times and scenes among which his story is laid. We know enough of that period of Jewish history from the historical and prophetic books of the Bible to believe that it was possible for such crimes as he describes to have been perpetrated, with comparative impunity. It was a time of splendor and of luxury; but the good king, anxious as he was to lead his people to God, could not stem the tide of wickedness which had gained impetus under his predecessors. There were conspiracies, and corrupt judges to defeat the ends of justice in spite of the king.

Mappu's story is full of romance, abounds in wonderful adventure of hair-breadth escapes and of astonishing coincidences. If we complain that in real life the good characters we know are not so good, nor the bad so utterly bad as those in Mappu's book; or that good people in adversity are not delivered in such extraordinary ways, we must remember that the book is a romance, and that the author can manipulate events to suit his purpose, and has the use of all the colors for the portraits of his characters. It must be said, as has been said for a certain school of painting, that there are strong definitions in it. The author does not use any delicate grays, but always black or white, so there is no possibility of confusion in the reader's mind. Admirers of the romantic school in fiction, if they can keep themselves from looking to the end of this book when they are half way through, will certainly read to the end, to know how the plot is unravelled.

In the Days of Isaiah.* By Abraham Mappu Translated from the Hebrew by B. A. M. Schapiro. Published at 345 East Third Street, New York. Pp. 303. Price $1.50.

BOOK RECEIVED

A Wanderer's Legend, a new and interesting setting of the ancient story of The Wandering Jew, by Maxwell Somerville. Pp. 243; cloth binding. Drexel Biddle, Philadelphia, publishers.

Announcement of Prize-Winners

SEE ARTICLE ON PAGE 170

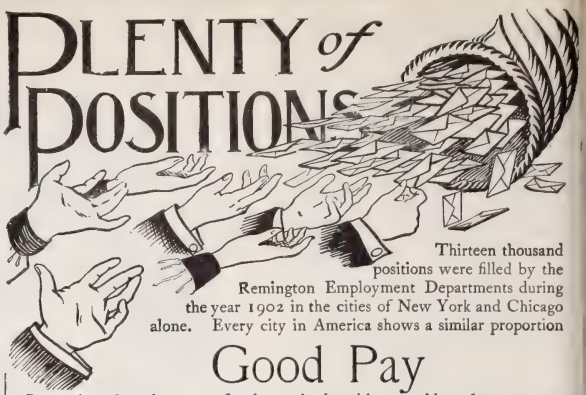
mentioned was Bezaleel. Ex. 35: 30-33. 3. Curious works in gold, silver, brass, wood-carving, all manner of work, of the engraver, and of the cunning workman and of the embroiderer in blue, and in purple, in scarlet, and in fine linen, and of the weaver; all curious and cunning work. Ex. 35: 31-35. 4. Any fugitive seeking to cross the fords of the Jordan and pronouncing "Shibboleth" "Sibboleth" was slain by the Gileadites, who had just conquered the Ephraimites in battle. This word was chosen by the Gileadites as the test, because they knew that in the dialect of the Ephraimites, "sh" was sounded as if it were simply "s." Judges 12: 5, 6.

For the best answer to "Picture Puzzles" of Jan. 28, Jessie Hughes, Edgar, Neb., receives a silver watch; for the best answer to "Curious Questions" of same date, Rose Hickey, Yuma, Ariz., receives a silver watch. Each of the following receives a book:

Second best answers to Picture Puzzle Contest: Adams, Ruth, Kans.; Andrews, Frank, Calif.; Brown, Florence E., Mass.; Canburn, Ruth, Mich.; Clouston, Agnes, Can.; Daley, T. L., N.Y.; Dobbs, H. Cloyd, Ill.; Eastman, Kenneth D., Oreg.; Eddy, Jesse I., Mich.; Forsberg, Ruth, Wis.; Gaines, Henry F., Wash.; Gardner, Ruth, Minn.; George, Sylvia, N. Dak.; Goodrich, Grace C., Conn.; Hood, Muriel Cale, Can.; Horsman, Annie C., Va.; Jackson, Catherine M., Ohio; McCrea, Frances, Ind.; McMillan, Margaret, Mo.; Penwarden, Pauline, Pa.; Rankin, Marguerite, Tenn.; Rodman, Giselle A., Nebr.; Severens, Martha G., Vt.; Vance, Esther, Mass.; Ware, Mary C., N. J.

Second best answers to "Curious Questions": Allis, Helen L., Vt.; Barrows, Winfield, Calif.; Carlisle, Cedric, Fla.; Cathers, Mildred B., N. J.; Cooke, Mary E., Kans.; Cooner, James C., N. C.; Davis, Bessie L., L. I., N. Y.; Doud, Edna L., N. Y.; Dumont, Anna G., N. Y.; Farlinger, Anderson C., N. Y.; Gulbranson, Marie Agnes, Ill.; Hall, Marian, Conn.; Hamilton, Rosella, Wash.; Hannum, Marietta, Ill.; Hodgson, Ruth, Del.; Kline, Eugene, Pa., Larkin, Floyd J., Calif.; Lundberg, Gertrude A., Wis.; McMurdo, Roy, P. E. I., Can.; Macfarlane, Wilhelmina, Md.; Pickett, Lee Francis, Wis.; Whitmer, Candace, Pa.; Wilkinson, Cornelia, Va.; Witcomb, Eleanor M., Wis.; Young, Frank H., Que., Can.

PLENTY of POSITIONS



Thirteen thousand positions were filled by the Remington Employment Departments during the year 1902 in the cities of New York and Chicago alone. Every city in America shows a similar proportion

Good Pay

Remember that the user of a low-priced writing machine always wants a low-priced stenographer. The best positions are secured by the competent operators of the Remington

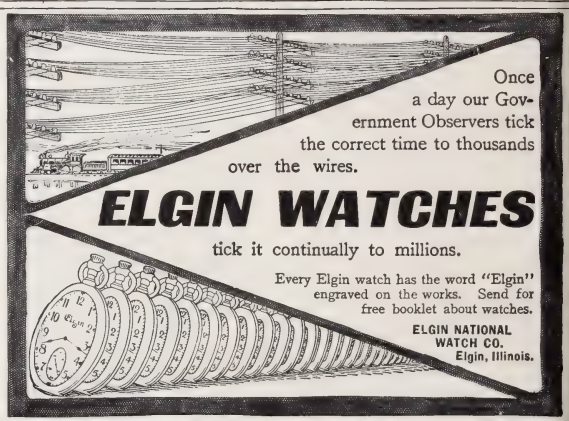
Remington Typewriter Co., 327 Broadway, N.Y.



Once a day our Government Observers tick the correct time to thousands over the wires.

ELGIN WATCHES

tick it continually to millions.

Every Elgin watch has the word "Elgin" engraved on the works. Send for free booklet about watches.

ELGIN NATIONAL WATCH CO.
Elgin, Illinois.

MORE PROOF

of the Safety of Missouri Farm Mortgages

15 years ago a certain investor sent me funds to loan. After careful investigation I placed this money on Missouri farm mortgages—because her laws were just, her lands cheap and crops never failing.

The interest and principal were paid—more money was sent. More investors came. Large financial institutions, men of large and small means invested.

Always the same result. No Losses—No Defaults.

Thousands loaned then. Millions now. This tells the story of care, prudence, good judgment, integrity. I invest your money as I do my own.

This "First Investor" will tell you he still buys Missouri loans.

Send for my Booklet about Missouri 5% Mortgages

WM. R. COMPTON, 5 WARDELL BLDG., MACON, MO.

"A land flowing with milk and honey."

CALIFORNIA IS THE MECCA

Seekers after rest and recreation in a bracing climate, amid enchanting scenery surrounded by fruits and flowers, are going to California this winter in greater numbers than ever before.

The way to go is by the

NEW YORK CENTRAL LINES.

The new trains of this system give a fine service, fast time, and afford every convenience and luxury. Inquire of ticket agents regarding the new facilities.

Four-Track Series No. 5, "America's Winter Resorts," sent free, on receipt of a two-cent stamp, by George H. Daniels, General Passenger Agent, Grand Central Station, New York.

BE A PROOFREADER

Work refined, private, and educative. Women receive same salaries as men, $15 to $25 a week. Proofreaders always in demand. Send for free booklet, "PRACTICAL PROOFREADING," tells how. NATIONAL PROOFREADERS' ASSOCIATION, The Bobbs-M. Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

LEARN PROOFREADING

If you possess a fair education, why not utilize it at a genteel and uncrowded profession paying $15 to $35 weekly. Situations always obtainable. We are the original instructors by mail.

HOME CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOL PHILADELPHIA

CHURCH FURNITURE. Pews, Assembly Chairs, Pulpits, S. S. Seating. Largest Line, Latest Styles. Free Catalogue. Mfd. at GRAND RAPIDS SCHOOL FURNITURE WORKS, Salesroom, 22 West 19th Street, New York.

4% INTEREST ON SAVINGS ACCOUNTS

INTEREST compounded twice yearly. Deposits may be made at any time and in any amount from One Dollar up. Our system of Banking by Mail brings our bank to your Postoffice. Used by thousands residing in all parts of the world. Absolutely safe. This bank, established 1862, has Assets in excess of $13,500,000.00—37,000 depositors.

Write for booklet 18, "The Story of a Savings Bank"—tells how to bank by mail.

PITTSBURGH BANK FOR SAVINGS
PITTSBURGH, PA., U.S.A.

KNOX'S GELATINE

IT'S NOT LIKE PIE,
IT'S HEALTHY. WHY?

Pure, Transparent, Permitting of Exquisite Flavoring. It is Delicious, Appetizing and Digestible. No other Gelatine makes so much or Tastes so Good as Knox's.

Send your address and grocer's name, for my Free book "Dainty Desserts for Dainty People." If you include 2c. in stamps I will send the book and a full pint sample, for 15c., the book and full 2-quart package (2 for 25c.). A package of Knox's Gelatine will make one-half gallon of Jelly, enough for ten large portions, and costs 15c.

CHAS. B. KNOX, 55 Knox Ave., Johnstown, N.Y.

COSTS 15¢ 2 FOR 25¢

Counting Chicks Before Hatching

is not safe unless you have an

IOWA ROUND INCUBATOR

R. C. Bauerminster, Norwood, Minn., got 493 chicks from 500 eggs. He followed directions, the machine did the work, because it was built on right principles and by good workmen. The IOWA has fiber-board case, does not shrink, swell, warp or crack. Regulation and ventilation perfect. Our free book gives more testimonials and full particulars. Everything about incubation free.

IOWA INCUBATOR COMPANY, BOX 246 DES MOINES, IOWA

STEEL ROOFING

FREIGHT CHARGES PAID BY US

Strictly new, perfect, Semi-Hardened Steel Sheets, 2 feet wide, 6 feet long. The best Roofing, Siding or Ceiling you can use. No experience necessary to lay it. An ordinary hammer or hatchet the only tools you need. We furnish nails free and paint roofing two sides. Comes either flat, corrugated or "V" crimped. Delivered free of all charges to all points in the U. S., east of the Mississippi River and North of the Ohio River.

AT $2.25 PER SQUARE

Prices to other points on application. A square means 100 square feet. Write for free Catalogue No. 373

CHICAGO HOUSE WRECKING CO., W. 35th and Iron Sts., Chicago

TRY IT FIRST FOR 30 DAYS

That's the way we sell the

ROYAL INCUBATOR,

the best self-regulating, automatic incubator in the world. It works perfectly. If not satisfactory in every way send it back. Catalog free.

ROYAL INCUBATOR CO.,
Dept. 71, Des Moines, Iowa.

Spavin Curb Splint

Remove These Blemishes
Also Ringbone, hard or soft enlargements, Sweeney, Knee Sprung, Fistula and Poll Evil. Slight cost and certain results. Two big booklets telling how to do it sent free. Write today.

FLEMING BROS., Chemists,
262 Union Stock Yards, Chicago, Ill.

VIGOROUS CHICKS

are the results of Petaluma Incubators. They maintain Nature's conditions. They have no accidents, make no failures. Catalogue free.

PETALUMA INCUBATOR COMPANY,
Box 60 Petaluma, Cal. Box 60 Indianapolis, Ind.

POULTRY CATALOG FREE!

Has no rival. Lowest prices of fowls and eggs. 40 breeds Turkeys, Geese, Ducks and Chickens. The best for all. Grandly illustrated. 15 best hen house plans, how to breed, feed, treat disease, etc. Send 10c. for postage and mailing. J. H. Beaharon, Jr. & Co., Box 98, Pelleton, Wis.

DON'T SET HENS the same old way while A 200 Egg Natural Hen Incubator Costs But $3, other size equally as low. Over 125,000 in use. Indispensable to any one who keeps a hen. Our Patents protected against infringements. Agents wanted everywhere, either sex; none necessary. Catalogue telling all about and Else Lice Formula FREE. If you write today.

NATURAL HEN INCUBATOR CO., Box Columbus, Nebraska.

MALTA-CERES

THE Health Food.

THE FOUNDING OF A CHURCH

Practical Effects in Ephesus of Paul's Preaching

By Mrs M. Baxter

HOW diverse are the ways of God! In Thessalonica it took only three weeks to found a church which was used of God to be a light to the whole of Greece. After three weeks, the persecuting Jews succeeded in driving away Paul; but the Word of God, through him, remained, and the Word of God, which he had planted there, lived and increased in all the country around. In Ephesus, three months' reasoning and persuading did not produce the same effect. And God dealt otherwise with his servant. No bodily injury was here threatened. Some of the Jews were hardened and disobedient, i. e., disobedient to the voice of God in his own Word and in their consciences, speaking evil of the Way before the multitude. And Paul was led here to do what till now he had never done before; he "separated the disciples, reasoning daily in the school of Tyrannus."

This was a new departure: till now he had always preached in the synagogue, where there was one; his sympathies were with the Jews, he had always considered Jewish prejudices, while he never made any compromise. To the Jew he became as a Jew that he might gain Jews, to them that were under the law, as under the law that he might gain them that were under the law (I. Cor. 9:20). He sought to put himself in the place of those to whom he came, to look at things from their point of view, that he might meet them there, and win them to Christ. But when he found that it was not want of light, but want of will, when in a wrong and hardened spirit, the Ephesian Jews spoke against "the Way"; the life and teaching of Christ: God showed him that the time had come for him to depart and leave them who would not be persuaded, as the Lord did when they would not come unto him, that they might have life (John 5:40).

For about two years he preached in the school of Tyrannus, "so that all they which dwelt in Asia heard the Word of the Lord, both Jews and Greeks." "All that were in Asia" would probably include the western half of what we now know as Asia Minor. It was the Roman pro-consular Asia in Paul's time; and included Troas, Mysia, Phrygia, Caria, and Lydia; and was in extent about the size of Greece. Ephesus was the capital, where people were coming and going from all the cities of these provinces. Many of them would hear of the new teacher in the school of Tyrannus. They would come, hear and believe, and be baptized; and then would return and spread the truth in their own cities, as in a part of Brazil, in the Philippine Islands, in Japan, and elsewhere, is, by the grace of God, being done to-day. Paul was on fire for souls. "Woe is me," he said, "if I preach not the gospel." When a man is thus on fire, the fire kindles in the hearts of the hearers. Oh, for more of the fire of God!

Wherever God is really working there the enemy comes in to spoil. "Certain of the strolling Jews, exorcists, took upon them to name over them which had the evil spirits the name of the Lord Jesus, saying, I adjure you by Jesus whom Paul preacheth." It is an evidence to what a condition the Jewish priesthood had sunk when we learn that "there were seven sons of one Sceva, a Jew, the chief priest, who did this. And the evil spirit answered and said unto them, Jesus I know, and Paul I know, but who are ye?" The priesthood rebuked by an evil spirit! Who knows but that times are at hand when the modern clergy who assume power and authority which God has not given to them, may awake from their fearful delusion by the enemy of their souls saying, "Jesus I know; but who art thou that pretendest to change bread and wine into his flesh and blood?"

"The man in whom the evil spirit was, (the medium as we should now say), leaped on them and mastered all of them, and prevailed against them, so that they fled out of that house naked and wounded" (ver. 12:16).

The Best Thing on Wheels

The pioneer Runabout easily maintains its lead in Automobile supremacy by the simple fact that improvements in construction originate in the Oldsmobile. Imitators follow. The working parts are as simple and practical as experience can devise, strength is assured by the very highest grade material, and mechanical skill makes them true to a hair.

Price $650.00

Starts at will from the seat, instantly and readily controlled. Easy to understand and operate. Nothing to watch but the road. Selling Agents in all principal cities. Write for information and illustrated book to Dept. O

Olds Motor Works, Detroit, Mich.

ARTISTIC MONUMENTS

DUE respect for our departed loved ones demands that we erect

ARTISTIC and ENDURING MEMORIALS

Marble has proved an unfortunate failure. Moss grown, broken and tumbled-down slabs appear everywhere. Some cemeteries now prohibit marble entirely. Granite, too, soon gets discolored, in spots, grows moldy, crumbles and decays. Besides, it is very expensive.

WHITE BRONZE

monuments are cheaper and . . .

Infinitely Better.

They are strictly everlasting. Rust, corrosion and moss growth are IMPOSSIBILITIES. They CANNOT crumble from the action of frost. WHITE BRONZE is far more artistic and expressive than any stone. Then why not investigate it? It has been on the market for over twenty-five years and is an established success.

It has been adopted for more than a hundred public monuments and by thousands of delighted individuals in all parts of the country. Many granite dealers have used White Bronze in preference to granite for their own burial plots.

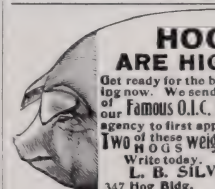
We have hundreds of beautiful designs at prices from $4 to $4,000. We deal direct and deliver everywhere. Distance is no obstacle. Write us at once for designs and information if you are interested. It costs nothing and puts you under no obligations whatever.

Special Inducements Offered on Winter Orders.

Over $80,000 worth of work sold to Christian Herald readers in the last few years. AGENTS WANTED.

THE MONUMENTAL BRONZE CO.,
70-90 Howard Ave., Bridgeport, Conn.

HOGS ARE HIGHER!



Get ready for the boom by breeding now. We send a sample pair of Famous O.I.C. Hogs on time and give our agency to first applicant.

Two HOGS of these weighed 2806 lbs.

Write today.

L. B. SILVER CO.
347 Hog Bldg. Cleveland, O.

You Can Succeed

in the poultry business just as we have if you follow the same plans. We tell all about what we have done and how we did it, in our new year book,

"Poultry for Profit."

Gives cuts of every variety of fowl, together with prices for singles, pairs, trios and pens, and eggs for hatching, in season. Cuts and plans for poultry houses. How to earn money and time to be given away, but is sent for 10 cents.

THE J. W. MILLER CO., Box 179 Freeport, Ill.

THE SURE HATCH

incubator better than ever. New regulator, greatest improvement ever made in incubators. Big illustrated catalog free.

SURE HATCH INCUBATOR CO.,
Clay Center, Neb., or Columbus, Ohio.

CLEAN CUT CAKE TIN

FREE TO AGENTS

Outfit free Exp. prepaid. Don't $2

HOUSEHOLD NOVELTY WORKS, Chicago, Ill., or Buffalo, N.Y.

100 Persons Relieved

EVERY DAY OF

RHEUMATISM

by Magic Foot Drafts. Sent on Approval Anywhere in America. TRY THEM FREE.

They Will Relieve You

If you read this, you will probably send for a pair of drafts and get rid of your rheumatism. A great many persons try Magic Foot Drafts every month—at our expense. Thousands are made well—and pay. Some are not, but have found out without expense that they have something else besides rheumatism. We have thousands of letters on file from Judges, Lawyers, Ministers, Officials of the government, and business men saying that Magic Foot Drafts relieved them—many after everything else had failed. All these are open to the public, with a standing offer of $5,000.00 reward to anyone who finds that they are not all given in good faith and without any consideration whatsoever, excepting the good the Drafts had done.

Magic Foot Drafts open the pores of the feet, the largest in the body, and by means of the intricate capillary development of the blood vessels here, draw out and neutralize by alkaline reaction the acid poison accumulations in the blood, reaching and permanently relieving rheumatism in every part of the body. Our free booklet will convince you that Magic Foot Drafts, when at last a cure may seem unreasonable, are really the most logical treatment ever discovered for rheumatism. We want to send you a pair on approval without a cent in advance.

If you are satisfied with the benefit received send us One Dollar. If not, keep your money. Write to Magic Foot Draft Co., R. A. 28 Oliver Bldg., Jackson, Mich., today.

DEAFNESS

The Morley Ear-Drum

is the most recent and most effective invisible device for the relief of DEAFNESS.

It is easily adjusted, comfortable and safe. Send for descriptive booklet.

The Morley Company,
Dept. E,
19 South 16th Street, Philadelphia.

QUAINT PSALMS for QUEER FOLK

By Rev. C. H. Yatman

PSALM LXXVII
Sick Folks' Psalm

1 I cried unto God with my voice, even unto God with my voice; and he gave ear unto me.

"I CRIED UNTO GOD"

2 In the day of my trouble I sought the Lord: my sore ran in the night, and ceased not: my soul refused to be comforted.

3 I remembered God, and was troubled: I complained, and my spirit was overwhelmed

. . . . .

This Psalm is better than a doctor's visit, for all the sick are not in hospitals and beds. Those whose heart-sore runs all the night, whose pain is of broken friendships and shattered hopes. The sweep of memory is like a raging fever—typhus at that. Remorse is worse than plague or pestilence. Sick in mind or body or spirit, all ye remember God, he will lead you to a land where "the inhabitants are never sick."

PSALM LXXVIII
Historic Psalm for Hebrews

1 Give ear, O my people, to my law: incline your ears to the words of my mouth.

"OUR FATHERS HAVE TOLD US"

2 I will open my mouth in a parable: I will utter dark sayings of old:

3 Which we have heard and known, and our fathers have told us.

4 We will not hide them from their children, shewing to the generation to come the praises of the Lord, and his strength, and his wonderful works that he hath done.

5 For he established a testimony in Jacob, and appointed a law in Israel, which he commanded our fathers, that they should make them known to their children.

. . . . .

Here is the history of a nation. More in seventy-two verses than man could write in seventy-two volumes. It is the old story of the perfection of God and the failure of man. Jew and Gentile alike can find the portrayal of life here.

PSALM LXXIX
The Wormwood Psalm

1 O God, the heathen are come into thine inheritance; thy holy temple they have defiled; they have laid Jerusalem on heaps.

"UNTO THE FOWLS"

2 The dead bodies of thy servants have they given to be meat unto the fowls of the heaven, the flesh of thy saints unto the beasts of the earth.

3 Their blood have they shed like water round about Jerusalem; and there was none to bury them.

. . . . .

This is the mixture of wormwood and gall folk make for themselves to drink when they sin, in the face of favor, when they commit iniquity often knowing mercy. More bitter than wormwood is it to the godly when the godless say "where is their God?" There are no God-forsaken folk, but there are many people who have forsaken him.

PSALM LXXX
The Penitent's Psalm

3 Turn us again, O God, and cause thy face to shine; and we shall be saved.

"TURN US AGAIN"

4 O Lord God of hosts, how long wilt thou be angry against the prayer of thy people?

5 Thou feedest them with the bread of tears; and givest them tears to drink in great measure.

7 Turn us again, O God of hosts, and cause thy face to shine; and we shall be saved.

. . . . .

Let a thousand cold, cheerless, dead churches make Psalm 80 their prayer day and night and their penitential cry will make joy in heaven. The church is the vineyard of God—if it shall go to waste and weeds, the results are here told. "Turn us and return to us" is profitable praying for prodigals.

HEART RIGHTEOUSNESS*

The Law of Liberty a Higher Standard Than the Law of Moses

NEVER was a greater mistake made than when it was charged on the early Christians that their doctrines led to laxity of life. It was very natural, however, for superficial observers to make the mistake. Hearing Paul declare that the Christian was set free from the law, that he was no longer under the law, but under grace, he might expect the usual results of lawlessness. Some men appear to have joined the early churches under that impression. They soon learned their mistake. They found that "the law of liberty" was more stringent than the law of the Mosaic code. The man who observed the Sabbath, who did not murder, or steal, or perjure himself, was up to the standard of the Jewish law; but he did not measure up to the requirements of the law of liberty, unless his heart was pure from the desire to do these things. The man who hated another, but had so much respect for the law that he would not kill him, did not come under condemnation under the old law, but he did under the new. Thus the new law was a higher standard.

Its philosophy, too, was sound. It could afford to dispense with law if there was righteousness in the heart. Family life affords an illustration of the principle. If a son has been obedient to his parents and has scrupulously observed the rules of the household, but has been mechanical in his obedience, showing little affection for his parents, or interest in their concerns, they are naturally concerned when he leaves the home and goes into the city to live his own life. They are anxious about how he will behave when he is set free from parental control. They do not feel so about the son who loves them and has shown his appreciation of their principles. The springs of right conduct are in his heart and he needs no supervision. It is this principle which Christ introduced in his Sermon on the Mount. As the parent, during his son's childhood, has said to him, "Thou shalt not;" but when his son has grown up, expects him to do voluntarily and spontaneously the things that before he did under parental order, so God looks to men under the Christian dispensation to attain a higher righteousness, which comes from the spirit within them that has been transformed by the Holy Spirit.

*Topic of The Christian Endeavor Society and Baptist Young People's Union for March 8. Matt. 5. 20-48; 6 16-18

For Sweden's Famine

—, Southbridge, Mass	5 00	Sarah M Schieffelin, N Y C	10 00
J W Bacon	5 00	I H Curtis, Ill	2 00
G L Harrington	10 00	H McKennan, Ill	2 00
W Olsen	1 00	J W Hackman, Kans	1 00
Mrs S A Chapman	1 00	Wm W Macomber, Wis	5 00
Mrs M E Bittenbender	1 00	Mrs S Virna Macomber, Wis	5 00
C H Osborne, Kan	2 50	Mrs John F Buck, Neb	2 50
H Wood	3 00	Estella Klipser, Neb	50
Mr & Mrs Ed Baker, So Dak	2 50	Friend, Union, Neb	50
Hans Hansen, Nebr	2 50	Danish Aid Society, "Fremad," Ludington, Mich	5 00
B E Drake, Minn	4 00	L Verhaar, Mich	2 50
Friend, Wellesley, Mass	50	Preston Stirk, Pa	1 00
—, Pacific Grove, Calif	50	Mary Land, Mich	1 00

American Finns Grateful

CHICAGO, Ills.

The Christian Herald, New York City:

GENTLEMEN: Allow me to express my personal gratitude, and also the gratitude of all Finnish people who have spoken to me about your very great favor of sending $5,000 to Finland, and of promising so to arrange matters as to send $5,000 each week. We are rejoicing that the great heart of the American people has been moved to relieve the suffering of our people. JOHN JACKOL.

The Maule Seed Book

for 1903 is free to all interested in gardening who mention this paper. If you want an up-to-date garden you ought to have it, the best seed catalogue I have ever published. The first edition alone costs over $37,000. Address

WM. HENRY MAULE,
1711 Filbert Street,
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

SEND US 25c. to cover cost of packing and postage, and receive this grand "Sunshine" collection of Beautiful Flowers, our new catalogue containing the most liberal offers ever made, and a CASH CHECK for 25c., giving you your money back.

20 PACKETS SEED

1 Pkt Evening Primrose	1 Pkt Giant Daisy
1 Pkt Kudzu Vine	1 Pkt Aster
1 Pkt Balloon Vine	1 Pkt Begonia
1 Pkt Baby Rose	1 Pkt Cal. Poppy
1 Pkt Blue Bells	1 Pkt Love Lies Bleeding
1 Pkt Star Flower	2 Pkts Pansy (named)
1 Pkt Double Carnation	1 Pkt Chrysanthemum
1 Pkt Petunia, white	1 Pkt Double Portulacca
	1 Pkt Sweet Pea
	1 Pkt Cypress Vine
	1 Pkt Wild Flower, garden

20 Bulbs 1 Calla, 1 Madeira Vine, 2 Gladiolus, 2 Cinnamon Vine, 1 Anemone, 2 Hyacinth, 1 Monthretia, 10 Bulbs for Edging or Hanging Basket. 20 Pkts. Seed, 20 Bulbs, Cash Check and Catalogue all for the price of the packing and postage 25c.

J. ROSCOE FULLER & CO., Floral Park, N. Y.

CALIFORNIA INFORMATION FREE

THE SACRAMENTO VALLEY is picturesque, healthful and productive. No snow or ice, richest soil, abundant water, direct transportation everywhere, advantages of modern Sacramento city, local or Eastern markets and every inducement to settlers and investors. Produces everything grown from New England to Florida. All products reach highest perfection and mature early. Write for official illustrated booklets containing California information and descriptions; also statistics on all fruit and agricultural subjects to Manager Chamber of Commerce, 250 K St, Sacramento, Cal.

GREGORY

Good seed assure good gardens. Gregory's seeds have been the favorites of gardeners and florists for 40 years. Always successful.

Send for our free catalogue, telling about our three warrants seeds.

J. J. H. Gregory & Son
Marblehead, Mass

Gardens

43 FLOWERS 30 cents

Worth $1.25. A SPECIAL OFFER made to introduce our goods. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

20 Pkts. SEEDS

1 Pkt. Rambler Rose 3 colors mixed.	1 Pkt. Diamond Flower.
" Pansies, 10 colors mixed.	" California Sweet Peas.
" Washington Weeping Palm.	" Double Chinese Pink.
" Mary Semple Asters, 4 colors.	" Carnation Marguerite.
" Alyssum, Little Gem, mixed.	" Heliotrope mixed.
" Bouquet Chrysanthemum.	" Poppy—New Shirley.
" Forget-me-not Victoria.	" Umbrella Plant.
" Hibiscus Crimson Eye.	" Hybrid Verbena, mixed.
" Lovely Butterfly Flower.	" Japan Morning Glory.
" Phlox Drummondii.	" Petunia Hybrid, mixed.

23 BULBS

1 New Red Calla Lily, 1 Summer Flowering Hyacinth, 1 Double Pearl Tuberose, 2 Butterfly and 2 Hybrid Gladiolus, 2 Blue Mexed Oxalis, 2 Rainbow Lilies, 2 Hardy Wind Flowers, 2 Lovely Cinnamon Vines, 2 Splendid New Canna Lilies—Crimson, 1 golden.

A Return Check good for 25 cts. on first $1.00 order; also our New Floral Guide, all about postpaid, only 30c.

THE CONARD & JONES CO.
Growers of the "Best Roses in America."
Box O, West Grove, Pa.

Strawberries

Delicious fruit and lots of it, fresh from your own garden by following our method of culture and getting our Horticultural Garden assortment of plants 36 plants will fill a bed 10 feet square and produce sufficient fruit for an ordinary family. Sent with directions for culture, for only 60c, charges prepaid. Ask for prices in quantity. Large illustrated seed & plant catalogue free if you mention this paper.

IOWA SEED CO., Des Moines, Ia.

MISS LIPPINCOTT'S FLOWER SEEDS

Nasturtiums, 20 Varieties
Royal Show Pansy, 100 Colors
Sweet Peas, 40 Varieties
Asters, Mixed, all kinds

These Four Packets (25c value) for 8c and names of two flower loving friends. My 11th annual catalog and book, "Floral Culture," FREE.

MISS C. H. LIPPINCOTT,
Minneapolis, Minn.

D. and C. Roses

are the best. Always on their own roots. Plants sent to any point in the United States. Safe arrival guaranteed. 50 years experience. Flower and Vegetable Seeds a specialty. Write for

Guide to Rose Culture

for 1903—the leading rose catalogue of America. 172 page Mailed free. Nearly 1,000 varieties. Tells how to grow them and all other desirable flowers. Est. 1850. 70 greenhouse

THE DINGEE & CONARD CO., West Grove, Pa.

For nearly half a century

Ferry's Seeds

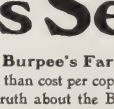
have been growing famous in every kind of soil, every where. Sold by all dealers. 1903 Seed Annual postpaid free to all applicants.

D. M. FERRY & CO.
Detroit, Mich.

NASTURTIUMS. Our new giant-flowering everblooming kinds. The most satisfactory flowers grown. They never disappoint. 5 large pkts of these superb, new, giant nasturtiums (all different colors) postpaid for 10 cents. Handsome catalog free.

ELBRIDGE E. WHEELER, SEEDSMAN, BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

ORNAMENTAL FENCING



Made of steel. Best workmanship. Handsomest in design. Perfect yard protection. LOWEST IN PRICE. Fully Guaranteed. Special prices to Churches and Cemeteries. Catalogue FREE.

KITSELMAN BROTHERS,
136 Oak St. Muncie, Indiana.

STARK TREES best by Test—78 Years. LARGEST Nursery. FRUIT BOOK free. We PAY CASH. WANT MORE SALESMEN

STARK BRO'S, Louisiana, Mo.; Dansville, N. Y.

Burpee's Seeds, Philadelphia

A postal addressed as above will bring you Burpee's Farm Annual for 1903,—if you intend to buy Burpee's Seeds,—otherwise the price is ten cents, which is less than cost per copy in quarter-million editions. It is an elegant book of 184 pages, besides beautiful colored plates, and tells the plain truth about the Best Seeds that Grow. Better write TO-DAY! Do not Delay!

The Christian Sabbath*

How the Institution of the Jewish Rest-Day Became the Lord's Day

WHAT a slavery life would be without its sabbaths! One of the most conspicuous illustrations of the fact that it is for man's own interest to obey God's laws, is this of the periodical rest-day. Actual experiments have proved that, in the long run, a man who rests one day in seven can do more work in the six days, than he who works seven days can do in the seven. Our constitutions require a periodical rest, to the extent of one seventh of our time. The French Revolution, which, its leaders thought, would set all things to a better time, changed the rest-day from the seventh to the tenth; but nature rebelled, and the seventh is now generally recognized as the proper proportion of rest, even in lands where the day is desecrated, and its purpose ignored. From the very lowest standpoint of physical well-being, even if man were only an animal, with no soul to be considered, it would pay him to observe the periodical rest day once a week.

The purpose of the institution of the sabbath, however, is on a higher level. It was intended to serve a spiritual end. There has always been, as there still is, a danger of men becoming so absorbed in the physical life, its needs and its duties, as to forget that the higher, the spiritual nature, has needs, too, which should receive attention. The institution of the sabbath, by the opportunity it afforded, was a reminder of the fact. The Jews, with their silly literalism, which survives in many Christian sects to this day, were more concerned about the command to rest being observed, than that the rest should be used for the right purpose. All through Christ's ministry, he reproved this spirit, and purposely worked cures on the sabbath, to show that the day was intended to be observed in the spirit rather than in the letter.

The present effort on the part of certain teachers to revive the observance of the seventh day, instead of the first, is a specimen of the same spirit. They are trying to bring men back into the bondage of the letter, which is ridiculous. The attempt falls short of the old conception of the day, in its rigorous obligations, but reverts to the particular day as if a special sanctity were attached to one day above another. As we see from Col. 2: 16, such attempts were made in apostolic times. The early Christians, recognizing the value of the institution of the Sabbath, would not discard it with the other Jewish laws, but turned it to its true purpose of spiritual development, and, in order more clearly to mark its use, associated it with that brightest and best day in all history, that day when the resurrection of Christ was commemorated. Thus it is now to us not the Sabbath, but the Lord's Day.

*Topic of the Epworth League for March 8 Exodus 31: 15-17; Mark 2: 27.

$25.90 BUYS OUR EMPRESS TOP BUGGY, exactly as illustrated with plain width top, back and side curtains, and full leather dash, long distance axles, long distance axles, long distance axles

Cereta

SILVERWARE

A New Way to Stock a Silver Chest

Famous silversmiths guarantee each article for twenty years of family use.

To which we add our guarantee:—if you receive a piece of Cereta ware that is not entirely satisfactory, send it back at once, and we will return your money.

This offer is good only in the United States and until Dec. 31, 1904, unless extended hereafter. In ordering please do not send stamps. Write your name and address very plainly.

The only way to get Cereta Silverware is to save Cereta Coupons that you get in packages of

Quaker Oats and Pettijohn's

Breakfast Food

This counts as One Coupon when accompanied by three coupons taken from packages.

Tea Spoon	15c.	and 4 coupons
Cereal Spoon	20c.	and 4 coupons
Table Spoon	30c.	and 4 coupons
Tea Fork	25c.	and 4 coupons
Table Fork	30c.	and 4 coupons
Tea Knife	50c.	and 4 coupons
Table Knife	50c.	and 4 coupons

In sending for knives state whether you prefer plated blades or steel blades.

Figures mentioned here represent about one-fourth the retail value.

The Cereta ware will reach you more quickly if you will address

THE AMERICAN CEREAL CO.,
CHICAGO.
C.H. Dept. S.

CHRISTIAN HERALD

COPYRIGHT 1903 BY LOUIS KLOPSCH

SUBSCRIPTION $1.50 PER ANNUM
Published 52 Times a Year

NEW YORK, MARCH 4, 1903

VOL. 25—NO. 9. PRICE 5 CENTS
Offices: Bible House, New York

HAS READ THE BIBLE NINETY TIMES

"WHEN I take this Book in my hand, I know it to be the Word of God. When I commence each time to read it anew, I do not begin it, I do not finish it, just to say I have read the Bible through so many times. I read it as a miner seeks for gold. Each time I read it through, I find something new and precious, and if I should live to be a hundred years old, and so be able to read it many more times, I should continue to find new things and precious within it." These words are of special significance as coming from one who had read the Bible through — systematically from cover to cover—ninety times. The venerable lady uttering them—Mrs. FitzGerald, mother of the Methodist Bishop of that name—celebrated the Sabbath before her ninetieth birthday by beginning her ninety-first reading of the sacred volume. The Friday preceding, she had led a "Holiness Meeting" in her parlors, with about one hundred ladies, many of advanced years, in attendance, and a number of clergymen and prominent laymen, several of whom paid tribute in eloquent words to the faithfulness of their aged host, naming the manifold activities which had marked her long years in the Master's service. Every Friday, for forty-five or fifty years, holiness meetings, led by this wonderful Bible reader, have been held in her dwelling. The house, standing in the closely built-up business section of Newark, is yet a lonely dwelling, for there are no residences around it. Fifty years or more has the Bishop's mother lived there; the place is rich in sacred associations for her; she clung to it when her friends of the old days moved to more fashionable residential locations. The Bishop sees that she is secure in its possession, and that her declining years are passed in comfort and with such attendants as she chooses. The old negro cook is eighty, the housekeeper seventy-two, and the man who minds the furnace is gray-headed. All the furnishings of the place are quaint and old-fashioned. The writer felt as if entering a sanctuary when admitted to the room of this aged servant of God. Despite her years, an illness from which she had not recovered, several severe shocks recently sustained, and her natural concern over a beloved son then lying dangerously sick in the house, Mrs. FitzGerald was bright and cheerful. On the mantel was a cluster of flowers some thoughtful friend had sent her. The table at her elbow was loaded with books, chiefly Bibles. Lifting one, the writer opened it, to see this on the fly-leaf, in a fine feminine hand, showing no indication of age or tremulousness: "Kirke B. FitzGerald. From his mother, January 1, 1903. May the Holy Ghost give him the richest of heaven's blessings, and may these be given to all who read this precious Word."

MRS. O. M. FITZGERALD
(From her latest photograph)

This Bible Mrs. FitzGerald intends to use in reading the Scriptures through the ninety-first time. She has read Bibles through and marked them for a number of near and dear ones who have asked this of her. "I have one book," she said, "that my daughter gave me, which I have read through forty times. I have another, which my grandson (the Bishop's son, presented me; I have read and marked that, and he wants it back. I began my consecutive readings of the blessed Word with our old family Bible when I was very young. I read that seven times; then a smaller Bible eight times; another, ten times, and so on." She did not include, I found, in these counts, her cursory readings of Scripture, nor her earliest readings.

"When I was twelve years old," she remarked, "I could say the Gospels by heart—" she paused a moment, and then added, "by head I should say. To know the Gospels by heart, that means a great deal." She has read the Bible in three languages besides her own—Spanish, German, and French. Her plan is to read the Sacred Book through each time from beginning to end, and then to look up marginal references and make comparisons. Each reading, when she is confined to her room as at present, occupies about sixty days. Asked to mention her favorite passages of Scripture, she looked like one perplexed to answer through embarrassment of riches, and then said slowly:

"'If ye abide in me and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done.'"

After a pause, the sweet, reverent voice of the little, white-haired lady in the invalid's chair was heard again: "'I am the Almighty God. Walk before me and be thou perfect' (Gen. 17:1). 'Ask me of things to come concerning my sons, and concerning the works of my hands, command ye me' (Isa. 45:11). 'O my Father!' I thought when I read that, 'I would not dare to command thee—and yet in thy name, I could dare command all the powers of darkness to move back.'" Again the silence, and then the sweet, weak voice in the quiet room: "'If ye will obey my voice indeed and keep my covenant' (the bargain I make with you) 'ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests and an holy nation' (Ex. 19:5-6). 'No good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly.' 'If we walk in the light as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ, his son, cleanseth us from all sin'" (Psa. 84:11). Silence again, and again the music of the promises that seemed to come almost like a faint, silver echo from the Valley of the Shadow. "'All things work together for good to them that love God.'"

Across from where we sat sat stood her bed—an ancient four-poster. "I can lie there," she said, "in my sick bed, and read

CONTINUED ON PAGE 183

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Inquirer, Tacoma, Wash. Is there any city built on a mountain top? What city occupies the highest altitude in the world?

We do not know of any higher than Pasco, in Peru, which is on a tableland, about 14,200 feet above the sea level. Travelers say that its immense altitude involves extraordinary differences of temperature. In the sunlight the heat is almost unbearable, while in the shade the cold is intense. The city is noted for its rich silver mines.

Reader, St. Augustine, Fla. (1) What did Christ mean by being born of water (John 3: 5)? (2) In the parable of the laborers in the vineyard (Matt. 20: 1-16), why were all paid the same amount regardless of their length of service?

(1) Various explanations are given, but the only one that seems reasonable is the one that Nicodemus would be likely to associate with it. The Gentile who was received into Judaism as a proselyte was baptized to signify repentance, purification and the putting off his old life. Nicodemus, being a Jew, would naturally deem it unnecessary for him to go through the ceremony. Christ wished him to understand that he, too, required the new birth, typified by baptism and effected by the Holy Spirit. (2) The parable was given as a reproof to the bargaining spirit manifested by Peter in the preceding verses. The owner of the vineyard paid the men who bargained with him, the price stipulated and no more. Those who left it to his discretion, who trusted him without bargaining, he treated more liberally. Christ did not wish men to follow him for the sake of reward; he wanted them to follow him because they loved and trusted him. Men are not rewarded in Christ's kingdom by the measure of their labor; but according to their spirit and consecration.

Miss Zoe F., Mansfield, O. A couple being married at the parsonage, is it the gentleman's or lady's place to let the pastor know? The lady is a member where the pastor preaches. Would it be proper to let the pastor know through the mail or to speak to him personally? What would be the request? Does the engagement ring have to be a diamond?

It is usual for a man intending to be married at a preacher's house, to call in person and make the arrangements. A call, if it can be managed, is more to the point than a letter, as the details can best be arranged in a brief interview. There is no impropriety in a lady's speaking to her pastor, and arranging for her wedding, if the prospective bridegroom cannot do it himself. Common sense and convenience regulate these things. A pearl or turquoise ring, or a ruby, or any pretty stone, will do for an engagement ring as well as a diamond.

E. F. S, Coleman, Tex. When the children of Israel crossed the river of Jordan could a wall of water be seen, or did it all heap up at the city of Adam?

The Biblical account says "the waters of Jordan were cut off" (i. e., retarded or held back). Josephus says "the depth of the water was restrained, the sand appearing at the bottom," and that as soon as the host had passed over, the waters arose again and came to their former magnitude.

W. W. F., Philadelphia, Pa. Is a mock trial in a church a proper proceeding?

No; we should not so regard it. The burlesque or travesty of justice is at best a thing in doubtful taste; but in a church it is altogether out of place.

Subscriber, Denver, Colo. I was baptized in infancy by sprinkling, but am now attending a Baptist Church. I should like to unite with the church, but cannot do so without baptism by immersion. Would it be wrong, seeing that I am already baptized, to be baptized again?

Certainly it would not be wrong. You may regard it as a fulfilment or ratification of the act of your parents in your infancy. They consecrated you to God by the rite; now, having attained years of discretion, you confess Christ publicly, by the same rite, differently administered.

T. A. W., Middletown, Md. What reason, apart from Scripture, is there for thinking the soul is immortal?

There is the common belief found in all lands and in nearly all ages, which is of the nature of an intuition. Again, there are hints that nature gives, as in the butterfly emerging from the chrysalis, which point in that direction. There is the independent action of the mind in thought and dreams, which shows that it has even now a separate life. There is the unsatisfactory condition of many lives, which seems to require another life for readjustment and completion, for the use of experience gained in this life. There is the fact that in many cases the mind is strong and vigorous, while the body is enfeebled and decaying.

Mrs. M. A. M., Seven Mile, O. 1. Did Queen Victoria's second son, Duke of Edinburgh, ever succeed to his father's estates? What was the cause of his death? Had he a son to succeed him, or had he other children? 2 Where is Frogmore, where Queen Victoria was buried?

1. Yes, he succeeded to his father's estates in Saxe Coburg and Gotha. He died of heart trouble three years ago; his only son a year earlier. His proper successor would have been the Duke of Connaught, but he preferred to remain with the British branch; so the succession fell to the Duke of Albany. 2. Frogmore is the Duke of Kent estate. The Prince Consort was buried there.

Anxious Inquirer. Is it right for a young woman to ask God for a man's love? In how far would she be justified in trying to find out if he loves her, after having received attention from him?

A young woman need not worry as to whether or not a man loves her. A man in love is usually a very transparent being and shows his feeling by unmistakable signs. A woman who tries to find out what should be evident, will surely alienate, rather than attract. It is right to pray about all our affairs, small and great.

Mrs. Eva T., Springfield, Mo. Who was Guido Reni, the painter of Mater Dolorosa, and why is the picture a noted one?

He was a famous Italian painter of the Bolognese school, born 1575. In 1602 he went to Rome, and labored there twenty years, painting great frescoes in palaces, churches and cathedrals. On returning to Bologna he opened a school of art, the most famous of its kind at that time. His later life was marred by gambling and dissipation, and he died in debt in 1642. His most famous paintings are: Phœbus and the Hours, Niobe group, Venus de Medici, Massacre of the Innocents, Ecce Homo ("Behold the Man!") Israelites Gathering Manna, Ariadne, Coronation of the Virgin and the Mater Dolorosa ("Sorrowful Mother.") The latter represents Mary, the mother of Christ. Carlo Dolce has also painted a "Mater Dolorosa."

Inquirer, Belleville, Tex. A owes B a certain amount and refuses to pay. B sues A; but in order to collect the just debt, B tells, or swears, a falsehood. Should restitution be made?

Certainly. Though B has used wrong and wicked means to collect, his sin does not make A's debt the lighter. Two wrongs cannot make a right. The debt should be paid and B should confess his error and apologize. In many courts, however, the discovery of perjury by the claimant would probably ruin the case and cause the perjurer's arrest.

Miss S. L. T., Kittanning, Pa. Is it known upon what day of the week Jericho was encompassed seven times and fell by invisible engines of war? Jewish writers mention it as an immemorial tradition that it fell on the Sabbath.

Reader, Ellington, N. Y., Is the "resurrection plant" sold by florists, the same as the "Rose of Jericho," a native of Syria, Judea and Arabia which is regarded by the Orientals as an emblem of the Resurrection?

We believe not. The familiar species of the well-known "resurrection plant," is a native of New Mexico and Arizona.

Reader, New York. A play is to be given under the auspices of the church. As we have no building in which to hold it, would it be wrong to hire a hotel, where all the accommodations may be had, providing they close the bar and give up the key?

The theatre, the dance, and the card-room are the three principal dissipations of the world of pleasure-seekers. Every one must conscientiously decide for himself whether or not the proposed entertainment is of a kind that harmonizes with the spiritual character and object of the church, as a religious organization. A play in the church is, plainly speaking, a profanation to serious minds. There are many proper entertainments that might be given in a hall elsewhere, that would be out of place in a church. But unless you can reconcile the matter with your conscience you had better stay away. Send to Bible Institute, Chicago, for a little book on Popular Amusements.

J. B. H., Bellwood, Neb., and F. G. B., Worthing, S. Dak., write to THE MAIL-BAG that the name, "Roosevelt," means "a field of roses." The Dutch pronounce it "Roo-se-velt," in three syllables.

E. Burrows, Albion, N. Y., writes:

I find in a collection of hymns (by Joshua Smith and others, dated 1797) the hymn commencing "Jerusalem, my happy home," containing ten stanzas, the last of which is the one,

"When we've been there a thousand years."

In another collection, dated 1834, by H. Miller the same hymn, containing eight verses, the last of which is, "When we've been there ten thousand years." A friend sends me another hymn, the first line, "My dear Redeemer, dying Lamb," of four stanzas, the third of which is the one named, and have the impression that I have heard it sung with the hymn, "When I can read my title clear," etc. therefore it must be a verse often transferred.

M. R. D. D. writes:

In compliance with the wish of Mrs. L. G. H., in the Mail-Bag of February 4, I would say that thought from a sermon has been very helpful to me in times of trial and temptation: "Who would not willingly, even joyfully, endure an hour of pain if thereby he might secure a thousand years of happiness? The longest life and severest suffering are less than 'an hour of pain' when compared with the eternity of bliss that will be ours if we endure to the end." They had been discussing the relative appropriateness of the various terms used in speaking of the higher life and wondering why Christians so often misunderstood or took offense at the testimony, when one exclaimed fervently, "O, for a baptism of common sense!" A few days afterward I dreamed of asking an aged minister what was the best way of witnessing to sanctification. "By a well ordered life, sister," he said impressively, and though it was only a dream it has been more than a sermon to me.

M. P. N., Pulaski, Va. The missionary's name is pronounced "Pay-tun."

Reader, Golden City, Mo. One should avoid even the appearance of evil. If certain songs and tunes are associated with doubtful words, why not avoid them altogether.

W. W. V., Shelbyville, Ind. Yes. According to the ancient chroniclers, Patrick or Patricius, was born near Dumbarton, on the Clyde, Scotland sometime between 373 and 396 A.D. His father was Calpornius, a deacon, son of Potitus, a presbyter and small farmer. See his Life, published by Wilbur B. Ketcham, Cooper Union, New York.

A. A. P., Oswayo, Pa. I have a violoncello, which I have reason to believe, is at least one hundred years old. On the inside, is stamped the name "Fillement A. Mirecourt." Will you kindly state who this person was and at what age did he live?

Messrs. August Gemunder & Sons, of New York, who rank as an authority on violins state that Mirecourt "made violins and cellos in Paris from 1790 to 1820. His instruments vary very much both in model and workmanship. The varnish he used was a dark color. He branded his instrument, as indicated by your subscriber."

PAUL'S PRISON IN ROME

The illustration on this page is reproduced from a photograph of the dungeon in the Mamertine Prison in Rome, which is still pointed out to travelers as the place where the great Apostle Paul spent his last days upon earth, prior to his decapitation by order of the Emperor Nero. His execution occurred on the land where now stands the "Church of the Three Fountains." Any one who visits Rome and inspects this ancient underground dungeon in the Mamertine Prison, will be led down a narrow defile of stone steps to the first dungeon, which is called the "Dungeon of Ancus." As there is another dungeon still further down, he will have to continue his journey along a spiral staircase till he comes to the place where tradition says the Apostle spent his last days, and where he wrote his second letter to Timothy. The original entrance to the dungeon was by a hole in the ceiling, covered by an iron grating, through which the prisoner was lowered by a rope. Since Paul's day, the Mamertine Prison has been venerated by the Christian world as the place where many faithful witnesses of Christ suffered and died. Tradition has it that in this prison the jailor was miraculously converted, like his brother of Philippi. Paul probably had an experience of more than five years as a Roman prisoner. No doubt half of this time was spent underneath the marble court-house in Cesarea (Acts 24: 27), where, for two whole years, he remained as the remanded prisoner of Felix, who, when called to Rome, left Paul's case to be acted upon by his successor. Governor Festus is said to have reached Cesarea in the spring of the year 60 or 61, A.D. After Paul appealed to Cæsar, he was sent in the fall of the year to Rome, with other prisoners. He did not reach the imperial city till the following spring. In Rome he was permitted to dwell by himself in his own hired house, though chained to a Roman soldier. It is evident from Acts 28: 30-31 that he remained here two full years and had the utmost liberty to preach the Gospel. During this time he wrote the epistles to the Ephesians, the Colossians and Philemon, the Epistle to the Philippians being the last written during this period. Shortly after this, Paul was released, and went visiting the churches he had founded during his first and second missionary journeys. Where he went to after that is a matter of conjecture. Soon after, he was arrested the second time, taken to Rome and consigned to the Mamertine Prison. During those last dark days, Luke was with him, and probably ministered to his needs.

JOHN MUNRO.

NEW YORK, MARCH 4, 1908

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD

AN ILLUSTRATED FAMILY MAGAZINE

MOHAMMEDAN GIRL AND BROTHERS | COURTYARD OF A NOBLEMAN'S PALACE IN PERSIA | A WATER CARRIER OF TABRIZ

INCIDENTS OF THE HOME LIFE OF WOMEN IN THE LAND OF THE SHAH

Persia's Heroic Women

By . . . HANNAH YOSEPH JACOB, M.D.

OUR friends in America and Europe conceive of Persian women as leading an idle, frivolous life, lolling on soft divans, eating candies, quarreling with one another, and having no object of interest but that of discovering a charm or talisman to obtain a husband, or to hold his affection when obtained. If people who have that idea were to spend a few days with me here, in Tabriz, they would be speedily undeceived. In my medical work I come in contact with women who come to me for treatment, and others whom I visit in their own homes, who are as active, as intelligent, and as, as sorely troubled, as in other lands. Some, too, there are who exercise an enormous influence and exert tremendous power over a wide area. I know instances of women, who possess in their own right by inheritance vast estates, on which hundreds of tenants have their homes. They not only regulate these dwellings, performing the duties of landlords, but they hold courts to which all disputes among the tenants are brought for adjustment, and all offenders are brought for trial and sentence.

During one of my journeys, I stayed at the home of a Mohammedan lady, whose husband is Governor of his province. He had been summoned to Teheran, the capital, to attend on his Majesty, the Shah, and while he was away, his wife managed all the affairs of the Province, and did so with remarkable ability. It astonished me to see with what commanding dignity that frail woman moved among her people and with what skill and vigor she dispensed justice. She wore a real Persian cap, generally covered with gold coins, and her dress was in the extreme of elegance and good taste. As a consistent Moslem, she sat in court behind curtains, herself invisible, but her decisions were shrewd and just, and no point bearing on the case in question escaped her. The justice of her sentences was never disputed, but there were often pleas for mitigation of the penalties, and bent mothers pleading for their sons, and wives who brought their children in their arms to add force and pathos to their petition; but the lady was adamant, and her sentence once pronounced was unaltered. Some of the penalties were severe, though she had not the power of capital punishment, which, in ordinary times, the Shah never confides to any governor.

Protestant in her neighborhood told me that she commenced her administration by forbidding the purchase or sale of spirits throughout the province, under heavy penalties, and that under this prohibitory edict crime of all kinds had largely decreased. The condition of the poor also had improved, and a whole system of extensive bribery had been swept away.

The lower classes of women show that they, too, are not deficient in energy, when they are deeply moved. I have known women smarting under wrong, or threatened with some grievous calamity to themselves or their relatives, make extraordinary efforts to gain their point. They would plead eloquently in their courts, and if every door was barred against them, would carry their petition to the Shah himself or the Crown Prince. There have been cases where a woman, pleading everywhere to get justice, has taken her stand on the highway, by which the Shah or the Crown Prince would pass, and surrounding herself with straw, loudly declare she would burn herself where she stood if her petition were denied. A petition so urged seldom fails to move the Shah's heart, and the very fact of a woman emerging from the seclusion and suppression in which she ordinarily lives and taking so desperate a course, impresses him with the urgency of her case. But what will not a woman do when peril threatens her or those she loves! Persian women are like women in other lands, heroic in times of stress. As I become acquainted more intimately with them in my work, going from town to town and making short sojourns in various cities, my respect for them and my sincere sympathy with them increases.

AN ARMENIAN LADY IN PERSIA

I knew personally a lady who owned an extensive estate on which were two or three villages. Word was brought her one day that the inhabitants of one of her villages were not cultivating the fields. She learned that robbers from another khan had swooped down on the village when the harvest was ripe, and had carried everything off. The result was that the villagers had no heart to sow the seed again, believing that there would be another invasion when harvest-time came. The lady sent them word to cultivate their fields and sow the seed as usual, and she would see that they were not robbed. True to her promise, she collected a band of fifty of her tenants, armed them, and rode at their head to the threatened village. She led her little troop in the fight that ensued, in which she was victorious, the robbers being driven off with heavy loss. She received a gunshot wound in the fight, but said nothing about it, and even her own mother did not know of it until after it had healed. In startling contrast with this heroism, was an incident that came under my own observation. I was attending a case in the summer home of a gentleman in a mountain village and remained all night. In the night, thieves broke into the house. The women and children ran screaming through the house, and the servants, seizing anything that would serve as a weapon, fought the thieves and eventually drove them off; but the rich man who owned the house remained in his own apartments, and never lifted a finger in defence of his property.

A PERSIAN NOBLEMAN AT HOME

Many pathetic stories do I hear, of woman's devotion and heroism under trial. They come to me with their ailments and I do what I can to give them bodily relief, but for their sorrows Jesus Christ alone can give succor, and of him they know nothing. Their own faith teaches only dull submission to fate and gives them no comfort. It is pitiful to hear their tales of woe and to realize that the Divine Consoler, who would so gladly bless and comfort them, is to them a Stranger, whose very name the Mohammedan pronounces with hatred.

One day when I had seen my patients, two women entered my room. One of them was an old woman, almost blind, whom the younger woman was leading by the hand. "Hakim Khenim" [lady doctor] the elder woman began, "for the love of Issa [Jesus] open my eyes, that I may be able to work for myself." From her story, I learned that in the famine seven years ago, her husband, a Mohammedan, determined to divorce her, as his means would not support her and her seven children. She begged and pleaded with him not to separate her from her children. She offered to go out and work, or beg for alms, or do anything rather than leave them. The husband relented, but soon afterwards left them all, and went they knew not whither. "A Kaffir [heathen] husband or an Armani [Christian] husband would not have done such a thing," the woman declared. She went to work in the country, gathering sheaves and doing anything she could to earn a little food for herself and her children. Times improved, and she began to get back a few of the household things that she had been obliged to sell for food. For seven years she maintained her family, and no word came from her husband;

CONTINUED ON PAGE 183

THE AMERICAN PULPIT

WHAT IS EXPECTED OF CHRISTIANS

A Sermon by DAVID JAMES BURRELL, D.D.
of the Marble Collegiate Church, New York

"Then said the lords of the Philistines, What do these Hebrews here?" I. SAMUEL 29: 3

THE beacons were kindled on the heights around the historic valley of Esdraelon where the hosts of Israel were arrayed for war. To the south, the Philistines were preparing to march against them; but there was trouble in the ranks. The officers of Achish had observed David and his followers in the rear ranks, and they made earnest and immediate protest: "What do these Hebrews here?" It was, indeed, a strange and incongruous situation. But David had been so long a fugitive, hunted like a partridge among the mountains, that he was at his wit's end. And, moved by the magnanimity of Achish, who had sheltered him in his exile, he begged to enlist under his banners. Just there he was in danger of making the mistake of his life. Had he not lost the fine edge of his moral perception, he could not for a moment have dreamed of falling into line with those who were marching to battle against his own people. The Lords of the Philistines saw the ambiguity of his position, if he did not; and their protest was well-taken and well-timed: "Make this fellow return," they said; and David and his men drew off.

The Enemy's Tribute

An old proverb runs, Disce ab hoste—that is, Learn from those who are opposed to you. The world has a clear opinion as to what should be expected of the followers of Christ: and "there's wit there, ye'll get there, ye'll find nae itherwhere." No higher tribute is paid to the superexcellence of Christianity than the criticisms which are passed upon the inconsistencies of the followers of Christ; for in calling attention to our imperfections, the critic emphasizes the fact that the religion which we so inadequately represent is a magnificent religion, and the Christ whom we so awkwardly and unsuccessfully follow is the perfect One.

The world can read the Bible; it understands, moreover, the rules of service laid down by our Lord; and its interpretation of those rules is perhaps more rigid than that of the church, because it does not itself propose to obey them. It views them with a cold, impersonal, critical eye. Not for a moment does the world propose to conform to our faith, but it holds us rigidly to it. I do not mean to say that public opinion is our ultimate rule of faith and practice. Far from it; but public opinion is not without significance. We cannot afford to be obvious of what the Lords of the Philistines say about us.

> O wad some power the giftie gie us
> To see oursel's as ithers see us;
> It wad frae mony a blunder free us
> And foolish notion.

At the outset, the world knows that we are "a peculiar people," and that as such we have no business in the Philistines' ranks. We do not like to be called "peculiar," but no alternative is left us. It is written of Christ, "He gave himself for us that he might redeem us from all iniquity and purify unto himself a peculiar people." The word is from pecus, "a flock," and it suggests the segregation of those who follow Christ.

We are distinguished by marks or "stigmata," clear and unmistakable. These are not superficial. A Christian, be he layman or minister, is not to be known merely by his "cloth" or outward forms of piety. The Lord expressed himself in startling terms as to fringes and phylacteries, long prayers at the corner of the streets and almsgiving with the blare of trumpets. The real marks of a Christian are those which indicate an inward change manifesting itself in the outer life.

The Christian's Marks

One of these is Regeneration, or "the gainbirth" as the fathers were fond of calling it. A Christian is understood to be a new man in Christ Jesus; old things have passed away, all things are become new. He has a new heart, conscience and will; new thoughts, purposes and aspirations; a new way of looking at things; new tastes and appetites; new visions of the future life.

And another of these marks is Sanctification. A Christian under the influence of the Holy Spirit, while not perfect nor professing to be, is bound to be growing better from day to day. On the one hand, he is delivered from the penalty of past sin; "the handwriting of ordinances" which was against him, having been nailed to his Saviour's cross. His sins are blotted out, sunk in the depths of an unfathomable sea, cast behind the back of God. On the other hand, he is consecrated to holiness. His conscience is so quickened that it has become sensitive to the mere appearance of evil. He so feels the lingering bondage of sinful habit that he longs to be delivered from "the body of this death." He hates sin, grieves under the sense of it, loathes it, abhors it. All this is clearly involved in our profession. This is matter of common fame; it is known to the world; the Lords of the Philistines understand it.

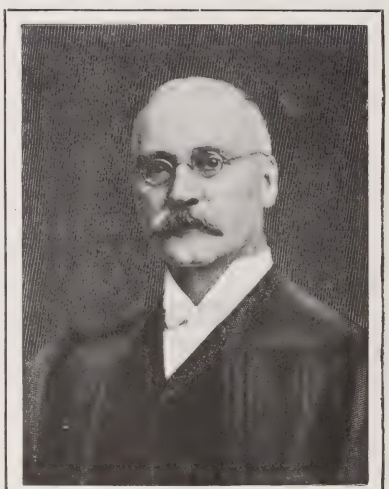
The world knows also that we, as Christians, have a creed, and it expects us to believe it.

We have accepted Christ as our Prophet or Teacher in spiritual things; and we call ourselves "disciples," because we sit learning at his feet. And when he speaks of God as our Father, of man as a sinner, and of himself as the only Saviour, it looks to see us receive these elemental truths, together with all other teachings of Jesus, without a word of demur or a moment of hesitation. We have no room for an opinion or a "theory" beyond his ipse dixit. His word is ultimate. Our creed is what he says.

A leader in a recent political campaign was heard to say that the platform of his party went for nothing; and for this he was immediately set down in public opinion as a demagogue. For it is understood that the candidate of a political party must in honor be true to its principles. The same holds in the matter before us. A man who professes the Christian religion may deny its fundamental tenets; but, in that case, whatever he may think of himself, the people are aware that he is wearing false colors, and the Lords of the Philistines have a genuine contempt for him.

The world knows, furthermore, that we have a moral code; and it expects us to live up to it.

In the precepts of the Decalogue, as interpreted by our Lord in his Sermon on the Mount, we have our symbol of practical life. In pursuance of these precepts we are expected to be pure, upright, honest in all our dealings with our fellow men; to respect our neighbor's rights of life and property; to honor the divine Name, remember the Sabbath day, and be humble and reverent before God. Our constant temptation is conformity to the world; but, being in the world, we are bound to live as pilgrims passing through it. We are to hold ourselves aloof from its evil ways, like the three youths in Babylon, like Lot in Sodom, like Jonah in Nineveh, like Paul in Athens. Are we ever moved to ask, "How far can I go into this or that without compromising my Lord or my religion?" Think of a bride asking how far she can go into impropriety without compromising the honor of her husband! The soul of a Christian, being betrothed to his Lord, must be kept unspotted from the world. Wherefore it is written, "Be ye not conformed to this world; but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable and perfect will of God."



REV. DAVID JAMES BURRELL, D.D.

Our unbelieving friends know still further, that we are under a definite commission, and they expect us to honor it.

Our Lord came to set up a kingdom of truth and righteousness on earth; and to his followers he said, "Seek ye first of all the kingdom." We seek this kingdom by declaring the evangel and doing good as we have opportunity unto all men.

Now suppose that a man who professes to follow Christ is found to be wholly absorbed in the pursuit of wealth or pleasure or sordid ambition, living as if the perishable things of this world were all or the most important part of life, what shall be thought of him? "No man that warreth entangleth himself with the affairs of this life, that he may please him who hath chosen him to be a soldier." The Lords of the Philistines know this; and they cannot but conclude that an avowed Christian who yields himself to worldly pursuits and gives but the superflux of his time and energy to the things of the kingdom, is false to his marching orders. And this is a just opinion; the facts warrant it.

Again, the world expects a Christian to respect himself.

To be humble. Aye; but with that humility of which John Milton speaks—"a lowly loftiness of mind which is exalted by its own humiliation." We would not forget that significant episode in the upper room when Jesus washed the feet of his disciples, saying to them, "I have given you an example that ye also should do as I have done to you." We are indeed to be humble in view of our sins, our littleness by nature, and our utter dependence on the heavenly grace. But never, never, must we forget that by that heavenly grace we are called to be sons and daughters of the living God; "and if sons, then heirs; heirs of God and joint-heirs with Christ" to an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled and that fadeth not away. The humility of Uriah Heep is not Christian. The truckling subserviency of Chadband and Pecksniff is not Christian. We are conscious of our infirmity and ill-desert: "We are not what we ought to be, we are not what we mean to be, but by the grace of God we are what we are." And better things are reserved for us. "Now are we sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be."

An Essential Characteristic

It is reasonably expected of us also, by those who are not of the household of faith, that we should love the brethren.

For this is one of the distinctive marks which our Lord put upon us: "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another." It is obvious, therefore, that envy, jealousy and censorious judgment are ruled out. The enemies of Jesus were accustomed to say of the members of the primitive church, "Behold, how these Christians love one another!" That was a gracious tribute to the sincerity of their faith. It is well to sing in our public services, "Blest be the tie that binds our hearts in Christian love"; but when in our churches we erect social barriers which take precedence of the rule of fellowship, it is obvious to the world that there is something wrong. If there come into our assembly a man with a gold ring, in goodly apparel, and there come in also a poor man in vile raiment; and we have respect to him that weareth the gay clothing, and say unto him, "Sit thou here in a good place"; and say to the poor, "Stand thou there," or "Sit here under my footstool": are we not then partial in ourselves? And do we not give attention to thoughtful critics to say, "The teaching of Jesus was right; but there is one lesson which these Christians have not learned of him?"

And the world expects of the followers of Christ that they will have a passion for souls.

It is written of our Master, "He had compassion on the multitude." He said of himself that he had come into the world "to seek and to save the lost"; and to his disciples he said, "As the Father hath sent me into the world, so send I you." The woman seeking the lost coin, the shepherd going out on the dark mountains after the lost sheep, the father awaiting the return of the prodigal from beyond the hills; in these we have a portrayal of the seeking Son of God. He seeks the lost. The lost! He so regarded men: as lost to truth, to righteousness, to their own high destiny, to heaven and God. We shall never catch his spirit of earnestness until we also regard the impenitent as lost. So long as we minimize sin, so long as we interpose doubts and questions as to its just penalty, so long as we permit the suggestion that there is any other way of salvation except the royal way of the Cross, we shall be indifferent to the fate of our fellow men. The world knows what Jesus taught about this; and when it finds us standing idle in the market-place, with the multitude passing by, lock step, quick step, on their way to eternal death, it concludes, with just reason, that we do not believe what Jesus said and are not alive to the tremendous duty and responsibility which he laid upon us.

A Comprehensive Duty

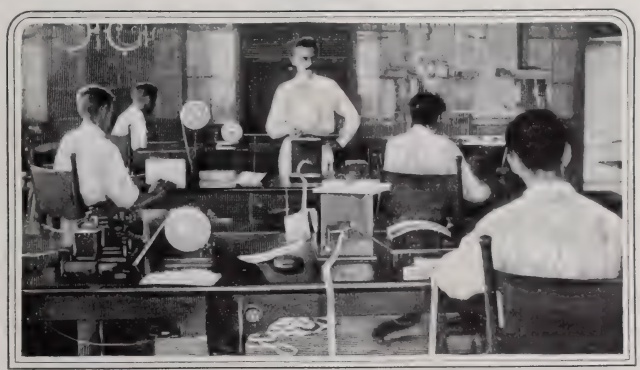
In general terms, it is expected of us that we will follow Christ.

This is suggested by our name. We did not call ourselves Christians; the world so called us. The title was first given by the people of Antioch in derision; and they spake better than they meant. We are Christians because we profess to follow Christ. We are not our own; we are "bought with a price; not silver and gold, but the precious blood of Jesus, as a lamb without blemish and without spot." As such we are bound to follow him, as sheep follow their shepherd, soldiers their leader, travelers their guide. Whither shall we

THE GERMAN CONSUL'S RESIDENCE RAPID TRANSIT, SAN JUAN DEL SUR A SECLUDED STREAM

IN A CENTRAL AMERICAN PARADISE

PERHAPS through the opening of an inter-oceanic highway, which seems more nearly a possibility than ever before, lies the promise of more effective missionary work throughout the whole of Central America. The only Protestant agency at present in Nicaragua is that of the Moravians, who have been at work since 1848, when a mission was started by them at Bluefields. Practically all their activities have been limited to the Mosquito Coast (so called from the Mosco or Mosquito Indians) who live there. The only hope which the Moravians had for the Indians was through teaching them the English language and giving them the Scriptures in this tongue; but a few years ago the Roman Catholics secured the closing of their schools. Much of the work is done in ships. The Mosquito Coast is divided up into little lagoons, and the missionary ships go in and out of these, services being held aboard. Recently the Moravians have secured permission from the government to follow their converts into the interior, which seems to indicate a more liberal spirit than has heretofore existed. I know of no Protestant mission work on the Pacific Coast of Nicaragua. Certainly there is none in San Juan del Sur, where my husband's duties as a physician took him a number of times during a long residence in South America. The Nicaraguan towns are so much alike in their social and religious conditions that to tell of one is to give some idea of all, and the readers of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD will doubtless be interested to know something of San Juan, from the accounts of one who has been there often.



IN THE CABLE OFFICE, SAN JUAN DEL SUR

Seventeen miles from Brito lies this tiny, picturesque town. To the world, the diminutive metropolis is a place of consequence, because the Central and South American Cable office is located here. Through this office, a large number of the people of Central America are in touch with the outside world. To the Nicaraguan himself, San Juan del Sur is of large importance independently of this fact, because it is the residence of the Governor of the province of Rivas, through which the proposed canal route is to pass from Brito, and also because it is the headquarters of a handful of soldiers who belong to the Nicaraguan army; it is also of commercial significance, because it is the most southern port on the Pacific coast of Nicaragua. It lies on a beautiful bay, with a wide-stretching beach, and back of the town itself rise noble mountains. Ten years ago, the Pacific Mail steamers touched at San Juan twice a month. Now, the Chilian and English liners also put in there at regular intervals. All of the foreign trade with Rivas, the capital of the province of "Rivas" or Nicaragua, as it is called, and one of the more important inland towns, is done through San Juan del Sur. Everything is transported on carettas, or rickety carts. The oxen are yoked, not by the neck, like those in this country, but by the horns. The driver is provided with a wooden stick, on the end of which is a bit of sharpened iron. The roads are miserable. It is said that even the Chinese are more progressive than the Nicaraguans, for to this day they go on in the even tenor of their way, following in the steps of their forefathers. Their army, with its queer, hatless, coatless and barefoot men, has been called a "military comedy." The climate of San Juan is delightful, and in the heated months the place is filled to overflowing with wealthy people from the interior, and becomes, in a small way, a fashionable seaside resort.

The brown-skinned natives are fond of dress, and it is always the gay, bright colors which attract them. Laces, silver gewgaws of every description, strings of beads and dainty little satin shoes are as dear to the heart of my San Juan lady as a tailor gown or French hat to a New York woman. When permission to photograph them was asked of a group of native women "there was a flutter like that of a flock of blackbirds," says the artist, and a quick demand to be allowed to don holiday dress.

The men go about barefoot and with bare heads, in blue blouses, like the overalls of workingmen here, and trousers scant and short. The women marry very young. Large families are the rule, and there are many little brown babies running around. The Nicaraguan mother has enough to keep her busy, although the wardrobe of a little brown baby is the extreme of scantiness and simplicity. Then there are blankets to be woven, and straw hats to be made. Just here, it may not come amiss to state that a vast number of the so-called "Panama" hats take their shape under the deft fingers of San Juan del Surians. The brown mothers lose early whatever grace and beauty they may possess, as do most women of the tropics. The equipments of the average San Juan home are rude and primitive. The houses are mostly wooden shanties, much like the negro cabins through Georgia and Alabama. They are often built, however, of solid mahogany. Hammocks are largely used for beds.

Gay-colored flowers abound in every yard. The Indians plant trees about their homes and cultivate flowers as much as a matter of course as they do their maize and cacao beans. The women are very fond of wearing scarlet blossoms in their raven locks, which usually glisten with cocoanut oil. They are very merry. The Nicaraguan seems ever light of heart.

MARTHA GOODE ANDERSON.

WHAT IS EXPECTED OF CHRISTIANS

Continued from Preceding Page

ollow him? Wherever his footsteps lead us. To the anctuary? Yes; "he entered into the synagogue as is custom was." To the closet? Yes; "cold mountains and the midnight air witnessed the fervor of his prayer." To the oracles? Yes; he was ever a student of Scripture and revered it. To Bethesda? Is it not written, "He went about doing good"? If we tread in his footsteps we shall find ourselves going to prisons and hospitals, to homes of the poor and suffering, to minister unto them. Will he lead us to Gethsemane? Can we drink his cup and be baptized with his baptism? Yea, Lord, we would be seen like Peter "in the garden" with thee. Shall we follow even to the Cross? Blessed be his name, the highest privilege of our life is to enter into the fellowship of his sufferings and death for guilty men!

And wherever we go we are bound to take our religion with us. He went to dinner in a Pharisee's house; but hear his table-talk! Our profession is not like a garment to be put on and taken off at pleasure; but rather like the shirt of Nessus, which could not be laid aside without taking the flesh with it. Our religion must be in the very blood and marrow of our bones; it must be through and through us.

It thus appears that we are a watched people. "We are compassed about," as Paul says, "by a great cloud of witnesses." He was thinking of the galleries of the amphitheatre, crowded with spectators waiting to see how the athletes would run. We are watched in our business life, watched in social life, watched at home: "little pitchers have ears." And the onlooking world expects great things of us.

Alas, we all fall short; we fall short of even the world's standard of the Christian life. There is this to be said, however; we are trying: we have entered the race; we are reaching forth unto the things which are before and pressing toward the mark. Let our detractors do better if they can. It was a wise word that was placed by the artist Apollodorus over the entrance of his studio:

> 'Tis no hard thing to reprehend me,
> But let the man that blames me mend me.

It is no easy thing to live an exemplary Christian life. Come, friends, and try it.

But while we lament our shortcomings, we rejoice to know that our Lord can be touched with a feeling of our infirmities. "He remembereth that we are dust." He knows that we are hampered and handicapped by the remnants of sin abiding in us. He is not "a hard man."

And yet whatever the world may expect of us, he expects more. His standard is higher: "Ye are the salt of the earth: but if the salt have lost its savor, wherewith shall it be salted? It is thenceforth good for nothing but to be cast out and trodden under foot of men." And again he says, "Ye are the light of the world; a city that is set on a hill cannot be hid; let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify God." We should not be unmindful of the just criticism of the world around us; but, after all, our high purpose is to please him. O, if we could but realize the great things which he hopes and purposes concerning us!

The engineer of the Brooklyn Bridge was confined to his bed when it was in process of construction. Day after day looking from his window, he saw its piers rise and the spider's web of cables cunningly formed. It had all been planned and held in his mind's eye. And when it was finished, being asked how it looked, he said, "It is precisely what I expected it to be." O, would that Christ might be able to say the same of us; that our life and character are according to his plans and purposes! Let us devote ourselves to the task of pleasing him. And, whatever other eyes may be upon us, let us live "as in the great Task-master's eye." So shall no man despise us: and so shall God commend us. Wherefore, "if ye be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth at the right hand of God."

LIFE in LOG CABINS

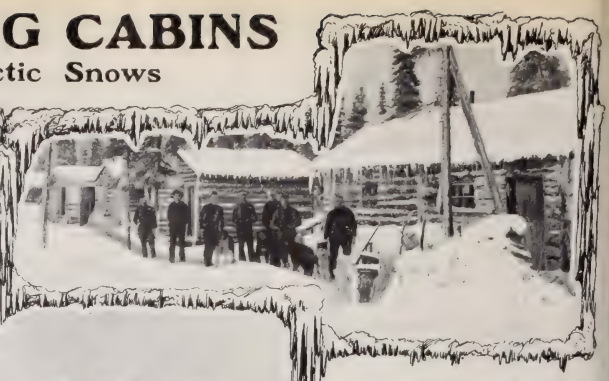
Under Arctic Snows

TUNNEL TO A SNOW-COVERED CABIN

DOG SLED TEAMS

READY TO START



HOW COUNCIL LOOKS IN WINTER

WHILE our religious denominations and missionary societies are exerting themselves for the evangelization of our new colonies, it might be well, for some of them at least, to give attention to our lately opened territory in the Arctic. Alaska, or a very considerable portion of it, especially in those sections that have been populated by the crowds of gold-seekers, who come thither from all parts of the globe, is still practically virgin soil for the Christian worker. It is true, there are preaching stations at Dawson, Circle, Skagway, Nome, and a few other points, and Young Men's Christian Association workers are doing excellent service also; but there are many places where hundreds and even thousands of miners are gathered, where Gospel privileges are practically unknown.

Council City is one of these places. Situated about one hundred miles from Nome, it is a growing town of log-houses, with a population, during the summer months, of about 3,000. These are the four months when mining can be prosecuted to advantage; but in the long, dreary, eight months of winter, when the landscape is an unbroken sheet of snow and ice, with the temperature ranging from 20 to 50 degrees below zero, the population is only about 500. At the first blast of coming winter, there is a stampede out of Alaska, and all who can leave, do so.

MISS FRANCES FITZ

One of the very few women who have lived in Council is Miss Frances Fitz. Three years ago she left her home in the Eastern States for Alaska, and on reaching Council, which had been founded only a short time before, she decided to remain. She soon found opportunities for her activities and very soon, through her knowledge of law, she became Deputy Recorder of the camp. Her little log office is the business centre of the place. There, for two years, summer and winter, she worked industriously as stenographer and typewriter, assistant recorder and notary public. In good weather she made occasional trips to Nome and inland, and in the sub-arctic winter, when all the log-houses were buried in snow, sometimes up to the chimneys, she bore the cold and endured the privations with the rest of the "permanent residents" as bravely as any of them.

Miss Fitz's description of life at Council in the winter is not an alluring one. Tunnels, sometimes eighteen feet deep, had to be dug for entrance and egress to the cabins, and "going in" was like vanishing in a hole in the ground. Tunnels were also dug from the surface to the windows, for ventilation. As the snow deepened, the stove-pipe chimneys were lengthened. Great wood stoves were kept continually fed with fuel, and the temperature indoors was frequently so high that to venture outdoors, where the fierce arctic blasts swept the hard-packed snow, would be to invite certain pneumonia. Food and all the necessaries of life were at fabulous prices.

But though life under such conditions was sufficiently hard and discouraging, it was not wholly monotonous. In the little snow-bound community, there were a number of bright, optimistic members, who believed in always looking at the better side of things. Pleasant social gatherings were occasionally held in the long winter nights. (Part of the winter, there is only a single hour of daylight in the twenty-four.) Excursions on sleds during spells of clear weather in winter gave another diversion. Literature was scarce, and books were read eagerly in those tedious winter days, when the little community was wholly shut off from the outer world.

There is neither church, mission, nor Sunday School in Council City, nor is there a regular school of any kind. All these are greatly needed. Two years ago, a missionary visited the place, but none has been there since. There are many saloons in the place and a large number of gambling-houses, indeed, the principal street in Council is almost wholly devoted to such places. These are seemingly inevitable features in every new mining camp. Were a mission opened in Council, or an undenominational church planted there, it would have to contend with these evils; but there is a large element in the place which has no sympathy with such resorts, and which would loyally support any Christian work.

Here is a field in which the harvest is even now ripe, and awaiting the earnest laborer for souls.

MISS FITZ IN WINTER GARB

FOUR HAPPY LITTLE CHINESE MOTHERS

FIFTEEN years ago, among the girls in our Boarding School were Lo-tek, Mui-toan, Lek-a and Chhin-a. These former pupils last week were visiting each other, and came here to call. Mui-toan and Chhin-a are very capable women. Their husbands are two of the most useful pastors connected with the English Presbyterian Mission. Lo-tek and Lek-a are the helpful wives of two prominent school teachers. All four women have happy homes, and have, respectively, seven, five, five, and four children, twenty-one in all.

I took the photograph of the four mothers, and another of them with their children. Unfortunately Joseph, Chhin-a's oldest child, was absent, and Lo-tek's wee baby cried so lustily that we had to leave her out of the photograph. These children are carefully taught by their parents, and from their earliest years, know of the Saviour. If all the children of our former school girls could be photographed, they would make quite a little regiment. Surely one cannot place too much value on the education of the girls and women of China.

Amoy, China. M. E. TALMAGE.

LO-TEK, MUI-TOAN, LEK-A AND CHHIN-A, FOUR CHRISTIAN CHINESE MOTHERS, AND THEIR CHILDREN

The four mothers are shown in the central photograph, the children, in the photographs on either side

MRS. FITZGERALD'S BIRTHPLACE

THE FITZGERALD FAMILY GROUP

NEWARK HOME FOR THE FRIENDLESS

Has Read the Bible Ninety Times ❋

CONTINUED FROM FIRST PAGE

od's Word as if the pages were before me, chapter or chapter, without taking the Book up at all. Is ot that a comfort?"

On that bed, not four weeks before, a beloved friend nd relative, staying with her, died suddenly. Calmest f all present, the fragile nonogenarian, lying beside the ead, quietly gave necessary orders directing all that ould be done. A few days later, another dear friend as suddenly stricken before her in this same room, ith an illness that seemed unto death. No one else as with her. She sprang to her feet and ran the whole ngth of the house to her sick son's room for human elp, appealing first of all for her heavenly's Father's d. The night before my call, her "boy" (he is past xty), was thought at one moment to be ying. Yet, here she was, the frail, gentle ttle woman, wearing her ninety years like halo, and talking away cheerfully and ppily of the things that are not seen and at are eternal, and regarding all sorrows nd trials as "light affliction which is or the moment." Her optimism draws outhful people to her. Her most constant mpanion and closest associate, perhaps, a young lady, Miss Daisy Crane.

Letters from every quarter of the Union, king prayer, counsel and comfort, come this aged Bible reader. Many people ving in Newark and neighboring places ek her advice and consolation. There ve been many conversions in this quiet om. Not in spiritual matters only, but so in secular affairs, do a number look her for guidance. Her father was a ominent lawyer of Bernardsville, N. J., here she was born so many years ago in e house shown in our picture. When e was seventeen, she assessed the town- ip as an act of public service, the assessor ing ill or out of place; and everybody— en the rich, on whom she laid burdens at she lifted from the poor—pronounced the fairest assessment that had ever en made. She used to drive about New- k in her carriage and minister to the or. She is still President of the New- k Home for the Friendless, organized by r over thirty years ago. She has been a ember of the official board of many e charitable institutions of Newark.

very summer, she conducts at Mount Tabor, the ries of Holiness Meetings lasting a week, during hich the Managing Board gives her supreme control the Tabernacle and all services therein. When the eek ends, she holds three meetings daily in her cot- ge, at hours that do not conflict with the regular camp- eetings, and her rooms are always crowded. She is ry hospitable, and her cottage is always full of guests to whose entertainment she herself looks. Holiness Meetings week begins next summer at Mount Tabor, August 10; and arrangements have already been made for her to conduct the services as usual.

Of her own religious experiences, Mrs. FitzGerald says: "I know that I was converted when I was only seven years old, a little child sitting on my father's knee. I had been convicted of sin. Two years before —when I was five—I had heard some merry young men say: 'Let's steal some corn to-night and roast it.' In a childish spirit of imitation, I took one of uncle's watermelons. There was no reason why I should not have had one for the asking, but I did not ask. My young brother showed me I had broken God's law. I did not trouble myself much over it then. A year later, a small schoolmate had a little gingham bag, with a drawstring in it, which I wanted; I had a lead-pencil—lead-pencils were rare in those days—which she desired. We decided to exchange. I wanted it done legally before witnesses. We deposited bag and pencil in a crack of the schoolhouse wall until recess, when we came together to transact the business in due form. The pencil was gone. The girl hung her head. I said, 'You've taken the pencil. I shall take the bag.' But my conscience gave me no peace, and I returned it to her. That revived my memory of the watermelon incident. What was I to do to make that right? My father could not pay uncle for it. I could not. To pay would not adjust it. I lost my appetite with worry. The doctor was sent for, but his wisdom was of no avail. At last, I could not eat at all. My father sent a servant to bring me to the table. I said, 'I don't want any dinner, I want to see papa.' He took me on his knee, and I laid my trouble before him. He was a lawyer, I thought maybe he could tell me what to do. Uncle, of course, did not care. It was against God I had sinned. Papa showed me how Christ had paid for my sin. He bade me promise my Heavenly Father that I would never take so much as a pin that was another's without asking, would never tell a lie, and would never repeat what another said unless I could do it in their own words. So, he showed me how to pray and how to accept Christ's atonement. And then, O how the Lord filled my little soul with joy! I ran singing all over the house. From that hour, I began to study my Bible."

IN THE BIBLE-READER'S QUIET ROOM

Mrs. FitzGerald's husband died about ten years ago. Her daughter soon followed him. Two sons, besides the Bishop, remain to her. Our picture shows the complete family group, including grandchildren, taken not long before the death of her companion. Of her early consecration of the Bishop to the Master's service, she said: "When he was a boy, I prayed many times at his bed—a little trundle-bed such as was used in those days."

Many people tell of wonderful answers that have been vouchsafed to her prayers. She does not like to speak of herself, or to be much spoken of—save only as one who loves her Lord. The writer, as representative of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, was welcomed into the sick room by the venerable saint, and her words reported here were uttered, not as for a secular paper, but as for a congregation of Christians ever glad to hear of another Christian's joy in the Lord. One of our pictures reveals her in this sanctuary, with two friends for company. Here, and at Mount Tabor the silver-haired Bible-reader, with God's Word for her rod and her staff, is ready to continue her pilgrimage and her labors on this side of the grave, or to pass confidently into the Valley of the Shadow, knowing the unspeakable joys that await her on the other side, where she may see the Master face to face and hear him speak the Words of Life. MYRTA LOCKETT AVARY.

PERSIA'S HEROIC WOMEN ❋

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 179

t at the end of that time he returned. As the ersian proverb has it, "his hands were longer than his gs"—that is, he was more ready to grasp goods than ork for them. Then he took possession and divorced e woman whose hands had toiled for his children rough all those years. Now, old and almost blind ith weeping, she is helpless and alone in the world.

Her companion, too, had suffered. In graphic, pitant fashion she told the story of her own troubles. er husband also had left her. She had one child, an fant, unweaned. With her child she went out to find shelter. A rich woman saw her and offered to take r as her servant. She hesitated. She had hoped for me other refuge. She was all alone and there was no e to whom she could go for advice. "So," she said, "I took my cap off my head and set it before me and I said, 'O my cap, what must I do? Shall I go into a strange house, where my ears will hear unlawful voices and where I shall be seen by the husband of my mistress, which are both strictly forbidden to all Moslem women? If I do not go it is famine and no husband, and there is my child, whom I love more than my life. What must I do, my cap?' And after a time the cap answered, 'If you had a husband it would not be lawful for you to go and work for that lady; but if you do not go, you and your baby will starve. Then it is a Moslem's house, not the house of a Kaffir [heathen] or an Armani [Christian]. Go and work for the lady.' So I picked up my cap and put it on my head and went into the house of my mistress."

I could tell you many more instances of maternal love and devotion and of sacrifices that these heroic women make for their children. Women in Christian lands do not have any idea of what it costs these Mohammedan women to put aside their traditions and customs and emerge from seclusion to earn a living. Nothing but the intense love they have for their little ones would constrain them to do it. I have seen them working in the bath-houses for a few shalihs [a shalih is worth about half a cent], or peddling from house to house, or crooning stories by the bedside of the rich to lull them to sleep, or spinning or sewing, hungry half the time, and their lives a heavy burden. Oh it is pitiful, and they have not the hope of rest at last that Jesus promises to those who love and trust in him.

THE OLD ARGUMENT OF VIOLENCE

The Riot at Ephesus

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR MARCH 15
ACTS 19: 29-40

By Dr. and Mrs. Wilbur F. Crafts

GOLDEN TEXT: -- Ps. 31: 23: "THE LORD PRESERVETH THE FAITHFUL"

WE will let the town-clerk of Ephesus tell the story of this riot. "I shall never forget," he says, "that day in Ephesus when there was a riot instigated by the silversmiths, with Demetrius as their leader. It was in May, the month of Diana, and the city was filled with pilgrims, who had come to do honor to the goddess and to witness the games. It was a time of anxiety for those of us who were officers of the city lest some calamity or disturbance might be experienced. And the expected happened. Word was brought to me that there was a great tumult in the theatre. I started at once to go there, and on my way found the whole city in confusion. On reaching the theatre, I found fifty thousand excited people, some crying one thing, and some another. It seemed like a convention of demoniacs. Above the din I heard the cry, 'Great is Diana of the Ephesians,' and I inferred that in some way the supremacy of our goddess had been called in question. But I realized that such excitement was not favorable to a wise or conclusive adjustment of the dispute. The people must be dispersed at once or there would be bloodshed; indeed, I had already seen two men, strangers in our city, dragged about in peril of their lives. As I entered the theatre, a silversmith rushed to my side and said, 'It is that man Paul who has made all this trouble. He has injured our trade in the little silver Dianas by preaching about another God. And our images are liable to be left on the shelves, for the people will not buy them if they listen to him.'

IMAGE OF DIANA

"I did not know until afterward that the mob had started in an indignation meeting held by the silversmiths. My sympathies were with the silversmiths, and not with Paul, but, as I have said before, it was not the time and place to settle the difficulty. I made my way to the rostrum and waved my hand for silence. And when the crowd recognized that the town-clerk had something to say, they quieted down to listen, and even sat down upon the stone seats. My speech was in substance as follows: 'Have no anxiety about the honor of Diana, for Ephesus is known throughout all Asia as her own city, possessing the great treasure of her image, dropped down from heaven for us by Jupiter. And knowing this, you ought to be quiet, and do nothing rashly. These preachers of another God in our city have not dishonored our Diana. They have not tried to enter into her temple and carry away the great treasures there. But if the silversmiths have a cause of complaint against them in that they sell fewer images than before, they can go to the court and have their matter determined in a lawful assembly.' I also warned the people against such disturbances as being sure to bring upon our city the displeasure of the Roman government, which might so find occasion to humiliate our city, besides punishing the disturbers with death.

"Then I dismissed the assembly, and the people passed quietly out and went about their business. I did not learn until afterwards how the preacher, Paul, was hardly restrained from entering the theatre when the mob was rampant, and bent upon the destruction of his two companions. His own life would certainly have been in great peril. A foul stain would his blood have made upon our city. And I must confess that while I did not agree with the man, I myself being a worshiper of Diana, I had observed his industrious and peaceful conduct as a dweller in our city for nearly three years. I had even wished sometimes that I might go to hear him speak, but that would not have been advisable for a man in my position as town-clerk.

"Almost immediately after the riot, Paul left Ephesus, much to the regret of his followers, I have been told. As for the silversmiths, they did apply to the court for redress, according to my suggestion. But they had injured their case by inciting the riot. An appeal to violence is never the way to settle any grievance. Those of the Jesus way were certainly a peaceful element in our city, in great contrast to the riotous guild of silversmiths. And some of them had previously been a great trouble to us by their vices and crimes. The new doctrine, true or false, improved their behavior."

Illustration and Application

What practical lessons for our own times may be found in the story of this ancient riot? 1. Christianity is spoken of here as "the Way" (in Japan they now call it "the Jesus Way"), reminding us that Christ leads men not alone to change their views, but especially to change their "ways." (The key word of the Epistle to the Ephesians is "walk," in the sense of behave). 2. If men really change their "ways" and seek to persuade others to do so, it will perceptibly affect the business of bad men, and they will in some way resent it. 3. Practical godliness will therefore make "no small stir" unless it is received in a small way. 4. Opposition is to be expected if our religion is genuine, since the real Christ brings to wickedness "not peace but a sword." 5. Christians should therefore gird themselves to "endure hardness as good soldiers of Jesus Christ." 6. They should be at peace within even though battles be incessant without, for, as the Golden Text and Christian history assure us, "the Word preserveth the faithful." 7. In times of excitement, when tempted to act rashly, let us recall the proverb, coined out of this lesson, "We must consult the town-clerk of Ephesus." 8. Especially in these times when lynchings and riots are invading even conservative old towns, let us recall that this "way of Cain," this argument of violence, has behind it six thousand years of failure.

. . .

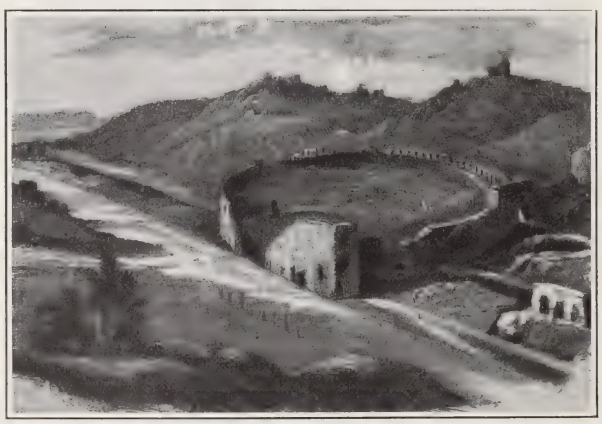
What is it Like in the Bible?

"The old argument of violence" was first used by Cain. God, who tests worship as well as conduct by motive, showed in some way—perhaps by descending fire as on Carmel (I. Kings 18: 38)—that Abel's altar was "the true church" of that time, while Cain's was but a heartless counterfeit. Cain immediately proceeded to prove that God was wrong by killing Abel. His course seems to us as absurd as it was wicked, but most of us still use at times the same foolish appeal to force. In political excitement one man declares that an opponent has "the instincts of a murderer," and the other answers by shooting him, which is manifestly a confession, not a contradiction. Another oft-repeated history is that of Herodias, who had John the Baptist beheaded because he accused her of adultery, as if murder would disprove the other crime. Alas, history is crowded with such cases where lips that could not be answered have been silenced. What true prophet has not been answered with stones by men who had neither heart nor brain enough for "the appeal to reason." Ephesus was not the first place where Paul met opposition and persecution from those whose fraudulent gains were diminished by the conversion of their victims (Acts 16: 16-24).

. . .

What is it Like in Nature?

The struggles Christianity has encountered, and the struggles of individual Christians are in harmony with God's natural order, in which perfection is ever the product of strenuous struggles upward. Nothing worth while comes easy. The noblest races are not those who loll in the tropics, where little labor is required to provide food and raiment and shelter, but those of colder climes, where "the struggle for existence" serves as a wholesome gymnasium to develop physical and moral vigor. And in individual lives, whether animal or human, the "survival of the fittest" is the outcome of struggle that makes the victor fit to survive. "Think it not strange concerning the fiery trial that is to try you as though some strange thing happened unto you." That has always been God's way to change coal into diamonds. Wherever we find in nature strength and beauty, whether in mountains and valleys, in veined marble or fine gold, there pain has been doing its strange work. Here surely is "a natural law of the spiritual world." What fire is to the gold, hardship and sorrow is to the soul (Mal. 3: 3).



RUINS OF THE THEATRE AT EPHESUS

Christians of an easy-going virtue, unwilling to do anything requiring sacrifice of money or even of ease or popularity may well feel rebuked, as almost every week they read of some one willing to risk life for science. That we may know the geography of the Arctic zone, how many explorers have suffered and died! Not long ago, a Colorado man was willing to be infected with germs of animal tuberculosis in order that something might be learned, at the risk of his life, by which doctors might save the lives of consumptives. There have been many such cases. Less unselfish but significant is the recent case of a young violinist who consented to have her too broad finger-tips narrowed by surgery that she might be more skilful in music. "Therefore, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin that doth easily beset us, that we may more swiftly run the race set before us." In these days when the sacrifice of life is seldom required, when even minor persecutions are rare, about all the opportunity most of us have for enjoying the ecstacy of self-sacrifice for love of God and man is in giving up something that we do not count a sin, but which we know to be at least a "weight" upon our spiritual progress and usefulness.

May God give us grace to spare it, though it be as a right hand, if it hinders our usefulness. Before the days of anesthetics a little girl passed a spot where several idle boys were amusing themselves by the dangerous practice of throwing stones. Not observing her, one of the boys, by accident, threw a stone toward her and struck her a cruel blow in the eye. She was carried home in great agony. The doctor was sent for, and a very painful operation was declared necessary. When the time came, and the surgeon had taken out his instruments, she lay in her father's arms, and he asked her if she was ready to let the doctor do what he could to cure her eye. "No, father, not yet," she replied. "What do you wish us to wait for, my child?" "I want kneel in your lap and pray to Jesus first," she answered. And then kneeling, she prayed a few minutes, and afterward submitted to the operation with all the patience of a strong woman.

THE TEMPLE OF DIANA AT EPHESUS

. . .

What is it Like in Common Life?

It would probably save much murmuring if we should [illegible] it clearly into our minds that life is a school, in which [illegible] lessons are to be experienced and will be useful and where strenuous athletics will be necessary for our best development. The football player "endures hardness" in training and on the field cheerfully, because he believes it is all doing him good by making him strong and fitting him for the rough and tumble of real life. Many a Christian is not willing to train half so hard for spiritual victories and strength of soul.

A little boy went to his mother in delight with a new discovery, saying, "Mamma, I don't have to cry when I fall down. I can make myself stop. I can just say, 'Stop that,' and make me mind me." Many an older person has not learned that secret of self-mastery. Not alone when crying, but especially when murmuring, or when repining even in silence, let us learn to say, "Stop that." An American soldier said, "If you have a post that is harder than any other, send me there."

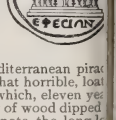
A poet, L. Frank Tooker, has pictured the tourist at sea who does not mind discomforts when homeward bound, with loved ones waiting, which has larger meanings for the Christian "homeward bound;"

There is no sorrow anywhere,
Or care, or pain. The stinging hail
Beats on our faces like a flail,
Green water curls above the rail,
And all the storm's high trumpets blare,
Whistles the wind, and roars the sea,
And canvas bellows to be free,
Spars whine, planks creak—I only smile,
For home our keel creeps mile on mile.

. . .

What is it Like in History?

Years ago a Bank of England £5 note, which had evidently passed through many hands, was being tested at some other bank where it had been presented for redemption, when the sharp-eyed clerk noticed red letters upon the thin, worn surface, but so exceedingly faint that at first neither he nor anybody could decipher them. On closer examination, however, through a very strong glass it was found that these letters had actually been traced in human blood. They contained just one sentence: "If this note should fall into the hands of John Dean, of Longhill, near Carlisle, he will learn hereby that his brother is languishing a prisoner in Algiers." Of course no time was lost in sending to Longhill this singularly conveyed message. With all possible speed, the pining captive in North Africa's far-off "Silver City," for centuries the dreaded headquarters of Mediterranean pirates was sought, found and liberated. From that horrible, loathsome dungeon of Algeria's cruel Bey, in which, eleven years previously, he had scrawled with a splinter of wood dipped in his own blood the message on the bank note, the long lost one was taken back to England.



The message Paul preached in so much persecution was one written in the blood of Christ, which has since been [illegible] written often in the blood of apostles and martyrs. We are unworthy to bear the message if we are not willing to freshen it, if need be, in our own blood.

Fighting Famine in the Northland

GENERAL VIEW OF THE PORT OF HELSINGFORS, FINLAND, HEADQUARTERS OF THE RELIEF OPERATIONS

T can be truly said that Christian America does nothing by halves. Whatsoever it finds to do in the direction of making the world brighter and better, and of advancing the Kingdom, it does h zeal, enthusiasm and thoroughness that might well ve as an example to other lands. Since the appeal the suffering Finlanders was published in these pages, as been taken up in town and village communities, churches, church societies, Sunday Schools and other ganizations, and a great flood of practical sympathy s set in towards the af- ted nation. Every mail ngs to us additional tributions to the Fam- Fund—gifts that have en consecrated by ayer and which will be dly welcomed by the nnish Committee in lsingfors, which is nducting the relief rk.

The generous and rist-like spirit of the ople, who are thus help- the Finns, is shown in se letters. We wish it re possible to print m all, but we can only e a few brief extracts. . N. S., Albany, N. Y.), writes:

f all to whom our Lord trusts large resources uld respond as liberally many who can scarcely n enough to give their ilies even a humble liv- . what joy might be car- d to a multitude of suf- ers.

'I hope their faith in d and America's aid y preserve their lives ough this time of need," ites Mrs. H. O. B. ($1), w York City.

E. T. T., West Phila- lphia ($5), writes:

May an old subscriber tell ee in what a beautiful light r dear Lord shows to her s morning thy work for r starving brethren in the rd in far-off Finland? I nk thee is not only minis- ing to the sufferers, whom r dear Lord would have feed from our abundance, as fulfilling his command- nts, but thee is strength- ing the bonds of peace d brotherly love between our own and other lands, and tainly doing more to bring peace on earth and good-will men—to conquer hearts and bring them to Him, who indeed our Peace—than all the armies and navies of the rld can accomplish.

" We are working in line with our prayers," writes rs. M. B. Kingscourt, Ont., Can. ($1), "and proving e Scripture adage 'It is more blessed to give than to ceive.'"

Alice F. B., Fallsington, Pa. ($5), writes:

I find that I cannot enjoy the comforts and blessings God s bestowed upon me while others of his children are rishing with hunger. Take my mite, and I pray God to ess it to the saving of life in poor Finland.

From Allegheny City, Pa., W. C. B. (in behalf of hers) writes:

We five working men do send you these $12, trusting, all though it be, that it will be of some use. May God's blessing rest upon you for holding up before the world the needs of the poor Finlanders.

Pastor Kilburn, of the Anglo-American Church in St. Petersburg, writes to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD from Kajana, Finland, giving further details of the famine situation. He says Dr. Verner Lagus, President of the Help Committee in Hyrynsatim, said in Helsingfors, in November: "If private friends had not helped, hundreds would have died" before the Relief Committee began its work. Pastor Johannes Wayrynen, of Kajana, also writes, expressing gratitude for what America is doing for the poor, starving Finns. He urges greater expedition on the part of the Central Committee in forwarding the relief, and that it be given as a free gift, instead of being granted for work done. "It is impossible to keep the people alive," he adds, if the Committee act upon this rule. What the sufferers can earn by the work given is so little, their families are often so large, and there are so many sick and aged, that if they are not freely helped, many will die."

In another letter, Dr. Kilburn writes:

The best place I know of for getting a good general view of the whole of this district is the place where I am now (Kajana). My opinion is, that the want and suffering will be much greater than is generally thought. I dread to think of what the spring will mean to thousands. The present is dark to many; the future will be darker to more.

Shall I give you a glimpse of some of to-day's experiences? As I look back over the day, now that it is drawing to a close, it seems to me more like a week than a day.

In the morning a man looking, quite [illegible] from Kuhmoniemi, a parish about [illegible] distant. He had been sent to carry a load of meal from Kajana thence. He had left home on Tuesday morning and by driving and part night resting his horses reached [illegible] on Friday morning. He started to get back [illegible] his horses [illegible] days. He had come [illegible] and four little children [illegible] the journey. Has [illegible] and two little children [illegible] to keep it for less than [illegible] that others were working [illegible] people, as a rule, seem willing to work [illegible]

PEASANT PAAVO'S FAITH IN GOD

By the Famous Finnish Poet Runeberg

HIGH 'mid Sarijarvis' moors resided Peasant Paavo on a frost-bound homestead,
And the soil with earnest arm was tilling;
But awaited from the Lord the increase.
And he dwelt there with his wife and children,
By his sweat his scant bread with them eating,
Digging ditches, ploughing up, and sowing.
Spring came on, the drift from cornfields melted,
And with it away flowed half the young blades;
Summer came, burst forth with hail the shower,
And with it the ears were half down beaten;
Autumn came, and frost took the remainder.
Paavo's wife then tore her hair, and spake thus:
"Paavo, old man, born to evil fortune,
Let us beg, for God hath us forsaken;
Hard is begging, but far worse is starving."
Paavo took the good-wife's hand, and spake thus:
"Nay, the Lord but trieth, not forsaketh,
Mix thou in the bread a half of bark now,
I shall dig out twice as many ditches,
And await then from the Lord the increase."
Half bark in the bread the good-wife mixed then,
Twice as many ditches dug the old man,
Sold the sheep, and bought some rye and sowed it.
Spring came on, the drift from cornfields melted,
And with it away flowed half the young blades:
Summer came, burst forth with hail the shower,
And with it the ears were half down beaten,
Autumn came, and frost took the remainder.
Paavo's wife then smote her breast, and spake thus:
"Paavo, old man, born to evil fortune,
Let us perish, God hath us forsaken,
Hard is dying, but much worse is living."
Paavo took the good-wife's hand, and spake thus:
"Nay, the Lord but trieth, not forsaketh,
Mix thou in the bread of bark the double,
I will dig of double size the ditches,
But await then from the Lord the increase."
She mixed in the bread of bark the double,
He dug then of double size the ditches,
Sold the cows, and bought some rye and sowed it.
Spring came on, the drift from cornfields melted,
But with it away there flowed no young blades.
Summer came, burst forth with hail the shower,
But with it the ears were not down beaten,
Autumn came, and frost, the cornfields shunning,
Let them stand in gold to bide the reaper.
Then fell Paavo on his knee and spake thus:
"Aye, the Lord but trieth, not forsaketh."
And his mate fell on her knees, and spake thus:
"Aye, the Lord but trieth, not forsaketh."
But with gladness spoke she to the old man:
"Paavo, joyful to the scythe betake thee!
Now 'tis time for happy days and merry.
Now 'tis time to cast the bark away, and Bake our bread henceforth of rye entirely."
Paavo took the good-wife's hand, and spake thus:
"Woman, he endureth trials only,
Who a needy neighbor ne'er forsaketh;
Mix thou in the bread a half of bark still,
For all frost-nipped stands our neighbor's cornfield."

[illegible] much of [illegible] Little boy had [illegible] the attic, [illegible] and [illegible] Indeed [illegible] Mother [illegible] Many had already had to mix flour bread with straw.

When I gave him what I felt I ought to give, his face rolled down his cheeks and his voice failed through [illegible]. I shall never forget him as he stood there before me, longing to express his gratitude but almost unable to do it.

In Cedarton, there are three hundred and seventy-three farmers in the parish. Almost every farmer is in need. They can't give work to others, they have not bread enough for themselves.

A member of the committee came in from Paltamo. His story was even sadder than the others. The most people come in from various parts, seeking for work, but the committee are unable to give any work. They have no money to pay for the work done. While they were convinced of the necessity of doing something to help the people, they appealed to the committee at Uleaborg and received no aid, but were told to go and they can do nothing.

Pastor Wayrynen tells me that the need in Paltamo is very great. The people are not merely without food, but without any means of earning anything to buy food. The farmers are in too great need to employ the laborers. They do not know where to get food for themselves or their children. There is no wood-cutting being done, and no wood company at work in the parish. Things are bad enough now, and are daily becoming worse.

Some little time after he had gone, a lady living in Kajana came in with a poor, pale-looking, thinly-clad woman. One could see that she was in need. She had come in from a village more than twenty miles distant, where there was great need. She was unmarried, and lived with a widowed sister. They had never before had to apply for help. They had always been hard working, and able to support themselves.

After one has lived in those parts for a time, one is utterly astonished that any one can say that the accounts respecting the need have been in any way exaggerated. My firm and growing conviction is that it is far greater than most people think, and that except far greater effort be put forth than yet have, many must die before the winter is over, and thousands of others wander abroad to seek help elsewhere, and thus carry disease and death to different parts of the land, as they did in 1868.

All contributions for the Famine sufferers in Finland, and also for those in Sweden, should be addressed to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, 92 Bible House, New York. Contributors are requested to state clearly in their letters whether their gifts are for Finland or for Sweden. All will be acknowledged in these columns and will be duly cabled to the authorized committees, the one to the Finnish Central relief Committee in Helsingfors, the other to the Swedish Relief Committee at Stockholm.

OUR EDITORIAL FORUM

B. J. FERNIE, ASSOCIATE EDITOR — LOUIS KLOPSCH, Editor and Proprietor — G. H. SANDISON, ASSOCIATE EDITOR

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD is published weekly. Subscription price, $1.50 a year, in advance.

Remittances should always be made in the safest manner available to the remitter. Register cash remittances.

Foreign Postage. For each copy to be mailed outside the U. S., Canada, and Mexico, add one dollar a year.

Change of Date.—It takes at least two weeks to change the date, after your subscription is renewed.

Expiration of Subscriptions.—The date on the wrapper indicates when your subscription ends.

Change of Address.—Give both your old and your new address when you ask us to change your address.

Subscriptions may commence with any issue.

Letters should be addressed, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, Bible House, New York.

Entered at the Post-office, New York, as Second-class Matter

A Palace of Peace

MILLIONAIRE Andrew Carnegie, so the cable tells us, is negotiating for the purchase of an estate near The Hague, in Holland, upon which he will build a splendid edifice to be called "The Palace of Peace." It is designed to be an international library, and in it will be placed the greatest collection of books on international law the world has ever known. It is Mr. Carnegie's purpose to place this magnificent palace, with all its literary resources, at the disposal of the nations, the ulterior object being to foster the spirit of conciliation and arbitration throughout the world.

We do not share the hope, which seems to be cherished by Mr. Carnegie, that the palace will contribute in any appreciable degree to the peace of the world. The ancients had their libraries filled with laws and historic precedents; yet their wars were incessant. The Pharaohs, Moses, Cæsar, Napoleon, all gave men a plenitude of law; yet they themselves were men of war rather than of peace. No statute has ever yet been framed by man that could effectually supersede the arbitrament of the sword. It is in times of peace that a nation that is wise, according to the world's wisdom, prepares for war.

What, then, is to ultimately bring about the world-peace so universally hoped for? Not philanthropy; not invention; not education, for the most enthusiastic recruits in times of patriotic excitement are students. "The intelligent citizen makes the best soldier," say the veterans. Jean de Bloch, the poor Polish Jew of Warsaw, who rose through his unaided genius to be the financier of Russia and the adviser of the throne, did more towards opening men's eyes to the folly of war than all the legislative debates, the statutes and the diplomatic conferences of a century. In conceiving the idea of The Hague Court of Arbitration, he was inspired by economic considerations, and not by any higher motive. For what he did, however, the world is his debtor. Before he died, he was painfully disillusioned of the hope that conferences between the nations could bring about the world's peace.

Mr. Carnegie, too, will be disillusioned if his Peace Palace is to built on an equally insecure foundation. While his motive is doubtless excellent, we believe it might be far better to employ the millions it would cost to disseminate the only doctrine which gives real promise of the world's peace—the Gospel of Jesus Christ, which teaches the universal brotherhood of man, with love, tolerance, and mutual helpfulness throughout the earth. "The kingdom of God is within you," said Jesus, and where that kingdom is, there is the palace of the King. It is in the hearts of men that we must rear the Palace of Peace.

Oh, for a preacher with the divine courage and the power to reach the hearts of the rulers who now control the destinies of the nations! Then would they awaken to the real meaning of life, and to its glorious opportunities. Then the Temple of Divine Peace would arise, and the world might hope for respite from those wars and woes which have so long made it a spectacle for men and angels.

A Question Answered

FROM a reader in the West (H. P. R., of Arlington, Ill.), we have received this letter:

Is the name of Christ mentioned in Jewish and heathen histories of the first and second centuries? If so, when and by whom?

We answer, categorically, as follows:

For hundreds of years, in every copy of the Talmud printed and circulated among the Jewish race, and read in Hebrew homes and synagogues, the record of the trial, conviction and crucifixion of Jesus was to be found. Long afterward, in 1631, a Jewish assembly at Jaroslov, in Little Poland, decided to omit thereafter from the Talmud the passages relating to Jesus. The decree of the Synod reads:

"Whenever you publish such books anew, you shall leave, in place of any passage in which any of the deeds of Jesus of Nazareth are described, a vacant space, and in that space you shall print a circle like this O. For the rabbis and those who have learnt the omitted passages will know how to teach the youths in such case, while at the same time Christian scholars will be unable to base charges against us on such grounds."

In Josephus' Antiquities of the Jews, Book 20, chapter 9, § 1, this reference to Christ is found: "he (Ananus) assembled the Sanhedrin of judges, and brought before them the brother of Jesus who was called Christ, whose name was James, and some others . . . ."

So much for the Jewish records of the first century and successive centuries until the seventeenth.

In Book 15, chapter 44, of the Annals, written by Tacitus, a heathen (or non-Christian) historian of the first century, the writer speaks of "Christus, who, in the reign of Tiberius, was put to death as a criminal by the procurator, Pontius Pilate."

There are others that might be quoted, but those we have mentioned cannot be successfully assailed by critics who contend that there is no contemporaneous evidence on the subject outside of Christian sources. These facts should be kept clearly in the mind of every Christian student, not for controversy, but to establish the fact that in the times in which Jesus lived, his name, his ministry, and the church he founded, were not unknown. These are facts which all the efforts of infidels, agnostics, and antagonistic religionists cannot efface.

The Kaiser's Theology

THE lecture delivered before the German Emperor by Prof. Delitzsch, to which we called attention recently, has stirred up an impassioned controversy in Germany. The Emperor, as the head of the State Church, evidently feels himself implicated, and wishes to define the position he occupies between the conservatism of the Church on the one hand, and the radicalism of the Universities on the other. In a letter to Admiral Hollman, he states the results that the controversy has had on his own mind. He says:

First, I believe in one only God; second, we men need a form in order to teach his existence, especially for our children; and third, this form has hitherto been the Old Testament in its present version. This form will be positively and substantially modified under the influence of research and inscriptions and excavations. That does not matter. Neither does it matter that much of the nimbus of the Chosen People will thereby disappear. The kernel and contents will remain always the same—God and his works.

Probably the Emperor's utterance will not satisfy either the Church or the Universities, but it doubtless represents the attitude of the ordinary layman in Germany and other lands. We are not particularly concerned about the preservation of the nimbus, to which his majesty refers. The fact remains that, however much the Old Testament writers were influenced by the literature of Babylon, Egypt, and Persia, their conception of the Deity was much higher and purer than that of the writers of any other nation. God revealed himself to them as to no others, and we are indebted to them for a most important stage in the advance of divine knowledge. The inscriptions and excavations may show that some of the ideas which we had supposed were original with the Psalmists and Prophets, existed long before their time, but they show, too, that in passing through their hands, those ideas were purified and spiritualized to a degree which could never have been attained without inspiration and divine guidance.

Nothing is gained by disparaging the Old Testament writers, who rendered invaluable service to the world. Their productions have given joy and delight to innumerable souls, and they express, with beauty and force, the aspirations of devout men to this day. Who wrote such passages as the following?

"God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in time of trouble; therefore will not we fear though the earth be removed." "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want." "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handiwork." "Come now and let us reason together, saith the Lord; though your sins be as scarlet they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson they shall be as wool." "Ho every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money come ye, buy and eat; yea come buy wine and milk, without money and without price." "He is despised and rejected of men, a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief and we hid as it were our faces from him; he was despised and we esteemed him not. He was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed." "As I live, saith the Lord, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked, b that the wicked turn from his way and live. Turn ye, tu ye for why will ye die?" "He hath showed thee O ma what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee but t do justly and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with th God?" "This God is our God for ever and ever: he will b our guide even unto death."

How much does the world owe to the men wh penned such words? From the grateful hearts of mar generations which they have comforted, there is reflec ed a nimbus about the heads of the writers that neith professor nor critic, prince nor potentate, can tear off.

We can never forget, too, that it was they who u consciously prepared the world for the revelation God in Jesus Christ. That revelation superseded a others, for in him dwelt the fulness of the Godhea bodily. Through him the world learned more of th Divine character than it had learned in all the previou centuries. And it is still learning from him and gro ing in divine knowledge, and the end is not yet. "No are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear wh we shall be."

THE NORTHLAND FAMINE

American Finns Give Thanks

PAIVALEHTI PUBLISHING COMPANY,
CALUMET, MICH.

Editor The Christian Herald:

Your valuable efforts in behalf of the famine-stricken pe ple in Finland are very commendable, and we assure you th your good work is most highly appreciated by all the Finni people in America.

Thousands of poor, innocent people, over there in th beautiful "land of the thousand lakes," will slowly but sure starve to death, unless prompt assistance is rendered. Th funds which you will be instrumental in raising will, to great extent, alleviate the suffering and prevent permane disaster.

The Finnish-Americans are doing all in their power towa alleviating the suffering of their brethren in the moth country; but we realize that, without the assistance of th noble-hearted and generous Americans, our aid would not b sufficient. We feel the deepest gratitude towards all wh are so nobly assisting the distressed, downtrodden, famin stricken people in Finland. A. J. JALKANEN, Editor
J. E. HENDRICKSON,

. . .

The Good Work in the West

TACOMA, WASH., Feb. 12, 1903.

Editor The Christian Herald:

We thank you for mailing us some copies of your valuab paper. It has posted us on the subject of Finland ar Sweden. We are raising, I presume, in this town, abo $2000, and still the good work goes on.

The greatest men the world ever saw, were the ones th helped their fellow men, and the greatest nation in the wor is the one that helps others in need. Very truly yours.

Manager, Tacoma Tidende. J. BLAAUW.

. . .

A Finnish View of American Kindness

ASHTABULA, OHIO, Feb. 2.

Editor The Christian Herald:

DEAR SIR: The hearts of the Christian people of th great country have been touched by the appeals in yo paper in behalf of the starving in Finland, and I desire express my gratitude to you for what you have done f those who are suffering in my native land. You have aga demonstrated the fact that America is indeed a Christi nation, with hearts full of sympathy for those who suff and ready and willing to recognize the brotherhood of ma kind. We all know that the average European thinks t aspirations and ambitions of Americans are concentrat in the efforts to secure worldly gain, and that we, as a ru care little for the principles of religion. This wrong opini will be modified when it is made known that our hearts a purses are open, not only for those near and dear to us, b also for those of whom we only know that they are childr of the same Heavenly Father.

The Finlanders are to-day the most unhappy people the face of the earth, and it is no wonder that all who belie in the Fatherhood of God and brotherhood of man a hastening to spread a ray of light upon the pathway of t poor, suffering, unfortunate people.

Please accept my heartfelt thanks, and allow me to he you in your good work by handing you enclosed check ($2

Respectfully yours, AUG. EDWARDS,
Publisher of Amerikan Sanom

THE BIBLE and the NEWSPAPER

Widows and Orphans in India

OUR readers, who have done so much for the orphaned children of India, will be glad to see the photograph we reproduce on this page. It is one of several sent to us by Mr. and Mrs. Bullard, of Kavali, representing various phases of the Orphan Work. CHRISTIAN HERALD readers are supporting one hundred orphans in their mission, which bears the name of this journal. Also sheltered there are a number of widows, many of them, as frequently happens in India, mere children, victims of the degrading custom of child marriage. The elder widows are extremely useful in the institution, cheerfully helping in the care of the younger children. Some of them are Mohammedans, but a large number are Christian, and the number of these latter is being continually increased, as the people realize how far superior Christianity is to Mohammedanism or Hinduism. The evidence of that fact is brought home to them in their own condition, which would have been starvation or other misery had not Christians, for the love of Christ, extended a helping hand to them.

The mission is comparatively young. It had been established but a short time when the famine occurred. The missionaries found themselves in the midst of a native population of one hundred thousand, among whom there were not two hundred Christians. It was hard work to reach and teach under the circumstances, but, aided by the gifts of the Christian people in this country, the missionaries were enabled to do so much to relieve the suffering around them that the native prejudice against Christians disappeared. The children who were taken in after the famine, though wild and untractable at first, have become docile and eager to learn. Not only have many of the elder ones been brought to Christ, but some of their relatives and friends, impressed by the improvement in the children, have begun to inquire about Christianity for themselves, and several have formally renounced their religion and declared themselves Christians. Mr. and Mrs. Bullard say that if our readers could see the children they are supporting they would be well pleased with the results of their generous gifts. Every one who is supporting an orphan in India will be gratified at reading such testimony. It is a manifestation of the spirit of Christ, which must surely bring a fulfilment of the promise:

They cannot recompense thee; but thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just (Luke 14: 14).

WIDOWS AND ORPHANS IN "THE CHRISTIAN HERALD" ORPHANAGE, AT KAVALI, INDIA

Held by His Foot

A remarkable accident took place on the Long Island Railroad a few days ago. A man was crossing the tracks at a level crossing near Maspeth, when, in some way, that cannot even now be understood, he stepped on the cattle guard, and his foot was caught in it. He tried ineffectually to release himself, and at last grew nervous, as people shouted to him to get off the track, as a train was coming. He called for help, and several ran to his assistance, while others ran down the line to signal the approaching express train to stop. The engineer appears not to have understood their gestures and cries, for he continued his course till he saw the man on the tracks, and it was then too late to stop the train. It was remarkable that none of those who were trying to extricate the entrapped man thought of cutting away his shoe. It held him firmly, and the train passed over him and killed him. How sad it is to think that the man might have been saved if only he or the people about him had thought of cutting off his shoe! Better have cut off his foot than to have lost his life. Men realize that fact in such a case, but when the soul is at stake, they hesitate. Yet if we only realized what the loss of the soul means, we should see that no sacrifice is too great to make if it is of something which is holding a man to his destruction.

It is profitable for thee that one of thy members should perish, and not that thy whole body should be cast into hell (Matt. 5: 29).

His Ashes Scattered

A strange funeral took place in New York Bay last week. A citizen of Passaic, N. J., died recently in that city. Long ago he imbibed peculiar ideas on religion, and exacted a promise from his wife that in the event of her surviving him none of the usual formalities should be observed in the disposal of his body. He wished his body to be cremated and his ashes scattered to the four winds. In fulfilment of her promise, the widow took the remains of her husband to Fresh Pond, where they were burned. In due time she returned, and received from the officers the urn containing the ashes. She then chartered a tug, and, with a party of invited friends, steamed down the bay. When the lower bay was reached, the tug halted, and the widow, having divided the ashes into four portions, cast one to each point of the compass. It was a singular wish for a man to have, and we can imagine that it must have been painful to his widow to comply with it; but no harm would come of it to the dead man if he had committed his soul to the keeping of Christ. He could then feel the same security as that which comforted the apostle.

I am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day (II. Timothy 1: 12).

An Interrupted Wedding

A press dispatch from Lexington, Ky., describes a scene very uncommon at a wedding ceremony. It took place at a church in Clark County on February 19. The families to which the bride and bridegroom belong are well known in that section, and there was a large crowd to witness the ceremony. The bridegroom was there with his best man, and the bride, leaning on the arm of her father, entered and met them at the altar. The minister began the service, and the bridegroom promptly answered the first questions. Turning to the bride, the minister asked her if she took the bridegroom to be her husband, and, to the surprise of the wedding party and the crowd in the church, she emphatically answered that she would not. The minister thought she had mistaken the purport of his question and repeated it in an undertone. He received the same answer. "Do I understand you to say," he inquired, "that you will not marry this man?" "I will not," said the bride, and turning away, she walked out of the church. To some one who inquired the reason for the extraordinary act, the bride said that she had learned at the last moment that her father's consent to the union had been purchased by the intending bridegroom for a sum of money. It seemed to her so like being sold that she could not bring herself to go through the ceremony. Probably the whole story has not been told. If the woman really loved the intending bridegroom, she might logically have regarded his payment to her father as proof of his love for her. The Church, which is the bride of Christ, has reason to glory in the fact that she was purchased by him at an infinite cost.

Christ also loved the Church, and gave himself for it (Eph. 5: 25).

Peasants Enriched

Five Bohemian peasants, living on the border of Moravia, in the Austro-Hungarian Empire, will inherit, by the decision of Judge Cant in the District Court at Duluth, Minn., one hundred and sixty acres of what is said to be practically solid iron ore in the great Mesaba Range, valued at from $1,000,000 to $5,000,000. This valuable tract was the property of a hermit, who had entered it as a Government claim before its value was known, and who died in the Duluth poorhouse in 1898. Several persons claimed to be his heirs, but the lawyers concerned were dubious as to the validity of their claims, and one of them went to the district in Europe where the dead man was born, and there found, after a long search, his three brothers and two sisters, none of whom had the slightest idea that their brother had left any property. They were eager enough to put in their claim, when they were informed that they were the true heirs. They did not act as so many do, who listen to the story of eternal riches which they may have, and go away indifferent.

An inheritance incorruptible and undefiled and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for you (I. Peter 1: 4).

A Hotel Stipulation

The new hotel opened on Chatham Square, New York, has leaped at a bound into popularity. It is conducted by the Salvation Army, and a man may obtain a night's lodging there for fifteen cents, or if he desires privacy, he can have a room to himself for a quarter. It is seldom that any of the 485 beds it contains are unoccupied. The scrupulous cleanliness of the place, the conveniences for reading, writing, and amusement it offers, have made the hotel a place to be desired by the homeless Bowery wanderer. From six o'clock to nine there is a steady stream of applicants for tickets, and if an applicant is sober and quiet and has the requisite funds, he is admitted. But once received, he is required to take a bath. From the appearance of many of the guests, it would be supposed that the offer of the free bath would be regarded as a privilege. As a matter of fact, however, the manager says that it is objected to. On a recent evening, of the first twenty applicants for lodging, twelve went away rather than take a bath. The stipulation is rigorously applied, and under no pretext can a man enjoy the privileges of the hotel without taking a bath. Dirty men are not excluded, but they must wash after they are admitted. It is the glory of Christ's kingdom that the same rule prevails there. None are too vile to be excluded if they will submit to the cleansing of the Holy Spirit after they are received.

And such were some of you: but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus (I Cor. 6. 11).

BRIEF NOTES

Any choir or Sunday School in New York or vicinity, desiring the services of a competent, resourceful music leader, of wide experience, may address H. F. M., care of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, New York.

We regret to learn that Rev. G. Campbell Morgan is again in delicate health. He has been ordered to curtail his work as the only means of restoration.

News from the Philippines indicates that the reform movement, led by Archbishop Aghpay, is likely to cause a serious inroad on the Roman Catholic Church in the islands. The new Church rejects the authority of the Pope, forbids the worship of images, and permits priests to marry.

The total number of votes cast in favor of prohibition in New Zealand at the recent plebiscite was 160,000, in favor of the reduction of licenses 134,000, and in favor of the continuance of the present system 147,000. This poll will involve the closing of nearly 200 out of the 1,000 liquor bars there are in New Zealand.

Friends and supporters of the Venezuela Gospel Mission will be gratified to know that the statement which appeared in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD on January 30, concerning a mission boat on the Orinoco River, had no reference to the mission work conducted there by the Rev. R. W. Crichton and wife. This is stated in justice to Mr. Crichton.

Rev. E. Payson Hammond has been holding evangelistic services at Wilkinsburg, Pa., in the First Presbyterian Church, with most blessed results. Rev. Thos. Parry, the pastor, says that the meetings grew in interest perceptibly from day to day. Among the helpers were several who were converted under Mr. Hammond's preaching when they were children.

The following summary of statistics is made by an eminent German statistician from a laborious examination of census returns: There are 3,064 languages and dialects in the world, and its inhabitants profess more than 1,000 religions. The number of men is about equal to the number of women. The average length of life is about 33 years. Of 1,000 persons only one reaches a hundred years of life, of every 100 six reach the age of 65, and not more than one in 600 lives 80 years.

Pastor Duche's Memorable Prayer at the Opening of the First Congress in Philadelphia

THE following description of this event is from the pen of the Venerable John Adams: "When the Congress met, Mr. Cushing made a motion that it should be opened with prayer. It was opposed by Mr. Jay of New York, and Mr. Rutledge of South Carolina, because we were so divided in religious sentiments—some Episcopalians, some Quakers, some Anabaptists, some Presbyterians, and some Congregationalists—that we could not join in the same act of worship. Mr. Samuel Adams arose and said that he was no bigot, and could hear a prayer from any gentleman of piety and virtue, who was at the same time a friend to his country. He was a stranger in Philadelphia, but had heard that Mr. Duche (Dushay they pronounced it), deserved that character, and, therefore, he moved that Mr. Duche, an Episcopalian clergyman, might be desired to read prayers to Congress to-morrow morning. The motion was seconded and passed to the affirmative. Mr. Randolph, our president, waited on Mr. Duche, and received for answer, that if his health would permit, he certainly would. Accordingly, next morning he appeared with [his clerk], and in his pontificals, and read several prayers in the established form, and then read the psalter for the seventh day September, which was the 35th Psalm.

"You must remember that this was the next morning after we had heard of the horrible cannonade of Boston. It seemed as if heaven had ordained that psalm to be read on that morning. After this Mr. Duche, unexpectedly to everybody, struck out into extemporary prayer, which filled the bosom of every man present. I must confess I never heard a better prayer, or one so well pronounced. It had excellent effect on everybody here. I must beg of you to read the psalm. Here was a scene worthy of the painter's art. It was in Carpenters' Hall in Philadelphia—a building that still survives—that the devoted individuals met to whom the service was read. Washington was kneeling there, and Henry, and Randolph, and Rutledge, and Lee, and Jay, and by their sides there stood, bowed in reverence, the Puritan patriots of New England, who at that moment had reason to believe that an armed soldiery was wasting their humble households. It was believed that Boston had been bombarded and destroyed. They prayed fervently for America, for the Congress, for the Province of Massachusetts Bay, and especially for the town of Boston, and who can realize the emotions with which they turned imploringly to heaven for divine interposition and aid? I saw the tears gush into the eyes of the old, grave, pacific Quakers of Philadelphia."

VARIOUS GOOD CAUSES HELPED

THE following contributions, sent in by our readers, for the various good causes mentioned below, are hereby acknowledged:

Dutch Lepers Colony, Surinam, So. America
—, Baltimore, Md. 2 00
Mrs L H Jones 10 00
—— Grand Falls NY 1 00
A Friend, Wisconsin 20
Mrs E C Tibbals 1 00
J H Swan 1 00
S F P N Y City 1 00
—, Franklin, Mass 1 00
Isabel Jamar 1 00
J A M P Haydenville, Mass 1 00
Amanda Morse 1 00
Mr A Mrs S C Duvall 10 00
S E A Elizabeth Pa 2 00
Anna W Reed 2 00
Otto Petersen 1 00
Martha Hucker 5 00
W H Clark 1 00
John Humble 50
Mrs A W Sigler 1 00
F H Peters 5 00
F H Lane 2 00
Mrs Seibert 1 00
T A Hanks 2 00
K B S Rochester NY 5 00
J H N Newark, N J 5 00
O R Brownfield 1 50
W E Reed 1 00
Eliz Buchman 1 00
Mrs M Long 5 00
Geo R Long 5 00
M P Benedict 2 00
Friend, Earlehurst, Va 1 00
Mrs Annie Stoub 2 25
John H Miller 1 00
V F Sample 1 00
Mrs H Dunbar 1 00
Mrs A J Doubler 1 00
J H S, a subr, Mich 1 00
Lauel R Swift 2 00
Matilda Parmley 10 00
Miss Emma Sweeney 1 00
Mrs Wm Randall 1 00
W K Desh 10 00
Sub'r, Boston Highland, N Y 25
Mrs J I Stuart 2 00
Wm Cumming 2 00
Henry Hoening 40 00
A R Collins 3 00
Harriet Ratcliffe 2 00
Mrs H Bussman 1 00
Mrs S W Moss 1 00
Mrs L Merton 2 00
Mrs Daniel Hersney 1 00
E P Campbell 1 00
Mary A Sampson 1 00
G H Wheeler 1 00
Orrel B Osborn 5 00
Dr C A McConville 5 00
S J Cowdin 3 00
Mrs I R Haskins 1 00
S F Chollant 5 00
High Street Mission, Pottstown Pa 3 68
Viola H Daniels 1 00
Eileen Jones 75
Capted S Sch, New Bracktord, N D 4 50
James Northey 1 00
A Hutchinson 2 00
S E Finley 25 00
—, Pt Byron N Y 1 00
John F Tournier 5 00
In sympathy, Tipton, Pa 50
Sympathy, Beverly, 1 00
Miss E C Wells 1 00

Medical Missionary Student
Mary Rankin 3 00
Geo R Shaw 18 00
D F Easton 1 00

Foreign Missions, for Bishop Thoburn
E A Graham 60 00

Dr. P. B. Keskar, India
C H Myers 1 00

A. S. S. U. C. H. S. S. Mossy
Alton E Church 50

African Inland Mission, Kuruguinda
Mrs H P Smith 1 00

Steele Orphanage, Chattanooga, Tenn
Alice Person 1 00
F H Lane 2 00

China Orphan Fund
Mrs E Nibecker 10 00

Spanish Am. Fund, for Philippine Islands
Miss Lizz R Shaw 90

Lepers at Jerusalem
Mrs S A Benson 50
Grace Carson 1 00

Spanish American Gospel Fund
Frances C Brown 1 00
J E Boyer 2 00
Mrs S R Barnes 20

Leper Hospital, Manila, P. I.
Sympathy, Beverly, 1 00
Miss E C Wells 1 00

Medical Missionary Student
Mary Rankin 3 00
Geo R Shaw 18 00
D F Easton 1 00

E Glover Mansfield 1 00
Mrs J C Frances 1 00
J D Mark 1 00
Edith M Murray 2 00
Rev Chas Philips 1 00
S P Kane 2 00
C W Johnson 2 00
Emilie F Barry 2 00
Mrs Boyd 2 00

Amoustin Mariam, Marsovan, Turrik Iskanderian, Ismidt, Turkey
Mrs W W Torrence 10

Mrs. Esterbrook, Barbadoes, W. I.
I H N Lasanke, Ill. 10 00
Miss E L Stickles 5 00

Bethesda Home
G L Harrington 10 00

Good Causes
Mrs J H Blake 1 50
Margaret Copeland 1 00
Geo W Broughter 15
Miss V E Wallace 25
Wm Dunn 50
Wm Alexander 1 00
Reader, Mt Clemens 2 00
Samuel T Earle 10
Mrs M Y Yeardley 50
Christian, Marlboro. 2 00
Mrs John McGirl 15
S and V Stevenson 75
Wm Lyons 3 00
J C Lindsey 2 00
Mrs H F Bastion 50
Thos M Shearer 1 00
—, Brooklyn, Ia 50
Chas G Clondman 50
S R Lewis 50
R H Waters 50

A D Rowe 1 00
Lizzie L Greenough 50
Archie Cairns 1 00
H W Opper 50
E E Golding 50
J S Konsta 1 00
Mrs E M Colvin 1 00
—, St Cloud, Minn. 1 00
H K H Mitchell 50
Mrs Lucy Thomas 50

The White Door
Mrs A J Henderson 50
Wm Lyons 2 00
B Bradford 5 00

Steele Orphanage, Chattanooga, Tenn
Wm Lyons 3 00
G L Harrington 5 00
W S Wilkinson 2 00

Rev. Nicholas Zamora
Mrs R G Kean 1 00
Anne Alton 1 00
Robt Rhoades 2 00
W E Morris 2 00
S E Finley 25 00
Mrs H Benjamin 50
W S Lowry 2 50
Mrs J Bernhardt 2 00
M J S. —, N J 5 00
Mrs Geo Tolles 5 00
—, Pattersonville, 2 00
Mrs M D Merrifield 2 00
Mrs T E P. —— 3 50

Mrs. Bella Cook
Mrs G W Sampas 1 00
Mrs Jennie Taylor 2 00
Mrs N F Marty 1 00
Alice I Nichols 1 00

Seaman's Mission
—, Holyoke, Mass 5 00

Hull House, Chicago, Ill
G L Harrington 5 00

King's Daughters Settlement
W S Wilkinson 3 00

E. Olsson's So. American Mission
S E Finley 25 00

Rev. E. H. Richards, East Africa
S E Finley 25 00

Mercedes Orphanage, San Juan, P. R.
S E Finley 25 00

Miss Nason's Work
From Nesteis, Topsfield, Mass 10 00

St. Andrew's Coffee Stands
Mrs Grace Kentgen 5 00

N.Y. Foreigners' Miss'n
Miss C Wells 1 00
—, Grand Forks N D 1 00

China Flood Sufferers
Mrs E Pepper 25

Utah Gospel Mission
Virgie B Moss 1 00

Mrs. Mary L. Allen, Liberia, Africa
Mrs A L Fuson 50

Rev. James Cantine, Muscat, Arabia
Eileen Jenny 25

Society Soul Winners
Mrs M J Kennedy 2 00

Salvation Army
R S Odell 10
C Altoona, Kan 1 00

Bishop Hartzell, Africa
—, Pattersonville, 2 00

Rev. C. Papadopoulas, Pastor Cong'l Prot Ch, Fatsa, Turkey
—, Denham Springs, La 10 07

Jerusalem Lepers
James Northey 1 00

Dr. Sven Hedin, Thibet
P C Miller 1 00

Good Causes (for Mrs. Huck)
Mrs Jennie Taylor 3 50
Clinton St. Settlement
Friend, Manitoba, Can 1 50
Friend, Summerstown 5 00
Mrs C Coatsworth 2 00
H M Conklin 75
Mrs H C M Foss 50
Mrs C Benshoof 3 00
R E Colville 1 00
Mrs M Y McLean 3 00

Door of Hope
Mrs Grace Kentgen 10 00

Elmer Hubbard, Matanzas, Cuba
Alice Devereau 50
S L Finley 25 00
Mrs K Mendenhall 30 00

Mrs. Rose H. Lathrop
James Northey 50

Home Missions
A Friend, Forest, O. 5 00

Foreign Missions (Mr. Weiss)
Friend, Manitoba, Can 1 50
Joe Oglesby 15

Spanish American Gospel Fund, for Porto Rico
Mrs L Nibecker 5 00

Home Missions (for H. C. Olin)
T C Guy 50

Foreign Missions
Wm Marshall 2 00
M A Mills 2 00
One to whom the Lord has been very gracious, Colton, Calif 5 00

Foreign Missions (Bashtel)
A Friend, Columbia 2 00

Foreign Missions (Rev. Z. C. Beals, Wuhu, China)
John Lohmann 1 00
Andrew and Mary Hofman 50 00
Mrs S J Hodman 1 00
Reader of U. H. Newark, N J 1 00

Foreign Missionaries
S E Finley 125 00

Foreign Missions, China
A Friend, Forest, O. 5 00
An old lady subscriber, Barnes, Kan 5 00

Foreign Missions, Africa
A Friend, Forest, O. 5 00

Jerry McAuley Mission
John McNab 1 00
—, Waterloo, N Y 50 00

Mrs. Bird
Reader, Chestertown. 50

Pundita Ramabai, India
Mr and Mrs J G Wallace 20 00

On Visiting the Sick

WHILE people are in the toils of serious illness, it is not unusual for them to receive visits from friends. Doctors forbid it, and nurses mount guard over the bedside. A suffering patient needs every bit of strength to fight the fever or the pain that is making havoc at the citadel of life, and he has no spare vitality to spend upon sympathetic acquaintances. The calls of the family are often limited to the merest appearances in the room, and conversation is not allowed, lest it shall excite or weaken the one who must be protected from strain.

Convalescents may be cheered by visitors, but they, too, are under orders, and are not to be tired out just as they are mending. If you would have your visit do a sick person real good, ascertain at what time in the day, he or she can best see you; find out how long you may remain, and go with a cheerful face. A dull, lugubrious countenance is sadly misplaced in an invalid's chamber. But do not overact your congratulations. To be boisterous in cheer, is as bad as to be melancholy.

In every community there are chronic invalids, to whom these directions do not apply. The young woman who, some years ago, made a misstep on the slippery sidewalk, and has been a cripple ever since; the older woman who has a cruel spinal trouble; the sad whose paralyzed body confines him to a chair or couch; the people who are maimed, or blind, or deaf, shut in to their homes, shut out from the blithe current of the world's bright life, these are to be lovingly tended, and held close to the warm, beating heart of friendship.

A young woman with time and health, can hardly put her loveliness and her sweetness to better account than in setting aside some portion of her week, regularly, to such sufferers, visiting them as the sunlight goes, to warm and bless. Let us look out for the neglected and forlorn among us, for those who are so used to being on the sick list and laid aside, that they do not know the joy of having a well day. If they like to hear reading, let us save up for them the bright stories and funny anecdotes in the papers. If we have good voices, let us sing to them.

One of the dearest and cheeriest of God's saints used to sing, every Sunday afternoon of her life, to somebody who had no chance to hear music. Sometimes she lifted up her exquisite silvery soprano in a hospital ward; sometimes in a tenement room; sometimes in a shaded chamber, where a friend who could not bear the light, could be uplifted by the joyous hymn. Dear girl! She has joined the angel choirs now, but there should be many left here to follow in her track, and do the angelic work that she so lovingly accomplished before she went home.

"Sick and ye visited me!" Do you want the blessing of the Lord's "Inasmuch"? Then give this cup of cold water to his little ones.

Courting Days

Ah, why should they cease when the wedding march is played, and the lady of one's desire becomes the queen of one's home? You used to carry her flowers, when you were engaged, and surprise her with little presents. Why not do the same now? I like to see the man take home a box of candy on Saturday night, hand it to his wife, and look at her with an expression which may be translated into, "Sweets to the sweet." Courting days should go right on, long after the honeymoon is over. Then would life be one ceaseless banquet of honey, with never a flavor of rue.

Aunt Prudence Payson's Catch-All

—MOLLIE C. Never needlessly expose unfortunate family secrets.

—JOHN. You have no right to monopolize a young lady, being seen with her constantly, if you really care nothing for her. You are keeping other men away.

—JESSIE. Learn to say no. Only very weak characters yield against their will to the persuasions of others.

—WALTER. An engaged man is supposed to desire marriage at as early a date as practicable. He is not rightly treating his fiancee if he makes no allusion to the coming of the wedding day.

—SUBSCRIBER. From your letter, I judge that your fiance has an ungoverned temper. People appear to have yielded to him too ishly. If he cannot control his temper during courtship, you may prepare for storms after marriage. I advise you not to be in haste about the latter.

BUYING CURIOS IN THE BAZAR AT ASSOUAN, EGYPT

The passion of the traveler is to carry home some beautiful souvenir of his journey; so the American bride and groom are bargaining with the crafty old Mohammedan for the wares he displays. He asks a great price, but he will come down, sooner than lose a customer, and the pretty things he shows will, one day, be among the prized decorations of a little home in Ohio or Nebraska.

A LOST PEARL

BY MARGARET E. SANGSTER

I DO not know where I lost it,
For it slipped from a broken string,
And far and away from my sight to-day,
It lies, a neglected thing.

Or worse; since it may be, another
Is wearing my pearl of price,
And the gem once mine, with its lucent shine,
May be set in some strange device.

I do not know when I lost it.
It was just as the dawning burst
Through the crystal bars of the waning stars,
With sorrow I missed it first.

Perhaps in an opaline twilight,
Perhaps when the moonbeams lay
With their delicate quiver o'er field and river,
And night was fairer than day.

I never dreamed half how precious
Was my beautiful pearl to me,
Till the grief of its loss, a heavy cross,
I bore over land and sea.

You marvel? You do not divine it?
I have lost what I could not lend,
What I'll mourn while I live, for no art can give
To my heart the lost heart of my friend.

The Miser's Strange Possession

IN a certain town a few weeks ago, a dying man hopelessly ruined, gasped, trembling and appalled, his last words, and left his estimate at the point of a hundred. He was taken to and understood by, but passed away before meeting, in the presence of his wretched mother, seated up in the shape of an ragged old rag, locked here, hidden there, where he was dead and no longer able to guard his secret, a large fortune, thousands of dollars or their equivalent in securities came to light. The man, separated from his family by his eccentric ways, had been sleeping in alleys and cellars and begging his bread for months and years.

When the devil of hoarding for mere hoarding's sake takes possession of a man it subtly robs him of his humanity. It makes him insensible to love, to respect, to the claims of kindred and the duties a man owes to society. To accumulate, that one may own a lot of gold and silver and carry bankbooks, secret investing them of using them or doing any good with them, or to be allowing them what the moneys is owning banks. Just to sit and count the money, to fondle it, to gloat over it, to hide it in secret places, where one can go and steal and steal and steal like a thief into them, where he may hide, so to live an awfully secretive life. God help the miser! I regret to say, he is a frequent illness more of than the man who is merely pauper in body. The hand to mouth living of the poorest day-laborer is princely compared with the forlorn wretchedness of the miser's long-drawn-out suffering.

Courtesy of Poverty

We are quick to observe the politeness of the rich and well bred. Not always do we note the courtesy of the poor, yet no one who visits in tenement homes can fail to realize the prevalence of conventionality and the domination of a code of good manners there. Mrs. MacShane may have but a single chair. She scrupulously offers it to her guest. Mrs. Lewenstein asks a neighbor in, and presents her. The children are not allowed to chatter or interrupt while the visitor is talking. There are women as cheery, as droll and as captivating as Mrs. Wiggs, of the Cabbage Patch, in the rear tenements and up the dark stairways of the East Side. The coal famine has brought to those people an acute and bitter suffering, a depth of privation never dreamed of, but their neighborly courtesies have not failed. Laundresses have shared their scraps of fire. Women who have had a little coal, have cooked for those who had none. In extremities, the poor show a liberality to the poor, which shames the more calculating kindness of the well-to-do. They don't stop to ask or investigate or find out as to possible worthiness—they just lend a hand.

True Brotherhood

A little dark-browed Jewish tailor was doing some work for a lady. His little dark-eyed wife was adding her help, as to the length of the skirt, the fulness, and the general effect. A lad brought in the evening paper.

"How is he to-night?" asked the tailor, as the wife unfolded the sheet. "No worse, God be praised," was the answer.

"He has everything to live for," said the husband. "I hope he gets well."

The lady's curiosity was aroused. Of whom were they speaking? Of a man, it transpired, lying in the shadow of coming death, it was feared: suffering from typhoid fever. A man who lived in a New York palace and owned millions; a man who swayed great enterprises, who had a beautiful wife, and who had entertained royalty. The little tailor and his wife had never seen the man. They were very poor; they worked very hard; sometimes they went hungry. But they cared about this rich man, and were in spirit at his bedside.

"I pray every night for him to live," said the little Hebrew wife. God bless the two loving souls. The Christ, though they knew it not, was abiding there. True brotherhood was exemplified in their speech and thought.

Demagogues foster class hatreds and suspicions for their own base ends. But there is love regnant over malice and uncharitableness in many an obscure home, and less than mischief-makers tell us, do the poor envy and distrust the rich.

By mail, at our stores or branch stores.

New Spring Costumes

To the lady who wishes to dress well at moderate cost, our New Spring Catalogue is indispensable. It illustrates styles of the newest, and at prices lower than ever before. We make every garment especially to order, thus ensuring the perfection of fit and finish. No matter where you live, we pay the express charges.

Our Catalogue illustrates:

New Suits, well-tailored, in the newest fashions, $8 up.

Etamine Costumes, in models to prevail during the coming Season, $12 up.

The latest designs in Spring and Summer Skirts, $4 up.

Rainy-Day and Walking Skirts, $5 up.

Jaunty Jackets Rainy-Day an Walking Suits, Traveling Dresses, etc.

The Catalogue and a full line of samples of the new Spring materials will be sent free by return mail; order what you like—every garment you choose will be made to measure and guaranteed to fit and please you. If it does not, send it back promptly and we will refund your money. It's your good will we want most.

NATIONAL CLOAK AND SUIT COMPANY
119 and 121 West 23d St., New York.

If the best you wish to buy,
Ask the clerk for YAMA-MAI.
Then the selvage scan with care,
For my name is printed there.

Yama-Mai

I am the best little priced silk ever made. My price is so tiny that really I'm ashamed to mention it. The merchant who wants to give you the most for your money will sell me to you every time. I am used for skirt linings and pretty fancies in silk. Yours for economy and honesty, YAMA MAI.

DUNCAN & STENZ,
Makers for the Trade,
No. 466 Broome Street, New York.

$500.00 in Cash Prizes

NO MORE DARNING
Racine Feet
A New Pair Hose for 10c

Cut off ragged feet, attach "Racine Feet" to legs of hosiery by our new Stockinette Stitch, and you have a pair of hose as good as new. Cost only 10c. and a few moments' time.

Racine Feet come in cotton, sizes 5 to 11, black or white. Price, 10c. a pair; prepaid. Booklet, "The Stockinette Stitch," tells everything. Sent free. Agents wanted. Send for sample pair, and particulars for competition.

RACINE KNITTING CO.
Dept. 3
Racine, Wis.

LABLACHE FACE POWDER

MARCH WINDS will ruin any complexion and destroy woman's most beautiful charm of face unless

LABLACHE

Face Powder is used freely. It freshens and softens the skin and makes the complexion pure and clear. It heightens beauty's choicest charm. It destroys skin microbes. Any woman may have a lovely complexion who will use LABLACHE FACE POWDER. Nothing else as good. Flesh, White, Pink, Cream Tints. 50c. a box. Druggists or by mail.
BEN LEVY & CO. French Perfumers, 125 Kingston St., Boston

MUSIC TAUGHT BY MAIL, Piano, Organ, Guitar, Banjo, Mandolin, Violin and Cornet.
Send for free Catalogue and Testimonials. Address, Box 120,
U. S. School of Music, 19 Union Square, New York, N. Y.

THE LADY SERENE

By Edith Ferguson Black

CHAPTER I.

SUMMER'S morning! The fields of young grass ablaze with diamonds; the air aquiver with the melodies of birds; the river aflame with the sunbeams which threw themselves upon its bosom.

"How beautiful it is!" exclaimed the younger of two women, who stood together, with only a latticed gate between. She had not lived long enough in Hillsboro to grow accustomed to the intoxication of its mornings and the witchery of its nights.

Her companion looked at her with a contemptuous pity. "You're new at farmin' or you wouldn't waste so much of yer time on outside things." She was a tall woman, tall and gaunt, with a premature stoop, and a face that was deeply furrowed with anxious care.

"Oh, no, Mrs. Briggs!" cried Janet Moore. "Why, I go up to the back pasture two or three times a week, just to see the sunset and watch the light on the hills."

Mrs. Briggs' face took on an added scorn, as she said slowly, "By the time yer husband's tuk up a few more back lots, an' you hev' to feed the men that works 'em, you'll allow the sun ter set without you. Churnin' an' cheesin' an' cannin' an' curin' an' picklin' an' breadmakin' an' quiltin' is about enough fer one woman's day, with half a dozen children thrown in."

"But it helps you to look above them and beyond!" said her neighbor. "Why, those sunsets are the greatest comfort to me! You don't know how much easier the work seems afterwards."

The older woman's mouth hardened into a deeper curve of disapproval. "Them's the new flighty notions that the world's goin' crazy over. The sun and I've ben pretty intimate fer the last fifty years, but the only thing he ever done fer me was to make me mad that he could set jest at milkin' time, an' I couldn't. I've heard talk of such livin' before, but it all peters out in the tryin'. Jest wait till you get the grind of it into your blood. It's a treadmill, that's what life is. I'm tired clear through to the bone; but what's the use of sayin' so? You hev to keep on grindin'."

She turned sharply as a carriage rolled along the main road, and stood looking after it, her face growing harder and darker.

"Don't you think Mrs. Thurston is lovely?" ventured Janet Moore. "I wonder what makes her hair so white? She must have had a great sorrow."

"She's another of your whapsoders. It's easy fer folks to dote on Nature when they've nothing better to do. As fer her hair, I guess sorrow is light when the purse is heavy, and she'll never see its linin'."

"But her face looks sad," persisted the younger woman, "there is such a wistfulness about it."

"Pshaw!" was the ungracious reply. "Ail she's got to do is to ride round with that precious son of her's, who she watches as if he was a baby. It's a pity they wasn't where they wouldn't set all the boys a'grumblin' because they hevn't no kerridges to ride in. How do, Mrs. Porter?" she added, as a sunbonnet with a woman in its depths came towards her. "I'm just tellin' Mrs. Moore that Hillsboro's no place fer people whose only business in doin' nothing."

The newcomer smiled. "It beats me," she said, "what a spell she lays on the children. My Nance spends all her time trying to fix up her hair the same way, and I believe the boys would make a footpath of their bodies if she would promise to walk over them. She has a way of smiling at them when she meets them going to school that fairly turns their heads."

"I don't blame them!" cried Janet Moore, "I think she has a lovely face. I catch myself watching it in church instead of listening to the minister. It seems so strange she never brings her son."

"Silas says he believes there's a mystery about them. None of the boys have ever had a word from that son of hers—she keeps him that close. Bill Hammond has tried agen an' agen, but she always whisks him off in the carriage; an' you couldn't get anything out of that coachman no more than you could draw snakes' teeth. Mystery is always evil, Silas says."

"Oh, but she is good," cried Janet Moore. "Just think how she helps the minister! He always sends for her to visit the sick people, and she is so feeling and tender."

"Oh, yes, she's good at talkin'," quoth Mrs. Briggs. "Shouldn't wonder if she'd take the minister's place away from him. She's full of the new fangled notions of runnin' meetin's. They say she used ter preach in New York State. Paul's women wouldn't hev much show in these days. Just to fancy hearin' her pronounce the benediction! I'm thankful I, fer one, will always stick to the Bible way of doin' things."

. . . . . .

The beautiful woman, whose "only business was doing nothing," leaned back against the cushions of her carriage while the shadow of a great weariness oppressed her. All night the past had been beating loudly at the door of her memory, and her heart was sore with the repetition of the name which had been her sweetest music.

"Serenity, Serenity, Serenity!"

When the carriage drew up beside the large oak tree in the forest which was her favorite stopping place, she left her son to fish for trout in the brook and went on into the deeper shadow of the trees. She lay down upon a bed of moss and buried her face in its cool depths.

"Serenity, Serenity, Serenity!"

How near it seemed! In spite of herself, she lifted her head and listened, expectant. But she only heard the wind sighing among the pines, and the minor of a whip-poor-will in the far distance.

"Serenity, Serenity, Serenity!"

She buried her face again with a moan. Then came a child's voice, insistent, imperious.

"Mummie, Mummie! You've forgotten wee Davie. Come play with your bonny; your bonny, bonny lad!"

She rose hastily and walked towards the brook, where she had left her son. He had tired of fishing, and was coming to see why she lingered.

"How late it is!" she said, gently, as she always spoke to him. "I did not realize how the time had flown. Come, darling, we must go home at once."

. . . . . .

"Serene. That name just suits her!" Janet Moore said to her husband, as they stood together after Mrs. Thurston had passed them smiling. "She seems lifted up and far away, and yet, when you're in trouble, she's right down in the midst. I suppose you'll laugh, James, but she always makes me think of the sky that comes with the sunset, that pale, blue green. I'm always the better for looking at it. It seems to rest me. I expect it's like the children feel after a lullaby." She laughed, half ashamed. The good people of Hillsboro were not accustomed to talk their hearts out so.

But James Moore did not laugh. His spirit, although of a coarser fibre than his wife's, felt dimly the force of the truth she was trying to reach after. He was conscious of a difference between Mrs. Thurston and his other neighbors. He, too, had felt the power of her smile.

"She'll be going the morn to see poor Donald," said Janet, who fell at times into a Scotch phrasing. "I misdoubt but the poor lad finds in her all his sunshine. It's an ill body for company that aunt of his must be, with her gloomin' ways, and always complaining."

"Poor Donald!" said her husband, "he's got a heavier row to hoe than the rest of us, although he'll never bend his back in

CONTINUED ON NEXT PAGE

Mothers should permit their children to use the perfect liquid dentifrice

RUBIFOAM

Rubifoam is harmless as pure water, fragrant as the sweetest flowers. Price, 25c, at druggists.

E. W. HOYT & CO., Lowell, Mass.

SHIRT WAIST SUIT

AN UNPARALLED OFFER

$1.65

PREPAID EVERYWHERE

No. 9. This Stylish Shirt Waist Suit is made of Fine Washable Dress Penang, in large variety of colors and patterns. Waist has Gibson tucked front, with similar tucks in the back; shirt waist sleeves with cuffs of same material. New three-piece skirt, Paquin flounce headed with bias fold; inverted pleat back.

Indicate your preference of color, of figure, or stripe pattern, and we will select for you.

You will do well to order at once, for they will all be sold in a few days and you will not get such a bargain again.

Sizes 32 to 4 bust measur

We do not sen sample of this suit.

$1.65 PREPAID ANYWHERE

Our Spring and Summer Catalogs contain the latest fashions for Spring and Summer, literally running over with good bargains. You should have them both. Write for them.

Garlands
LADIES' CLOTHING STORE
DEPT. F ST. LOUIS, MO.

Trust the Dealer

who sells Radcliffe Shoes. They cost him more than any other shoe he sells for $2.50. They last longer and you buy fewer pairs.

Radcliffe
$2.50
Shoes for Women are in a class alone. If you have trouble in getting them let us know. Book of fashions and calendar book-mark free.

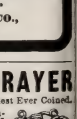
THE RADCLIFFE SHOE CO.,
Dept. 18, Boston, Mass.

Send Size.

LORD'S PRAYER
Bangle Ring. Smallest Ever Coined. Or any Initial engraved Free. Rolled Gold. Warranted 3 years. 10c for either or 15c for both.



VOKES Mfg. Co., 46 Western Av., COVINGTON, KY.

THE LADY SERENE

Continued from Preceding Page

he field again. Janet, lass, the next time ou have a bakin', I'll take him a cake nd sit awhile."

. . . . . .

Donald Ross turned upon his pillow to reet his friend. Janet Moore had guessed ruly, she was the sunshine of his life—the fe so full of promise and hope and buoyncy which had been so suddenly laid low. oing out in the early morning in the ush of his strong young manhood to do day's mowing and plan for the summer's ork, which was to put the money in his ocket to pay for college in the winter, hat did he dream of the sudden fright of he powerful horses, and then their mad lunge which jerked him off and down mong the glittering knives? He was ng in regaining consciousness. There ere kind-hearted ones among the neighors who almost hoped he never would. o be a helpless cripple, with all his bright reams of a life that should make itself lt in the world, forever shattered, was itter enough, but to be dependent upon he widowed aunt with whom he made his

"But your eyes are not bound, my friend, and all these senses which God has given us. That is the triumph of living."

"I'm glad if you find any triumph in it," sighed Mrs. Ross. "I never could—'specially now. But I always was cut out for trouble, and it always comes double, too. Carriage troubles have rubber tires, and run easy. But I'm not complainin'. There is folks cut out for good times, and them that hasn't got them. I suppose the Lord knew which was best when he was makin' us," she added, in a tone which plainly indicated she had her doubts upon the subject.

"Donald," said Mrs. Thurston brightly, as she laid her hand over his closed eyelids, "What is it I have brought you? You must guess before I let you open your eyes. It is a dream and a vision and a message. An unfolding with a thought between."

"You make me think, Lady Serene, of Holmes' Chambered Nautilus," said Donald, with a laugh.

"THEIR MAD PLUNGE THREW HIM OFF AND DOWN"

me, this was as gall and wormwood to s sensitive soul!

The neighbors were kindly but they were isy folk, and after the first flush of the cident, it had grown to be a common ought that Donald Ross, whose strength d been their boast, would never walk ain. The familiarity of the ever prest thought robbed it of its awfulness to em and the nearer happening put it in e background—almost out of sight.

Only Mrs. Thurston never forgot. She me to him like the perfume that the nd carries from the orchards when the ossom blushes: she brought to him the pe of the springtime and the full fruite of the summer; and, what was better, e never, by word or tone, inferred that e pitied him or thought his life was done. He always heard her gracious, kindly, nes, as she spoke to his aunt in the outroom (his ears had grown keen with tening), and then he would shut his es sometimes in a happy trance, from hich she waked him with a touch of her ol, soft, hand, which fell light as thistlewn upon his brow.

"How goes the world this morning, rs. Ross?" she asked. "It is so exquie to-day! So much of God's beauty erywhere."

"Perhaps," was the ungracious reply, or folks that has time to look at it."

"Right you are, laddie!" and she held before his eyes a sea shell so exquisite in its tintings that he drew a long breath of delight. "I knew you needed a breath of the sea this wonderful morning. Now listen to the message which it brings to you and me.

"There are prison houses of many kinds for our soul's confining; some where the bars are never seen. We may sing songs in the night, like Paul in the dungeon; until the world bends its ear to listen to the weird melody and goes away feeling it has had a taste of better things. Our very tears may be changed into opals, out of which the sun makes rainbows. See in this shell how the light brings out the red glow of suffering and the clear green of hope. The dream of what might have been and the vision of what shall be. It is only the blind who count the first the better of the two."

Donald Ross looked up at her with a whole world of love in his eyes. "If you had been my mother," he said brokenly, "I should have died with joy."

Suddenly the bright eyes clouded, the sensitive mouth was caught in a sharp curve of pain, and, with a quick pressure of his hand, Mrs. Thurston left the room, and Donald buried his face in his pillow with a groan.

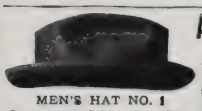
TO BE CONTINUED

ARMSTRONG & McKELVY, Pittsburgh.
BEYMER-BAUMAN, Pittsburgh.
DAVIS-CHAMBERS, Pittsburgh.
FAHNESTOCK, Pittsburgh.
ANCHOR, ECKSTEIN } Cincinnati.
ATLANTIC, BRADLEY, BROOKLYN, JEWETT, ULSTER, UNION } New York.
SOUTHERN, SHIPMAN } Chicago.
COLLIER, MISSOURI, RED SEAL, SOUTHERN } St. Louis.
JOHN T. LEWIS & BROS CO Philadelphia.
MORLEY Cleveland.
SALEM Salem, Mass.
CORNELL Buffalo.
KENTUCKY Louisville.

IF there is an impression in the minds of any that Mixtures of White Lead and Zinc are better than Pure White Lead, it has been created by the manufacturers of the Mixtures, because a much larger profit can be made from the sale of these than by grinding and selling either White Lead or Zinc pure

If interested in paint or painting, address

National Lead Co., 100 William Street, New York.



MEN'S HAT NO. 1
In soft, rough finish. Colors Gray Mix, Brown Mix, and Black Mix.

A 50-Cent Hat by Mail

Either of these hats sent, postpaid, on receipt of 50 cents in cash, postal order or stamps. Money back if not satisfactory. We refer to The First National Bank of Middletown, N. Y. We are hat manufacturers and make the following offer to introduce these hats and our other lines of Men's, Boys', and Women's Hats in every town in the United States. Send for catalogue.

MEN'S HAT NO. 2
In smooth finish. Colors Black, Brown, Maple, Steel, and Pearl.

MIDDLETOWN HAT COMPANY, 44 Mill St., Middletown, N. Y.

Bear in mind that "The Gods help those who help themselves." Self help should teach you to use

SAPOLIO

THE EQUITABLE

HENRY B. HYDE, FOUNDER

J. W. ALEXANDER, PRESIDENT — STRONGEST IN THE WORLD — J. H. HYDE, VICE PRESIDENT.

AN INCOME WITHOUT CAPITAL can be created by means of the New Continuous Instalment Endowment Bond of the Equitable.

If you die, it will provide a permanent income for your beneficiary just when he or she may need it.

If you live, it will provide an income for yourself just when you may need it.

The income commences at once, if you die.

It will commence in twenty years, if you live and will be paid as long as either you or the beneficiary live.

It will be paid for twenty years in any event.

Send coupon below for particulars.

Vacancies in every State for men of character and energy to act as representatives. Apply to Gage E. Tarbell, 2d Vice-Pres.

THE EQUITABLE LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY OF THE UNITED STATES,
120 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Dept. No. 60.

I would like to receive information regarding a Continuous Instalment Endowment Bond, issued to a person aged..... years.

Name .....

Address .....

Mellin's Food

is just what it claims to be—an infant's food that has no equal except mother's milk. Send a postal for a free sample.

MELLIN'S FOOD COMPANY,
BOSTON, MASS.

ALL COOKS DELIGHT in using Highland Brand
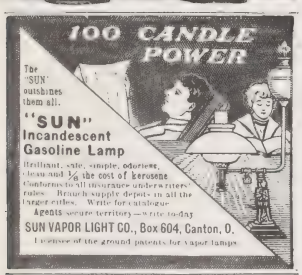
Evaporated Cream

It is the satisfactory kind—never sours nor causes disappointment at the last moment when dinner is ready to be served. Always handy, always pure, readily digestible, nutritious and appetizing—it can be used for many purposes—absolutely takes the place of milk and cream. Try it in your coffee.

Most grocers sell Highland Brand. If yours does not, give us his name and address and we will send a sample FREE.

Herbert Dyer's beautiful drawing, "Motherhood," size 11½ x 18 in. free, 2 cents each in exchange for 12 labels taken from pound size Highland cans.

HELVETIA MILK CONDENSING COMPANY
Dept. F, Highland, Ill.
"Where Model Dairy Farms Abound."



100 CANDLE POWER
The "SUN" outshines them all.
"SUN" Incandescent Gasoline Lamp
Brilliant, safe, simple, odorless, clean and ⅛ the cost of kerosene
Conforms to all insurance underwriters' rules. Branch supply depots in all the larger cities. Write for catalogue
Agents secure territory—write today
SUN VAPOR LIGHT CO., Box 604, Canton, O.
Licensee of the ground patents for vapor lamps

The Improved Method of
FINISHING FLOORS
Filling cracks with Coppon's Filler and Forbes' Applier old or new, for HARDWOOD floors, with Coppon's Wood Dye and Coppon's FILLER and FINISHING SHELLAC-VARNISH combined, not requiring shellac base though producing shellac effect of perfection attained. We give full instructions for handling all surfaces. Write today for our descriptive booklet to COPPON MFG. CO.,
Dept. 7, Newark, New York

These trade-mark crisscross lines on every package.

Gluten Grits AND BARLEY CRYSTALS,

Perfect Breakfast and Dessert Health Cereals.
PANSY FLOUR for Biscuit, Cake and Pastry.
Unlike all other foods. Ask Grocers.
For book or sample, write
FARWELL & RHINES, Watertown, N. Y., U.S.A.

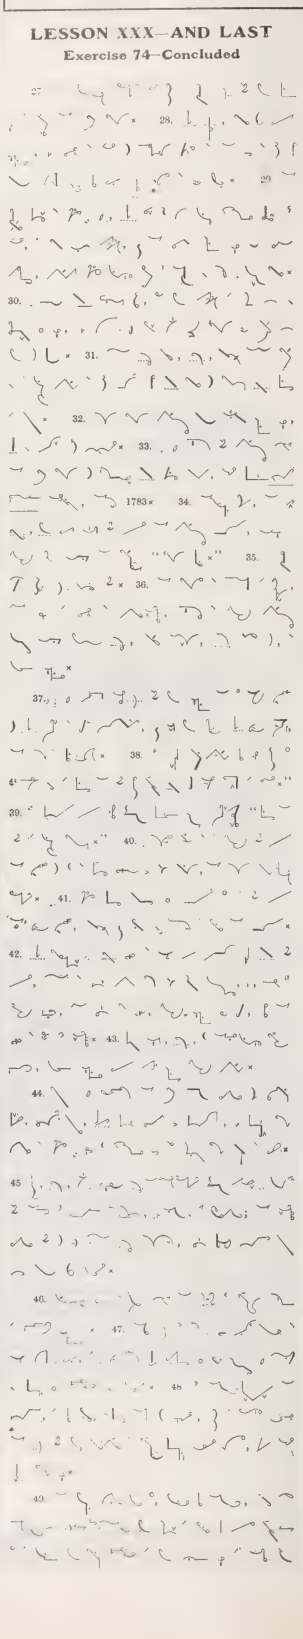
OUR COMPLETE COURSE IN.... SHORTHAND

Isaac Pitman's 20th Century Revision

By Special Arrangement with Isaac Pitman & Sons, 33 Union Square, N. Y.

LESSON XXX—AND LAST

Exercise 74—Concluded



☞ To secure the best results from these shorthand exercises, the student should read them once forward, once backward, and again forward. Then copy the shorthand neatly twice, after which take your Key to the "Instructor," and from the ordinary type, turn the exercises into shorthand. Then compare your work with the engraved shorthand, correct if necessary, and repeat the process until you can write them without an error. Another admirable plan whereby to gain speed and accuracy in shorthand writing, is to take say twenty-five or fifty lines from an editorial article in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, and turn it into shorthand, and correct your notes with the aid a Shorthand Dictionary.

Closing Remarks to the Aspiring Student

Bright students do not always make the best stenographers. It is the earnest, patient worker who invariably succeeds. Do not ask for help until you have done your best. Personal effort and mental activity develop brain power.

Have faith in the system you write. Do not imagine you can improve it. Be a student, not an inventor.

Shorthand yields the best "bread and butter" and educational results of any study we know. Your motto should be: "This one thing I will do," Study and write shorthand every spare moment daily.

Review the principles regularly; form the shorthand characters neatly, and your progress will be rapid. "That which is worth doing, is worth doing well."

SPECIAL NOTE. Every student of this shorthand course is earnestly requested to write out in shorthand, on ruled paper, leaving every alternate line blank, Exercise 75, page 81 of Shorthand Instructor, and mail the same to Messrs. Isaac Pitman & Sons, 33 Union Square, for correction, enclosing at the same time a stamped return envelope. Messrs. Pitman & Sons, on returning same duly corrected, will offer suggestions for future progress in this valuable art.

Practice! Practice!! Practice!!!

With the publication of the foregoing lesson, "THE CHRISTIAN HERALD Complete Course of Shorthand" is finished. Those who desire to obtain further instruction and to continue the study, can do so to advantage by addressing Mr. Orrin B. Booth, 115 Bible House, New York. Mr. Booth is an expert phonographic writer and teacher of long experience, and will give personal attention to all who may correspond with him with a view to taking a Supplementary Course of study, and quickly preparing themselves for positions.

"Saved by Grace."

Lately, one of the converts of the McAuley Water Street Mission, New York, celebrated the tenth anniversary of his conversion. "To my knowledge," writes Superintendent S. S. Hadley, "in all this time he has led an honest, upright life. This is all the more noticeable, from the fact that he was brought up in the slums of New York, and was a thief from childhood, and served altogether twenty years in prison."

A LAYMAN

Gave Doctor a Hint About Coffee.

Speaking of coffee, a doctor of Decaturville, O., says: "We used to analyze coffee at the medical college and in spite of our laboratory tests, which showed it to contain caffine, an active poison, I continued to use the drink, and later on found myself affected with serious stomach trouble, indigestion, headaches, etc.

The headaches came on so regularly and oppressed me so that I found it difficult to attend to my regular duties. One day last November I met a friend whom I had known to be similarly afflicted. His marked improvement in appearance caused me to inquire what he had been doing. He announced that he had, some time ago, quit coffee and was using Postum Food Coffee; to this change he attributed the change in his health.

I took the hint, even from a layman, and made the same change myself. The first week I noticed a little difference, but not much. The third week the change was almost magical. I have continued with the Postum and now my digestion is perfect, the nervous headaches have entirely disappeared, and I am well. My own analysis of the Postum Food Coffee shows it to be a pure food drink of strong character, which is a marked contrast to the old-fashioned coffee." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Song-Writers and Poets. A SUCCESSFUL SONG WILL MAKE YOU RICH. We write music to your words, arrange compositions and publish. Groom Music Co., Steinway Hall, Chicago.

Delicious Drinks and Dainty Dishes

ARE MADE FROM

BAKER'S BREAKFAST COCOA

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Unequaled for Smoothness, Delicacy, and Flavor

Examine the package you receive and make sure that it bears our trade-mark.

Under the decisions of the U. S. Courts no other Cocoa is entitled to be labeled or sold as "BAKER'S COCOA."

Walter Baker & Co. Ltd.

Established 1780 DORCHESTER, MASS.

"Its invention supersedes all other methods of House Lighting." SCIENTIFIC PRESS.

CLEVELAND HYDRO-CARBON LIGHT

BURNS 84% OF AIR AND 16% OF HYDRO-CARBON GAS.

EVERY LIGHT IS A COMPLETE GAS PLANT IN ITSELF.

Generating and Burning Its own Gas.

More light at less cost than any known system of lighting. For all houses wishing economical independence. Gives a steady white light, more brilliant than electricity and softer. Excels any town gas service; gas cannot escape. It gives ten times the light of a kerosene lamp at half the cost, with no smoke and no odor. Nothing to get out of order. No accident of any kind possible.

YOU CAN TEST BEFORE PAYING!

Knowing that if you give one of our lights a test you will at once recognize it as being far beyond anything in the line of house lighting, we will send you one of our Pendent Lights C. O. D. $4.00, express prepaid, with mantle, chimney and fluted porcelain shade, ready to light. Test it three nights and if not found satisfactory and most brilliant and inexpensive light you ever saw, return it to express agent, whom we instruct to refund your money and return light at our expense.

NOTE: If west of the Mississippi river enclose 50 cents for expressage. If west of Denver, $1.00.

A RARE CHANCE FOR AGENTS WRITE AT ONCE FOR TERRITORY

Write at once for our full description and instructions on the new system of Cleveland Lights.

THE CLEVELAND VAPOR LIGHT CO.,
1809 E. Madison Ave., - - - CLEVELAND, OHIO.
References:—Colonial National Bank (Capital Stock, $2,000,000) Cleveland, Ohio.

Write for particulars of our street lights, used in Chicago, Cleveland and other Cities

$33.00

California, Oregon, Washington.

From Chicago via the Chicago and North-Western Ry., every day February 15 to April 30th, 1903. Pullman tourist sleeping cars Chicago to San Francisco, Los Angeles and Portland daily. Double berth rate from Chicago only $6.00. Five personally conducted excursions each week. Choice of routes. Three through trains a day to San Francisco and two to Portland. The only double track railway to the Missouri River. All agents sell tickets via The North-Western Line. For full particulars address W. B. KNISKERN, Passenger Traffic Manager, 22 5th Ave., Chicago, Ill.

FLEISHER'S WORSTED THE MILL YARNS

FLEISHER'S SPANISH THE MILL WORSTED

These tags on a skein of yarn are a guarantee of perfection.

Five of them and two cents for postage entitle you to a New Knitting and Crocheting Manual, if sent to

S. B. & B. W. FLEISHER, Inc.
Philadelphia, Pa.

Mention this publication.

FLEISHER'S GERMANTOWN THE MILL ZEPHYR

FLEISHER'S SHETLAND THE MILL FLOSS

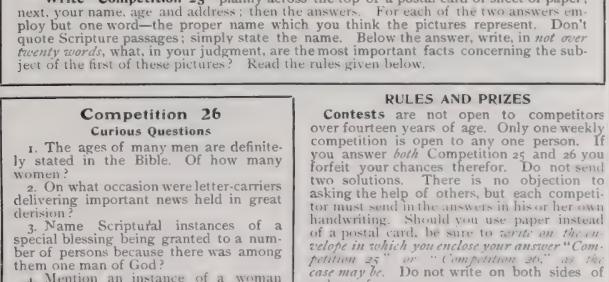
OUR SUNDAY HOUR WITH THE LITTLE FOLKS

CHILDREN, dear, we welcome all who are interested in hooking up answers to our competitions. There is a particularly warm greeting for earnest little students who have not yet won prizes. There are many children sending in excellent papers; and their good work is well known in this office and fully appreciated by judges who are watching them, and who begin to know the hand writing of every one of the thousands of little folks who come to "Sunday Hour." "Here you are again. We are glad to see you," is said as we take up the letter of many a small person whose hands we would like to clasp. Here are some extracts from letters of friends, many of whom are not prize-winners, which show the real reward we have for the pains taken to make this department interesting:

Emma Marshall, Mo. We enjoy the puzzles and answers very much.—Ruth Matthews, Ind. I like to study the puzzles.—Bertha E. Gregory, N. Y. I will keep on answering the questions. It is such an interesting way to study the Bible.—T. D. Herrick, O. The knowledge gained by searching the Bible for answers to the questions is reward in itself.—Nettie W. Pike, S. Dak. I am quite interested in the puzzles for little folks.—Clyde Dimmitt, Va. I get all [illegible] from the Bible, but sure to [illegible] I am [illegible] N. J. I am not sure [illegible] any [illegible] but I like [illegible]

There was not one absolutely correct response to Competition 17—no one child gave right replies to all four questions. If our rules read that prizes would be given for the "correct answer" we could not award a watch in the "Curious Question" contest. Fortunately, the rules read that awards are made for the "best" and "next best" answers, and hence we can recognize good work by awarding a watch and twenty five books as promised. In "Picture Puzzles," many more answers were entitled to distinction. These are easier than the "Curious Questions" and not so profitable intellectually. In order to cover these two points and make a just balance, you will observe that another test is added to these in this issue, as it was in the last. The best answer of all to each competition secures the watch to the sender. In awarding consolation prizes, each child will be in competition only with children of his or her own State, territory or province.

COMPETITION 25



What two proper names mentioned in Scripture do these pictures represent?

Write "Competition 25" plainly across the top of a postal card or sheet of paper; next, your name, age and address; then the answers. For each of the two answers employ but one word—the proper name which you think the pictures represent. Don't quote Scripture passages; simply state the name. Below the answer, write, in not over twenty words, what, in your judgment, are the most important facts concerning the subject of the first of these pictures? Read the rules given below.

Competition 26
Curious Questions

1. The ages of many men are definitely stated in the Bible. Of how many women?

2. On what occasion were letter-carriers delivering important news held in great derision?

3. Name Scriptural instances of a special blessing being granted to a number of persons because there was among them one man of God?

4. Mention an instance of a woman being enriched by presents from her husband's uncle?

Write "Competition 26" plainly across the top of your postal card or sheet of paper; next, your name, age, and address. Answer as many of the questions as you can, writing in each case the number of the question (not the question itself) before its answer. Answers to all four questions must not exceed fifty words in the aggregate. Read the following rules.

RULES AND PRIZES

Contests are not open to competitors over fourteen years of age. Only one weekly competition is open to any one person. If you answer both Competition 25 and 26 you forfeit your chances therefor. Do not send two solutions. There is no objection to asking the help of others, but each competitor must send in the answers in his or her own handwriting. Should you use paper instead of a postal card, be sure to write on the envelope in which you enclose your answer "Competition 25" or "Competition 26," as the case may be. Do not write on both sides of a sheet of paper.

All answers must be mailed not later than March 9, 1903. Address, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, Little Folks' Department, Bible House, New York.

Prizes—For the best answer to Competition 25, a handsome silver watch, lady's or gentleman's. For the best answer to Competition 26, a handsome silver watch, lady's or gentleman's. For the next best answer from each State, territory and Canadian province sending meritorious responses to competitions, a beautiful book as consolation prize.

ANSWERS TO COMPETITIONS OF JAN. 28, 1903

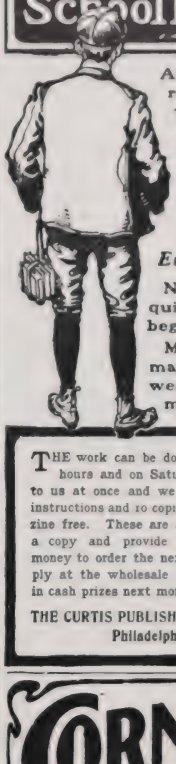
Answers to Competition 17, in our issue of Feb. 4, are: Picture Puzzle. 1. Damascus. 2. Moab. Answers to Competition 18, "Curious Questions" are: 1. Josiah. II. Kings 22: 1-2, and II. Chron. 34: 1-3. . . . 2. Abijah, son of Jeroboam. I. Kings 14: 11-13. . . . 3. Moses. Ex. 2: 3-10; 3: 10. . . . 4. Sam I. Sam. 3.

For the best answer to "Picture Puzzles" of February 4, DeWitt Caspary, Tyler, Tex., receives a silver watch; for best answers to "Curious Questions," February 4, Alma Lundberg, Fish Creek, Wis., receives a silver watch. Each of the following receives a book:

Second best answers to "Curious Questions": Ashley, James C., Wis.; Bennett, Elmer C., Del.; Blackwood, Earl, Ohio; Braxton, Janie, Katrine, Va.; Briggs, Mary, N. Y.; Buntin, Sarah, Miss.; Cochran, Alice, Ark.; Currie, Mary, Florence, N. S., Can.; De Jong, Flossie, Mich.; Dimock, Myrtle O., Me.; Ireland, Winifred, S. Dak.; La Due, Martha, Ill.; Lampert, Muriel, Ill.; Lesnett, Grace A., Pa.; Lewis, Edward B., Va.; Logan, Henry, Pa.; Pearson, Grace, Kans.; Pennes, Beatrice, Ala.; Pierce, Florence, Minn.; Pinkham, Lloyd, Me.; Reeve, Edmund, N. J.; Roop, Lavinia C., Md.; Scott, Maud, Tex.; Walker, Alice E., R. I.; Young, Frank H., Que., Can.

Second best answers to Picture Puzzle Contest: Atkinson, Fannie, Del.; Bain, Cleve C., R. I.; Bathmann, Robert, Pa.; Benton, Ruth, Idaho; Bonham, Stella, Okla.; Breuninger, Lewis T., D. C.; Carpenter, Ruth Pearl, Mass.; Cheney, Glenroy H., Me.; Clyde, Alice V., Can.; Crutcher, Elizabeth, Ky.; Davidson, Neil, Ill.; Davis, Ruth, Colo.; Doxsee, Earl, Ia.; Drake, Fay M., Ind. Ty.; Eldridge, Hope, Cana.; Fornes, Maud, Ariz.; Haebelin, Howard, Calif.; Hardie, Mary H., Kans.; Haresnape, Leo, Nebr.; Hartshorn, Jr., Frank O., N. Y.; Hatch, Vermont, Utah; Head, Ella Aubry, Miss.; Herbert, Louise W., N. J.; Howe, Clarence, N. Mex.; Johnson, Laura S., Mont.; Jordan, Ruth, Arkansas; Lacey, Allen, Wash.; McCulloch, Lida, Canada; McEwen, Ernest, Can.; May, Ruth Hubbard, Conn.; Miller, Florence, Can.; Moffett, Harold L., Mo.; Moremen, Mary G., Ill.; Murray, Chalmers S., S. C.; Myers, Irma, W. Va.; Nordyke, Mary, Ind.; Poole, Herbert, Can.; Powell Ruth, Tenn.; Renton, Mara E., Mich.; Rollins, Ethel M., N. H.; Scripture, A. Merrill, Oreg.; Shuptrine, Beaston, Ga.; Simmons, John, Can.; Smrcek, Frank, N. Dak.; Ralph E. Slaughter, Va.; Swanman, Marvin, Minn.; Taylor, Clarence, Ohio; Trout, Chester, Md.; Tryon, Hazel E., Vt.; Urquhart, Ross, S. Dak.; Watkins, Earl, N. Car.; White, May, Nev.; White, Sherman, Ala.; Winnie, Maud, Wis.

We Want a BRIGHT BOY to work after School Hours



Any boy who reads this advertisement can start in business on his own account selling

The Saturday Evening Post

No money required. He can begin next week.

Many boys make over $5 a week. Some are making $15.

THE work can be done after school hours and on Saturdays. Write to us at once and we will send full instructions and 10 copies of the magazine free. These are sold at 5 cents a copy and provide the necessary money to order the next week's supply at the wholesale price. $225.00 in cash prizes next month.

THE CURTIS PUBLISHING COMPANY
Philadelphia

We have deposited a fund for $10,000 with the Corn Exchange Bank Co., agreeing to do exactly as we advertise. We refer you to them or to any bank in Chicago.

$10 DRESSES YOU COMPLETE IN LATEST STYLE

We are originators of the plan of dressing a lady complete from head to foot for less than half the price ordinarily charged by others.

NOTE CAREFULLY OUR OFFER THEN SEND FOR SAMPLES.

For $10 We Send You:
One Genuine Pure Wool or Wool Mixed Latest Style Tailor-Made Fatou Suit, Strictly to Measure. One Very Neat Satin-Finish Petticoat. One Entirely New Pattern Shirt Waist. One Beautiful Latest Style Hat. One Pair Strong Serviceable Shoes. One Pair Lisle Thread Stockings. One New Style Shirt Waist Tie. One Irish Linen Lace Handkerchief. One Latest Style Seal Grain Leather Belt.

Every article good honest value. You need not pay until you receive the goods and find everything exactly as represented. SENT C.O.D., SUBJECT TO EXAMINATION.

We make this magnificent offer to gain new friends and customers. We are a co-operative association and share our profits with our members. Anyone may belong—costs you nothing. Send for "Proposition" at once. Also send for 1903 Catalogue Ladies' Wear. We have ten different catalogues.

Tailoring Department
NATIONAL CO-OPERATIVE MERCANTILE ASSOCIATION
94 to 100 Market Street, Chicago

ONE YEAR'S FREE TRIAL
Kenwood ORGANS $21.75 to $78.50

Shipped on approval anywhere in the U. S.
NO MONEY IN ADVANCE.
Guaranteed for 25 years.
Magnificent exclusive designs, unexcelled action; sweetest tone. Kenwood Majestic Grand, as illustrated, a masterpiece of organ building, $48.75. Thousands in use. Testimonials from every state. Send for our big illustrated
Piano and Organ Catalogue FREE
The renowned Kenwood Pianos and Organs cost less than half what dealers and agents charge for inferior makes.
Cash Buyers' Union, Dept. 0-18 Chicago.

FREE HAVE YOU A PHOTO of some dear one which you would like reproduced in an artistic manner? If so, send your name and address and we will send you our illustrated catalogue and premium list for club-raisers, also a beautiful hand-painted sample of our PHOTO-BUTTON WORK FREE. Address, SUNBEAM STUDIO, 1532 Third Ave., New York.

CORNISH PIANOS AND ORGANS FREE IN YOUR HOME FOR A YEAR

Sold From Factory to Home Direct.
SAVING ONE-HALF.

YOUR MUSICAL EDUCATION FREE.

We will present to every purchaser of a Cornish Piano or Organ a Certificate entitling the holder to a Two Years' Scholarship in the United States School of Music. Tuition to commence immediately instrument is purchased. Pupils can commence at any stage of their studies. The most satisfactory plan of Home Education ever conceived. Success Absolutely Guaranteed. Full Particulars With Every Cornish Catalogue. You Can be Taught in Your Own Home, Taking Your Own Time and for two years you will receive Absolutely Free Tuition from the best professors of music. A Cornish Piano or Organ at Factory Cost and a Free Musical Education is a Combination Unparalleled. Take advantage of it NOW. Write to-day.

CORNISH CO., Washington New Jersey.

500 only at this price, to Christian Herald readers express paid. Includes 100,000 new words, 1800 pages 9x11½ inches, weight 12 pounds. Elegant half-morocco bound. 1500 illustrations. Contains Lossing's complete History of the United States.

AMERICAN DICTIONARY CO.
150 Fifth Avenue, New York.

Webster's Dictionary Unabridged For $3.50

There isn't a lamp chimney made that isn't ashamed of its maker except MACBETH'S.

My name on every one.

If you'll send your address, I'll send you the Index to Lamps and their Chimneys, to tell you what number to get for your lamp

MACBETH, Pittsburgh.

$6.95 AT WE CLOTHE A MAN COMPLETE from head to foot with a stylish, perfect fitting sack suit, made of rich fast color dark blue ALL WOOL SERGE CHEVIOT, a pair of stylish dress shoes, latest London toe, a pair of fancy merino hose, a fashionable Derby or Fedora hat, a fine fancy percale shirt with two collars and detachable cuffs, a beautiful silk handkerchief, a rich silk fourin-hand, teck or bow necktie and a pair of fine silk overshot suspenders. SEND $1.00 DEPOSIT and give height, weight, chest, waist and crotch measure for suit, state size of shoes, hose, hat and shirt, style of hat and tie, and we will send the complete outfit exactly as described, C. O. D., by express, subject to examination, balance, $5.95, and express charges to be paid express agent if everything fits perfect, and is entirely satisfactory, otherwise we will instantly refund your $1.00. Order the outfit to-day, or write for FREE CLOTH SAMPLES of men's and boys' ready-made and made to order clothing and mackintoshes at prices ranging for Men's All Wool Suits at $4.35 up, Trousers $1.25 up, Boys' Long Pants Suits $3.50 up, Child's Two-Piece Suits $1.50 up, and Mackintoshes $1.50 up. Write for samples. JOHN M. SMYTH CO., 150-159 W. Madison St., Chicago.

THE NATURAL BODY BRACE

10 Years of Demonstrated Success.

TRIAL FREE

A delightful, certain and quick remedy for the peculiarailments of women and girls.

Helpful to all women (not bedfast) whose health or strength is not good. Makes work easy and walking a pleasure. Simple in construction.

Absolutely comfortable. Adjustable to fit both thin and stout people of any size or figure. No metal springs around the body. Worn with or without corset. Our little illustrated book might save you hundreds of dollars and years of health. Write for it today. It is mailed FREE with full particulars. Address

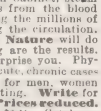
THE NATURAL BODY BRACE CO.,
Howard C. Rush, Manager,
Box 171, Salina, Kansas.
Beware of imitators, copyists and infringers.

STOP TAKING MEDICINE

Taking drugs and nostrums. Your stomach is for food not "poisons." Cleanse your system by Nature's Drugless Method. Get into a Vapor Bath Cabinet, steam and sweat the poisons from the blood and system by opening the millions of skin pores, equalizing the circulation. Remove the load and Nature will do the rest. Astonishing are the results. 10 days' trial will surprise you. Physicians and best hospitals relieve acute, chronic cases by this method. Delightful bath for men, women and children. Harmless, exhilerating. Write for "New Book" just out FREE. Prices reduced. $5.00 Cabinet $3.50. $10.00 Cabinet $6.95. Catalogue free. Agents Wanted. Big Wages. Address, WORLD MFG. CO., 673 World Bldg., CINCINNATI, O.

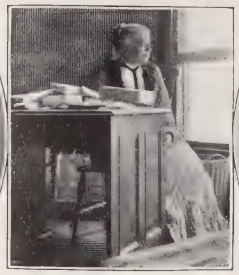
HARTSHORN SHADE ROLLERS

are perfect in action. Over 50 years' experience guides the manufacture. Get the improved. No tacks required. To avoid imitations, notice script name of STEWART HARTSHORN on label.



OUR HAPPY SUNSHINERS

BERNICE MAE DICKERSON
Seven-year-old Sunshiner



MRS. MARGARET E. SANGSTER
In her study at "Sunshine Cottage"

MRS. CHAS. H. DENISON
Second Vice-President, I. S. S.

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD Sunshine Branch now has over a thousand members, and its influence is felt all over the United States, indeed, all over the world. To those who have never heard of the Society, or to whom the Sunshine thought is new, an invitation is extended to join and help scatter Sunshine in all parts of the globe. A kind deed reported is the only requisite to membership, and dues are made by a persistent effort to make others happy, and by furnishing a monthly report of good-cheer work done. In the membership are found representatives of all known religious denominations. This is the Motto Song:

Have you had a kindness shown?—
Pass it on!
'Twas not given for thee alone—
Pass it on!
Let us travel down the years;
Let it wipe another's tears,
Till in heaven the deed appears;
Pass it on!

Letters have been received at headquarters from almost every State in the Union, thanking THE CHRISTIAN HERALD for the "good cheer" that has been received through it. Mrs. Jennie Boucher, of 172½ Fall street, Seneca Falls, is one of the many shut-ins who are grateful to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD for Sunshine. If all the letters of thanks were mentioned, it would take up much more than the space given here to Sunshine.

Sunshine for Cripples

Little Herbert Gossett, of Fairmount, Ind., has been a cripple from birth. He drags himself along the streets, for he has no wheel-chair. Mrs. L. Amelia Brown, Box 129, Fairmount, Ind., is much interested in him, and will receive any clothing suitable for a boy eight years old that may be sent to her for him.

Will members send a letter with some little gift to Miss Willie Jane Sheppard, Wedowee, Ala., for her birthday, Feb. 5? She is a cripple, who has not walked since she was fourteen. She never had a pair of shoes until Sunshine got them for her.

Miss Helen E. Knight, Southborough, Mass., has been unable to walk for four years. She is trying to support herself by hemstitching, making baby-clothes. She would be thankful for good reading, and, after enjoying it herself, will "pass it on." Address her in care of Dr. C. P. Jones.

Sunshine in Patchwork

Ben Knight, Diana, Halifax, is a wheel-chair invalid. He would appreciate patchwork pieces. He also wants foreign stamps to complete a stamp album. Mrs. Bertie Johnson, Durant, I. T., is an invalid. She would be grateful for reading matter and silk pieces. Wools and patchwork of all kinds are asked for by Mrs. John Gresham, of Buckhead, Ga. She has five children to dress and sew for. Who will send them sunshine?

Mrs. Ada C. Pollock-Blundon, president Sunshine Branch of Live Oak School (colored), Baton Rouge, La., writes that THE CHRISTIAN HERALD has helped them greatly. Mr. Mansfield, of Connecticut, has paid for the education of four boys.

Sunshine is growing wonderfully. Letters come from all parts of the world. In a recent communication from R. Kolandaivelu, a Hindu Sunshiner, he asks members for reading matter. The natives want to know more of what is going on all over the world. He particularly wants THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. Send to R. Kolandaivelu, Mandura, St. Tirumangalem District, India. Be careful to have your packages weighed and stamped. A large box of dolls was sent to Mrs. Holcomb, Mission House, Jhansi, India. This was in answer to an appeal from Mrs. Holcomb, the Sunshine president. Children in India have very few of the simple pleasures enjoyed by little ones in this country.

A SUNSHINE TRUNK

Packed with treasures seen around it, this little trunk, once owned by Lila J. Mills, Jersey City, traveled in safety over four thousand miles across the continent, to Annie and Jessie Kinney, Welcome, Washington.

THE SAVIOUR'S SHEEP

Written on receiving the picture, "Lost in the Storm," in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD "ART GALLERY"

HOW sad this scene is to the view,
Though clouds are tinged with light,
Yet, the kind shepherd, ever true,
No longer is in sight.
In these poor dogs great grief I trace;
Faithful here in the storm;
Waiting to see the shepherd's face—
Some faint glimpse of his form.

O, yes, they feel he yet will come,
Though wild the storm and fold,
To take them to their peaceful home,
Their shelter in the cold.
The Saviour's sheep can ne'er be lost,
Though great may be the storm;
Through drifting snow and biting frost
He'll keep them safe and warm.
Though all around be bleak and drear,
No ray of hope be seen;
Yet Jesus still is ever near,
Though clouds may intervene.

E. V. SWANN.

FREE TO ALL HOUSEKEEPERS

The "1900" BALL BEARING FAMILY WASHER.

A Wonderfully Simple Invention That Cuts in Half Time, Labor and Expense of Washing Clothes.

No More Rubbing or Stooping—Monday's Drudgery No Longer to Be Dreaded.

Every Household in the Land Can Have One FREE.

In order to prove to the most skeptical that the "1900" Ball-Bearing Family Washer is unquestionably the greatest Home Labor Saving Machine ever invented, we will send you one absolutely free without deposit or advance payment of any kind, freight paid, on 30 DAYS' TRIAL. If you like it, you can pay for it either in cash or on the instalment plan at the end of the 30 days' trial. If you don't like it, all you have to do is to ship it back to us at our expense. You run no risk, no expense, no obligations whatever.

The "1900" Ball-Bearing Washer is unquestionably the greatest labor-saving machine ever invented for family use. Entirely new principle. It is simplicity itself. There are no wheels, paddles, rockers, cranks, or complicated machinery. It revolves on bicycle ball bearings, making it by far the easiest running washer on the market. No strength required; a child can operate it.

No more stooping, rubbing, boiling of clothes. Hot water and soap all that is needed. It will wash large quantities of clothes [no matter how soiled] perfectly clean in six minutes. Impossible to injure the most delicate fabrics. Saving in wear and tear of clothes, to say nothing of the saving in soap and materials, pays for machine in short time. Don't be prejudiced. This is entirely different from and far superior to any other washing machine ever made.

The "1900" Washer is not a cheaply made machine. It is constructed of the very best materials; it is handsome, compact and strong, and will last a life time.

We receive constantly hundreds of flattering letters from people who have used the 1900 washer. They are all unsolicited and must naturally be sincere. We shall be pleased to send to any one writing for it, our book of testimonials, which are guaranteed to be genuine and exact copies of originals on file at our office. Among the recent letters we reproduce one, entirely unsolicited, from a veteran locomotive engineer, who has been at the throttle for forty years.

BROTHERHOOD OF LOCOMOTIVE ENGINEERS.
HUDSON DIVISION No. 125.

E. B. S. Markill Rockland Co. N.Y. Oct 29 1900
F. E. S. Johnsonville Rensselaer Co. N.Y. Oct 29 1900

SPARKILL, Rockland Co., N. Y. Oct. 29, 1900

"1900" Washer Company.

I have given your washer a fair trial and found it all right as recommended. It is one of the best washers I ever saw. It washed three pairs of my dirty and greasy overalls and overshirts in ten minutes, and washed them clean. My housekeeper says it would have taken her two hours to have washed them the old way. It will wash ten shirts, with collars and cuffs, in seven minutes. It will wash three washes without changing the water, only adding soap suds and about two quarts of hot water after the first wash.

Enclosed you will find check in full payment of the washer. Please acknowledge receipt of the same and oblige, Respectfully yours,
EDWARD KENT.

P.S.—I have been a delegate and attended twenty-six conventions held in different parts of the country, and my name is known on nearly every railroad in the United States and Canada. I am an engineer of the New York Division of the Erie road and have run an engine for forty years.

It costs nothing to try the "1900" Washer. It is sent to any one absolutely FREE for a trial of 30 days. We pay freight both ways. No money required in advance. Send for book and particulars to

THE "1900" WASHER CO.
33 J STATE ST., BINGHAMTON, N.Y.

$45 TOLMAN RANGES $23.75

with reservoir and high closet. Great Foundry Sale

We ship range for examination without a cent in advance. If you like it pay $23.75 and freight and take range for

30 Days FREE Trial.

If not satisfactory we agree to refund your money. Tolman Ranges are made of best wrought steel. Oven 17½x21 in., six 8 in. holes. Best bakers and roasters on earth. Burn anything. Asbestos lined flues.

Guaranteed 5 years.

Will save their cost in fuel in One Year. Write to-day for our new Catalogue.

JUDSON A. TOLMAN COMPANY,
Department R 17, 66 Lake Street, Chicago.

LIKE A DERRICK.

Pure Food Lifts the Sick Up.

Only those who have experienced the delicious feeling of returning health and vigor can properly appreciate the value of pure food. When the improper food is left off and scientific food such as Grape-Nuts is used in its place one begins to feel the glow of returning health. It feels as though some powerful derrick was lifting one up into the realms of sunshine once more.

"Some time ago I was taken sick and got so very low that I thought at times I would never be able to get out again," writes a business man of Wilmington, Del. "One day my wife saw an article in the paper about Grape-Nuts and read it to me. I was so impressed that I asked her to get some. How thankful I am that I did so. I was at that time reduced to a shadow of 75 pounds but the first week's use of Grape Nuts brought me to my feet so that I could stand alone. By the second week I could walk out, to the great surprise of all, and now I can get out to my business without any trouble and I have made the phenominal gain up to 160 pounds.

"Improper food nearly killed me but when I left it off and used Grape-Nuts it did not take long to put me back in health. Name furnished by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"Feed right, feel right" is a true axiom. Remember Grape-Nuts food is for Athletes, as well as the sick.

MANY ADVANTAGES.

Perfect in fit, never ragged or uncomfortable. Very convenient, stylish, economical. Made of fine cloth and exactly resemble linen goods. Turn down collars are reversible and give double service.

NO LAUNDRY WORK

When soiled, discard. Ten collars or five pairs of cuffs, 25c. By mail, 30c. Send 6c. in U. S. stamps for sample collar or pair of cuffs. Name size and style.

REVERSIBLE COLLAR CO., Dept. P, Boston

"GREAT OAKS" from little acorns grow,

GREAT FORTUNES

Start with Small Savings

We invite you to invest your money with us, in a non-speculative business, which has been operating for ten years, under the immediate supervision of the New York Banking Department. We will pay

5% Annual Dividend

Payable Quarterly by Check

Deposits may be made or withdrawn at any time, and bear earnings for every day invested. Full particulars on request, also endorsements of prominent clergymen and professional men.

Capital and Surplus, $1,100,000
Assets, $1,600,000

Industrial Savings and Loan Co.
1181 Broadway, New York City

ENTERTAINMENTS

For CHURCHES and SUNDAY SCHOOLS
most Magic Lanterns, Stereopticons and views, ll prices. Full particulars in 200 page illus. book; free. McALLISTER, Mfg. Optician, 46 Nassau St., N. Y.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS.

UNLIKE OTHER BELLS SWEETER, MORE DURABLE, LOWER PRICE. OUR FREE CATALOGUE TELLS WHY.

Write to Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., Cincinnati, O.

FREE TOUR TO EUROPE, 1903

Clergymen, Teachers and others will be given one free ticket to Europe, with all expenses, for securing party of eight for any of my tours. Send for intineraries to Edwin ones, 462 Putnam Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

GEMS FROM NEW BOOKS

"A VIRGINIA GIRL"

AN unusual and very fascinating book just published under the title of A Virginia Girl in the Civil War, by Messrs. D. Appleton & Co., is attracting a good deal of attention, North and South. Its permanent value lies in the fact that it is at once a historical and a human document; its singularity, in a certain nameless quality by which, though neither romance nor novel—nor indeed in any way resembling either—it holds the interest of the reader from first to last, with a power equalling that of fiction. It is rich in pathos and humor; free from sectional bitterness; and shows simply, sincerely and unconsciously what life meant to an American woman, during a vital and formative period in our national history. This woman, a bride of seventeen, at the beginning of the civic struggle, follows her soldier husband into battle-fields, keeping as near him as the fortunes of war permit. She is thrown with General J.E.B. Stuart, the famous cavalry leader, General W. H. F. Lee, and other noted men who wore the gray; is in Culpepper when the battle of fleetwood, or Brandy was fought; in Petersburg during the shelling, in Richmond at the evacuation. Through it all, she is simply a sweet, bright, brave, lovable girl, making merry over her hardships and trials, laughing even in the face of starvation, and winning hearts wherever she goes.

When the war was at white heat, she "ran the blockade," passing through the lines of both armies, to reach her moter in Baltimore. In this city, prominent Union officers befriended her, and her appreciation and gratitude color attractively this part of the book. A more striking situation could not have been conceived by a novelist than that which a true record supplies in the chapter entitled "The Flower of Chivalry," wherein the girl-bride sits between a Union and a Confederate captain, who are seeking to contrive ways by which she may return in safety to her husband. Fiction has never produced a more charming heroine than Nell Grey. Dan Grey, her husband, is very manly, very real, and would be entirely commendable if his expletives were less strong and frequent. The author does not assume the responsibility for characters in real life than a novelist, as their creator, would. She simply presents them as they were, and leaves them there. If there is a point she brings out in her story more strongly than another, it is indicated in this extract:

"I called on another widowed mother. Her little ones were around her, and the captain's sword was hanging on the wall. When I spoke to her of it as a proud possession, her eyes filled. Her little boy said with flashing eyes:

"'It's my papa's s'ode. When I gets to be a man, I'll take it down and kill all —.'

"'H—sh!' his mother put her hand over his mouth. 'God grant there may be no war when you are a man! Oh, Nell, when it's all over, what good will it do? It will just show that one side could fight better than the other, or had more money and men than the other. It won't show that anybody's right. You can't know how it is until it hits you. Nell, I feel that war is wrong. I'm sorry for every Northern woman who has a circle like this around her and a sword like that on her wall.' The little boy put his arm around her neck. 'My dear,' she said to him, 'I'm sorry for all little boys who haven't got a papa, and I'm sorry for their mammas. And I don't want you ever to kill anybody!'"

After Lee's surrender, when Mrs. Grey was looking anxiously for her husband, she went to General R. E. Lee's house, and there made inquiries concerning him of General W. H. F. Lee, to whose division Major Grey had belonged. He gave what information he could, and then:

"General Lee took out of his pocket a thin roll of bills, a very thin roll.

"'Mrs. Grey,' he said, 'here is all the money I have in the world, ten dollars in greenbacks. Take half of it—I wish you would—it wouldn't inconvenience me at all. I will make some more soon, and then I will divide with you again until Dan comes home.'

"I could hardly speak for tears. At that moment I was richer than my general. I had at home, in gold and greenbacks, more money than General Lee."

The book is full of incidents like this, that show human nature at its best. It is full, too, of mirth-provoking anecdotes, is optimistic and wholesome, and its spirit and tone are calculated to bridge and heal, rather than provoke sectional differences; it tends to make North and South see what is fine, good and imperishable in the other; its last word is one of loyalty to the Stars and Stripes; its strongest word is against war.

*D Appleton & Co., New York. Price $1.25 net: postage 12 cents additional.

By Myrta Lockett Avary.

BOOKS RECEIVED

Bible Criticism and the Average Man, by Andrew Agnew Johnston. Pp. 275. Price $1. Published by The Fleming H. Revell Co., New York.

Eighty Pleasant Evenings. A capital little manual of social suggestion for the use of church workers. Pp. 117; cloth. Price 35c. Society of Christian Endeavor, Boston and Chicago, publishers.

STOP! I SAY, STOP!

YOUR GOAL IS REACHED!

You need not go another step to make thousands on a small investment of $10 down and $5 a month.

Cease your hunt for opportunities. You have found the greatest of them all RIGHT HERE!

The Millionaire's Security—Real Estate in Greater New York—shall be YOUR security.

Ten Dollars down and $6 per month until you've paid us $510 will buy a choice lot within 35 minutes of New York's famous sky scrapers, in the wonderously fast-growing Brooklyn section—the district of which RUSSELL SAGE said (these are his exact words as published in the New York World on September 28th last): "BROOKLYN IS GROWING AT THE RATE OF 75,000 PEOPLE A YEAR." Then he advised as follows: "Young man, buy Real Estate, especially in the outlying boroughs, and then work hard at your usual avocation. Your Real Estate purchases will make your old age comfortable." Wise words, based on personal experience, for Russell Sage is without doubt one of the world's greatest investors and financiers, and his reputed wealth is $100,000,000.

Your money is absolutely safe with us, as twenty National Banks, Bradstreet's, and Dun's Commercial Agencies, and over 30,000 customers who have dealt with us during the last fifteen years will tell you. Investments aggregating $3,461,000 during the past year represent the endorsement of our proposition by over 4,000 individual investors.

Remember, our offer also carries a free deed in case of death, a non-forfeiture agreement, a Free Round Trip to New York (East of Chicago or like distance), the highest class of park-like improvements free, your money back with 6 per cent. interest if not found as represented.

Let us at least tell you the whole grand story in detail—then

COME TO NEW YORK AT OUR EXPENSE TO PERSONALLY VERIFY EVERY WORD WE'VE SAID

You simply cannot afford to ignore our offer. We know what we have, and the thousands who have invested with us know. You should know, and can know by filling out the subjoined coupon and mailing it to us. It costs 2 cents and a minute's time. Isn't it worth while?

WOOD, HARMON & CO., Dept. B16, 257 Broadway, New York

WOOD, HARMON & CO., Dept. B16, 257 Broadway, New York.

GENTLEMEN: Please send full particulars of your New York properties and proposition to Name.....

Street and No......

City and State

Bartlett's SELECT EUROPEAN Tours

have delighted hundreds of our patrons during the past twenty-three years. Our parties, under the personal direction of the management, are attractive, because they are small, select and congenial. Considering all that is included, our prices are the lowest. Tours vary in cost from $275 to $750.

April 28, Attractive Annual Spring Tour for Central and Southern Europe and Great Britain; June 20, Summer Mediterranean Tour, visiting Spain, Italy, Switzerland, Germany, Holland, Belgium, France, and Great Britain; June 27, Comprehensive Annual Long Summer Tour, with its variations, covering Great Britain and principal Continental countries. If you are thinking of visiting foreign lands, send for our valuable Guide Book E free.

BARTLETT'S SELECT TOURS,
532 Walnut St., Philadelphia

LEARN ENGRAVING

Engravers earn $5 to $15 daily.

WE WILL SEND YOU OUR COMPLETE COURSE OF INSTRUCTION IN ENGRAVING, with full set of tools and $5.00 practice materials for enabling any man or woman to quickly learn engraving initials, names & monograms on jewelry, silverware, door plates, etc.

Booklet free by Mail.

American School of Engraving, 30 E. 14th St., New York City.

Reduces Your Fuel Bill! 50%

PERFECT STEAM COOKER WITH DOORS

OHIO STEAM COOKER CO.,
27 Ontario Building, TOLEDO, OHIO

This Book, "Home Bible Study,"

FREE if you write and enroll at once. Course covers the whole Bible and leads to diploma and degree. You can take this course at home by mail. Terms easy. Best testimonials. For free catalogue write

C. J. BURTON,
Pres. Iowa Chris. College, Oskaloosa, Iowa

For all Church Services

CHURCH HYMNS AND GOSPEL SONGS

One-Half Million Sold.

By Ira D. Sankey
James McGranahan
& Geo. C. Stebbins

By mail, 30c. per copy.
$25.00 per 100
Returnable Sample free.

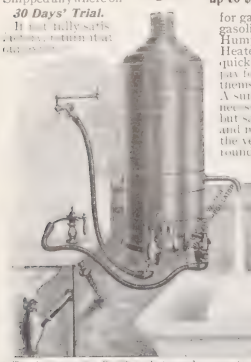
THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO.
Chicago. New York.

The Humphrey Crescent No. 9

INSTANTANEOUS WATER HEATER can be set up by anybody, as the connections can all be made with rubber tubing. It is the only satisfactory small heater on the market that gives the moment the match is applied and flows in unlimited supply. Height 20 inches. Material copper, beautifully nickel-plated.

Price, complete, only Shipped anywhere on 30 Days' Trial. $15.00

Other Heaters up to $45.00 — for gas and gasoline. Humphrey Heaters quickly pay for themselves. A summer necessity — but save time and money the year round.



"The Lowest Cost of a Bath" (at last one for a cent) is the title of our booklet, "Reproduced in colors free. Let us send it.

HUMPHREY MFG. AND PLATING CO., DEPARTMENT H. - KALAMAZOO, MICH.

Dr. Lyon's

PERFECT

Tooth Powder

Used by people of refinement for over a quarter of a century

PREPARED BY

J. W. Lyon, D.D.S.

Rider Agents Wanted

in each town to take orders for our new High Grade Guaranteed Bicycles.

New 1903 Models

"Bellise," complete $8.75
"Cossack," Guaranteed High Grade $10.75
"Siberian," a beauty $12.75
"Nendorf," Road Racer $14.75

no better bicycle at any price

Any other make or model you want at one-third usual price. Choice of any standard tires and best equipment on all our bicycles. Strongest guarantee.

We SHIP ON APPROVAL C.O.D. to any one without a cent deposit and allow 10 DAYS FREE TRIAL before purchase is binding.

500 Good 2nd-hand Wheels $3 to $8.

DO NOT BUY a bicycle until you have written for our free catalog with large photographic engravings and full descriptions.

ESTABLISHED 18 YEARS

MEAD CYCLE CO. Dept. 64 K Chicago.

NOTHING AS GOOD ADVERTISED ANYWHERE.

Sewing Machines $7.25 TO $26.50

Shipped on approval anywhere in U. S. No money in advance. All kinds, all styles; direct from factories. Avoiding salesmen's expenses and dealers or agents exorbitant profits saves you from $10 to $45. Estab. 1896. 200,000 sold. Testimonials from every state. Reference: First Nat'l Bank, Chicago. Send for big illustrated catalogue showing all styles and samples of work.

CASH BUYER'S UNION, Dept K 18, Chicago

CASH FOR YOUR

farm, home, business, or other property; no matter where located or how large or small) may be obtained through me. Send description, state price, and get full particulars free. Est'd 1876. Highest references. Offices in 14 cities, from Boston to San Francisco.

W. M. OSTRANDER

1317 N. A. Building, Philadelphia

GRAY HAIR RESTORED

"WALNUTTA" HAIR STAIN is prepared from the juice of the Hampshire walnut hull, and restores Gray, Streaked, Faded or Bleached Hair, Eyebrows, Beard or Moustache to original color instantaneously. Cannot stain from Light Brown to Black. Does not wash off or rub off. Contains no lye, acids, and leaves hair soft and glossy. "Walnutta" Hair Stain will give more satisfactory results in one minute than all the hair restorers and hair dyes will in a lifetime. Price 50 cents a bottle, postpaid. To convince you of its merits we will send a sample bottle postpaid for 20c.

PACIFIC TRADING CO., Dist. Office 66, St. Louis, Mo.

CHEAP RATES California, Washington, Oregon, Colorado. We sell new pet'd cars on household goods of interest to settlers to the above States. Write for rates. Map of California FREE.

TRANS-CONTINENTAL FREIGHT CO., 353 Dearborn St., Chicago

THE RESTORATION OF ISRAEL

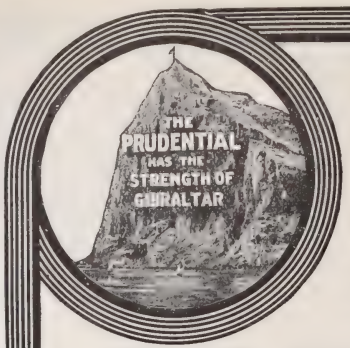
BY A. WADHAMS

THERE are very startling events in the history of the Jewish people, still future, which will certainly take place, according to the terms of the prophecies, concerning them, as for example, the restoration involves a repentance on the part of the House of Judah, this being in exact accordance with the statement made by Jesus himself. Behold your house is left unto you desolate. For I say unto you, ye shall not see me henceforth, till ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord." And the time is indicated, as again foretold by Jesus, when speaking of the destruction of Jerusalem (Luke 21 : 24), "And Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled."

Both these prophecies are even now running their course, and the very events mentioned are known to all who care to observe them. How true are the statements, "Behold, your house is left unto you desolate" and "Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles." But the rainbow of hope also overspans both these prophecies, because of the time yet coming in the history of the Jews, when they shall say, "Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord," and that Jerusalem shall again resume her history, when the treading down of the Gentiles shall have ceased.

The turning point in their history is recorded in the twelfth chapter of Zechariah, as will be seen by the following analysis of this chapter: Notice first, that in verse 1 the prophecy concerns "Israel." Israel is a general term, inclusive of both the "House of Israel" and the "House of Judah." The idea is brought out in the Revised Version by a division of verse 1. The paragraph of the Authorized Version at verse 3, is carried back and commences in the midst of verse 1, thus making prominent the fact that, while the prophecy concerns "all Israel," that specifically it refers to the "House of Judah" and its repentance. In verses 2 and 4, "Jerusalem is a cup of reeling" and "a burdensome stone for all the peoples" and verse 2 "upon Judah also shall it be in the siege." Verse 4: "In that day, saith the Lord . . . I will open mine eyes upon the house of Judah." In verse 5 is a remarkable statement. Notice what "the chieftains of Judah shall say in their hearts," and very definitely, "the inhabitants of Jerusalem are my strength in the Lord of hosts their God." Verse 6 shows that the "chieftains of Judah are to be miraculously helped," with the result that the peoples round about are to be subdued, and "in that day . . . Jerusalem shall yet again dwell in her own place, even in Jerusalem." In verse 7 the House of Judah is to be saved first, and in a marked manner. The reason given is well expressed (in Leeser's version of the Old Testament), "in order that the glory of the house of David, and the glory of the inhabitants of Jerusalem shall not become boastful over Judah." "In that day" (verse 8) the inhabitants of Jerusalem are to be defended by the direct intervention of the Lord, and (verse 10) "the spirit of grace and of supplication" is to be poured upon the house of Judah, here called "the house of David" and "the inhabitants of Jerusalem . . . and they shall look unto me" (or according to some MSS., him) "whom they have pierced." This statement, we know, refers only to the House of Judah, and could not be said of the House of Israel, who had been deported into Assyria, some 715 years before the crucifixion of our Saviour. The House of Judah, when this fact dawns upon them, become the subjects of a great mourning, described in detail in the remainder of the chapter.

In closing, attention is again called to the fact that while it is the prophecy of the repentance of the House of Judah (the Jews) in particular, yet the prophecy, in its general application (ver. 1), concerns the whole house of Israel (the twelve tribes). It is therefore clearly seen that the movement called "Zionism" has no lot or part in the matter, as it does not propose any recognition of Jesus as their Messiah. Wonderful things, however, are yet in store for the Jews, when they shall have discovered their brethren of the House of Israel, but who, and where, is Israel?



Money Makes Money

if carefully invested. Our Guaranteed Five Per Cent 20-Year Endowment Bonds enable you to draw out money in your life-time.

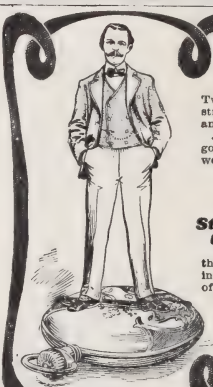
Twice the Amount of Policy returned if you live 20 years.

Write for Particulars, Dept. 70

THE PRUDENTIAL

Insurance Company of America

JOHN F. DRYDEN, President — HOME OFFICE, Newark, N. J.



STRENGTH

Twenty-five years ago in acquainting jewelers with the strength of the Jas. Boss Stiffened Gold Watch Cases, an enterprising salesman used the method here shown.

Jas. Boss Cases are still the strongest cases made. As good as solid gold in appearance. Better than gold in wearing quality. Less than solid gold in cost. In a

JAS. BOSS

Stiffened GOLD Watch Case

there is a layer of very hard composition between an inside and outside layer of solid gold reducing the cost of the case, and adding greatly to its strength.

BOSS Cases are guaranteed to wear for 25 years; are recognized as the standard, and sold as such by all jewelers. Write us for a booklet.

The Keystone Watch Case Company, Philadelphia.

By This Mark You Know Them

Lowest Prices Best Machine

$8.45 is the price of our Competition Sewing Machine. Our $14.75 grade is the equal of machines sold by other firms at $16.00 to $19.00 and as high as $35.00 by agents. We have other grades at $10.75, $17.75 and up to $26.75, all guaranteed.

Send TODAY for Catalogue LA sent free, giving large pictures and descriptions of excellent machines at wholesale prices, also explaining our Free Trial Offer and Guarantee.

For $20.35 we offer a strictly high-grade attractively finished machine, equipped with latest improved automatic drop head, 7 drawers, ball bearings, eccentric system of mechanism, etc. This machine we guarantee to do as good or better work, to be as well made and finished and to give as long and satisfactory service as any machine on the market. A better machine cannot possibly be made. $19.85 for same machine with five drawers. Our prices are the lowest for dependable quality. Thirty-one years' reputation for honest values and fair dealing back of our guarantee.

$20.35

Montgomery Ward & Co. Michigan Ave. & Madison St., Chicago

IF YOU ONLY KNEW how much money you can save and how much better stove or range you can g you'd send to-day for full particulars about the

KALAMAZOO Steel Stoves & Range

Sold direct from our factory on 360 Days Approval Test, backed by $20,000 bank bond. We guarantee perfect satisfaction or ask no pay.

We pay the freight. Ask for catalogue No. 103.

KALAMAZOO STOVE COMPANY, MFRS., KALAMAZOO, MICH

"All our Cook Stoves and Ranges have patent oven thermometers.

1 of 100 Premiums

$10 PREMIUMS GIVEN AWAY WITH $10 ASSORTMEN

Of Laundry and Fine Toilet SOAPS and Perfumes. Our Premiums consist of Couch Morris Chairs, Beds, Tables, Desks, Sto Musical Instruments, etc. In fact, through the LOCKWOOD WAY you can furn your entire home free. Send your name and address and we will mail you absolut FREE our beautiful illustrated catalogue containing handsome and useful premiu also full information in regard to our 30 days' FREE TRIAL order.

LOCKWOOD SOAP CO., Dept. 13, KANSAS CITY, M

Are You Deaf?

We have 25 KINDS OF INSTRUMENTS TO ASSIST HEARING Sent on approval. Write for catalogue.

WM. V. WILLIS & CO. 134 South 11th Street, Philadelphia

MISSOURI 5% INVESTMENT

Let me send you my book, Farm Mortgages. Unquestioned Securit 5 Wardell Bldg., Macon, Mo. WM. R. COMPTON,

SHORTHAND, Students of the Christian Herald should get the "Shorthand Instructor," upon which the lessons are based, 276 pp., $1.50. ISAAC PITMAN & SONS, 33 Union Sq., New York. "Reasons Why" free.

AGENT'S OUTFIT FREE. Easyeweep Dust P Handled with feet; dirt emptied without lif Large Catalog very latest household articles; n sellers. Richardson Mfg. Co., Dept. 6, Bath,

BORAX
CLEARS THE COMPLEXION

Your pores are full of soap
this injures your complexion

When you wash your face and hands, nine times out of ten soap is left behind in the skin. It gets down into the pores and resists your efforts to rinse it out. When the face is dried the soap is still there. The natural result is apparent in the thousands of poor complexions we see about us. Usually they belong to people whose pores are full of soap.

If you add a quarter teaspoonful of BORAX your basin of water will be "softened" so that the soap becomes much more soluble in it and is quickly rinsed out of the pores, leaving the skin in a healthy state.

ANY WOMAN WHO USES BORAX IN THIS MANNER WILL SEE AN ALMOST IMMEDIATE IMPROVEMENT IN HER COMPLEXION.

FIRST—Add a quarter teaspoonful of borax to a basin of warm water. Wash your face in this water with soap and a wash rag and rinse it thoroughly in the same water.

SECOND—Rinse your face with clear cold water.

Your physician will recommend BORAX for this purpose. Hands should be cleansed in the same way without the wash rag. They will clean quicker and stay clean longer because there is no soap left in the pores to catch dirt.

There are dangerous adulterations of borax sold. Pure borax is sold in packages under the name

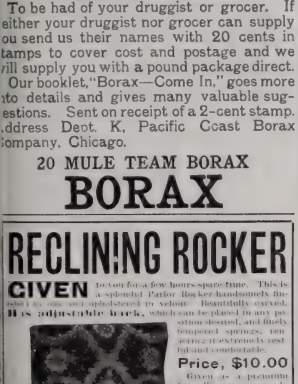
"20 MULE TEAM BORAX."

To be had of your druggist or grocer. If either your druggist nor grocer can supply you send us their names with 20 cents in stamps to cover cost and postage and we will supply you with a pound package direct.

Our booklet, "Borax—Come In," goes more into details and gives many valuable suggestions. Sent on receipt of a 2-cent stamp. Address Dept. K, Pacific Coast Borax Company, Chicago.

20 MULE TEAM BORAX
BORAX

RECLINING ROCKER
GIVEN to one for a few hours' spare time. This is a splendid Parlor Rocker handsomely finished, and upholstered in velour. Beautifully carved. Has adjustable back, which can be placed in any position desired, and finely tempered springs, ten gauge throughout, extremely well balanced and comfortable.



Price, $10.00
Given as a premium for selling us soaps only $10.00 worth of our celebrated Niagara Extracts, Perfumes, and Toilet Preparations, and other specialties.

You have the chair to use while earning it.

NO MONEY REQUIRED.

We send you both the chair or other premium selected from our 112-page catalogue and the goods you choose, and when you have sold the goods you send us the $10.00. We are the only firm making both goods and premiums—hence can give you the greatest bargains on earth.

Full descriptive catalog of goods and premiums free.

S. A. COOK & CO.,
201 Cook Building, - Medina, N. Y.

A Knife Made To Order With Your Own Photo

No. 263 cut ½ size. Price $1.00
With your own photo, - $1.25
(Sent post-paid on receipt of price).

59 styles for Ladies or Gentlemen. Send for circulars and terms. Agents Wanted.
THE CANTON CUTLERY COMPANY
221 W. Tenth St., - - - Canton, Ohio

Name and address, Lodge or other emblem, in a transparent unbreakable handle.
HAND FORGED RAZOR STEEL BLADES.
Guarantee with each knife.

QUAINT PSALMS for QUEER FOLK

By Rev. C. H. Yatman

PSALM LXXXI
Persuasive Psalm

8 Hear, O my people, and I will testify unto thee: O Israel, if thou will hearken unto me;

9 There shall no strange god be in thee; neither shalt thou worship any strange god.

10 I am the Lord thy God, which brought thee out of the land of Egypt: open thy mouth wide, and I will fill it.

11 But my people would not hearken to my voice; and Israel would none of me.

"NO STRANGE GOD"

Some Psalms are prayerful, some praiseful, some powerful, some mournful, some merciful, but this one is full of Persuasion. Plaintive appeal is made by God. Strange fact that instead of man pleading with Jehovah, the Lord is pleading with man.

. . .

PSALM LXXXII
Psalm for Judges

1 God standeth in the congregation of the mighty; he judgeth among the gods.

2 How long will ye judge unjustly, and accept the persons of the wicked?

3 Defend the poor and fatherless: do justice to the afflicted and needy.

4 Deliver the poor and needy: rid them out of the hand of the wicked.

"DO JUSTICE"

. . .

Here is a Psalm for the legal profession. Lawyers and judges will find more in it than Blackstone. Back of all jurisprudence is Jehovah, the Judge of the whole earth. Justice and equity will yet prevail universally. Let those who have suffered at the hands of the law (and there be not a few), turn for help to this Psalm.

. . .

PSALM LXXXIII
Psalm for Crafty Folk

1 Keep not thou silence, O God: hold not thy peace, and be not still, O God.

2 For, lo, thine enemies make a tumult: and they that hate thee have lifted up the head.

3 They have taken crafty counsel against thy people, and consulted against thy hidden ones.

. . .

For a full list of crafty creatures this Psalm was created, and their children do live until this day. Modern Philistines and Ammonites stalk about with lifted heads, but their doom is certain and sealed. As their fathers, so they will soon become "dung for the earth." "Jehovah lives."

"THEY TAKE CRAFTY COUNSEL"

. . .

PSALM LXXXIV
Church-Goers' Psalm

1 How amiable are thy tabernacles, O Lord of hosts!

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the Lord: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God.

